MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY

START

ST HILAIRE
SPECTATOR

JAN 3 1900 THRU JUN 26 1901

Title: St. Hilaire SPECTATOR

19:24 - 20:49

Inclusive Dates: Jan 3 1900 Jun 26 1901 *

Missing Issues:

May 23 1900;
Jun 5-19 1901

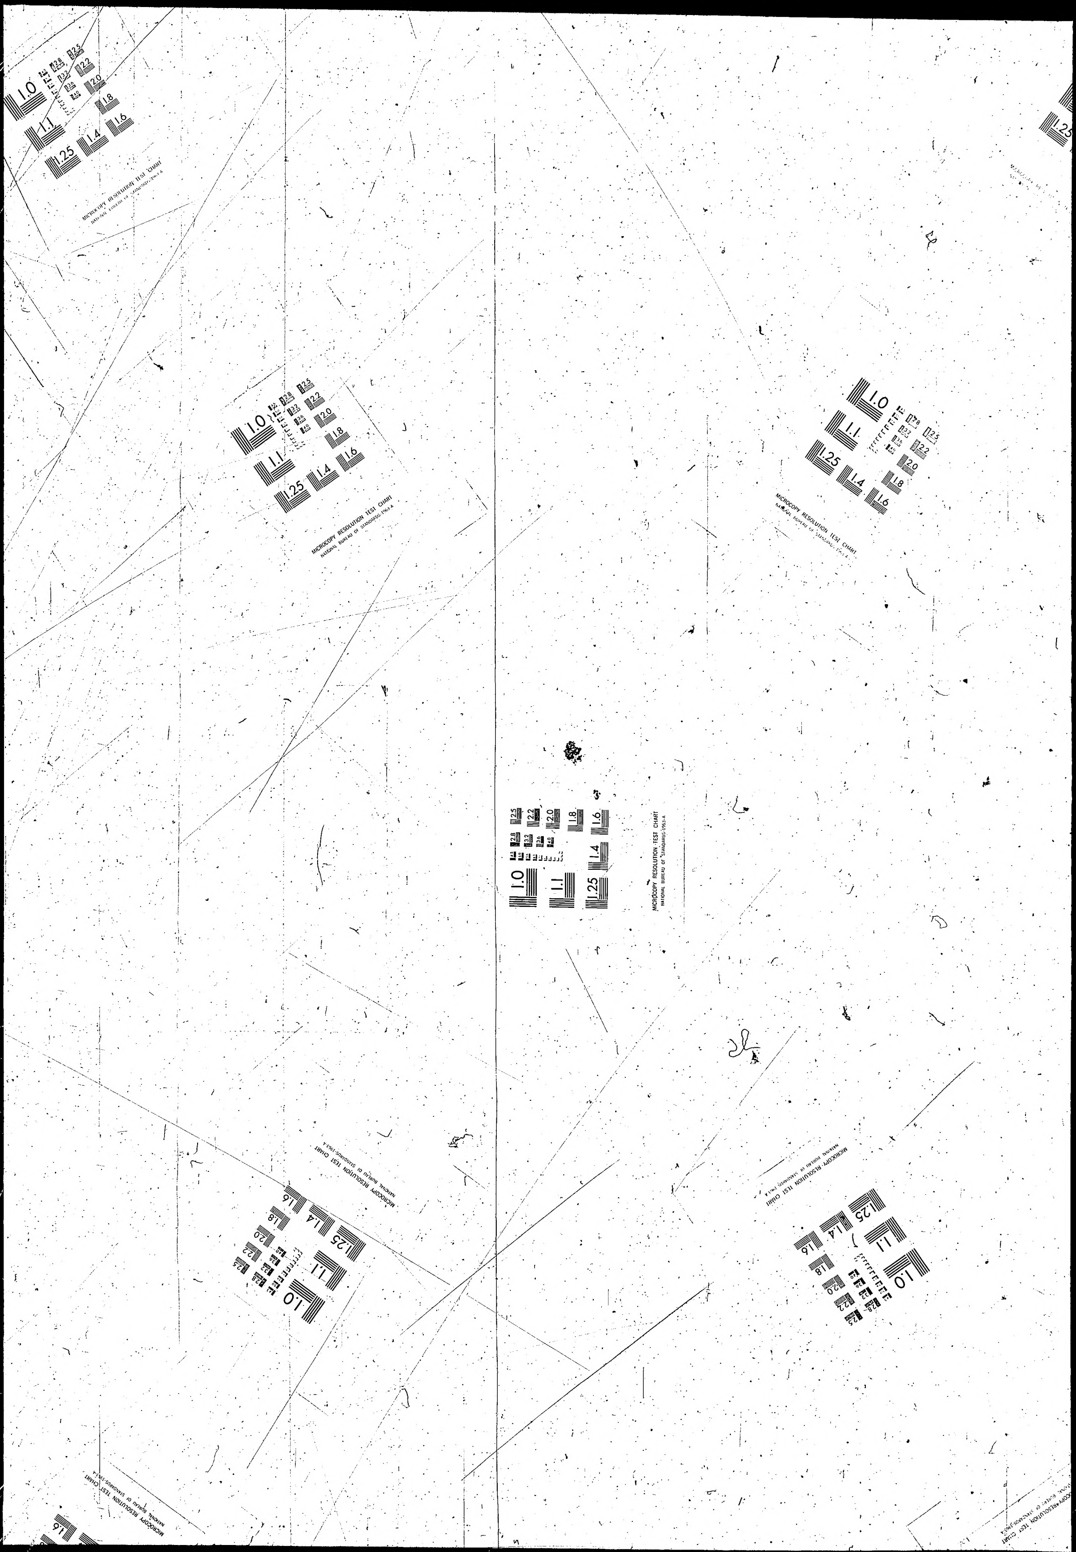
156-11-1981

Originals held by: MHS x Other ___

Prepared by: JAykens	Date: Oct 30 1981	Format: 1A x 2B
Filmed by: Owens	Date: 11/24/81	Camera No. Red 1
Reduction Ratio: 14½	Voltmeter 30/92	No. Expos.
Prelim. Inspection by:	Date:	Density;
Target Resolution: ______/mm	O.K. ___ Reject ___	Length:

The Minnesota Historical Society has reproduced the material in this microfilm without any purpose of direct or indirect commercial advantage in order to preserve & to secure it for private study, scholarship, and research.

The material reproduced may be protected by copyright law. Any person engaging in further reproduction of this material may be liable for infringement.



1.0
1.1
1.25
1.4
1.6
1.8
2.0
2.2
2.5
2.8
3.2
3.6
MICROCOPY RESOLUTION TEST CHART
NATIONAL BUREAU OF STANDARDS-1963-A

1900

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

VOLUME XIX. ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 3, 1900. NUMBER 24.

JAN. 1, 1900!

AND THE OUTLOOK FOR VICTORY STATE AND NATIONAL.

Inspiration From a Week's Presence in Minnesota of Senator James K. Jones, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee—Enthusiasm, Party Unity and Unity of Co-operating Reform Forces, the Net Result—New Year's Greeting—The Week's Round-up of Vigorous State and National Politics.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, Jan. 1, 1900.

Happy New Year to all! With a hope for the dawn of better things for the republic than foreign conquest and surrender to the money power, in the opening of another decade, and another century.

Now that it is conceded on all sides that the new century does not begin until Jan. 1, 1901, how glad we are that we have not mingled with the discussion, and that on the 64th day of the bran New Century, Bryan will be installed in the White House!

Decidedly the political event of the week has been the inspiring presence of our great head of the Democratic National committee, Senator James K. Jones of Arkansas. He with ex-Vice President General Stevenson of Illinois, and the distinguished General Watt Hardin of Kentucky, met with a goodly company of Twin City Democrats and other members of the Reform forces at Democratic headquarters, the Merchants hotel, St. Paul, the day following Christmas, a number from outside places, chancing to be present. The result was large chunks of inspiration for the state forces of reform, while the distinguished visitors took with them to their different fields, a good impression of the forward state of organization in the North Star state, and a high opinion of the men charged with the people's affairs, under the administration of Governor Lind, and the future success presaged at their hands.

It is indeed a happy circumstance that the children of our Southern friends have settled among us, thus assuring frequent visits of their honored parents.

It was a great pleasure to all to find Senator Jones in the enjoyment of robust health and that vigor which has in the past enabled him to do so great work in the cause of true Democracy, and which is one of the almost certain omens of final success. Intercourse with him while here, as well as his utterances in public, have inspired our state leaders with absolute confidence of success in the fight now opening. To such Senator Jones was entirely frank and open, speaking freely of the exact situation, as well as the plans maturing for action. All is encouraging. He also exposed numerous lies industriously spread by a venal press, among which he mentioned those stories personal to himself and colleagues of the committee, representing that serious factions exist. There is not one word of truth in this. Another untruth is that there is any portion of the South not in harmony with the policy of opposition to the Republican conquest of the Filipinos; that tale is absolutely untrue.

Senator Jones states that congress will at a very early date force through the infamous gold bill, and complete the surrender to the money power, McKinley completing it with his signature, the final surrender of his life record as a bi-metallist. This act of the Republicans will make the financial question very prominent, and the people will settle once and for all whether they will surrender this country to the hated foreign policy which has so long figured for mastery in this country. The trusts will be an issue, the Republicans being held absolutely responsible for existing conditions, unless, since they are now in power, they in the present session pass absolutely remedial legislation. Senator Jones explained the campaign of education that will be relied on, laying stress on the work of the country press, on which, in the subsidizing of the daily metropolitan press, everything depends.

Another refreshing event occurred Thursday evening at Minneapolis when Hon. Elijah Barton, chairman of the local Democratic committee, arranged a reception to National Chairman Jones by the local Democrats. Those invited included Governor Lind, State Chairman Rosing and National Committeeman T. D. O'Brien, and also Hon. Charles A. Towne. A magnificent feature was the attendance of Gold Democrats and others not previously acting with the "regenerated Democracy."

It was learned from Senator Jones that all sections of the country are as nearly unanimous in sympathy with the Boers as he finds them in the Northwest. Also, that the quickened American conscience is rapidly seeing that the same principles are involved in the McKinley war on the Filipinos as Great Britain's war on the South African republics.

And so we saluted the flag of the Filipino republic did we, before we fired upon it? So the record seems to be. What infamy!

The annual meeting of the state educators at St. Paul was under circumstances of unusual interest and profit. The sentiment abounded that Superintendent Lewis is giving the people a mighty good administration of the educational department. The numerous improvements he has accomplished and the untiring energy in the discharge of duty, as well as the ability of the corps by which he has surrounded himself, were highly commended.

South Dakota Anti-Imperialists have followed Minnesota in a large and enthusiastic organization, headquarters Sioux Falls. Congratulations.

A Russian count has invented a coffin attachment that will signal above ground if a person has been buried alive. It is safe that the apparatus will not be needed for the G. O. P. after the November burial. The patient will be real dead.

The small-souled persons who for base partisan purposes would discredit Minnesota wheat, should carefully ponder the following:

The Corn Trade News, Liverpool, of Dec. 2, just at hand, reports sales for that day as follows:

1,000 quarters No. 1 hard, Duluth, December, January delivery, at 85½ per bushel.

3,000 quarters No. 1 hard, Duluth, December, January delivery, at 84½ per bushel.

1,000 quarters No. 1 hard, Manitoba, December, December delivery, at 84 per bushel.

Strange to say, Englishmen have not yet found out that Minnesota grades are ruined.

And yet within the past week, the unfair Mankato Free Press said this: "The fact is that the grade instead of being established and maintained by the state grain inspection department, as was formerly the case, is now made by the buyer or his agent."

Preparations for the St. Paul carnival, Feb. 3 to 13, inclusive, are progressing with great enthusiasm. The programme will be such that the weather will cut no figure. If hot and summery, the programme will abound in cooling features; if cold, there will be hot things in plenty.

Venezuela followed the United States with a first class, gold-standard panic. "And there's more to follow."

Whenever you lick a revenue stamp, don't kick. For you not only contribute to support our army of conquest in the Philippines but also to benefit the speculators on Wall street. You also contribute to the funds which McKinley's secretary of the treasury deposits with the Rockefeller bank without interest, to be loaned out in the next flurry at from 3 to 186 per cent.

McKinley's administration has out-Clevelanded Cleveland's by openly establishing the favorite New York bank, Rockefeller's, where the treasury funds are being turned in at the rate of millions a day. How do the people like it? How do the banks that are not in the combination like it?

Who thought that we should so soon have the great banking trust? But here it is, and how do you like it?

The currency bill and Secretary Gouge's selection of a New York pet bank to hold the public money, present exactly the United States bank question that was fought out in Jackson's administration. Jackson took the money power by the throat. Another will throttle the great banking trust, and his name is Bryan.

Following the Harper Brothers' celebration of gold standard prosperity, by failure, comes an equally prominent move of the same kind in Boston, the celebrated Lovell Arms company. Established in 1841, this company had for 58 years prospered under the bimetallic policy. And so they go. For a time the smaller concerns, but the great ones as their times come. Gradually the gold standard skull and cross bones becomes, like the real thing, "no respecter of persons."

Boston has recorded $17,000,000 of failures within two weeks past—pretty good for gold standard, prosperous Boston.

Executive Agent Beutner of the Game and Fish commission, has made his annual report, and it shows that the department has been conducted with rare ability and economy under Mr. Beutner. The nets and property seized or destroyed in violations of the law aggregated over $5,000. Sales from seizures also exceeded $2,000. In fish propagation more than 2,600,000 "fry" were planted. Trout, 2,101,000; bass, 28,000; croppies, 58,000; wall-eyed pike, 400,000; total, 2,587,700. Agent Beutner is another case of the right man in the right place.

Arrangements are completed for the Minneapolis Jackson day celebration, by banquet and Exposition meeting, Jan. 10. Persons desiring tickets (banquet, none are to be issued for the Exposition) should apply at once to William Baldwin, West hotel, Minneapolis.

Mr. Bryan closed his Texas outing with the capture of a real live panther. He will from this on pursue the Republican catamount, and will bag him in November.

Financial reports show that 46 railroads lost $345,000,000, while 48 trust concerns lost $320,000,000, in decline of stock values in the panic of last week. Even Twin City Rapid Transit had a dead loss of $1,000,000, falling 10 or more points and has been dropped from quotations.

There is another just judge to add to the Brewers and Caldwells who have stood by the people, located in Toledo, who has decided that laborers on strike commit no violation of law in peaceably patrolling where laborers are employed who have taken the places of the strikers, or in efforts to induce them to also quit work. The employers had obtained the corporation weapon of injunction against the strikers, which, on hearing, the Toledo judge dissolved.

And, speaking of "government by injunction," condemned by the Chicago platform, the sensible man is now hard to find who will not admit that the Democratic declaration was right. Thousands who condemned that plank in 1896 will now support it, as well as the then hated declaration for the income tax.

G. S. C.

THE NEWS RESUME

EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK IN A CONDENSED FORM.

A General Resume of the Most Important News of the Week From All Parts of the Globe, Boiled Down and Arranged in Convenient Form for Rapid Perusal By Busy People.

From Washington.

Strict enforcement of the immigrant laws cause many deportations.

A new treaty between China and Mexico has ben signed in Washington.

Congressman Bailey of Kansas favors a modification of the sheep-dipping law.

The chiefs of divisions in government departments say that the holidays interfere with public work.

The United States will pay for the return of the families of Spanish prisoners to Spain from the Philippines.

Under the new census, which will cause a reapportionment of members of congress, electoral conditions in the South will be inquired into searchingly.

The director of the mint says that no possible supply of money can prevent stock exchange panics, because speculation and rising prices will absorb any possible increase.

Secretary Gage has made a very direct explanation of his choice of the National City Bank of New York as distributing agent for the government's deposits, saying that bank had furnished the largest security, instantly turning in $4,000,000 of bonds in response to his proposal, in addition to very large bond deposits already in the treasury.

Personal.

Aguinaldo's wife is dead.

Dwight L. Moody, the noted evangelist, is dead.

Prof. Coues, the famous ornithologist, dies in Baltimore.

Ezra Huss died at the Oliver house, South Bend, Ind., from an unknown cause.

Andrew Carnegie has given $2,000 to provide swimming baths and a gymnasium for Dunfermline.

Ill-health may force the resignation of Minister of Public Works Tarte from the Canadian cabinet.

W. J. Bryan will make several speeches in the East, discussing the money, trust and Philippine questions.

The widow of J. M. Krebs who, during the Civil war, commanded the Eighty-seventh Illinois regiment, is dead at Carmi.

Representatives of five generations were present when Stephen G. Stackpole celebrated his ninetieth birthday at Saugus, Mass., a few days ago.

Mme. Modjeska expresses confidence the reputation of having paid the largest sum to any singer at a private musicale. This was $1,500, paid to Melba.

Sir Henry Irving is credited with making a contract with Charles Frohman for an American season of not less than five months yearly until further notice.

G. Weckerlin, for many years envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of The Netherlands in this country, will act in the same capacity in Turkey, and Baron Gevers, until now holding this position in Bucharest, has been appointed to fill the vacancy in the United States.

Foreign.

Germans want better tariff rates for their sugar.

London is to spend $15,000,000 on new drainage works.

Russia continues to ship reinforcements to the Pacific coast.

Serious horse-sickness breaks out in British and Boer camps in Natal.

Brazil seeks commercial treaties with France, Germany, Italy and Spain.

The French government has refused to promote Marchand or allow him to lecture.

The pope inaugurated the holy year by opening the holy door of St. Peter's cathedral.

Trees and shrubs are being planted along the Suez canal to keep the sand from drifting.

The nucleus of a fund has been collected to transfer the body of Chopin from Paris to Cracow.

Queen Victoria gave a Christmas party for the children of Windsor guardsmen serving in Africa.

The German government will not try to buy the Danish West Indies, owing to American opposition.

Criminal Record.

William B. Gale, a well known criminal, died in Boston.

John Lennon, a teamster, was found dead in San Francisco. Indications point to murder.

Chinamen are charged with wrecking the American mission in Victoria, B. C., with dynamite.

Wayne Hatfield, son of Elias Hatfield, shot and killed George Hatfield's son of Bear Creek, W. Va.

A New York variety actor and joke writer committed suicide after attempting to kill his wife and child.

A Missouri farmer, because of financial reverses, killed his three children and himself, his wife having previously committed suicide.

A former president of the failed Globe National Bank of Boston has been arrested on a charge of embezzlement and misappropriation.

At Vandalia, Mo., Edward Spencer walked up to Benjamin Eddleman, a night watchman with whom he had quarreled, and shot him dead.

George McCreery, a farmer living near Charlotte, Mich., was found dead in bed with a bullet wound in his left side. The coroner will investigate.

Eugene L. Packard, who formerly conducted the Investment and Security company in New York, was convicted of using the mails to further his schemes, and was remanded for sentence.

Accidental Happenings.

A fatal wreck occurred on the Northern Pacific in Montana.

About forty school children were drowned recently in Belgium.

An unknown woman was killed in a passenger train wreck at Pomona, Cal.

Miss Allee's millinery store at Wabash, Ind., was destroyed by fire. The loss is $6,000.

A British steamer was wrecked off Cape Hatteras, twenty-one lives being lost.

A large company of miners lost their lives by an explosion in a Pennsylvania coal shaft.

George Hanna and S. A. Vanallen, at Epworth, Iowa, drank wood alcohol and both are dead.

Several lives were lost and considerable damage was done by an earthquake shock in Southern California.

The Augusta Loeffler greenhouse, at St. Joseph, Mich., was destroyed by fire, the loss amounting to $8,000.

At Quincy, Ill., eleven children were burned to death and others seriously injured in a Christmas rehearsal fire.

By fire the Montgomery Door and Box company at Buffalo was damaged $100,000 and the Dutcher Manufacturing company $20,000.

Eustalia, the three-year-old daughter of G. A. Driess of Green Bay, Wis., died from the effects of burns received while playing around a Christmas tree.

Walter Tancke, nineteen years old, living at Kenosha, Wis., was seriously burned while personating Santa Claus, his apparel accidentally catching fire.

Maggie Drayer, aged fourteen, was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of an old musket in the hands of Mrs. William Taylor at Topeka, Kan.

The sawmill of the Perkings Manufacturing company and the Georgia Iron works, owned by the Perkings Manufacturing company at Augusta, Ga., were destroyed by fire. Loss $175,000.

In a rear-end collision near Bardstown, Ky., between a freight train and the Springfield accommodation on the Louisville Z Nashville, Mrs. J. M. Carothers of Bardstown was caught between two seats and crushed to death.

The steamer Trinidad, from Kings Lynn, took into New York twelve seamen who were saved from the wreck of the Norwegian bark Autocrat, bound from Atlanta, Ga., to Kingston. The crew were rescued after several days of hardship and hunger.

General.

Illinois beekeepers ask legislation on foul brood plague.

Coal mining is to be tried in Nebraska, near Sioux City.

Chicago has only [illegible] stock of wool on hand.

The Lovell Arms company of Boston has made an assignment.

Chicago bankers say Western deposits will not be returned to New York.

A new bank in New York will make a specialty of collecting out-of-town checks.

Cardinal Satolli denies that the Pope has authorized Latin-American priests to marry.

A company has been organized to control the manufacture of enameled bath tubs.

A Toledo judge has decided that strikers may patrol works and urge others to quit.

The increased price of copper will lead to the use of aluminum for electrical purposes.

The fourth annual convention of the Commercial Travelers' Federation was begun in Chicago last night.

Susill A. Isaacson, a clothing dealer of Boston, has filed a petition in bankruptcy. Liabilities $122,811, assets $60,000.

Another malting plant, which will not be identified with the malt trust, will be placed in operation in Milwaukee, Jan. 1.

James and Allan McNaughton, of the Tradesmen National and the Wool Exchange, New York, have filed petitions in bankruptcy.

The annual convention of the National Live Stock association will be held at Fort Worth, Tex., Jan. 16, and continue four days.

A new national fraternal and benevolent order, Knights of the White Cross, has been organized, with headquarters in Columbus, Ohio.

Samuel Wall, an Akron, Ohio, copartner, Albert Barmse, was stricken with paralysis when he heard of the death, and died in a few hours.

The Kentucky courts will have to decide whether the Republican governor, Taylor, or the Democratic election commissioner, Poyntz, has the right to appoint successors to Commissioners Pryor and Ellis.

Supt. Pearse of Omaha, a member of the executive committee of the National Educational association, says the choice for the next convention, to be held in July, lies between Boston, Montreal and Charleston, S. C.

Steps toward the organization of a joint college admission examination board have been taken at a conference held at Columbia university between representatives from colleges of the middle states and Maryland.

The supreme court of New York has granted an attachment for $17,500 against property in that state belonging to the Siegel-Hillman Dry Goods company of St. Louis in favor of the Corn Exchange Bank on two notes.

Regarding an item recently published in Denver that he had asked for service in Cuba, Gen. Henry C. Merriam, commanding the department of the Colorado, said: "You may say the statement is entirely unauthorized."

Directors of the Westinghouse Air Brake company met in Pittsburg recently and declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent, and an extra dividend of 5 per cent, making 7½ per cent in all, both payable Jan. 10.

Pickands, Mather & Co., Cleveland, owners of the whaleback barge No. 115, which was supposed to have been lost with all on board in the great storm of last week, received a telegram from the captain of the barge, saying that himself and crew were safe. The telegram is dated Middleton, Ont.

DARK HINTS MADE

OF SOME IMPENDING MOVEMENT BY GEN. BULLER.

May Intend to Make Another Attempt to Relieve Ladysmith—Boers Moving Their Laagers Nearer Ladysmith With the View, Probably, of Putting Greater Pressure on the Garrison, Which Is Now Suffering Severely—Boers Have a Hard Fight With Kaffirs—British Nervous About Buller.

London, Dec. 31. — The latest dispatches from Chieveley Camp hint darkly at some impending movement. This is taken, with some misgivings, that Gen. Buller intends to make another attempt to relieve Ladysmith. It is reported by the same dispatches that the Boers have now returned to the north bank of the Tugela, being afraid that the swollen river may cut off their retreat. They are also moving their laagers nearer Ladysmith, with the view of probably putting greater pressure on the garrison, which is now suffering severely. It is hardly conceivable now that Gen. Buller would make a frontal attack now that the river is rising, especially in view of the fact that he is contemplating moving his headquarters back to Frere camp.

The present movements of the Boers is in line with the enemy's tactics of securing a safe line of retreat. It is known that artillery is due to arrive for Gen. Buller, but the belief is that even then his forces would be too week to act. He might be moved by a desire to accomplish something before the arrival of Lord Roberts. His men are also keen to retrieve their defeat.

The reported engagement between Boers and Kaffirs is very vague and cannot be explained until the arrival of later dispatches.

The number of members of the commons who have volunteered for the front threatens seriously to reduce the government majority when parliament reassembles.

The Rothschilds have donated £2,000 to the Buckinghamshire volunteer fund. It is estimated £20,000 will be contributed privately to volunteer funds throughout the country. Already the fund for the relief of the families of soldiers exceeds £500,000.

Boers Still Besieging Kimberley.

Kimberley, Dec. 31.—A detachment of the mounted forces, with artillery and light infantry, moved out in a westerly direction. Boer artillery from Kamferdam opened fire at Ottoe's [illegible] with twenty shells. The British force reconnoitered outposts along Lazeretto ridge, the Boer patrols retreating. Having accomplished this and having discovered Boer reinforcements approaching from Wimbledon Ridge, Col. Chamier, with the Royal artillery, exchanged a dozen shells as soon as the guns could be limbered up. Some 500 Boers poured in a heavy fire from their earthworks, the British finally retiring with the loss of one horse. The movement showed that the Boers are still keeping their guns in the vicinity of Kimberley and are able to summon reinforcements rapidly. It also showed their proneness to vacate a position immediately when weaker than the opposing force.

Boer Fire Very Damaging.

Ladysmith, Dec. 31. — Gen. White has had a slight attack of fever, but he is now convalescing. The Boer shell fire has been very damaging recently. On Friday a shell killed six men and injured one. The same shell killed twelve horses. Another fell in the Fifth Lancers' lines, slightly wounding six officers. Several shells have fallen close to Gen. White's house, compelling the removal of headquarters to another point. It is reported that Gen. Joubert is again in command of the Boers here. The military authorities appear confident, but they are very reticent. Boers have been observed moving northward and westward in large numbers.

Makes British Laugh.

London, Dec. 31.—The Modder River correspondent of the Times, referring to the scare-firing of the Boers, says: "Their nervousness causes much amusement among the British. It is quite certain that half the Boer force is employed watching by day and the other half by night. Probably the consequent weariness with the scarcity of water and the presence of typhoid will render their position intolerable. Their present action is due either to a scare or to a wish to cover a retirement to Spytfontein."

Russians in Boer Ranks.

London, Dec. 31. — The Marseilles correspondent of the Daily Mail, telegraphing the substance of an interview with the Russian Gen. Goruke, eldest son of the famous Gourke, who is now about to start for Pretoria, says that the Russian officer made the following statement: "I have been offered the command of a Boer army corps. In my own mind I am absolutely confident of the success of the Boers. You may take my word for it that thousands of Russians are now fighting under Gen. Joubert."

Boers Fight With Kaffirs.

Pretoria, Dec. 31. — Commandant Swartz reports from the laager at Alowinskop, near Zeorust, that he had an engagement on Friday, Dec. 22, with kaffirs in the neighborhood of Derdorpoort. The kaffirs occupied a strongly fortified ridge and were well prepared for emergencies. After heavy fighting the burghers captured the kaffir position, losing three killed and five wounded.

The Boer Side of It.

Pretoria, Dec. 31. — Commandant Snyman reports from Molopo: "On Monday morning the enemy from Mafeking attacked one of our forts in force with cannon, Maxims and an armored train, and so persistently that there was fighting right on the walls of the fort. But we have retained our fort. The British loss is reported at fifty-five." The other commanders report "All quiet," with the exception of the usual bombardment of Ladysmith. Gen. Lucas Meyer has recovered and returned to the front.

THE MARKETS.

Latest Quotations From Grain and Live Stock Centers.

St. Paul, Dec. 31. — Wheat — No. 1 Northern, 65 1-2@66 1-2c; No. 2 Northern, 64 1-4@65 1-4c. Corn—No. 3 yellow, 28 1-2@29c; No. 3, 28@28 1-2c. Oats—No. 3 white, 23 1-4 @ 23 1-2c; No. 3, 22 3-4@23 1-4c. Barley and Rye—Feed barley, 31@32 1-2c; malting grade, 33@35c; No. 2 rye, 47 1-2@47 3-4c; No. 3 rye, 46@46 1-2c.

Duluth, Dec. 31—Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 65 5-8c; No. 1 Northern, 64 5-8c; No. 2 Northern, 62 1-8c; No. 3 spring, 58 5-8c; to arrive, No. 1 hard, 65 5-8c; No. 1 Northern, 64 5-8c; December, No. 1 Northern, 64 1-2c; May, No. 1 Northern, 68 1-8c; July, No. 1 Northern, 69 1-4c; oats, 22 1-2@23c; rye, 49c; barley, 35 @ 37c; flax, to arrive, $1.40 1-2; cash, $1.42; May, $1.44; corn, 29 1-4c.

Minneapolis, Dec. 31. — Wheat—December closed at 64c; May opened at 66 3-8c and closed at 66 1-2c; July opened at 67 3-4c and closed at 67 7-8c. On track — No. 1 hard, 67c; No. 1 Northern, 65 1-2c; No. 2 Northern, 63c.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 31. — Flour is steady. Wheat firm; No. 1 Northern, 66 1-2@67c; No. 2 Northern, 64c. Rye lower; No. 1, 55c. Barley steady; No. 2, 45@46c; sample, 36@43 1-2c. Oats quiet; No. 2 white, 25c.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—Wheat—No. 2 red, 67@69c; No. 3, 65@67c; No. 2 hard winter, 65c; No. 3, 64 @ 65c; No. 1 Northern spring, 67 1-2@68 1-2c; No. 2, 67@67 1-2c; No. 3 spring, 60@67c. Corn—No. 2, 30 3-4c; No. 3, 30c. Oats—No. 2, 22 1-2c; No. 3, 22 1-4c.

Chicago, Dec. 31. — Cattle — Beeves, $4@6.65; cows and heifers, $3@4.75; Texas beeves, $4.10@5.15. Hogs — Mixed and butchers, $4.05@4.37 1-2; good to choice heavy, $4.15@4.37 1-2; rough heavy, $4@4.10; light, $4@4.25; bulk of sales, $4.15@4.30. Sheep, $4@4.90; lambs, $4@5.90.

South St. Paul, Dec. 31. — Hogs — Beeves, $4.65@5.05; cows and bulls, mixed, $2@4; stockers and feeders, $3.50 @ 4.25; calves and yearlings, $3.75@4.50. Hogs, $4@4.10; bulk, $4.05 @4.07 1-2.

Sioux City, Iowa, Dec. 31. — Cattle—$3.85@4.25. Cattle — Calves, $5.50 @ 5.75; steers, $3.55@4.75; cows, $2.50@3.25; bulls, $3.12 1-2@3.15; stockers, $3 @3.75; heifers, $3.

ANOTHER PACIFIC ROAD.

Capitalists and Promoters Planning for Another Railroad to the Pacific.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—The Record says: Another railroad to the Pacific coast is a strong probability. Several strong Eastern capitalists and promoters have been in the city for two or three days, and it is said they are considering plans for the construction of such a line. Among them is Warner Miller, and he has admitted that his business in Chicago at this time is in connection with traffic matters and a new Western railway. It is said a line from Salt Lake City to Los Angeles, Cal., is in mind and the building of it has practically been decided upon. Plans to construct almost direct to the Californian city, traversing a most fertile and encouraging portion of Western Utah and the southernmost part of Nevada. It is said it will have connection with Eastern and Western railways.

DYNAMITE EXPLOSION.

Kills One Man and Seriously Injures Two Others.

Lockhaven, Pa., Dec. 31. — Grant Bathurst, postmaster at Bratte, this county, was killed and two others seriously wounded by an explosion of dynamite in the Bellevue lime works at Salon, eight miles from this place. A man raked the fire in the works, and while the poker was still hot, hung it on the wall. It slipped from the nail and fell into a bucket full of fuses and dynamite and a terrific explosion ensued, demolishing the building.

Exposition Company Bankrupt.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 31.—Judge Munger, in the federal court yesterday, declared the Greater America Exposition company bankrupt. The proceedings were brought by laborers and others who held unsecured claims, and was not contested by the exposition company's officials. The opposition came from some of the creditors who were in a position to get their claims in full through the possession of property or accounts due the exposition company. The decision releases about $30,000 which has been tied up in banks pending the decision of the case.

Big Liner Aground.

London, Dec. 31. — A German mail steamer, believed to be one of the Hamburg-American liners, has gone aground during a terrific gale in East bay about a quarter of a mile off Dungeness, the southern extremity of Kent. Continuous heavy seas are breaking over the vessel and the life boats are unable to reach her. Fears are entertained for the safety of the passengers.

Made a Rich Strike.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 31. — A dispatch from Spokane, Wash., tells of a rich strike on a claim of the Lemon Gold Mining Company of British Columbia. In grading for a stamp mill site near the shaft of the Gold Standard mine the men uncovered a twelve-foot ledge of oxidized quartz which assays $825 per ton in gold and $9 in silver. The mine is located near Camp McKinley.

Famine Relief.

Calcutta, Dec. 31.—Almost 3,000,000 persons are receiving famine relief. The government is spending nearly two lakhs of rupees daily. It is estimated that the cost of relief to the end of march will be three crores of rupees. Owing to the rapid increase in the numbers of people seeking relief the viceroy invites a closer scrutiny of the claims of applicants.

Prices Take a Jump.

Pittsburg, Dec. 31.—The result of the conference between representatives of the United States Glass company, the National Glass and the jobbers in glass tableware is announced. Prices will be advanced 5 per cent.

Cartridge Belts for Britons.

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 31.—A manufacturer of cartridge belts in this city has received an order from the British government for 45,000 double Bandelier belts. It is said the order is a rush one.

GOES UP IN SMOKE

HALF A MILLION DOLLARS' WORTH OF PROPERTY DESTROYED.

Two Seven-Story Buildings in New York, Occupied Principally as a Wallpaper Factory, Destroyed by Fire—Several Firemen Have Miraculous Escapes From Death—Several Severely Burned and a Number Injured by Falling Walls—Origin of the Fire Unknown.

New York, Dec. 31.—The two seven-story buildings at 425-435 East Twenty-fourth street, occupied principally by the wallpaper factory of William Campbell & Co., were destroyed by fire last night. The loss is fully $500,000.

The plant of the New York Hygeia company, which occupied the basement of No. 425, and that of the Manhattan Electric Light company on the first and second floors of the same building were totally destroyed. A large portion of the East side gets its light from that company, and was on account of the fire, cast into complete darkness.

The Campbell company employed 400 hands, who will be thrown out of work by the fire. The glare from the fire illuminated the east side of the city as far down as Brooklyn bridge. A night watchman in the building discovered the fire at 10:15. It was then burning fiercely and spreading rapidly on account of the inflammable nature of the stock, mostly paper, paper bags, etc. Five alarms were turned in, bringing fifteen engines; five hook and ladder trucks and two water towers. Within twenty minutes after the fire was discovered the entire west side of the factory was a roaring furnace of flames. The flames shot out of the windows and over Avenue A. There were no buildings across close enough to ignite and the firemen had hard work to keep the flames confined to the Campbell buildings. Three hook and ladder men—Andrew Deignan, Joseph Shaughnessy and Joseph Besinger—were caught on the sixth floor and escaped with great difficulty. All were severely burned. Two other hook and ladder men were caught on one of the high window ledges with the flames roaring all around them and the dense smoke making them almost imperceptible from the street. Extension ladders were run up and firemen brought them down in an almost unconscious condition. One of the men was very severely burned.

At midnight one section of the walls fell, almost burying a number of firemen, whose escape was miraculous, and injuring a number of the men. Another lot of falling debris fell on the roof of the water supply house and the city's loss is imperceptible. The origin of the fire is unknown.

ON A SECRET CRUISE.

Mongomery Quietly Sailing in Liberian Waters.

New York, Dec. 31. — A special to the Herald from Washington says: It has developed that the United States cruiser Montgomery has been on a secret mission in Liberia, Africa, performed, it is believed, with a view to displaying the American flag on Liberian waters and the locating of a site for an American coaling station on the Liberian coast. While officials of the navy department maintain that the cruise was of an ordinary character, it is significant that it has been kept a profound mystery up to this time, none of the vessel's movements having been recorded in the daily bulletin published by the bureau of navigation. It is further regarded as significant that the Montgomery's cruise in Liberian waters was made at a time when reports were in circulation that Germany, Great Britain and Italy had designs on the territory of the little republic, and these were so persistent that Secretary Hay deemed it advisable to make inquiry of the powers named. These inquiries resulted in assertions that none of the foreign governments contemplated interfering with Liberian affairs.

-o-

London, Dec. 31—It has been learned by a representative of the Associated Press that the United States cruiser Montgomery's visit to Liberia is apparently the result of overtures made to Washington by that republic. Though the British government is in complete ignorance of the purpose of the Montgomery's mission, the establishment of a coaling station in Liberia by the United States is regarded as scarcely probable as it is asserted, no Liberian port has any facilities for coaling, all of them being open and surf-bound.

The Associated Press representative learns, however that a far more important step is under consideration. It consists in a joint request of the United States and Great Britain upon France to define the boundary between the territory she claims and that claimed by Liberia. This step is not yet decided upon, but Great Britain only awaits the United States' assent to become a party to such a request. It is alleged that France for many years has been encroaching on Liberia, and it was only by a strenuous protest of the United States that she was prevented from appropriating a large slice of Liberia in 1892. According to Hon. Arthur Ponsonby, managing director of the Liberia rubber syndicate which recently guaranteed the interest of Liberia's public debt, the Montgomery's visit was probably prompted by a desire to ascertain the extent of French activity.

For a Warlike Emergency.

New York, Dec. 31. — The latest movement of the government of Venezuela in the direction of preparing for a warlike emergency is an order for 10,000 Mauser rifles and 2,000,000 cartridges just placed in this city.

Killed by a Train.

Indianapolis, Dec. 31.—Dr. Wickliff Smith, surgeon of the 161st Indiana regiment, was killed, together with his Cuban boy, by a Wabash train. They did not hear the train coming on account of being bundled up.

Recd. May 28

1900

Minnesota Historical Society

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

VOLUME XIX. ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY JANUARY 3, 1900. NUMBER 24.

JAN. 1, 1900!

AND THE OUTLOOK FOR VICTORY STATE AND NATIONAL.

Inspiration From a Week's Presence in Minnesota of Senator James K. Jones, Chairman of the Democratic National Committee—Enthusiasm, Party Unity and Unity of Co-operating Reform Forces, the Net Result—New Year's Greeting—The Week's Round-up of Vigorous State and National Politics.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, Jan. 1, 1900.

Happy New Year to all! With a hope for the dawn of better things for the republic than foreign conquest and surrender to the money power, in the opening of another decade, and another century.

Now that it is conceded on all sides that the new century does not begin until Jan. 1, 1901, how glad we are that we have not mingled with the discussion, and that on the 64th day of the bran New Century, Bryan will be installed in the White House!

Decidedly the political event of the week has been the inspiring presence of our great head of the Democratic National committee, Senator James K. Jones of Arkansas. He with ex-Vice President General Stevenson of Illinois, and the distinguished General Watt Hardin of Kentucky, met with a goodly company of Twin City Democrats and other members of the Reform forces at Democratic headquarters, the Merchants hotel, St. Paul, the day following Christmas, a number from outside places, chancing to be present. The result was large chunks of inspiration for the state forces of reform, while the distinguished visitors took with them to their different fields, a good impression of the forward state of organization in the North Star state, and a high opinion of the men, charged with the people's affairs, under the administration of Governor Lind, and the future success presaged at their hands.

It is indeed a happy circumstance that the children of our Southern friends have settled among us, thus assuring frequent visits of their honored parents.

It was a great pleasure to all to find Senator Jones in the enjoyment of robust health and that vigor which has in the past enabled him to do so great work in the cause of true Democracy, and which is one of the almost certain omens of final success. Intercourse with him while here, as well as his utterances in public, have inspired our state leaders with absolute confidence of success in the fight now opening. To such Senator Jones was entirely frank and open, speaking freely of the exact situation, as well as the plans maturing for action. All is encouraging. He also exposed numerous lies industriously spread by a venal press, among which he mentioned those stories personal to himself and colleagues of the committee, representing that serious factions exist. There is not one word of truth in this. Another untruth is that there is any portion of the South not in harmony with the policy of opposition to the Republican conquest of the Filipinos; that tale is absolutely untrue.

Senator Jones states that congress will at a very early date force through the infamous gold bill, and complete the surrender to the money power, McKinley completing it with his signature, the final surrender of his life record as a bi-metallist. This act of the Republicans will make the financial question very prominent, and the people will settle once and for all whether they will surrender this country to the hated foreign policy which has so long figured for mastery in this country. The trusts will be an issue, the Republicans being held absolutely responsible for existing conditions, unless, since they are now in power, they in the present session pass absolutely remedial legislation. Senator Jones explained the campaign of education that will be relied on, laying stress on the work of the country press, on which, in the subsidizing of the daily metropolitan press, everything depends.

Another refreshing event occurred Thursday evening at Minneapolis when Hon. Elijah Barton, chairman of the local Democratic committee, arranged a reception to National Chairman Jones by the local Democrats. Those invited included Governor Lind, State Chairman Rosing and National Committeeman T. D. O'Brien, and also Hon. Charles A. Towne. A magnificent feature was the attendance of Gold Democrats and others not previously acting with the "regenerated Democracy."

It was learned from Senator Jones that all sections of the country are as nearly unanimous in sympathy with the Boers as he finds them in the Northwest. Also, that the quickened American conscience is rapidly seeing that the same principles are involved in the McKinley war on the Filipinos as Great Britain's war on the South African republics.

And so we saluted the flag of the Filipino republic did we, before we fired upon it? So the record seems to be. What infamy!

The annual meeting of the state educators at St. Paul was under circumstances of unusual interest and profit. The sentiment abounded that Superintendent Lewis is giving the people a mighty good administration of the educational department. The numerous improvements he has accomplished and the untiring energy in the discharge of duty, as well as the ability of the corps by which he has surrounded himself, were highly commended.

South Dakota Anti-Imperialists have followed Minnesota in a large and enthusiastic organization, headquarters Sioux Falls. Congratulations.

A Russian count has invented a coffin attachment that will signal above ground if a person has been buried alive. It is safe that the apparatus will not be needed for the G. O. P. after the November burial. The patient will be real dead.

The small-souled persons who for base partisan purposes would discredit Minnesota wheat, should carefully ponder the following:

The Corn Trade News, Liverpool, of Dec. 2, just at hand, reports sales for that day as follows:

1,000 quarters No. 1 hard, Duluth, December, January delivery, at 85½ per bushel.

3,000 quarters No. 1 hard, Duluth, December, January delivery, at 81¾ per bushel.

1,000 quarters No. 1 hard, Manitoba, December, December delivery, at 84 per bushel.

Strange to say, Englishmen have not yet found out that Minnesota grades are ruined.

And yet within the past week, the unfair Mankato Free Press said this:

"The fact is that the grade instead of being established and maintained by the state grain inspection department, as was formerly the case, is now made by the buyer or his agent."

Preparations for the St. Paul carnival, Feb. 3 to 12, inclusive, are progressing with great enthusiasm. The programme will be such that the weather will cut no figure. If hot and summery, the programme will abound in cooling features; if cold, there will be hot things in plenty.

Venezuela followed the United States with a first class, gold-standard panic. "And there's more to follow."

Whenever you lick a revenue stamp, don't kick. For you not only contribute to support our army of conquest in the Philippines but also to benefit the speculators on Wall street. You also contribute to the funds which McKinley's secretary of the treasury deposits with the Rockefeller bank without interest, to be loaned out in the next flurry at from 3 to 186 per cent.

McKinley's administration has out-Clevelanded Cleveland's by openly establishing the favorite New York bank, Rockefeller's, where the treasury funds are being turned in at the rate of millions a day. How do the people like it? How do the banks that are not in the combination like it?

Who thought that we should so soon have the great banking trust? But here it is, and how do you like it?

The currency bill and Secretary Gouge's selection of a New York pet bank to hold the public money, present exactly the United States bank question that was fought out in Jackson's administration. Jackson took the money power by the throat. Another will throttle the great banking trust, and his name is Bryan.

Following the Harper Brothers' celebration of gold standard prosperity, by failure, comes an equally prominent move of the same kind in Boston, the celebrated Lovell Arms company. Established in 1841, this company had for 58 years prospered under the bimetallic policy. And so they go. For a time the smaller concerns, but the great ones as their times come. Gradually the gold standard skull and cross bones becomes, like the real thing, "no respecter of persons."

Boston has recorded $17,000,000 of failures within two weeks past—pretty good for gold standard, prosperous Boston.

Executive Agent Beutner of the Game and Fish commission, has made his annual report, and it shows that the department has been conducted with rare ability and economy under Mr. Beutner. The nets and property seized or destroyed in violations of the law aggregated over $5,000. Sales from seizures also exceeded $2,000. In fish propagation more than 2,000,000 "fry" were planted. Trout, 2,101,000; bass, 28,000; croppies, 58,000; wall-eyed pike, 400,000; total, 2,587,700. Agent Beutner is another case of the right man in the right place.

Arrangements are completed for the Minneapolis Jackson day celebration, by banquet and Exposition meeting, Jan. 10. Persons desiring tickets (banquet, none are to be issued for the Exposition) should apply at once to William Baldwin, West hotel, Minneapolis.

Mr. Bryan closed his Texas outing with the capture of a real live panther. He will from this on pursue the Republican catamount, and will bag him in November.

Financial reports show that 46 railroads lost $345,000,000, while 48 trust concerns lost $320,000,000, in decline of stock values in the panic of last week. Even Twin City Rapid Transit had a dead loss of $1,000,000, falling 10 or more points and has been dropped from quotations.

There is another just judge to add to the Brewers and Caldwells who have stood by the people, located in Toledo, who has decided that laborers on strike commit no violation of law in peaceably patrolling where laborers are employed who have taken the places of the strikers, or in efforts to induce them to also quit work. The employers had obtained the corporation weapon of injunction against the strikers, which, on hearing, the Toledo judge dissolved.

And, speaking of "government by injunction," condemned by the Chicago platform, the sensible man is now hard to find who will not admit that the Democratic declaration was right. Thousands who condemned that plank in 1896 will now support it, as well as the then hated declaration for the income tax. G. S. C.

THE NEWS RESUME

EVENTS OF THE PAST WEEK IN A CONDENSED FORM.

A General Resume of the Most Important News of the Week From All Parts of the Globe, Boiled Down and Arranged in Convenient Form for Rapid Perusal By Busy People.

From Washington.

Strict enforcement of the immigrant laws cause many deportations.

A new treaty between China and Mexico has been signed in Washington.

Congressman Bailey of Kansas favors a modification of the sheep-dipping law.

The chiefs of divisions in government departments say that the holidays interfere with public work.

The United States will pay for the return of the families of Spanish prisoners to Spain from the Philippines.

Under the new census, which will cause a reapportionment of members of congress, electoral conditions in the South will be inquired into searchingly.

The director of the mint says that no possible supply of money can prevent stock exchange panics, because speculation and rising prices will absorb any possible increase.

Secretary Gage has made a very direct explanation of his choice of the National City Bank of New York as distributing agent for the government's deposits, saying that bank had furnished the largest security, instantly turning in $4,000,000 of bonds in response to his proposal, in addition to very large bond deposits already in the treasury.

Personal.

Aguinaldo's wife is dead.

Dwight L. Moody, the noted evangelist, is dead.

Prof. Coues, the famous ornithologist, dies in Baltimore.

Ezra Huss died at the Oliver house, South Bend, Ind., from an unknown cause.

Andrew Carnegie has given $2,000 to provide swimming baths and a gymnasium for Dunfermline.

Ill-health may force the resignation of Minister of Public Works Tarte from the Canadian cabinet.

W. J. Bryan will make several speeches in the East, discussing the money, trust and Philippine questions.

The widow of J. M. Krebs who, during the Civil war, commanded the Eighty-seventh Illinois regiment, is dead at Carmi.

Representatives of five generations were present when Stephen G. Stackpole celebrated his ninetieth birthday at Saugus, Mass., a few days ago.

Mme. Modjeska expresses confidence the reputation of having paid the largest sum to any singer at a private musicale. This was $1,500, paid to Melba.

Sir Henry Irving is credited with making a contract with Charles Frohman for an American season of not less than five months yearly until further notice.

G. Weckerlin, for many years envoy extraordinary and minister plenipotentiary of The Netherlands in this country, will act in the same capacity in Turkey, and Baron Gevers, until now holding this position in Bucharest, has been appointed to fill the vacancy in the United States.

Foreign.

Germans want better tariff rates for their sugar.

London is to spend $15,000,000 on new drainage works.

Russia continues to ship reinforcements to the Pacific coast.

Serious horse-sickness breaks out in British and Boer camps in Natal.

Brazil seeks commercial treaties with France, Germany, Italy and Spain.

The French government has refused to promote Marchand or allow him to lecture.

The pope inaugurated the holy year by opening the holy door of St. Peter's cathedral.

Trees and shrubs are being planted along the Suez canal to keep the sand from drifting.

The nucleus of a fund has been collected to transfer the body of Chopin from Paris to Cracow.

Queen Victoria gave a Christmas party for the children of Windsor guardsmen serving in Africa.

The German government will not try to buy the Danish West Indies, owing to American opposition.

Criminal Record.

William B. Gale, a well known criminal, died in Boston.

John Lennon, a teamster, was found dead in San Francisco. Indications point to murder.

Chinamen are charged with wrecking the American mission in Victoria, B. C., with dynamite.

Wayne Hatfield, son of Elias Hatfield, shot and killed George Hatfield's son, of Bear Creek, W. Va.

A New York variety actor and joke writer committed suicide after attempting to kill his wife and child.

A Missouri farmer, because of financial reverses, killed his three children and himself, his wife having previously committed suicide.

A former president of the failed Globe National Bank of Boston has been arrested on a charge of embezzlement and misappropriation.

At Vandalia, Mo., Edward Spencer walked up to Benjamin Eddleman, a night watchman with whom he had quarreled, and shot him dead.

George McCreery, a farmer living near Charlotte, Mich., was found dead in bed with a bullet wound in his left side. The coroner will investigate.

Eugene L. Packard, who formerly conducted the Investment and Security company in New York, was convicted of using the mails to further his schemes, and was remanded for sentence.

Accidental Happenings.

A fatal wreck occurred on the Northern Pacific in Montana.

About forty school children were drowned recently in Belgium.

An unknown woman was killed in a passenger train wreck at Pomona, Cal.

Miss Allee's millinery store at Wabash, Ind., was destroyed by fire. The loss is $6,000.

A British steamer was wrecked off Cape Hatteras, twenty-one lives being lost.

A large company of miners lost their lives by an explosion in a Pennsylvania coal shaft.

George Hanna and S. A. Vanallen, at Epworth, Iowa, drank wood alcohol and both are dead.

Several lives were lost and considerable damage was done by an earthquake shock in Southern California.

The Augusta Loeffler greenhouse, at St. Joseph, Mich., was destroyed by fire, the loss amounting to $8,000.

At Quincy, Ill., eleven children were burned to death and others seriously injured in a Christmas rehearsal fire.

By fire the Montgomery Door and Box company at Buffalo was damaged $100,000 and the Dutcher Manufacturing company $20,000.

Eustalia, the three-year-old daughter of C. A. Driess of Green Bay, Wis., died from the effects of burns received while playing around a Christmas tree.

Walter Tancke, nineteen years old, living at Kenosha, Wis., was seriously burned while personating Santa Claus, his apparel accidentally catching fire.

Maggie Drayer, aged fourteen, was instantly killed by the accidental discharge of an old musket in the hands of Mrs. William Taylor at Topeka, Kan.

The sawmill of the Perkings Manufacturing company and the Georgia Iron works, owned by the Perkings Manufacturing company at Augusta, Ga., were destroyed by fire. Loss $175,000.

In a rear-end collision near Bardstown, Ky., between a freight train and the Springfield accommodation on the Louisville & Nashville, Mrs. J. M. Carothers of Bardstown was caught between two seats and crushed to death.

The steamer Trinidad, from Kings Lynn, took into New York twelve seamen who were saved from the wreck of the Norwegian bark Autocrat, bound from Atlanta, Ga., to Kingston. The crew were rescued after several days of hardship and hunger.

General.

Illinois beekeepers ask legislation on foul brood plague.

Coal mining is to be tried in Nebraska, near Sioux City.

Chicago has only two-thirds the usual stock of wool on hand.

The Lovell Arms company of Boston has made an assignment.

Chicago bankers say Western deposits will not be returned to New York.

A new bank in New York will make a specialty of collecting out-of-town checks.

Cardinal Satolli denies that the Pope has authorized Latin-American priests to marry.

A company has been organized to control the manufacture of enameled bath tubs.

A Toledo judge has decided that strikers may patrol works and urge others to quit.

The increased price of copper will lead to the use of aluminum for electrical purposes.

The fourth annual convention of the Commercial Travelers' Federation was begun in Chicago last night.

Susill A. Isaacson, a clothing dealer of Boston, has filed a petition in bankruptcy. Liabilities $122,811, assets $60,000.

Another malting plant which will not be identified with the malt trust, will be placed in operation in Milwaukee, Jan. 1.

James and Allan McNaughton, of the Tradesmen National and the Wool Exchange, New York, have filed petitions in bankruptcy.

The annual convention of the National Live Stock association will be held at Fort Worth, Tex., Jan. 16, and continue four days.

A new national fraternal and benevolent order, Knights of the White Cross, has been organized, with headquarters in Columbus, Ohio.

Samuel Wall, an Akron, Ohio, copartner, Albert Barmse, was stricken with paralysis when he heard of the death, and died in a few hours.

The Kentucky courts will have to decide whether the Republican governor, Taylor, or the Democratic election commissioner, Poyntz, has the right to appoint successors to Commissioners Pryor and Ellis.

Supt. Pearse of Omaha, a member of the executive committee of the National Educational association, says the choice for the next convention, to be held in July, lies between Boston, Montreal and Charleston, S. C.

Steps toward the organization of a joint college admission examination board have been taken at a conference held at Columbia university between representatives from colleges of the middle states and Maryland.

The supreme court of New York has granted an attachment for $17,500 against property in that state belonging to the Siegel-Hillman Dry Goods company of St. Louis in favor of the Corn Exchange Bank on two notes.

Regarding an item recently published in Denver that he had asked for service in Cuba, Gen. Henry C. Merriam, commanding the department of the Colorado, said: "You may say the statement is entirely unauthorized."

Directors of the Westinghouse Air Brake company met in Pittsburg recently and declared the regular quarterly dividend of 2½ per cent, and an extra dividend of 5 per cent, making 7½ per cent in all, both payable Jan. 10.

Pickands, Mather & Co., Cleveland, owners of the whaleback barge No. 115, which was supposed to have been lost with all on board in the great storm of last week, received a telegram from the captain of the barge, saying that himself and crew were safe. The telegram is dated Middleton, Ont.

DARK HINTS MADE

OF SOME IMPENDING MOVEMENT BY GEN. BULLER.

May Intend to Make Another Attempt to Relieve Ladysmith—Boers Moving Their Laagers Nearer Ladysmith With the View, Probably, of Putting Greater Pressure on the Garrison, Which Is Now Suffering Severely—Boers Have a Hard Fight With Kaffirs—British Nervous About Buller.

London, Dec. 31. — The latest dispatches from Chieveley Camp hint darkly at some impending movement. This is taken, with some misgivings, that Gen. Buller intends to make another attempt to relieve Ladysmith. It is reported by the same dispatches that the Boers have now returned to the north bank of the Tugela, being afraid that the swollen river may cut off their retreat. They are also moving their laagers nearer Ladysmith, with the view of probably putting greater pressure on the garrison, which is now suffering severely. It is hardly conceivable now that Gen. Buller would make a frontal attack now that the river is rising, especially in view of the fact that he is contemplating moving his headquarters back to Frere camp.

The present movements of the Boers is in line with the enemy's tactics of securing a safe line of retreat. It is known that artillery is due to arrive for Gen. Buller, but the belief is that even then his forces would be too week to act. He might be moved by a desire to accomplish something before the arrival of Lord Roberts. His men are also keen to retrieve their defeat.

The reported engagement between Boers and Kaffirs is very vague and cannot be explained until the arrival of later dispatches.

The number of members of the commons who have volunteered for the front threatens seriously to reduce the government majority when parliament reassembles.

The Rothschilds have donated £2,000 to the Buckinghamshire volunteer fund. It is estimated £20,000 will be contributed privately to volunteer funds throughout the country. Already the fund for the relief of the families of soldiers exceeds £500,000.

Boers Still Besieging Kimberley.

Kimberley, Dec. 31.—A detachment of the mounted forces, with artillery and light infantry, moved out in a westerly direction. Boer artillery from Kamferdam opened fire at Otto's kopje, Kimberley replying with twenty shells. The British force reconnoitered outposts along Lazeretto ridge, the Boer patrols retreating. Having accomplished this and having discovered Boer reinforcements approaching from Wimbledon Ridge, Col. Chamier, with the Royal artillery, exchanged a dozen shells as soon as the guns could be limbered up. Some 500 Boers poured in a heavy fire from their earthworks, the British finally retiring with the loss of one horse. The movement showed that the Boers are still keeping their guns in the vicinity of Kimberley and are able to summon reinforcements rapidly. It also showed their proneness to vacate a position immediately when weaker than the opposing force.

Boer Fire Very Damaging.

Ladysmith, Dec. 31. — Gen. White has had a slight attack of fever, but he is now convalescing. The Boer shell fire has been very damaging recently. On Friday a shell killed six men and injured one. The same shell killed twelve horses. Another fell in the Fifth Lancers' lines, slightly wounding six officers. Several shells have fallen close to Gen. White's house, compelling the removal of headquarters to another point. It is reported that Gen. Joubert is again in command of the Boers here. The military authorities appear confident, but they are very reticent. Boers have been observed moving northward and westward in large numbers.

Makes British Laugh.

London, Dec. 31.—The Modder River correspondent of the Times, referring to the scare-firing of the Boers, says: "Their nervousness causes much amusement among the British. It is quite certain that half the Boer force is employed watching by day and the other half by night. Probably the consequent weariness with the scarcity of water and the presence of typhoid will render their position intolerable. Their present action is due either to a scare or to a wish to cover a retirement to Spytfontein."

Russians in Boer Ranks.

London, Dec. 31. — The Marseilles correspondent of the Daily Mail, telegraphing the substance of an interview with the Russian Gen. Goruke, eldest son of the famous Gourke, who is now about to start for Pretoria, says that the Russian officer made the following statement: "I have been offered the command of a Boer army corps. In my own mind I am absolutely confident of the success of the Boers. You may take my word for it that thousands of Russians are now fighting under Gen. Joubert."

Boers Fight With Kaffirs.

Pretoria, Dec. 31. — Commandant Swartz reports from the laager at Alowinskop, near Zeorust, that he had an engagement on Friday, Dec. 22, with kaffirs in the neighborhood of Derdorpoort. The kaffirs occupied a strongly fortified ridge and were well prepared for emergencies. After heavy fighting the burghers captured the kaffir position, losing three killed and five wounded.

The Boer Side of It.

Pretoria, Dec. 31. — Commandant Snyman reports from Molopo: "On Monday morning the enemy from Mafeking attacked one of our forts in force with cannon, Maxims and an armored train, and so persistently that there was fighting right on the walls of the fort. But we have retained our fort. The British loss is reported at fifty-five." The other commanders report "All quiet," with the exception of the usual bombardment of Ladysmith. Gen. Lucas Meyer has recovered and returned to the front.

THE MARKETS.

Latest Quotations From Grain and Live Stock Centers.

St. Paul, Dec. 31. — Wheat — No. 1 Northern, 65 1-2@66 1-2c; No. 2 Northern, 61 1-4@65 1-4c. Corn—No. 3 yellow, 28 1-2@29c; No. 3, 28@28 1-2c. Oats—No. 3 white, 23 1-4 @ 23 1-2c; No. 3, 22 3-4@23 1-4c. Barley and Rye—Feed barley, 31@32 1-2c; malting grade, 33@35c; No. 2 rye, 47 1-2@47 3-4c; No. 3 rye, 46@46 1-2c.

Duluth, Dec. 31—Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 65 5-8c; No. 1 Northern, 64 5-8c; No. 2 Northern, 62 1-8c; No. 3 spring, 58 5-8c; to arrive, No. 1 hard, 65 5-8c; No. 1 Northern, 64 5-8c; December, No. 1 Northern, 64 1-2c; May, No. 1 Northern, 68 1-8c; July, No. 1 Northern, 69 1-4c; oats, 22 1-2@23c; rye, 49c; barley, 35 @ 37c; flax, to arrive, $1.40 1-2; cash, $1.42; May, $1.44; corn, 29 1-4c.

Minneapolis, Dec. 31. — Wheat—December closed at 64c; May opened at 66 3-8c and closed at 66 1-2c; July opened at 67 3-4c and closed at 67 7-8c. On track — No. 1 hard, 67c; No. 1 Northern, 65 1-2c; No. 2 Northern, 63c.

Milwaukee, Wis., Dec. 31. — Flour is steady. Wheat firm; No. 1 Northern, 66 1-2@67c; No. 2 Northern, 64c. Rye lower; No. 1, 55c. Barley steady; No. 2, 45@46c; sample, 36@43 1-2c. Oats quiet; No. 2 white, 25c.

Chicago, Dec. 30.—Wheat—No. 2 red, 67@69c; No. 3, 65@67c; No. 2 hard winter, 65c; No. 3, 64 @ 65c; No. 1 Northern spring, 67 1-2@68 1-2c; No. 2, 67@67 1-2c; No. 3 spring, 60@67c. Corn—No. 2, 30 3-4c; No. 3, 30c. Oats—No. 2, 22 1-2c; No. 3, 22 1-4c.

Chicago, Dec. 31. — Cattle — Beeves, $4@6.65; cows and heifers, $3@4.75; Texas beeves, $4.10@5.15. Hogs — Mixed and butchers, $4.05@4.37 1-2; good to choice heavy, $4.15@4.37 1-2; rough heavy, $4@4.10; light, $4@4.25; bulk of sales, $4.15@4.30. Sheep, $4@4.90; lambs, $4@5.90.

South St. Paul, Dec. 31. — Hogs — Beeves, $4.65@5.05; cows and bulls, mixed, $2@4; stockers and feeders, $3.50 @ 4.25; calves and yearlings, $3.75@4.50. Hogs, $4@4.10; bulk, $4.05 @4.07 1-2.

Sioux City, Iowa, Dec. 31. — Cattle— $3.85@4.25. Cattle — Calves, $5.50 @ 5.75; steers, $3.55@4.75; cows, $2.50@3.25; bulls, $3.12 1-2@3.15; stockers, $3 @3.75; heifers, $3.

ANOTHER PACIFIC ROAD.

Capitalists and Promoters Planning for Another Railroad to the Pacific.

Chicago, Dec. 31.—The Record says: Another railroad to the Pacific coast is a strong probability. Several strong Eastern capitalists and promoters have been in the city for two or three days, and it is said they are considering plans for the construction of such a line. Among them is Warner Miller, and he has admitted that his business in Chicago at this time is in connection with traffic matters and a new Western railway. It is said a line from Salt Lake City to Los Angeles, Cal., is in mind and the building of it has practically been decided upon. Plans to construct almost direct to the Californian city, traversing a most fertile and encouraging portion of Western Utah and the southernmost part of Nevada. It is said it will have connection with Eastern and Western railways.

DYNAMITE EXPLOSION.

Kills One Man and Seriously Injures Two Others.

Lockhaven, Pa., Dec. 31. — Grant Bathurst, postmaster at Bratte, this county, was killed and two others seriously wounded by an explosion of dynamite in the Bellevue lime works at Salon, eight miles from this place. A man raked the fire in the works, and while the poker was still hot, hung it on the wall. It slipped from the nail and fell into a bucket full of fuses and dynamite and a terrific explosion ensued, demolishing the building.

Exposition Company Bankrupt.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 31.—Judge Munger, in the federal court yesterday, declared the Greater America Exposition company bankrupt. The proceedings were brought by laborers and others who held unsecured claims, and was not contested by the exposition company's officials. The opposition came from some of the creditors who were in a position to get their claims in full through the possession of property or accounts due the exposition company. The decision releases about $30,000 which has been tied up in banks pending the decision of the case.

Big Liner Aground.

London, Dec. 31. — A German mail steamer, believed to be one of the Hamburg-American liners, has gone aground during a terrific gale in East bay about a quarter of a mile off Dungeness, the southern extremity of Kent. Continuous heavy seas are breaking over the vessel and the life boats are unable to reach her. Fears are entertained for the safety of the passengers.

Made a Rich Strike.

Omaha, Neb., Dec. 31. — A dispatch from Spokane, Wash., tells of a rich strike on a claim of the Lemon Gold Mining Company of British Columbia. In grading for a stamp mill site near the shaft of the Gold Standard mine the men uncovered a twelve-foot ledge of oxidized quartz which assays $825 per ton in gold and $9 in silver. The mine is located near Camp McKinley.

Famine Relief.

Calcutta, Dec. 31.—Almost 3,000,000 persons are receiving famine relief. The government is spending nearly two lakhs of roupees daily. It is estimated that the cost of relief to the end of march will be three crores of rupees. Owing to the rapid increase in the numbers of people seeking relief the viceroy invites a closer scrutiny of the claims of applicants.

Prices Take a Jump.

Pittsburg, Dec. 31.—The result of the conference between representatives of the United States Glass company, the National Glass and the jobbers in glass tableware is announced. Prices will be advanced 5 per cent.

Cartridge Belts for Britons.

Worcester, Mass., Dec. 31.—A manufacturer of cartridge belts in this city has received an order from the British government for 45,000 double Bandelier belts. It is said the order is a rush one.

GOES UP IN SMOKE

HALF A MILLION DOLLARS WORTH OF PROPERTY DESTROYED.

Two Seven-Story Buildings in New York, Occupied Principally as a Wallpaper Factory, Destroyed by Fire—Several Firemen Have Miraculous Escapes From Death—Several Severely Burned and a Number Injured by Falling Walls—Origin of the Fire Unknown.

New York, Dec. 31.—The two seven-story buildings at 425-435 East Twenty-fourth street, occupied principally by the wallpaper factory of William Campbell & Co., were destroyed by fire last night. The loss is fully $500,000.

The plant of the New York Hygeia company, which occupied the basement of No. 425, and that of the Manhattan Electric Light company on the first and second floors of the same building, were totally destroyed. A large portion of the East side gets its light from that company, and was, on account of the fire, cast into complete darkness.

The Campbell company employed 400 hands, who will be thrown out of work by the fire. The glare from the fire illuminated the east side of the city as far down as Brooklyn bridge. A night watchman in the building discovered the fire at 10:15. It was then burning fiercely and spreading rapidly on account of the inflammable nature of the stock, mostly paper, paper bags, etc. Five alarms were turned in, bringing fifteen engines, five hook and ladder trucks and two water towers. Within twenty minutes after the fire was discovered the entire west side of the factory was a roaring furnace of flames. The flames shot out of the windows and over Avenue A. There were no buildings across close enough to ignite and the firemen had hard work to keep the flames confined to the Campbell buildings. Three hook and ladder men—Andrew Deignan, Joseph Shaughnessy and Joseph Besinger—were caught on the sixth floor and escaped with great difficulty. All were severely burned. Two other hook and ladder men were caught on one of the high window ledges with the flames roaring all around them and the dense smoke making them almost imperceptible from the street. Extension ladders were run up and firemen brought them down in an almost unconscious condition. One of the men was very severely burned.

At midnight one section of the walls fell, almost burying a number of firemen, whose escape was miraculous, and injuring a number of the men. Another lot of falling debris fell on the roof of the water supply house and the city's loss is imperceptible. The origin of the fire is unknown.

ON A SECRET CRUISE.

Montgomery Quietly Sailing in Liberian Waters.

New York, Dec. 31. — A special to the Herald from Washington says: It has developed that the United States cruiser Montgomery has been on a secret mission in Liberia, Africa, performed, it is believed, with a view to displaying the American flag on Liberian waters and the locating of a site for an American coaling station on the Liberian coast. While officials of the navy department maintain that the cruise was of an ordinary character, it is significant that it has been kept a profound mystery up to this time, none of the vessel's movements having been recorded in the daily bulletin published by the bureau of navigation. It is further regarded as significant that the Montgomery's cruise in Liberian waters was made at a time when reports were in circulation that Germany, Great Britain and Italy had designs on the territory of the little republic, and these were so persistent that Secretary Hay deemed it advisable to make inquiry of the powers named. These inquiries resulted in assertions that none of the foreign governments contemplated interfering with Liberian affairs.

London, Dec. 31—It has been learned by a representative of the Associated Press that the United States cruiser Montgomery's visit to Liberia is apparently the result of overtures made to Washington by that republic. Though the British government is in complete ignorance of the purpose of the Montgomery's mission, the establishment of a coaling station in Liberia by the United States is regarded as scarcely probable as it is asserted no Liberian port has any facilities for coaling, all of them being open and surf-bound.

The Associated Press representative learns, however that a far more important step is under consideration. It consists in a joint request of the United States and Great Britain upon France to define the boundary between the territory she claims and that claimed by Liberia. This step is not yet decided upon, but Great Britain only awaits the United States' assent to become a party to such a request. It is alleged that France for many years has been encroaching on Liberia, and it was only by a strenuous protest of the United States that she was prevented from appropriating a large slice of Liberia in 1892. According to Hon. Arthur Ponsonby, managing director of the Liberia rubber syndicate which recently guaranteed the interest of Liberia's public debt, the Montgomery's visit was probably prompted by a desire to ascertain the extent of French activity.

For a Warlike Emergency.

New York, Dec. 31. — The latest movement of the government of Venezuela in the direction of preparing for a warlike emergency is an order for 10,000 Mauser rifles and 2,000,000 cartridges just placed in this city.

Killed by a Train.

Indianapolis, Dec. 31.—Dr. Wickliff Smith, surgeon of the 161st Indiana regiment, was killed, together with his Cuban boy, by a Wabash train. They did not hear the train coming on account of being bundled up.

INTENTIONAL DUPLICATE EXPOSURE

St. Hilaire Spectator.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

Matching for the drinks is one kind of a ball match.

The village minister acquires a surplice—but seldom a surplus.

A woman forgets she has a headache when she is wearing a new hat.

The first step is often so expensive that you can't afford to take the second.

Many a so-called patriot whose voice is for war is unable to hear a call to arms.

When a woman reads the opening chapter of a novel she jumps to the conclusion.

Fate is what a man calls it when he gets in trouble for doing what he shouldn't do.

Some people fail to recognize an opportunity when it comes up and shakes hands with them.

Wrinkles are the little furrows in which Father Time sows the seeds of discontent with a lavish hand.

Medical statistics from Luzon show that the death rate among the American soldiers engaged in the present war is rather lower than among the troops stationed at Washington, Boston, New York and San Francisco. Pedestrianism has always been regarded as a healthy form of exercise, and the daily marches in pursuit of the pugnacious Aguinaldo have undoubtedly served to more than counteract the supposed bad effects of a torrid climate.

Long, Lee, a Chicago Chinaman, has been sentenced to work out a $100 fine, at the rate of $1.50 a week day, in the house of correction. But the authorities have no work for him to do, and the unfortunate "celestial" is beginning to fear that "old age with his stealing step may claw him in his clutch" before the amount is discharged. No wonder the simple children of the east are often lost in wonder and amazement at the strange workings of western justice.

A society woman who had shown much kindness to a young collegian overheard him one day speaking of her by her Christian name. Innocent in intention, he showed himself inexcusably careless of the bounds between friendliness and familiarity, and was never again invited to her house. Far more innate was the courtesy of a company of young recruits who recently fell out of a military procession to salute Miss Gould at her house door. "She's Helen, our Helen!" they shouted, stamping their feet and tossing their caps, as they read her pardon in her answering smiles.

The extraordinary improvements which have recently been made in bicycle lamps makes it the more surprising that the locomotive headlight has been so long neglected, since nothing is more important than that the engineer should see as far ahead along the track as possible. The introduction of electricity promises to do away with one of the chief dangers that now attend railroad traveling by night. Obstacles on the track, broken bridges, other trains ahead, and all the unknown dangers that the darkness covers will in future be distinguishable in ample time to bring the train to a standstill before any damage is done.

An illustration of the present and prospective value of timber lands is furnished by the Charleston News and Courier, which tells, in a recent issue, how an unusually large white oak log, measuring forty feet in length and forty-two inches in diameter at the smaller end, was recently shipped from Savannah to a northern firm. Its value, says our contemporary, when simply sawed into lumber for shipping was estimated at $240. Smaller logs bring equally good prices in proportion, of course. In recent years timber lands in the south bearing similar lumber have been sold for $2 and even less per acre. Landowners who disposed of or neglected their forest lands played a losing game in those years, but, now that the folly of such business has been brought home to them, it is not unlikely that they will profit by past lessons and preserve and nurture their growing timber. Viewing recent developments in the lumber markets, it may not be amiss to suggest that the farmers having about forty acres or more on which oak is now growing could do nothing better than leave it alone, for it is more than probable that they will find it a good interest payer, if not the most valuable part of their farm, in a few years to come.

A rat which nibbled at some wires in a Chicago store the other night made so much noise that ten policemen and six private watchmen gathered with drawn revolvers ready for the fray. Only two weeks ago safe-crackers blew up a large part of a store on the west side and not a solitary policeman heard the racket. The moral of these happenings, according to the departed Aesop, would probably be that it is safer to be a safe-blower than a rat when policemen are in the neighborhood.

Officials of the Burlington road express the belief that Illinois is qualified to be the banner sugar-beet state of the union. These officials, basing their assertions upon experiment and scientific research, say that that section of the state lying between Galesburg and the Mississippi river is better adapted to the growing of the sugary vegetable than any other part of the country.

Lincoln's birthday is to witness the gathering of the anti-monopolists. They're coming, Father Abraham, one hundred thousand strong!

THE ARMORED TRAIN IN MODERN WAR.

The important part which the armored train is destined to play in the war of the future has been pretty well shown by the way in which the railway ironclad has been made use of during the struggle now going on between the Boers and the British in South Africa.

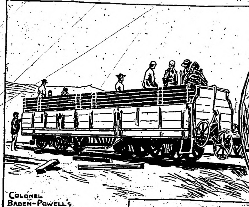
The armored train has been a particularly prominent feature in this Transvaal war because of the position of the contestants and the long, unprotected plains along the different boundaries.

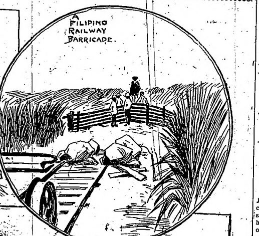
The idea of the armored train, however, is by no means a new one, for, although past experiences with such trains in open warfare have revealed little concerning their more or less problematical value as an offensive and defensive factor, trains covered with armor and filled with sharpshooters had been used in the neighborhood of Paris even so early as the Franco-Prussian war. During the Cuban rebellion the armored train was used quite often by the Spaniards, though the most successful recorded operation of such a train occurred in 1882, when the British fleet was bombarding Alexandria. During this bombardment Capt. Fisher, an officer in the British navy, conceived the idea of taking an ordinary locomotive and several cars and covering them with good heavy boiler plate. When this was done the train was equipped with field guns, manned with blue jackets from his ship, and then started along the railway line that skirted the coast where the enemy lay in force. When the Egyptian troops were suddenly confronted with this unexpected engine of war, they straightway took to their heels.

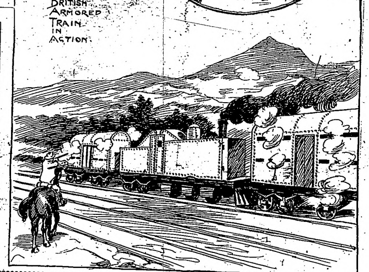
Armored trains mounting field pieces and machine guns have been, and for that mater, are even now being used by the American troops engaged in the rounding up of Aguinaldo and his men. The successful engagement at Calumpit, for instance was largely attributed to the opportune arrival of just such a flying battery on rails. Gen. Lord Kitchener also made frequent use of the armored train in his advance up the Nile. During this Egyptian campaign it was found that rifle bullets fired at short range pierced the plate with which the British cars were armored, so for extra protection sand bags were piled up along each side of the cars, and behind these the sharpshooters of Kitchener were quite invulnerable.

In the armored trains which have been spreading consternation among the belligerent burghers of the Transvaal the locomotive is the only part that does not carry guns. The cars themselves are simply box cars, covered by steel boiler plating three-quarters of an inch in thickness. This is firmly riveted on a steel framework, while the locomotive itself is well incased in the same plating, particular care being taken to protect securely all vital parts of the machinery. Instead of hauling the cars in the usual manner, the locomotive is always placed in the center of the train for the sake of extra protection to such an important part of the flying battery. Portholes are made in the armor plate sides of the car through which to operate the quick-firing and machine guns, with smaller apertures lower down through which the Tommy Atkins sharpshooter pokes his deadly rifle barrel. It requires a very steady aim to send its bullet home from a fast moving train, so the deadliest marksmen are always selected. A powerful railway crane and a strong searchlight are also usually included in the equipment of such a train. When in operation, the armored train is usually preceded by an advance guard of cavalry, regarded as necessary to insure protection to the roadbed and to report on interruptions in rail connection or obstacles along the line.

The armored cars which Col. Baden-Powell hastily improvised for the protection of Mafeking were simply ordinary flat cars with armored walls made of steel rails firmly bolted together. When the town was invested this officer, it will be remembered, surrounded his position with a railway about which circled his train, well loaded with machine guns and sharpshooters, and held back for a considerable length of time a superior force of the enemy.







Very Wet.

There is a certain amount of comfort in living at a place where you can tell to a nicety just when to expect a shower. This is the case at Panama, where—so says the Churchman—a shower may be looked for every day at about three o'clock in the afternoon. This is the rule all through the rainy season. The morning is clear and the evening, after six o'clock, is delightful, and except from three to six nobody ever thinks of carrying an umbrella. Not so at Colon, only forty-seven miles away. There it rains all the time during the rainy season, and it never rains but it pours. Water comes down by the bucketful. At Panama the annual rainfall is in the neighborhood of nine feet, while that of Colon is twenty-one feet, and it all comes in five months—an average of four feet a month. It is humorously said of Colon that there it takes the people all the rest of the year, after the rainy season, to get dry. In the dry season the heat is intense, the mercury ranging from eighty to ninety degrees, day and night. There is little difference in the temperature after dark, but it is possible to adapt one's self to the conditions of the place, and there is a certain fascination about it that, in the case of some people, seems to make up for the heat.

Mark Twain On Lies.

Mark Twain, in a recent article, treats of lies, spoken and unspoken, declaring that the silent assertion lie is the more numerous and the less defensible. He recalls Carlyle's statement: "This gospel is eternal—that a lie shall not live," and says: "To me it is plain that he said it in a moment of excitement, when chasing Americans out of his back yard with brickbats. They used to go there and worship. At bottom he was probably fond of them, but he was always able to conceal it. He kept bricks for them, but he was not a good shot, and it is a matter of history that when he fired they dodged, and carried off the brick; for, as a nation, we like relics, and so long as we get them we do not much care what the reliquary thinks about it. I am quite sure that when he told that large one about a lie not being able to live he had just missed an American and was over-excited. He told it about thirty years ago, but it is alive yet; alive and healthy and hearty and likely to outlive any fact in history. Carlyle was truthful when calm, but give him Americans enough and bricks enough and he could have taken medals himself."

PERILS OF THE CHASE.

As Illustated by the Drag Hunt of the Meadowbrook Club.

A big flock of geese figured prominently and tragically in the drag hunt of the Meadowbrook club recent. The usual coterie of enthusiasts were in the saddle, and the "throw in" was at East Meadow. The first exciting incident was at the crossing of a highway. Here, waiting to see the huntsmen take the double jump made by the fences, were many spectators in carriages. One countryman was drawn unwillingly by his excited horse directly on the trail. Over the first fence came William C. Hayes, the famous steeplechase rider, on a sleek sorrel thoroughbred, and before he could pull up or turn aside he was right on the farmer. The thoroughbred solved the problem by jumping clear over the farmer's pony and landing safely on the other side. Hayes caught up to the bunch just before the "kill," which, by the way, was a genuine slaughter. At the place where the "kill" was scheduled to take place, on the property of Mrs. J. E. S. Hadden, a large flock of geese were eating corn. The hounds pounced on the flock and made short work of about fifty of them. The remainder took to the wing, one flying straight at the crimson coat of Maxwell Stevenson, and, striking him full in the breast, knocked him from the saddle. One of the birds narrowly missed Mrs. J. L. Kernochan. The damage to the flock immediately was settled. The first to reach the geese was Samuel Willets, on his prize hunter Winchester, closely followed by Mrs. Kernochan on Vanity.—New York Press.

A Double Twister.

"What's the matter, old man? Come, don't sit there looking that way. Something's happened, but it won't do you a bit of good to brood over it. Let's go to some funny show and laugh; that's the best thing to do whenever any trouble of this kind strikes a fellow. None of your folks sick, I hope?" "Oh, no, it's nothing of that kind, and I suppose I'm a fool to give the matter a second thought, but it's pretty hard to get a knock of this kind without showing that you feel it. You know that girl I was telling you about, whose father is the vice-president of the P., D. & Q. railroad?" "Oh, yes. The one you met down east this summer? Sent your ring back, has she? Well, didn't I tell you from the first that she would? And I thought you looked upon the matter as nothing but a little lark, anyway?" "I did. It isn't the return of the ring that has upset me. She has not only misspelled my last name, but she hasn't got my initials right on the box in which the ring was sent!"—Chicago Times-Herald.

To Photograph Approaching Storms.

From London has been reported the possibility of foretelling a rainstorm by photography. The Hertz waves, those bearers of electricity on wireless telegraphs, produce a marked effect on the sensitive photographic plates. F. G. Glen demonstrated in the rooms of the Royal Photograph Company of London that these electric waves could be utilized to show the approach of a storm. From experiments it is seen that lightning is not one continuous shaft of light, but is composed of numberless rows of sparks, that follow one another in the same track. This lightning is the cause of electrical waves that are spread out from all sides by each spark. If we use a coherer with the same relation to the electrical waves that it has in wireless telegraphy, but of a different shape, and brought before a photographic plate by his arrangement, then the waves of a far distant, approaching storm operate so positively on this film that the impending storm can be foretold with certainty.

Notes of Sympathy.

The technicalities of notes of congratulation and of sympathy are not many. As in all notes, the date and sheet and number should be at the end unless the address is stamped on the paper. It is poor taste to use fancy note paper at any time, but particularly so when writing to a person recently in mourning. To see a letter of condolence written on bright blue paper, with a white border, for instance, is shocking to refined sensibilities.

Not So Easy a Mark.

Friend—Why do you have such misspelled and ungrammatical signs in your front window? Sharp Tradesman—People think I'm a dunce, and come in to swindle me. Trade's booming!—Stray Stories.

Where France Sends Her Anarchists.

When a French anarchist gets too active, his government has the habit of shipping him off to the lonely island of New Caledonia, the accompanying illustration being from a recent photograph of a group of these same French anarchists in exile on the island. The government rarely sends to New Caledonia prisoners convicted for the first time, unless, of course, the offense is one for which the offenders must receive a life sentence. Beyond his enforced labor and confinement, the life of such a French exile need not necessarily be a hard one, since marriage is permitted on the island between the male and female prisoners. Some of these marriages are extremely happy, the French authorities assuming control of all children and their education.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

SOME GOOD STORIES FOR OUR JUNIOR READERS.

The Leopard with Horns—How Jimmy Was Caught Up in a Tree—An Alaskan Home—Grandma's Cat Story—An Averted Quarrel.

An Averted Quarrel.

Toodles and Toddles were two little kittens,
Exactly alike, excepting in name.
Around Toodles' neck was a piece of blue ribbon;
'Around Toddles' neck was a piece of the same.

Said Toodles to Toddles: "Get out of my basket!"
Said Toddles to Toodles: "This basket is mine."
And then there ensued a great spitting and snarling,
Till Toodles espied a small ball of twine.

So, breaking away from his little white brother,
He started to run, on a frolic intent;
But Toddles was cute, and divining his purpose,
To reach the ball first, after Toodles he went.

But, eluding their grasp, the ball rolled and bounded,
And after it scampered each kitten in glee;
Till, quarrel forgotten, they soon were enjoying
A boisterous romp, quite good-naturedly.

Then old Mother Tab, from her seat on the hassock,
Said, putting her paw up to hide a slight cough:
"I really should judge, from all indications,
The fight that was brewing can be declared off."

—Selected.

The Leopard with Horns.

Once there was a little boy named Jimmy. He had always lived in the city, and the only animals he had ever seen were horses, dogs and cats. But he had heard of leopards, because one of his boy friends had told him all about them, and how they had spots on them and they could climb trees and eat people. Well, one day he went to the country, and in course of time his cousin, who was older than he, helped him into an apple tree, and then went into the house to get something—maybe it was an apple. Jimmy was rather alarmed at being left alone in the tree, but he managed to stay there. Suddenly he saw a beast come prowling up the road. It was about the size of a leopard, as he imagined, and it was covered with spots even larger than a leopard would have, so it must be (thought Jimmy) a very awful kind of a leopard. And, to make matters worse, this leopard had a pair of horns, and large, ferocious-looking ears, and every now and then it roared like this: "Moo-oo, moo-oo!" Jimmy was frightened half to death. But he had the slim hope that the animal would go away without seeing him. Oh, horrible! The animal came right up to the tree and put its head right up among the branches and began to sniff. Then it ate an apple. Jimmy was sure that in a moment it would climb the tree after him, so he got up to the top of the tree, though how he did it he couldn't tell next day. He was weak and white with fear when he reached the top branch. The dreadful beast now came close to the trunk and began to rub up and down. Now he would spring up into the tree, beyond a doubt! But just as Jimmy thought he was crouching for a spring he saw his uncle come out of the house, and he screamed to him, "Oh, Uncle Ed, save me, save me! This leopard is going to eat me!" Now, some uncles would have thought the matter a huge joke, but Uncle Ed was not that kind. He knew that to little Jimmy the horned beast was as bad as the most terrible leopard that ever roamed the jungle, and so he went over to the tree and said, "My boy, you are safe while I am here, because, in the first place, this kind of leopard can't climb a tree, and, in the second place, it isn't a leopard at all, but a cow, and, in the third place, it is Daisy, our pet cow, and if you will take my word for it, you can ride on her back as if she were a horse." There was something in Uncle Ed's voice that had a very calming effect on Jimmy, and inside of two minutes the dreadful leopard that had come to eat him was turned into a good-natured old cow, and he rode her all around the place, holding on to Uncle Ed's hand. Now Jimmy is grown up and has a Jimmy of his own, but he will never forget the horror of that five minutes with a horned leopard.

An Alaskan Home.

An Alaskan hut is not the worst place in the world—far from it. Its interior consists of a square floor of earth flanked on all sides by two wide ledges rising one above the other like a terrace. On the lower one rest the cooking, weaving and fishing utensils, the knives and needles, pots and pans. On the upper ledge, with much display of wonderfully woven blankets, are the beds. In the center of the room glows the fire, the smoke groping its way out of a hole in the roof. After the day's work is done, and the stomachs of both people and dogs are full, the family gathers around the fire. Facing the door sits the father, next him the mother; on one hand the sons and on the other the daughters, even to the third and fourth generation; it may be. Beyond these are the servants or slaves. Each has his place, and takes it as a matter of course. Without, in the darkness, the dogs clutter around the door and howl. The mysterious and implacable sea keeps up its thunder. The snow-capped mountains, with their illimitable glaciers, lie just beyond. The shafts of the northern light dart through the sky, like the harpoons of a titan, with incredible celerity. Is it strange that, amid scenes so wild and fearful, superstitions also wild and fearful spring into existence? Or can one be surprised that in an unlettered country the story tellers are of mighty power and tell tales that affright the children till they scramble to the safe shelter of their mother's arms? When the family sings in strange broken yet rhythmical measures, the dogs howl louder than before and the women sway their squat bodies back and forth unceasingly, keeping their hands occupied meanwhile at their tasks of weaving or braiding. The men carve their spoons or cut curious figures from the black slate. The suitor for the hand of one of the daughters enters slyly and takes a seat with the sons. No protest is made. The father and mother go on with their little tasks, the young girls giggle after the fashion of girls the world over. And the suitor, thus unrepulsed, contents himself, thinking his case won. The oldest among them chants some old folk-song, and the father rises. It is the signal for good-nights. The ashes are spread over the fire, and by the light of a few fishes' tails, dried for the lighting, the family goes to bed, forgetful of crashing bergs, of the mysterious aurora, of the mountains where the snow lies forever and alway. So is the home made anywhere where the spirit of home exists.—Self-Culture Magazine for November.

Grandma's Cat Story.

From the Philadelphia Call: The family group were speaking of cats and their ways, and the peaceful-looking grandmother was asked to say something. The old lady smiled, for she is not often slighted when in the company of younger people, and consented to tell a story about a kitten she had when she was a child. "You know," she said, "I had a stepfather, and he liked to see me working about the house instead of playing with a kitten, so he ordered me to throw it in the brook which ran through our meadow. I was forced to do it, though I cried a great deal. I threw it in three times, but the little thing struggled out each time and finally dragged itself home after me. Then I pleaded so much that I was allowed to keep it. From that time on it was kind of wild, not staying in the house, but skulking around the barn. When it was full grown it began to kill our chickens, so my stepfather said it had to go. This time he caught it and tied a stone around it and drowned it. After an hour or two he drew it from the water and buried it. Now comes the part that is stranger than fiction. Two days after the same old yellow cat dragged itself up to the barn. We visited the place where he had buried it and found it had come to life and rid itself of the stone, in what way I know not, and dug itself out. It stayed by the edge of our woods, getting the milk I set out every now and then, but disappeared when winter came."

Adventure with a Lion.

In his work on the "Zoology of Persia," Major St. John describes a thrilling adventure with a lion. The major was riding down the hill leading to the plain of Desht-i-arjeen, on the road to Shiraz, when suddenly he saw a lioness some thirty yards in front. Having only a small revolver, he cracked his whip and shouted at her, thinking she would bolt. The lioness charged, sprang and came down under his foot. With so small a pistol it would have been useless to fire, so he spurred his horse, which, however, would not move. The lioness stood on her hind legs and began clawing at the horse's hind quarters. The major leaped to the ground, but not before getting one scratch from the brute's claw. The horse plunged and reared, knocking over the lioness on one side and the man on the other, and then bolted. The lioness stood staring at the horse. St. John then fired two shots over her head to frighten her, but without effect; she sprang again on the horse's hindquarters and both were lost to view. St. John made his way to a small hamlet not far distant, where he spent the night. The next morning the horse was found quietly grazing. His quarters and flanks were scored in every direction with claw-marks, and one wound was so deep that it had to be sewed up. In a week the horse was as well as ever, but he bore the scars for the rest of his life.

A Wonderful Blue.

Did it ever strike you, young people, to inquire why the cloudless depths of the sky above us are so decidedly blue? It isn't that the gas we call air is itself blue. So far as we know it is quite transparent and absolutely colorless. No; the blue comes from the reflected light. Air is never pure. You couldn't live in it if it were. Countless millions of tiny particles, chiefly of water, are always suspended in it, and these arrest the free passage of light. Each particle has a double reflection—one internal, the other external—and so the reflected rays suffer the usual result of what is called "interference," and show color. You will notice that the sky appears much bluer if you look straight up than if you look across toward the horizon. The reason is that, in the first instance, you are naturally looking through a much thinner layer of air than in the second. If there were no air, and, consequently, no watery vapor, and nothing to interfere with the free passage of light, even at midday, the sky would look perfectly black, and all the stars plainer than they do now at midnight.

A Fable.

Timour, the famous Asiatic chief, having, on one occasion, taken shelter from his enemies in a lone building, saw a little ant trying to carry a grain of wheat, larger than itself, up a high wall. Sixty-nine times did Timour see the grain fall to the ground, but the next effort the ant carried off the prize. "I was in despair," said the chief, "but the sight of the ant gave me new courage, and I have never forgotten the noble effort which it taught me." There is an old proverb which says: "Perseverance conquers all things."

Tit for Tat.

A bright 3-year-old, living on Canfield avenue, induced her mamma to get down on the floor with her to "play blocks." After the game was fairly under way Miss Lou picked up a novel, clambered into a big chair and remarked solemnly to her astonished and highly amused parent:

"Now, I'm going to read awhile. You play alone—and see how you like it!"

SCIENTIFIC TOPICS

CURRENT NOTES OF DISCOVERY AND INVENTION.

Realistic Snow Scenes—Heat Valve for Kettle—Harnessing the Tides—Self-Protection in Plants—A New Photographic Telescope—Recent Inventions.

Harnessing the Tides.

The efforts now making in Europe to produce electrical energy by utilizing the tides are thought to be practical, and complete success is expected. The idea of generating power by means of the tides is old. In fact, the method now being applied on the coasts of France and England to run dynamos by utilizing the rise and fall of the short waters is the same that was long employed at a few points on the shores of Long Island sound and elsewhere to grind flour in "tide mills." The English are treating the problem as though its practicability for the generation of electricity on a large scale was fully demonstrated. It is said that the sea wall and works that are to be erected at Southend, on the north side of the Thames' mouth, will cost $3,000,000. The purpose is to supply electricity to London, and the advantage of the site selected is that there the rise and fall of the tide is very great. This enterprise will be by far the most ambitious and costly attempt yet made to harness the tides for industrial purposes. If it proves successful the new source of power is sure to be largely utilized.

Self-Protection in Plants.

Young long-leaf pines, according to Mr. Pinchot of the department of agriculture, protect themselves against forest fires in a most interesting and remarkable manner. For four or five years the stems of the infant trees attain a height of only as many inches above the soil. During this time their bark is extraordinarily thick, and that alone gives some protection. But in addition the long needles spring up above the stem, and then bend over on all sides "in a green cascade which falls to the ground in a circle about the seedling." This green barrier can with difficulty be made to burn, while the shade that it casts prevents inflammable grass from growing near the protected stem. Mr. Pinchot thinks that it is owing to this peculiar system of self-protection which the pine seedlings have developed that the growth of evergreen oaks in Florida has been restricted in regions where fires have raged while pure pine forests have taken their place.

A New Kind of Brick.

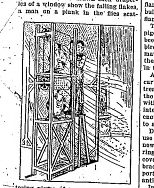
In Germany the granulated slag from blast furnaces is being utilized for the manufacture of brick. The making of slag brick is not a new thing, but heretofore fluid slag has been employed for the purpose; and the brick thus produced has been found unsuitable for building purposes because it is impermeable to air and steam. But the slag bricks made in Germany are, it is said, not open to this objection. On the contrary, while exceeding the strength of ordinary bricks, and possessing an extraordinary resistance to heat, they are more permeable to air, and consequently are well suited for the building of houses. They do not absorb water as rapidly as ordinary bricks.

Inoculation for Typhoid.

As there is considerable typhoid fever in Natal, all the British troops which have been transported to South Africa have been given the option of being inoculated with the anti-typhoid serum, and, according to the London Lancet, 70 per cent have availed themselves of the opportunity. The inoculation with serum has worked most successfully at the Indian posts where it has been tried, and the present operations in South Africa, which are being conducted on so large a scale will demonstrate the availability of the serum treatment in the prevention of enteric fever so often prevalent with armies in the field.

Realistic Snow Scenes.

Snow scenes in theaters may really be made quite realistic, even though the spectators are quite assured that the falling flakes are only bits of paper. When it is only makeshift snow scene, where the drawn-back draperies of a window show the falling flakes, a man on a plank in the flies scattering pieces of paper meets the requirements. When a more ambitious attempt at a snow scene is made several small machines concealed in the flies and distributed so as to cover the stage front with the imitation falling crystals are employed. An inventor of New York city has just been granted a patent on an appliance for producing realistic snow scenes in which the paper is fed into a hopper and scattered broadcast over the stage, a strong blowing motion being imparted to the falling particles to simulate the effect of the wind. This device, it is asserted, will place the snow scenes on a par with storm scenes of thunder and lightning which in modern stagecraft have been brought to a high stage of perfection.



A New Photographic Telescope.

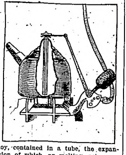
Prof. E. C. Pickering of the Harvard observatory suggested a few months ago the desirability of constructing an extremely long telescope for the purpose of photographing stars and planets. He now announces that the money needed has been given by anonymous friends of science, and that a telescope of the desired kind, having an aperture of 12 inches and a length of at least 100 feet, will probably be ready within a few weeks for trial at Cambridge. The instrument is to be placed in a horizontal position, and a movable mirror will reflect the light of the stars into the object-glass.

Automatic Tunnel Lights.

In the Batignolles tunnel, near Paris, incandescent electric lamps, arranged in rows along the tunnel walls, are to be automatically illuminated and extinguished by passing trains, the rims of the car wheels operating the electric switches. The lamps, being each of ten candle power, and placed at the height of the car windows, will serve to illuminate the interior of the passing coaches, thus superseding the use of lights in the train.

Heat Valve for Kettle.

A heat-controlling mechanism for use in adjusting the supply of gas from a gas stove, so that it will maintain any given temperature, such as that required for the heating of milk, the boiling of water or for use in turning on water sprays when adapted for fire alarm purposes is the invention of two Englishmen, Ernest Griffiths and William Dampier, of Cambridge. The essential feature of the invention is an easily fusible alloy, contained in a tube, the expansion of which, on melting, acts on a rod or level which in its turn operates a ratchet or star wheel, thereby turning off the gas or turning on the water sprays, according to the use to which it has been put. It is most important that such a device be capable of being readily reset for use again and again, and that, too, without renewal of the fusible alloy or other parts, features possessed by this arrangement. In the illustration the device is shown attached to an ordinary saucepan, while being utilized to control the supply of gas from a gas stove.



Relation of Fauna to Bottom Deposits

In an article "On the Fauna and Bottom-Deposits Near the Thirty-Fathom Line from the Eddystone Grounds to Start Point" Mr. Allen, the director of the Plymouth laboratory, shows how the organisms are adapted to the peculiarities of their environment. The causes which influence the distribution of life on the sea bottom are (1) physical: the constitution of the sea water, the nature of the bottom-deposit, the movements of the water, the temperature, the pressure, and the light; and (2) biological; the advantageous and disadvantageous influences of animals upon one another. The article helps to an understanding of the local distribution of food fishes.

An Old-Time Automobile.

Fifty years ago a steam carriage might have been seen on the streets of New York. It was the invention of Robert Dudgeon, who is well-known by reason of his many inventions. He used this carriage to go from his business to his residence in Harlem. Two bushels of coal were used on every trip, so it will be seen it was not a particularly economical means of conveyance. The water tanks carried sixty gallons. Finally, after being used for about ten years, the city authorities forbade its use on the streets of the city, and it was taken to Long Island, where it ran for some time on country roads

Recent Inventions.

Flash-light powders are made to burn with a rapid, intense flame by a new discharge apparatus which has a small lamp burning with a round flame, the powder being placed in a bulb and thrown vertically past the flame to ignite it as it ascends.

To announce the arrival of carrier pigeons at the home nest a whistle has been patented for attachment to the bird, comprising a hollow ball of light material, with a clamp to secure it to the tail feather, an opening being cut in the front to let air into the whistle.

An Ohio man has patented a street car floor which will prevent people treading or sitting on passengers' toes, the edges of the floor being double, with the upper thickness supported at intervals on brackets to lift it high enough to allow the passengers' toes to slip under.

Distribution of germs through the use of telephones is prevented by a new attachment which has a metallic ring to fit over the mouthpiece, with a cover hinged on one side, having a bracket on its inner face for the support of a small bottle containing an antiseptic or germicide.

In New York a company has been formed for the manufacture of an armor for pneumatic tires, using an unwoven, fibrous material, which is flattened out into a wide sheet and covered on one side with a loose woven fabric to keep it in place, being then folded over until it attains the proper width.

An improved feed box for animals has a small trough pivoted at the rear of the manger, with a narrow, round hopper depending from the ceiling overhead to fit over a cone-shaped projection in the bottom of the box, a weighted lever closing the cone over the hopper outlet until the animal presses the box down.

A perpetual calendar has been constructed by a Frenchman named Jagot. It consists of five wheels having a total of ninety-six teeth and of nine levers or catches. It indicates automatically, without any attention save winding, the day of the week, the date and the month, and shows the 29th of February every four years, besides suppressing it in the centenary years that are not leap years and showing it in those that are.

RICHEST GOLD DIGGINGS IN THE WORLD.

Nome City, Alaska, Where Men Have Been Digging the Valuable Stuff Out of the Beach.

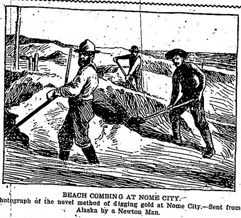
Reports of rich findings of gold at Cape Nome, Alaska, have been of unusual interest in and around Boston, because among the residents of Nome City are a number of men whose homes are in or near Boston, says a writer in the New England Home Magazine.

Nome City is on Norton sound, about 250 miles northwest of the mouth of the Yukon river. There are a number of rich claims along the creeks a short distance inland, but the most remarkable phase of Nome City mining is the beach digging. Gold is found in rich quantities in the sand which lines the shore.

Gold in the Beach.

For miles to the west of Cape Nome the beach runs straight away in a strip of tide land, varying from forty to sixty feet in width between high and low water mark, extending up to the "tundra" or black alluvial soil, which is from three to five feet higher than the beach proper.

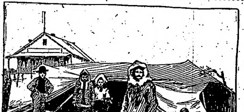
All of this tundra and all the territory along the creeks and rivers east and west for thirty or forty miles and back into the mountains for ten or twelve miles had been staked, but on the long strip of tide lands no man had a better claim than another, or could have, under the tide-land laws, and here the grand army of gold seekers camped and in very short order had converted the barren strand into a site of tremendous and enthusiastic industry. At the same time business of all kinds began to respond to the boom from the beach, and the usual collection of gambling hells, saloons and dance halls went into operation. A few weeks ago it was estimated that 1,000 or 1,200 miners were at work on the beach, extending west for twenty miles. All these work with rockers, and they occupy just as much territory to the man or group as can work it. It is not unusual for one small square bit of beach to pan out $10 to $15 an hour, but, of course, the space is soon exhausted and the lucky digger must move to another spot.



BEACH COMBING AT NOME CITY.
Photograph of the novel method of digging gold at Nome City.—Sent from Alaska by a Newton Man.

Newton Man at Home.

Albert J. Lowe of Newton Highlands is one of the lucky miners who has profited by the find at Nome City. With five other men from Boston and vicinity, he left home for Alaska in February, 1898. He visited Dawson City and Forty Mile creek, both famous mining sections, but was better pleased with Nome City. Mr. Lowe evidently finds time to indulge in politics, for he is now a common councilman of Nome City.



PREPARED FOR A LASKAN WINTER.
Boston and Newton men, who are spending the winter in Nome City, a richer gold section than the Klondike.

Some extracts from a letter which he has written tell of life in Nome City more graphically than any of the published reports from that section.

He wrote: "This is probably the last letter I can write to you before the winter shuts us in from the outside world, and perhaps until next June, unless some mail goes out over the ice, which I think doubtful, as it must be carried hundreds of miles by dogs, and that is very uncertain around the Behring sea.

Typhoid Fever Plentiful.

"A great deal of sickness prevails, and in nearly every case it is typhoid fever, caused by sleeping on the wet ground and living on beans. We have built a good hospital. In the first two days four men died in it. Ten have been buried and a number sent on stretchers on board the steamers. Our police department selected some of the roughs and shipped them out of the section, Capt. Jarvis taking them on the revenue cutter Bear. Here are some of the prices we pay: Coal, $126 a ton; lumber, $250 to $300 a thousand; flour, $15 per cut; all canned goods, 75 cents a can; sugar, 25 cents a pound. It is hard to buy anything at those prices. No coal or lumber can be bought. Cigars and drinks are 50 cents each; beer, $2 a bottle; whisky, $5." Mr. Lowe says the gold deposit about Nome is more general than in the Klondike country. He thinks several new town sites will be opened up near Nome before spring.

Plenty of Opportunity.

Mr. Lowe says there are great openings at Nome "for big companies to work large pieces of ground by buying up the claims which would be hard for a single owner to work.

"I feel fully warranted in prophesying that this country is going to be the greatest mining country in the United States, if not in the world. It is different from the Klondike country, where the gold is deep and spotted. In this country the deposit is very general, and, so far as known, very rich.

"We have two serious drawbacks. The climatic conditions cannot be overcome. If we had the wood so plentiful in the upper river country the poor man could live here as cheap and easy as in Massachusetts and always make good wages. Of course he could not enjoy civilization, the great comfort we miss. When you see strong men sit down and cry and then get drunk for the lack of a home, you understand how much it is missed."

Feminine Financiering.

That women are the best financiers of the world we have often had opportunity to acknowledge, says the Honolulu Independent. We have seen them at the auction sales when they made a "bargain" by buying an article they had no use for whatever, and we have seen them haggling over the price of cheap calico for a reduction. price of one cent a yard, and then triumphantly carry their purchase to a fashionable dressmaker and paying her $10 for making a "morning" dress. This morning we could not help smiling while watching a lady credited with possessing good business sense, buying "Chinese birds" on board a mail steamer, haggling over the price of the birds and beating down the seller of seven fine specimens by fifty cents of the original price. In the meantime her hack was waiting, and the driver "charging." She made her bargain, however, saved fifty cents on the birds and paid the hackman one dollar for waiting. That is female financiering.

Are We a Gloomy Nation?

What is the matter with the people in our streets? Do you notice how gloomy all their faces are? Should you see a man or woman smiling or laughing on a New York sidewalk you would probably say to yourself: "I wonder what is wrong with that person." Such laughter as one hears is usually aroused by the quotation of some more or less stupid joke, or more frequently by a misfortune that has befallen a fellow creature. If a man slips on a corner, falls or bumps his head, that becomes for the time being a cheerful corner in New York. But we don't seem to be able to find any cause for cheerfulness in bright sunlight, or blue skies or any of the other little blessings which Providence bestows upon us. What is the matter with us? There is plenty of gayety in France, in Germany, in Italy. There is even a little in England. Why should this nation be so gloomy? Do we live too fast, work too hard? What is it? If we keep up our gloominess shall we not be a very ugly race in a few more generations? Let us try to cheer up and be gay. This is not such a bad world after all. We are not all of us starving to death or in danger of being eaten by plutocratic octopuses.—New York Journal.

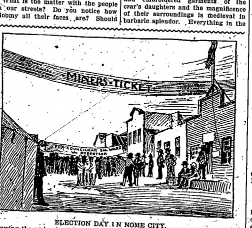
TESTAMENT FOR AN EMPRESS.

China's Sovereign Has the Costliest Copy Ever Printed.

From Leslie's Weekly: The poorest can now buy the new testament in English for a nickel and yet—strange contrast!—perhaps the most sumptuous copy of the new testament in existence is that splendid edition de luxe presented to the dowager empress of China on the occasion of her sixtieth birthday, the presentation having been made in due form by the British and American ministers. The book is a royal quarto volume, 2x10x13 inches in size and was manufactured by the Presbyterian press and Canton silversmiths. It has silver covers, embossed with bamboo and bird designs, and is printed on the finest paper with the largest type, and with a border of gold encircling each page. It was encased in a solid silver casket, ornamented with symbolical designs, the whole weighing 10½ pounds, and upon the cover of the casket there is a gold plate which relates that the book is the gift of the Christian women in China. Not long after the presentation of this magnificent volume the eunuchs were sent from the palace to the bookstore to ask for a common copy, so that the empress and her ladies might compare the two texts. Surely the circulation of such a book is one of the wonders of the world! "Age cannot wither, nor custom stale, its infinite variety."

The Czarina and Her Children.

No royal children are surrounded by such imposing ceremonial or regarded with such superstitious interest and reverence as are the three infant daughters of the emperor and empress of Russia. The fact that a son and heir has been so eagerly awaited in vain is not allowed to militate the smallest degree against the care lavished on the baby grand duchesses, although, according to present Russian law, they can never hope to succeed their father on the imperial throne. After the birth of Grand Duchess Olga, the eldest, the empress wrote a touching letter in which she said: "Everyone except ourselves seems disappointed that baby was not a boy. For us there is no question of sex; our child is simply a gift from God." The czarina prefers that her children's nurses should be English or Scotch. Besides nominally they have twenty such attendants each, drawn from various Russian provinces. Immense sums are lavished on the dainty lace trimmed and embroidered garments of the czar's daughters and the magnificence of their surroundings is medieval in barbaric splendor. Everything in the imperial nurseries is of gold or silver, and the richest furs, quilted silks and velvets are used where in other royal nurseries quite ordinary materials would be called into requisition.



ELECTION DAY IN NOME CITY.
Showing the main street in the new boom city of Alaska, where the gold is dug from the beach.

Made Bill Too.

A small boy from the slums had been brought into the mission school, and for a couple of Sundays he had been instructed in the rudiments. On the third Sunday he brought with him his brother William. To test his memory the teacher began to go over the previous lessons. "Who made you?" she asked. "God," he replied, promptly. "And what else did God make?" The youngster studied for a moment and looked around hopelessly till he noticed his brother, then his face brightened. "He made Bill, too, I guess," he answered, triumphantly.

OUR BUDGET OF FUN.

SOME GOOD JOKES, ORIGINAL AND SELECTED.

A Variety of Quips, Gibes and Ironies, to Cause a Smile—Flotsam and Jetsam from the Tide of Humor—Witty Sayings.

Where It Hurt.

"Why are you weeping?" asked the loving husband.

"When little Harry and I went down town today," she sobbed, "the conductor insisted that I must pay for the child."

"Oh, well," he said, "I wouldn't let that bother me. What's a nickel to us?"

"It isn't the nickel," she indignantly replied. "It's the impertinence of the brute of a conductor in insinuating that it is possible for me to be the mother of a child more than ten years old."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Good Reason.

Bacon—"You know that part in the play where the man seizes the woman, forces her into a closet and turns the key on her?"

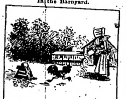
Egbert—"Yes; I remember it."

"Well, last night a fellow in the audience applauded it so that they had to put him out."

"I don't think there is anything to applaud about that part of the play."

"Oh, but it turned out that the fellow applauding was the husband of the actress, and it was the first time he had ever seen anybody shut her up."—Yonkers Statesman.

In the Barnyard.



Rooster—Oh, say, this is a cinch. All the other chickens down the hill and the old lady with such a cold she can't call them.

Already She Had Begun to Prepare.

"If you keep on as you have begun, Mabel," complained the young husband, running his eye over the weekly account, "we shall never be able to lay up anything for a rainy day."

"How can you say so, Henry," exclaimed the young wife, righteously indignant, "when you know that I have two of the loveliest rainy-day skirts that were ever made!"—Stray Stories.

Brought It Upon Himself.

"What is the woman's offense?"

"She threw a brick at a neighbor, your honor, and hit a man standing behind her."

"The man is guilty of contributory negligence. If he hadn't been an idiot, he would have stood in front of her. Case is dismissed."—Stray Stories.

Natural Inference.

"It seems strange that you never received a proposal of marriage," remarked the sarcastic girl.

"Who says I never received a proposal of marriage?" demanded the other.

"Why, no one, of course, but I've always understood that you are a spinster."—Chicago Evening Post.

Those Loving Girls.

Maude—Mr. De Jones asked me to sing for him the other evening after we had been introduced.

Clara—And what did you sing?

Maude—Why, how do you know that I sang at all?

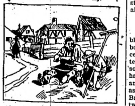
Clara—Well, I noticed that he didn't ask you to sing to-night.—Chicago News.

A Difference in Tastes.

"I saw you kissing my daughter. I don't like it, sir."

"Then you don't know what's good, sir."—Life.

Politeness in the Country.



"Hand me my hat, Schorch!"

"What do you want of it?"

"I want to take it off to the parson when he passes!"—Fliegende Blaetter.

Visual Organs All Right.

"Can I see the mistress of the house?" asked the tourist in reduced circumstances who stood at the kitchen door.

"You can if you have good use of your eyes," coldly replied the woman confronting him. "You are looking at her."

"I can use them well enough, madam," he responded, with much stiffness, "to see that you are a purist, and not philanthropist. We have nothing in common. Good afternoon, madam."—Chicago Tribune.

A Forecast.

"The indications are," remarked the man who was looking at the sky with an expression of great wisdom, that it will be cold and raw."

The man who has trouble with the servant girl problem meekly inquired:

"What are you talking about, the weather or dinner?" — Washington Star.

Frequently.

"Pa, what is a drawn battle?"

"It is one in which the enemy has rather the best of it."—Puck.

WITH "PALM OIL."

Some Inside Points on How Chinese Concessions Are Secured.

The usual procedure in securing Chinese concessions is somewhat as follows: There first comes to Peking the advance agent, the typical concession hunter, to look over the ground and find out what China has to give away that can be taken up by a public company and secure the support of the share-buying public abroad. Sometimes he is sent as the representative of a group of capitalists who have a definite idea of what they wish to secure, and in such cases he is furnished with formidable letters of credit, to supply the very necessary sinews of this financial war. Sometimes he comes unsupported, and, having "hooked" some conditional grant, posts hot-footed to London or New York to see what can be done with it. Occasionally promoters are of a different class entirely; namely, the agents of foreign governments, trying, under the cloak of private enterprise, to advance a political design in some of the empire in which these governments seek a predominating influence, says Charles Denby in the Forum. Experience has proved that these advance agents need not be gentlemen of the highest education or refinement, but they do need to be endowed with a certain instinct for diplomacy in its lower forms, and they must be, above all, shrewd and persistent, of indomitable perseverance, and with a faculty for making friends. Scruples as to methods are with them superfluous, but a willingness and an ability in the application of "palm oil" are indispensable. They must, also, be men of their word toward those who work with them. What they promise to those who aid in the negotiation of their contracts they must faithfully fulfill; because while Chinese business integrity does not rise in the Quixotic height of refusing to enter into corrupt contracts, it expects scrupulous exactitude in their execution. The promise of the promoter to his Chinese aiders and abettors in social circles becomes a debt of honor, payment of which is, or should be, absolutely sure. On such terms as these have offices in China been secured, promotions obtained, enterprises authorized, for hundreds of years; and the foreign promoter must, as his initial step, give his adherence thereto. The method of procedure of the advance agent is to make the acquaintance of the mandarins of Pekin; securing here and there an ally and a friend. Then, at some favorable moment, he lays his project before the proper department of the government; relying on the support of his friends to secure it favorable consideration. One of the greatest concessions recently signed in China enriched in its negotiations numberless officials. The writer himself saw a promissory note for $35,000 payable to a small official upon formation of a certain company. This was but one palm "greased," and the outlay on this head by the concessionaire must have amounted to hundreds of thousands of dollars. For the consolation of future promoters it must be added that methods are now much simplified; such liberal "squeezes" being no longer necessary.

TO GUARD QUEEN VICTORIA.

Horses of Royal Stable Taught Not to Fear Automobiles.

Few lives in this world are watched with such care as Queen Victoria's, and those of the members of the royal family. This is an old saying, but it is particularly true in the case of what might be called automobilism, which as yet is only a hobby in England. Still steps have just been taken to protect her majesty from any danger while driving through the use of automobiles. All the horses in the royal stable have been drilled in the presence of an automobile. The horses in the three stable yards at Windsor were first led and then driven around a stationary car. Then the car was propelled around the horses. Finally the car was moved between the horses in a dangerous way as they stood near each other. The automobilist finally made the car as objectionable as possible. The horses were very amenable, as they had already been schooled to such noises as the playing of bands, the noise of cannon and railroad trains and the cheering of crowds. The best bred horses proved to be the least sensitive to the novelty, a pure bred Arab stallion showing the least concern of all.—New York Sun.

Priceless Volume.

About four years ago a London blacksmith noticed on a second-hand bookstall a very old book priced at 2 cents. He bought it, and after attempting to read it, threw it aside and soon forgot it. One of his lodgers happening to see the book recently, and, noticing that it was dated 1450, asked permission to show it to the British museum authorities. A day or two later the blacksmith was requested to call, and the secretary, to his surprise, asked him what he would take for the book. In some slight confusion the man said, "What will you give?" "Will $250 suit you?" was the answer of the secretary. The blacksmith was so dumfounded that the secretary thought he was ridiculing his offer, and thereupon immediately increased it to $500, which was at once accepted. Sooner than have lost the book, however, which was the first book that Gutenberg ever printed, and, therefore almost priceless, the museum authorities would have paid almost any sum that had been asked.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Globe Trotter.

Customer (Backhampstead, Ct.)—Wal, I don't know about that calico; I think I've seed better. Storekeeper—Nancy Jane Bosworth, there ain't no better calico than that on airth! I know—for I have traveled! I have been to Springfield, I have been to Hartford, and I have been to New Haven! In fact, Nancy Jane Bosworth, I have traveled this wide world over! So you can safely take my judgment 'bout that calico!—Puck.

No Difference.

Parson Featherflew—Yo' doan' need to be fear'd ob me, fowl; I's er minis-tah ob de gospel. Musical rooster—All coons look alike to me.—Judge.

Bank of St. Hilaire.

HANNAY & CO., Bankers.

Real Estate Loans.
Chattel Loans.
Foreign & Domestic Xchange
INSURANCE.
Collections a Specialty.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

St. Hilaire, Minn.

Livery and Feed Stable!

DAN PATERSON, Prop.

Dray in Connection.

The finest equipped turnouts in the northwest. Safe drivers and furnished at a moments notice at reasonable rates. Don't forget the place

BIG - RED - BARN

Located on the east side of Broadway nearly opposite Rapp & Post's Store

ST. HILAIRE - - - - MINNESOTA

PATENTS

DESIGNS
TRADE-MARKS
AND COPYRIGHTS
OBTAINED

ADVICE AS TO PATENTABILITY
Notice in "Inventive Age"
Book "How to obtain Patents"

FREE

Charges moderate. No fee till patent is secured. Letters strictly confidential. Address,
E. G. SIGGERS, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

GET YOUR PICTURE TAKEN BY
D. COLLINS
THE
Photograper.
ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

IMPROVED
FARMS!

K. O. GIGSTAD has a large list of Improved Farms for sale. Also agent for the best fire and cyclone insurance company. Sick and accident insurance Co., and hail insurance.

Money to loan on improved farms at low interest. All collections are promptly attended to.

NOTARY PUBLIC.

Office east of the city well.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

2nd STORE

(SECOND HAND STORE)

Everything in this line now on hand. Special bargains given. If you have anything to dispose of give me a call.

C. A. SKEIE.

ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA

FIRE
INSURANCE
DO
YOU
NEED
SOME?

The Best is the Cheapest.

I have nine of the best companies doing business in the State

Call for rates.

H. E. IVES.

CUSTOM WORK.

JUST LOOK AT THESE PRICES:

Roll Carding—per pound.......5 cts
Spinning Single Yarn—per pound.......15 c
Stocking Yarn—2 or 3 ply, per pound.....20 c

LITCHFIELD WOOLEN MILLS.

LITCHFIELD, MINN.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Spectator.

IVES & SOLL, Publishers.
JOHN J. SOLL, Editor.

Entered at the postoffice at St. Hilaire, Minn., as second-class mail matter.

Published every Wednesday at St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minn.

TERMS:—$1.50 Per Year in Advance.

SUBSCRIBERS should notify the publisher on or before expiration of subscription if discontinuance is desired. Otherwise paper will be continued.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 3, 1900.

Doing Penance.

A member of the mining exchange tells this story of a man doing penance: "I had a wagon and was driving out of Denver, on my way to the mines. The roads were fetlock deep in dust, and the weather was hotter than hades. A young fellow halted me a few miles out and asked if he might walk behind my wagon. It was the strangest request I had ever heard, and I said:

"'Walk behind? No! Get up here on the seat and ride.' He wore a sort of sad look and replied:

"'I don't want to ride, pardner. I ain't fitten to ride and I ain't fitten to get fitten. Just let me walk behind your wagon.'

"I thought then he must be crazy and concluded to let him have his way. The dust rolled up in dense, suffocating clouds. I glanced frequently over my shoulder, but couldn't get a glimpse of him. As the team rattled on, however, I heard his voice repeating over and over again:

"'Serve you right, confound you! Sell your claim for $10,000, win $1,500 at poker, go down to Denver, blow off the town and go dead broke! You blank blank blank! Ought to suffer! Got to go back and start all over again! Dust too good for you! Ain't half punishment enough!'

"At the end of the journey he was nearly dead, but still bravely anxious to do penance. I hired him, and he's here in New York now, doing well."—New York Press.

Admitted It Himself.

A story is told of two prominent Chicago lawyers who several years ago were regarded as being among the brightest lawyers the state had produced for a long time. There was great rivalry between these men, and one day they were having a heated argument on the steps of the statehouse at Springfield.

"I'll agree to leave it to the first man we meet," said one of the wrangling lawyers fiercely.

"All right, and that will settle it once for all. Ah! Here is Charlie ——. We'll leave it to him."

"Charlie," as the man spoken of approached within hearing distance, "we want you to decide who is the best lawyer in Illinois. We agree to abide by your decision."

"Well," replied Charlie, himself an old practitioner and well known in the capital city, "I plead guilty to being the best lawyer in the state myself."

"Why, Charlie, how can it be proved?" inquired the first of the two Chicagoans.

"You don't have to prove it," replied the Springfield man. "I admit it, don't I?"—Detroit Free Press.

The Sweatshops.

It pays to own real estate where New York's laboring classes are concentrated. A man who owns a large, square building in the down town east side district says that it pays him more than 20 per cent net on the money invested. He never has to look for tenants and he has no trouble in collecting his rents. A prosperous saloon keeper has the ground floor, and, of course, his rent is guaranteed.

The floors above are rented for sweatshops. One man hires a floor and sublets each window to a man to work by. If at any time he shows signs of running behind with his rent a dozen window tenants are eager to take the contract in his place.

The windows rent for $5 each. This gives the man who hires the whole floor his window free, or sometimes a little more than that. The windows in this particular building are especially sought after, because there is a freight elevator, by which the heavy cloth garments can be hoisted and let down from the various stories. It runs by hand power but even then it is far better than carrying the heavy burdens on the back.—New York Press.

Cause For Care.

"No," said the confident youth, "I shall not trudge along in the beaten track. I shall not devote my mind to humdrum duty."

"What are you going to do?" asked the schoolmaster.

"I am going to strike away from the beaten path. I'm going to leave footprints on the sands of time."

"Well, you want to be careful."

"I have energy and ability."

"Yes, but you want to be careful too. Trying to leave footprints on the sands of time has been the cause of a lot of people getting stuck in the mud."

On the Road to Bankruptcy.

Griggs—Your friend appears to be prospering finely. His new residence is simply palatial, and the horseflesh he rides behind must have cost him a mint of money.

Briggs—Yes, Stentor is doing splendidly. But I'm sorry to say he has just taken out a patent for a very ingenious invention.

Griggs—Is that so? By George, when the bankruptcy sale comes off I'm going to be on hand to make a bid on one of them horses.—Boston Transcript.

Very Sharp.

Teacher—Now, Johnny, if the earth were empty on the inside, what could we compare it to?

Johnny—A razor, ma'am.

Teacher—A razor?

Johnny—Yes, ma'am; because it would be hollow ground.—Brooklyn Life.

An Ohio man who admits he is superstitious attributes it to the fact that he was once caught in a rainstorm while arrayed in a $13 suit of clothes.—Chicago News.

Is there anything more depressing than to walk into your room at 4 in the afternoon and discover that the bed has not yet been made?—Philadelphia Times.

AN ODD TOWN IN MEXICO.

A Place Where the Fashions Are the Same as Centuries Ago.

Mexico is becoming Americanized and modernized in a deplorable degree, but in the interior there are still towns and villages not touched by the hand of "improvement."

Tehuantepec is one of the oldest of Mexican cities, and it is so far away from the beaten track of the tourist and trader that the olden customs and costumes remain nearly as they were two or three centuries ago.

The two women wear a bodice or "camisa" of white linen, with insertion around the neck and sleeves of the beautiful Mexican drawn work, which is bordered by embroidery of red and green. The skirt is generally bright green, closely plaited and with a deep border of brilliantly colored cloth or white drawn work. A broad red sash, "rebosa," is knotted around the waist and falls nearly to the edge of the skirt. The costume is completed by bright green slippers. Stockings are unknown.

The headdress is remarkable. It is called "huipil," and is made of a broad, stiffly starched lace flounce, very full, on a narrow yoke. The flounce extends around the neck, as well as the lower edge of the yoke, and is drawn over the head and around the shoulders, framing the face in a quaintly demure fashion.

The women are fond of jewelry, and especially of long necklaces made of gold coins. They have control of the greater part of the business. They throng the markets every day, some with native chocolate, some with flowers and vegetables and some with ornaments and native cloths. They excel in the Mexican drawn work, and dealers come from all the large cities to buy of them.

Many of the women are handsome in a vivid, tropical way. They are tall and straight, with superb physical development, flashing brown eyes, olive skin and red lips.—Brooklyn Eagle.

QUEER WAYS OF NATURE.

Where the Tortoise Is a Barometer and Flies Eat Spiders.

The tortoise is not an animal one would naturally fix upon as likely to be afraid of rain, but it is singularly so. Twenty-four hours or more before rain falls the Galapagos tortoise makes for some convenient shelter. On a bright, clear morning when not a cloud is to be seen, the denizens of a tortoise farm on the African coast may sometimes be seen heading for the nearest overhanging rocks. When that happens, the proprietor knows that rain will come down during the day, and, as a rule, it comes down in torrents. The sign never fails. This pre-sensation, or whatever you may call it, which exists in many birds and beasts may be explained partly from the increasing weight of the atmosphere when rain is forming, partly by habits of living and partly from the need of moisture which is shared by all.

If we want to find a country where nature has turned things topsy turvy—that is, according to our notion—we must go to Australia. Many things are reversed in that country. It is summer there while it is winter in America. Trees shed their bark instead of their leaves; fruit has the stone, or kernel, outside; swans are black; there is a species of fly that kills and eats the spider, and a fish, called the climbing perch, that walks deliberately out of the water and, with the aid of its fins, climbs the adjacent trees after the insects that infest them. When to this we add that most of the birds have no song and the flowers no odors, it is easily seen that it is on the other side of the world in more senses than one.—Atlanta Constitution.

Washington and the Indians.

More than once Washington entertained Indians. Trumbull, artist lion of the hour, had painted a full length portrait of the president. Curious to see the effect, Washington led a party of full blooded Indians suddenly into view of it. One of them advanced and touched the painted figure. "Ugh!" he grunted, with suspicion. He looked behind to see if it were really flat; discovered with disgust that it was. Not one would permit Trumbull to sketch him. The president took an amiable walk down Broadway with the Indians in their savage dress, paint and feathers, stateliness of civilization and savage stateliness contrasted. The dignity of the unregenerate Indian was real, and yet he was tickled like a child with this opportunity for display.—Leila Herbert in Harper's Magazine.

His Was the Better.

"One day," says a writer in the Boston Transcript, "the mother of a 10-year-old boy gave him two slices of buttered bread, telling him to give one of them to his little sister. He carried out the order. That night when he went to bed he was evidently disturbed in his mind and remorseful about something, and his mother, questioned him in a way to bring out the truth.

"'I—I wasn't nice to Peggy about that bread and butter,' he owned.

"'Why?' asked his mother. 'Did you take the bigger piece?'

"'No,' he answered. 'Hers was a little bigger than my piece was, but mine was a good deal butterer!'"

Would Be Novel.

"I would like to say something that strikes the public as thoroughly original," remarked the politician.

"Well," answered the friend, "you might admit that a visit of yours to any city under any circumstances had some political significance."—Washington Star.

Not Entirely One.

"And so they were made one."

"Oh, I don't know. I believe she still has a mind of her own."—Chicago Record.

The Army and Navy.

Have covered themselves with glory during the war. The Army and Navy vest pocket memorandum book published by the Northern Pacific is a compact digest of information relative to the navies and armies of Spain and the United States at the beginning of the war. It has a map of Cuba, illustrations of naval ships, glossary of navy and army terms, translation of Spanish words, etc. Send ten cents to Chas. S. Fee, general passenger agent, N. P. R., St. Paul, Minn., for a copy.

The Advantage in Gambling.

"In all gambling games," said an old time sport, "there is a percentage in favor of the 'house.' Anybody, except a born fool, knows that a man couldn't afford to equip an establishment, hire help, pay rent and defray all the hundred and one incidental expenses unless he derived a profit that was based on some fixed principle and not dependent on mere luck or chance. Just where the profit comes in, however, is something that very few people understand. Most of them imagine it is derived from some slight advantage in the arrangement of the game, such as the 'zero' numbers in roulette or the 'splits' in faro, but they are very much mistaken. It really depends on a principle that applies to all games alike and might be termed the 'percentage of capital.'

"Strange as it may seem, I could take a capital of $1,000 and begin pitching nickels, in which the chances are perfectly even, letting the players guess either way they wanted to, and I would make a steady profit day in and day out. The secret is this: The average player has only a limited amount of money, and a slight run of bad luck wipes him out. He is obliged to quit, and somebody else takes his place, while the house keeps right on through good luck and bad, continually swelling its reserve with the cash of the broken players. That principle of the percentage of capital is at the bottom of the profits of every gaming house in the world from Monaco to Long Branch."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

He Scored on Lincoln.

In 1858 Abraham Lincoln and Stephen A. Douglas had a joint debate on the college grounds of Knox college, Galesburg. It was a great meeting, and I shall never forget the tremendous enthusiasm that was manifested by the respective partisans of each of these great men. Mr. Douglas had the opening and conclusion, and he got in one shot on Mr. Lincoln that was so pat that even the adherents of that gentleman had to join in the laughter.

Mr. Lincoln, in the course of his remarks, twitted his opponent with making only one speech—a set oration which he delivered to each new audience, the suggestion being that he was incapable of changing his stock address.

In reply Mr. Douglas said that he admitted the charge, and conceded that his rival knew in advance what he was going to say. He wished that he could foretell with the same exactness what Mr. Lincoln was going to say, but alas! that was impossible, since he changed his argument to suit his audiences, making a fierce abolition talk in communities where that sentiment was strongly entertained, as at Galesburg, but in southern Illinois ignoring abolition and standing up squarely as an old time Whig.

A Good Natured Dog.

A very ordinary looking farm horse harnessed to an old wagon stood by the curb, and on the board that served for a seat lay a small dog of such mixed blood that no guess could be made as to his breed.

As a delivery wagon passed on the opposite side of the street a large red apple fell off. Before it stopped rolling the dog bounded across the street, picked it up with his teeth and with tail wagging rushed back to the horse, in front of which he stood up on his hind legs while the apple was taken from his mouth.

As the horse munched the apple he made the peculiar little noise that horses make when petted, and doggie replied with throaty little barks which plainly told what a pleasure it had been to go after that apple. Then he went back to his nap on the wagon seat.—Burlington Free Press.

How It Happened.

"Poor fellow! I fear he was badly hurt."

"He was."

"Well, I suppose he carried some accident insurance?"

"Not a bit of it. He wanted to take out a policy, but in view of his business the companies declined on the ground that he was an extra hazardous risk."

"What was his business?"

"He was a canvasser for an accident insurance company."—Chicago Post.

Death and the Doctor.

Death and the doctor met at the door.

"Well, I've got him!" exclaimed Death banteringly.

The doctor was furious, of course.

"Oh, yes," he cried, with much heat, "but you didn't dare make a square issue of it and get him with the disease I was treating him for!"

Hereupon Death laughed affectedly, saying nothing.—Detroit Journal.

Compliments.

"How, for instance," asked the inquisitive boarder, "would you define a compliment?"

"In love's warfare," replied the didactic boarder, "a compliment is a skirmisher sent out for the purpose of bringing on an engagement."—Chicago Tribune.

The Oldest Tree.

The oldest tree on earth with an authenticated history is the great bhoo tree of Burma. For 20 centuries it has been held sacred to the Buddha, and no person is allowed to touch the trunk. When the leaves fall, they are carried away as relics by pilgrims.

Lovely Hands.

Lovely hands are more uncommon than pretty faces, yet a little silver sand, a deep basin, a stiff nailbrush, good soap and two good little implements (file and orangewood sticks) will transform ugliness to lasting beauty in a month.

To Subscribers.

All who know themselves to be indebted to THE SPECTATOR will confer a great favor by settling early. These accounts are small, but we have a lot of them on our books. Please do not put the matter off or forget it altogether, because it don't amount to very much.

—Every farmer who writes a letter occasionally should get envelopes with his name and address printed in the corner. We will furnish 100 of the best quality printed in any style for the small sum of 75 cts. Send in your order

The Ideal Lunch Room.

In the Paradis Building is noted for its Convenience.

FIRST-CLASS MEALS.

PROMPT SERVICE.

OPEN UNTIL ONE O'CLOCK A. M.

A. F. LANG, Prop.

NEW YORK WORLD.

THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION.

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly.

The striking and important events of the last year have established the overwhelming value of The Thrice-a-Week World to every reader. For an almost nominal sum it has kept its subscribers informed of the progress of all our wars and, moreover, has reported them as promptly and fully as if it were a daily. With our interests still extending throughout the world, with our troops operating in the Philippines and the great Presidential campaign, too, at hand, its value is further increased.

The motto of The Thrice-a-Week World is improved. It strives each year to be better than it was the year before, and public confidence in it is shown by the fact that it now circulates more than twice as many papers every week as any other newspaper, not a daily, published in America.

We offer this unequalled newspaper and The St. Hilaire Spectator together one year for $1.65.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.50.

Barber Shop
—AND—
BATH ROOMS.

Haircutting, Shaving, Shampooing.

Razors honed and put in first-class order.

J. H. PENNO, Prop.

ST. HILAIRE - - MINNESOTA

First Mortgage Loans.

I am prepared, for the next 60 days, to make loans at the

LOWEST

possible rates ever made in Red Lake county. If you want to make a loan or renew an old one call on

H. E. IVES.

NORTHERN PACIFIC
YELLOWSTONE PARK LINE

RUNS

THROUGH CARS

TO

ST. PAUL
MINNEAPOLIS
DULUTH
FARGO
GRAND FORKS
AND WINNIPEG

To—HELENA
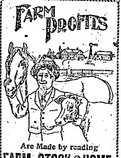
BUTTE
SPOKANE
TACOMA
SEATTLE
PORTLAND

PULLMAN SLEEPING CARS
ELEGANT DINING CARS
TOURIST SLEEPING CARS



Are Made by reading

FARM, STOCK & HOME,

MINNEAPOLIS, MINN.

Every Number Filled with Practical, Helpful Suggestions for the FARMER, STOCKMAN,

DAIRYMAN,
GARDENER,
POULTRYMAN,
APIARIST,
FRUITIST,
AND HOUSEWIFE.

Issued Semi-monthly 24 Papers a Year

ONLY 50 CENTS A YEAR.
Six months, 30 cents.
3 Months, on trial, 10 cts.

By special arrangement with the publishers we are enable to give FARM, STOCK AND HOME one year and the ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR for $1.75.

MONEY To PATENT Good Ideas may be secured by our aid. Address, THE PATENT RECORD, Baltimore, Md.
Subscriptions to The Patent Record $1.00 per annum.

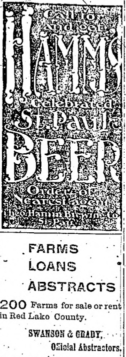
BANK OF RED LAKE FALLS,
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA

GENERAL BANKING. FOREIGN XCHANGE

Real Estate, Farm Loans and Insurance.
Abstracts of Title.
Steamship Tickets.
Interest Paid on Time Deposits.
Collections of all Kinds Given Prompt Attention.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli the only set of Abstract Books in Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.



Standard!
Pure
Palatable
Uncle Sam's Monogram Whiskey
Sold by Druggists Dealers and
GEO. BENZ & SONS
ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS
UNCLE SAM
MONOGRAM WHISKEY

FARMS
LOANS
ABSTRACTS

200 Farms for sale or rent in Red Lake County.

SWANSON & GRADY,
Official Abstractors.

RED LAKE FALLS. - - MINN.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.

OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U.S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

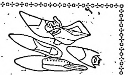
—THE SPECTATOR is for sale—at $1.50 a year—strictly in advance.

Cigars.

BRINK BROTHERS
DEALERS IN
Wines & Liquors
Minneapolis Beer.

Corner Broadway and 3rd St. St. Hilaire, Minnesota

L. K. KOLSTAD
DEALER IN
BOOTS AND SHOES!
Repairing a Specialty.
ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA.



SOME OF OUR CLUB RATES WITH THE

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR

Cosmopolitan and Spectator.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we will leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal, both together one year for only $1.80.

Farm, Stock & Home.

50 cents per year. Read by a greater number of Northwestern farmers than any other agricultural paper published. Are you among the number? If not, Why not? Every department in the hands of a specialist. Short talks department. A department where all kinds of questions are answered for the benefit of subscribers, is a leading feature of the paper. No northwestern farmers list of papers is complete without it. This paper and Spectator one year for $1.25.

Cosmopolitan, New York World and The Spectator.

You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine. Three together one year for only $2.35.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF ST. HILAIRE AND RED LAKE COUNTY.

OUR TERMS ARE STRICTLY CASH IN ADVANCE

NEW MEAT MARKET.

L. M. ROLAND, Proprietor.

Fresh and Salted Meats.

Highest Market Price Paid for Hides.

It's Time

Now then
If you are
Looking for
Bargins in
Dry Goods
Groceries
Hats, Caps,
Boots, Shoes
Clothing
Notions

Or in fact anything carried in a first-class general merchandise store, why you are cordially invited and we will accommodate you. Call and look over our large stock.

E. M. HOFF.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

I. O. O. F. ST. HILAIRE LODGE No. 147.—Meets at their hall every Thursday evening, eight o'clock. Visiting members are cordially invited to attend.

E. M. HOFF, N. G.

O. P. POST, Secretary.

M. W. A. CAMP 2050.—Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every second and fourth Tuesday of every month. Visiting neighbors are cordially invited to attend.

LEONARD HOLMES, V. C.

JAS. M. HALL, Clerk.

R. N. A.—WILD ROSE CAMP.—No. 834 Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every Friday evening. Visiting members of the order are cordially invited to attend.

MRS. W. A. ARTHUR, Oracle.

MISS T. HUGHES, Recorder.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.

E. J. Holmes	President
J. L. Johnson	Recorder
D. Patterson	Councilmen
J. C. Dahl	Councilmen
W. A. Sorsoleil	Councilmen
L. Holmes	Treasurer

DR. BLOMBURGH.
SCANDINAVIAN
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Calls attended day or night.
Teeth Extracted.
Office and residence opposite M. E. church. ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

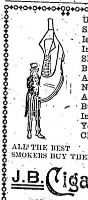
Auditor	Adam Zeh
Treasurer	O. T. Tandberg
Register of Deeds	Samuel Gibeau
Sheriff	Chas. Sampson
Attorney	Van R. Brown
Judge of Probate	J. T. Knight
Clerk of Court	Joe Perrault
Supt. of Schools	Frank Jeffers
Coroner	Joe Belaire
Court Commissioner	J. C. Mathews
Surveyor	P. O. Haugland
Commissioner 1st Dist.	J. Suter
Commissioner 2nd Dist.	W. L. C. Demann
Commissioner 3rd Dist.	O. J. Johnson
Commissioner 4th Dist.	Karl M. Hanson
Commissioner 5th Dist.	J. B. Herbert

HENRY FRANCIS, M. D., C. M.
Member College Physicians and Surgeons, Ontario, ...
Office and residence first door south of Oen's hardware store.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.

List of Town Clerks.

Names	Township	Postoffice
Olof Larson	Numedal	Viking
C. E. Purdy	North	Thief River Falls
John E. Peterson	Bray	Bray
N. K. Anderson	Sanders	St. Hilaire
F. T. Safre	Rocksbury	T. R. Falls
O. T. Romsos	Polk Centre	Wylie
P. A. Eckstrom	Black River	Wylie
A. S. Anderson	River Falls	St. Hilaire
Ole J. Johnson	Wyandotte
A. D. Berry	Louisville	Huot
Hdalge Baril	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
Chas. E. Asp	Emardville	Lost
Edward Havik	Equality	Grit
Moses Ducharme	Lake Pleasant	R. L. F.
Edonor Perusse	Terrebonne	Terrebonne
J. B. Herbert	Poplar River	Brooks
Louis Doucet	Lambert	Lambert
J. L. Johnson	St. Hilaire	St. Hilaire
Lars Backe	Thief River F.	T. R. F.
A. P. Toupin	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
H. D. Baaryson	Norden	T. R. Falls
Olof Tande	Garnes	Garnes

A. O. LETVIG,
TUBULAR WELL CONTRACTOR.
A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed.
Repairing a Specialty.
WYLIE. MINNESOTA.



UNCLE SAM
Is not
In the Shoe
Business,
And Neither
Am I,
But I can
Interest
You in
CIGARS.
ALL THE BEST
SMOKERS BUY THEM
J. B. Cigars.
ALL THE BEST
DEALERS SELL THEM.
J. B. ARMSTRONG,
Manufacturer.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA.

DAY F. STACY, C. E.
DEPUTY
County Surveyor.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.
Drainage and Farm Surveys a Specialty.

Market Report.—To-Day.

Wheat No. 1	54½	Oats	16
Wheat No. 2	51½	Barley	24
Wheat No. 3	48½	Flax	125
Eggs (per doz).	20	Butter (per lb)	20

LOCAL NEWS.

Fresh oysters at A. F. Lang's.

A cow for sale. Inquire W. Allen.

Flour and feed at Leonard Holmes elevator.

Oysters prepared in any style at A. F. Lang's.

The board of county commissioners are in session.

Ben Rosenberg was up from Crookston yesterday.

Write it 1900. Of course it seems a little odd to drop the 18.

A new stock of boys clothing just received at E. M. Hoff's.

Try a lunch, a meal or a weeks board at the Ideal Lunch Room.

C. G. Rapp made a business trip to Thief River Falls Saturday.

Judge Knight was up from the county seat the first of the week.

A business meeting of the band boys will be held Friday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Olson rejoice over the arrival of a daughter last Friday.

Patronize home industry by buying your wall paper at the New Drug store.

Oney Oidne and Adolph Hall spent an hour at the upper Falls last Saturday.

Mrs. Eli Belair of Red Lake Falls is here visiting with her sister Mrs. Geo. Olson.

J. B. Senate, formerly of this place, but now of Crookston, was here Saturday greeting friends.

If you want a 1900 calander call at this office or at K. O. Gigstad's real estate office and get one.

Several places kept open house Sunday night in order to watch the old year out and the new year in.

Mr. and Mrs. Chas. LaGesse and family of Red Lake Falls spent a few days with his father this week.

Rev. A. A. Myers of Thief River Falls will preach in the M. E. church Sunday at 11 a. m. and at 7:30 p. m.

The dance given at Hotel Markham Monday evening was well attended and an enjoyable evening was spent by all present.

Swan Johnson, the noted humorous character of Thief River Fall was here last Saturday and entertained several audiences.

Jake Rosenberg of Minneapolis was here yesterday looking after his business interests. He was accompanied by his oldest son.

Peter Anderson of Wyandotte returned Saturday from the Black Duck country where he has been since the first of November.

J. H. Johnson, formerly clerk at Rapp & Posts store, but now of Crookston is here to-day looking after his business interests.

J. E. Campbell of Crookston is the first one of the Knights of the Grip to make his appearance since the holidays He was here yesterday.

It is said that the best mice trap in existence is a quart jar partially filled with molasses, arranged so the mice can reach the top easily.

An old bachelor says when a woman goes gunning for a husband, she arms herself with a curling iron and a box of smokeless powder.—Ex.

Supt. Mereen of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company returned to day from his holiday visit of two weeks with his children and friends at Minneapolis.

Miss Nellie Hannay and Miss Mary Quandy returned yesterday from Red Lake Falls where they had been attending the L. O. T. M. New Years ball.

Charley Tedford, formerly of this place, and who still retains building interests here, is building a business block at Cass Lake 50x70, two stories high.

Our wood pile is getting low; now that the roads are good, will some of our farmer subscribers please bring us a load or two that they promised us last year?

Prof. J. B. O'Brien and wife returned yesterday from a ten days visit with Mrs. O'Brien's parents at St. Paul. The weather was exceptionally fine and they enjoyed their vacation immensely.

C. G. Rapp left yesterday for Chicago where he will remain a couple of weeks visiting with relatives whom he has not seen since the time of the World's fair. He will also make a trip to West Baden, Ind., and remain a week or so at that famous health resort.

If you have a friend visiting with you, if you are going away on a journey or if anything of local interest happens drop in and let us know. Various little news items escape our notice and people wonder why their doings are not chronicled. We are only too glad to get the news.

A. R. Mattes, formerly cashier of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company, but for the past year at Colorado Springs for the benefit of his health writes to a friend here that he is enjoying life immensely and has gained eighteen pounds since leaving here, all of which will be good news to his many friends.

C. E. Daggett, the popular roadmaster over this line of the Great Northern was married last Wednesday at Crookston to Miss Clara E. Mageau. Both of these young people are well and favorably known here. They are at present on their wedding tour in the east, but will be "at home" in Crookston after January 15th.

The Rosenberg's have been very busy the past few days packing up goods of the Greatwestern Clothing house prepartory to shipping to Crookston. Mike, who has managed the business here for the past three years will go to Minneapolis to spend a few months and then return to Crookston and go into partnership with his brother Ben.

The combined weight of the three publishers of the Warroad Plaindealer is 727 pounds. The senior member of the SPECTATOR worsted the heaviest man of the Plaindealer by two pounds and smoked a Havana at his expense a short time ago. As to the junior member will state he is just entering into the heavy-weight class with three 2's to his credit.

Ed. Peterson started in the New Year right by taking unto himself a wife in the person of Miss Inga Ness, eldest daughter of Mr. A. G. Ness, one of the wealthiest farmers in River Falls township. A great many were present at the wedding and all gave beautiful and costly presents to the newly married couple along with best wishes throughout married life.

"A young man came into our store yesterday suffering from a severe attack of cramp colic," writes B. F. Hess, miller and general merchant, Dickey's Mountain, Pa. "He had tried various home remedies without relief. As I had used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy I gave him a dose and it soon brought him out alright. I never saw a fellow so rejoiced." Sold by the Imperial Drug Store.

Hicks predicts much rough weather the first three months of this year. For this month a reactionary storm occurs about the 3rd to 5th inclusive. A regular storm period from the 7th to the 11th, central on the 9th. Another from the 15th to the 17th and again from the 19th to the 24th, this will be the greatest and wildest cold waves of the winter coming from the northwest. Also cold from the 27th to the end of month.

The Faribault Referendum, in discussion with a local dealer who defends trusts, shows that in Faribault, brass and copper articles have advanced 60 per cent, steel, 100 per cent; nails, 200 per cent; stoves, 30 per cent; piping, 120 per cent; coal, 33 per cent; oil, 20 per cent; gasolene, 20 per cent. "Have local wages" asked the Referendum, "advanced?" Not a cent. Have those of the trusts that raised those articles? Not a cent; but instead, over 100 different factories were closed, and 20,000 hands discharged on account of these trusts.

A farmer stepped into a printing office and said to the editor: "I'd like to take your paper, but I am too poor." "Go home," said the editor, "pick out a hen, call her mine, sell or save her eggs for me, and if she wants to set let her, and next fall bring me all the produce from that hen. I'll send the paper." When fall came he found he was paying the price of two papers. After that he found he was never too poor to take a paper. Besides, when he wanted to borrow his neighbor's paper, he was always reading it, so he had to wait until the news was old or take it secondhanded. There is nothing like taking one of your own and getting the news from first hands. Try it.—Ex.

—For cuts and sores there is nothing better than the Imperial Carbolic salve.

Miss Tessie Hughes, assistant postmistress left yesterday for Aaronprior, Canada, where she will spend three months visiting with a sister and other relatives whom she has not seen for twelve years. Miss Hughes is certainly deserving a vacation as she has been working steady behind the wicked for the past two years and there is no doubt but she will enjoy the trip. She has also been secretary of the Royal Neighbors of America for the past two terms and at the close of their lodge meeting last Friday evening the members turned the gathering into a surprise party and presented their worthy secretary with a valuable present, Mr. C. G. Rapp making the presenting speech. Games were indulged in and after a light repast was served, visiting and bidding her good-bye and a good time on her three months tour ended the evenings doings.

—It is better than ready money because it cures rheumatism, constipation sick headache, indigestion. Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

A Quiet Wedding.

One of the prettiest home weddings that ever occurred in Crookston was celebrated at 4:30 this afternoon at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. L. Fontaine, the occasion being the marriage of their second daughter Miss Blanche Irene Fontaine to Mr. William Clinton Stranahan. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Fr. Grandchamp. The marriage was a quiet one, only the most intimate friends of the family being present, and the bride was without attendants. The ceremony was performed in the spacious parlors of the handsome home, and tables were spread in the sitting and dining rooms for a wedding supper. The decorations were in red and white, smilax being festooned about the room, the flowers which were profusely scattered about being roses and carnations.

The happy couple will leave at 7:15 tonight for Fargo, where they will, for a day or two, be the guests of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Stranahan. They will visit Duluth and the Twin Cities later, and their future home will be made in Eau Claire, Wisconsin. Mr. and Mrs. W. Stranahan begin their wedded life with bright prospects, and their many friends wish them a happy future.—Crookston Times Dec. 28.

The first people who will live in the twentieth century, according to the computation of a writer in the January Ladies' Home Journal, are the inhabitants of a group of mid-Pacific islands. To women who contemplate visiting the Paris Exposition next year "Edith and I in Paris," in the same magazine, will prove helpful and interesting. "The Boer Girl of South Africa," "The Mother of the Stars," summarizing Maria Mitchell's achievements and "The Home-Coming of the Nakannies" are also features of notable interest in the January Journal. Franklin Fyles writes on "The Rehearsal of a Play," and the author of "Mr. Dooley" gives a convulsively funny account of Molly Donahue's musicale. Albert W. Smith contributes more of his exquisite nonsense verses. Edward Bok writes in protest against "A National Crime at the Feet of American Parents," and in contrast is shown "The New Idea in Teaching Children." Ian Maclaren's discourse on "The Minister and the Organ," and the last of the letters that passed between Gail Hamilton and Whittier brings the correspondence almost to the close of the poet's life. A score or more articles of special value to women touch every phase of home-making. By the Curtis Publishing Company, Philadelphia. One dollar a year; ten cents a copy.

Lyddite Shell—Dum Dum Bullets.

"Speaking of the lyddite shells with which the British (in spite of General Joubert's protest) are doing such execution on the Boers around Ladysmith, here are some figures from Bloch's horribly fascinating book on war: 'A bomb weighing about 70 pounds thirty years ago would have burst into 42 fragments. To-day when it is charged with peroxilene, it breaks up into 1200 pieces, each of which is hurled with much greater velocity than the larger lumps which were scattered by a gunpowder explosion."—Boston Transcript.

Geo. Angell in "Our Dumb Animals" speaking of Dum-Dum bullets says: "A single one of which makes a hole in an Adriondack deer sufficiently large for the hunter to put his both hands in."

—Go to the New Drug Store for your Stationery and School supplies.

We Want Correspondents.

We desire a correspondent in every school district in the county, one who will give the local news of his or her locality in a fair and impartial manner. To any one who will undertake the matter the SPECTATOR will furnish the necessary stationery and postage and will send the paper free during the time the person acts in that capacity. Only one correspondent desired in each district. It is an advantage to any community to be represented in the columns of the local paper. Talk it up in your locality and if you can't act yourself suggest the matter to some one who can. Write the SPECTATOR at once.

Wall paper and calcimine at the New Drug store.

Regulate Your Watch.

At Johnson's barber shop and if it don't keep time, leave it, and we will repair it and warrant it to keep time for one year. New watches, clocks chains and jewelry for sale at the lowest prices. I will be at Johnson's barber shop the 10th 11th and 12th of every month. All work left at the shop has my personal attention. When you come to Red Lake Falls make the Palace Jewely Store your headquarters.

I am yours truly

PROF. J. Q. ADAMS,

Watchmaker and Optician.

—To cure a cough or cold in one day take the Imperial Cough Syrup.

I want to let the people who suffer from rheumatism and sciatica know that Chamberlain's Pain Balm relieved me after a number of other medicines and a doctor had failed. It is the best liniment I have ever known of.—J. A. Dodgen, Alpharetta, Ga. Thousands have been cured of rheumatism by this remedy. One application relieves the pain. For sale by the Imperial Drug Store.

—Dr. Thomas is an up-to-date in all the different branches in his profession. Remember the dates, Jan. 29th and 30th.

—If you are troubled with rheumatism take the Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure. It will positively cure all diseases arising from impure blood, and is sold under an absolute guarantee to benefit or money refunded. Call for free sample at the New Drug Store.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Regular Correspondent

Secretary Gage showed his contempt for public opinion when he ordered something like a million dollars a day—the receipts of the government for internal revenue taxes—deposited in a favored New York bank, pending distribution among other national banks, but he may find himself in hot water on account of that order, as a Senator is quoted as having said of the order: "The only satisfaction Secretary Gage vouchsafes to the country is that 'it is a confidential arrangement between the Treasury and the bank.' That is a queer way to talk about the government's transactions, and I wouldn't be surprised if an effort should be made in the Senate to ask some sharp question about it. I remember that a big muss was kicked up during Mr. Cleveland's administration because a much smaller sum of government money was deposited in widely scattered banks. In Jackson's time the same question was raised and the country sat down hard on the scheme."

Senator Cockrell, the leading democratic member of the Senate Committee on Military Affairs, is strongly opposed to the republican—imperialistic, in reality—plan for a large standing army, and intends to fight it every time it shows its head. He said on the subject: "The army establishment is provided for until July 1, 1901 and there is no necessity for legislation at this session on the subject. This gives us a year and a half to consider the matter and decide what had best be done. I am in favor of slightly increasing the artillery arm of the service, to take care of our sea coast fortifications, but I do not think there is now, or will be in the near future, any occasion for a permanent increase in the number of infantry or cavalry regiments above that which has been provided for by law for a number of years." The republicans are too shrewd to make any move towards leagislation for a large standing army until after the Presidential election, but there isn't the slightest doubt that they intend doing so at next winter's session of Congress.

Rev. Dr. Forbes, will preach in the M. E. church on Saturday Feb. 3rd at 8 p. m., also on Sunday Feb. 4th at 11 a. m. After the morning service the sacrament of the Lord's supper will be administered. All are welcome.

About Wheat.

The latest estimate of the wheat crop of the United States for 1899, by the agricultural department, is 547,300,000 bushels, a small fraction over 12 bushel to the acre. This estimate is about 40,000,000 bushels greater than earlier ones, and the increase is said by other good authorities to be unwarranted, though it had believers enough to weaken the market. But even this estimate makes the crop nearly 130,000,000 bushels less than last year, while the average price that year was higher than this, the price at this writing being almost exactly that of a year ago. The average value of exported wheat for ten months of the present year was about 75 cents a bushel, and for the same portion of the previous year the value was 93 cents. There has been a falling off of exports this year of about 10,000,000 bushels, but relatively to production the exports are very much larger this year than last. At all events, a decrease from 112 to 93 million bushels is too small to indicate any considerable decrease in the demand for our wheat by Europe during the current crop year, and it is believed by many that Europe will require as much this year as last, and if so it is not clear where it is coming from. But in spite of this there is nothing in sight now indicating an improvement in price.—Farm, Stock and Home.

An elegant line of Rockers just received at Holmes Furniture Co. Come early while the selection is good.

Dentist.

—Dr. J. H. Thomas, the Crookston dentist will be at Hotel Markham, St. Hilaire, Jan. 29th and 30th prepared to do all kinds of up to date dental work in all branches. All work warranted. Remember the dates 29th and 30th.

An opportunity to enjoy a good program of singing, music and declamations besides refreshments will be given you Friday evening at the United Norwegian church on Water street.

Notice for Bids.

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the Board of county commissioners of Red Lake county Minn., for publishing the official proceedings, financial statement and all other notices required by law to be published in a legal newspaper. Bids to be presented to the county Auditor on or before 3 o'clock p. m., January 5th 1900. All bids to be accompanied by a good and sufficient bond in the sum of $1000. The board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

ADAM ZEH,
County Auditor.

Notice for Bids.

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county Minn, for publishing the delinquent tax list for the year 1898. Bids to be presented to the county auditor on or before 3 o'clock p. m., January 5th 1900. A good and sufficient bond in the sum of $1000 to accompany all bids. The board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

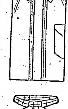
ADAM ZEH,
County Auditor.

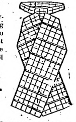
Notice for Bids.

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received by the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county Minn., for all job printing and stationery for the year 1900. Bids to be delivered to the county Auditor on or before 3 o'clock p. m. January 5th 1900. A good and sufficient bond in the sum of $500 to accompany all bids. The board reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

ADAM ZEH,
County Auditor.

The SPECTATOR would like to have a correspondent from the towns of Black River, Sanders, Bray, Rocksbury, River Falls and Wyandotte. Stationery and stamps furnished at this office. Don't be backward in coming forward.





We Handle Everything.

Start the Day Right

And everything will go smoothly. The proper way to start the day is by coming around to our store and ordering a supply of groceries for the day, such things as you may need. It will take you but a few minutes, and we feel sure you will not regret it.

Our Groceries

Are always fresh, and then the prices are as near right as we know how to make them. If you have not been in the habit of trading with us, drop in and see us anyway; you might get into the habit.

Hardware

We carry everything in the hardware line from cooking stoves down to tacks—all you have to do is to ask for what you want. If you want anything in the tin or copper line done drop into our tin shop and your wants will be attended to.

Yours very truly,

RAPP & POST
St. Hilaire, Minnesota.

M. A. HALL
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS,
GROCERIES,
NOTIONS,
GENTS FURNISHING GOODS,
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
CONFECTIONERY

GO TO THE New Hardware Store for anything you need in the line of Hardware, Paints, Oils, Stoves, Harness
AND PLOWS.
Also agent for Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines. Call and get prices.
A. H. WEAGANT.

LEONARD HOLMES,
—DEALER IN—
Agricultural Implements..
WHEAT, FLAX OATS AND BARLEY.
Flour and Feed always on Hand.

Lumber! Lumber!
OF ALL KINDS.
We have a large and well assorted stock of Dry Lumber and are prepared to fill all orders on short notice. We also carry a complete assortment
—of—
Sash, Doors, Paper
AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL
Which we buy in large quantities and are thereby enabled to sell at lowest market prices.
ST. HILAIRE LUMBER CO.

IF YOU INTEND TO Buy
Furniture
Come and look our assortment over. We carry everything in the Furniture line including picture frames and musical instruments. Prices reasonable.
Holmes Furniture Co.

The Arnewood Mystery

BY MAURICE H. HERVEY.

Author of "Dead Man's Court," "Somerville's Crime," "Dartmoor," "Maravin's Money," etc., etc.

CHAPTER VI. (Continued.)

Mr. Traill unlocked a drawer, and, after a brief search, produced the photographs of the dead man which he had previously sent me. Apparently, they sufficed to remove whatever doubts he had at first entertained, and he gave a very audible sigh of relief as he handed me all three photographs. With just a brief look, I passed them on to Mr. O'Flynn.

"This gentleman," I explained, "represents the solicitors of the deceased—"

"Aye! deceased he is, sure enough!" broke in the old clerk. "If there's any truth in a camera! And murdered, too, didn't you tell me? Lord be good to us all! But London's an awful wicked place!"

"May I ask the name of your late client?" queried the inspector, ignoring this reflection upon the depravity of the metropolis.

"Luke Arnewood of Arnewood Hall, in the County Kildare," replied Mr. O'Flynn.

"That tallies exactly with the initials tattooed on the left arm," remarked the detective, in a sort of "aside" to me. "In fact, I suppose we may almost take it for granted that the dead man's identity has been established?"

"Yes," I assented, "beyond all doubt, I think. The Chapter of Accidents has supplied the clue, after all, you see. And, what is more, I can give you some particulars of this Luke Arnewood's antecedents and movements, which should help you materially towards a satisfactory solution of the whole case."

Inspector Traill's eyes sparkled. "You're a good fellow, Weston," he said, warmly, "and you have done me a turn in this business I shall never forget. Just give me the main outlines now, and let me come down upon you for the details later on. By the way, does anyone else know of your discovery?"

"Only Mr. O'Flynn," I told him, lowering my voice, "and I expect he's dying to rush off to a telegraph office to notify his principals in Dublin."

"Very likely," he whispered back; "but I can't afford to let him do so until I've made out my own report first. Mr. O'Flynn," he added, in his natural voice, "I must ask you, in the interests of justice, to give very careful attention to a statement which Mr. Weston is about to make and which may need your corroboration."

"Faith, I'll corroborate anything in rayson," was the reply. "If ye'll just wait till I let Mr. O'Brien know I'm after finding Mr. Luke."

Mr. Traill gave me a significant look. This queer old Irishman was quite prepared to claim the discovery as his own, and thereby reduce the credit due to Scotland Yard to a minimum.

"Hold hard a bit there," he said, rather sharply. "In the first place, despite the resemblance of the portraits, the identity cannot be regarded as established without further proof. And, secondly, I don't exactly see where your claim to having found Mr. Luke (as you put it) comes in at all. The credit of that lies with Mr. Weston, I take it."

"And, sure, isn't he employed by O'Brien & Grudgery, in this business, the same as meself?" retorted the old man, testily. "And, for the matter of that, didn't we find it out between us? Where would you both be now but for the picture I showed him of Mr. Luke, taken in Cooktown? Answer me that, plase!"

Inspector Traill looked somewhat nonplussed at this home-thrust, as, indeed, he very well might be. What the old clerk said was perfectly true. But for this photograph, the identity of the murdered man would still have remained a mystery. But the detective possessed one great quality—absolute self-command—in a very high degree; and it was by no means his wish to offend the astute Irishman.

"Come, come, Mr. O'Flynn," he said, suavely, "you really must not take what I said in so invidious a light. I only ask you to listen to Mr. Weston's statement, and to add thereto any remarks you may deem relevant. After that you may send what messages you please to Dublin."

Mr O'Flynn acquiesced, a little sulkily, as though suspecting some plan to outwit him. However, he followed my remarks with great attention, and occasionally interjected hints very much to the point. Indeed, by the time I had concluded, he had risen considerably in my opinion as a very wily old fox; and I could see that Mr. Traill treated his suggestions as of the utmost value.

"Thank you, very much, gentlemen," he remarked, as he pinned together the slips of his report. "I think I can assure you that, in this case, any reasonable claim you may choose to send in for your time and trouble in coming here will be allowed. Meanwhile, you must let me offer you a whisky and soda. I shall be back in two minutes."

The two minutes had lengthened to five before a constable orderly made his appearance with the promised refreshments, and a request from Inspector Traill that we would help ourselves pending his speedy return. O'Flynn's impatience to be off had, meanwhile, reached an acute stage, and it was only by dint of a judicious admixture of deference and firmness that the tactful constable succeeded in detaining him until his superior officer reappeared.

"Sorry to have kept you waiting a little longer than I anticipated!" exclaimed the inspector, cheerily.

"Begorra, you're not half so sorry as I am!" retorted Mr. O'Flynn, seizing his hat. "It's in the Dublin 'Evening Post' my people will be afther reading about the death of Mr. Luke, instead of in a telegram from me! And a nice omadhaun I'll look—bad cess to it all!"

"You have ample time to get ahead of the press," rejoined Traill, coolly. "A good quarter of an hour, I should say, at least."

"A quarter of an hour!" roared the indignant Irishman, making a bolt for the door. "That's what comes of giving information to the police!" And, without further parley, he fled to the nearest telegraph office.

"Clever old party, your Irish friend," remarked Traill, laughing; "and I fancy he'll be of use to us yet, before we get at the bottom of this queer case. But it was rather confiding of him to expect me to let him use the wires before I had my irons in the fire. By the way, I suppose that, having ascertained the fate of the missing heir, your interest in the affair practically ends, eh?"

"Why, yes," I assented, somewhat reluctantly. "Practically, I suppose it does, so far as Hawkins & Co. are concerned; but, personally, I am as keen as ever to solve the mystery of poor Tom Webb's disappearance, and that would seem to be bound up in the running to earth of the man who strangled Luke Arnewood."

"That is so," said Traill, "unless appearances lie even worse than usual. But, in the name of common sense, my dear fellow, don't buoy yourself up with any hope of ever seeing Webb alive. It is simply impossible that he should evade capture all this time, were he still above ground."

"I'm afraid you're right," I replied, despondently. "But it's some comfort to know that the case is still in your hands, and that you seem more hopeful of worrying through now than I have ever seen you before."

"Yes, thanks to the happy thought which prompted you to bring Mr. O'Flynn here," he rejoined, briskly. "And now, to drop the business for a moment, may I ask you a very personal question?"

"Certainly, any question you choose."

"Have you any special reason (apart, of course, from ordinary friendship) for your evident anxiety to ascertain Webb's fate?"

"Yes," I replied, "I have. I was practically engaged to his sister before this wretched affair—"

"I understand," he said, interrupting me, gently. "Woman-like she blames you for not saving him against himself, as the phrase goes. Well, between ourselves, it is pretty well recognized here that this is one of the most awkward cases we have had to deal with for some years past. The idea in 'the Yard' is that it was a 'one-man job,' and I needn't tell you, who are almost one of us, that it's long odds against our nailing a clever scoundrel who works alone, or who—if he has a confederate—puts the latter out of the way before he has time to round on him."

"I won't have it even suggested that poor Tom Webb was a confederate in this affair!" I rejoined, hotly.

"Well, call him a dupe, if you like," said Traill. "It is clear that he was mixed up in the business, somehow or other, and I have not the faintest doubt that his knowledge of the crime cost him his life. However, let that pass for the present. The full truth can only come out when we have the actual murderer by the heels. Thanks to you, I have now a real clue to work upon, and—I think I see my way."

These last words were spoken in a singularly calm, convincing way. I knew that Tom Traill, although a man well under thirty, and but recently promoted as inspector, was regarded as one of the smartest men in the department; and his quiet confidence carried conviction with it that I would yet stand justified in the eyes of Madge Webb. True, I would rather have stood indebted to my own personal efforts than to his; but I was not my own master, and I could not well ask for leave on private affairs at a time when Mr. Hawkins, as yet barely convalescent, could so ill spare me. And this I explained to sympathizing Inspector Traill.

"I understand perfectly," was his comment; "and I think it very hard lines that, having found the scent, you should be debarred from joining in the hunt; but, at all events, you can have a look-in, now and then. For instance, what's the earliest you can get away from the office this afternoon?"

"Five, or a quarter to," I answered, brightening up.

"That will do, all right," he rejoined. "I'll call for you at five sharp. Dress a bit roughly, and don't bring any valuables or much money."

"May I ask where you are going to? Soho?"

"No," he replied. "Try again."

"Aboard the Wairoa, then?" then, I suggested.

"Quite right," he assented, approvingly. "The Wairoa it is. She's now berthed in the Southwest India docks; and one of my men, who is used to seafaring folk, has her under observation. But, confound it all! That Irishman has bolted with the photographs!"

"No, he hasn't," I put in, quietly. "They're in my pocket."

"Thank goodness!" he remarked, with a sigh of relief. "We shall probably want them. So bring them along. Five o'clock, mind, sharp."

I hurried back to Exeter street, to insure that my work for the day would be finished by the time specified, dispatched a messenger to my rooms for a rough boating suit, and awaited the inspector's arrival with some impatience.

CHAPTER VII.

At the Docks.

Punctually, almost to a minute, Inspector Traill called for me, and, although he was not disguised (in the sense of using false hair or paint), I would never have recognized him in the gamekeeper-like individual before me, had I not been expecting him.

"No occasion to make up for a job like the one we have in hand," he remarked, glancing around him critically in search of a well-horsed hansom. "The chaps I want to interview, are not of the sort likely to know me by sight, and it doesn't much matter even if I am spotted by an outsider."

A wiry-looking roan met his approval, but our appearance did not seem to impress the driver very favorably; and, indeed, I did not much wonder thereat when I saw him taking stock of the weather-beaten old reefing jacket and cap I had donned for that occasion. A detective-inspector is not, however, likely to pay much heed to a cabby's whims, and the rapid exchange of a few sharp retorts resulted in our being bowled along eastward at as fast a pace as the crowded traffic would admit. As though by common instinct, we lit our pipes, turned up the collars of our coats and sank back in our respective corners, trying to husband what little warmth there was in us. Two average foreigners, similarly placed, would at once have had the window lowered; but we were far too English, or too hardy, or too mule-headed to abandon our pipes; and so we sped along behind the wiry roan, smoking and rarely exchanging a word. It is a long drive from the Strand to the Southwest India Docks, and a bitterly cold one on a raw evening in midwinter. Yet we only called a halt once on the way; and then (as we assured each other) only to restore animation to our half-frozen Jehu. We, moreover, ascertained (the driver being somewhat hazy as to the topography of the district) that the rendezvous given by Mr. Traill's emissary, and known as the "White Bear," was some distance nearer than the Southwest India Docks, though largely patronized by the crews of vessels berthed there. To the "White Bear" we accordingly proceeded, giving the cabby five shillings on account, with leave of absence for at least an hour, and we found our way into a comfortable, fair-sized bar parlor, reserved (as we were given to understand) for the better-paying class of customers. We were somewhat before our time, and the detective had not yet arrived; so we were reduced to ordering refreshments and awaiting the course of events.

The bar parlor seemed but poorly patronized in comparison with the more public parts of the establishment, for we had it to ourselves until Bradshaw (Traill's man) made his appearance with two companions. All three were, of course, strangers to me; but I easily distinguished the detective from the others, one of whom I set down as a ship's steward, while the appearance of the other denoted him to be a low-grade engineer. Bradshaw was got up in a baggy serge suit, of longshore cut, and might have been almost anything, in a semi-nautical way, from a stevedore to a ship's husband.

Now, Traill's original plan had been that Bradshaw should, in affected surprise and delight, recognize him as an old friend, unseen for years; and, under cover of this carefully-acted preamble, introduce him to his companions. To my surprise, therefore, as also, doubtless, that of his subordinate, the inspector averted his face, produced his handkerchief, and abandoned himself to the throes of a violent sneezing fit. When he had sufficiently recovered to face the company, a very ugly, straggling goatee beard almost covered his chin, and so entirely altered his appearance as to render recognition almost an impossibility. Bradshaw either divined that this move indicated a sudden change of plan, or else he received some private signal to the same effect, for he took no notice of his chief and filled in his change of cue by standing treat to his friends, with whom he presently entered into what seemed to be a rather animated conversation. Seated as we were, however, in a remote corner, originally selected by Traill for his own reasons, we could not hear a word of what was said. This, of course, cut both ways. We could converse in a low tone without risk of being overheard.

"I know the small, pasty-faced man by sight," whispered the inspector. "Saw him paraded once at Bow Street, and I think he got three years afterwards for thieving. I never forget a face, and it's just on the cards he may know me. So I altered my first plan and grew a beard. It don't suit me much, does it?"

"No," I said, smiling at his almost grotesque appearance, "it certainly does not. But it hides your identity very effectively, and that's the main point. What's your new programme? To chip in with our friends over there?"

"I think I'll try a leaf out of your book," he replied, "and trust to the Chapter of Accidents."

Events, however, did not seem to shape themselves so as to afford him any reasonable pretext for intruding upon the others until, weary of waiting, he had recourse to a bold manneuvre which succeeded to perfection. Seizing our empty glasses, he moved toward a small sliding panel, which opened upon the bar, with the evident intention of having them replenished. But, in passing behind Bradshaw's chair he tripped forward and, in a well feigned effort to save himself, made a clean sweep of the drinks which the three men were discussing. Bradshaw rose to the occasion, and an interchange of somewhat forcible language ensued. Traill, of course, protested that it was a pure accident, and peace was eventually restored upon the basis of compensation for the damage done. This the wily inspector effected with a cheerful liberality delightful to behold. No mere threepenn'orths of gin hot, such as he had upset. Nothing less than a bottle of the best Hollands would satisfy him.

"With your permission, gentlemen," he added, suavely, "I'll join you in a glass, just to show there's no ill-will, and I daresay you'll allow my friend to chip in, also?"

To this proposal Bradshaw assented, readily enough, and his companions followed suit, a little sulkily. After all, it is not easy to refuse a man a couple of drinks from a bottle of his own providing; and this was precisely what Traill had counted upon. Having thus adroitly broken the ice, he was not likely to allow it to freeze again; and so he exerted himself to his utmost to make himself agreeable, and pressed the Hollands upon his new acquaintances with a great show of cordiality.

"You gentlemen are connected with the sea?" he suggested, half-inquiringly. "Everybody in this neighborhood seems to be, and I've no doubt it's a good calling enough for those who like it. Not for me, though! Give me the dry land and my quiet little keeper's cottage to live in. What, do you suppose, now, brings me down here amongst this shipping?"

"Going abroad, maybe?" hazarded Bradshaw.

"God forbid!" ejaculated the pseudo keeper, fervently. "No; I am trying to get upon the track of my young master, who who left New Zealand for London more than two months ago and who hasn't turned up yet, though his ship reached port safe enough. They tell me she's in one of those big docks here, but that I'm too late this evening to go aboard of her."

"What's her name?" asked Bradshaw, with an assumed carelessness which, judging from their looks of eager interest, the other two were far from sharing.

"The Wairoa," answered Traill, after consulting his pocketbook.

"Well, I'll be hanged if you haven't come across a rare bit of luck!" exclaimed Bradshaw, affecting not to notice the warning glances and gestures of his companions. "My two friends here belong to that very ship; Mr. Spratt, bath-room steward, and Mr. Blogg, fifth engineer. They ought to know the gentleman you're looking for, if he was on board."

"Yes, if he travelled in the saloon," assented the pasty-faced steward, sulkily. "I've nothing to do with the second-class or steerage."

"As for me," added Mr. Blogg, "I have no truck with the passengers at all."

"Well, being a gentleman of means," explained the inspector, tranquilly, "he most probably travelled first-class. And his name would be Arnewood; though I believe he sometimes called himself Arnott, for some reason or other. Know him?"

"A Mr. Arnewood came back with us last trip, right enough," said Spratt, after taking thought. "But he knocked off having baths after we entered the Channel, and I saw nothing of him at the end of the voyage. He must have landed, though, either at Gravesend or here, like the other passengers. The chief steward would probably know."

"Quite so," assented Traill. "I'll inquire on board. By the way, did you (as you were bathing-room steward) ever notice any tattoo marks upon the gentleman's arm or chest?"

"Yes; in blue and red ink. One of the quartermasters pricked the designs in for him during the voyage, and told me he got two pounds for the job."

"Just to settle the question of identity," remarked Traill, apologetically, as he produced the Cooktown photograph. "Is this the Mr. Arnewood you knew on board?"

"Yes," was the prompt reply: "That's him, right enough. I daresay you've seen the gent, too, Joe."

"Why, yes, I seem to know the face," assented Mr. Blogg, doubtfully. "But I wouldn't swear to it. I don't see nowt to worry about, nohow. Gents often goes off on a bit of a spree, after a long voyage, and then turns up all right when they've had their fling."

"I suppose they do," said Inspector Traill, drily. "But I've heard of travelers falling into bad hands and coming to grief. However, I'm real grateful to you both for your information; and I'm only sorry that I can't spend the rest of the evening in your pleasant company. Come, Ned, we must be off, old chap."

I being the person addressed as Ned, Bradshaw understood plainly enough that he was to remain and keep the men under observation until further orders. We accordingly left the three to finish the Hollands at their leisure.

I scarcely need be told that a visit to the Wairoa was imperative before we could think of turning our faces westward. A short drive brought us to the dock gates, and even Inspector Traill found it no easy matter to procure admission without an official pass. However, we got through, and presently found ourselves alongside the Wairoa. More delay and explanations before we were allowed on board; but, once there, our efforts were rewarded, forasmuch as the chief steward, a Mr. Gray, was, luckily, in his cabin. Upon learning the object of our visit, he proved to be most courteous and obliging; and, from him we ascertained the following facts:

1. Mr. Luke Arnewood (undoubtedly the original of the Cooktown portrait) had voyaged by the Wairoa, and had quitted the vessel in the dock, early upon the morning of Nov. 19th. His luggage had been sent ashore in the ordinary way. But what had become of him, or his effects, after leaving the ship, he (Mr. Gray) could not say. It should, however, be a matter of no great difficulty to find out, and he undertook to make every possible inquiry on board. The police, he suggested, could similarly inquire among the porters and cabmen ashore.

2. Mr. Arnewood was a man of taciturn, almost sulky temperament, and shunndd all intercourse with his fellow passengers. He was wont, at times, to talk with members of the crew, and was liberal with tips for any service rendered him.

3. It was a fact that he had been tattooed on board by a quartermaster named Payne, then absent on leave.

These items practically exhausted all that Mr. Gray had to tell us; and, thanking him for his good offices, we rejoined our hansom, feeling well pleased with our evening's work. Our driver, too, was happy with an additional half-sovereign meted out to him in Fleet street. Traill had removed the hideous goatee, and we proceeded to treat ourselves to an excellent supper with the appetites of men who had fairly earned it.

(To Be Continued.)

Mistaken in the Case.

Some time ago one of Marshall's most charming young ladies slipped and fell on the stepping stones in front of her father's house and sprained her knee. It grew so bad that she thought it necessary to call in a physician. She had formed a dislike to the family doctor, so her father suggested several others, and finally it was decided to call the spruce young man with a homeopathic case that passed by the house every day.

They kept a sharp lookout, and when he came along called him in. The young lady modestly raised her skirts and showed the disabled member. The little man looked at it and said:

"That certainly is quite serious."

"Well," said she, "what shall I do?"

"If I were you," he whispered, "I would send for a prysician; I am a piano tuner."—Howard County (Mo.) Echo.

A Bit Mixed.

The play was "The Wreck of the Dardanelles; or, The City of a Lost Sole," and rehearsal had been hurried. But all went well until the storm scene. Then, as the cheap thunder rolled from the flies and the wind began to whistle, the skipper found he had forgot his lines.

"The storm is upon us!" he shouted in tragic accents. "Haul down the—haul down the—the—(in desperation) the bowsprit! Square the anchor! Reef the painter! Man the scuppers! Hurry up, you lazy lubbers! What are you grinning at?"—Answers.

His Personal Opinion.

"Henrietta," said Mr. Meekton, "I am surprised at that congressman from Utah."

"The one against whom the others are protesting?"

"Yes. It does seem to me that when a man has married as often as he has he ought to have learned to step down and be quiet when he is told to."—Washington Star.

Different Ways of Putting It.

Mr. Twobagger—I slugged the golf ball real hard, and yet I had six strikes called on me before I reached first."

Miss Gridiron—You evidently imagine you are playing base ball, Mr. Twobagger. You mean that you made six successive gains before scoring a touchdown at the first goal.

Overheard in a Restaurant.

(Chair to Table)—See his nibs reading the paper over there?

(Table)—Yes.

(Chair)—He's not up to date.

(Table)—Why not?

(Chair)—Because he's behind the Times.

A Purpose Gone Awry.

Mrs. Good—Whatever possessed Deacon Richman to have his wife's body cremated?

Mr. Good—She had requested that her diamonds be entombed with her, and he thought they'd be more available in an urn than in a cemetery.—Jewelers' Weekly.

Light.

Bridget—But you can't sleep there, mum. Miss Alice said no one should occupy her bed while she's gone away, because it isn't very strong.

Alice's Cousin—Oh, well, I can, because I'm a light sleeper.—Harlem Life.

FOR WOMEN AND HOME

ITEMS OF INTEREST FOR MAIDS AND MATRONS.

A Smart Combination—Evening Gown—Business Girls, Not in the World of Finance, but the World of Home—Our Cooking Schools.

A Simple Word.

It may be glorious to write
  Thoughts that shall glad the two or three
High souls, like those far stars that come in sight
  Once in a century;

But better far it is to speak
  One simple word, which now and then
Shall waken their free nature in the weak
  And friendless sons of men;

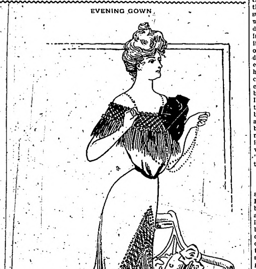
To write some earnest verse or line,
  Which, seeking not the praise of art,
Shall make clear faith and manhood shine
  In the untutored heart.

He who doth this, in verse or prose,
  May be forgotten in his day,
But surely shall be crowned at last with those
  Who live and speak for aye.
—James Russell Lowell.

Business Girls.

I do not mean a girl who has gone into some trade or profession, for the most domestic "home bird" of my girl readers may be one. Indeed, if she helps to carry out her daily duties successfully she must do her utmost to become a "business girl" in my sense of the word. And when, in course of time, she passes to a home of her own, she will be at no loss in taking up her position as housekeeper and mistress. She will win the respect of those in her employ by showing them that she understands how she should be served, and that, while comort is absolutely required, no extravagance will be allowed. She will cause her husband's love for her to increase by showing him how truly his interest is hers by bringing into play her knowledge of "how to spend and how to save." To make home uncomfortable by mean, unnecessary savings is no real economy, but to plan with loving thought how to make every dollar yield its true value is housekeeping in its best sense; for such a "business girl" will make a small income go further and give more real happiness and comfort than would one of double and treble the amount in inexperienced hands. But to make my girl reader a complete business one of the type which I write, she must also learn how to conduct her charities. Giving indiscriminately, without inquiry or thought, is often more productive of evil than good, and she must be as wise over the spending of the portion allotted "to help others," and give as thorough consideration to it as she does to what she puts apart for her personal concerns.

EVENING GOWN



Of yellow satin; very narrow strips of the satin interlaced over white satin, on bodice and skirt; white silk fringe trimmings, large bow of black velvet on shoulder.

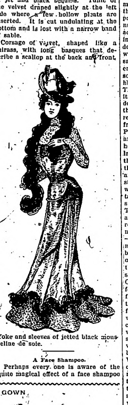
Woman's Sunday.

From Monday morning till Saturday midday the majority of husbands tell you they are hard at work. They rise at 6, 7, or 8, and, having eaten breakfast, get to business. At midday comes an hour for dinner and rest. Then work fills up the time till 5, 6, or 7. The evening they claim as their lawful rest after a hard day's bread-winning. When two of these hard-worked men meet they almost invariably, sooner or later, sneer or joke about the lazy lives women lead. Listen! If the head of a house rises at 6, his wife must rise at 5 in order to have his breakfast ready on a clean table in a cleanly swept room. The husband leaves for business, and his wife settles down to the necessarily dull routine of housework. At the midday meal she most probably has to attend to the wants of two or three children. In the afternoon she must call on her neighbors in order to keep up friendships, so that her husband may have people to talk to when he wants variety in the evening. She also has to do the necessary shopping. At about 5 or half-past the day's rest begins. First, the evening meal, then the children to be put to bed, then she must try to be lively and amuse her husband till such time as he chooses to go to bed. As to a wife's Sunday, every one who has ever been a child knows what that means.

A Smart Combination.

Visiting gown of drab velvet. Underskirt of black gauze embroidered in jet and black sequins. Tunic of the velvet draped slightly at the left side where a few hollow pleats are inserted. It is cut undulating at the bottom and is lost with a narrow band of sable.

Corsage of velvet, shaped like a cuirass, with long basques that describe a scallop at the back and front.



Yoke and sleeves of jetted black mousseline de sole.

A Face Shampoo.

Perhaps every one is aware of the quite magical effect of a face shampoo when tired out. Its refreshing powers are so great that the little trouble involved is not worth considering. Wet a sponge in soft, hot water. Put on it a little good soap and a few drops of glycerine. Lather the face thoroughly with the rinse, and rub the skin with almond meal till it is quite dry. Wash the meal off with fresh hot water, then spray or sponge the face with cold water till the flesh feels nice and firm. This closes the pores. Dry gently with a soft towel and powder lightly with pure Fuller's earth.

OUR COOKING SCHOOL.

Salmi of Duck.

Cut the flesh of a roast duck into pieces no larger than a half dollar and keep them hot. Put the scraps and trimmings in a sauce pan with half a pint of claret, two shallots, a bay leaf, a spring thyme, a pinch of red pepper, and a pint of stock. Reduce this over a quick fire and strain, add two ounces of butter, half a pint of shrimps or mushrooms and the juice of half a lemon. Mix well, but do not boil. Dish the duck on slices of fried or toasted bread, pour the sauce over it and garnish with parsley.

Chocolate Pudding.

Take a quart of milk, mix a little of it with three tablespoonfuls of cornstarch and the same quantity of grated chocolate. Blend to a smooth paste, and stir it briskly into the remainder of the milk while it is boiling briskly. Cook for three minutes, remove and add a teaspoonful of vanila and the beaten yolks of three eggs. Pour the mixture into a buttered pie dish and bake from twenty to thirty minutes. Whisk the whites of the eggs to a stiff froth, stir into them a tablespoonful of powdered sugar, and pile it carelessly on the pudding and place it in a warm (not hot) oven for five minutes to set. Serve hot.

Grown people tire of their toys just like children do.

DRESSING PARISIAN DOGS.

One Hardly Knows Whether to Feel Pity or Disgust More.

There seem to be some 5,000 or 6,000 persons in Paris who are determined to make the canine race go to the dogs as speedily as unreasonable pampering can send them there. This number of so-called lovers of dogs is, according to an article in Good Words, inscribed on the books of the Parisian dog-tailors. One of the tailors took the writer of the article in his confidence, saying: "For the most part our clients belong to the higher classes of society—people who can afford to pay high prices and who pay ready cash. The business is, therefore, a very profitable one, because the materials used do not cost very much, and we sell them at a large profit. For instance, I recently had a very remunerative order from the daughter of a diplomat in Paris. She was about to be married, and I made a set of gala-clothes for her dogs to match the liveries of the lackeys in her father's household. As the bride entered the residence after the ceremony her three dogs were awaiting her at the top of the grand staircase dressed in these costumes with bouquets of orange blossoms attached to their collars, and held by a silken leash by one of the footmen. The effect was marvelous! Then, again, the daughter of a rich banker, recently married, had another idea. I made to measure for each of her dogs—she had half a dozen—regular bridesmaids' costumes of white faille embroidered with lace and garlanded with orange blossoms, while on their feet they wore small slippers of white satin, also specially made to measure!" One does not quite know whether pity for the dogs thus tortured or contempt for the owners who bend their minds to such doings, is the predominant feeling aroused by these facts. The waterproof for rainy days, the dust-cloak for journeys, the mantle for cold weather and the gray linen suit for seaside wear are all articles with which a French society dog has long become familiar. But this year, Mr. Waller tells us, the poor creatures' owners "have gone one step farther in rendering the sublime handiwork of the Creator ridiculous by providing their pets with sets of fine linen. No society dog which really respects itself would think of possessing less than a dozen undergarments of lawn if it be in good health, or of silk or surah if it should be subject to colds or nervous complaints! Then if the 'poor darling' should be troubled with watery eyes, a dozen embroidered cambric handkerchiefs become an absolute necessity. And this is not all. His delicate little feet must be kept dry by boots, made to measure, of leather or India rubber, to suit his particular temperament." This, together with bracelets and tie pins, with perfumes and fancy soaps, with ivory combs and brushes and a good many other things, makes up a dog's toilet necessaries, and if the Parisian pet dog could speak he would certainly explain that his "friends" lead him the life of a dog, in the worst interpretation of that saying.

Horse Killed by Bee Stings.

From the Chestertown (Md.) Transcript: A fine young driving mare of Dr. J. T. Twilley was stung to death by honey bees in Kent county. The animal was turned into a lot to graze in which was a bench of eight hives of bees. One of the hives was knocked over, and in an instant the mare was covered by the bees. She became entangled in vines in such a way that she could not extricate herself, and began to roll to free herself of the bees, which swarmed on her body. This only made matters worse, and resulted in overturning the entire bunch of eight hives, the bees from which completely covered the helpless animal. She lived about eight hours and died in great agony. Handfuls of beestings were combed from her hair and pulled from about the nose, mouth and eyes—in short, there was scarcely a square inch of the animal's body which had escaped a wound from the bees.

No Misunderstanding.

Rochester Post-Express: Soon after the Central bank was opened for business one morning a prominent manufacturer walked down the steps and toward Exchange street, bearing a small satchel containing the money with which he was to pay off a large force of employes. As he turned into Exchange street a warm personal friend, unseen by him, rushed up from behind and pulled vigorously at the handle of the satchel. With lightning-like rapidity the manufacturer's arm was raised and descended full in the face of the practical joker, sending him reeling toward the curb. The next instant the manufacturer recognized his friend, and hurrying over to him, steadied him until he had recovered full consciousness, and then said: "I understand the situation better than I can explain it." "I do, too," remarked the other, as they shook hands and proceeded on their ways.

Sickroom Don'ts.

Sick people don't like to be stared at. They are morbidly sensitive. To look surprised at the change sickness has wrought is annoying, and, worse than that, it is disheartening, and makes invalids imagine their case to be worse than it is. Therefore, don't stare at a sick person, and don't stand at the back of the bed to make him turn his eyes round to see you. Always sit by the bedside, for the patient feels more at rest than if you stand up tall before him. And don't whisper; don't talk in a low voice; don't follow the doctor or caller out into the next room. The invalid will be absolutely certain that you are discussing him. Don't wear garments that rustle or are made of rough clothing, to come into contact with hands made tender by sickness, and don't wear creaking boots or thick-soled boots.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

The Early Bird.

First Wanderer—Dis coal pile is de hardest bed I ever slept on. Second Wanderer—You're jist right; but Ragles over dere seems ter like it; he's sleeping fine. First Wanderer—Course he is; de greedy pig got here fust, and picked out de bit wid de soft coal in it.—Harper's Bazar.

Money has little value to its possessor unless it also has value to others.—L. Stanford.

An Arctic Incident.

"I'm after you," cried the hunter.

"I don't give a wray," retorted the seal.

Thereupon he skinned off.—Philadelphia Press.

Prosperity for 1900.

Indications point to great prosperity for the coming year. This is a sign of a healthy nature. The success of a country, as well as of an individual, depends upon health. If you have any stomach trouble try Hostetter's Stomach Bitters which cures dyspepsia, indigestion and biliousness.

A Pessimist.

"Government by the people," declared Loftman, "is a failure."

"Oh, I wouldn't take my defeat for such a small office as the legislature so much to heart," rejoined McMany.—Philadelphia North American.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

Robert Fjellman, Wilmot, S. D., pipe wrench; Frederick W. Flakker, Wheaton, Minn., animal trap; James L. Kimball, Mountain Iron, Minn., sash holder; John T. Morris, Minneapolis, Minn., automatic tank valve; Emil A. Nelson, Hallock, Minn., photographic background carrier; Gustav A. Peterson and A. Olson, Florence, Minn., artificial bait; Mahlon H. Vinkle, Oakes, N. D., acetylene gas apparatus; John Wester, Triumph, Minn., sack holder.

Merwin, Lothrop & Johnson, Patent Attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul

Economy.

The pastor's wife heard of a desperately poor family. Of course she went to see about it. A man with a month's growth of beard opened the door for her. The room, certainly, wasn't very cheerful, but in one corner there was a coal-oil stove, which was still burning, though it was after 10 o'clock.

"Well," she said to the man, "why do you keep your stove burning all day?"

"Oh, mum," he answered, "we ain't got no matches, an' if we put it out we could never light it again."—Life.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured

by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surfaces.

We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Made Him a Foreigner.

"When I was on the bench," says Judge J. J. Du Bose, "we were once making up a special jury for a murder trial. The lawyers were examining the venire, and I wasn't paying much attention to what was going on until one of the lawyers attracted my attention by saying:

"'Your honor, this man is incompetent for jury service. He's a foreigner.'

"I looked at the man under examination, and he didn't look like a foreigner. He looked, anyway, like he was acclimated. So I asked him:

"'Have you ever been naturalized?'

"'No, sir,' he answered.

"'And you say you're a foreigner and not naturalized? What country are you a native of?'

"'Arkansas.'

"Well, everybody in the court room laughed. I told the man he could go. He wasn't much of a foreigner, but too much to sit on a jury in my court."—Memphis Scimitar.

Leveling.

"Pugilism," said the solemn man, "brings man to the level of the brute."

"Worse than that," said the man with the red nose. "It often brings him to the level of the floor."—Indianapolis Journal.

Blessed is the woman who gives her best preserves to members of her own family.

Ayer's
20th Century
Almanac

(Not the ordinary kind)

A handsome year-book filled with beautiful illustrations, and a complete calendar. It is sold on all news-stands for 5 cents, and it's worth five times that amount.

It is a reliable chronology of the progress of the 19th century and a prophecy of what may be expected in the 20th.

Here are a few of the great men who have written for it:

Secretary Wilson,	on Agriculture
Sen. Chauncey M. Depew,	on Politics
Russell Sage,	on Finance
Thomas Edison,	" Electricity
Gen. Merritt,	" Land Warfare
Adml. Hichborn,	" Naval Warfare
"Al" Smith,	" Sports

You will enjoy reading it now, and it will be a book of reference for you through the years to come. Sixty-four pages, printed on ivory finish paper.

If your news-dealer cannot supply you with it, cut out this ad. and send it with three one-cent stamps and receive this elegant book free. Address

J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION. 25 CTS.

FARM AND GARDEN.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof—Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

Horticultural Observations.

On Jan. 16 there will be held in Kansas City a convention of growers and shippers of fruit and farm produce. It is proposed to form an association of national magnitude. Whether the plan will succeed or not we will soon see. But it is a fact that the science of organization is being learned, as is evidenced by the success of the California raisin growers' association. There are at present a number of small associations that have been doing business for years, and that, too, with success. There is little doubt that such a combination as that proposed has in it great possibilities for good and evil. Honestly and justly managed, it may give a uniformity to prices and prevent dishonesty among the retailers, especially among the stand fruit dealers in large cities.

* * *

Fruit men should in some way combine to prevent retailers re-sorting their fruit when it is put on the market. This re-sorting of fruit by the retailers is a very wide-spread habit. It is in every sense dishonest, and injures the producer of fine fruit as much as it does the buyer of what is supposed to be fine fruit. Go among the fruit stands in Chicago very early in the morning, say, in peach time, before the rush for the day has commenced. The fruit dealers will be found vigorously at work packing fruit to be sold during the day. All the good fruit has been emptied out in one pile and the little, worthless fruit in another pile. The packer puts the little green peaches in the bottom and faces the basket with good-sized and possibly good-colored fruit. If it lacks good color, he stretches some red netting over the green fruit and gives it the proper color. Now when the basket of fruit that Fruit-Grower John Smith has packed, with his stamp, comes into the hands of these same men, it is quickly emptied out and sorted with the rest. If, later, John Smith should come along and buy one of the honestly packed baskets that he has sent to market he would experience a shock on opening it, for he would not find under the top layer just as good peaches as on top, but the said green ones referred to. Fruit producers that are trying to make their brand recognized and respected on the market should find some way to compel dealers to sell the fruit as it comes to hand or take off their brand.

Agricultural Notes.

To what extent drain tile was pulverized by the hard freezes of last winter is not yet apparent. Inquiries sent out by the Farmers' Review revealed the fact that most farmers do not know whether their drains have been injured or not. The comparatively dry fall has not put them to the test. Should we have a wet winter we would probably find out if the drains are in condition to carry off water or not. It is not necessary that the whole line of drain be broken up to render it useless. A rod or two thoroughly pulverized does much to render the whole incapable of carrying off water. Perhaps it would have been a good idea if farmers with large quantities of tiled land had made some examination with the object of finding out its true condition. The loss to a single crop through a disintegrated drain may be large, and in addition large areas of land may be rendered unplowable in the spring just at the time it is most necessary to get onto the land.

* * *

Prize corn crops are not always what they appear to be. There are corn crops and corn crops. It is possible for two men to raise each 100 bushels of corn to the acre and yet have one man raise twice as much corn to the acre as the other. This appears paradoxical, but is easily explained. One man may plant his corn at such a late day that it will become only well glazed at the time it has to be gathered for exhibition; while the other man may plant his corn early and thus give it time to thoroughly mature before it must be gathered. Corn gathered just after the roasting-ear period is very heavy, and will at that time sometimes weigh double what it will when it has been well dried. This is the secret of some of the enormous yields of corn that have been recently reported. The figures that claim yields per acre well up to the 200-bushel mark are based on weighed and not measured bushels. Inspect that same prize corn a few months after it has been gathered, and it will be found looking very shaky. Every kernel will be found standing by itself and with an abundance of room between it and its neighbors. Really such prize corn does not fill the requirements, or should not. The water content of corn should be taken into consideration, and we are not sure that it would not be a good idea to have each sample entered analyzed for its water content, and this analysis be taken into consideration when making the awards.

A Good Appointment.

Mr. J. H. Monrad has been appointed assistant dairy and food commissioner of Illinois. The appointment is a good one. All who know Mr. Monrad believe that he will discharge every duty faithfully. As a dairy expert he is known on both sides of the Atlantic and Pacific. He has had experience in dairy matters in Denmark, Norway, New Zealand and the United States. While progressive he is conservative, and is not easily led to indorse new things till he is thoroughly convinced of their utility. Illinois needs a strong man in the office of assistant commissioner, which office is supposed to be filled by a first-class dairy expert.

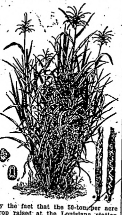
Another gratifying thing about the appointment of Mr. Monrad is that it is in no sense a political appointment. This is an indication that the commission is to be run for real effectiveness. The mass of work to be done in Illinois requires the best talent that can be secured irrespective of party, and the sentiment of the people should be expressed in favor of keeping, as much as possible, partisan politics out of it. Illinois has the reputation of being the state in which more adulterated products are made than any other state in the Union. It is charged that Illinois has had more to do with ruining our foreign markets for dairy goods than any other state in the Union, and it is to be hoped that a reform is to follow. Every farmer in Illinois should do his utmost to uphold the hands of Mr. Jones and Mr. Monrad.

Teosinte.

Herewith we illustrate teosinte. The explanation of the plate is: "a," one of the ears enclosed by the husk; "b," the same with a portion of the husk showing the grains; "c" and "d," views of the grain.

The scientific name of this plant is Euchloena luxurians. This is a grass of tropical nativity and much resembles Indian corn. It is said to have been introduced into this country from Central or South America, though it was first cultivated in Australia. In its native habit as it grows freely and often attains a height of from 10 to 15 feet in a few months. It suckers out or tillers to a remarkable degree, often as many as thirty to fifty suckers springing from a single stalk. In this country the climate is not hot enough, neither are the seasons long enough to ripen the seed, except in a very few places. While this is true, it does well as a fodder plant as far north as Pennsylvania and Kansas.

In some of our more southern states it has given larger yields than any other forage plant. Georgia reported a yield of 19 tons to the acre, Mississippi 22 tons to the acre, but at the Louisiana station it yielded over 50 tons per acre. To succeed well it needs abundant moisture, a great deal of heat, rich soil and a long season. It is useless to plant it where these conditions cannot be had. If cut when it reaches four or five feet in height it makes excellent fodder. If allowed to grow till October it makes a good plant for the silo. Its value as a soiling crop may be seen by the fact that the 50-ton per acre crop raised at the Louisiana station was sold to dairymen at the rate of $2 per ton.



Four-Horned Sheep.

While traveling through northwestern Pennsylvania my attention was called to a curiosity in the line of sheep. It was a breed with four horns, writes a contributor to American Sheep Breeder.

One ram had horns the total length of which was thirteen feet. Of course this breed will never come into favor as a profitable breed. Too much nutrition is used to produce the horns, but as a curiosity and a specimen for parks they will be sought after.

The horns vary greatly as to shape, but the general form was two standing straight from the top of the head and the other two branching from just below the others and in some cases making a curve, while in other instances they extended straight out.

I questioned regarding the origin of this breed and found they all came from one ram left by a traveling company several years ago. The company finished the season and asked a farmer to keep their ram until spring for them. In the spring they presented the ram to the farmer.

He took Highland Blackface ewes and crossed with the ram. The ram proved very potent and as a result there is a flock of twenty-five or thirty sheep with four horns.

They have been crossed in and seem to keep the original characteristics.

Where the first ram came from I have been unable to find out, but as far as I can learn this is the only flock in the world.

Neighboring Flocks.—With but one or two small flocks in a neighborhood there is sometimes a lack of buyers for both wool and mutton, but as flocks increase in size and number this difficulty will be largely overcome. Another advantage in being in a neighborhood where there are many small flocks is that rams can be exchanged frequently to good advantage; again, dogs never trouble so much, and if they do, their depredations are more scattered. A neighborhood pretty well stocked with profitable sheep is not as likely to be overrun with unprofitable dogs as one is where sheep are scarce. There, too, is more or less competition to see who has the best-looking flock, as well as the best-paying one, and the per cent of increase is watched more closely when near-by shepherds keep track of the lambing time.—Ex.

Miniature Trees.—One of the most remarkable features of Japanese gardening is the way in which every plant and tree in a famous garden will be reproduced in miniature, by a system of dwarfing which has been handed down from many generations back. Every characteristic of a large tree will be preserved, the foliage, color and the texture of the branches, and yet the miniature copy will often be not more than from one to three feet high.—Ex.

Some reliable fertilizer ought always to be kept on hand also. If this is not done, plants are often allowed to suffer for food at the very time when it is most needed.—Exchange.

PRIVATE LIVE OF CZAR

RARELY SMILES AND HAS NO DREAD OF ASSASSINATION.

"I Will Live and Die for Russia; How I Die I Care Not"—His Home Life Is Very Simple and He Is Very Democratic.

So little is known about the private life and personal habits of Czar Nicholas of Russia, that a volume on this subject, which has just been published in Germany, is bound to prove of unusual interest. The volume is entitled "Czar Nicholas II. and His Court," and the author is Bresnitz von Sydacow. Nicholas, we are told, is one of the most reserved monarchs that ever sat on a throne. He speaks seldom and briefly, and while he is talking his eyes are generally fixed on the ground. He rarely laughs, and does not often even smile. Of danger he has no dread, resembling his fearless grandfather in this respect, "I will live and die for Russia; how I die, I care not," he said a few days after his accession. The czar's home life is simple. He likes plain food at dinner, and he seldom has many guests at his table. He eats quickly, "like all men who are accustomed to work a good deal," and he drinks very little wine. He drives about in a small two-horse carriage, and he wears a uniform almost always, for he does not like civilian's attire. Indeed, it is said that he had no frock coat until he visited Paris a few years ago, and that the court tailor, who was accustomed to making his uniforms, was in despair, because he knew that his imperial master would be obliged to wear civilian's attire in the Parisian ceremonies. Being a man of resources, however, he went hastily to Paris to study the latest fashion in men's dress, and he finally purchased a suit for 700 rubles. This suit the czar wore during the festivities in Paris, and the story goes that he felt very uncomfortable in it. Nicholas is an unwearied reader. All documents submitted to him he reads carefully, and he frequently makes notes on them with a red pencil. His memory is wonderful, and it often happens that months after he has given an unimportant order he will ask as to the manner in which it was carried out. Summer and winter he is the first to arise in the morning, and he is working hard while the others are still sleeping. During the day the czarina sits beside his desk, sewing or embroidering. Whenever a court officer enters she prepares to leave the room, but the czar invariably says: "No, my dear, you won't disturb us," and with gentle insistence he lays his hand on her arm and draws her back to her seat. Of his little daughters the czar is wonderfully fond. When the first one was born instead of the expected heir, the czarina, it is said, went to her husband with tears in her eyes, and begged him to forgive her for not presenting him with an heir. The czar in reply kissed her tenderly, and said that he was very glad to have a daughter. When the czar wants to shake off all cares he plays with his children, and it is on these occasions that he seems most happy. A firm believer in popular education is Nicholas. While he was heir apparent, he once said: "Russia has had a czar who was a liberator; it also needs a czar who will be an educator," and the people have not forgotten these words. Of the czar's interest in popular education there are many evidences. Hardly a day passes that the Russian papers do not contain articles about new schools, new libraries, and new educational societies.—New York Herald.

Octogenarians in England.

This seems an age of remarkable octogenarians. Louisa, Duchess of Abercorn, who is in her eighty-seventh year, went recently to visit Lord and Lady Tankerville, her host being in his ninetieth year. The Duke of Richmond and Gordon, who is also the Duc d'Aubigny in France, is 81, and yet his favorite sport is fishing, and quite recently his grace hooked, played and landed a fine, strong salmon twenty pounds in weight. There is Earl Fitz William, who recently entered on his eighty-fifth year, and is still enjoying excellent health, and a keen rider to hounds, even if he no longer goes quite straight across country. The Duchess of Cleveland, who has entered on her eighty-first year, is always to be seen at the great afternoon events of each London season. Lord and Lady Braybrooke, although both on the right side of 80, recently celebrated their silver wedding; and Mrs. Gladstone is another of the notable octogenarians of this century end.—London Telegraph.

Fresh Air for Consumptive Patients.

In the London Hospital for consumption the basis of treatment is rest in the open air, graduated exercise, and good feeding. No window in the open-air wards is ever closed, and during the cold weather the consumptive patients are kept warm with extra clothing and artificial heat. It is encouraging to note that practically all the early cases and 70 per cent of all cases improve considerably under the open-air system. It is not uncommon for patients to enter the hospital with extensive signs of the disease, and to leave after nine or ten weeks with no sign of acute disease, and an increase of a stone in weight. None of those who markedly improved and followed out the hygienic principles taught there have shown any signs of relapse.

For Use in Church.

"I've hit a money-making thing at last. The preachers will go wild over it, and it will sell like hot cakes. It's a church-contribution box."

Friend—What good is that?

Inventor—It's a triumph. The coins fall through slots of different sizes, and half-crowns, shillings and sixpences land on velvet; but the pennies and half-pennies drop on to a Chinese gong.—From Sydney Town and Country Journal.

Misunderstood.

Her mother—Don't you find Jack Wheeler rather rough, Priscilla? Priscilla—Yes, mamma. And yet he says he shaves every day.—Harlem Life.

FOR THE 7-11 FOLK.

Some Bets on Dice-Shaking and Some Deductions Therefrom.

One evening, several weeks ago, a group of racehorse men were chatting in the St. Charles rotunda, when one of the party produced a miniature silver dice box, which he had picked up somewhere as a curiosity. It contained three tiny but perfectly made dice. "I'm superstitious about this box," said the owner, smilingly. "I believe it brings me good luck." "Well, just to cure you of that idea," said a horseman from St. Louis, "I'll bet you $10 I can beat you throwing the dice." The proposition was accepted, and the owner of the box threw three fours, which, oddly enough, were also thrown by the man from St. Louis. Upon that a dispute arose, the St. Louis turfman claiming that the tie should be "thrown off" and the other man that he had won, because his hand had not been beaten. Some of those present took one side and some the other, and, after a heated argument, it was agreed to leave the question to a New York daily newspaper regarded as an authority on sports. Here is the way the question was stated: "A bets B he can beat him throwing dice. B bets he can not. Result a tie. Who wins?" On Sunday the answer was printed, as follows: "Neither. When B takes A's bet he virtually bets that he can beat A." Upon this decision the money was handed over, not only on the original bet, but on several side wagers afterward made. It did not end the argument, however, but, on the contrary, started it afresh, and it still rages. Most local authorities disagree squarely with the New York referee. "The decision was all wrong," said a veteran New Orleans sportsman: "Here is the case in a nutshell: A says to B, 'I'll bet you $10 I can beat you in a throw of dice.' B accepts the wager and throws three fours. Now the only way in which A can make good his original assertion that he could beat B is to throw something better than three fours. He said 'beat you,' remember, not 'equal you.' He then throws a duplicate hand, which certainly does not beat, but is merely a standoff, consequently he loses. That is as plain as the nose on an elephant. The paper says that in taking the wager B virtually bets he can beat A. He does nothing of the sort. He bets that A can't beat him—quite a different proposition."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Both Knew Him.

He was one of those garrulous old fellows whose only aim in life seems to be to strike up conversations with strangers in public places. He was seated in the corner of a Market street car, holding a one-sided conversation with the conductor, says a writer in the Philadelphia Record, when a dapper young fellow entered and took a seat on the opposite side of the car. The old fellows eyed him closely for several minutes and then leaned over and touched him on the knee. "'Scuse me," remarked the inquisitive old chap, "but ain't your name Johnson?" Considerably surprised, the young man replied that it was. "Son of old William Johnson, ain't you?" "Yes," was the curt answer. "Well, well, well," went on the loquacious old man. "I knowed you was a Johnson the minute I laid eyes on you. I uster know you father well." "So did I," said young Mr. Johnson without cracking a smile. An audible titter ran around the car and the old man got off at the next corner.—Philadelphia Record.

Fine Old Copper Vessel.

A woman who has been fitting up her husband's den and smoking room in their new suburban home selected for use in it as a trash basket a fine old copper vessel of Russian make, says the New York Post. It is of simple and artistic design and is a beautiful piece of metal. When she was remonstrated with for her extravagance in paying so large a price for a little receptacle her defense was prompt and practical. "I should have bought the vessel," she said; "as an ornament for the room. I had also decided that a wicker or wooden trash-basket would not do in a smoking room. Men are careless and often toss in lighted matches and cigar or cigarette ends that are still burning. It seemed to me a stroke of economy to provide this ornament, which might have stood simply as such, with a utilitarian service." From this point of view she was certainly right. These vessels could be equally well applied to a similar use aboard yachts.

Ensign Eames Lost His Wager.

Miss Emma Eames has a brother, Harold, who was an ensign in the United States navy. His ship was stationed at Leghorn, and one day the flagship entered the harbor with the fleet commander on board. The latter was very dignified, and was never known to lose his self-control. One day the commander was in swimming, and young Eames made a friendly wager with a fellow officer that he would destroy his senior's equanimity—in naval parlance, "rattle" him. The wager was accepted, and a moment afterward Eames was in the water swimming toward his superior officer. Suddenly he paused, and, stopping his powerful overhand stroke, began treading water. Then he saluted precisely as if he had been on a quarter-deck. To the young man's intense surprise the commander returned the salute with equal gravity. Mr. Eames lost his wager.

Encouraging Him.

Canvasser—I have called to show you a book—— Busy one—Well, I'm glad you haven't called to sell it to me. Show away. You'll not mind it if I don't happen to look at it, will you?—Boston Transcript.

Jogging Him Up.

From Puck: He (musingly)—"Well, man proposes, but ——." She (meaningly)—"No, he don't! He just keeps making one think he is going to."

Temperance has been promoted in the French army by controlling the canteen and substituting coffee, tea and cocoa for intoxicating drinks.

PERSONALLY CONDUCTED

Tours to California in Pullman Tourist Sleeping Cars

Via the Chicago Great Western to Kansas City and the Santa Fe Route to Los Angeles and Southern California. The true winter route, avoiding cold weather and snow blockades.

Commencing Monday, Oct. 23d, and on every Monday following one of these new Pullman Tourist Sleeping Cars will leave St. Paul at 8:10 a. m., via the Chicago Great Western for Los Angeles and Southern California, via Kansas City, and reaching Los Angeles the following Friday morning thus avoiding all Sunday travel. These tours are personally conducted by an experienced railway official, who accompanies the train to its destination. The cars are well equipped for a long journey, and are as comfortable as the Pullman Sleepers, while the price is only $6.00 for a double berth, less than half the price in the Standard Sleepers. For full information, inquire of J. P. Elmer, corner Fifth and Robert streets, St. Paul, Minn., or address F. H. Lord, General Pass. and Ticket Agent, 113 Adams St., Chicago.

Orange Free State's Arms.

The coat of arms of the Orange Free State shows an orange tree in the middle of the field; on one side stands a lion, on the other a lamb. The motto beneath is "Freedom, Immigration, Patience, Courage." The emblem of the lion and lamb has a Scriptural reference to the peace and harmony within its borders, and does not glance at the geographical position of the republic between the domain of the British lion and the pastoral Boers of the Transvaal, as an American joker might assume.—Philadelphia Record.

Dropsy treated free by Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, of Atlanta, Ga. The greatest dropsy specialists in the world. Read their advertisement in another column of this paper.

Trouble Ahead.

Mrs. W.—Did your stenographer address those "at home" cards of mine to the list I gave you?

"Yes, but she made a slight error. She sent them to a list of our creditors."—Life.

Means of Grace.

"The interest in our church seems flagging."

"Yes; we will have to get up a bazar or revival."—Indianapolis Journal.

Piso's Cure for Consumption is the best of all cough cures.—George W. Lotz, Fabucher, La., August 26, 1895.

The office boy who can go on steadily attending to his duties while a band is marching by is a genuine hero.

Barbed wire fences are used extensively in South Africa, and most of the material is imported from the United States.

Cured After Repeated Failures With Others. I will inform addicted to Morphine, Laudanum, Opium, Cocaine, of never-failing, harmless, home-cure. Mrs. M. H. Baldwin, Box 1212, Chicago, Ill.

Some men show good judgment by showing a lack of self-confidence.

Avarice is always poor, but poor by its own fault.—Johnson.

A small boy says the worst nation on earth is vaccination.

Another Holy Willie.

One may safely conclude, from the following story, that the good old faith of Calvin is very much alive yet. An American lady who was in the Highlands shooting with her husband, attended the local kirk one Sunday morning, but left it with scandalous precipitancy. For an hour the good minister had been fiercely raging at his benighted congregation, and wound up: "And, pairhaps" (with pious cunning) "ye'll be thinkin,' ye wairthless waistrels, that ye can daddle intae paradise by clootchin' tae my coattails! Dinna be deceivit, for mark weel" (a pause of stern and holy joy) "when the trump of Gabriel soonds, I'll sneck them aff!"—Life.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY.
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. 25c. E. W. Grove's signature on each box.

A Grave Request.

A solicitor in a Georgia court is responsible for the following:

He overheard a conversation between his cook and a nurse, who were discussing a recent funeral of a member of their race, at which there had been a great profusion of flowers. The nurse said:

"When I die, don't plant no flowers on my grave, but plant a good old watermelon vine, an' when it gets ripe you come dar, an' don't you eat it, but jes' bust it on de grave, an' let dat good old juice dribble down troo de ground."—Youth's Companion.

A Reward in Sight.

"What makes you so devoted to golf, Mr. Poddington?"

"Well, you see, somebody always gives a dinner after the game."—Indianapolis Journal.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

MILLIONS of acres of choice agricultural LANDS now opened for settlement in Western Canada. Here is grown the celebrated NO. 1 HARD WHEAT, which brings the highest price in the markets of the world; thousands of cattle are fattened for market without being fed grain and without a day's shelter. Send for information and secure a free home in Western Canada. Write the Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, or address the undersigned, who will mail you atlases, pamphlets, etc., free of cost. Ben Davies, 154 East Third St., St. Paul, or T. O. Currie, Stevens Point, Wis.

Wheat 327 Millions Short
As compared with the World's crop of 1898.
Send for our booklet "How to Sell a Crop and Have It," and you will then know how large fortunes are made in Wheat speculation. Phone 1063L.
W. H. HAMMOND & CO., Brokers,
Bank Reference, Corn Ex., Minneapolis, Minn.

DR. ARNOLD'S COUGH KILLER
CURES COUGHS AND COLDS. PREVENTS CONSUMPTION.
All Druggists, 25c.

CARTER'S INK
Is food for thought.

When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.

N. W. N. U. —No. 52.— 1899.

Captain Gridley's Mother
Restored by Peruna.
OLYMPIA
"WHEN YOU ARE READY GRIDLEY—FIRE."
Dewey

DEWEY'S FLAG SHIP OLYMPIA—CAPTAIN GRIDLEY, COMMANDER.

Mrs. Gridley, mother of Captain Gridley, who was in command of Dewey's flag ship, at the destruction of the Spanish fleet at Manila, says of our remedy, Peruna:

"At the solicitation of a friend I used Peruna, and can truthfully say it is a grand tonic and is a woman's friend, and should be used in every household. After using it for a short period I feel like a new person."

Ann E. Gridley.

Nearly all our ills are due to catarrh. We are liable to have catarrh of the head, catarrh of the throat, catarrh of the lungs, stomach, kidneys, bladder and pelvic organs. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. Address Dr. Hartman, Columbus, Ohio, for free book.

SAVE YOUR STAR TIN TAGS

"Star" tin tags (showing small stars printed on under side of tag), "Horse Shoe," "J. T.," "Good Luck," "Cross Bow," and "Drummond" Natural Leaf Tin Tags are of equal value in securing presents mentioned below, and may be assorted. Every man, woman and child can find something on the list that they would like to have, and can have

FREE!

	TAGS.		TAGS.
1 Match Box	25	23 Clock, 8-day, Calendar, Thermometer, Barometer	500
2 Knife, one blade, good steel	25	24 Gun case, leather, no better made	500
3 Scissors, 4½ inches	25	25 Revolver, automatic, double action, 32 or 38 caliber	600
4 Child's Set, Knife, Fork and Spoon	25	26 Tool Set, not playthings, but real tools	650
5 Salt and Pepper Set, one each, quadruple plate on white metal	50	27 Toilet Set, decorated porcelain, very handsome	800
6 French Briar Wood Pipe	25	28 Remington Rifle No. 4, 22 or 32 cal.	800
7 Razor, hollow ground, fine English steel	50	29 Watch, sterling silver, full jeweled	1000
8 Butter Knife, triple plate, best quality	60	30 Dress Suit Case, leather, handsome and durable	1000
9 Sugar Shell, triple plate, best qual.	60	31 Sewing Machine, first class, with all attachments	1500
10 Stamp Box, sterling silver	70	32 Revolver, Colt's, 38-caliber, blued steel	1500
11 Knife, "Keen Kutter," two blades	75	33 Rifle, Colt's, 16-shot, 22-caliber	1500
12 Butcher Knife, "Keen Kutter," 8-in blade	75	34 Guitar (Washburn), rosewood, inlaid	2000
13 Shears, "Keen Kutter," 8-inch	75	35 Mandolin, very handsome	2000
14 Nut Set, Cracker and 6 Picks, silver plated	80	36 Winchester Repeating Shot Gun, 12 gauge	2000
15 Base Ball, "Association," best qual.	100	37 Remington, double-barrel, hammer Shot Gun, 10 or 12 gauge	3000
16 Alarm Clock, nickel	150	38 Bicycle, standard make, ladies or gents	3500
17 Six Genuine Rogers' Teaspoons, best plated goods	150	39 Shot Gun, Remington, double barrel, hammerless	3000
18 Watch, nickel, stem wind and set	200	40 Regina Music Box, 15¾ inch Disc	5000
19 Carvers, good steel, buckhorn handles	200
20 Six Genuine Rogers' Table Spoons, best plated goods	250
21 Six each, Knives and Forks, buckhorn handles	250
22 Six each, Genuine Rogers' Knives and Forks, best plated goods	500

THE ABOVE OFFER EXPIRES NOVEMBER 30TH, 1900.

Special Notice! Plain "Star" Tin Tags (that is, Star tin tags with no small stars printed on under side of tag), are not good for presents, but will be paid for in CASH on the basis of twenty cents per hundred, if received by us on or before March 1st, 1900.

☞ BEAR IN MIND that a dime's worth of

STAR PLUG TOBACCO

will last longer and afford more pleasure than a dime's worth of any other brand.

MAKE THE TEST!

Send tags to CONTINENTAL TOBACCO CO., St. Louis, Mo.

IN DEADLY EARNEST

BOERS SHOW EVIDENCE OF IMPROVED SOLDIERING.

British No Longer Fighting a Foe Who Relies Upon Guerrilla Tactics, but Has to Deal With What Is Rapidly Becoming a Disciplined Army—Immense Strength of Boer Positions Around Colenso—Report of a Treaty Whereby England Gets Control of Delagoa Bay.

London, Dec. 30.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail from Pietermaritzburg says:

"Every day reveals some new fact regarding the strength of the Boer position at Colenso. Thanks to the services of continental officers, the character of the campaign has changed. We are no longer fighting a foe who relies upon guerrilla tactics, but we have to deal with what is rapidly becoming a disciplined army, enjoying the advantage of knowing the country and selecting the scene of contest without the burdens of cumbersome commissariat. The Boers have converted the hills near Colenso into fortresses of immense strength. Everywhere they have splendid trenches, many of immense strength and many of them bomb proof. Tramway lines permit the shifting of guns with astonishing rapidity. The main positions are connected with the outlying positions by underground passages, and the forts proper bristle with machine guns that command the approaches. Probably mines are laid. One hears less now-a-days about Boer shells not bursting. Observers of the Colenso fight say the Boer shell fire was very effective. This is due largely to the fact that distances are marked off with white paint. The enemy's discipline is improving. The trenches represent great manual labor for which the Boers have a keen dislike. The manner in which they have restrained their fire while our troops are advancing is another proof of improved soldiering."

Delagoa Bay for England.

New York, Dec. 30.—The Herald and Tribune both have special dispatches announcing that Portugal's colonies, in part at least, are to be divided between Germany and England. The dispatches are both based on a report in the Berlin Lokalanzeiger, which is said to be unofficial. The Tribune says:

"The announcement of the Berlin Lokalanzeiger that under the secret stipulations of the treaty Germany will take Portugal's Asiatic colonies and the territory north of Zambesi, and England Delagoa bay, is the most startling news of the day. The authority is not official, and the statement of concerted action by the two powers against French and Russian occupation must be accepted with reserve until the foreign offices confirm it. The alleged payment of 25,000,000 marks for Germany's share in this territorial trade also seems doubtful. Some disclosure of this kind has been expected in diplomatic circles for several weeks—since the necessity for shutting off supplies of arms and ammunition from the Transvaal has become apparent.

"The Russian press forecasts the occupation of Herat as the first consequence of the occupation of Delagoa bay by the British. Russian and French rumors that all neutral powers will intervene if England takes effective measures for closing the back door against the entrance of contraband of war into the Transvaal are colored by the general belief that there is a secret agreement with Germany relating to any emergency which may arise on the east coast."

-o-

London, Dec. 30.—The Standard says that no credit should be given to the rumor from Berlin of a secret Anglo-German-Portuguese treaty for the partition of the colonies of Portugal.

Government Severely Criticised.

London, Dec. 30.—During the continued lull in the military operations in South Africa the papers are filled with letters and articles criticising the government and the campaign, and suggesting remedies, improvements, alterations in the plans and the like.

The Times complains of censorship and concealment. It says nothing has transpired to show how Gen. Gatacre came to lose 600 men at Stormberg. The dispatches from the front all represent the Boers as in a nervous condition and constant dread of the British advance, but this is probably an exaggeration. The Transvaal government, according to information supplied by Boer sympathizers, threatens to reduce the ration of British prisoners if Great Britain stops the entry of food by Delagoa bay. The British government now evinces a marked change from its attitude in the early stages of the war and shows a disposition to accept assistance from any quarter. The imperial yeomanry commission has issued a statement to the effect that the government considers the formation and dispatch of yeomanry as one of the most pressing needs of the situation, and it has intimated that it is now prepared to accept from 8,000 to 10,000 yeomanry, instead of the 3,000 originally asked for.

Talk of a Compromise.

Durban, Natal, Dec. 30.—Mr. Winston Churchill on arriving here after his escape from the Boers received a tremendous ovation. He says, from conversation with members of the Transvaal executive at Pretoria, he was impressed that the Boers began the war with trepidation, but that President Kruger is now convinced that Great Britain will soon sue for peace. In the highest Transvaal circles, Mr. Churchill says, there is serious talk of 'compromise' by which Great Britain will cede the territory now in the hands of the two forces and pay an indemnity of £20,000,000, besides guaranteeing the complete independence of the Transvaal.

England Will Patrol the Atlantic.

New York, Dec. 30.—A special to the World from London says: Great Britain is apparently preparing to patrol the Atlantic. The report that the larger part of the North Atlantic and the West Indies squadrons had received orders regarding the landing of vessels at American ports with contraband of war seems to be well founded. An official of the navy department when asked by a reporter if war vessels would be dispatched to the American station, said that he knew that communications had been exchanged between Halifax and the commander of the West Indian station. Arrangements are being made, he said, for the dispatch of additional squadrons for the North Atlantic, and the squadrons would be dispatched as soon as possible.

Pounding at Ladysmith.

Chieveley Camp, Dec. 30.—A heavy Boer gun on Bulwana mountain fired steadily on Ladysmith during the day. Ladysmith did not reply. The enemy has been again detected attempting to improve their trenches facing Gen. Buller. The British heavy guns opened on them, and the Boers scampered back into the hills. The British patrols sighted the enemy in force on the extreme left. Nine Boers were killed in a skirmish that followed and six Boer wagons were captured.

OPEN DOOR POLICY.

Markets of China Accessible to Our Commerce.

Chicago, Dec. 30—A special to the Record from Washington says:

All of the European governments except Russia have notified the department of state that they are prepared to give in writing the guarantees requested some time ago by the merchants and manufacturers in the markets of China, wherever their "spheres of influence" extend. This is the most important commercial proposition that has engaged the attention of our diplomatic service for many years and it is the first time the United States has assumed or expressed a determination to assert itself in Oriental affairs. It marks one more departure in our diplomatic policy and adds another to the long list of innovations which has characterized the present administration.

In the partition of China we have taken no part. England, France, Russia, Italy, Belgium, Japan and other powers engaged in a struggle for commercial and political supremacy there, have divided the territory among them and have agreed not to interfere with each other in the commercial and industrial development of the provinces they have selected. This allotment has been recognized indirectly by the government of China in granting railway concessions. While this division of the great empire has been going on the United States has been invited by the powers to participate and has been appealed to by China to intervene for its protection, but it was determined by the president and his advisers that American domination should be extended no farther than the Philippines. At the same time it was the duty of this government to protect this country's Asiatic trade. Therefore it was determined to request assurance that its commercial interests would not be interfered with. These pledges have been sent to our government and approved, but with the understanding that they will not be binding unless signed by all the European powers interested, and at this time only Russia holds out.

WERE DRIVEN BACK.

Filipinos Make an Unsuccessful Attack on Subig.

Manila, Dec. 28. — Gen. Santa Ana, with a force of insurgents estimated at 300, attacked the garrison at Subig yesterday. A body of marines were sent from Olongapo to reinforce the garrison, and the Filipinos were driven back, several being killed. There were no casualties on the American side. A company of the Forty-sixth volunteer infantry, together with a contingent of marines, have been sent from Manila to reinforce the Subig garrison still farther.

Col. J. Franklin Bell, of the Thirty-sixth infantry, encountered 150 Filipinos Thursday near Aminos, province of Zambales, and killed, wounded and captured twenty-eight of them. Our troops also obtained possession of a number of rifles and a quantity of ammunition. One American was wounded. A detachment of the Thirty-fourth infantry encountered a band of the enemy Saturday at Ariato, province of New Vizcaya, and routed them, killing two and wounding or capturing thirteen. The Americans also seized a quantity of ammunition. The Twenty-first regiment attacked a Filipino outpost Sunday near Calamba, scattering them and killing five of the enemy. The Thirty-second regiment Sunday had a brush with the enemy from the mountains northwest of Dinalupijan. One American was wounded. The troops captured 125 head of cattle and brought them to Granki, Bataan province.

In the island of Panay, Capt. Brownell's company of the Twenty-sixth infantry fought the enemy near Sala. The rebels lost heavily and the Americans captured a number of rifles. The rebels who fled from Panay to Romblon island are surrendering to the American garrison at Panay.

The funeral of Maj. Gen. Lawton will take place Dec. 30. The remains will be embarked on the transport Thomas.

FARQUHAR AT SAN JUAN.

The Admiral Suitably Received by Gov. Gen. Davis.

San Juan, Porto Rico, Dec. 28.—The United States cruiser New York, flagship of the North Atlantic squadron, arrived yesterday, and later in the day left for target practice. Gov. Gen. George W. Davis received Rear Admiral Farquhar, commanding the North Atlantic squadron, at the palace. The gunboat Machias, which arrived here Dec. 21, has sailed for Santo Domingo.

"PINNACLE ROCK" FALLS.

The Noted Land Mark of Cumberland Gap Goes Down.

Cumberland Gap, Tenn., Dec. 28. — The celebrated Pinnacle Rock, which overhung Cumberland Gap and was a noted natural spectacle, fell from its lofty height. The town was awakened as if by an earthquake as the immense mass, weighing hundreds of tons, came tumbling down. The course of the rock was from the town and no lives have been reported lost, although considerable property was destroyed.

DOMESTIC TRAGEDY.

Jealousy Leading to Wife-Murder and Suicide.

Indianapolis, Dec. 28.—John A. Hoover, an elevator conductor aged twenty-four, shot his wife twice in the head, fatally wounding her. He then turned the weapon on himself and sent one bullet into his brain and died an hour later. Jealousy was the cause.

Three Shooting Scrapes.

Middlesboro, Ky., Dec. 28. — Three shooting scrapes, with four men dead, are reported from Virginia and Tennessee, near the state line. At Tazwell, Tenn., Jim Thompson killed Harrison Hay in a drunken row. At Almstead Hill, Va., R. Overton and John Combs fought a duel and both were killed. They were prominent in their neighborhood. At Walnut Hill, Va., Bal Ely and his uncle, named Doss, had a quarrel in which the latter was killed.

Large Mill Destroyed.

Philadelphia, Dec. 28.—The extensive mill of Joseph Fling's Sons, manufacturers of cottons and merinos, in Germantown, a suburb of this city, was almost completely destroyed by fire yesterday. The loss is estimated at $60,000, fully covered by insurance. The origin of the fire is unknown.

News of the Northwest

SOLD TO A SYNDICATE.

Old Emerald and Virginia Mines Change Hands.

Lead, S. D., Dec. 29.—The Old Emerald and Virginia mines, located immediately south of the rich Hidden Fortune mine, which made Otto Grantz rich this fall, were yesterday sold to a Colorado syndicate whose chief representative lives in Colorado Springs. A shaft is to be at once sunk 400 feet. The ground is close to this city. The price paid and the names of the purchasers are kept secret for the present. The Golden Reward Mining Company of Deadwood has appropriated $60,000 for the erection of a gold and copper refinery. The company has purchased the Kildonan chlorination works near Deadwood.

GAS EXPLOSION.

Buildings Wrecked and Several Persons Injured.

Great Falls, Mont., Dec. 29. — An acetylene gas explosion at Havre wrecked the saloon of Charles Howell, blowing a side out of the building and injuring a number of other business houses. Charles Cowan, bartender, was terribly injured. Charles Lane was severely burned. Two unknown men were burned about the face. Lane was recharging the tank when the explosion took place, the gas igniting from a lighted jet near by. Fire broke out in the Howell building and those adjoining, but was extinguished before much damage was done.

ENFORCING THE LAW.

State Board of Pharmacy Secures a Conviction.

Winona, Minn., Dec. 29.—George W. Douglas, a druggist here, who was arrested last week on evidence furnished by a representative of the state board of pharmacy, for selling drugs without a license, was sentenced by Judge Tawney to pay a fine of $50 or go to jail for ten days. The outcome of this case was being watched for with interest by the board, and it is understood that the board will now vigorously prosecute violations of the law in other cities.

RANK OF MONSIGNOR.

Investiture Services Conducted by Archbishop Ireland.

Duluth, Minn., Dec. 29.—The elaborate programme that elevates Father Buh to the rank of monsignor in the Catholic hierarchy took place at the cathedral. There was a large attendance of priests, led by Archbishop Ireland and Bishop James McGolrick of this diocese. The impressive investiture services were led by the archbishop, and an elaborate musical programme was given. The cathedral was crowded.

BULLET IN HIS HEAD.

Worry Over Street Railway Ordinance Drives a Milwaukee Alderman to Suicide.

Milwaukee, Dec. 29. — Ald. George Hill of the First ward committed suicide by shooting himself through the head. Worry over the street railway ordinance is said to be the cause for the act. Hill was a Democrat and supported the ordinance. He was thirty-two years old and married.

Adjusting Fire Losses.

Hastings, Minn., Dec. 29.—A crew of men has begun to clear away the debris of the R. C. Libby & Co. mill. It is undecided whether the sawmill will be rebuilt, but machinery has already been purchased for a new planing factory. The work of tearing down the walls of the Mather & Engel buildings is also in progress. Messrs. F. A. Engel, John Kleis and Cavanaugh & Currier intend to rebuild shortly. The losses are beginning to be adjusted by the various insurance companies.

Bright Light Goes Out.

La Crosse, Wis., Dec. 29. — Seneca Truesdell, one of the oldest newspaper men in the Northwest, died in this city last night of complications that resulted in dropsy. For many years he was connected in various capacities with the Pioneer Press in St. Paul. Previous to that time he worked in St. Louis and San Francisco. His first daily newspaper experience was on the La Crosse Chronicle. He was born in Genesee, N. Y., and was fifty years old.

Extending Its System.

Huron, S. D., Dec. 29. — If the proposed plans of the Western Union Telegraph company materializes, Huron will soon be included in the list of towns comprising one of the districts in the new system. Manager Crain has been advised that the American District Telegraph company will soon build its system in a number of cities in this state. It is thought the system will be in operation within a few weeks.

Insurance Men Organize.

Fargo, N. D., Dec. 29.—Fire insurance writers of the state effected a permanent organization here yesterday. Thomas Baker, Jr., of Fargo, was chosen president; W. A. Gordon, Grand Forks, secretary; A. Hillyard, Dickinson, treasurer, and State Treasurer Driscoll, chairman of the executive committee. The first annual meeting will be held in May.

Farmer Robbed.

Flandrau, S. D., Dec. 29.—A farmer named Gudda, living near Coleman, was held up and robbed of $70. It is believed the work was done by the same fellows who robbed Bolle's store a little over a year ago.

Western Surgeons Meet.

Des Moines, Iowa, Dec. 29. — The Western Surgical and Gynecological society began its annual session here yesterday. About 150 members from all over the Middle Western states are in attendance.

Used Gasoline to Start a Fire.

Albert Lea, Minn., Dec. 29.—Chief of Police Sullivan was burned yesterday by accidentally using gasoline to kindle a fire in the kitchen stove. The can exploded and Mr. Sullivan received serious wounds.

Park Rapids Murder.

Park Rapids, Minn., Dec. 29.—Thomas Harvey was murdered eleven miles south of here. Doc Atwater, the alleged murderer, colored, is under arrest. The trouble arose over government claims.

Tannery Burned.

Merrill, Wis., Dec. 29.—The large three-story main building of the tannery operated in this city by the American Hide and Leather company was totally burned. The loss will be large, probably covered by insurance.

PASSENGERS INJURED

By a Rock Blast on the Line of the Duluth & Iron River.

Duluth, Minn., Dec. 30.—Some workmen engaged at blasting rock on the line of the Duluth & Iron Range road came near demolishing a passenger train. The north-bound train was almost due when the blast was ready to be set off under a big rock near the track. A man was sent back to flag the train, but he was not seen in time by the engineer and the train came on at full speed. The blast went off as the rear coach was passing, and flying stone was hurled through the side and top of the coach. Several passengers were injured, also Conductor G. W. Cornell, who is now in the hospital at Soudan.

NO SHOW INDIANS.

Buffalo Bill and Others Wild Over the Recent Prohibitive Order.

Washington, Dec. 30.—Since the recent announcement of the new policy of the interior department, discontinuing wild Indian exhibitions, the department has been deluged with both written and oral inquiries. Col. W. F. Cody has protested that the action will nearly ruin his business. A large number of letters on the subject, mostly indorsing the department's attitude, have come by mail. Commissioner Jones said there would be no change in the department's policy, and that he was convinced the exhibitions have a demoralizing tendency and retard Indian progress.

BURNING PRAIRIE.

Serious and Unusual Winter Experience for South Dakota.

Aberdeen, S. D., Dec. 27.—During a high northwest wind a prairie fire was started east of Eureka and swept over the country, causing great destruction of hay and grass on ranges. No reports from the burned district have been received, but many farmers must have been entirely burned out. The fire was the most extensive for years, embracing a tract several miles long and five miles wide. Great anxiety is felt for the safety of people in the path of the fire as the wind was blowing a gale.

Young Reds Go to College.

Chamberlain, S. D., Dec. 30.—Dr. C. A. Eastman, the full-blood Indian who married Ellane Goodale, an educated white woman and well known in many parts of the country, now in the Carlisle, Pa., Indian school, was at Crow Creek Indian agency the past week. He has returned to Carlisle, taking ten of the young Crow Creek Indians with him. Dr. and Mrs. Eastman at one time lived in St. Paul, where he practiced his profession.

Half a Bridge Better Than None.

Winona, Minn., Dec. 30. — The city will build a bridge from the shore of the river to the solid ice in the channel for the Wisconsin farmers, and allow them to use it free. The ice along the city front is always unsafe and a bridge is necessary. Heretofore private parties have built the bridge and charged toll, giving much dissatisfaction to the farmers.

Meets Next in Minneapolis.

Des Moines, Iowa, Dec. 30. — The Western Surgical and Gynecological association, comprising the States of Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Missouri, Indiana, Iowa and Kansas, elected C. Beverly Campbell of St. Joseph, Mo., president; Dr. Moor of Minneapolis was elected a member of the executive board. The next meeting will be held in Minneapolis in 1900.

One Hunter Shoots Another.

Waseca, Minn., Dec. 30.—Albert Elton, a farmer aged twenty-five, was fatally shot while rabbit hunting near here. He was hunting with a neighbor named Ziesmer, whose gun was accidentally discharged, the charge entering the right side of Elton and lodging in his lung. He is expected to die.

Alleged Safe-Blowers Caged.

Marinette, Wis., Dec. 30.—Confined in the Marinette county jail are three alleged safe-blowers, John Edwards, J. L. Murphy and Thomas Evans. It is thought they opened at least a dozen safes in Oconto, Menominee and several small towns north of here, securing several thousand dollars and valuables.

Organized by Pettigrew.

Sioux Falls, S. D., Dec. 29. — Under the direction of Senator R. F. Pettigrew about 200 fusionists met last night in Germania hall and organized clubs in this state. It is to be known as the American league as a protest against "imperialism, militarism and control of all industrial institutions and the government itself by organized capital."

Killed by an Engine.

Yankton, S. D., Dec. 30.—Miss Anna Johnson, a young woman living with relatives in the outskirts of the city, was run down and instantly killed by an engine on the Milwaukee. The young woman was very deaf and it is supposed she did not hear the engine.

Charged With Highway Robbery.

Sioux City, Iowa, Dec. 30. — John Conway and Robert Raymond were arrested here and held under $5,000 bonds to answer to charges of highway robbery. It is claimed that they have been entering restaurants and holding up clerks and customers.

Class of Nine Take the Veil.

Aberdeen, S. D., Dec. 30.—Nine young ladies who have spent the past summer with Mother Joseph, of Presentation academy, and who have been novitiates since that time, took the veil at the convent. Mother Joseph was re-elected superioress.

Prisoners Also Jollificate.

Fessenden, N. D., Dec. 29.—There was a jollification in Fessenden last night, and when it was found that the prisoners had all taken leg bail from the county jail.

Spectators Disapproved.

Milwaukee, Dec. 30.—Perry Queenan of this city and Jack Hudson of Chicago met here in a six-round go last night, the decision being given to Queenan amid yells of disapproval from the spectators.

Injuries Prove Fatal.

Red Wing, Minn., Dec. 29. — A. J. Schlueter of Hay Creek, while in an epileptic fit, fell down stairs in his home, sustaining injuries from which he died a few hours later.

E. V. SMALLEY DEAD.

Well Known as an Author and Writer of the Northwest.

St. Paul, Dec. 31.—Eugene V. Smalley, the editor and publisher of the Northwest Magazine, died at midnight at his home, 633 Holly avenue, of nervous dyspepsia. Mr. Smalley has been ill practically ever since his return from Oklahoma about six weeks ago. He had rallied for a time, but yesterday afternoon he sank, and the doctors said his life was measured simply by hours. As a newspaper man, author and publisher, Mr. Smalley was one of the most widely known writers of the Northwest. His magazine, devoted to the interests of this section, has had no small influence in making the resources and progress of the Northwest known to the country. His articles in magazines have been widely read and he was generally recognized as an authority of this section.

FURIOUS RACE RIOT.

Poles and Frenchmen Indulge in a Bloody Fight.

Marinette, Wis., Dec. 31.—A furious race riot between Poles and Frenchmen occurred in lumber camp No. 7, of the Kirby-Carpenter company near Pembine. Several Poles were badly pounded, and one of them, John Kosta of Menominee, Mich., was chased four miles down an icy logging road in his bare feet until the blood was dripping from them. Another Pole, Frank Joswoski, was torn from his sleeping bunk and pounded into insensibility. His hands and fingers were bitten and his face and body terribly disfigured. Kosta may lose both his feet and Joswoski is in a serious condition. Both were taken to Menominee. The leaders of the riot were half-breeds, John Parlex and John and Cotaud Perry. They will be arrested.

MEAT PACKER BURNED OUT.

Fire at St. Paul Destroys $10,000 Worth of Property.

St. Paul, Dec. 31.—The P. H. Van Hoven meat packing plant, on the upper levee above the high bridge, was destroyed by fire at 9 o'clock yesterday morning, causing a loss of $10,000. Mr. Van Hoven carried only $2,000 insurance on his stock, which consisted of forty-five carcasses and 110 hides, and was valued at $4,000. The fire caught in the roof of the main building. It is thought from a spark from the chimney of the heating plant. The firemen were greatly hampered in their efforts to fight the fire because of the lack of water, the nearest hydrant being half a mile away.

CAUGHT A WILD MAN.

He Lived in a Cave and Was Nearly Starved.

Barron, Wis., Dec. 31.—Under Sheriff Pierce captured a wild man in the woods four miles east of the town, who lived in a small cave on the bank of the river. He gives the name of Owen Sullivan, claims to hail from Ishpeming, Mich., and talks rationally, but tells various stories as to his recent whereabouts. He has lived in the cave at least four weeks, possibly all summer, and was nearly starved when caught.

EARLY FIRE AT HERMAN.

Loss Estimated at $8,500 With Partial Insurance.

Herman, Minn., Dec. 31. — J. A. Stoneburg's hall and Anderson Bros.' billiard hall were destroyed by fire early yesterday morning. Stoneburg's hall was occupied by Tucker's store and the postoffice. Loss is estimated at $8,500; partially insured.

Married a Diamond King.

Deadwood, S. D., Dec. 31—Mrs. Celia Rees, formerly Miss Bueter, whose parents live in this city, has written them from Durban, Natal, that she has married W. J. Rees, a diamond king of Johannesburg, and that they have fled from their home to Durban, Natal, which is now crowded with refugees.

Gentilly's Cheese Factory.

Gentilly, Minn., Dec. 31.—The local cheese factory has closed after a run of six months and a half. Milk received, 342,705 pounds; cheese made, 36,342 pounds; cash received therefor, $3,627.95; cash paid patrons, $2,901.37; milk to 1 pound of cheese, 9.42 pounds; average test for the season, 4.00 F.

Stove Exploded.

Brainerd, Minn., Dec. 31. — P. M. Zacarison's merchant tailoring establishment was burned. Loss almost total. The stock was valued at $4,500; insured for $3,000. The building was owned by N. P. Bank and was insured for $1,000. Fire was caused by the explosion of an air-tight stove.

Prosecution Failed.

Wausau, Wis., Dec. 31.—The prosecution failed to make a case against Fred G. Cowle, held for embezzlement. The evidence showed that the defendant handled no money belonging to the Wakefield & Western railway.

Murder on a Montana Ranch.

Great Falls, Mont., Dec. 31.—A. J. Corrigan shot and instantly killed Peter Kunz at a ranch twenty-five miles north of here. Corrigan came to the city and gave himself up. He says he did it in self-defense.

Stave Mill for Perham.

St. Paul, Minn., Dec. 31. — The St. Paul Barrel company has decided to erect a large stave and heading mill at this place. The site has been purchased and the buildings will be erected at once.

Fire at La Crosse.

La Crosse, Wis., Dec. 31.—The cooper shop of D. Daul & Sons was entirely destroyed by fire which started early yesterday morning. Loss $3,000; insurance $4,000. Origin of fire unknown.

Takes His Own Life.

Stanley, Wis., Dec. 31.—Christopher Thompson, for thirty years an employe of the Northwestern Lumber company, committed suicide by hanging himself in a wagon shed nearly a mile from town.

Wholesale Grocery Fire.

Burlington, Iowa, Dec. 31. — The building and contents of the Biklen Winzer wholesale grocery were destroyed by fire, entailing a loss of $150,000, with insurance of $95,000. Intense cold prevented the firemen from doing effective work.

Woodmen Killed.

Merrill, Wis., Dec. 31.—Pat Reddin was killed at the camp of Reddin Bros. six miles north of here, by a falling tree. He was helping to dislodge a tree that had hung up in another and was crushed when it fell.

MINNESOTA ITEMS

An eight-year-old St. Paul boy is accused of trying to wreck a railroad train.

Nearly a score of buildings were burned at Hastings, causing a loss of nearly $100,000.

The Minnesota Society Sons of the American Revolution celebrated its tenth anniversary at St. Paul.

Secretary Bracken, of the board of health, is working to get more complete vital statistics for Minnesota.

The Mabel creamery, at Mabel, is in ashes. Loss, $3,000; insurance, $1,500. Anderson & Goldberg were the owners.

The merchants in Worthington and adjoining towns have just closed one of the most successful holiday seasons on record.

Mrs. Charles Rucher of Howard was examined as to her sanity and sent to the asylum. She leaves six small children at home.

Miss Agnes Malmsten was accidentally shot by Martin Lovgreen, two miles west of Braham. She will probably recover.

Nathaniel Frost, one of the old settlers of Jackson county, is dead, at the age of seventy years. His wife and three children survive him.

The residence of Thomas Hessian at Le Sueur was partially destroyed by fire. Loss, about $1,500. Mrs. Hessian's hair was badly burned.

D. H. Stevenson of Duluth died recently as the result of paralysis. He was fifty-five years of age and a former resident of Indianapolis.

The taxes of North Branch for the year are a trifle lower than a year ago. A year ago the budget figured a total of 10 mills; this year it is but 9.7 mills.

Secretary of State Hay promises a Minneapolis miller to deal most vigorously with Turkey should any more Minneapolis flour be rejected in that country.

The Duluth Trades assembly will ask that a provision be inserted in the new charter making it a misdemeanor for a city official to accept free transportation over any railway line.

John McCormick, a Traverse county commissioner, was struck by a north-bound Milwaukee freight train and severely injured. The wagon was splintered but the horse was unhurt.

The Roscoe creamery at New Paynesville, burned in July, 1899, has been rebuilt by the co-operative association, and has commenced operations. The new plant cost $2,400.

Albert Nelson, a young man at Hester, was seriously injured while chopping wood with a companion. His companion's ax glanced, striking Nelson in the neck, inflicting a dangerous wound.

Fire partially destroyed the J. R. Beggs & Co. potato warehouse at Rush City. The warehouse contained about 5,000 bushels of potatoes. The building was covered by insurance but the stock was uninsured.

A Knights of Pythias lodge has been organized at Willmar, with twenty-six charter members. Delegations from Litchfield, Waverly and Dassel assisted. The ladies of the Presbyterian church served supper.

Deputy Veterinary Surgeon Eckles, at Dover, has condemned three head of cattle belonging to H. Brown, and one for A. Hart, as afflicted with tuberculosis, and they will have to be killed within thirty days.

The grand jury in session at Crookston has concluded its labors. During a nine-days' sitting that body has found and returned seventy true bills, besides considering a mass of evidence that was not sufficient to indict.

The new city hall at Franklin is approaching completion, and will be one of the finest public town buildings in the state. The contractors will, if the weather continues good, be able to finish the structure during the winter.

All of the lumber, buildings and goods in the south half of the west part of Main street in Canton were burned recently. James Manuel, Joe Dunford, Dr. H. H. Haskins, Clemans & Co.'s restaurant are all burned out, but are well insured.

New Ulm and St. James are both in the field for the freight headquarters of the Minneapolis & St. Louis railway. For a while it looked as if the plum would go to New Ulm, but St. James now has equal chances, and it is a toss-up as to who gets it.

B. A. Doherty, a farmer living near Byron, was attacked by a bull, and but for the timely defense offered by his dog in dividing the furious animal's attention, would, without doubt, have been killed. He was insensible when found and his injuries are serious.

The safe of the Duluth Shoe company was taken from the ruins of the burned plant and opened. The contents were found to be all right, and the records and papers perfectly preserved. The shoe company had $200,000 worth of orders on its books at the time of the fire.

Warden Reeve's first holiday at the state prison was exceedingly enjoyable for the inmates of that institution. An excellent programme was rendered in the chapel, consisting of vocal and instrumental selections. The convicts also spent a part of the forenoon in the corridors, and enjoyed an extra dinner, together with other holiday privileges.

A new bank is about to be established in the village of New York Mills. The bank will be a private institution, and is organized by a number of Wadena gentlemen. W. R. Baumbach will be president; E. J. Austin, second vice president; J. W. Austin, Jr., cashier. The bank is to begin business early in January.

Ole Harring was thrown from his sleigh in a runaway at Fergus Falls. His leg was broken and his skull fractured. Harring had been celebrating Christmas, and was returning to his home in Aurdal when the team became unmanageable.

The first meeting of the Winnebago County Farmers' Stock exchange was so successful that it will doubtless prove a monthly feature of Winnebago county agricultural life. Horses and cattle and new milch cows were sold, the sales amounting to about $1,000.

Chinese Defiance of Britain.

Peking.—An imperial edict offers special rewards for the capture of the reformer, Kang Yu Wei, dead or alive. As Kang Yu Wei is in Hongkong, this is regarded as an incitement to commit murder in a British colony.

Osman Digna's Escape.

London.—Osman Digna is said to have escaped from the Khalifa's last fight in the Soudan with [illegible] walking stick, without arms, ammunition or horse.

By the time a new public building is actually finished it is old.

SEDITION SPREADS.

Cape Colony M. P.'s Said to be Implicated.

London, Dec. 28. — A cable dispatch from Cape Town dated Dec. 20, says:

Sedition is spreading in Cape Colony. Three members of the Cape parliament are alleged to be implicated and one of them is said to have presented a Free State flag to a Boer commando, at the same time expressing the hope that he would carry it to glory and victory. Another member of parliament is said to be recruiting for the Boers. In addition, wealthy farmers are now aiding the invaders. The dispatch adds that glanders has broken out among the American mules, of which there are 1,100 at the Stellenbosch remount farm. Twenty-six of the mules have been killed and seventy-eight have been isolated.

At It at Ladysmith.

The war office has received a dispatch from Pietermaritzburg, Natal, dated Dec. 24, announcing that in an engagement at Ladysmith Dec. 22 Maj. A. O. King, Captains Wathen and Oakes, and Lieut. Col. Fawcett were wounded and nine non-commissioned officers and men were killed and ten wounded. This engagement had not been recorded before this.

Censorship Relaxed.

London, Dec. 28. — Dispatches from South Africa are still greatly delayed. But they are arriving more freely, which shows that the censorship has been relaxed. There appears to be no great change in the situation. A dispatch from Lourenzo Marques, dated Dec. 21, gives this information from the Boer head laager, dated Dec. 19: "The British naval guns at Colenso have been cannonading Bulwer bridge over the Tugela river with a view of smashing it. The bombardment of Ladysmith is proceeding slowly. Gen. Joubert has arrived here and been accorded a hearty welcome. He joined the burghers on Dec. 18."

A dispatch to the Daily News from Ladysmith, dated Dec. 15, by heliograph, says: "Another sortie last night. Gen. Hunter, with 500 volunteers, destroyed one six-inch Creusot gun, one Howitzer and one Maxim. One Briton killed. The Boer gunners fled."

There is an idea in some quarters here that Gen. Buler's destruction of the Bulwer bridge heralds an attempt to cut off the Boers now south of the river, but the general opinion is that the British will not make any serious movement pending the arrival of Lord Roberts.

War Office Criticised.

The newspapers continue actively discussing the management, or, rather, the mismanagement of the campaign. The incident of horse sickness throws increased attention upon the question of transports and the want of wagons which may tie the British forces to the railways. The Times, editorially, attacks the administration of the war office, calling attention to correspondence disclosing "glaring facts," and declaring that the British army is "being managed for the benefit of the war office and not for the nation."

Dispatches from Cape Colony, indicate the steady growth of the Dutch disaffection. The Cape Town correspondent of the Daily Chronicle describes the discovery of a plot to connive at the escape of Boer prisoners. The Times recommends strict restraint over the disaffected Dutch colonists and the enforcement of severe penalties.

The Sixteenth Lancers will go to South Africa from India at the special request of Lord Roberts, even after the government had decided that no more troops should be withdrawn from India.

30,000 British Colonists Under Arms.

The recruiting of British colonists in Cape Colony is actively proceeding. Thirty thousand are already under arms and several thousand more will be added. Dispatches from Modder River, dated Dec. 21, report that intermittent firing was continuing on both sides. The Boer shells fell short. A number of Free State burghers had surrendered. There is an unofficial report that a Canadian picket was cut off near Belmont. It is also asserted that fever is raging among the Boers.

The tests of wireless telegraphy at Modder River have been highly successful, communication over a distance of seventy miles being perfectly established. Six Marconi instruments intended for the Boers have been seized at Cape Town. A dispatch from Chieveley Camp, dated Dec. 21, says: "Lyddite shells are daily thrown into the Boer camp to prevent them working at the trenches. The firing of big guns is heard daily from the direction of Ladysmith."

Pauncefote Takes No Notice.

Washington, Dec. 28. — The British ambassador, Lord Pauncefote, has made no protest to the objectionable utterances of the fenians relative to the reported organized movement of Irish sympathizers in this country in behalf of the Boers, including the alleged Fenian movement, although the matter has been the subject for discussion between Secretary Hay and the ambassador as late as yesterday afternoon. It is understood, however, that the embassy is giving to these reports its attention, and to keep advised through the British consuls of the various political parties as to any movement of importance.

Cut the Doctor's Bills.

Iowa Falls, Iowa, Dec. 28.—The doctors of the county have heretofore treated the paupers and filed bills with the board, entailing an expenditure of upward of $4,000. To cut down the item of expenses the board let the contract to two physicians for $300 each for the balance of the year of 12 months. At the coming session an effort will be made to retain the old system. But the big saving the new plan has made will be a big argument in favor of the contract.

Famous Scientist Dead.

Baltimore, Dec. 28.—Prof. Elliott Coues of Washington, the world-famed ornithologist and scientist, died Monday night at Johns Hopkins hospital after a protracted illness. Prof. Coues was one of the most distinguished scientists in the United States.

Sugar Mill Destroyed.

Houston, Tex., Dec. 28. — The new sugar mill recently completed at Sugarland, Cunningham's plantation, was burned last evening with all machinery. Loss, $85,000; fully insured.

Endowment for a Prize Essay.

Boston.—Prentiss Cummings, a graduate of the Phillips Exeter Academy in the class of 1850, will endow a fund for a prize for the best essay on Homer's Iliad and Odyssey.

To Get Picture in Print.

Binghamton, N. Y.—John Edgar Gardiner, in order to get his picture in print, shot his young wife and then killed himself. Gardiner was sixty years old, his wife twenty-nine.

There is poetry in flowers, but the verse makers fight shy of the chrysanthemum.

Minnesota Historical Society

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

VOLUME XIX. ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY JANUARY 10, 1900. NUMBER 25.

PITH OF THE NEWS

DIGEST OF THE NEWS FROM ALL PARTS OF THE WORLD.

A Comprehensive Review of the Important Happenings of the Past Week Culled From the Telegraph Reports — The Notable Events at Home and Abroad That Have Attracted Attention.

Accidental Happenings.

Fire destroyed more than half of the business portion of Massena, Iowa, causing a loss of $25,000.

James Oakley of Petoskey, Mich., aged sixty-four, was fatally burned by an explosion of gasoline.

William Ellis, wife and two children were burned to death in their home, near Barbousville, W. Va.

Mather Bros.' Lumber company's buildings and stock at Richmond, Ind., were destroyed by fire. Loss, $7,500.

In a landslide on the water front of Mare Island, California, 150 feet of the sea wall slid into the bay. The damage is $75,000.

David Wright, engineer of the Chicago & Northwestern road, was thrown from his locomotive near Bertram, Ia., and killed.

Adolph Kiote, New York, was found dead in bed, asphyxiated by gas, and Paul Guthlin, his roommate, was unconscious.

A broken water main in the heart of the business district of Omaha did damage amounting to $15,000 or $20,000 before the water could be turned off.

Miss Emma Dye, principal of Lucas school, Des Moines, Ia., and one of the oldest teachers in the city, tried to fill the reservoir of a gasoline stove while the stove was lighted. She is expected to die.

Criminal Record.

James Poorman has been arrested at Lima, Ohio, for teaching children to steal.

John E. Robson of Sioux City, Ia., was assassinated. There is no clue to the assailant.

Florence Weaver of Xenia, Ill., jilted by her lover, cut a hole in the ice and drowned herself.

Books and records of the retiring auditor and treasurer of Shelby county, Indiana, are missing.

Ill-health is said to have prompted U. B. Rogers, auditor of the Pere Marquette railway, to commit suicide.

The treasurer of Lancaster county, Pennsylvania, is missing simultaneously with over $65,000 of the county's money.

William Martin was hanged in the court house yard at Cairo, Ill., for the murder of Joseph Landrum last October. On the scaffold Martin talked briefly, expressing his willingness to die.

Dionosio Gil, a Cuban brigadier, was shot and killed by a police officer while resisting arrest. He was one of the leaders of a gang at the depot to meet Generals Maso and Rabi, who had come to attend Gen. Wood's council of representative Cubans.

Senors Araluce and Larrzabel, of the large hardware firm of Araluce, Larrzabel & Co. of Havana, have been arrested on the charge of being implicated with the custom house inspectors and brokers in recent frauds. Both furnished $2,000 bail.

Personal.

The late Evangelist Moody left an insignificant estate and no will.

Admiral and Mrs. Dewey will be guests of Savannah, Ga., March 20.

Michael Dunphy, a pioneer of Ottawa, Ill., is dead, aged seventy-four.

Jean de Reszke announces that he will not sing in America this season.

H. H. Mason of Warren, O., one of the oldest Elks in the country, is dead.

Senator Vest announces his retirement at the expiration of his present term.

Jacob R. Decker, a pioneer, is dead at Charleston, Ill. He leaves a large fortune.

The pope has been directed by his physician to take absolute rest for several days.

Senator Clark of Montana expresses confidence that he will win in the coming investigation.

Rev. George Buckley, father of George E. Buckley, editor of the London Times, is dead.

Mrs. Frances Worth, wife of Brig. Gen. Worth, U. S. A., retired, died at Fort Hamilton, N. Y.

William J. Mahoney well known to sporting men as a promoter of boxing, died at Boston, aged forty.

Word has been received that Gen. Andrade, late president of Venezuela, is quietly living in Porto Rico.

Edward Todd, a well known manufacturer of gold pens and pencil cases, is dead at his home in New York.

John Albert, widely known as a maker of violins, is dead at his home in Philadelphia, aged ninety-one years.

Bishop Jackson, head of the Episcopal church in Alabama, against whom there are charges of drunkenness, resigned.

Admiral Dewey has subscribed $50 to the fund being raised to erect a monument to his flag lieutenant, Thomas M. Brumby.

Peter S. Wilkes, an attorney, once a member of the Confederate congress, is dead at his home at Stockton, Cal., aged seventy-four years.

Miss Florence Den, the actress, died in London. She toured the United States in 1864 and sat to the late Sir Frederick Leighton as a model for some of his pictures.

Rev. Sylvester Malone, pastor of the Roman Catholic church of Saints Peter and Paul, Brooklyn, and a member of the board of regents of the University of New York, is dead.

Sir James Page, one of the leading surgeons in England, is dead. Since 1877 he has been sergeant-surgeon to her majesty, and has been surgeon to the Prince of Wales since 1863.

From Washington.

The urgency deficiency bill will carry an appropriation of $5,000,000.

The past year proves to have been a prosperous one for the national treasury.

Emigration from Finland is increasing, and America is getting the most of it.

The Spanish cabinet has approved the commercial treaty with the United States.

Secretary Wilson approves the pardoning of violators of the oleomargarine law.

Senator Foraker has introduced a bill providing a form of government for Porto Rico.

Rear Admiral Hichborn will report that the cruisers Albany and New Orleans are serviceable ships.

The Republicans of the senate are determined to energetically push the financial bill to a final vote.

The United States denies England's right to seize the American goods captured at Lourenzo Marques.

President McKinley will recommend rewards for naval officers who took part in the battle of Santiago.

Congressman Cooney wants a constitutional amendment forbidding the admission of territory not contiguous as states.

Governor General Davis of Porto Rico will give Washington officials information relative to the needs of that island. A territorial government is assured.

The cigar leaf tobacco board of trade of the United States will soon ask congress to amend the law governing duties on imported tobacco so that the duty will not be payable until the time of its withdrawal from the bonded warehouse.

The secretary of war has sent to congress a report from Maj. Knok, inspector general of the army, on the condition of the national soldiers' homes. It shows the homes in excellent condition, clean, modern and well policed. Some of them are crowded. It is recommended that a law be framed to admit veterans of the Spanish and Philippine wars to the homes.

Foreign.

The Chilian government proposes to devote the surplus revenue, 8,000,000 pesos, to public works.

An earthquake destroyed ten villages in the Aichalkalak district of the government of Tiflis, Russia.

The prince of Wales has accepted the chief colonency of the Imperial Yeomanry and has contributed £105 for the use of the organization.

Gondolas are being rapidly replaced at Venice by steam and electric launches, and it looks as though the day of the gondolier was ended.

Dr. Bloch, the Russian writer, announces that the proposed Russian war exhibit at the Paris exposition will be omitted upon the czar's orders.

According to rumors current at Berne, the Swiss arbitration court will award 500,000,000 francs to the British claimants in the Delagoa railroad case.

The German second-class cruiser Seiwalbe has left Dar-Es-Salaam, a seaport in Africa, twenty-five miles south of Zanzibar, for Lorenzo Marques.

The latest reports from Achalkalek, in the government of Tiflis, Russia, show that 600 lives were lost during the earthquake which visited that district Monday.

Clergymen are continuing the use of incense and candles in the Church of England against the ruling of archbishops, but the holy war is making itself felt again.

The message from the throne at the opening of the Portuguese cortes does not mention Great Britain, the Transvaal or the rumored sale of Portuguese South African possessions to England.

The want of nurses is being felt at London more and more every day. The bad, unseasonable, changeable weather is carrying off a great many old persons with influenza, and most of the efficient nurses have gone to the war.

General.

Water has been turned into Chicago's drainage canal.

A big increase in Hawaii's sugar crop is expected.

The prices of fleece-lined underwear are to be advance.

Chicago laundries have formed a $2,000,000 combination.

Gold production in the United States shows a good increase.

Filipinos threaten trouble if the friars are permitted to return.

The Massachusetts supreme court has declared the Torrens law constitutional.

Nina Miller, aged twenty-one, of Milan, Ill., has been missing since New Year's day.

Receivers have been appointed for the American section of the Grand Trunk railway.

A combination of furniture manufacturers has been organized at Toronto, with a capital of $3,000,000.

The Omaha, Kansas City & Eastern, Omaha & St. Louis and Kansas City & Northern railroads will be combined.

Gov. Roosevelt, in his message, asks the New York legislature to make laws controlling trusts. Publicity is his remedy.

The committee of the National Hardwood Lumber association has decided to hold their national convention in Cincinnati May 3.

The Democrats of the Mississippi legislature have unanimously nominated Gov. McLaurin for the long term in the United States senate.

The total catch of seals by Canadian sealing vessels during the past season was 35,344, as compared with a total for the preceding year of 28,552.

Rafael Montoro, who was secretary of the treasury in the Cuban autonomist cabinet, will decline the chair of history in the University of Havana.

The last subscription of the $400,000 needed to insure the building of the woman's hotel at New York has been subscribed, and the plans will be at once drawn and work commenced. It will cost about $800,000.

A GALLANT SORTIE

BRITISH ATTACK A STRONGLY DEFENDED BOER WORK.

Forces of Baden-Powell Go Against a Strong Position of the Boers at Gametree, Near Mafeking—British Found the Position Stronger Than They Supposed—Boers Swept the Plain With Martini and Mauser Bullets, Causing Considerable Loss of Life—Boers Rob the Wounded.

London, Jan. 7. — The Times publishes the following dispatch from Mafeking, dated Dec. 26:

"At dawn to-day Col. Baden-Powell organized an attack upon a strong position of the enemy at Gametree, two miles from Mafeking, from which the Boers had been maintaining a desultory shell and rifle fire for several weeks. The railroad had recently been repaired between Mafeking and Gametree, where the Boers had destroyed it, the repairs being made in preparation for the sortie. During the night the armored train with Maxims and Hotchkiss guns, under Capt. Williams, and troops took up positions for attack from two places. Capt. Lord Charles Bentinck and a squadron were in reserve upon the right, while the extreme left wing was occupied by artillery under Maj. Pazim, and a galloping Maxim of the Cape police, the whole being under Col. Hore. Emplacements were thrown up du[illegible] the night, the intention being to a[illegible] at dawn, and the artillery fire to desist upon prolonged tooting from the armored train. At daybreak the guns opened fire and rapidly drew a reply from the enemy, our shells bursting within effective range. Capt. Vernon gave the signal to cease firing and to advance, his squadron leading off. As our men engaged the position with their rifle fire it was soon found that the strength of the fort was greater than we had supposed. The enemy concentrated such an exceedingly hot fire that the advance of Capt. Vernon was almost impossible, but by remarkable heroism of Captains Sanders and Vernon, Lieut. Patton and Scout Cook, who guided the squadrons, a few men actually reached the sand bags of the fort, within 300 yards of the head of the fort. But nothing living could exist there:

The Plai nWas Swept

by Martini and Mauser bullets. The men who charged through its zone of fire suffered terribly, and in an attempt to capture the fort twenty men lost their lives. Capt. Sanders was the first to fall, and Capt. Vernon, already twice wounded, and Lieut. Patton were killed at the fort. These two officers, climbing the ditch that surrounded the fort, pressed their revolvers through the enemy's loopholes, only to be shot themselves the next minute. Gametree is surrounded by scrub, which contained many Boers, and their accuracy of fire is testified to by the men who fell on the advance. Capt. Vernon's men being driven back at one part, attempted to scale the fort at another. They found the position of the Boers almost impregnable. When we were under cover of the armored train so many men had been wounded that there was a suspension of hostilities under the auspices of the Red Cross. All around the Boer position at once appeared the flags of mercy and it was seen that our wounded lay close up to the walls of the fort. Had the fort not been so extraordinarily well protected we should have been in possession. Some of the British wounded flatly accused the Boers of stealing their money, rings and other valuables. We had great difficulty in getting permission to use the armored train to remove our wounded. We believe that spies carried the news of our contemplated sortie to the Boers. The field cornet admitted that he was reinforced during the night by 100 mounted men and acknowledged withdrawing his guns."

British Secure No Substantial Gains.

London, Jan. 7.—No decisive operation is reported from South Africa this morning, military operations being confined to points of subsidiary importance. In the central theater of operations the British have apparently secured no substantial gains. The only dispatch of dramatic interest is the narrative of gallantry at the sortie at Mafeking, when the sortierers threw themselves hopelessly against a strongly defended Boer work. The question of contraband seizures takes almost paramount importance in the thoughts of the public, through the vague possibility that these may be made the pretext for continental intervention. The government's undeviating purpose to maintain the right to search resulted in the dispatch yesterday by the admiralty to their commanders in South African waters, of weighty warning to uphold the government orders with regard to the shipment of contraband of war by way of Delagoa bay.

Firing at Ladysmith.

London, Jan. 7.—A dispatch to the Daily Telegraph from Frere Camp, dated Jan. 5, says:

"There has been firing to-day at Ladysmith and at Colenso. A strong cavalry reconnaissance, under Lord Dundonald, proceeded westward this morning toward Springfield, where firing is progressing. There is a revival of the report that the Boers are short of provisions. Gen. Buller's army is eager for the advance."

Anti-British Feeling Growing.

Berlin, Jan. 7. — The seizure of the Bundesrath remains the dominant topic of the German press. Influential papers like the Berliner Tageblatt, Cologne Volks Zeitung, Berliner Nachrichten, Hamburger Correspondenz and the semi-official Berliner Post, strongly hint at the possibility of Germany forming an anti-British coalition with Russia and France. The anti-British feeling is clearly growing. A series of anti-British demonstrations in the various cities is being organized by the Pan-Germanic league. A prominent official of the German foreign office, who was interviewed by the correspondent of the Associated Press said that Great Britain had not yet answered Germany's request for an explanation of the seizure, but that the reply was expected in the course of a few days. The foreign office, according to this official, has not yet concluded that Great Britain is trying to ride rough shod over German.

Reconnaissance in Force.

Frere Camp, Natal, Jan. 7. — There was a reconnaissance in force from Chieveley yesterday forenoon, with 2,000 horses and two guns, the object being to locate the enemy on a hill south of Hlangwana hill. Several shells were fired, supplemented by the naval gun. The enemy replied at long range, but did not touch the British. Lord Dundonald, perceiving a strong mounted force issuing beyond the British guns with the evident intention of coming round on our flank, directed the forces to retire to Chieveley. The Boers' heliograph can be seen working north of Colenso to the Boer camp at Umlidowan. During the cannon fire farmers in the valley can be seen plowing complacently.

GILMORE RESCUED.

American Prisoners in the Hannds of Friends.

Washington, Jan. 7.—After a silence of several days Gen. Otis is able to notify the war department of the complete success of the military operations in Northwest Luzon, the main object of which was the rescue of the American prisoners whom the insurgents took with them in their flight. Although Gen. Otis does not specify Lieut. Gilmore, U. S. N., by name, the wording of his message is taken to mean that that officer was among the list of rescued prisoners. Gen. Otis' message is as follows:

"Colonels Hare and Howze just arrived at Vigan, Northwest Luzon, with all American prisoners. Their successful pursuit is a remarkable achievement. Generals Schwan and Wheaton, now with separate columns in Gavite province. Affairs in Luzon, north of Manila, wreatly improved."

ANOTHER ISLAND OURS.

The American Flag Is Raised Over Sibutu, Near Borneo.

Washington, Jan. 7.—The United States navy has taken possession of another island in the East. The news of the seizure was contained in the following dispatch:

"Cavite, Jan. 5.—On Dec. 21, Wentzbaugh, commanding the Albay (a little gunboat), hoisted the flag on Sibutu island, and the chief dato provided and raised the pole. Natives and North Borneo authorities pleased. —Watson."

The island lies at the southwestern angle of the boundary line of the quadrangle inclosing the Philippine group. It is probably, but not positively, outside of the line, and lies very near the coast of Borneo, commanding the principal channel between that island and the Philippines. The sultan of Jolo, whose group is close to this island, is believed to claim jurisdiction of it, and as his authority is recognized by the native tribes on the north coast of Borneo and vicinity, it is believed that his claim is well founded. It was probably at his instance that the naval officer commanding the gunboat moved.

ELEVATOR FELL.

Cable Broke When Near the Top, and Three Men Were Killed.

Chicago, Jan. 7.—An elevator in the furnace room of the brass foundry in the Illinois Steel company's branch works at Thirty-first street and Ashland avenue fell, instantly killing two workmen and injuring another so badly that he died a few minutes after being removed to the hospital. The men were using the elevator for carrying ore and blocks of iron to the upper rooms. When near the top the elevator cable parted and the car fell to the bottom of the shaft.

WON AGAINST THE UNION.

No Right to Force a Man Out of His Position.

Buffalo, Jan. 7. — Edward Wunch, a linotype machinist formerly employed in the composing room of the Evening News, who brought suit several months ago against David Shankland, as president of Typographical Union No. 9 of this city, to recover damages for alleged conspiracy, in forcing him out of his position because he refused to take out a card in the typographical union, got a verdict of $650 in the supreme court.

HER TITLE CLEAR.

Blythe Estate Now Clear From Courts and Lawyers.

San Francisco, Jan. 7.—Having satisfied the claims of her attorneys and secured the dismissal of suits against her, Mrs. Florence Blythe-Hinckley-Moore is now sole owner of the vast estate left by the late Thomas Blythe. That her title is acknowledged as good is shown by the fact that the Mutual Savings bank has purchased from her for about $300,000 a portion of the well known Blythe block on Market street.

Secret Railroad Conference.

New York, Jan. 7. — An important railroad conference has been in progress at the Waldorf-Astoria during the last twenty-four hours and may result in the Chesapeake & Ohio and the Norfolk & Western joining the Baltimore & Ohio in the Pennsylvania Central agreement, which is to do away with competition.

Dividends on Telephone Stock.

Fairmont, Minn., Jan. 7.—The Fairmont Telephone company held its annual meeting on the 2d inst. and reported a prosperous state of affairs, declared a 12 per cent cash dividend, and elected the old board of directors.

Prominent Banker Dead.

Neenah, Wis., Jan. 7.—Hiram Smith, president of the Manufacturers' bank and well known throughout the state, is dead. Mr. Smith, with his brother, started and operated the first paper mill in the Fox river valley forty-six years ago. He was seventy years old.

Last Act Was Best.

Pineville, Or., Jan. 7. — As a result of a drunken quarrel at a Piute Indian camp Matthew Wewa killed his wife, fatally wounded his brother and two squaws and finally killed himself.

Bank Teller Sentenced.

Boston, Jan. 7.—Joer G. Tyler, late teller of the Safety National Bank of Fitchburg, has been sentenced to five years in Worcester jail for embezzling the funds of the bank.

VERY HARD PRESSED

BOERS MAKE A DETERMINED ATTACK ON LADYSMITH.

British Public Face to Face With the Critical Moment in the Campaign—Next News May Be the Fall of Ladysmith—White Beats the Enemy Off at First, but They Renewed Their Attack With Reinforcements—Gen. Buller Makes a Demonstration Against Colenso.

London, Jan. 8. — Gen. Buller has wired the war office the following, dated Jan. 6, from Frere Camp:

"The following message received from Gen. White at 1 p. m. to-day: 'Jan. 6, 11 a. m.—Attack continues and enemy has been reinforced from the south.'

"The following was received at 4 this afternoon from Gen. White:

"'Jan. 6, 12:45 p. m.—Have beaten enemy off for the present, but they are still around me in great numbers, especially lots to the south, and I think renewed attack very probable.'

"The sun has failed and I cannot get further information from Ladysmith until to-morrow."

-o-

London, Jan. 8.—Gen. Buller sends the following from Frere Camp, dated yesterday:

"This is from White, dated Sunday, 3:15 p. m.:

"'Attack renewed; am very hard pressed.'

"I have absolutely no more news and there is no sun. There is a camp rumor that White defeated the enemy at 5 o'clock and took 400 prisoners. I sent all available troops Saturday to make a demonstration at Colenso. The trenches there were all occupied by the enemy."

Fall of Ladysmith Fehred.

London, Jan. 8.—The British public is at last face to face with a critical moment in the campaign. It may safely be said that at no previous time has there been such anxious suspense as was showed between the arrival of news bearing date of Ladysmith. The week opens with only fresh additions to the disasters that have befallen British Arms, and there is no longer any sustaining confidence to buoy up public opinion. The editorials this morning fairly reflect the extreme gravity of the situation with a painful undercurrent of nervous foreboding, mainly caused by the fact that while the Boers have now changed their tactics and assumed the offensive, Gen. Buller is apparently unable to do more to assist Gen. White than in making a demonstration. The Morning Post says: "He might as well have ordered a display of fireworks."

Great Britain has to face the terrible possibility that the next news will be the fall of Ladysmith. The disquieting feature is that the Boers seem to have had sufficient forces to deter Gen. Buller from attacking, while they themselves made strenuous efforts to reduce the town. In the presence of this enormous situation, even Gen. French's disaster, of which apparently the worst has not yet been heard, assumes quite minor importance in the eyes of the public. The war office has already decided upon immediate steps for sending an Eight regiment infantry division to South Africa.

Heaviest Yet Recorded.

London, Jan. 8. — A dispatch to the Daily Chronicle from Frere Camp says: "Saturday's bombardment of Ladysmith was the heaviest yet recorded. All the heavy guns were working and the Boers seem to be pouring in shells from every available lighter gun."

-o-

London, Jan. 8.—A special dispatch from Frere Camp, dated Saturday at 7:20 p. m., says:

"Gen. White heliographs that he defeated the Boers this morning. They crept up so close to the defending forces that the Gordon Highlanders and the Manchesters actually repulsed them at the point of the bayonet."

Buller Attacks Colenso.

Frere Camp, Jan. 8. — At 2 o'clock Saturday afternoon an alarm was sounded in Chieveley Camp and all the troops in the camp turned out promptly and advanced into the plain.

London, Jan. 8.—A special dispatch from Frere Camp, dated Saturday at 7 p. m., saps:

"At 2 o'clock this afternoon Gen. Clery's division marched out of camp to attack Colenso. Gen. Hildyard's brigade was on the left and Gen. Barton's on the right, with cavalry on the extreme right. The attack was slowly developed, and at 4:30 the British field guns advanced on the center and commenced shelling the Boer position on the flat land between Hlawan hill and Fort Wylie. About this time a heavy thunderstorm raged over the enemy's positions. At 5:30 our troops were still advancing and had reached a point very near Colenso. The naval 4.7 and field guns were busily dropping shells into the enemy's trenches along the river and the forts of the enemy had made no reply."

British Retreat From Dordrecht.

Lourenzo Marquez, Jan. 8. — A dispatch from the Boer headquarters near Dordrecht says: "The British have been compelled to retreat from Dordrecht. Fighting continues around Colesburg, where the British occupy some of the outside kopjes. Bullets are dropping inside the town."

French Meets a Reverse.

London, Jan. 8.—The war office publishes the following dispatch from Gen. Forestier-Walker, commanding at Cape Town, which is Gen. French's report, under date of Jan. 6:

"The situation is mush the same as yesterday, but I regret to report that a serious accident has happened to the First battalion of the Suffolk regiment. From news just come to hand from them I gather that with the authority and with the knowledge of Gen. French four companies of the First battalion advanced by night against a low hill one mile from their camp. They attacked at dawn. Lieut. Col. Watson, commanding, gave orders to charge. He was at once wounded. Orders for retirement were given. Three-quarters of the force retreated to camp. The remainder held their ground until they were overpowered by greater numbers, when they surrendered. Seventy were taken prisoners, including seven officers. Gen. French reports that the Boer commando which made the attack Jan. 4 lost fifty killed, besides wounded and prisoners. The commando was dispersed."

NOTED MEN INDICTED.

Grand Jury of Ingham County, Mich., Concludes Its Labors.

Lansing, Mich., Jan. 8.—The Ingham county grand jury, which created a series of sensations by bringing bills of indictment charging several state officers with flagrant criminal offenses, has adjourned, the term of office of Judge Person, who summoned the jury, having expired. The following are the persons who have been indicted and the offenses alleged:

Edgar J. Adams, speaker of the house of representatives, two indictments for bribery; William A. French, state land commissioner, offering bribes; Charles H. Pratt, agent for a law book concern, offering bribes; Representative D. Judson Hammond, Pontiac, soliciting bribes; Fred A. Maynard, ex-attorney general, misdemeanor in retaining portion of his chief clerk's salary; William White, state quartermaster general; Col. Harold Smith, assistant quartermaster; Arthur F. Marsh, adjutant general and chairman of the Republican state central committee, and Eli R. Sutton, regent of the University of Michigan and member of Gov. Pingree's staff, charged with alleged fraud and embezzlement in connection with the sale and alleged repurchase of military supplies.

CAUSED BY JEALOUSY.

Most Deliberate and Cold-Blooded Murder.

Newcastle, Pa., Jan. 8. — Jealousy was the cause of a most deliberate and cold-blooded murder here Saturday night, but the authorities were not notified until yesterday morning. Raphael Ambrosia and Peter Varavade, quarrymen, were in love with the same girl, Gracio Veltra. Saturday night Ambrosia, with two male friends, started out to visit at a neighboring house. Varavade lay in ambush for his rival, and when the latter came abreast of him he drew a razor across Ambrosia's face. He had evidently missed his throat, but he cut a gash that extended from the forehead to the chin, laying bare the teeth, and, in fact, opening the entire side of the face. Ambrosia uttered a shriek and the next instant Varavade drew his revolver and fired. The bullet entered the right side and must have passed straight to the heart, for Ambrosia fell dead and did not utter a sound. The murderer waved the other two men back with his revolver and calmly walked back to the boarding house, where he changed his coat and vest and left in the darkness and has not yet been found.

CRISTIAN SCIENCE VS. DIPHTHERIA

Bitter Battle in Which the Fell Disease Comes Out Winner.

Pittsburg, Pa., Jan. 8.—The Dispatch says: Diphtheria and Christian Science have had a bitter battle in a New Brighton family for the past two weeks. Diphtheria has won so far. Two children are dead, while a third child and the father are dangerously ill with the same disease. Frank Martzelof and his wife have been believers in Christian Science for three years, and so confirmed in the doctrine are they that they have seen their two little ones die of malignant diphtheria and were willing to see their remaining child perish rather than take her case "out of the hands of the Lord." Not until forced to do so by the health authorities would the parents permit a physician in the house, even then the father refused to give the medicine prescribed and the health officials were compelled to take the family in charge. Beaver Valley people are very much wrought up over the matter and it is likely that Christian Science, with its prominent leaders in New Brighton, will be investigated by the courts.

BURNS OUT A SISTER'S EYE.

Five-Year-Old Boy Thrusts a Hot Poker Into a Child's Face.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 8.—Mrs. Mary Patrick Stanton left her two children, a boy five years old and a girl three years old, alone. They played happily for awhile, when the boy, spying a poker, put it into the fire, and when it turned red hot thrust it into one of the girl's eyes, burning out the optic.

Killed His Neighbor.

Evansville, Ind., Jan. 8.—James Rutter, a farmer of Posey county, shot and killed Frank Spottsville, a neighbor. Rutter was trespassing on Spottsville's farm, and when ordered off drew his revolver and fired. He tried to escape across the river to Kentucky, but was captured by Sheriff Thomas just as he reached the river and is now in jail at Mount Vernon.

To Prevent Revolt.

Lima, Peru, Jan. 8.—In consequence of the reported attempts on the part of Chile to Chileanize the provinces of Taona and Arica, the revolutionary chiefs residing in Iquique have resolved to paralyze all efforts at revolt by issuing a manifesto to the nation leaving the government's hands free to devote entire attention to the rescue of these provinces.

Britain Buys French Guns.

Paris, Jan. 8.—The Matin says that Great Britain has purchased two batteries at the Loire basin. The Creusot works refused to supply England with any guns.

Arrested for Forgery.

Doland, S. D., Jan. 8.—Adam Leno was arrested in this place for forging a check for $25 on a liveryman at Groton, which he tried to get cashed here.

New York Factory Burned.

New York, Jan. 8.—Fire destroyed a six-story building at Fifty-ninth street and First avenue, occupied as a factory building. Loss, $200,000.

Great Fund for Refugees.

London, Jan. 8.—The Mansion house fund for the relief of refugees from The Transvaal has reached £500,000.

AMERICANS KILLED

IN RECONNAISSANCES OUT OF IMUS, CAVITE PROVINCE.

Three Were Killed and Twenty Wounded—Insurgent Loss Estimated at Sixty Killed and Eighty Wounded—Lieut. Gillmore Tells a Remarkable Story of His Eight Months' Captivity — Weak and Nervous From Hardships—Says Insurrection Will Last as Long as There Are Any Tagals Left.

Manila, Jan. 8.—Reconnaissances out of Imus, Cavite province, yesterday morning resulted in the loss of three Americans killed and twenty wounded. The enemy's loss is estimated at sixty killed and eighty wounded. Col. Berkimer, with a battalion of the Twenty-eighth volunteer infantry, advanced toward Novaltate. Maj. Tagert, with two battalions of the same regiment, advanced to Perez das Marinas. A force of infantry was engaged south of Imus.

Schwan Occupies Binan.

Manila, Jan. 8.—Gen. Schwan's column, advancing to the south, occupied Binan. One American was killed. Nine of the enemy's dear were found on the field after the fight. A number of rifles were captured and several prisoners were taken. Johnson, a deserter from the Sixth United States artillery, clothed in a major's uniform, was found among the insurgent dead at Novalate yesterday. Gen. Wheaton is moving toward Perez das Marinas to-day.

-o-

Washington, Jan. 8.—The navy department has received the following from Admiral Watson:

"Lieut. Gilmore, Walton, Van Doit, Ellsworth, Brisolese, Anderson, Peterson, Edwards arrived. Also Farley, Burke and Herbert, of Urdanetta. Only Venville unaccounted for. Last seen at Baler June 15."

Lieut. Gillmore in Manila.

Manila, Jan. 8.—Lieut. J. C. Gillmore, of the United States gunboat Yorktown, who was captured by the insurgents last April near Baler, on the east coast of Luzon, and released a few days ago by Col. Luther R. Hare, of the Thirty-third volunteer infantry, sat yesterday, in the apartment of his sister, Mrs. Maj. Price, at the Hotel Oriente, in Manila, and told a remarkable story of his eight months in captivity, ending with his dramatic deliverance from death that seemed to be inevitable. Although tanned and ruddy from exposure he is weak and nervous from hardships. He speaks warmly of Aguinaldo and very bitterly against Gen. Tino, stating that while in the former's jurisdiction he was treated splendidly, but that after he fell into Tino's hands he suffered everything. Lieut. Gilmore declined to speak regarding political conditions, except to say he believed the insurrection would last as long as there were any Tagals left. The members of the party reported to Gen. Otis yesterday morning. They are barefooted and in rags. Some carried rifles and others pet monkeys. They attracted a great deal of attention as they passed through the streets. Those whose enlistment is about expiring will be sent to the United States. Others will be returned to their respective organizations.

Stricken in the Pulpit.

Detroit, Mich., Jan. 8.—A special to the Free Press from Kalamozoo says: Rev. C. J. Thomas was stricken with apoplexy last night in his pulpit. He had just finished his sermon and raised his hands, saying: "Let us pray," when a pained expression shot over his face and he fell to the floor. His condition is pronounced as extremely precarious. He is fifty-five years old and a prominent minister of this city.

Says Goebel Will Win.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—Ury Woodson of Kentucky, national Democratic committeeman from that state and a member of the ways and means committee, who came to Chicago to attend the Jackson banquet, said: "Mr. Goebel will be in possession of the governor's office between Jan. 25 and Feb. 1. Senator Blackburn, and not Mr. Goebel, is the man who insisted upon carrying the contest up to the legislature."

Sliced the Manager With a Razor.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Jan. 8.—Moses P. Taylor, colored theatrical manager, had his congress of creole "beauties" here the past week and failed to meet his pay roll. After the show last night the creoles chased him. One of them cut him with a razor and he is at the hospital in a critical condition. The women all escaped and it is not known which one slashed the manager across the face and throat with the razor.

Peacemakers Seriously Cut.

Chicago, Jan. 8.—In a hand-to-hand fight between members of the Salvation Army and two men yesterday Albert Fred and Peter Kopman, of the Army, were seriously cut. Emmett D. Craig and another man engaged in a fight during the Army's services, and both turned on members of the Army who tried to separate them, using knives. Craig was arrested and the other man escaped.

Son Guilty, Mother Innocent.

Pana, Ill., Jan. 8. — At the trial of Henry Brunot and his mother for the murder of Jane Brunot, whose body was found in the abandoned well on the Brunot farm last April, Brunot confessed the crime, exonerating his mother. He was given a life sentence.

Condemned Murderers Escape.

Dexter, Mo., Jan. 8.—James Tettaton and Milo Gregory, under sentence of death for murder, and two cattle thieves escaped from the jail at Kennett by tunneling under their cells. A posse is in search of them.

Bank Cashier Shot.

Russellville, Ky., Jan. 8. — Edward Sinclair, cashier of the Deposit bank, was shot and seriously wounded. It is alleged the shooting was done by Will Elliston, a brother-in-law of Mr. Sinclair.

St. Hilaire Spectator.

ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA.

Beggars want hand-outs and robbers demand hands up.

Sometimes a wife can read her husband like a blankbook.

"What's yours?" is a question that usually provokes a smile.

A man who is tied to his wife's apron string is well connected.

When a busy man has leisure he always does some other kind of work.

It is a sad case for the reading public when a journalist goes from bad to verse.

Many a man who is unable to write manages to make his mark in the world.

The man who sows seeds of courtesy and kindness will reap an abundant harvest.

The fellow, who claims to be itching for a fight seldom comes to the scratch.

Always tell the truth—and you'll probably pose as the defendant in a suit for damages.

Speaker Henderson is said to be hot-tempered. He will have ample opportunity to demonstrate it.

Recent advices proclaimed that the chase after Aguinaldo had been given up. Now for another capital!

A Washington man who recently married, has asked his license fee back. He claims the investment was not profitable. Probably the lady has the same opinion.

"Citizen Sunday" has become a fixed institution in London, and this year on that date the clergymen in more than 300 churches of that city preached upon the duties of the citizen to the state. That is an institution which might well be adopted in this country. A man may be a good citizen without being religious; but at any rate every man who is truly religious should be a good citizen, and all the better citizen because he is religious.

A few centuries ago the bitterest foes in the world, probably, were the Spanish and the Dutch. Spain oppressed the Netherlands with unparalleled cruelties; the Dutch withstood the enemy and finally conquered them with unsurpassed heroism. Today the Spaniards are sending friendly congratulations to the Dutch in South Africa on their stubborn defense of their independence—the independence which the Spaniards themselves in the days of Alva so furiously denied. The whirligig of time has shown us few more striking changes of attitude than this. Spain once the great oppressor is now a friend of liberty. England once the Gibraltar of liberty is fighting that which made her great.

Florence Nightingale, now close upon 80 years of age, wrote a letter to survivors of Balaklava as a greeting for their recent union. The fragrance of her philanthropic work in the Crimean war is still a sweet savor after nearly half a century. What she did was a revelation to the world how a great purpose can carry one through labors almost measureless, amid surroundings fitted to try the stoutest heart. Those who saw the charge of the Light Brigade, and also witnessed her heroic labors, might well have reckoned her chances of survival far less than those of the men who faced the guns. Was not hers a case of losing life yet saving it? She was a martyr in will, if not in deed, but was spared for further service and permitted to be a pattern in noble works.

The Supreme Court of Indiana held, in the case of the City of Valparaiso vs. Hagen et al. that a municipal corporation, so long as it acts in conformity with the statutes and proceeds skillfully and without negligence or malice, and pursues the only natural and reasonably possible line of drainage, has a right to discharge its sewage into a natural water course and cannot be enjoined from doing so at the suit of lower riparian proprietors who suffer injury by reason of the pollution of the stream; that one who is injured by the acts of another done on his own land, which the latter has a clear legal right to do, is without any remedy either at law or in equity; that the rights of a riparian proprietor in a stream are subject to the privilege of other proprietors higher up the stream to exercise their legal rights with regard to it, and that the doing of an act which the law expressly sanctions and authorizes cannot be a nuisance except it become so by reason of the negligent or improper manner in which it is done.

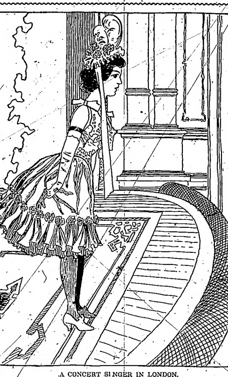
General Miles has been interviewed on the war in South Africa. "The struggle between the British and the Boers," he says, "is a very serious war. There have been some severe losses, and I believe there will be serious encounters before it is ended. As to the probable results, I, of course, cannot predict. If the British are defeated, is it likely to involve Europe in serious complications? It might and it might not." In the language of the sapient Jack Bunsby, the significance of this observation seems to lie in the application of it.

"The Unexpectedness of Poe" is the title of a recent essay by Hamilton Mabie. It is likewise the cause of Princeton's recent victory over Yale's football team. Unexpected triumphs, nevertheless, as in the cases of both young Arthur Poe and his predecessor, Edgar Allan Poe, are usually the result of indefatigable preparation.

Lords Roberts and Kitchener, who are to do the business for England in Africa, are both Irishmen. It is little wonder that John Bull insists on holding Ireland.

MACHINE WHICH TRANSMITS LIGHT.

Of all the marvels that are promised for the Paris exposition by far the most remarkable is the invention of Jan Szczepanik, the young Pole, who has invented a telectroscope, or distance seer, which reproduces scenes at a distance of forty or fifty miles or more, if needs be, as perfectly as though they were enacted in the very room in which the wonderful mechanism stands. In fact, the invention is really the greatest marvel of the wonderful advances made by nineteenth century scientific discoveries and forms a fitting climax to the unparalleled achievements of Edison, Tesla and Morse. This extraordinary triumph of mind over matter that annihilates distance and displays scenes happening far away from the beholder, is to sight what the telephone and telegraph are to hearing. That it has not been exhibited to the public before is due to the fact that the young Slav has been tempted by the offer of an enormous sum to sign an iron-clad contract not to show the distance-seer anywhere before the Paris exposition of 1900.



A CONCERT SINGER IN LONDON.

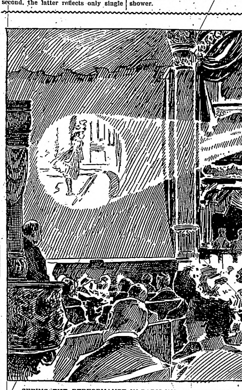
A golden bribe in the shape of 600,000 francs has been the price of the delay in exploiting to an eager world this remarkable discovery, and as a result the visitors to the Paris exposition of 1900 will be the first fortunate observers of this new marvel of the nineteenth century progress. This unique invention has solved to perfection the long dreamed of problem of sight-at-a-distance over wires just as the telephone transmits sound and the telegraph messages of joy, sorrow or business. Photographs are shown that have been taken in a darkened room from a camera forty miles or more away. The lucky individuals who have closed the contract with this young inventor have arranged for a large auditorium capable of seating 6,000 people where the views will be thrown on a screen, as in the case of an ordinary magic lantern. But not alone in this respect is the invention startling. In addition the views will possess all the shades of color existing in the moving scenes which they display, even to the smallest details. They will show, they say, the moving life of Piccadilly Circus right in London, where visitors in Paris can see their friends and acquantances in the moving panorama displayed before their eyes; the arrival of a transatlantic steamer at Brest or Havre, and, as curious as anything, a bird's-eye view of Paris taken from a balloon actually in the air. For this novel performance the best seats at the show will be 20 francs ($4) each, graduated to a lower scale of prices.

The principle of telectroscope depends upon the fact that any image produced upon the retina of the eye is only the blending of an infinite number of points projected separately from the object, seen by separate rays of light. It is not necessary that all these points reach the eye at exactly the same moment; the vision will still be perfect though some come a fraction of a second later than others, or though they all come at successive intervals, provided they be short enough. The "persistence of vision" of the eye will bring them together in a complete picture just as it makes a circle of fire out of a glowing match end when it is moved swiftly round and round. Szczepanik has found a way of separating any image that may be formed by an ordinary photographic lens into its component luminous points, of transmitting these points seperately, but with enormous rapidity, over wires and of letting the eye reconstitute them at the other end into the original picture. So rapidly do these points arrive over the wires that the scenes and figures appear as a complete whole; in other words the vibrations arriving at the rate of 3,000 or 4,000 a second follow each other with such rapidity that the impression conveyed to the retina is the same as if the picture were presented as a whole.

It therefore seems that the perfected telectroscope works something after this fashion. Two vibrating mirrors do the work of resolving the image into points and project them upon a selenium disk. Selenium is a rare element, similar to sulphur, which has the singular property of transforming waves of light into waves of electricity, so that if rays of light be thrown upon a selenium disk from which wires extend it will be found, on closing the circuit, that a current is set up in the wires. Furthermore, and more important, these rays of light, differing in color and intensity, produce currents which differ in intensity, each particular ray having its corresponding current, and no two of them alike.

The mirrors are metal plates fixed and sounding boxes, and are kept in continued vibration so long as an electric bell at a certain pitch is sounded somewhere in the apparatus. Furthermore, as these metal plates and their sounding boxes are tuned to the pitch of the electric bell, the two mirrors must vibrate at a uniform rate—3,000 or 4,000 times a second. And in the same way the two mirrors in the receiver must vibrate in unison with the far-away other pair.

How these mirrors—vibrating, say, 4,000 times a second—break up the image into tiny points of light and transmit them at the rate of 4,000 to the second is a marvelous story. Though mirrors, they are blackened, so that they reflect only one line each, as fine as the edge of a razor. In the first blackened plate the mirror line runs crosswise; in the second, it runs lengthwise; so that while the first vibrating reflects successive lines on the second, the latter reflects only single points of these lines upon the selenium cell.



SEEING THE PERFORMANCE IN PARIS INSTANTANEOUSLY.

Transforming the waves of light into waves of electricity, the selenium disk gives them to the wires for transmission. At the other end the series of electric impulses, acting on two steel plates, or "lips," causes them to open and close, so that the band of light between them constantly changes in intensity. The two mirrors in the receiver being arranged like the two in the transmitter, with the same periods of vibration and the same narrow lines of reflection, pick out single points from each band of light and project these points with incalculable rapidity upon a ground glass plate, on which they are blended in a perfect picture.

SUNSHINE AND RAIN.

Albuquerque and Spain at One Extreme and India at the Other.

Albuquerque, N. M., a town of 3,800 population, says it holds the record for the greatest number of sunshiny days in the year of any town on the American continent. Its records show a period of three years in which there were only two totally cloudy days when the sun was not visible at some time between the hours of rising and setting, and there is official corroboration for this in the announcement of the signal service that "the point of least annual rainfall in the United States is at Albuquerque, N. M." Other cities having a long record of rainfall are Port Said, Egypt; Hyderabad, India; Lima, Peru; Madrid, Spain; Valparaiso, Chili; Oran, Morocco; Majorca, in the Mediterranean sea; Jerusalem, Cairo, Barcelona and Alexandria. The heaviest recorded rainfalls in the United Kingdom have been 7 inches at Ardrishaig, Argyle, on Dec. 7, 1863, and 4½ inches at London April 13, 1878; while 24 inches of rain has fallen at Bombay in 24 hours, 30 at Genoa and 33 at Gibraltar. The wettest place in England is Seathwaite, where the average annual rainfall is 145 inches, and in the world Cherrapungi, in southwestern Assam, where the average for 15 years is 493 inches, and where in 1861 the record rose to 905 inches. The rainfall in the United Kingdom averages 38 inches yearly; on the European continent 25 inches and in the United States 40 inches, taking the whole country through. It is customary to designate as a sunny day one during which the sky is at no time clouded, though the exact lines of demarkation between sunny days, cloudy days and rainy days are seldom so clearly defined as to exclude controversies on the subject. The meteorological department of the United States government is conducted on a more thorough, comprehensive method than that of any European government when the extent and diversity of the territory covered and the obstacles to accurate information are taken into account. It is computed by statisticians that the average annual rainfall in the United States would, if by some magical or mechanical device all gathered into one place, exceed by four times the volume of water in Lake Erie, which has an area of nearly 10,000 square miles and an average depth of 200 feet. The annual rainfall is computed to be in volume about the same as all the water in the Mediterranean, and any person caught in a storm without an umbrella may, if of a philosophical disposition, take this fact into account as evidence of the truth of the ancient saying that nothing is really so bad but that it might be considerably worse. In a controversy recently started in Europe as to the eminence of "sunny Italy," "sunny Spain" or "sunny France," it was shown mathematically that Spain was the country best entitled to the designation "sunny," for Spain is the country in which in all Europe the number of sunny days is largest in a year, Italy following and France coming third. The rainfall in Seville is twenty-two inches a year, or only an inch a year less than in the city of San Francisco, an apparent discrepancy, which is explained by the fact that when it rains in Seville it rains very hard, where as a rainstorm in San Francisco does not rise usually to the dignity of much more than a shower.

The Oceanic's Godmother.

Virgil's often quoted "Dux femina facti" will not let us forget that it was a woman who founded Carthage. Since Queen Dido's day women, perhaps less famous but no less worthy, have been leaders in enterprises as far-reaching as the creation of that ill-fated kingdom. A New York letter in the Boston Post relates a pretty story of one who founded a floating kingdom; at least, we are told, the idea of the largest ship in the world was born in a woman's brain. When Mr. William J. Pirrie, head of the ship-building firm of Harland & Wolff, at Belfast, proposed to run for parliament, his wife dissuaded him. "Don't go to parliament, Willie," she said. "You can build boats better than you can make speeches." "By Jove, you are right!" exclaimed her husband, and forthwith set about making plans for a marine monster that should surpass anything afloat. The result in due time was the great White Star liner Oceanic, 704 feet long, with engines of 28,000 horsepower, and room to accommodate 2,100 people. Mr. Pirrie's tribute to his fair and brilliant helpmeet is quoted as follows: "It is my wife who is responsible for our big boat. In fact, she knows as much about it as I do. She followed the plans as keenly as I did for the two and a half years which we took in designing the building of the Oceanic. It was she who suggested many clever things about the arrangement of the ship. She suggested all the decorations." Apparently Mrs. Pirrie's suggestions determined the great size of the steamer, rendering it almost independent of weather and sure of its time schedules, its merit as an economical coal consumer, its exceptional space for passengers, and its sacrificing of high speed to comfort.

NO CHANCE FOR PROMOTERS.

They Do Not Seem to Flourish in Germany.

Neither Berlin nor Frankfort has yet produced a Hooley, and it is difficult to conceive that they ever will, says the National Review. Where all important schemes are brought out by well-known finance houses under the direct responsibility of substantial banks, there is little room left for Hooleyism. The German speculator has his faults and his misfortunes, for which every now and then he pays the penalty; but he is not to be fooled as our Hooleyites were by the front page of a prospectus. Promotions like those in which millions sterling were swamped here in 1897 could never have happened in Germany. The police would have stopped them with or without a hint from the kaiser. There may be quite as much "booming" on the Berlin bourse as in London, but it must always have a substantial basis. The shares themselves are generally sound, however much their rise may be inflated. Few persons even in the city have tried to realize what a terrible waste of British capital is caused by rotten promotions. If they did there would be much greater anxiety to put an end to them. The leak is always open, though we may never notice it or think of it except when we are startled by an unusually disastrous outburst. Even the petty little frauds each from idiotic subscribers cost the country a good many millions in the course of a year. When a hot fit of bubble promoting is on, £40,000,000 or £50,000,000 may vanish in no time, and to that extent not only the wealth but the productive power of the country is permanently crippled. So far the Germans have been saved from our promoting manias, and the great advantage which our larger resources should have given us is largely counterbalanced by the more efficient use they make of their smaller means. This distinction runs through every department of financial and commercial enterprise in which Anglo-American competition is keenest. It springs from a radical, one might almost say a racial, difference in the economic genius of the two peoples. Our national forte is individuality as that of the Germans is organization.

Old Sailor On the Men That Fight.

An interesting sailor's letter has been brought to light in a volume called "Sailor's Yarns, 1661-1831," which has just been published in England. It is a letter written by a jack on the Royal Sovereign, who took part in the great fight of Trafalgar. After it was all over he wrote home: "Honored Father—This comes to tell you I am alive and hearty, except three fingers. But that's not much; it might have been my head. We have taken a rare parcel of ships, but the wind is so rough we cannot bring them home, else I should roll in money. So we are busy smashing 'em and blowing 'em up wholesale. Our dear Admiral Nelson is killed, so we have paid pretty sharply for licking 'em. I never sat eyes on him, for which I am both sorry and glad; for, to be sure, I should like to have seen him—but then all the men in our ship who have seen him are such soft toads they have done nothing but blast their eyes and cry ever since he was killed. God bless you! chaps that fought like the devil sit down and cry like a wench."

Letters That Are Missed.

"It is estimated that during the last year 6,000,000,000 pieces of mail matter, including all classes, were posted in the United States," said Patti Lyle Collins in the Ladies' Home Journal for September. "Of this number, 6,312,731 were sent to the dead-letter office, making an average receipt of about 21,000 letters and parcels for each working day. During this period more than 85,000 pieces were dispatched either with insufficient postage or none at all, 32,000 bore no address whatever, 34,000 were misdirected, 200,000 were unclaimed at hotels, and something more than the last number were sent to fictitious addresses. And to these figures must be added 2,973,387 letters and circulars without enclosures of obvious value, which could not be returned to the senders and were destroyed. More than 50,000 letters containing money amounting to $38,959, while 32,422 included drafts, money orders, etc., to the value of $945,000, to say nothing of 30,000 with photographs."

More Easily Changed.

She—This dress doesn't become my complexion. I must change it. He—More expense? I can't stand it; you'll ruin me! She—You silly! I don't mean the dress—I mean the complexion.—Stray Stories.

Getting Even.

"Why should I marry you?" she asked coldly. "Well, of course," he replied, viciously, "you can be an old maid if you wish."—Philadelphia North American.

There can never be a fat life on a lean soul.

MAYAS OF YUCATAN.

WERE THE PYRAMID BUILDERS OF AMERICA.

And Had an Advanced Civilization Before the Advent of the Spaniards—They Are Now Fighting the Mexicans.

Behind the massive stone walls of huge prehistoric fortresses, reared 1,000 years or more ago, the descendants of the Egyptians of America—the pyramid-building Mayas of Yucatan—are awaiting the approach of the armed expedition sent against them by the Mexican government. Theirs is the last stand of savagery against civilization on this continent, and for more than one reason the outcome of the conflict will be awaited with interest. The regions inhabited by these wild people are as yet to so great an extent unexplored, the enormous structures uplifted upon pyramids which serve them as military refuges are so very great and of such mysterious origin, and the resistance of the tribes to subjugation by white authority has been so successful hitherto that an atmosphere of veritable romance may be said to envelop the situation. Meanwhile a fleet of twenty-four light-draught boats has been sent up the Pondo river, carrying troops to attack the natives, who are obstructing the commercial development of the country by interfering with the gathering of dyewoods and in other ways. Extensive portions of the peninsula of Yucatan remain unknown to the geographer simply because the boldest explorers have not dared to venture into them for fear of the fierce and warlike inhabitants. Several tribes of the latter have defied the authority of the government of Mexico for more than three-quarters of a century, holding the temples and palaces of their forefathers by force of arms and maintaining feud against all comers, white or red. Of these strongholds the most important is that of Puloom, oft seen but never visited by civilized travelers. It stands on a high bluff, in full view of the sea—a frowning outpost of savage domination. The structure is of immense size, and many centuries ago it was the strongest place held by the Mayas, whose descendants keep watch from its battlements today.

The status of the ancient Mayas at the time of the discovery of America was much like that of the Egyptians immediately before the dawn of history in the old world. In respect to civilization they were considerably ahead of any other people on the American continent. They were traders and navigators, building vessels of large size and maintaining a commerce with Cuba and Florida. Their arts were highly developed and their architecture was of so notable a character that at the present time thousands of square miles of the territory they once occupied are dotted with the ruins of their towns. Indeed, in that country the traveler is seldom out of sight of some massive structure of antiquity, and in one case a mountain 1,000 feet high has been completely remodeled by artifice into a system of pyramids and terraces.

Some of these buildings, like the edifice of Puloom, are so well preserved as to serve the purpose of fortresses most admirably, even now. The period of their construction no man knoweth, but many of them undoubtedly date back to a period before the time of Columbus. In that mysterious theater of vanished Maya civilization are found the remains of fifty-one cities, while a greater number are probably hidden beneath the tropical forests and in the unexplored region of the east and south.

There is something extremely picturesque and even weird about the notion of a race of savages lurking in the half-ruined fortresses and palaces built in dim antiquity by their civilized ancestors. Some day, doubtless, these mysterious retreats will be explored, but meanwhile the accessible remains of ancient Yucatan cities afford a sufficiently attractive field for ethnological study. The country has almost no surface water, nearly all of the streams running underground. In places the roofs of these subterranean rivers are perforated by the disintegration of the limestone strata, forming natural wells or sinks 100 feet or more in depth, the water in which can be reached in many cases by ropes or ladders. In olden times every such well, or group of wells, was encircled by buildings enormous in size and richer in barbarious sculpture than any others in old America.

Barring the Egyptians, the ancient Mayas of Yucatan seem to have been the greatest pyramid builders the world ever saw. Sometimes they shaped entire hills to serve as supports for temples or groups of shrines, but ordinarily they would take a small elevation and add courses of stone in such a manner as to give increased height and symmetry. In the interior of some of the mounds thus uplifted have been found supporting constructions of masonry and even cement floors.

Safety of Railway Travel.

"I don't know of any safer pastime than railway travel," said Auditor Curry, of the Nickel-plate road, recently. The reports of the interstate commerce commission show that out of 2,000,000 passengers one man is killed each year, and that one in 200,000 is hurt. That means all manner of hurts, broken legs as well as broken fingers, and an occasional bump from rolling out of an upper berth. Why, more men get hurt walking along the streets by bricks falling on them, or by stumbling over stray dogs, or being run over by bicycle riders, than receive injuries on railroads. Here is the practical result: The accident insurance companies may pay double damage to a man hurt on the railways—they know perfectly well the inconsiderable percentage of such risks. And the best risks are commercial travelers. They know exactly how to travel, and for that reason damage comes to a drummer as seldom as teeth to a hen." —Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Defined.

From Brooklyn Life: Teacher—Johnny, you may define the first person. Johnny—Adam.

THE NATURE OF MICE.

It Is Somewhat of a Puzzle to the Human Mind Until You Understand It.

From Pearson's Weekly: Few people understand the mystery of mice. I think I can, without immodestly, claim to understand mice, for I have made them a study for many years. I used to think that nature supplied mice wherever there seemed to be any call for them. For example, if you live in a house where there are no mice, and in a rash moment provide yourself with a mouse trap, or set up a cat, mice will immediately make their appearance. To the superficial observer this looks as if nature, perceiving that you have a mouse trap, proceeds to supply mice for it, or noticing that you have a cat, sends mice enough to satisfy the animal. But this is not the true explanation. In order to understand mice you must grasp the fact that the mouse is an animal with a keen sense of humor and a love of excitement. With this key in your possession you can readily unlock the mystery of mice. That the mouse has a sense of humor is conspicuously shown by the way in which he will rattle a newspaper in your bedroom at night. The mouse does not eat newspapers, neither does he put them to any domestic use. He merely makes a noise with them, knowing that of all the sounds the midnight rustle of a newspaper is the one which will most successfully banish sleep from your eyes. If a mouse finds an eligible newspaper in your bedroom he will settle himself down to a night of fun and jollity. He will rattle that newspaper till morning, and the only effect of throwing boots at him or of getting up and lighting the gas and searching for him with a poker will be that he will hide himself till you lie down to sleep and then resume his little newspaper game. If this does not show a sense of humor it would be difficult to say what it does show. Then there is the well-known fact that no sooner does a mousetrap or a cat enter a house than it is followed by a troop of mice. Cats and traps draw mice as the pole draws the magnet. The mouse loves the game of teasing the cat by stimulating the latter's hopes of capturing mice. It is considered the height of fun among mice to scuttle across a room in the presence of a cat and to disappear in a hole just as a cat is ready to pounce. Of course, now and then a too reckless mouse pays the penalty of rashness by being caught by the cat, but accidents of this kind are more rare among mice than football accidents among men, and in no way render mice shy of the game. If you once understand the nature of mice you need have no trouble with them. Banish from your house every cat, trap and newspaper, and not a mouse will show itself. Fill your house with newspapers, traps and cats, and mice will flock to it from miles away. No mouse will go to a house where no amusement is offered to him. This lesson I have learned, as I said, by years of study, and it has been confirmed by the testimony of several of the most intelligent cats whom I have known.

HATRED IN BELGIUM.

People Widely Divided by Differences of Race and Creed.

The Belgians, who are commonly supposed to be so prosperous and pacific, are divided by differences of race, creed, and social condition more violent than exist in Ireland, where, at all events, all alike, with insignificant exceptions, speak one tongue, says the London Spectator. The French-speaking Belgians despise the Flemish-speaking Belgians, and the Flemish-speaking Belgians detest the French-speaking Belgians, with the rancor only concealed by the long habit of living and acting together—a habit, which, remember, has not prevented the same contempts and aversions from continuing to exist in Ireland. The clericals and the secularists hate each other as only religious parties can hate; far more than Catholics and Protestants in any of the countries where the two creeds stand side by side. The secularist seems to the clerical a blasphemer against whom almost all devices are justifiable, while the clerical is held by the secularist to be a kind of evil food, from whom nothing is to be expected except cunningly concealed malignity. The possessors of property expect that the "ugly rush" which used to be talked of in England will occur tomorrow, while the wage-receivers declare that they are worked to death for the benefit of others, who will not leave them so much as a living wage. There is, too, some justice in these complaints, for the socialists of Belgium are very fierce, and if they got their way would not talk much of compensations, while the mass of the laborers are badly paid and work an unreasonable number of hours—a grievance not in the least soothed away by the occurrence of numerous church festivals. It is little relief to a man who must work fourteen hours a day for a week to be told that a fortnight hence there will be a festival of St. Ernulphus. And last, these three causes of division and hatred constantly march together, the French-speaking secularist being the impoverished workman, and the Flemish-speaking Catholic either a peasant or one of the better paid. All, too, display when excited a noteworthy fierceness of temper, a readiness to shed blood, and a disposition to push every quarrel into a sort of war—tendencies visible throughout the history of the country. There is always a possibility of revolution under such conditions and one does not perceive what change would permanently remove them.

Clerical Ordinance.

From the New York Advertiser: Hobbs—I see by the papers that your friend, the Rev. Dr. Bang, has joined the artillery of the church. Dobbs—What do you mean? Hobbs—Why, he's been made a canon of the cathedral. Dobbs—H'm; I didn't know that he was such a big gun.

Future Pavements.

Teacher—"Now, little girl, I have told the class about the wicked place being paved with good intentions. Now what do you suppose heaven is paved with?" Little Girl (with a delightful recollection of a fresh-aid picnic)—"Ham sandwiches, bananas, an' pie."—Harlem Life.

SCIENTIFIC TOPICS.

CURRENT NOTES OF DISCOVERY AND INVENTION.

Novel Apparatus—Automatic Sink Door Opener—Power of the Imagination—A German Airship—Bombarding an Observatory—An Electric Foghorn.

Power of the Imagination.

A scientist in England is said to have given a demonstration of the power of the imagination at a recent lecture by playing a trick upon his audience. Among his apparatus he placed prominently a bottle, carefully stoppered and protected by a wicker basket, as if its contents were of a powerful and perhaps dangerous nature. After some experiments he said he wished to try how quickly an odor would spread through the room, and requested those who felt it to hold up their hands immediately on doing so. He then unstoppered the bottle referred to, with great apparent caution, and poured some of its contents on a piece of cotton wool, keeping his face as far away from his hands while doing so as he could, and remarking that the odor might be pungent, but it was really harmless. In 15 seconds most of those in the front row had raised their hands, and in 40 seconds the odor had spread to the back of the hall. About 75 per cent of the audience claimed they felt the smell. At length the front sitters were getting sick and preparing to leave the room, so the lecturer thought it time to explain that the liquid poured from the bottle was pure distilled water, and had no smell at all!

Senile Decay and Rejuvenescence.

In his opening address to the zoology section of the British association, Prof. Sedgwick said that since organisms are liable to wear and tear, sooner or later some part or parts essential to the maintenance of the vital functions wear out and are not renewed by the reparative processes which are supposed to be continually taking place in the organism. This constitutes senile decay, and leads to the death of the organism. There is no reason to suppose that the reparative process of any organism, not even of the lowest infusoria, is sufficiently complete to prevent senile decay. With regard to buds in plants, there is reason to believe that they share in the growing old of the parent. That is to say, if we suppose the average life of the plant to be 100 years, a bud removed at 50 will be 50 years of age, and only be able to live on the graft for fifty more years. As good examples of the kind of cause of senile decay, the professor mentioned the wearing out of the teeth which, in mammals, at any rate, are not replaced; and the wearing out of the elastic tissue of the arterial wall, which is probably not replaced.

A New Alloy.

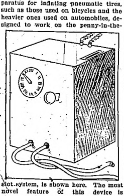
A new alloy, known as magnalium has recently been invented by Dr. Ludwig Mach, a German scientist, and consists of a combination of aluminum and magnesium, resulting in a compound which is lighter than aluminum and can be worked like brass. The two metals have properties that make them well suited for such a union, and in making the alloy any change in the proportions will give different characters to the compound. If ten per cent of magnesium is used the alloy is like zinc; with 15 per cent, it resembles brass, and with 25 per cent it is similar to a compound bronze. It is claimed that it can be soldered, that it will resist dampness, and gives good castings. It is as white as silver, and sufficiently hard to cut aluminum, while it can be worked in the lathe with as great facility as brass. Magnalium is particularly suited for lens-mountings and instruments where light weight is a desirable consideration. When purchased by volume the new alloy is less expensive than brass, and has been spoken favorably of by leading German instrument makers.

A German Airship.

A great German airship is being constructed in a dockyard. It is being built on a floating raft, and at present it resembles the skeleton of a huge vessel. It was built of such delicate material as to suggest an enormous birdcage. It is made entirely of aluminum, and the outer skin will be stretched on this framework. Inside a number of large balloons will be placed. A gallery and cars all made of aluminum will be placed underneath; engines are provided to drive the airship. The total lifting capacity of the airship will be about ten tons, which is sufficient for it to carry enough stores and ballast to permit of its remaining in the air for some days; $350,000 has been expended upon this experiment.

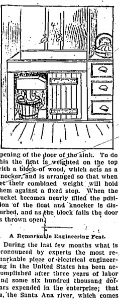
Novel Apparatus.

An interesting and novel form of apparatus for inflating pneumatic tires, such as those used on bicycles and the heavier ones used on automobiles, designed to work on the penny-in-the-slot system, is shown here. The most novel feature of this device is the mechanism for controlling the air pressure, which is produced by means of an electric motor and compressor. This is set in operation by the insertion of a penny in the chute shown, and the operation of the plunger is as usual in coin-controlled mechanism. After the tires are connected to the tubes shown the pointer is adjusted to the proper point on the dial, the figures of which represent pounds of air pressure desired. The coin is then dropped in the slot and the plunger pushed home. As soon as the pressure required to force the air into the tube becomes so great as to indicate that they are properly inflated the electric contact is broken, the motor stops and the pressure is cut off.



Automatic Sink Door Opener.

In suburban and rural districts unprovided with underground drainage, sinks, such as are ordinarily used in kitchens, are fitted with drain-pipes arranged to discharge the refuse water into catch-pails, usually placed in a cabinet located beneath the bowl of the sink. In use these receptacles frequently overflow and cause considerable damage and inconvenience. An invention to avoid accidents of this kind has been recently patented by an inventor of Kelso, N. D. He provides a device which is operated by a float properly positioned within the catch-basin, so that when the latter becomes nearly filled the fact is indicated by the opening of the door of the sink. To do this the float is weighted on the top with a block of wood, which acts as a knocker, and is arranged so that when set their combined weight will hold them against a fixed stop. When the bucket becomes nearly filled the position of the float and knocker is disturbed, and as the block falls the door is thrown open.



A Remarkable Engineering Feat.

During the last few months what is pronounced by experts the most remarkable piece of electrical engineering in the United States has been accomplished after three years of labor and some six hundred thousand dollars expended in the enterprise; that is, the Santa Ana river, which comes out of the San Bernardino mountains, has been bridled, and its power is now transmitted to Los Angeles, some eighty-two miles distant. In a word, 9,000-horse-power is made to propel machinery, move street cars and illuminate and even heat buildings in Los Angeles, besides furnishing illumination and power for several villages—as Redlands, Riverside, Colton and Ontario—between the mountains, and the engineers seem to agree that the most remarkable feature in this development of the power on the Santa Ana river is the transmission of electricity of a high voltage over eighty miles of wire with so little loss of energy, the company finding, in fact, that it can send electricity of 33,000 volts, having a working efficiency of 4,000 horse-power a distance of eighty-three miles with a loss of but 10 per cent. After doing its work in the production of electrical energy, the mountain stream is gathered into a conduit and led down the mountain side to irrigate the orchards and groves in San Bernardino valley.

Bombarding an Observatory.

On July 19 last an eruption of stones, ashes and steam occurred from the great crater of Mount Etna, and the astronomical observatory situated near the base of the crowning cone of the volcano had a remarkable escape. Stones were shot to a height of more than a mile, and thirty holes were made by these projectiles in the iron dome of the observatory, which covers a large and valuable telescope. Fortunately the instrument was not touched. Fifty holes in the ground near the observatory show how close and fierce was the strange bombardment. Where the falling stones pierced the wooden floor holes were burned.

An Electric Foghorn.

A Canadian engineer has invented a foghorn in which the noise is produced by half a dozen clappers striking a gong and actuated by electro-magnets. A dynamo, supplied with power by a naphtha engine, furnishes the current. About 600 strokes per second fall upon the gong, thus producing a practically continuous sound, and this is magnified and governed in direction by a megaphone. A small model of the horn is said to have made itself audible at a distance of two miles.

Recent Inventions.

Spools of thread are held in a convenient position for use by a new bracelet, which has two spring clips to grip the wrist, with two spindles supported end to end, to be inserted in the holes of the spool.

Telegraph poles can be easily erected with a new machine, which has a crank shaft set on the top of a long tube, to rotate a screw-threaded sleeve which projects a rod out of the sleeve to raise the pole into a vertical position.

To be secured to the ceiling is a handy mercantile broom-holder with a bracket, from which depends a rod, having a series of horizontal arms radiating from the lower end, the arms being slotted to receive the head ends of the broom handles.

A New York woman has designed a fastener for veils, comprising a double-ended wire loop, with prongs at the center to attach it to the hat or hair, safety-pins being provided with hooks to engage the loop after the pins are inserted in the veil.

To harden the plaster rapidly after an impression is taken for a set of teeth an improved dental impression tray is provided with a hollow under portion, with pipes attached for connection with the water faucet, to circulate cold water around the tray.

A Chicago man has patented a musical bicycle, which has a number of vibratory strings secured to a detachable frame, with a toothed roller revolved by the propulsion of the bicycle, to operate a series of spring hammers and play tunes on the strings.

THE LAUNCHING OF A WARSHIP.

It's An Impressive Scene When the Big Vessel Glides Into the Ocean.

"She starts; she moves; she seems to feel
The thrill of life along her keel.

* * * * * * * *

And then, with one exultant bound,
She leaps into the ocean's arms."

And though "she" be a sailing vessel of the good, old-fashioned kind, or a modern battleship, the process is no different, and old ocean receives her as he always has, with the same sparkling hospitality.

The launching of a ship is one of the most impressive of sights, and particularly is this true if the vessel be a grim war-dog for the navy. When the Wisconsin was launched, Nov. 26, 1898, at San Francisco, thousands of people thronged the shipyard and the territory adjoining for a glimpse of the spectacle. It was a gala day in the history of the city, and the whole community was out en fete to participate in the festal occasion. High above the pigmy crowd the vessel towered, almost as Bunker Hill monument towers above the buildings which surround it. Near her bow stood the reviewing stand, with its load of notables, among them, the observed of all observers, she with the bottle of champagne with which the vessel was to be christened.

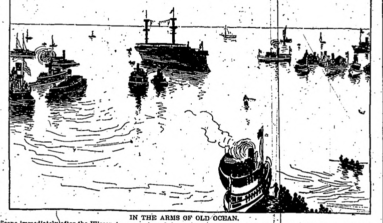
Far down beneath the keelson of the vessel stout hammers began to knock and beams gave out the sound which signified their capitulation before the fierce onslaught of the enemy. Steadily rained the blows, till all at once, with a creak and a lurch, which settled into a gliding motion, the great vessel started down the way, her cutwater glistening with champagne from the broken bottle.

"I christen thee Wisconsin," said a sweet voice, as the vessel swept away from its birthplace, and found rest on the bosom of old ocean amid a throng of fussy, inquisitive little tugboats which thrust their impertinent noses up against the sides of the new sea monarch as proudly and haughtily as you please.

THE X-RAYS AND LONGEVITY.

German Doctor Says You Can Find Out How Long You Will Live.

The other day a German doctor, M. Richter, sent a communication to the Imperial college of medicine of Berlin, which has made quite a stir in Germany. He avers that by a thorough study of the organs by means of X-rays one may determine pretty exactly the length of life of a human being. It was known for a long time that the size of the heart, the lungs, the digestive organs and the brain might be considered among the best conditions of longevity; but M. Richter goes still further. He holds that there exists a close correlation between the length of life and the dimensions of the different organs, and it is upon this supposed correlation that he bases a system supported by numerous observations and statistics. Richter admits himself that there are "individual exceptions." Without those exceptions his discovery might be considered one of the most terrible plagues that ever threatened humanity. The idea of changing the entire world into one immense troop of people condemned to death, and knowing the precise hour when they would quit this world could only originate in the brain of a German. Notwithstanding this, M. Richter is good enough to admit that there are natures which seem rebellious to every "interview" of this kind. Science has heard of the case of an Englishman, born in 1483, whose delicate appearance made all the doctors give him up when he was in his cradle. His chest was so narrow, says the report, that he seemed to have difficulty in breathing. Well, this young moribund, condemned by the doctors to die in short order, died in 1651, at the age of 169. He saw the reign of ten kings. Secundi Hango, consul of Venice at Smyrna, measured only fifty-seven centimeters around the chest, and one of his lungs was diseased. Nevertheless he lived to the age of 115 years. He was married five times and had forty-nine children. When he was 100 years old he got his wisdom teeth. When he was 110 his hair turned black again. At 112 his eyebrows and his beard turned black. But M. Richter classes these anomalies among the "individual exceptions."—Courrier des Etats Unis.



IN THE ARMS OF OLD OCEAN.

Scene immediately after the Wisconsin was released from the cradle where she had been skillfully nursed for months.

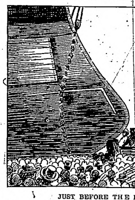
Large Walnut Tree.

The largest walnut tree ever cut in northeastern Kansas was recently felled near Fanning in Doniphan county. Its age was estimated at near 120 years, and it made 769 feet of lumber. The base of the tree measured four feet two inches. Most of the walnut timber now cut in that section is young timber.

HAYDN AND THE LADIES.

Wonderful Susceptibility of the Great Composer.

When Haydn came to England he succumbed, says the writer of an article on "Music and Matrimony," in the Cornhill Magazine, to the charms of a certain Mrs. Shaw, who figures in his diary as the most beautiful woman he had ever met. As a matter of fact, Haydn was always meeting the "most beautiful" woman. "The loveliest woman I ever saw" was at one time a Mrs. Hodges, while at another time the widow of a musician named Schroeter so fascinated him that he kept her letters for many years, and declared that if it were not for the existence of Anna Maria he would have married her. Certainly Mrs. Schroeter's letters were pleasant enough. "Every moment of your company," she wrote from Buckingham Gate, in 1792, "is more and more precious to me now that your departure is so near. I feel for you the fondest and tenderest affection the human heart is capable of. I ever am, with the most inviolable attachment, my dearest and most beloved Haydn, most faithfully and most affectionately yours." What would the absent Frau Doctorin Haydn have said had she known of it? The composer also got mixed up in a little affair with the beautiful Mrs. Billington. Sir Joshua Reynolds was painting her portrait for him and had represented her as St. Cecilia listening to celestial music. "What do you think of the charming Billington's picture?" said the artist to Haydn when the work was finished. "It is indeed a beautiful picture," replied Haydn. "It is just like her, but there is a strange mistake. You have painted her listening to the angels, when you ought to have painted the angels listening to her." If Haydn paid compliments like this all 'round, we can easily understand how he attained such fame as a London society man.



JUST BEFORE THE LAUNCHING.

Lord Salisbury's Oratory.

Lord Salisbury is one of the least pretentious of orators. Bent in figure and with eyes half closed, he is a listless speaker, who disdains to cultivate the art of elocution. He has a clear, penetrating voice of high carrying power, however, so that he is always heard distinctly in the largest public hall. His best speeches are made on such occasions as the Guildhall banquets, when he is conscious that foreign governments are weighing every word he utters. He rises like a man in a dream, and without revealing any earnestness of manner, takes the audience into his confidence, and shows with what dignity and clearness a statesman can think aloud.

Why Tower, and Not Castle.

London's most famous historical building was named the "Tower," and not the "Castle," of London. Most fortresses of Norman construction in England keep the name of castle; London's Norman fortress alone bears another title. The reason is to be found in the methods of Norman military architecture. A Norman fortress was constructed of a tower or keep, with an attendant castle, each having the same relative importance. The first Constable of the Tower called himself "Constable of the Tower of London and its attendant Castle." Whereas in the case of most such buildings in England the name castle has survived longest, in the case of the principal fortresses at the capitals of Normandy and of Norman England the tower was the chief part of the fortifications. Thus the castle at Rouen, like the castle at London, always has been called the "Tour de Rouen." The White Tower was so called because its builder, Henry III., whitewashed it.

GAME HORSE.

Galloped Home with a "Twitch" on His Nose.

"I've seen many a thing on race tracks, but I think the greatest race I ever saw was at New Orleans a few years ago," remarked a track follower the other day. It was several years ago at New Orleans, and one of the best horses to bet on was Duke of Milpitas, owned by Ald. Carey of Chicago. But he was a rogue, and whenever he took it into his head to run no one could beat him, but if he sulked nothing could budge him. On this particular day he was a warm favorite, as the distance was seven-eighths, the going heavy, and all conditions just to the liking of the Duke. He went to the post all right, but he was soon out of sorts, and no amount of lashing could make him budge. Finally a "twitch" was sent for and the assistant starter soon had the Duke toeing the mark. The 'twitch' had caught on his nose in some manner and the stick kept hitting him on the legs and chest. Despite them—or, perhaps, on account of it—the Duke ran faster than he ever did before. He won all the way, with the 'twitch' hanging to his nose. Ald. Carey won a small fortune on his horse, and he has the same old 'twitch' hanging in his private office to this day."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Letters from Besieged Parisians.

From the Seine, near Villeneuve, not far from Paris, has been taken a curious reminder of the days of the Paris siege. It is a zinc ball, which contained over 300 letters, written in December, 1870, when the German coil was tightening about the French capital. At that time, besides the balloons and carrier pigeons as means of communication with the outside world, the people of Paris inclosed letters in small zinc globes, sealed the receptacles hermetically and dropped them into the Seine. The friendly waters drifted the globes down until they reached the French lines below. After a while the Germans learned of this expedient, and placed nets in the river above the nets of the Frenchmen and captured the globes. A little while ago a fisherman near Villeneuve found one of these globes, and with a sharp knife opened it and extracted the letters. The old letters still legible, were sent to the postoffice, and such of the addresses as can be found will receive the missives twenty-eight years overdue.

Out for Business.

From the Chicago News: Mack O'Rell—Old chap, I always considered myself a pretty masher, but the other day I met my match. Luke Warme—How was that? Mack O'Rell—Why, I noticed a beautiful young woman gazing in a shop window. I went up and coughed slightly to attract her attention. Guess what happened? Luke Warme—Can't imagine. Mack O'Rell—Why, she tried to sell me some cough drops.

Relics of Cliff Dwellers.

Among the relics of cliff dwellers in Colorado is one building that sheltered probably six thousand people.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

SOME GOOD STORIES FOR OUR JUNIOR READERS.

A Restaurant for Birds—How Uncle Otto Fed the Cold-Weather Birds—Mice as Food in China—The Seven Sleepers.

The Seven Sleepers.

Curly-headed Baby Tom
Sleeps in his cozy blankets warm,
In his crib.
Bob-o'-Lincoln—oh, so wise!
Goes to sleep 'neath sunny skies,
'Mid the leaves.
Mr. Bruin, night and day,
Snoozes all his time away,
In his cave.
Squirrel-Red with nuts—a store!
In hollow tree-trunk loves to snore,
In the wood.
Mrs. Woodchuck 'neath some knoll,
Drowses in her bed—a hole!
Deep in earth.
Floweret bulbs nestled together,
Doze all through the wintry weather,
'Neath the snow.
In the chrysalis hard by,
Dreams the sometime butterfly,
In corner hid.
Oh, what beds! So very queer!
Yet to each one just as dear
As yours to you!
—Adelbert F. Caldwell.

A Restaurant for Birds.

"I intend driving out to see Uncle Otto to-day," said Mr. Marcy, at the breakfast table. "Who would like to take a sleigh-ride with me?" and he looked straight into Kitty's eyes. "Oh, I would like to, papa!" said Kitty, quickly. "May I?"

"If mamma thinks best," Mr. Marcy answered, and as mamma was willing, Kitty was soon putting on warm wraps and preparing for her five-mile drive. Uncle Otto lived upon the state experimental farm, where he studied the birds and insects, and then told the farmers about them, and how to get rid of those that destroyed the crops; and a visit to him was always full of interest to Kitty. Indeed, she thought there never could be another uncle quite so nice as Uncle Otto. Kitty lived in Minnesota, where they sometimes have a great deal of snow in the winter, and this year there had been an unusual amount. The sleighing was fine, and the country seemed so clean and pretty that Kitty could not help exclaiming as they sped along, for in the city the snow was dirty, and here everything was white as snow ought to be. The drifts were piled high on either side of the somewhat narrow road, and when they met a team, papa had to turn out very carefully in order to avoid upsetting the sleigh. But Kitty thought it all great fun, and helped lean over when necessary to keep the sleigh balanced. "I wonder what Uncle Otto will have to show me this time," said Kitty, as they caught the first sight of the large buildings which told her that they were nearly at the end of their ride. "He always has something different from what anybody else would have," she added, "and I learn something every time I come out here." "I wonder, too," answered papa. And then he drove up to the house and Uncle Otto himself came out and helped Kitty to unwrap the big fur robe which tucked her in so comfortably, and pretty soon they were all sitting beside the fire and talking as if it had been a year instead of two months since they had seen each other. Immediately after lunch Uncle Otto turned to Kitty and said, "I am going out now to see to my birds' restaurant. Would you like to go with me?" As they started, Uncle Otto took with him a large covered basket, and he went toward the great grove of oak trees which extended for miles back of the house. Presently he stopped beneath a tree from a branch of which was hanging a loosely coiled wire. Then he opened his basket and took out something white and round like a ball. "What is that, Uncle Otto?" asked Kitty. "That is mutton suet," he answered. Then he uncoiled the wire, placed the suet on the branch and bound it securely with the wire. "Now," he added, turning to Kitty, "one table is spread for dinner." "Oh," said Kitty, suddenly, "you do it for the birds?" "Yes, indeed," Uncle Otto returned. "You see there are lots of cold weather birds who do not leave us through the long winter, and when the snow gets very deep they have a hard time to find enough to eat; then besides, when it is very cold indeed, as it has been lately, they need some kind of food which will produce heat in their little bodies, and the mutton suet does just that. So when I began to think how deep the snow was and how long it had been cold, I thought I had better open a restaurant for the birds, or some of them might die, and this is the way I did it." Kitty looked interested, so Uncle Otto went on. "I fasten the suet in place with wire, because if I tied it on with string the birds would peck at the string and their dinner would drop to the ground and probably be eaten by a dog or cat. I tie it high on the tree for the same reason, so that only the birds shall have it." Uncle Otto had been tying many pieces of suet in place while he talked, and now that the last one was in place they turned back to the house. "What a chattering!" exclaimed Kitty, stopping suddenly and looking back. "Yes," said Uncle Otto, "the birds are very sociable at dinner, and sometimes, I am sorry to say, they do not display the best of manners or disposition; but I always try to think it is the fault of their training and so do not blame them so much. At any rate, I would not want even the naughty ones to go hungry." "But how do they know so soon that their dinner is ready?" Kitty asked. "I have come to believe," answered Uncle Otto, "that some of them watch for me, and when they see me they notify the others that dinner is ready by calling, for only a few days after I began putting out the suet for them, I noticed the noise, and that they all gathered very quickly after I went away. So I have come to the conclusion that they look for me, and know that I am manager of their restaurant." Kitty laughed heartily. "What a funny idea!" she said. And then after a moment she added, "I believe I'll start a restaurant on a small scale at home. I like to see the birds around, and it would be such fun to watch them. But, do you know," she added, "I never thought before about the deep snow making it hard for them to find enough to eat. If I cannot have a restaurant I will have a lunch counter."

JULIA DARROW COWLES

A Dozen Conundrums.

1. Why do you go to bed? Because the bed will not come to you. 2. When is a ship like a book? When it is outward bound. 3. Why has an ocean voyage no terrors for physicians? Because they are accustomed to see sickness. 4. Why is a popular novel like autumn? Because its leaves are quickly turned and always read (red). 5. Why should a thirsty man always carry a watch? Because there's a spring inside of it. 6. Who are the most exacting of all landlords? Why, children; because they never fail to make their father and mother parents. 7. What is it that no one wishes to have yet, when he has it, he would be very sorry to lose? A bald head. 8. What conundrums are always at home? Those that are never found out. 9. What insect does a tall father represent? A daddy-long-legs. 10. When a lady faints what figure should you bring her? You should bring her two. 11. Why is a pig in the parlor like a house on fire? Because the sooner it is put out the better. 12. When are eyes not eyes? When the wind makes them water.

The Puppy and the Mail.

Such a funny thing happened in New York city the other day. When the collector opened one of the big mail boxes he found the papers and packages all moving as though there was something alive under them. He put in his hand to take some of them out, and with a glad little yelp, the cutest, little, bright-eyed puppy stuck his nose up through the papers and seemed so glad to see the man. The collector lifted him out and he wagged his tall with joy and looked up into his face as though he were thanking him for taking him out of that dark place. The collector found a tag tied about the puppy's neck having a two-cent stamp and the direction of a western city on it. There is no provision for sending puppies by mail; the poor little thing might have been smothered among the papers in a closed mail bag; so the kind-hearted collector kept the puppy at the office where it has plenty to eat and drink and is petted by every one.

Herbert Spencer's Gospel.

The following is the late Grant Allen's summary of the "Gospel According to Herbert Spencer:" Know yourself and your own place in the universe about you. Fear no phantoms, but face realities. Understand your own body, and the light cast upon it by the analogy of other bodies. Understand your own mind, and the light cast upon it by the history and evolution of other minds. Understand the phenomena, organic and inorganic, physical or psychical, by which they severally conform. Understand the society of which you are a member, and learn from like analogies the origin and functions of its various parts. So, in your capacity as individual, will you govern your own path through the world aright; so, in your capacity as parent, will you produce and bring up better units for the composition of the society in future; so, in your capacity as citizen, will you help to mold the state of which you are a part to ultimate conformity with truth and justice.

Rare Monkey from Java.

A wonderful monkey, one of the nearest approaches to the missing link in captivity, walked into the cage in the Central Park zoo, shook hands with his keeper in human fashion, and, walking erect on his legs, calmly surveyed his new surroundings. He is the property of O. H. P. Belmont, who obtained him in the island of Java last summer, and has negotiated with the city for his care until next spring. The new arrival stands two feet four inches in height, has large black eyes, and, unlike others of his kind, has hardened heels like the human family. Its arms are as long as the legs and body put together. There is no tail, and a circle of gray, bushy hair all around the face gives it a remarkable appearance. Its face resembles that of a human being. It was classed as "Gibbon, or the long-armed monkey," and the menagerie authorities believe that it is the only specimen of its race in captivity.—New York World.

Mice as Food in China.

The first thing that strikes the traveler in China, upon his entrance into any of the many cities of the Celestial Empire, is the strings of dried mice which hang from the roofs of the houses suspended by their tails, just as sausages are hung in front of butcher shops in France. The Chinese hunt these mice with a long, sharp pointed knife, which they plunge into the animals' throats. Then the mice are suspended by the tails until the blood has dripped out, when they are skinned, drawn and cleaned. Another favorite dish with the Chinese is dogs' feet. The feet of black dogs are considered more of a delicacy than those of any other color, and white dogs are rejected as being tasteless. Dogs' fat, prepared in a special manner, is looked upon as a repast fit for a king.

Starting Wrong.

"Dear me," said little James, "I buttoned just one button wrong, and that makes all the rest go wrong," and he tugged and fretted as if the poor buttons were at fault for his trouble. "Patience, patience," said his sister. "The next time look out for the first wrong button, then you'll keep all the rest right." What a practical lesson can be drawn from this little boy's mistake. How frequently the first act leads to great evils and sad ends. The little boy struck his brother. That was the first wrong deed. Then he denied it. That was another. Then he was unhappy and cross all day, because he did not tell the truth.

Rainbow Colors Too Loud.

Mrs. Porcine—What a lovely rainbow that is! Mrs. Chipbeef—Do you think so? Mrs. Porcine—Why, don't you? Mrs. Chipbeef—Oh, I daresay it's all very well, but the colors are too loud for my taste.—Melbourne Weekly Times.

When you have no aim, you are not likely to make any mark

Bank of St. Hilaire.

HANNAY & CO., Bankers.

Real Estate Loans.
Chattel Loans.
Foreign & Domestic Xchange
INSURANCE.
Collections a Specialty.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

St. Hilaire, Minn.

Livery and Feed Stable!

DAN PATERSON, Prop.

Dray in Connection.

The finest equipped turnouts in the northwest. Safe drivers and furnished at a moments notice at reasonable rates. Don't forget the place

BIG - RED - BARN

Located on the east side of Broadway nearly opposite Rapp & Post's Store

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

PATENTS DESIGNS TRADE-MARKS AND COPYRIGHTS OBTAINED

ADVICE AS TO PATENTABILITY Notice in "Inventive Age" Book "How to obtain Patents" FREE

Charges moderate. No fee till patent is secured. Letters strictly confidential. Address, E. G. SIGGERS, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

GET YOUR PICTURE TAKEN BY
D. COLLINS
THE
Photograper.
ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

IMPROVED
FARMS!

K. O. GIGSTAD has a large list of Improved Farms for sale. Also agent for the best fire and cyclone insurance company. Sick and accident insurance Co., and hail insurance.

Money to loan on improved farms at low interest. All collections are promptly attended to.

NOTARY PUBLIC.

Office east of the city well.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

2nd STORE

(SECOND HAND STORE.)

Everything in this line now on hand. Special bargains given. If you have anything to dispose of give me a call.

C. A. SKEIE.

ST. HILAIRE, - - MINNESOTA

FIRE INSURANCE

DO YOU NEED SOME?

The Best is the Cheapest.

I have nine of the best companies doing business in the State

Call for rates.

H. E. IVES.

CUSTOM WORK.

JUST LOOK AT THESE PRICES:

Roll Carding—per pound.....5 cts
Spinning Single Yarn—per pound.....15 c
Stocking Yarn—2 or 3 ply, per pound.....20 c

LITCHFIELD WOOLEN MILLS.

LITCHFIELD, MINN.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Spectator.

IVES & SOLL, Publishers.
JOHN J. SOLL, Editor.

Entered at the postoffice at St. Hilaire, Minn., as second-class mail matter.

Published every Wednesday at St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minn.

TERMS:—$1.50 Per Year in Advance.

SUBSCRIBERS should notify the publisher on or before expiration of subscription if discontinuance is desired. Otherwise paper will be continued.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 10, 1900.

Thrown Out of Court.

"In the good old days of Kentucky," says The Bar, "there was a court composed of three magistrates to try certain cases appealed from a single justice of the peace. The three magistrates were backwoodsmen. A case was being tried one day that was very important, and several hours of listening to the reading of depositions and the arguments of counsel, pro and con and pro and con again, had so nearly entangled the court in a labyrinth of perplexing questions of law and fact that they doubted their ability to blaze their way out. So they whispered to the leading lawyer at the bar, who was sitting by as a spectator, and asked him what he thought ought to be done with the case.

"'I think it ought to be thrown out of court,' was the prompt and emphatic reply.

"That settled it.

"'Mr. Clerk,' said the chief magistrate, 'pass up them papers.'

"The papers, which made quite a large bundle, were handed the chief magistrate.

"'Now, Mr. Sheriff,' said he deliberately, 'open that window.'

"The sheriff opened the window and the case was thrown out of court.

"The feud that followed lasted for 15 years."

What It Might Have Cost.

In a certain town in Vermont, said the Boston drummer as he chewed away at a pepsin tablet, I picked up a wallet containing $500 in cash. In it were papers bearing the owner's name, and he proved to be the mayor of the town. I at once hunted him up and handed over his lost cash, and as he received it he looked me over and scratched the back of his head and said:

"I shall reward you, of course. How much do you think you ought to have?"

"Nothing whatever, sir. I am glad to restore your property."

"But you expect something?"

"No, sir."

"Didn't look for me to give you a cent?"

"Not a red."

"It don't seem possible," he went on as he looked me over again, "but I'll have to take you at your word. Do you know what it might have cost me, sir, had any one else found this wallet?"

"I can't say, of course."

"I'd have had to hand over at least 10 cents, sir, and he might have struck for 15 or 25."—Ohio State Journal.

A Close Estimate.

Speaking about close estimates, General John M. Wilson, chief of engineers, made one some time ago. Congress called upon him to make an estimate of the cost of an addition to the government printing office. As it was near the close of the session and congress was hurriedly getting through its work, little time was given General Wilson to consider the matter, but he submitted his estimate, and the appropriation was made accordingly. He estimated that the proposed building, according to the plans and specifications which had been drawn, would cost $121,121.90. The building was completed, and there was $9.16 surplus covered back into the treasury. General Wilson was put in charge of this work, and he took a great deal of interest in it. He always gave credit, however, to Lieutenant Sewell of the engineer corps, who had the immediate supervision of the work, for the care with which the building was erected and the fact that the cost did not overrun the estimate and appropriation.—Washington Cor. Portland Oregonian.

How Will 45 and 15 Do?

Here is an odd little piece of doggerel which appeared in The Gentleman's Magazine 15 years ago, which gave rise to considerable discussion. Correspondents seem to have been pretty evenly divided between those who claimed that there were several answers and such as maintained that the problem was unsolvable:

When first the marriage knot was tied
  Betwixt my wife and me,
My age did hers as far exceed
  As three times three does three,
But when ten years and half ten years
  We man and wife had been
Her age came up as near to mine
  As twice four is to sixteen.
Now, tell me, Captain David Gray, I pray,
What were our ages on the wedding day?

(David Gray was a noted writer on mathematical subjects who lived at that time.)

A Compliment.

Apropos of the late Lord Watson's predilection for interrupting counsel and the story of Lord Bramwell's exhortation to his learned brother to cease worrying a certain arguing barrister, a correspondent tells how on one occasion Lord Watson justified his inveterate habit of interpolation.

"I ventured," he says, "once out of court to complain to him of his too frequent interruptions from which I had suffered in court.

"He answered: 'Eh? Man, you should not complain of that, for I never interrupt a fool.'"—London Globe.

Misfortune of a Poet.

"James has been quite unfortunate of late," said the poet's wife gloomily.

"Had another poem declined?"

"No; worse than that. You know, he has a habit of looking at the ceiling for inspiration, and last night, just as the inspiration came, a yard of plastering fell square on his head, knocking all the inspiration out of it!"—Atlanta Constitution.

In the Japanese temples there is a large drum used in worship. It is called kagura-taiko, and it gives a tone much like a gong.

Church processions are prohibited in Mexico. Even a priest cannot legally walk the streets in his churchly garments.

HIS REPUTATION SAVED.

How a Crack Shot Became Indebted to an Irish Sergeant.

"They tell a funny story in the army about Captain Patillo, the crack shot," said one of a party of late diners. "According to the yarn, General Miles and a high Washington official once visited a western post where the captain was stationed and sent word that they would like to see a little exhibition of his skill. Patillo happened to be quite sick at the time, but he couldn't very well refuse and presently appeared on the long distance range. He blazed away, and an Irish sergeant, who had been sent out to act as marker, waved a small flag. 'What does that mean?' asked the distinguished visitor. 'It means I missed the whole target,' replied Patillo gloomily. He tried again, with the same result. 'I don't know what's the matter with me!' he exclaimed in deep mortification. 'I never did such work in my life.'

"At the third shot the distant figure varied the wigwagging, and the assembled officers applauded. The signal meant a bullseye. Thereupon he fired 20 consecutive rounds, and each time the flag waved back the news that he had pierced the inner circle. It was a marvelous record, an unparalleled score. The distinguished visitor was very gracious in his congratulations.

"Later on Patillo, still beaming, met the marker crossing the parade grounds. 'Hello, sergeant!' he said. 'I wonder what the deuce made me miss the target those first two shots?' 'Whist, captain!' replied the Irishman, drawing close. ''Tis divil the toime ye hit it at all, at all!' 'Didn't hit it at all!' cried Patillo in amazement. 'Then why did you signal all those bullseyes?' 'Faith, sor,' said the sergeant reproachfully, 'I knew yer ripytation was at stake.'"—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

FATE OF HIS DRESS SUIT.

Loaned It to His Friend, and Now It Is Buried In the Grave.

"No, I am not going out in the evenings just now to anything but strictly informal affairs," remarked a friend of the saunterer the other day. "Why? Well, because just now I am not the possessor of a dress suit and lack the wherewithal to purchase another. It happened this way: I had a friend, a good fellow, who came to me one night and asked me if I wouldn't lend him my swallowtail. I consented, but I told him I wanted the clothes back the next week, as I had a function to attend myself.

"Well, to make a long story short, the week went by and not a word from my friend or not a sign of my evening duds. I had to cross my date and was pretty mad, but I didn't say anything. Another week went by and still no word. Then I decided to go out and hunt up my friend and find out if he intended to keep my clothes forever.

"I called at his boarding house and rang the bell. His landlady came to the door. When I asked if my friend was in, she gave a gasp of astonishment and exclaimed, 'Why, didn't you know he was dead and buried?'

"It was my turn to be knocked out. After I recovered my breath, I explained that I had not heard the news and had merely called to take back my dress suit. It would doubtless be found among my friend's effects, I explained.

"The landlady turned pink, white and then pink again. 'Why,' she gasped, 'that must have been the suit we buried him in. It was the only good one we found among his wardrobe.'

"So you see the reason why I say no to R. S. V. P. notes just now."—Philadelphia Inquirer.

"Family" In the Census.

There are some queer features about the census use of the word "family." It means practically those who eat at the same table. A hotel is a family. The Memorial Hall Dining association at Cambridge is a family; so is the Danvers Lunatic asylum. A stray man who keeps bachelor's hall is a family. The necessity for this use of the term came with the question of enumerating domestic servants. It was found absolutely impossible to attach them to their own families, scattered as they are. They had to go with the family they were living with. This led to a continuation of the principle, with the result mentioned. As it works out, the census family differs from the actual family in size only by a small fraction of one person.—New York Post.

What Cocaine Is.

Cocaine is an alkaloid of a small shrub found in Peru and Bolivia. The official name of the drug as used in medicine is cocaine sulphate, a salt derived from the shrub treated with sulphuric acid. Cocaine is composed of carbon, hydrogen and nitrosyl reduced to a sulphate. Each element of the compound has a direct influence on the nervous system, blood and lymphatics. It possesses the singular property of killing all sensation of pain in the parts where it is locally applied while elevating the mind of the patient to a pitch of exaltation absolutely without parallel.—Chicago Chronicle.

The Father Knew.

Mrs. Worth—John, I think this gold pen would be the most appropriate article we could send Harvey for a birthday present.

Mr. Worth—No, no; if we sent him that, the first use he'd make of it would be to write home for money, so we'll send him cash and make an end of it.—Jewelers' Weekly.

The Final Touch.

Ready for all that might befall, the female detective prepared to venture forth on the track of the desperate criminal. At the threshold she paused and cast one more look back.

"Is my disguise on straight?" she asked.—Philadelphia North American.

We Want Correspondents.

We desire a correspondent in every school district in the county, one who will give the local news of his or her locality in a fair and impartial manner. To any one who will undertake the matter the SPECTATOR will furnish the necessary stationery and postage and will send the paper free during the time the person acts in that capacity. Only one correspondent desired in each district. It is an advantage to any community to be represented in the columns of the local paper.

A Mean Interruption.

It happened at about 8 o'clock in the evening, just under the Betz building. It has often been remarked that a crowd is the best place in the world in which to make love, and the saunterer had ample opportunity to verify the remark at the place and time mentioned.

He was a tall, fair young man, with somewhat scanty hair of a dark auburn shade, and a jolly, good humored face and wholesome laugh that would attract any girl. She was a pretty little dark thing, with a sort of clinging manner, eminently prepossessing. She was dressed in some soft stuff of dark blue with white dots all over it, and they appeared to be saying goodby.

So completely absorbed were they in each other that they were entirely oblivious to the fact that they were being watched. Indeed not one of the thousands of sightseers who passed them failed to turn and smile. They made a striking picture.

He was just on the point, for the twentieth time, of releasing her hand when another thought struck him, and he raised his hat, exposing his somewhat thinly covered head, and bent so low over the little hand that the onlookers evidently thought he was going to kiss it. Whether he would have or whether she would have let him will never be decided; for a small boy, who had been intently watching the whole performance, exclaimed amid the laughter of the crowd:

"Ah, why don't you marry the girl?"

And the pair incontinently fled.—Philadelphia Inquirer.

Made a Slight Mistake.

Before accepting an invitation it is as well to be sure it is given in good faith. After an afternoon service held many years ago in a certain village in Scotland, the preacher, a stranger, who had officiated, accompanied one of the elders of the congregation home, and was introduced to his wife. The good man having asked the clergyman to stay to dinner, the latter, after a little pressing, consented.

The good lady hurried off to prepare for the unexpected guest, and seeing, as she thought, her husband washing, as was the custom in those days, at the family sink, she seized the family Bible, approached stealthily from behind and brought down the ponderous tome upon his bald pate, exclaiming:

"Tak' ye that for bringing hungry preachers here to dinner every time they come to the parish."

As soon as the assaulted one could get the suds out of his eyes he looked about him, and, after thinking the matter out, concluded that the old lady had made a slight mistake. She, too, came to the same conclusion when, on returning to the parlor, she beheld her husband patiently waiting for his reverend friend!

Yawning In a Theater.

Have you ever observed at a theater or concert that the people who are most deeply interested appear between the acts to be quite weary of the whole thing, yawning half a dozen times in succession? The reason of this is a physiological one. When your attention is much absorbed in anything exciting or touching, you breathe in a very shallow manner and take into your lungs only half enough air. Consequently, when your attention is relaxed, you have to make up the deficiency. This you do by yawning, which, after all, is only breathing a very deep breath.

If you watch a man at a play and observe that he is greatly moved by some incident, you may feel sure that when the scene ends he will sigh, and a moment or two later yawn repeatedly. Of course the yawning, so far from being a sign of weariness, is a proof of the liveliest appreciation.

A Bullet In His Brain.

A hospital physician pointed out an orderly to a gentleman who was visiting the institution recently and said: "That man has for five years carried around a bullet in his brain. Five years ago he became despondent because of poverty, put a 32 caliber pistol behind his left ear, pulled the trigger and fell apparently dead. The ball made a small, round hole and remained lodged somewhere in his head. A few hours after he was brought here he regained consciousness, and, greatly to our surprise, he made a rapid recovery. The wound was never probed, and no effort has been made to locate the bullet. After he was able to walk about we noticed that he was a trifle irrational—not mad you know—but weakminded. A considerable portion of his brain must without doubt be entirely destroyed. The human animal is certainly the hardest thing on earth to kill."—New York News.

A Mistake.

An old gentleman of 80 having taken to the altar a young damsel of 15, the clergyman said to him:

"The font is at the other end of the church."

"What do I want with the font?" said the old gentleman.

"Oh, I beg your pardon," said the clerical wit. "I thought you had brought this child to be christened."—London Tit-Bits.

Getting Even With Her.

She wished to break it to him gently. "I have decided," she said, "to return your ring."

He, however, was a resourceful man, who did not believe in letting a woman get the better of him.

"You needn't bother," he replied. "I buy them by the dozen."—Chicago Post.

The Height of Oratory.

"And is Rockford so much of an orator?"

"Man, he could describe a boarding house dried beef supper in such language that your mouth would water with desire."—Rochester Herald.

To Subscribers.

All who know themselves to be indebted to The SPECTATOR will confer a great favor by settling early. These accounts are small, but we have a lot of them on our books. Please do not put the matter off or forget it altogether, because it don't amount to very much.

—Every farmer who writes a letter occasionally should get envelopes with his name and address printed in the corner. We will furnish 100 of the best quality printed in any style for the small sum of 75 cts. Send in your order

A Few Nets Seized.

Executive agent Beutner of the Game and Fish commission, has made his annual report, and it shows that the department has been conducted with rare ability and economy under Mr. Beutner. The nets and property seized or destroyed in violations of the law aggregated over $5,000. Sales from seizures also exceeded $2,000. In fish propagation more than $2,000,000 "fry" were planted. Trout, 2,101,000; bass, 28,000; croppies, 50,000; wall-eyed pike, 400,000; total, 2,587,700. Agent Beutner is another case of the right man in the right place.

A little girl once wrote the following essay about boys: "Boys are men that have not got as big as their papas, and girls are women that will become young ladies by and by. Man was made before women. When God looked at Adam he said to himself, Well, I think I can do better if I try again; and then he made Eve. God liked Eve so much better than Adam that there has been more women than men. Boys are a trouble, they wear out every thing but soap. If I had my way half the boys in the world would be girls and, the rest would be dolls. My papa is so nice that I think he must have been a little girl when he was a little boy."

The Ideal
Lunch Room.

In the Paradis Building is noted for its Convenience.

FIRST-CLASS MEALS.

PROMPT SERVICE.

OPEN UNTIL ONE O'CLOCK A. M.

A. F. LANG, Prop.

NEW YORK WORLD.

THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION.

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly.

The striking and important events of the last year have established the overwhelming value of The Thrice-a-Week World to every reader. For an almost nominal sum it has kept its subscribers informed of the progress of all our wars and, moreover, has reported them as promptly and fully as if it were a daily. With our interests still extending throughout the world, with our troops operating in the Philippines and the great Presidential campaign, too, at hand, its value is further increased.

The motto of The Thrice-a-Week World is improved. It strives each year to be better than it was the year before, and public confidence in it is shown by the fact that it now circulates more than twice as many papers every week as any other newspaper, not a daily, published in America.

We offer this unequalled newspaper and The St. Hilaire Spectator together one year for $1.65.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.50.

Barber Shop
—AND—
BATH ROOMS.

Haircutting, Shaving, Shampooing.

Razors honed and put in first-class order.

J. H. PENNO, Prop.

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

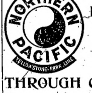
First Mortgage Loans.

I am prepared, for the next 60 days, to make loans at the

LOWEST

possible rates ever made in Red Lake county. If you want to make a loan or renew an old one call on

H. E. IVES.



RUNS

THROUGH CARS

TO
ST. PAUL
MINNEAPOLIS
DULUTH
FARGO
GRAND FORKS
AND WINNIPEG

TO HELENA
BUTTE
SPOKAND
TACOMA
SEATTLE
PORTLAND

PULLMAN SLEEPING CARS
ELEGANT DINING CARS
TOURIST SLEEPING CARS

PATENTS GUARANTEED

Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.

Patents taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in THE PATENT RECORD, an illustrated and widely circulated journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.

Send for sample copy FREE. Address,

VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.
(Patent Attorneys,)
Evans Building, WASHINGTON, D. C.

BANK OF RED LAKE FALLS,

RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA

GENERAL BANKING. FOREIGN XCHANGE

Real Estate, Farm Loans and Insurance.
Abstracts of Title.
Steamship Tickets.
Interest Paid on Time Deposits.
Collections of all Kinds Given Prompt Attention.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli the only set of Abstract Books in Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

For A Quiet Supper Have Hamm's St. Paul Beer
1st RAT —What beer does the family use?
2d RAT —Hamm's, of course, or they would lose ME!
Theo. Hamm Brewing Co.
Tel. 972 ~ St. Paul, Minn.
Agents Everywhere.

Uncle Sam's Monogram Whiskey
STANDS GUARD against attacks upon health. It is used in leading hospitals and is recommended by doctors everywhere as a pure, worthy stimulant.
Druggists and Dealers Sell it
Sold by GEO. BENZ & SONS, ST. PAUL AND MINNEAPOLIS.
UNCLE SAM'S
MONOGRAM

FARMS { 250 farms in Red Lake county for sale, also a large list of Railroad lands. Prices going up.

LOANS { First Mortgage Farm Loans A Specialty.

ABSTRACTS { furnished on short notice. Neat and accurate work guaranteed.

S. A. SWANSON,
Official Abstracter.

RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.

OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U.S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U.S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C.A.SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

—The SPECTATOR is for sale—at $1.50 a year—strictly in advance.

Cigars.

BRINK BROTHERS

DEALERS IN

Wines & Liquors

Minneapolis Beer.

Corner Broadway and 3rd St. St. Hilaire, Minnesota

L. K. KOLSTAD

DEALER IN

BOOTS AND SHOES!

Repairing a Specialty.

ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA.

SOME OF OUR CLUB RATES WITH THE ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR

Cosmopolitan and Spectator.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this Journal. That we have succeeded we will leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal, both together one year for only $1.80.

Farm, Stock & Home.

50 cents per year. Read by a greater number of Northwestern farmers than any other agricultural paper published. Are you among the number? If not, Why not? Every department in the hands of a specialist. Short talks department. A department where all kinds of questions are answered for the benefit of subscribers, is a leading feature of the paper. No northwestern farmers list of papers is complete without it. This paper and Spectator one year for $1.25.

Cosmopolitan, New York World and The Spectator.

You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine. Three together one year for only $2.35.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF ST. HILAIRE AND RED LAKE COUNTY.

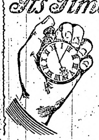
OUR TERMS ARE STRICTLY CASH IN ADVANCE

NEW MEAT MARKET.

L. M. ROLAND, Proprietor.

Fresh and Salted Meats.

Highest Market Price Paid for Hides.



Now then
If you are
Looking for
Bargins in
Dry Goods
Groceries
Hats, Caps,
Boots, Shoes
Clothing
Notions

Or in fact anything carried in a first-class general merchandise store, why you are cordially invited and we will accommodate you. Call and look over our large stock.

E. M. HOFF.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

I. O. O. F. St. Hilaire Lodge No. 147.—Meets at their hall every Thursday evening, eight o'clock. Visiting members are cordially invited to attend.
J. B. O'Brien, N. G.
A. F. Lang, Secretary.

M. W. A. CAMP 3650.—Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every second and fourth Tuesday of every month. Visiting neighbors are cordially invited to attend.
H. O. Jackson, V. C.
Jas. M. Hall, Clerk.

R. N. G.—WILD ROSE CAMP.—No. 831 Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every Friday evening. Visiting members of the order are cordially invited to attend.
Mrs. W. A. Arthur, Oracle.
Miss T. Hughes, Recorder.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.

E. J. Holmes	President
J. L. Johnson	Recorder
D. Patterson	Councilmen
J. C. Dahl
W. A. Sorsoleil
L. Holmes	Treasurer

DR. BLOMBURGH.
SCANDINAVIAN
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
☞ Calls attended day or night. ☜
Teeth Extracted.
Office and residence opposity M. E. church. St. Hilaire, Minn.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Auditor	Adam Zeh
Treasurer	O. T. Tandberg
Register of Deeds	Samuel Gibeau
Sheriff	Chas. Sampson
Attorney	Van R. Brown
Judge of Probate	J. T. Knight
Clerk of Court	Joe Perrault
Supt. of Schools	Frank Jeffers
Coroner	Joe Belaire
Court Commissioner	J. C. Mathews
Surveyor	P. O. Haggland
Commissioner 1st Dist.	J. Suter
Commissioner 2nd Dist.	W. L. C. Demann
Commissioner 3rd Dist.	O. J. Johnson
Commissioner 4th Dist.	Karl M. Hanson
Commissioner 5th Dist.	J. B. Herbert

HENRY FRANCIS, M. D., C. M.
Member College Physicians and Surgeons, Ontario.
Office and residence first door south of Oen's hardware store.
Thief River Falls, Minn.

List of Town Clerks.

Names	Township	Postoffice
Olof Larson	Numedal	Viking
C. E. Purdy	North	Thief River Falls
John E. Peterson	Bray	Bray
N. K. Anderson	Sanders	St. Hilaire
F. T. Satre	Rocksbury	T. R. Falls
O. T. Romsos	Polk Centre	Wylie
P. A. Eckstrom	Black River	Wylie
A. S. Anderson	River Falls	St. Hilaire
Ole J. Johnson	Wyandotte	"
A. D. Berry	Louisville	Huot
Ildaige Baril	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
Chas. E. Asp	Emardville	Lost
Edward Hajik	Equality	Grit
Moses Ducharme	Lake Pleasant	R. L. F.
Edonor Perusse	Terrebonne	Terrebonne
J. B. Herbert	Poplar River	Brooks
Louis Doucet	Lambert	Lambert
J. L. Johnson	St. Hilaire	St. Hilaire
Lars Backe	Thief River F.	T. R. F.
A. P. Toupin	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
H. D. Baaryson	Norden	T. R. Falls
Olof Tande	Garnes	Garnes

A. O. LETVIG,
TUBULAR WELL CONTRACTOR.
A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed. Repairing a Specialty.
WYLIE, MINNESOTA.

UNCLE
SAM
Is not
In the Shoe
Business,
And Neither
Am I,
But I can
Interest
You in
CIGARS.

ALL THE BEST
SMOKERS BUY THEM

J.B. Cigars.

ALL THE BEST
DEALERS SELL THEM.

J. B. ARMSTRONG,
Manufacturer.
Red Lake Falls, Minnesota.

DAY F. STACY, C. E.
DEPUTY
County Surveyor.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.
Drainage and Farm Surveys a Specialty.

Market Report.—To-Day.

Wheat No. 1	.52½	Oats	.16
Wheat No. 2	.49½	Barley	.24
Wheat No. 3	.46½	Flax	.130
Eggs (per doz).	16	Butter (per lb)	20

LOCAL NEWS.

Masquerade ball Feb. 14th.

Fresh oysters at A. F. Lang's.

A cow for sale. Inquire W. Allen.

Flour and feed at Leonard Holmes elevator.

Oysters prepared in any style at A. F. Lang's.

Will you turn out and vote February 24th?

A. A. Wassen returned Monday from a trip to Crookston.

A new stock of boys clothing just received at E. M. Hoff's.

Try a lunch, a meal or a weeks board at the Ideal Lunch Room.

Ray Sorsoleil is home again after a six months stay at Langdon, N. Dak.

Attorney-Postmaster Richardson was down from the upper Falls yesterday.

Patronize home industry by buying your wall paper at the New Drug store.

Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Holmes entertained a number of guests Friday evening.

Riar Swenson drove down from his new home near Germantown last Friday.

Miss Mary A. Kyle, having spent her vacation in Crookston returned Saturday.

I. Legesse is home again after spending about two months in the lumbering woods.

Fred Weyerhaeuser estimates that Minnesota still has forty billion feet of standing pine.

Daniel McDonald of East Grand Forks was renewing old acquaintances here Thursday.

Cass Lake is now organized and will elect their first village officers on January 13th. Guess how long it will be before she becomes a city.

Leonard Holmes left Saturday for Fargo, N. D., being summons by the serious illness of a brother.

Sunday and Monday were spring-like days with threatening rain showers, but a change to the colder yesterday.

Dan Patterson left yesterday for St. Paul where he goes to see a specialist in regard to a long standing ailment.

Miss Laura J. Betts returned from her home in Litchfield Saturday and reports having a very pleasant vacation.

An election will be held throughout the county on February 24th to vote on $10,000 bonds for building a court house.

Question: Why is it that the one who steals a loaf of bread is called a thief, and the one who steals a railroad a financier?

Charley Anderson of Wyandotte was a caller the first of the week and left enough silver to jog his name into the 1900 column.

School opened Monday with an increased attendance. The four departments are now crowded, there being a total enrollment of 170.

E. C. Shevlin has resigned as manager of the Crookston Lumber Company and will leave in a few days with his family to spend a year in Europe.

Geo. Williams and Chris. Amunson of Thief River Falls returned home Monday after spending a week at Cass Lake where they went with a view of investing in real estate.

Charley Englund, who has been traveling throughout Dakota the past year, and made Fargo his headquarters arrived last week and is visiting with his parents east of town in River Falls township.

Superintendent of Schools, Frank Jeffers, of Red Lake Falls was here a short time Monday, having visited several schools south-east of here. He left in the afternoon for Rocksbury on the same mission.

H. E. Ives packed his grip yesterday and hied himself off to the twin cities for a week or more. He will stop off a day or two at Cass Lake, where his father is located in the newspaper business, and note the improvement of the past few months.

Our wood pile is getting low; now that the roads are good, will some of our farmer subscribers please bring us a load or two that they promised us last year?

Attention Citizens.

The voters and tax payers of the village of St. Hilaire and vicinity are hereby respectfully requested to meet at the village hall Saturday the 13th at 7:30 p. m. for the purpose of assertaining the will of the people in regard to bonding the county for $10,000 to build a court house. Every citizen interested in the wellfare of the county should be present.
Emil J. Holmes,
Pres. of Village.

J. G. Ballord, formerly with the St. Hilaire Lumber Co., but for the past year Superintendent of the Crookston Lumber Co., has resigned and purchased an interest in the Thief River Falls Lumber Company.

Banker Hannay left yesterday for Chicago on a business trip which will detain him a week or more. Chicago was Mr. Hannay's former home and a great deal of that time will be spent among old time friends.

The band boys will give a Masquerade ball Feb. 14th. They have secured the best orchestra of Red Lake Falls and that is a sufficient guarantee that the best kind of a time is in store for all who attend. All are invited.

The entertainment given last Friday evening at the United Norwegian church proved a success. The program was well accomplished. A large crowd was present to partake of the refreshments and a very pleasant time was reported.

E. P. Stranahan, who has been bookkeeper for the Thief River Lumber Company for the past four years has resigned and accepted a position with the Crookston Lumber Co. He will move his family down to Crookston some time next month.

S. A. Swanson was appointed official abstracter by the county commissioners at their last meeting to succeed Swanson & Grady who have recently dissolved partnership. See what he has to say in his advertisement in another column in this issue.

I. Dahleen, while out hunting rabbits the first of the week ran into a fine patch of high-bush cranberries that were heavily laden with ripe fruit. He brought home several branches filled with the red berries which clears him as a prevaricator upon the books.

The Spectator was named as the official paper of the county for the ensuing year, and to the honorable board of county commissioners we extend thanks. Their regular session was a lengthy one and we expect to publish the proceedings in our next issue.

The mayor of Thief River Falls in his message advises that steps be taken to have the name of the city changed to a more appropriate one and suggests Quinn Falls, Tween Falls or Lake Falls. As long as they are bound to have a falls in it why not change it to Upper Falls?

Steps will soon be taken by the residents of Wall street to ask the St. Hilaire Lumber Company to build a railing along the river embankment between the two dams. This is a dangerous place when the river is open and no doubt the Company will grant their wishes as soon as brought before them.

It may be a life time before you have another chance to vote in the middle of the winter. Don't miss it. An election will be held Feb. 24. And its about court house bonds. Of course it is liable to be an awful cold day, but you want to wrap up and cast your vote just the same. Your vote may decide a tie.

Uncle Sam pays $3,500,000 a year for the rent of 500 postal cars, which could be built for $2,000,000 and they would last for 20 years. Uncle Sam also paid 1 cent a pound for each 56 miles of distance that the railroads hauled the mails. This is about 50 times as much as is charged for carrying merchandies.—Ex.

The people of this country pay about a million dollars every working day in special revenue taxes—that is, for stamps on checks, deeds, mortgages, telegrams, express business, etc. If this money went to pay debts, or for anything but that of subjugating a liberty-loving people, the burden could be more cheerfully carried.

"Lucky" O'Brien, with a bran new silk hat and a suit of new store clothes was here yesterday a few hours while enroute to Red Lake Falls. We understand he has been called there to estimate the cost of placing his celebrated statue "Dina" on the dome of the new court house. This is eminently proper as the scheme was hatched in the dark.

The following officers were installed Thursday evening in the I. O. O. F. Lodge by H. E. Ives D. D. G. M., J. B. O'Brien N. G., O. F. Post V. G., A. F. Lang Secty., D. Patterson Treas., J. J. Soll warden, O. E. Olson conductor, W. Eikhoff R. S. N. G., P. G. Paradis L. S. N. G., I. Dahlin R. S. V. G., H. W. Peterson L. S. V. G., Chris Hall I. S. G. Arnt Pederson O. S. G., W. A. Sorsoleil R. S. S. and J. H. Penno L. S. S.

Messrs. Hannay, Gigstad and Johnson represented St. Hilaire at the commissioners meeting last Friday when the County Ditch No. 1 matter was brought up. Only seven entered a protest but after a few explanations they were made to see the error of their way and no objections were made. When this ditch is completed it will be a great benefit to the farmers west and northwest of here and several thousand acres of land, now unused will be bought up and tilled.

—It is better than ready money because it cures rheumatism, constipation sick headache, indigestion. Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

COURT HOUSE BONDS.

Just before the county commissioners were ready to adjourn last Saturday a resolution was sprung calling for a special election to take place on Saturday February 24th for the purpose of voting $10,000.00 bonds to build a court house at Red Lake Falls. The resolution was promptly carried; three members of the board being in favor of it and two commissioners, Hansen and Johnson, voting NO. This action on the part of Red Lake Falls comes as a surprise, but it has been very well planned, as a large per centage of our voters are away from home at this season of the year. It is evident that Red Lake Falls intends taking advantage of this fact to saddle a heavy debt on the county to build an expensive court house. It remains to be seen whether the people of the county will stand such work. The people of this county have not yet had a chance to vote where the county seat should be, and it is altogether probable that they will have a chance in a year or two. Until the question is settled, we do not think any heavy expense should be incurred. Without doubt either St. Hilaire or Thief River Falls will soon make the county a proposition to move the county seat, and we will here predict that the town making such proposition WILL NOT ASK the county to vote bonds for a Court House, but will offer a suitable Court House free of charge to the county.

We understand that a meeting has been called to meet next Saturday evening at the village hall in this village, and a meeting has been called at Thief River Falls at the same time to ascertain the will of the people on this question. These meetings should be attended by every tax payer.

We would respectfully call the attention of these mass meetings to the following facts:

First.—Red Lake Falls is not in the center of Red Lake county.

Second.—Red Lake county is not compelled to issue bonds to build a Court House as she can have one free of cost in a more central, or as central a location as the present.

Third.—That the people of Red Lake Falls, have, in calling this special election, involving an expense of a couple of thousand of dollars which we can poorly afford to spend at this time; have acted in bad faith with the county. They are also trying to take advantage of the weather and the fact that many of our voters are away from home to fix upon us a debt which is not needed.

Methodist Church.

Services will be held in the Methodist church on Sunday morning at 11 a. m. and in the evening at 7:30.
N. J. Vernon, Pastor.

Goes to Minneapolis.

So many changes have taken place since the first of the year among head men in the different lumbering mills located along the Red Lake river, but it is with genuine regret that we announce that Mr. Arno Mereen, who has been manager and general superintendent of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company for the past three years, or ever since the mill was built, has resigned and will in the future hold down a similar position with the C. A. Smith Lumber Company of Minneapolis. He makes the change, not but what he was satisfied with this Company or the place, but with view of the fact that he has three children at Minneapolis, who have just reached the school age, who have on every visit of their father pleaded for him to stay with them. Being a good father and generous to a fault, he granted their wishes—hence the change. His departure is regretted by every person in the village and we dare say by everyone of the boys who have worked in the mill—a great many who are now spending the winter in the city and in the woods and on opening the mill in the spring, 90 per cent of the men have returned each year. Mr. Mereen leaves with the best wishes of St. Hilaire.

Wall paper and calcimine at the New Drug store.

Secretary Gage has placed the receipts of the internal revenue department of the government amounting to about one million dollars per day at the disposal of the City National Bank of New York without interest. To have the use of three hundred millions of government money when the market is tight is a perquisite of no mean dimensions. The securing of these deposits proves the thrift of the Standard Oil crowd who own the bank. They know how to provide a campaign fund for the Republican party without taking it out of their own pockets.—National Watchman.

—To cure a cough or cold in one day take the Imperial Cough Syrup.

I want to let the people who suffer from rheumatism and sciatica know that Chamberlain's Pain Balm relieved me after a number of other medicines and a doctor had failed. It is the best liniment I have ever known of.—J. A. Dodgen, Alpharetta, Ga. Thousands have been cured of rheumatism by this remedy. One application relieves the pain. For sale by the Imperial Drug Store.

—Dr. Thomas is an up-to-date in all the different branches in his profession. Remember the dates, Jan. 29th and 30th.

—If you are troubled with rheumatism take the Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure. It will positively cure all diseases arising from impure blood, and is sold under an absolute guarantee to benefit or money refunded. Call for free sample at the New Drug Store.

WASHINGTON LETTER.

Regular Correspondent

When orders issued this week by the War Department are carried out the U. S. government will own and maintain two lines of ocean steamships, one from San Francisco, to Honolulu and Manila, and one from New York to Cuban and Porto Rican ports. In view of this, it would seem to be about time for the republicans to stop calling men who believe that the government should own all transportation lines cranks. If it be right and proper for the government to own two steamship lines, what would be wrong about its owning all the railroad, steamship and telegraph lines, if the people so willed?

Instead of squaring the administration with the users of hemp cord and rope, Assistant Secretary Meiklejohn's two contradictory statements about the war in the Philippines having nothing to do with the present high price of hemp, have served to direct public attention to what looks like a scandal involving the War Department, or some of its subordinates. How the thing looks to outsiders may be judged from the following remarks of Mr. L. J. Powell, a Hong Kong business man who is now in Washington: "The surprising inactivity of the U. S. War Department in the matter of opening the hemp ports in the Philippines is hard to understand. With the price of hemp more than 400 per cent above the normal, and the whole supply in the hands of a few wealthy speculators holding on for a still greater advance, it will be a hard year for the wheat-growers and shipping men. American farmers use $10,000,000 worth of binder twine each harvest, and if the bill should be swollen to two or three times that figure no doubt there will be some lively kicking from them. It is openly charged in the East that some of the military authorities in the Philippines are on the friendliest terms with the speculators who have cornered the market, and are representing that to open the ports and ship out hemp would put money in the insurgents pockets. This is absolutely a false statement, for all the hemp now stored at blockaded ports is owned by American and English merchants. There are no insurgents in the vicinity of many of the closed harbors, yet the military authorities refuse to let reputable merchants remove thier property."

During the past three years three murders have been committed in the county of Polk, and in each case the murderer was a colored man. The population of Polk county is about 50,000 and of that number about 25 per cent are of Negro nationality. No better indication of the degeneracy of that race could be quoted, and it is hardly to be wondered at that the people of Polk county are desirous of punishing the offenders, because they have done so much to lower the moral standard of the county in the eyes of a critical and unsympathetic people—our neighbors—Crookston Tribune.

This is the first information we have had that every fourth man in Polk county was a "Nigger." We are glad the county was divided, even if we do have to vote on court house bonds.

Pay of Rejected Soldiers.

Here is good news for those who wanted to join the army in 1897, but were rejected on account of failure to pass the physical examination. The department has decided that all these men are entitled to $1.50 per day from the date of signing their muster roll until their rejection. They were paid at the rate of $16.50 per month. Those entitled to the difference are asked to make application of the adjutant general of the state not later than April 15th 1900.

If you want a 1900 calander call at this office or at K. O. Gigstad's real estate office and get one.

Regulate Your Watch.

As Johnson's barber shop and if it don't keep time, leave it, and we will repair it and warrant it to keep time for one year. New watches, clocks chains and jewelry for sale at the lowest prices. I will be at Johnson's barber shop the 10th 11th and 12th of every month. All work left at the shop has my personal attention. When you come to Red Lake Falls make the Palace Jewely Store your headquarters.
I am yours truly
Prof. J. Q. Adams,
Watchmaker and Optician.

—Go to the New Drug Store for your Stationery and School supplies.

"A young man came into our store yesterday suffering from a severe attack of cramp colic," writes B. F. Hess, miller and general merchant, Dickey's Mountain, Pa. "He had tried various home remedies without relief. As I had used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy I gave him a dose and it soon brought him out alright. I never saw a fellow so rejoiced." Sold by the Imperial Drug Store.

Rev. Dr. Forbes will preach in the M. E. church on Saturday Feb. 3rd at 8 p. m., also on Sunday Feb. 4th at 11 a. m. After the morning service the sacrament of the Lord's supper will be administered. All are welcome.

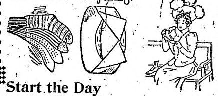
An elegant line of Rockers just received at Holmes Furniture Co. Come early while the selection is good.

Dentist.

—Dr. J. H. Thomas, the Crookston dentist will be at Hotel Markham, St. Hilaire, Jan. 29th and 30th prepared to do all kinds of up to date dental work in all branches. All work warranted. Remember the dates 29th and 30th.

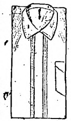
The Spectator would like to have a correspondent from the towns of Black River, Sanders, Bray, Rocksbury, River Falls and Wyandotte. Stationery and stamps furnished at this office. Don't be backward in coming forward.

We Handle Everything.



Start the Day Right

And everything will go smoothly. The proper way to start the day is by coming around to our store and ordering a supply of groceries for the day, such things as you may need. It will take you but a few minutes, and we feel sure you will not regret it.

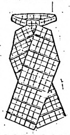


Our Groceries

Are always fresh, and then the prices are as near right as we know how to make them. If you have not been in the habit of trading with us, drop in and see us anyway; you might get into the habit.

Hardware

We carry everything in the hardware line from cooking stoves down to tacks—all you have to do is to ask for what you want. If you want anything in the tin or copper line done drop into our tin shop and your wants will be attended to.



Yours very truly,
RAPP & POST
St. Hilaire, Minnesota.

M. A. HALL
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS,
GROCERIES,
NOTIONS,
GENTS FURNISHING GOODS,
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
CONFECTIONERY

GO TO THE New Hardware Store for anything you need in the line of Hardware, Paints, Oils, Stoves, Harness
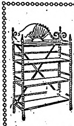
AND PLOWS.
Also agent for Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines. Call and get prices.
A. H. WEAGANT.

LEONARD HOLMES,
—DEALER IN—
Agricultural Implements..
WHEAT, FLAX OATS AND BARLEY.
Flour and Feed always on Hand.

Lumber! Lumber!
OF ALL KINDS.
We have a large and well assorted stock of Dry Lumber and are prepared to fill all orders on short notice. We also carry a complete assortment
—of—
Sash, Doors, Paper
AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL
Which we buy in large quantities and are thereby enabled to sell at lowest market prices.
ST. HILAIRE LUMBER CO.



IF YOU INTEND TO
Buy Furniture
Come and look our assortment over. We carry everything in the Furniture line including picture frames and musical instruments. Prices reasonable.
Holmes Furniture Co.

The Arnewood Mystery

BY MAURICE H. HERVEY.

Author of "Dead Man's Court," "Somerville's Crime," "Dartmoor," "Maravin's Money," etc., etc.

CHAPTER VII. (Continued.)

"What about poor Bradshaw?" I ventured to inquire, when we had settled down to cigars and "Scotch cold."

"Oh, he's all right," was the calm reply. "He's a novice at the business and must learn to rough it. He's well supplied with funds, and has nothing to do except to keep these two chaps under observation for a day or two, and to notify me should anything of importance crop up. I rather fancy that bath-room steward knows more of Luke Arnewood's last movements on board than he pretends. I don't like his manner, and I'm always suspicious of a man who has been in trouble before, as I'm pretty certain is the case with him."

"What of his companion?"

"A mere brute, and a sulky one at that," was his verdict; "but I saw nothing wrong about him." It was not for me to teach an experienced detective his own business, and I said no more. But I had noticed that Blogg was, like most working engineers, very strong looking, with the largest and grimiest pair of hands that I had ever seen, and I bethought me of the marks imprinted upon the throat and collar of the murdered man. It was not a logical suspicion to entertain against him, but somehow, I could not banish it from my mind.

CHAPTER VIII.

Captain Arnewood Stirs Us Up.

Early in the forenoon next day, a card was brought to me in my private office, with a request for an interview upon urgent business. A glance at the pasteboard revealed the fact that my visiter was Captain Richard Arnewood, of the Ninety-first Fusileers, and of the Junior Naval and Military Club, and I ordered the clerk to admit him forthwith.

A tall, slight, somewhat sickly-looking man, his preliminary greeting did not give me a very favorable opinion of either his tact or good-breeding.

"Can you explain this message?" he demanded, abruptly; at the same time thrusting a telegram into my hand. "I received it twenty minutes ago at the club."

"Your cousin Luke returned, but believed dead and foul play suspected. Call on Hawkins & Co., Exeter street, Strand, for details.
"O'Brien & Grudgery."

"Yes," I replied, after reading this terse dispatch, "but it will take some little time. Pray be seated."

Not he. He stalked up and down the room like a caged hyena, while I narrated the story of Luke Arnewood's return and terrible fate as clearly and briefly as I could. He appeared to be greatly agitated by the recital; indeed, his emotion struck me as rather excessive, considering that he had never seen his late cousin and would benefit so greatly by his death.

"It is awful!" he almost moaned. "Poor fellow! Just as he was about to enter upon his inheritance, upon the very day of his arrival in England—to be murdered by some common footpad for the sake, doubtless, of such valuables as he may have had about him! It is a terrible business!"

"Very terrible, indeed," I assented, gravely. "But such crimes are, unfortunately, of frequent occurrence."

"Yes," he replied, bitterly, "and five times out of six the criminal eludes capture. If it has taken the London police all this time merely to identify the man they found strangled in Soho (and even that with outside help), the odds must be long, indeed, against their finding the murderer. A pack of theorizing asses!"

"Gently, if you please," I protested. "If you will be at the pains of thinking out the facts of the case a little calmly, you will, perhaps alter your views—"

"Not I!" he interrupted, almost angrily. "I have heard and seen too much of the police and their methods for that! But I most certainly do not intend to let my unfortunate cousin's slayer escape, if any effort on my part can prevent it. And my first move will be to offer a reward of £5,000 for his capture. How does that strike you?"

"As an entirely admirable idea," I replied. "The authorities are, I believe, about to offer £100 in the usual way; and, as they possess exceptional means of giving publicity to rewards, I would suggest your placing the sum you have named in the hands of the Chief Commissioner of Police."

"Yes," he said, after a pause, as though distrustful of the force even as advertising agents, "there can be no harm in that. I will do so. You are perhaps aware, as my solicitor's agent, that I am heir-at-law to the murdered man?"

"Yes," I replied, "I know something of the family history."

"Then you will understand that this terrible affair has made me a rich man," he continued, "and that I deem it a sacred duty to spare neither effort nor expense to bring the assassin of my unfortunate cousin to justice. I am satisfied from what you have told me, as well as from my lawyers' reference, that I cannot do better than leave the matter in the hands of your firm, my only stipulation being that you pursue your own independent inquiries rather than trust blindly to the police."

I felt a sudden gust of sympathy towards this sickly soldier, whose manner had at first repelled me. Was he not affording me the very chance I longed for, of taking a personal share in the case?

"You may rely upon it that we shall do our best," I made answer. "May I ask if you reside in London?"

"Only occasionally, when I'm on leave," he replied. "My regiment is stationed at Aldershot, and when I'm in town I put up at Lang's in Jermyn street. I use my club, though, chiefly for my correspondence."

I made a note of the address given, and awaited his further pleasure. But, beyond reiterating his determination to have the mystery of his cousin's death solved, at any price, and appealing to me almost pathetically, to do my utmost, he had but little more to say of any moment. Somewhat to my surprise (in view of his avowed contempt for the police) he asked me for a line of introduction to Inspector Traill.

"You need not be jealous," he remarked, drily. "I have no wish to pit him against you. But I should like to stir him up a bit, and he may be useful in the matter of the reward."

"Perhaps so," I assented, curtly, feeling a sudden and wholly unjustifiable jealousy of the inspector. However, I worded the introduction as nicely as I could, and Captain Arnewood took his departure.

I utilized the luncheon hour by paying a visit to Mr. Hawkins and placing him in possession of recent occurrences. He expressed his entire satisfaction with the turn events had taken, and especially with the outcome of Captain Arnewood's visit.

"This Arnewood business has already proved a very profitable one," he remarked, in his quiet, business-like way; "but it seems likely now to develop into a perfect little gold-mine. Given carte-blanche from a rich client, in a case involving unlimited inquiries and expenses: why, the thing speaks for itself."

"Quite so, sir," I assented; "but please remember that, if I am to devote myself in real earnest to carrying out Captain Arnewood's wishes, I shall have very little time to devote to other inquiries; and, since you have been laid up, my hands have been pretty full."

"I know that," he rejoined, with a kindly smile, "and I am not likely to forget it. Let me see, now. The trouble is that you cannot find time for this Arnewood affair unless you are eased of other work. Very well; you must be eased, that is all. Collins must take your place, as best he can, for the present; just as he would have to supposing, say, you broke your leg. Well, I'll give him an extra correspondence clerk. I feel quite well enough now to look in for an hour or so daily myself, and I daresay you'll find time to do the same. I see no real difficulty, if we all do our best."

Neither did I, under the proposed conditions, for Collins (my right-hand man), although more methodic than brilliant, was thoroughly reliable and well posted in the details of the business. I, accordingly, expressed my full concurrence with my chief's proposal.

"That's right," he said, cheerily. "And now I don't mind telling you that nothing would please me more than to see you come out on top of Scotland Yard in this business. Of course, I bear no ill-will to your friend, Inspector Traill, who, I make no doubt, is an excellent fellow as well as a most efficient officer. Still, if we are going to specialize this case, we can't afford to supply the Yard with clues and hints, as we have been doing hitherto. After all, success would mean far more to us, from a business point of view, than to Mr. Traill."

"You forget the £5,000 reward," I suggested, drily.

"Well, even that amount would fit just as comfortably in your pocket as his," he rejoined. "But I was thinking more of our increased reputation as inquiry agents, should we get ahead of the Criminal Investigation Department. It would place us at the top of the profession. But there! Arrange with Collins, and tell him he may expect to see me to-morrow afternoon."

I duly carried out my instructions. Mr. Collins was highly pleased with his temporary promotion, the extra clerk was engaged, and when the office was closed that day I felt that my chance had come at last.

CHAPTER IX.

Five Thousand Pounds Reward.

The thing that first impressed me, in my interview with Mr. Hawkins, was his pertinent remark that the police had been indebted to us for every clue discovered, so far. This was quite true. And most certainly if Scotland Yard succeeded in running the criminal to earth, Hawkins & Co. (including myself) would share in neither the credit attached thereto nor in the reward. I might, indeed, come to an understanding with Traill, as regarded the reward, by continuing to work with him; but no share in the kudos attendant upon a successful issue would ever be mine. As well might a corporal expect to share in the honors accorded a victorious general. Moreover, my orders, alike from Mr. Hawkins and from our client, Capt. Arnewood, were to work independently of the police.

Therefore, even had my own judgment favored a continuance of my connection with Traill, I had no option but to sever it and work alone. I could not, however, brook the idea of leaving him in the dark as to my intentions; and I, accordingly, dropped him a friendly line, explaining my change of plans, and warning him frankly that he must henceforth regard me rather as a rival than as an ally. Doubtless he would think that the big reward offered was the mainspring of my suddenly-revived activity; but what did that matter?

One conviction had forced itself upon me with peculiar force: I must make the solution of the problem I had undertaken the sole end and aim of all my thoughts.

The morning journals had been silent as to the identification of the victim of the Soho tragedy (as it was still called.) Doubtless the police, despite Traill's dry hint to Mr. O'Flynn, had seen fit to withhold the discovery from the press for a time. But the evening papers had been informed, and, as usual, made the most of so sensational an item. What keen wits some of these paragraph writers have, if only they would refrain from so persistently overrating the resources at the disposal of the police! Perhaps the cleverest commentary was that which appeared in the "Evening Express;" at all events, I did not disdain to study its suggestions.

"The Soho Tragedy—We learn that the identity of the victim has at length been established as that of a saloon passenger from New Zealand, by the Union Steamship company's Wairoa, which only reached the Southwest India docks upon the morning of the 10th ult.

"The corpse, it will be remembered, was discovered in a Greek Street lodging house early upon the 20th ult.; so that the unfortunate man was murdered well within twenty-four hours of his leaving the ship. He proves to be a Mr. Luke Arnewood, grandson and heir of the late Mr. Basil Arnewood, an Irish gentleman of good social position and large means; and he had, it seems, returned from New Zealand for the purpose of entering into possession of his inheritance.

"The police, as usual, are somewhat reticent as to what further clues may be in their possession, but are sanguine of a successful issue to their efforts. Of course they always are. We may, however, be pardoned if we refuse to share too strongly in these hopeful anticipations. Despite the unrivalled network of communication at their command, they have failed signally to trace the missing lodger, Webb, in whose room the corpse was found. Up to within a few hours ago they had failed to identify the murdered man; and, more likely than not, their present partial success has been due to some lucky scrap of 'information received.'

"Now, we hold that the detective department relies a great deal too much upon the old stand-by of 'information received,' especially in cases (like the present) where it is almost certain that the crime was not the work of professional law-breakers. Unless we are to assume that Luke Arnewood, upon landing, fell straightway into the hands of some of the bad characters who haunt the neighborhood of the docks—an assumption scarcely consistent with the discovery of his body in Soho—then the probabilities are that he was decoyed to his doom by some person on the lookout for his arrival; and that person would assuredly take every possible precaution to prevent his victim's movements being subsequently traced. A very few hours will, however, decide that point.

"If Luke Arnewood quitted the docks with his luggage, by the ordinary means of porters and a cab; then evidence to this effect will be speedily forthcoming. If not, the chances are that preparations had been made beforehand to get him and his belongings away, in the bustle of landing, without local help. We incline to this latter belief, and harbor a conviction that, if ever the murderer is brought to justice, it will certainly not be by means of the old 'information received' formula."

I confess that the perusal of that paragraph took me down several pegs in my own estimation. It was written, certainly, upon very inexact information, and probably in haste. Yet how smartly the situation had been summed up! And, thinking the matter out, the belief gained upon me that the writer's ingenious surmise was correct, and that the murder was, indeed, the outcome of a prearranged scheme.

If so, then the momentous question arose: Who would be likely to devise a plot so foul against so utter a stranger as Luke Arnewood? Revenge, or lust of gain, is at the bottom of most murders. Revenge seemed out of the question in the present case, because the victim knew no one in England. Gain it might very well be. The traveler had refused all financial aid from O'Brien & Grudgery as unnecessary. He had, perhaps, brought a large sum of money with him; and, apart from this, the somewhat awkward reflection arose that one man, at least, would benefit very greatly indeed by Luke Arnewood's death—the very man who was offering £5,000 reward for the discovery of his cousin's murderer!

Captain Arnewood the culprit! Was the thing possible, conceivable? It was, certainly, somewhat staggering, but my experience as an inquiry agent had taught me that a thoroughly unscrupulous, selfish man, or woman, will stop at nothing, providing the risk of detection appears to be small. Was Captain Arnewood such a man? Impossible, of course, for me to form any opinion of his character upon the strength of one short interview.

First impressions are, I believe, more often right than wrong, and he certainly did not impress me favorably with his opening words and jerky, nervous manner. True, I had subsequently modified my original opinion of the man; but this, as I now realized, had been due more to gratitude for the prospects opened out to me by his offer than to any deliberate revulsion of feeling.

As to his offer of large reward, that seemed equally consistent with either innocence or guilt. It was just the sort of thing a high-minded, generous man would do on the spur of the moment and as a vent for his feelings. But it might also suggest itself, to a guilty man, as an excellent proof of innocent sympathy; for what criminal would, of his own free will, bribe the sleuth-hounds of justice to hunt him down? None, assuredly, except an unusually audacious and self-confident villain would deem the credit to be gained worth the added risk to be run; but such a villain might so view the matter, and Captain Arnewood might so view the matter. At all events, I made up my mind to inquire carefully into his antecedents, and to see a good deal of his society, if I could manage it.

I was something more than curious to learn how he got along with Traill, who would be likely to resent, pretty warmly, any such criticisms of the police as I had been favored with. Six o'clock would, I reflected, be a likely hour to find him in his rooms, and to Jermyn street I accordingly went at that time.

"Not in," was the reply at Lang's, but almost certain to return shortly to dress for dinner. Would I wait in his sitting room? Yes, I would wait; and was duly ushered into a well furnished apartment upon the first floor, communicating with folding doors with a bed room at the back. My attendant seemed to be a superior sort of "boots," with a flavor of the valet thrown in. He was disposed to be talkative, and I profited by the opportunity to ask him a few questions.

"Captain Arnewood told me I would probably find him here or at his club," I remarked. "And I understand he is more often in town than with his regiment at Aldershot."

"Well, sir, I'd scarcely go so far as to say that," he replied, "but he certainly does come up pretty frequently. He's had these rooms for more than two months now, right on end, though, of course he hasn't occupied them all the time. Let me see—he's been here this trip since the first of the month, and I hadn't set eyes on him since the night of the great fog, last month."

"I remember it," I said, with an encouraging nod. "On the 19th, wasn't it? Quite so. A very bad fog, indeed. I hope Captain Arnewood was not out in it."

"I can't say as to that," was the reply; "but he didn't sleep here that night, and was off to Aldershot next day afore I came on duty. I remember that night particular, 'cos of the murder in Greek street. Bad business, that, sir."

"Very bad," I assented.

It was clear the man had not yet seen an evening paper, and I saw no reason why I should supply him with the latest news. So I altered my attack into inquiries, rather insinuated than put, concerning the captain's habits, temperament and general characteristics.

The verdict, upon the whole, was distinctively favorable. He was irregular in his hours, like most bachelors, but was never the worse for liquor, and always remembered the night porter. He was crotchety and often moody, but rarely downright ill-tempered. He was fond, occasionally, of punting upon a winner, and would pay liberally for a really good "tip." And so forth. A counterpart, apparently, in most respects, of hundreds of other leisured gentlemen, residing within a furlong of Piccadilly.

In due course, Captain Arnewood made his appearance, and, in reply to my apology for the lateness of my call, he expressed his readiness to see me at any and all hours.

"I am a bit pressed for time this evening, though, he added, "as I've got back late and I'm dining at Earl's Court. So, be as brief as possible."

"I shall not detain you two minutes," I rejoined. "I wish to know whether Inspector Traill—"

"Confound Inspector Traill and all his tribe!" he broke in, impetuously. "He, first of all, asked me for a written statement of my proposal, and then discovered that the offer of the reward must reach the Commissioner of Police through the Home Office! A pretty sample of red tape, isn't it? He thought that, with the Home Secretary's approval, the matter could be arranged within a week! A week! Another week's grace for my poor cousin's assassin! Of course, I declined to consent to any such monstrous delay, and I drove to the nearest printing office my cabman could discover. There I put in an order for 10,000 posters and 100,000 handbills, and I even waited for some proof copies of the handbills. Here's one. Keep it. No week's delay about that, is there?"

"No," said I, "there certainly isn't." The man's jerky, tornado style almost bewildered me. Could this well-nigh rabid eagerness to avenge a cousin he had never seen, and whose death had enriched him, be genuine?

"Can you see me early to-morrow?" he went on, excitedly. "Yes? Well, come and breakfast with me at ten. We can talk matters over quietly and fix our plans. You'll excuse me for the present, won't you? Thanks. A demain."

"Good-evening," I rejoined. "I shall be here to time."

(To be Continued.)

WASTED HEROISM.

Incident of a Fire in a New York Fireworks Establishment.

When, early on Saturday morning, a fire broke out in a building on Park place, New York, of which the lower part is occupied by the Jubilee Fireworks company, there was consternation among the people in adjoining and adjacent buildings, and firemen hustled as they had never hustled before to avert a serious explosion. Some of the boxes containing Roman candles, rockets, wheels, bombs, mines, torpedoes, etc., etc., were carried out; others were deluged with water until everything in sight and out of sight was soaked.

The fire was extinguished before it reached that part in which the fireworks were stored. When it was all out, Supt. Newkirk, of the fireworks company, made his way through the crowd and was informed of the bravery of the firemen, who, at the peril of their lives, had worked so hard to prevent an explosion. "Just imagine what would have happened if we had not poured hundreds of tons of water on these fireworks," said one of the firemen.

Then spoke the superintendent, saying: "These things which you see are not fireworks. They are dummies, made of wood and covered with colored paper, which we keep to show customers in place of samples. We don't keep fireworks in this building. There isn't an ounce of powder in this establishment."

And the things which the firemen then said, when they heard of what the superintendent had related, made the air for a brief time as sulphurous as it would have been if the explosion which the firemen feared had actually taken place.—Albany Evening Journal.

A SUBSTITUTE FOR RUBBER.

Velvril Is Said to Be Superior to the Natural Product.

Velvril is the name by which a new substitute for rubber and guttapercha is to be known. It is used largely for deep sea cable insulation, to take the place of rubber. The desirability of such a substitute being found is seen in the fact that one cable recently laid required over 500 tons of rubber, or one-fifth the annual output, for its insulation. The new insulator is a mixture of nitrated linseed or castor oils with nitro-cellulose. This gives a homogenous mass, the elastic and other properties of which can be modified by changes in the proportions of the constituents. A good imitation of Para rubber is secured by mixing two pints of nitrated oil with one pint of nitrocellulose. Castor oil yields better results than linseed oil. The elasticity of the product is 25 per cent. It is said to be more durable than rubber, and it can be molded under heat pressure, or worked by dissolving in any suitable solvent, and then evaporating the solvent. Velvril is claimed to be superior to vulcanized rubber, in that it is without action on copper. It appears to possess many advantages, but satisfactory information as to its cost of production is not yet forthcoming. The purposes for which it is expected to be specially adapted are machine belting, the manufacture of portmanteaus, camping out sheets, loin cloths for horses, balloon materials, hose and tubing, carding wire foundations for spinning rollers, floor coverings, paints, enameled leather and fishing lines. It is non-explosive and not more inflammable than other kindred organic products.—St. Louis Globe-Democrat.

Used the Same Messenger.

Hugh Brady, the St. Louis political boss, when in need of transportation, was in the habit of sending to Col. "Bill" Phelps, head of the railroad lobby at Jefferson City. One day, in a burst of enthusiasm, he promised Col. Phelps a jug of fine whisky from his "sthock down at th' sthore," but the days merged into weeks, and weeks into months, and the jug never materialized. Col. Phelps said nothing, but one fine afternoon there came an urgent request from Mr. Brady for transportation. He paid no attention to it, and early next morning the politician was waiting for him at the office door. "Say, Bill," he burst out, "did you get a note from me yesterday?" "Yes, indeed, Hugh," answered Col. Phelps; "I got it and sent the pass." "And by whom did you send it?" "Why, Hugh, I sent it by the man that brought me that jug of whisky, you know."—The Wave.

A Sly Pass.

Scene—Country road at dusk; a lass with a pail of milk and a young man with a tub under his arm and a pig over his shoulder.

Lass—O James, I do be afeared!

James—What you got to be afeared for? Ain't I with ye?

Lass—O James, I be afeared you be goin' to kiss me!

James—How can I kiss you with this pig and tub in the way?

Lass, (tearfully)—I was a-thinking you could put the tub down, and the pig under it!

And the hint was taken.—Spare Moments.

THE IRISH AND BOERS.

HOLLAND ONCE RISKED ALL FOR IRELAND.

And the Latter's Sympathy for the Burghers of South Africa Is Natural —A Chapter of Past History—End of Batavia.

The sympathy which the Irish express for the Boers today in the latter's struggle against the British in South Africa has a strong historical foundation, says the New York Sun. One hundred years ago Holland, then known as the Batavian republic, risked its all in an effort to rescue Ireland from the yoke of England, and though its sacrifices were unavailing Irishmen will ever gratefully remember them. The story of this alliance between the Irish and the Dutch and the chivalrous and self-sacrificing action of the latter may be interestingly recalled at the present time. The union was brought about by Theobald Wolfe Tone, whose undaunted energy, as restless as the sea, and whose extraordinary genius for organizing and bringing to the aid of his schemes cabinets who were indifferent when not hostile, have scarcely a parallel in history. He was the first great Irish republican.

Wolfe Tone was the son of a Dublin coachmaker and the organizer of the Society of United Irishmen, whose uprising in 1798 came very near shaking off the grasp of England. On account of his relations with the Rev. William Jackson, a protestant clergyman, who was sent by the French government as an emissary to Ireland, Tone had to fly to America, and in August, 1795, reached Wilmington on the Delaware river. He was then about 30 years of age. But banishment from his native land did not sever his heart from it nor weaken his resolve to make it free. In a few days he secured an interview with the French minister in Philadelphia, then the capital of the United States, and the following February found him in Havre, whence he immediately proceeded to Paris. The difficulties he first encountered would have crushed the hopes and heart of any one less undaunted and resourceful. Fortunately the American minister was friendly to him and Tone before long found himself discussing with Carnot, Hoche, Napoleon and the French directory plans and expeditions for the invasion of Ireland.

The result was that the following December an expedition comprising forty-three sail and having on board 15,000 troops, 45,000 stand of arms, artillery, ammunition, etc. sailed from Brest. The fleet had little more than cleared the shores of France when a storm arose which scattered the ships, and, the weather continuing foul, they were never reunited. A few of them reached the point of destination, Bantry bay, but Gen. Grouchy (the same who afterward failed Napoleon at Waterloo) refused to make a landing in the absence of Hoche, the commander in chief of the expedition, though he was urged to do so by Tone, who was with him aboard the same ship. Reverses seemed but to strengthen the purposes of Wolfe Tone, and, urged on by his ceaseless energy, the French directory authorized another expedition, but none of them ever effected a landing in Ireland except a puny and belated one under Gen. Humbert.

The foregoing indicates the character of an extraordinary young man in an extraordinary age, and will serve as an introduction in the Batavian republic and the compact he established there in Ireland's behalf. He had won the respect of Napoleon, who expressed his regret at St. Helena that he had not followed Wolfe Tone's advice by striking at England in Ireland instead of in Egypt; he had commanded the esteem of Carnot, the great war minister, the "organizer of victory," and of the greatest men in the French directory, but, seeing no immediate opportunity of accomplishing anything more in Paris in furtherance of his great projects, he cast his eyes toward the little republic on the North sea. And so in the early half of 1797 he turned his footsteps toward The Hague, and then was formed that friendly alliance between the Dutch and the Irish which survives so strongly today. Wolfe Tone at once set to work to lay his plans before the Batavian ministers, and, as that country and France were allies at the time, and both being hostile to England, his task was less difficult than he had anticipated. He was assisted, too, by his and Ireland's great friend, Gen. Hoche, who, unfortunately for both, died while in command of the French army of the Sombre and the Meuse, and nearly a month before the Dutch expedition for Ireland sailed.

The result of Tone's efforts at The Hague was the creation of a formidable naval and military expedition for the invasion of Ireland, the rendezvous of the fleet being at Texel, an island in the North sea. It consisted of fifteen ships of the line, eleven frigates and a number of sloops, in all carrying 14,000 men, besides a large quantity of arms and ammunition.

But the expedition never reached Ireland. For months there was adverse wind and weather and the expedition could not sail. At length the Dutch government issued an order to De Winter, who commanded the fleet, to put to sea. He did so on the morning of Oct. 11, 1797. His fleet and that of the English under Admiral Duncan came in sight of each other near the coast of Holland and off a place called Camperdown, a little town twenty-seven miles northwest of Amsterdam. An engagement bloodily and obstinately contested followed, and the end was the destruction of the Dutch fleet, a disaster which practically wiped out that heroic little nation from the list of great naval powers. And this fate came about because of her disinterested efforts on behalf of Ireland.

The Other Man He Felt Like.

From Scraps: Our curate is a nervous little man. He had been ill, and went away for two months to the south of France. On his return he said to the vicar, "Yes, it has done me a world of good. I'm quite another man. I feel quite myself again."

"A Woman's Pocket" is the title of a new book. It is probably a detective story.

OUR IMMIGRANTS.

Scientific Classification of Those Who Are Coming to This Country.

The first step in statistical tabulation is classification, and classification invariably starts from an assumption of real or supposed resemblance. Not to dwell on such fundamental distinctions as those of color, race and nationality, we encounter the more special resemblances of agreement in religious belief, agreement in industrial preference, agreement in political conviction (as shown in election returns), similar susceptibility to emotionalism, similar capacities for rational comprehension, similar imperfections of nature, which result in lives of crime or pauperism. Remove from social statistics this postulate that blood kinship or mental resemblance between one social unit and another is the basis of social phenomena, and the statistics themselves would cease to exist. Statistics reveal also the consciousness which men have of their resemblances and their differences. It is statistically known that the geographical distribution of nationalities is not accidental or capricious. Immigrant Italians, Germans and Scandinavians find their way to those parts of the country where men of their own blood and speech are already established. Intermarriages of men and women of different nationalities are statistically known to be frequent where no differences of religion exist, and infrequent where different nationalities profess different faiths. The statistics of political elections are quite as much statistics of the consciousness of kind as of differences of mental type itself. The most significant fact of all, however, has still to be named. It is this: From the first known beginnings of statistical research to the present time every extension of statistical inquiry has been in a large measure due to the consciousness of kind. The first statistical surveys of communities of which we have any record were such tribal enumerations as those recorded in the book of Numbers, the avowed object of which was to ascertain the strength and resources of the various tribes by clans, lesser gentile groups, and households, not more for utilitarian reasons than for the gratification of gentile and tribal pride.—In Appleton's Popular Science Monthly.

Edgeley's Wonderful Well.

For many years Edgeley, N. D., has boasted one of the finest flowing artesian wells in the state. The water comes gushing out with high pressure in a stream as large as a man's arm. The well is 1,370 feet deep, and the water is too saline for domestic use. A beautiful lake has been made at small cost; which in the winter time furnishes a splendid skating rink for the young people. The water has been placed under control and is piped through the streets, affording a system of waterworks, the most cheaply of any town in the country. For many years it has been known that the water was mixed with gas, but no effort has been made to separate the two until fall. C. J. Spurgeon, a druggist, has at last succeeded in accomplishing this, after many experiments, and secures gas for lighting and heating purposes in his store and residence. The separation of the gas is to be accomplished on a larger scale, and the streets and residences are to be lighted and the business houses all heated at a minimum cost, from the source that furnishes the town a free waterworks system. The well is on the experimental farm, under control of the state agricultural college. A number of the larger farms in the state are equipped with such wells, and in the future their farmhouses may be lighted and heated at the cost of putting in gas pipes.—St. Paul Pioneer Press.

Woman Who Fought with the Regiment.

The "Fighting Fifth," which is likely to take a leading part in the fighting in South Africa, is one of the very few regiments in the British army in which a woman fought for many years side by side with the men. On the tombstone of her grave at Brighton, which is still kept in good order by the officers, is the inscription: "In memory of Phoebe Hessel, who was born at Stepney in the year 1713. She served for many years as a soldier in the Fifth regiment in different parts of Europe, and in the year 1745 fought under the command of the Duke of Cumberland in the battle of Fontenoy, where she received a bayonet wound in her arm. Her long life extended from the reign of Queen Anne to that of George IV., from which monarch she received comfort and support in her later years. She died at Brighton Dec. 12, 1821, aged 108."

Producers of New Books.

According to recent writer, Great Britain produces fewer than a third of the number of new books published by Germany, not more than half of the new books produced by France, and considerably under the total produced by Italy. The numbers given are: Germany, 24,000 new books per year; France, 13,000; Italy, 9,500; Great Britain, 7,300; United States, 5,300; Netherlands, 2,500. If, however, Great Britain is thus low in the general production of new books, she leads in the production of novels, heading the list with 2,438. Germany leads in educational works, with 5,442; arts and sciences, with 2,938; belles lettres, with 2,453, and travel, with 1,139; while Italy leads in political economy, with 2,994, and France in history, with 1,164.

They Hung Him.

One morning shortly after the trial of Rev. Prof. S—— for heresy, the subject was being discussed at the breakfast table of one of his clerical friends. One of the boys asked: "Papa, what did they do with Prof. S——?" "They hung him," promptly replied the 6-year-old brother. "Hung him?" said the astonished parent. "Why, Edwin, what do you mean? They did not do anything of the kind." "Well, then, pap, what did they do?" "They suspended him." "Well, that's what I said," replied the little fellow. "Doesn't suspend mean to hang."—Short Stories.

Wedding Bells Kept Busy.

The number of marriages in Manhattan and the Bronx will this year be greater than ever before in the history of the borough or of old New York.

The Non-Producer.

This world is but a fleeting show;
The kicker, so they say,
Performs no work to make things go
And never pays his way.
—Washington Star.

Mormonism.

Is a blot upon our land—a symptom of governmental ill-health. The right laws would act upon it as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters does upon constipation, or dyspepsia. They would quickly restore healthy purity; and that is just what the Bitters does for the human constitution. It makes the stomach strong by curing indigestion and biliousness.

His Experience.

Mr. Chalkimup (engaging aspirant for the position of assistant in the milk business)—And what previous experience have you had, my lad?

Jimmy Small—Well, sir, I've 'elped pump the organ in our church.

Engaged at once.—Ally Sloper.

"An Empty Sack Cannot Stand Upright."

Neither can poor, weak, thin blood nourish and sustain the physical system. For strength of nerves and muscles there must be pure, rich, vigorous blood. Hood's Sarsaparilla is established as the standard preparation for the blood by its many remarkable cures.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Never Disappoints

Both Omitted Something.

The Memphis Scimitar tells of a negro preacher who had just concluded the ceremony which united an old negro in matrimony for the fourth time.

The silence which usually follows an occasion of this kind was broken by the preacher in his effort to relieve the embarrassment of the attendants.

"It is usually the custom," he said "for the preacher to kiss the bride, but this time we will omit."

The groom gave his young wife a healthy smack, and, turning to the preacher, said:

"Parson, it am usually de case for de groom to give de parson somethin', but dis time we'll omit," and he walked away from the astonished preacher with his bride on his arm.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

Charles J. Abbe, White Rock, S. D., adjustable milk can holder and protector; Herman G. Dittbenner, Minneapolis, Minn., plow hammer; Charles B. Holmes, Minneapolis, Minn., bicycle chain; Frank C. Jaeger, Belview, Minn., wrench; Benjamin J. Knapp, St. Paul, Minn., lubricating journal bearing; Charles A. Ray, Bridgewater, S. D., thill for vehicles; Richard Russell, Stephen, Minn., weed puller; George H. Stewart, Aneta, N. D., snap hook; Alfred Tucker, Hassas, Minn., clock winding indicator; Henry Whomes, Winona, Minn., power hammer.

Merwin, Lothrop & Johnson, Patent Attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul

Reformer Reed Owns Up.

"How do you do, Mr. Speaker?" said Representative McClellan of New York to Tom Reed the other day.

"I am not Mr. Speaker any longer," drawled Reed.

"Then, how do you do, Mr. Reed, and what do you think of politics?"

"I don't think of politics," he replied in his lazy voice. "I am a reformer now, and reformers don't think of anything except making money."—Cleveland Plaindealer.

Mount St. Joseph, Dubuque, Ia., Wins the Prize.

At the St. Louis State Fair of 1899, lovers of art were attracted by a painting in oil, the work of Miss Sabina Riordan of that city. The art committee awarded it the second prize. Miss Riordan was a student of Mount St. Joseph Academy, Dubuque, Ia., and painted the prize scene while a pupil of that institution.

Social Distinctions.

"She is inclined to assume a great deal of importance," said one young woman. "But I don't know that I can blame her."

"Why, you married a European count."

"Yes; but she married an American coal baron."—Washington Star.

I believe Piso's Cure is the only medicine that will cure consumption.—Anna M. Ross, Williamsport, Pa., Nov. 12, '95

How He Told Them.

Mr. McPherson—How do you know, William, that this man is from Tipperary?

William—Sure, Mister McPherson, Oime ahlways tillin' thim fillahs boye the axidints in their spache!—Harper's Bazar.

Revenue for Educational Institutions.

By an act of the last legislature of Minnesota, two-thirds of the revenue which may be derived from any nonagricultural lands that may be donated to the state for forestry purposes shall be paid "to such public educational institution or system in the state as the grantor may designate." The lands so granted are to be managed by a state forestry board, which, as at present organized comprises, among others Frederick Weyerhaeuser, John Cooper, William Mitchell, Greenleaf Clark and Professor Green of the State University.

Garbled.

Said Mrs. Brown to Mrs. Parvenu:

"Have you seen Mrs. Hyton's winter wrap? It's magnificent; ne plus ultra."

Said Mrs. Parvenu to Mrs. Smith a few hours later:

"Have you seen Mrs. Hyton's winter wrap? It's a new plush ulster!"—Philadelphia Press.

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. Dr. R. H. Kline, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

He who would not take advice gets knowledge when trouble overtakes him.—Kaffir.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

MILLIONS

of acres of choice agricultural LANDS now opened for settlement in Western Canada. Here is grown the celebrated NO. 1 HARD WHEAT, which brings the highest price in the markets of the world; thousands of cattle are fattened for market without any grain and without a day's shelter. Send for information and secure a free home in Western Canada. Write the Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, or address the undersigned, who will mail you atlases, pamphlets, etc., free of cost. Ben Davies, 154 East Third St., St. Paul, or T. O. Currie, Stevens Point, Wis.

AMERICA SAYS SO.

The Entire Country is on the Move.

Cascarets Candy Cathartic Did It, and Record a Phenomenal Victory. Five Million Boxes Sold Last Year.

From every part of America comes the news that sufferers from constipation have found relief in Cascarets Candy Cathartic, the wonderful modern scientific laxative and intestinal tonic. Cascarets are figuratively and literally in everybody's mouth. Thousands have tried Cascarets with the most pleasant and effective results, and voluntarily testify to their experiences. Here are a few extracts from some of the letters:

"I have been using Cascarets for headache and constipation and have received great benefit from them." Mrs. M. Gabler, 512 Larrabee St., Chicago.

"I have been taking Cascarets for over a month and find them just the thing for constipation." Albert B. Burt, 70 Main St., Andover, Mass.

"I am using Cascarets and have never found anything so satisfactory." Mrs. C. W. Durrant, 57 Emerson St., Buffalo, N. Y.

"I have taken Cascarets and cheerfully recommend them to all my friends." Mrs. G. J. Gradwell, Frugality, Pa.

"Cascarets are fine for biliousness and malaria and are so pleasant to take." Mrs. Mary Cummings, Maud, Oklahoma.

"I use Cascarets in my family and find them all you recommend them to be." E. L. Irvin, Cor. Mead and Railroad, Meadville, Pa.

"You can safely add appendicitis to the list of diseases that Cascarets will benefit or cure." Eunice J. Smith, Rich Valley, Ohio.

"I have used Cascarets; there is nothing better for constipation." Benj. Passage, Knightstown, Ind.

"Cascarets are all right. They have cured me of constipation, and I never expected anything would." Charles H. Nye, Lock Box 205, Cincinnati, Ohio.

"I am so thankful for your Cascarets. They are better than any medecine I ever used." Mrs. M. Rew, Lacelle, Iowa.

"I do not hesitate to say that Cascarets is the very best medicine ever placed before the people." Andrew Woodruff, Daysville, N. Y.

"Cascarets are the best cathartic I ever used." Tom Holt, Wellwood, Manitoba.

"I have tried your Cascarets and I want to tell you they are just splendid." John Wiegmink, Box 861, Allegan, Mich.

We could fill the whole paper with expressions like the above. Thousands of similar recognitions of the merits of Cascarets have been volunteered and prove that this delightful laxative, so pleasant of taste, so mild and yet effective, has secured a firmly established place in the hearts of the people.

Go buy and try Cascarets yourself today. All druggists, 10c, 25c, 50c. Booklet and sample free. Address Sterling Remedy Company, Chicago or New York.

This is the CASCARET tablet. Every tablet of the only genuine Cascarets bears the magic letters "C C C." Look at the tablet before you buy, and beware of frauds, imitations and substitutes.

A Talented Youth.

Johnnie—I wish I was Tommy Jones.

Mother—Why? You are stronger than he is, you have a better home, more toys, and more pocket money.

Johnnie—Yes, I know; but he can wiggle his ears.—New York Journal.

THE GRIP CURE THAT DOES CURE.

Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets removes the cause that produces La Grippe. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25c.

One Sort.

"You sold this dog to me for a bird dog. He doesn't know a bird when he sees one. I took him out yesterday, and he wouldn't look at a bird."

"Well, how was the bird cooked?"—Brooklyn Life.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Patent medicine men fill their almanacs with ancient jokes to show their skill in prolonging life.

SYRUP OF FIGS

ACTS GENTLY ON THE KIDNEYS, LIVER AND BOWELS
CLEANSES THE SYSTEM
EFFECTUALLY
DISPELS COLDS HEADACHES & FEVERS
OVERCOMES HABITUAL CONSTIPATION
PERMANENTLY
TO GET ITS BENEFICIAL EFFECTS
BUY THE GENUINE—MAN'F'D BY
CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.
LOUISVILLE, KY. SAN FRANCISCO, CAL. NEW YORK, N.Y.
FOR SALE BY ALL DRUGGISTS. PRICE 50c. PER BOTTLE.

Wheat 327 Millions Short
As compared with the World's crop of 1898.
Send for our booklet "How to Sell a Crop and Have It," and you will then know how large fortunes are made in Wheat speculation. Phone 1 605M.
W. H. HAMMOND & CO., Brokers,
Bank Reference, Corn Ex., Minneapolis, Minn.

DR. SETH ARNOLD'S COUGH KILLER
has stood the test of 50 years and is still the Best Cough Remedy Sold. Cures when other remedies fail. Tastes good; children like it. Sold by all druggists—25 cents.

PENSION JOHN W. MORRIS, Washington, D. C.
Successfully Prosecutes Claims.
Late Principal Examiner U.S. Pension Bureau.
3 yrs in civil war, 15 adjudicating claims, atty since.

DROPSY NEW DISCOVERY; gives quick relief and cures worst cases. Book of testimonials and 10 DAYS' treatment FREE. DR. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box E, Atlanta, Ga.

N. W. N. U. —No. 1.— 1900.

When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

FARM AND GARDEN.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof—Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

Horticultural Observations.

The question of whether bees puncture grapes has been discussed from various standpoints for a good many years, and the conclusions reached by most thinkers and investigators on the subject are that bees do not puncture grapes, but suck the juice of grapes only after they have burst open or been bitten by birds. Prof. R. L. Taylor of the Michigan Experiment Station has conducted some experiments that would seem to put the question at rest. His observations were that the bees worked only on the Delaware and Lady grapes, varieties that burst open badly in wet seasons. Prof. Taylor placed 1,000 sacks on clusters of thirteen different varieties of grapes so that the bees could not get at them. Toward the close of the experiment it was found that the grapes inclosed in sacks were suffering more than those that were left uncovered, and many of the grapes had burst open. The experimenter concluded that the sucking away of the juice of the grapes by the bees is a direct benefit rather than an injury, in that these juices are prevented from flowing upon sound grapes, and thus increasing the amount of the injury by the cracking of the skin.

The question of reforesting burned-over areas is of importance to all interested in forestry and incidentally in horticulture. When large areas are burned over it takes many years to cover them with anything, even with grasses. When a small space only is covered, the heat is not so intense as to destroy all plant germs in the soil, but in the case of great fires even the fertility, with all seeds in the soil, is destroyed. Some recent investigations in Colorado showed that regions that had been burned over in 1881 had not begun to show any kind of tree growth till six years afterward, and that thirteen years afterward small pines only were found, and though these trees were found on investigation to be seven years old, they had attained a height of only twenty inches. To fully comprehend what this means one should measure off twenty inches in height from any object—the floor or ground—and remember that this height represents seven years of growth. At such a rate, how long will it take to cover that region with a fair-sized forest? Another region was burned over in 1890, and four years afterward not a sign of vegetation had appeared, except here and there a straggling blade of grass or sedge. Forest fires not only destroy immense supplies of timber, but destroy the humus in the soil to such an extent that it is rendered nearly sterile for generations. Fires are the greatest foes to forests, and their prevention should engage the best efforts of the government.

A New Industry.

From Farmers' Review: Favorable conditions for the growth of what is known as the Holland bulbs have been discovered in the western part of the state of Washington, in San Juan county. This county is unique in that it consists almost entirely of islands, some 200 in number, surrounded by water which never reaches a lower temperature than 43 degrees Fahrenheit in winter, nor higher than 54 degrees in summer. This equable temperature, together with the copious rains of that region, make it possible to achieve results in the raising of bulbs which long-continued experiments in other parts of the United States have not been able to produce.

Mr. George Gibbs of Orcus island, after carefully studying the soil, climate and temperature of San Juan county for several years, in the fall of 1892 planted a quantity of bulbs which he allowed to remain in their beds until the summer of 1894, when he found an enormous increase in all varieties. Not only was there a phenomenal increase in numbers, but the bulbs had also attained an unusual size, some tulip bulbs measuring seven and one-half inches in circumference. The blooms obtained from these bulbs are exceptionally fine and well developed, and are ready for the market two weeks earlier than those raised on the mainland.

About 400 tulip and hyacinth bulbs are now planted in Lincoln park, Chicago, which have been sent there by Mr. Gibbs from Washington, and their development is being watched with much interest by those in charge.

E. JACOBSON.

Preserving Fence Posts.

The lime treatment is as good as any, and the cheapest. The only effect of an antiseptic for preserving timber is to remove the acids of the wood, and to fill the cells with an indestructible mineral deposit, thus preventing decay, says H. S. in Rural New Yorker. After much practice with the various timber preservatives for use in such special cases, as in mines, and for bridges, I have not learned of any material better than common lime. It has been found so effective in this way, that ships are now in existence and seaworthy in every way, which are over a century old, and have been all that time carrying lime as their principal cargoes. Timber has been found in ancient buildings, perfectly sound after centuries of burial in lime or cement mortar. From some experience, I am satisfied that the lime treatment, simple and cheap as it is, is equally effective as the various other treatments by much more expensive materials.

How to Use It.—My method has been to saturate the timber which has been put into bridges, cross ties on railroads, and in mines for posts, in hot lime in this way: A pit is dug large enough to hold a convenient lot of posts set on end, fresh quicklime is laid in the bottom six inches deep. The timber is laid or set on end in this pit—for fence posts, this way is most convenient. The spaces between the posts are filled with the small broken lime, room being left for the lime to swell as it slakes, and when the pit is filled, water is thrown on to slake the lime into a paste, as if for mortar. The lime, in expanding, fills in tightly between the posts, and making a great heat, drives the moisture out of the timber, and seasons it. Water is added as the lime slakes, until it is a semi-liquid mass. Then as the lime and the heated timber cool, the vacuum created in the timber by the previous heating, is immediately filled by the lime water, and the cellulose, with all the acids which are neutralized in this way, becomes mineralized, and decay of the timber is prevented. There is nothing new in this way, any more than there was in the advice given to the leper to "go wash and be clean." But it is quite as effective a way as any of the more costly chemical methods of treating timber to increase its durability or prevent its decay. Of course, it is necessary to immerse the posts in the pit deep enough to treat them as far as, or something more than, the timber will be set in the ground, and the timber should be stripped of the bark.

Carpet Grass.

We herewith illustrate paspalum compressum, better known as Carpet grass. A government report says of it: This is apparently indigenous along the coast, and is slowly spreading northward, being now somewhat common in Mississippi and Alabama. It is undoubtedly one of the best pasture grasses for sandy soils, and it will bear more hard trampling and close grazing than any other species. On heavy soils it is often crowded out by Bermuda grass and other species, but on light soils of even moderate fertility it will soon cover the ground to the exclusion of all others. It is a grass that soon comes in when sandy soils are pastured closely, and will choke out the broom sedge and other less desirable sorts. It is easily destroyed by plowing and never becomes a weed. It rarely grows large enough to be cut for hay, though on the prairies of southwestern Louisiana, where it is known as "petit gazon," it reaches a height of two feet or more and covers a large part of the native meadows. The seed is rarely found in the market, but the plant is easily propagated by mowing when the seed is ripe and scattering the hay over the field where the grass is wanted. Even if but few plants should appear the first year, the seed will soon be spread by stock so as to cover the entire field. It bears heavy frost without injury, and so affords considerable grazing during the winter. It is often used as lawn grass on soils too light and sandy for Bermuda, and is excellent for that purpose, though its rather light color makes it less attractive than a grass having a richer green.

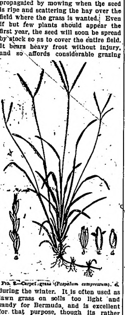

FIG. 2.—Carpet grass (Paspalum compressum). a.

Grasses as Sand Soil Binders.

A government report says: The large areas of drifting sands along the Atlantic, Pacific, and Gulf coasts and also about the Great Lakes and along some of our larger rivers, which, because of their unstable character, are a serious menace to life and property, could in many cases be reclaimed and converted into valuable pasture and meadow lands. The study of the grasses suitable for binding these sands has been extended along the Atlantic coast as far south as Florida, also to various points on the Pacific coast and along the Columbia River in Washington and Oregon. Several native sand binders of great promise have been discovered, and their utilization in a practical way has been undertaken. The seaside blue grass, a native of the sand dunes along the Oregon coast, where it grows abundantly, is said to be a good forage grass as well as an excellent sand binder, and has been successfully introduced along the sand dunes of Lake Michigan. The binding of drifting sands and embankments about fortifications along the coast is a serious problem which confronts the authorities of the war department.

Goat Mutton.—That goats are killed and sold on the Chicago sheep market for mutton is quite true, and the yearly aggregate of such sales runs up into tens of thousands, but for the most part these goats sold for mutton are culls from the grade flocks of the northwest and southwest, many of them not at all calculated to reflect credit either upon their kind, or the mutton for which they are sold. The Angora kid, young doe, or young wether, are equal in flavor and delicacy of flesh to the best lamb or young mutton, and the day is not distant when they will be marketed, killed, sold and consumed under their own name and without the makeshift of a reprehensible disguise. The old wether or bill goat meat is only fit for hogs and savages, but the flesh of the fat young kid or nannie turns a morsel fit for a king.—Ex.

Change in Nitrogen.—Nitrogen as organic matter (plant or animal) at least before becoming assimilable to any considerable extent, must first undergo fermentation and change to ammonia, and then be changed to nitric acid, involving one more process than in the case of ammoniacal nitrogen.

Jefferson county, Wis., made and sold over 5,000,000 pounds of butter last year.

BOERS AS FIGHTERS.

NO MUSIC AS THEY ENTER IN THEIR BATTLES.

But They Sing "Old Hundred" in Solemn Measured Tone—Their Two Great Allies in Their War with Great Britain.

There are no bands in the Boer armies. The farmer soldiers of the two republics make or receive charges in silence, their minds intent upon aim and upon strategy. If it is a charge, they advance in a scattered and what seems to be a confused manner. In reality it is only the Boers' natural order, in which they fight best. A retreat looks like a rout, because each man tries to save himself as quickly as possible. A rout is almost impossible, because the farmers do not understand how to "lose their heads." They scatter, and when a place of safety has been reached, they come together again as if nothing had happened, writes a correspondent familiar with their methods. While they have no martial music, in the ordinary sense, they have martial music of the most impressive kind, in the extraordinary sense. Each night before "turning in" and each morning before breakfast, and also before going to battle, if there is opportunity, the entire army, with heads uncovered, joins in singing "Old Hundred." Each note is prolonged six beats and the effect is solemn and even awful, so much of resolution, of stern and relentless resolve, do they put into the singing. The two strongest points about this practically ununiformed and strangely organized Boer army are both individual—the individual ability of the Boer at strategy and his individual ability as a sharpshooter.

The favorite topic of conversation among the Boers has always been how best to meet the British when they come to destroy the republics, how to fight the great defensive war which every Boer has felt sure would inevitably come. The plans that are being carried out and will be carried out are the result of years upon years of study of the situation by the burghers of all ranks, consulting together upon the stoops of their thatched houses of evenings. The Boer is a natural strategist, wily, crafty, hard to corner, quick to seize the slightest advantage, quick to see advantage where even trained soldiers of other nations would fail to se it.

The Boers are armed with the Mannlicher gun, and, as is generally known, are excellent marksmen. President Kruger has been buying these arms in large quantities ever since the Jameson raid and the practical failure of the British to punish the raiders. Gen. Joubert took me into a storehouse at Pretoria filled with thousands of these rifles. "Isn't it a beauty?" he said, picking up one of them and patting it affectionately. "At twenty yards it will shoot through fifty inches of pine."

The Mannlicher bullet travels with a velocity of 2,000 feet per second. At 4,000 yards it will pierce two inches of solid ash and three inches of pine. At 1,000 yards the bullet, if it does not flatten, will bore a hole right through a bone without splitting. This rifle has a barrel thirty inches long, and weighs eight pounds. Its caliber is 30. It is hair-triggered, has a pistol grip, and the Boer carries it slung over his shoulder by a strap.

In the last two years the countrymen have been putting away the old smooth-bore and providing themselves with the Mannlicher. In killing game they use a bullet of which the lead point is exposed so that it "mushrooms" when it strikes. On entering the bullet expands and tears an ugly hole. If it strikes sidewise, the effect is horrible.

Sorry He Said It.

There are so many things in this wicked world we would rather not have said. Mean things, spiteful things, unfeeling things, reckless things, which trickle over the lips before we can realize it. An estimable man in town has a wife who is a good woman, though she can never be a candidate at a beauty show. He admires her, however, and as he is the one to be pleased, her lack of loveliness is a small matter. One day he was talking with some friends about his disposition. "No," said he, candidly, "you rarely see me get worked up, nervous and cross. I am the easiest person in the world to please." "One glance at your wife shows that," replied a dear friend, who is the soul of politeness, and who, poor wretch, really meant to imply she did not have the looks of a nagged or brow-beaten woman, and must get on easily with him. But, oh, it didn't sound that way, and that man would gladly have given $10 down for a hole in the ground just about that time.—Louisville Times.

Nervous Prostration Defined.

"Won't you tell me what is really nervous prostration?" queried a man of a woman. "I hear of this one of my acquaintances (chiefly feminine) and of that being victims of this fashionable disease, but I have not the slightest idea what the symptoms are." "I do not know how to describe it exactly," she answered. "It is when you order a poached egg for breakfast, for instance, and they bring you a fried one, and you burst into tears; or when you go into hysterics because the cook sends you word she wants a new saucepan; or when you consider your husband an unfeeling brute, because he tells you to cheer up and asks you to go to the theater. These, or something like them, are the premonitory symptoms; the next stage is mild lunacy."

Successful Financeering.

Stranger (midnight)—I should like you to go to No. 999 Suburb av, to see my wife. Doctor—All right; I'll be ready as soon as I can get my carriage. Wait and you can ride with me. Doctore (two hours later)—I can see nothing the matter with your wife except that she seems pretty mad at being waked up. Stranger—Remarkable recovery, I must say. Here's your dollar. Wife (five minutes later)—Why in creation did you bring a doctor to see me? Husband—The street cars had stopped running and it was cheaper than hiring a cab.—New York Weekly.

MAKING A HEAVY GUN.

Takes Longer Than the Construction of the Ship That Carries It.

Mr. W. J. Gordon sketches Woolwich arsenal in the Leisure Hour. Among a host of interesting descriptions may be selected here what he says about the making of a gun: "In their early stages these guns are unexpectedly long and slender things, owing to their being without the coils and jackets that build them up to such bulkiness. They look their longest during their wiring, that modern process which enabled us to reduce the bulk of the gun so much that the podgy Woolwich infants have developed into graceful boys. There is something startling in finding a gun being treated like a bat-handle, the only difference being that instead of waxed thread you wind on a thin flat strip of steel having a breaking strain of 100 tons to the square inch, and wind this on in several layers instead of one. The gun revolves in a lathe as the cricket-bat does, but much more slowly, and in place of the wooden spool of thread there stands, at right angles to it, a huge iron reel, from which the riband or wire, as it is called, which is about a quarter of an inch wide, is wound on spirally at high tension, the spirals being knocked up tight to each other with a punch whenever they fail to wind on closely together. The gun is thus wrapped with literally miles of wire, mostly in the region of the powder chamber. Over the wire jacket come the hoops of cast steel cut out of ingots as disks, and forged into rings just a trifle smaller than the finger they are to fit; and when these are finished they are one by one, for there are many of them, heated just enough to expand them, and slipped over the gun to shrink and grip it as they cool, the gun being upright at the time, with a stream of water flowing through its bore to keep the temperature down. In this way wiring is all hidden, and the gun looks as though it were built up entirely of these massive hoops, as it used to be. The lathe work and other operations necessitated by all this may be imagined, and we cease to wonder why it takes longer to make a heavy gun than it does to build the ship that carries it."

THE ROYAL HOSTESS.

German Emperor's Little Daughter Gives a "Five o'Clock Tea."

Princess Viktoria Luise, the only daughter of the German emperor and empress, celebrated her return from the mountains by entertaining all her little friends at a "five o'clock," where chocolate was served, and not tea. There are so few little princes and princesses of tender years that little people of less exalted rank were included among the invited guests. These latter, a little shy at their first introduction into imperial circles, were received by the gracious hostess in such an informal manner that they felt at home at once. She has inherited housewife capability from her charming mamma, and she insisted upon dealing out to each separate his or her share of cake and chocolate. As each child left it received as a souvenir a package of chocolate, attached to which was a small portrait of the fascinating little imperial hostess. It was all a very great success. She is not only beloved by her father, mother and six brothers, but the entire imperial household is at her feet. This little sprite can do with her father as she likes, and at the same hour every morning she runs into his study and delights him with her various accomplishments from day to day, such as a new verse in French, German or English, or anything that she thinks will please him. She is five years old, very blonde, with expressive blue eyes, and enjoys to the utmost every moment of her until now unclouded life. The mother and little daughter are inseparable; and in this way the little one has become quite a traveler, and she has seen more lands than many a grown person.

A Story of Twins.

Lloyd Lowndes and Richard Lowndes, sons of Governor Lowndes of Maryland, are twins and look very much alike. According to a story going the rounds, Richard was traveling through Ohio a year ago, when a man came through the cars and slapped him on the back. "Hello, Lloyd," he said, "stop over and spend the night with me at Chillicothe." Richard said he wasn't Lloyd, but the man wouldn't believe him, so he stopped over. Among the people he met was Miss May Quinn. She liked him and he liked her, but Richard had been married for several years. So he told his brother Lloyd about her, and in process of time Lloyd went to see her, fell in love, proposed, and was married last week. When he told his fiancee that he was not the Lloyd she first met, but that the first Lloyd was a false. Lloyd and really Richard, he had a hard time convincing her he was speaking the truth.

Fun of "Auto" Men.

It seems that one of the latest fashions of the automobilists, motocyclists and various "chaffeurs" of the auto kind in Paris is to tear through space with escape pipe wide open, emitting a succession of explosions that for frightful noise can discount a switch engine. They are not obliged to leave the escape open and make all this noise, but "it sounds big," and they do it. Recently Beconnais on his tricycle, going at fifty miles per hour in the heart of Paris, scared a cab horse into running away, and the cabby is now in bed. A noise that will scare a Paris cab horse must be something more than the rattle of a boy's hoop, or a nurse girl with a baby carriage.

Not So Looney.

Lunatics often assume a superiority of intellect to others which is quite amusing. A gentleman while walking along a road not far from the side of which ran a railway, encountered a number of insane people out for exercise. With a nod toward the railway lines, he said to one of the lunatics: "Where does this railway go to?" The lunatic looked at him scornfully for a moment and then replied: "It doesn't go anywhere. We keep it here to run trains on."—Agate.

Poverty and piety are not synonymous.

Rank Imposes Obligations.

"What do you mean by 'secundus,' 'tertius,' 'quartus' and 'quintus?'" inquired the stranger.

"I am calling the floors, sir," replied the new elevator boy from Boston, with dignity.—Chicago Tribune.

Insight.

The mind reader has no remarkable brain;
He's not gifted with wisdom galore;
He merely believes things will happen again
Because they have happened before.
—Chicago Record.

There is more Catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease, and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to cure with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proven catarrh to be a constitutional disease, and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from 10 drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Send for circulars and testimonials. Address
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, Ohio.
Sold by Druggists, 75c.
Hall's Family Pills are the best.

A Dearth of Genius.

"There doesn't seem to be nearly as much fine poetry written as there was once," said the young woman.

"No," answered the young man, "not since all those big bicycle manufacturers quit advertising."—Washington Star.

Baker's Breakfast Cocoa is delicious. Costs less than one cent a cup. Made only by Walter Baker & Co. Ltd., Dorchester, Mass.

She Wanted to Be Seen.

Exasperated Old Gentleman to lady in front of him.)—Excuse me, madam, but my seat has cost me ten shillings, and I want to see. Your hat—

The Lady—My hat has cost me ten guineas, sir, and I want to be seen!—Punch.

Reliable Help Wanted
(Either sex.) The Humanitarian Home and Sanitarium for Invalids and Health Seekers, incorporated. Send 17c in stamps for full information. Address J. H. Teitlebaum, Treasurer, East Las Vegas, N. M.

From His Point of View.

Sympathetic Friend—I was sorry to hear that Uppercut got the best of you last night.

Defeated Pugilist (in surprise)—Got the best of me? Well, nit! Why, I refused to take him on until I was guaranteed 60 per cent of the gate receipts and the whole of the picture privileges!—Brooklyn Life.

Red the Advertisements.

You will enjoy this publication much better if you will get into the habit of reading the advertisements; they will afford a most amusing study, and will put you in the way of getting some excellent bargains. our advertisers are reliable; they send what they advertise.

If you will return this coupon and three one cent stamps to the J. C. Ayer Co., Lowell, Mass., you will receive in return a copy of the 20th Century Year Book.

This is not an ordinary almanac, but a handsome book, copiously illustrated, and sold for 5 cents on all news-stands. (We simply allow you the two cents you spend in postage for sending.) Great men have written for the Year Book. In it is summed up the progress of the 19th century. In each important line of work and thought the greatest living specialist has recounted the events and advances of the past century and has prophesied what we may expect of the next. Among the most noted of our contributors are:

Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, on Agriculture; Senator Chauncey M. Depew, on Politics; Russell Sage, on Finance; Thomas Edison, on Electricity; Dr. Madison Peters, on Religion; General Merritt, on Land Warfare; Admiral Hichborn, on Naval Warfare; "Al" Smith, on Sports, etc.; making a complete review of the whole field of human endeavor and progress.

Each article is beautifully and appropriately illustrated, and the whole makes an invaluable book of reference, unequaled anywhere for the money.

Address J. C. AYER Co., Lowell, Mass.

CARTER'S INK
Grow up with it.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water.

900 DROPS
CASTORIA
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS & CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.
Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac Simile Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES — 35 CENTS
EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

SAVE YOUR STAR TIN TAGS

"Star" tin tags (showing small stars printed on under side of tag), "Horse Shoe," "J. T.," "Good Luck," "Cross Bow," and "Drummond" Natural Leaf Tin Tags are of equal value in securing presents mentioned below, and may be assorted. Every man, woman and child can find something on the list that they would like to have, and can have

FREE!

	TAGS.
1 Match Box	25
2 Knife, one blade, good steel	25
3 Scissors, 4½ inches	25
4 Child's Set, Knife, Fork and Spoon	25
5 Salt and Pepper Set, one each, quadruple plate on white metal	60
6 French Briar Wood Pipe	25
7 Razor, hollow ground, fine English steel	50
8 Butter Knife, triple plate, best quality	60
9 Sugar Shell, triple plate, best quality	60
10 Stamp Box, sterling silver	70
11 Knife, "Keen Kutter," two blades	75
12 Butcher Knife, "Keen Kutter," 8-inch blade	75
13 Shears, "Keen Kutter," 8-inch	75
14 Nut Set, Cracker and 6 Picks, silver plated	80
15 Base Ball, "Association," best quality	100
16 Alarm Clock, nickel	150
17 Six Genuine Rogers' Teaspoons, best plated goods	150
18 Watch, nickel, stem wind and set	200
19 Carvers, good steel, buckhorn handles	200
20 Six Genuine Rogers' Table Spoons, best plated goods	250
21 Six each, Knives and Forks, buckhorn handles	250
22 Six each, Genuine Rogers' Knives and Forks, best plated goods	500
23 Clock, 8-day, Calendar, Thermometer, Barometer	500
24 Gun case, leather, no better made	500
25 Revolver, automatic, double action, 32 or 38 caliber	600
26 Tool Set, not playthings, but real tools	650
27 Toilet Set, decorated porcelain, very handsome	800
28 Remington Rifle No. 4, 22 or 32 cal.	800
29 Watch, sterling silver, full jeweled	1000
30 Dress Suit Case, leather, handsome and durable	1000
31 Sewing Machine, first class, with all attachments	1500
32 Revolver, Colt's, 38-caliber, blued steel	1500
33 Rifle, Colt's, 16-shot, 22-caliber	1500
34 Guitar (Washburn), rosewood, inlaid	2000
35 Mandolin, very handsome	2000
36 Winchester Repeating Shot Gun, 12 gauge	2000
37 Remington, double-barrel, hammer Shot Gun, 10 or 12 gauge	3000
38 Bicycle, standard make, ladies or gents	2500
39 Shot Gun, Remington, double-barrel, hammerless	5000
40 Regina Music Box, 15¼ inch Disc	5000

THE ABOVE OFFER EXPIRES NOVEMBER 30th, 1900.

Special Notice! Plain "Star" Tin Tags (that is, Star tin tags with no small stars printed on under side of tag), are not good for presents, but will be paid for in CASH on the basis of twenty cents per hundred, if received by us on or before March 1st, 1900.

BEAR IN MIND that a dime's worth of
STAR PLUG TOBACCO
will last longer and afford more pleasure than a dime's worth of any other brand.
MAKE THE TEST!
Send tags to CONTINENTAL TOBACCO CO., St. Louis, Mo.

RAILROAD MONOPOLY

HOW IT IS FOSTERED BY THE REPUBLICAN PARTY.

Postoffice Deficit Caused by Payment of Exorbitant Rates to Railroad Companies for Carrying Mails—People Must Bear It.

It is stated that the railroad companies give the express monopoly a carrying rate one-ninth of that charged the government for transporting the mails. It is thus that a private monopoly is fastened upon the country so that a rival cannot come in, and the people's monopoly—the postal system—is rendered unprofitable. One of these days the people will change all that, reversing the process.—Los Angeles Herald.

Notwithstanding this, the express companies charge much higher rates than the postoffice, and all the saving in transportation is added to the profits of the monopolists. The postmaster general reports that the postal deficit is 26 per cent less than last year, but there is still a deficit. He proposes to correct this by raising the postage on certain classes of cheap publications. By this means he can kill the deficit and also kill the circulation of very much of the reform literature. It never seemed to strike him that it would be a good idea to keep the railroads from robbing the mail service. That would be an unwarrantable interference with a sacred trust. It would be so much easier to make the socialists, the single taxers and the populists pay twice as much postage on their books, pamphlets and newspapers. Cheap socialist literature is obtaining a great circulation among the people, and this must be stopped or very soon the small farmer and the poor laboring man may find out that he has just as many personal rights as the usurer, the monopolist or the banker. Suppose the postoffice should obtain from the railroads as low a rate as do the express companies. There would be no deficit in the postoffice, but there would be an actual profit of many millions annually. This would not do at all, for it would take away from the hard working railroad managers one of the sources of their princely profits. The people are rich and don't mind paying nine times as much for transportation as the express companies do, especially as all that money goes to railroad men who are good Republicans and who so generously whack up when Mark Hanna calls on them for a campaign fund. Besides, if the railroads were not allowed to rob the postoffice, they would not furnish free special trains to carry the president and his cabinet from Washington city to Minneapolis when they go out to wave the flag and save the country. If we had government ownership of railroads, as we will have some day, we could have penny postage and still declare dividends on the business of the postoffice every year.

A Pennsylvania Coeur d'Alene.

New York Journal: In Idaho the United States government has established a "bull pen," in which are confined all those suspected of aiding or abetting the striking miners.

In Pennsylvania the coal trust has built a barbed wire trocha about a mining village, which it owns, and has ordered the miners to buy everything they may need from the company's stores.

The miners complain that the store goods are inferior and the prices exorbitant. A purchase of groceries or clothing or bread or medicine outside that trocha means discharge, and in the coal regions discharge means starvation.

The miners have no recourse. The slavery of serfs in Siberia was never more servile. The wagons of outside stores are not allowed to enter the village or to cross the trocha.

It has been shown many times that the company stores eat up the miners' wages deliberately and intentionally.

And all this is in direct violation of the laws on the Pennsylvania statute books. In all the damnable evil of trusts and monopolies throughout the country there is no such disregard for the laws of God and man as exist in the Pennsylvania coal regions.

To the sight of a man in a balloon at a lofty attitude the entire region from Pittsburg to Wilkesbarre and from Scranton to the Virginias would resemble a virulent cancer by day and a flaming hell by night.

It is not much better than this in reality. Miners in this region have no human rights, either political or personal. They work for a beggar's mite, and it is stolen from them by the robber stores. If they are ill, they must live or die according to the ability of a "company doctor," whose services they are forced to depend upon.

They vote as directed, live as directed, and are confined in company boxes and kicked into their graves.

Can any slavery be worse than this?

Unfit to be Citizens.

The objection to the Chinese, during the long debate in congress some years ago over the Chinese exclusion act, was that the Chinese were an unassimilating race—that is, they never could overcome their racial prejudices sufficiently to become American citizens. The arguments then used apply with equal force to the Filipinos and Hawaiians, but there is a much deeper significance to be attached to the subject now. The St. Louis platform demanded the rigid enforcement of the pauper immigration laws, but, blinded by the effulgence of conquest and imperialism, the Republican party unhesitatingly brings into our midst millions of foreign cheap labor as American citizens, thus debasing and destroying American labor. The Chicago platform protests against the importation of foreign pauper labor, and the whole Democratic party today protest against it. Why exclude pauper immigration on the Atlantic seaboard and bring it in by the millions from the Orient under the guise of expansion?

Allen is Senator.

William V. Allen is again a senator of the United States, and the reformers of the nation are glad of it. His long experience in the senate made him the proper man to represent Nebraska at this time. Gov. Poynter made no mistake in this appointment. He did not consult his own preference; he did not look at the ability or the public services of the different candidates; he deferred the question to the reform voters of the state and agreed to choose the man favored by the majority. Those favoring Allen were the most numerous, and Allen was appointed. It was a wise appointment because he was the people's choice; wise because we all said that we wanted him last year; wise because of his experience; wise because of his great services and transcendent ability. For six years Allen was a power in the senate, and he will again take such a leading position there as no other man from the state could do without some years of experience. Next year there will be two senators to elect, and then there will be no bitter party contention between the allied forces. Allen will be his own successor, and some great reform Democrat like W. H. Thompson of Grand Island will be chosen for the long term, and everybody will be happy.—The Nonconformist.

IDAHO MINERS.

At the meeting recently of the American Federation of Labor, President Gompers, in his annual address made the following report in reference to the militarism and murder which has been carried on for months at Warden in the state of Idaho:

"It is necessary to report the awful events which have transpired in the industrial field in the west. From the best sources which are available to us we learn that the property of Bunker Hill and Sullivan mines in Warden, Idaho, was destroyed by unorganized miners, who, goaded to desperation by the tyranny and brutality of the company and lacking experience and the knowledge which comes to the organized workers, not knowing how to protect their interest or to conduct a strike, applied the most radical and desperate means to obtain relief and redress from their wrongs. When that lawless and inadvisable act was consummated the authorities of Idaho declared martial law, the civil government was upset, militarism established and the United States general in command declared the Western Federation of Miners a criminal organization. The mine owners were prohibited from employing any miner unless he signed a declaration renouncing his connection with the avowal that the Miners' union was a criminal body. No miner could obtain employment unless such a declaration was signed by him, approved and countersigned by General Merriam and his aide-de-camp. One thousand two hundred men were corralled, arrested and placed in a stockade, properly named the "bull pen." They were cruelly and inhumanly treated and held for months without trial, and now there are hundreds awaiting the pleasure of the authorities to determine whether they shall be tried or set at liberty. The whole proceeding is so outrageous as to bring a blush of shame to the cheeks of every liberty-loving American. If, as alleged, the imprisoned men are guilty, they at least should be given a fair trial before a jury of their peers, confronted with their accusers and, if guilty, punished; if innocent, they should be given their liberty and their wrongs should be redressed. This convention, in no mistaken tones, should express its keen indignation and emphatic protest against this outrage upon human rights. The killing of innocent men upon the public highway of Lattimer, the shooting down of unarmed men at Buffalo, the incarceration of workmen guilty of no offense in Idaho and the outlawry of organized labor must be frowned down upon; must be met with the consciousness of our rights, the manhood to declare them and the determination to achieve them."—The Nonconformist.

Gage and His Pals Loot the Treasury.

Whenever Secretary Gage feels a trifle patriotic he throws a "block of bonds" on the market. This bond business is a crime. It is a mortgage upon a coming generation of innocents. Latter-day statesmanship runs largely to selling bonds. The mortgaging of the people without their consent in this manner amounts to highway robbery, though it doesn't require the courage the latter does. There is one comforting thought, however, and it is this: Greed never knows when and where to stop and overdoes everything. As a result the day will surely come when non-interest-bearing greenbacks backed up by the people will take the place of interest-bearing greenbacks (bonds) backed up by the people, or there will be revolution and repudiation.—George's Weekly.

The Government and the Stock Jobbers

From the National Watchman: Secretary Gage went to the relief of the stock jobbers of New York last week by offering to purchase twenty-five million dollars' worth of United States bonds after having paid the bond-holders their interest a month before it was due. Similar action has been taken by the treasury officials on former occasions. But no one has ever heard of the treasury department coming to the relief of the toiling millions of the country when their wages were reduced and they were out of employment, or coming to the relief of the farmers of the country when the price of their products fell below the cost of production. The reason is the stock jobbers have made themselves felt in politics more than the laborers or farmers have.

"Skeered" of McKinley.

From the Appeal to Reason: The controllers of the great trusts are very much afraid of President McKinley. When he "swung around the circle" recently to see how the nation was prospering, he was the guest at the various places of the barons of industry, and found them flourishing. He dined with the president of the whisky trust, Mr. Greenhut, did the [illegible] president; plowed about the city with the president of the plow combine, and warmed himself in the parlor of the president of the coal combine, all in one city. They are awfully scared at McKinley!

Learning maketh young men temperate, is the comfort of old age, standing for wealth with poverty, and serving as an ornament to riches.—Cicero.

KAISER IS ANGRY

OVER THE SEIZURE BY ENGLAND OF A MAIL STEAMER.

Incident Has Considerably Aggravated the Situation in Germany and Indignation Against England Is Intensified—Emperor William Instructs the Foreign Secretary to Demand Full Reparation for the Outrage Done to the German Flag—Will Help the Kaiser's Naval Projects.

Berlin, Jan. 6. — The seizure of the imperial mail steamer General has considerably aggravated the situation here and the indignation against England is intensified. The government is still earnestly endeavoring to preserve correct official relations, but England will do well to hasten to make the amende honorable to Germany.

On absolutely reliable authority the correspondent of the Associated Press learns that Emperor William is now thoroughly aroused by the repeated seizures of vessels, not one of which, he has been assured, is guilty of carrying contraband of war. He regards the seizures as high-handed proceedings which England would not dared to undertake if the German navy were more powerful than it is. His majesty is said to be particularly incensed because information has been received by him showing that the seizures were not due to the blundering of British naval officers, but by strict orders from headquarters, which the officers are merely carrying out. He has, therefore, instructed Count von Buelow, the foreign secretary, to demand exact and full reparation for the outrage done to the German flag.

-o-

Vienna, Jan. 6. — Diplomats here seem to consider that Great Britain ought not to have searched a German steamer in the Red sea. The Weiner Allegemeine Zeitung says that Great Britain seems to care more for cargo than for right, or to demonstrate that she is mistress of the sea, a demonstration that she will do more for the German navy than all the efforts of Emperor William.

THE MARKETS.

Latest Quotations From Grain and Live Stock Centers.

St. Paul, Jan. 6. — Wheat — No. 1 Northern, 66 1-4@67 1-4c; No. 2 Northern, 63 3-4@65 1-2c. Corn—No. 3 yellow, 28 1-2@29c; No. 3, 28@28 1-2c. Oats—No. 3 white, 23 1-4 @ 23 1-2c; No. 3, 22 3-4@23 1-4c. Barley and Rye—Feed barley, 31@32 1-2c; malting grade, 33@35c; No. 2 rye, 47 1-2@47 3-4c; No. 3 rye, 46@46 1-2c.

Duluth, Jan. 6.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, cash, 66 7-8c; No. 1 Northern, 65 3-8c; No. 2 Northern, 62 7-8c; No. 3 spring, 59 3-8c; to arrive, No. 1 hard, 66 7-8c; No. 1 Northern, 65 3-8c; May, No. 1 Northern, 68 3-8c; July, No. 1 Northern, 69 1-2c; oats, 22 1-2@23c; barley, 35@37c; flax, to arrive, $1.41 1-2; cash, $1.41 1-2; May, $1.45 1-2; corn, 30c.

Minneapolis, Jan. 6. — Wheat—January closed at 65 7-8c; May opened at 67 1-8c and closed at 66 7-8c; July opened at 68 1-2c and closed at 68 1-4c. On track—No. 1 hard, 67 3-8c; No. 1 Northern, 65 7-8c; No. 2 Northern, 63 3-8c.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 6. — Flour is steady. Wheat higher; No. 1 Northern, 67c; No. 2 Northern, 64 @ 65 1-2c. Rye quiet; No. 1, 55c. Barley firm; No. 2, 45c; sample, 35@44c. Oats quiet; No. 2 white, 25@25 1-4c.

Chicago, Jan. 6.—Wheat—No. 2 red, 68@69c; No. 3 red, 64@67 1-2c; No. 2 hard winter, 65 1-2@66c; No. 3 hard winter, 64@65 1-2c; No. 1 Northern spring, 67 1-2@69c; No. 2 Northern spring, 67 1-2@68 1-2c; No. 3 spring, 62 @67 1-2c. Corn—No. 2, 31 1-4c; No. 3, 30 3-4@31c. Oats—No. 2, 22 3-4c; No. 3, 22 1-2c.

Chicago, Jan. 6. — Cattle — Beeves, $4.15@6.50; cows and heifers, $3.15@5; stockers and feeders, $3.10@4.85; Texas fed beeves, $4.25@5.25. Hogs—Mixed and butchers, $4.15@4.45; good to choice heavy, $4.35@4.45; rough heavy, $4.15@4.30; light, $4.15@4.37 1-2; bulk of sales, $4.30 @ 4.40. Sheep, $1.40@5; lambs, $4.50@6.10.

Sioux City, Iowa, Jan. 6. — Cattle — Beeves, $4.50@5.50; cows and bulls, mixed, $2@4; stockers and feeders, $3.50@4.40; calves and yearlings, $4@4.65. Hogs, $4.15 @ 4.27 1-2; bulk, $4.17 1-2@4.20.

South St. Paul, Jan. 6. — Hogs — $3.85@4.27 1-2. Cattle—Cows, $3.25 @ 4.20; bulls, $2.50@3.25; stockers, $3.25 @4; steers, $4.10@5. Sheep, $3@4.10; lambs, $5.25.

MURDER IN CHINA.

Rev. Mr. Brooks, a Missionary, Is Killed by a Seditious Sect.

Peking, Jan. 6—The Rev. Mr. Brooks, of the Church Missionary society stationed at Ping-yin, province of Shantung, was captured in that vicinity and murdered Dec. 3 by members of a seditious society called "boxers," who have been active lately, destroying many villages and killing native Christians. The governor of the province has dispatched a force of cavalry to the scene of the disturbances, but the soldiers arrived too late to save Mr. Brooks.

To Serve in the Boer Army.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 6.—Two hundred and sixty men have signed an agreement here to go to South Africa and serve in the Boer army. They are Irish, German and French. Only men between twenty and forty and without any one dependent on them were enlisted. They will leave as soon as an agent of The Transvaal, now on his way, arrives here.

Demolished by an Explosion.

Muncie, Ind., Jan. 5. — The power house of the Cudahy Oil company, located north of this city, was demolished by an explosion causing a loss of $10,000 in addition to the fact that forty wells must be idle indefinitely.

Leaks in the Paris.

London, Jan. 6. — When water was let into the dry dock at Milford Haven the steamer Paris, which is to be taken to Belfast for a thorough overhauling, began to fill owing to undiscovered leakage.

Wilhelm Has High Aims.

Berlin—Krupp's paper pronounces the kaiser's speech the keynote of the naval question, while the radical press says that the kaiser practically declares that doubling the navy will not satisfy him, as he wants Germany to stand in rank with the army.

Woman Hanged for Murder.

Vienna—Juliana Hummel was hanged here for murdering her child. She is the first woman to be executed in Vienna in over ninety years, the last execution having taken place in March, 1800.

CHILDREN CREMATED.

Four Lives Lost by the Burning of a Minnesota Home.

Little Falls, Minn., Jan. 8.—Four of the children of Mike Kerrich of Pierz, fifteen miles east of Little Falls, were burned to a crisp last night. The children had gone to bed up stairs, and as the parents, who were both sick, were retiring for the night they noticed the top of the kitchen was on fire. They promptly tried to rescue the children from their peril, but the flames spread so rapidly that their efforts were of no avail. One child, a girl of seventeen, while wandering around in the smoke, fell through the stairway and was saved. The parents were quite badly burned in trying to rescue the children. The children burned were all girls, ranging in age from seven to fifteen.

GHOST OF NELSON APPEARED.

Statement Made by a Witness in the Buell Murder Trial.

Ashland, Wis., Jan. 8.—The details of finding the supposed skeleton of Peter F. Nelson, leading to the arrest of Eugene J. Buell for murder, were related by Buell's father-in-law, R. D. Boardman, on the witness stand. Mr. Boardman testified that three weeks after Nelson's disappearance in September, 1896, the ghost of Nelson appeared to him and said: "I am killed," and then vanished. He thereupon engaged experienced Indian woodsmen to search for Nelson's body, and it was found nine month's later. The case will last another week.

DEATH IN A RESTAURANT.

Minnesota Man Dies Suddenly in Chicago.

Chicago, Jan. 8. — After ordering a meal in a restaurant last night a well dressed man, supposed to be Harmon Lee of Hibbing, Minn., suddenly fell forward on a table and died before medical aid could be summoned. The police were notified and the body was removed to the morgue. Letters addressed from Hibbing indicate that the deceased was engaged in business there and was in Chicago receiving medical treatment. A physician gave his opinion that death was due to heart failure.

Gen. Stanton Critically Ill.

Omaha, Jan. 8.—Gen. T. H. Stanton, U. S. A., retired, is critically ill at his residence in this city. Gen. Stanton, who for some time served in the position of paymaster at Washington and was later promoted to brigadier general, came to his home here last fall and just before Christmas was taken ill with affection of the liver. He has retained his bed ever since and the case has not yielded to treatment. While the life of the veteran officer is not considered to be immediately in danger his condition is critical.

Revised Board of Health.

St. Paul, Jan. 8.—Six members of the state board of health were appointed by Gov. Lind, including Dr. Staples of Winona, who is now the president, and Dr. Reynolds of St. Anthony Park, director of the veterinary department. The four new men named by Gov. Lind are Dr. S. M. Stocker of Duluth, Dr. Charles H. Mayo of Rochester, Dr. R. F. Whitestone of Argyle and Dr. Edward Shumpik of Minneapolis.

College Boys Will Orate.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 8. — Representatives of the Agricultural college, Fargo; Fargo college, Fargo; University of North Dakota, Grand Forks; Red River Valley university, Wahpeton, met here and agreed upon Feb. 28 and Fargo as the time and place for holding the intercollegiate contest. The winning speaker and the alternate will contest with South Dakota in an interstate meeting a little later.

Warehouse Destroyed by Fire.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 8. — The large warehouse of the Hennessy Mercantile company opposite the Great Northern depot was destroyed by fire at an early hour yesterday morning. Loss on building, $12,000, fully insured; loss on stock, between $40,000 and $45,000, insured for $20,000. Cause unknown, but believed to have been from a defective wire or spontaneous combustion.

An Aged Blind 'Pigger.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 8.—There seems no age limit to blind piggers in this state. Recently at Minto a man was arrested who gave his age at ninety, and the officers claimed he looked it. He had been conducting a blind pig, and asserted it was the only manner in which he could earn a livelihood.

Prosperity at Huron.

Huron, S. D., Jan. 8.—The year 1899 was an exceptionally prosperous one for this city and Beadle county. The population has materially increased and there is not a vacant house in the city, and tenement houses are in daily demand. Several new residences were built during the year.

Century of Life.

Winona, Minn., Jan. 8.—Jacob Johns of the town of Heart, this county, has reached the age of 100 years, and the occasion was celebrated in an appropriate manner. He is hale and hearty. He was born in Breslau.

Rodewald Discharged.

New Ulm, Minn., Jan. 8. — Dietrich Rodewald, held to the grand jury for the alleged murder of Thomas Chute, near Sleepy Eye last fall, was discharged from custody, no indictment being found.

Blaze at Bluffton.

Bluffton, Minn., Jan. 8.—At midnight fire destroyed the store of Kloppenbach & Co., general merchandise. A man sleeping in the building narrowly escaped. Loss, $4,000; no insurance.

Killed by Falling Slate.

Bedford, Ind., Jan. 8.—William Buck, a miner at F. M. Dugger's Summit Mine No. 2, was killed by falling slate. The men were sitting around the entrance of the mine eating dinner when the slate suddenly fell in on them.

Up Go Wages.

Joliet, Ill., Jan. 8.—The notice of a general advance of 7 1-2 per cent in wages posted by the four plants of the American Steel and Wire company means a benefit to 2,000 employes of the company.

To Jail for Lese Majesty.

Berlin—Signor Mehring, editor of Ulk, the Berlin comic paper, has been sentenced to six months' imprisonment for disrespectful treatment of the Catholic church in a poem entitled "The Coward Deed of Rennes."

Century Craze in London.

London—During the lull in war news the London papers are again giving columns of discussion as to when the century begins. The opinions continue about evenly divided, a slight majority, if any, favoring 1901.

News of the Northwest

DEWEY WILL NOT COME.

He Declines the Invitation to the St. Paul Carnival.

Washington, Jan. 5.—The formal invitation of Gov. Lind, Mayor Kiefer, the Commercial club and the Carnival association to Admiral Dewey to visit St. Paul on the occasion of the carnival festivities was presented to the admiral last evening by Senator Davis. Senator Davis also made an urgent request that the admiral visit St. Paul if he could possibly do so, but the reply of the admiral was that his engagements for the future were so arranged that it would be impossible for him to visit St. Paul on the occasion, much as he would desire to do so.

WANT INDIAN'S LAND.

Movement to Secure a Portion of the Rosebud Agency.

Yankton, S. D., Jan. 5.—The people of Gregory county have started a movement to secure the relinquishment of the Indian title to the portion of the Rosebud agency which lies in that county. The land in question is about 184,000 acres and is rich farming land. The Indians are said to be favorably inclined toward the plan provided a reasonable price is offered for the land. A bill has been prepared by Congressman Gamble authorizing the appointment of a commission to treat with the Indians.

CHARGED WITH VAGRANCY.

Well Known Journalist Sentenced to the House of Correction.

Milwaukee, Jan. 5.—Ross Raymond, said to be a well known Eastern journalist, was yesterday sentenced to the house of correction for sixty days on a charge of vagrancy. When arrested Raymond gave the name of Archibald Allen and had in his possession a forged letter from Adjt. Gen. Corbin to Gen. Charles King of this city. He claimed to be an officer of the British army and his mission in this country was to purchase horses to be used in the South African campaign against the Boers.

ON TRIAL FOR MURDER.

Eugene Buell Is Accused of Killing P. J. Nelson.

Ashland, Wis., Jan. 5.—The murder case of the state vs. Eugene Buell has begun here. Buell is accused of murdering Peter J. Nelson of Hayward two years ago. The trial is likely to last three weeks. Dan Sullivan and George Morgan were sentenced to twenty and eighteen months, respectively, for burglary.

To Test Baking Powder Law.

St. Paul, Jan. 5. — Steps have been taken for a test case of the new baking powder law, and the state dairy department has put into the hands of Assistant County Attorney Zollman the material for two prosecutions. One is a can of baking powder not properly labeled, bought from a retail grocer which he had from the wholesaler since Jan. 1, and the other is a can got from the traveling agent of the Price Baking Powder company, without the label. The Price and Royal companies dispute the validity of the law and have invited test cases.

Doctors Favor Vivisection.

Winona, Minn., Jan. 5—At a meeting of the Winona County Medical society held here a resolution was unanimously adopted protesting against the passage by congress of the bill now before it providing for the prohibition of vivisection. A committee consisting of Doctors Franklin Staples, J. B. McGaughey and E. D. Keyes was appointed to present to the senators and representatives from Minnesota the opposition of the society to the bill.

Cattle Were Killed.

St. Paul, Jan. 5. — An east-bound Northern Pacific stock train and the Chicago Great Western passenger train No. 2, east-bound, collided at the junction of the Northern Pacific and Wisconsin Central tracks. Seven men were injured, none of them seriously, several horses were killed, the caboose and two cars of the Northern Pacific were demolished and the Great Western engine was badly damaged.

Large Land Sales.

Crookston, Minn., Jan. 5.—The Great Northern land office has just completed a report of the december business. Almost 5,000 acres of land have been sold, mostly situated in Polk county. The average price obtained was a trifle over $10 per acre. January business has opened with a flourish, over 900 acres having been sold yesterday. Farm land in Polk county sells with race horse speed.

Tired of Life.

St. Paul, Jan. 5. — Daniel Moilnen died yesterday morning while the patrol wagon was taking him to the city hospital from his room at 456 East Seventh street. A post mortem examination was held by Coroner Nelson which showed that death resulted from an overdose of cyanide of potassium. The deceased left a letter in which he said he was tired of life.

Improvements at Spearfish.

Spearfish, S. D., Jan. 5. — The improvements in this city for the past year amount to considerably over $100,000, including the new dormitory at the Spearfish normal. A great many new residences have been erected and a number of new business houses. The Bank of Spearfish has deposits of over $150,000.

Brewers Incorporate.

New Ulm, Minn., Jan. 8.—The John Hauenstein Brewing company has been incorporated, with a capital stock of $100,000. The incorporators are John Hauenstein, Charles Hauenstein, Martin Hose, Fred Seiter and William J. Herlan, all of this city.

Diphtheria at Crookston.

Crookston, Minn., Jan. 5—Diphtheria still prevails in the city, two more deaths occurring, the victims in both cases being children. There are still four or five cases in quarantine.

Approve American Treaties.

London—A Post special from Madrid says the Spanish cabinet has approved the drafts of the treaties of peace, commerce, literary copyright and extradition with the United States.

Comment on Cardinal Geoti.

Paris—The French press comments extensively upon the youth of the successor of the pope, who was designated at the golden-door ceremony by the pope as Cardinal Gepti.

MYSTERIOUSLY DISAPPEARS.

Excitement at Kenosha, Wis., Over the Disappearance of an Episcopal Sister.

Kenosha, Wis., Jan. 6. — Much excitement was created in Kenosha yesterday morning when it was announced that Sister Augusta, one of the Episcopal Sisterhood of St. Mary, in charge of the home for the poor, 209 and 211 Washington boulevard, Chicago, had disappeared mysteriously from Kemper hall in this city. Sister Augusta was last seen at 5 o'clock on Tuesday afternoon. Since that time no trace of her could be found. She was formerly Miss Augusta Henderson of St. Louis, where her family is said to be prominent socially. Sister Augusta came to Kenosha to attend the annual retreat of the Sisters of St. Mary at the Kemper hall chapel.

WOODWARD FREE.

Pleads Guilty of Petit Larceny and Is Fined.

Jamestown, N. D., Jan. 6. — In the district court the grand jury returned two indictments against Dr. K. W. Woodward of this city for grand larceny and burglary. Woodward was arraigned and pleaded guilty to petit larceny and was fined $100. He immediately paid the fine and is again a free man. Joe Miller, who, a short time ago is alleged to have stabbed and seriously injured Adam Brucker and skipped the town, has been arrested and held at Ipswich, S. D. Last evening Deputy Sheriff Dewey left for Ipswich to bring Miller back for trial.

FOR CONTEMPT OF COURT.

Mayor and Aldermen of Milwaukee Must Answer the Charge.

Milwaukee, Jan. 6. — Judge Ludwig, of the superior court, late yesterday ordered that the mayor and aldermen who voted for the passage of the street railway ordinance show cause before him why they should not be punished for contempt of court. The order of the court was made upon motion of Attorney W. H. Timlin, who is conducting the case for opponents of the street railway measure. The hearing on the injunction will be suspended during the settlement of contempt proceedings.

Anti-Saloon Fight Abandoned.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 4.—The anti-saloon fight in Des Moines is practically abandoned. The pro-saloon petition has been filed with about 1,500 more signatures than the law demands. The ministerial association, however, claims that fully 1,500 legal voters refused to sign a petition either for or against saloons and, therefore, that the saloon petition is worthless. They will insist on a rigid examination of the saloon petition.

Reformatory Labor.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 6. — The state board of control has decided to transfer the tailor department of the state prison to the reformatory at Green Bay in order to give the younger prisoners an opportunity to learn a trade. There are about fifty in this department, and it is the intention as soon as possible to have the clothing of the inmates of the state prison made by the prisoners at Green Bay.

Mill Managers Cannot Agree.

Stillwater, Minn., Jan. 6.—The Ideal flour mill was shut down this morning owing to a disagreement among the managers. It was built last summer and has a daily capacity of 200 barrels of flour. It has advance orders for 4,000 barrels of flour. The mill is likely to change hands. The annual meeting of the stockholders will be held Monday, when the future of the mill will be decided upon.

Body Held for Identification.

Hastings, Minn., Jan. 6. — The unknown man found dead near Mendota on the Omaha tracks was brought here by Coroner Gillen and placed in the vault at Lakeside for identification. He was about forty years old, dressed as a laborer. He was of sandy complexion, with brown hair and mustache, and was about five feet six inches in height.

Minneapolis Minister Chosen.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 5. — Rev. J. H. Morely of Minneapolis has been elected president of the Fargo college to succeed H. C. Simmons, who recently dropped dead. Morely has been superintendent of home missions for the Congregational church in Minnesota for fifteen years.

Pardoned by the President.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 6.—President McKinley, according to dispatches from Washington to the people of Knoxville, Iowa, has pardoned E. R. Cassatt, former president of a national bank at Pella, Iowa, who was sentenced to nine years in the penitentiary for looting the institution.

Failures at La Crosse.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 6.—Charles A. Bartz, a building contractor, filed a petition in bankruptcy. Liabilities are $31,850, and assets schedule nearly that sum. A. S. Harrison, a cigarmaker, has declared himself bankrupt with $1,500 liabilities and nominal assets.

Live Stock Delegates.

Pierre, S. D., Jan. 6—Gov. Lee has appointed as delegates to the National Live Stock association meeting at Fort Worth, Tex., Jan. 16-19, Alfred Newton, Centerville; J. K. Seckler, Leslie; L. S. Bullard, Pierre.

Lutheran Conference.

Black River Falls, Wis., Jan. 6. — A district conference of the Norwegian Lutheran church began here this forenoon and will continue over Sunday. The meetings are all devotional, three each day.

Disastrous Runaway.

Glencoe, Minn., Jan. 6.—Messrs. P. P. Hoeneu and J. Rostberg, Jr., of Bergen township were seriously injured in a runaway accident.

Now Say Thirteen O'Clock.

Paris—The official observatory time will now be counted from midnight as 13 o'clock, 14 o'clock, etc., following the system in vogue in Italy and Belgium.

London—London, with a population of four and a half millions, had 88,214 deaths during the year 1899, nearly 10 out of each 1,000 inhabitants.

Vienna—Many papers of various political opinions appeal to Alexander to pardon the Radical leaders who are now suffering the hardships of penal servitude in chains.

GREELEY ASSAULTED

CHIEF SIGNAL OFFICER IN A SERIOUS CONDITION.

Young Men, the Worse for Liquor, Insist Upon Calling on Gen. Greely's Daughter, and When the General Expostulated With Them One of the Men Threw Him Down the Stairs, Inflicting a Severe Wound in the General's Head, From Which He Was Unconscious for Over an Hour.

Washington, Jan. 8. — Gen. A. W. Greely, the signal service officer of the army and the well known Arctic explorer, lies in a serious condition at his home as the result of an assault committed on him about 8:30 o'clock last night by Joseph C. Furnace, a messenger in the employe of the Adams Express company. Yesterday Furnace, who lives in Baltimore, in company with a friend named George Murphy, spent the day in Washington drinking until late in the afternoon, when they started for a disreputable portion of the town. They lost their way and finally reached the northwestern section of the city beyond the state, war and navy departments. They first tried to get admission to the residence of E. D. King, but being unable to do so, continued on their way up G street. Twice they went to the house of Gen. Greely. The first attempt to obtain admission was made as a friend of the family calling to pay a visit to the daughter of the general. Later they made another effort and persisted in ringing the door bell and otherwise creating a disturbance until finally Gen. Greely came out to expostulate with them. They refused to leave the house, and after some words Furnace seized the general and threw him down the long flight of steps which ascend from the pavement to the house, which stands on a high terrace. The fall cut a severe gash in the back of the general's head. He was picked up and taken into the house and medical aid summoned. He remained unconscious for about an hour. Murphy, who was with Furnace, took no part in the assault, but when he saw what his companion had done, took to his heels and ran away. Furnace is a young man twenty-three years old and his run for the express company is between Baltimore and Cincinnati. He offers no excuse for his act. He was arrested and locked up in the police station. The attending physician says Gen. Greely will undoubtedly recover.

VICTIM OF SLOW POISON.

Wealthy Farmer of Ohio Is Murdered.

Dayton, Ohio, Jan. 8.—Developments have just come to light which show that Philip Class, an aged and wealthy farmer, was the victim of slow poisoning. He died Dec. 7 from what was supposed to be natural causes, but suspicion was aroused in the family and it was found that a jug of whisky which the deceased took for medicinal purposes contained belladonna. A post mortem then developed that the stomach contained traces of the poison. Deceased was the victim of a murderous plot several years ago in an effort to secure his money.

KILLED IN A FIGHT.

Two Men Killed and Four Wounded in a Kentucky Melee.

London, Ky., Jan. 8.—News has been received here of a general fight on Otter creek, Clay county, in which Lige Lewis and Gen. May were shot and killed and four other participants seriously wounded. The fight occurred at a school house on Otter creek, where one of the Jacksons was on trial before a magistrate for killing another Jackson. The fight was started soon after the trial began and court was adjourned and the fight carried on both in the school-house and yard.

VANDERBILT ESTATE.

It Amounts to the Paltry Sum of Seventy-Five Millions.

New York, Jan. 8.—It is announced by one of the executors of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt will that all the bequests have been paid. Cornelius Vanderbilt, eldest son, received the greater part of his $6,000,000 in cash. The first estimate of the Vanderbilt estate's value, made by Chauncey M. Depew, and announced last October as being about $70,000,000, has been practically verified. The estate will probably not exceed $75,000,000.

TOOK LAUDANUM.

Treasurer of the Cuban Junta in New York Commits Suicide.

Philadelphia, Jan. 8. — A man supposed to be Benjamin J. Guerra, who was treasurer of the Cuban junta in New York, was found dead in the Lafayette hotel. He had committed suicide by taking laudanum.

PERISH IN A FIRE.

Three Residents of New York Lose Their Lives.

New York, Jan. 8.—A tenement house fire in East Ninety-second street resulted in three deaths and seven persons being injured.

Maniac Uses a Revolver.

New York, Jan. 8.—Philip W. Rose, who, two years ago, spent considerable time in an insane asylum at Jacksonville, Ill., shot and killed his wife at her father's home here and tried to shoot her father, and then shot himself.

Dr. Fee Not Dead.

Richmond, Ky., Jan. 8.—The reports sent out last week that Rev. Dr. Fee, the founder of Berea college and the noted abolitionist, was dead, were not correct. Dr. Fee is recovering. Many floral tributes have been sent to Berea.

Dr. McGlynn Dead.

Newburg, N. Y., Jan. 8.—Rev. Dr. Edward McGlynn, rector of St. Mary's church, died at the rectory at 5:20 yesterday afternoon after an illness of about seven weeks of heart failure superinduced by Bright's disease.

All English Want to Fight.

Vienna—An officer of the Austrian headquarters staff, in writing to the Tagblatt, expresses the opinion that the whole British empire would be glad to submit to compulsory military service to end the present war.

To Count All Italians.

Rome—During the general census all Italian consuls abroad will be requested to furnish the names of all Italians who are remaining citizens of their native country and of confirmed Italian nationality.

Minnesota Historical Society

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

VOLUME XIX. ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 17, 1900. NUMBER 26.

RESUME of the NEWS

Accidental Happenings.

Fire caused a panic among 300 students in a school at Milan, Mich. Two were seriously burned.

By the derailment of a car on the Rapid railway at Mt. Clemens, Mich., six people were badly injured, two probably fatally.

The Newark City Home, an asylum for children at Verona, N. J., burned, involving a loss of about $100,000. The 300 inmates were gotten out in safety.

John Bryant, Green Bryant and William Beatty were instantly killed by falling rock in Mine No. 8 of the Ashland Coal and Iron Railway company, at Ashland, Ky.

Dan A. Greene, general sales agent for the General Electric company, and his wife, were drowned in the Mohawk river at Schenectady, N. Y., by the capsizing of their boat.

The barns of the South Chicago Railway company at Hammond, Ind., were destroyed by fire. Thirty-two cars were burned. The loss, fully covered by insurance, is placed at $130,000.

Foreign.

Spain has decided to fortify the Canaries and Balcario islands.

Von Buelow, in a speech at a launching, makes a strong plea for a stronger German navy.

French royalists say they will not attempt to overthrow the republic until after the exposition.

The London Daily Mail expresses the opinion that the Bank of England money rate will be reduced to 5 per cent.

The Duke of Veragua has been commissioned by the queen regent of Spain to present the golden fleece to the German crown prince.

It is stated in Newfoundland circles that France will settle the Newfoundland treaty shore question upon the basis of adequate compensation.

Russia has material ready to build a railway to Herat when necessary. There are fresh rumors of the czar's designs on Afghanistan and Persia.

M. Ignacio Decosta Duarte, charge d'affaires of Portugal, states positively that his government has no intention of disposing of Delagoa Bay to Great Britain.

The foreign officials in Paris express themselves as sanguine that a satisfactory settlement of the trouble between France and Santo Domingo will be reached.

The Prussian budget includes 7,300,000 marks for a site for the new royal library of the academy of sciences and arts at Berlin, and for the construction of the building.

The Hamburg-American line steamer Deutschland was successfuly launched at the Vulkan dock yard at Stettin, in the presence of Emperor William and many notable people. The minister of foreign affairs, Count Von Beulow, christened the vessel.

The epidemic of influenza is spreading throughout Great Britain. The newspapers contain long lists of notable sufferers from the disease, and the death lists are abnormally long. The royal household at Osborne House, Isle of Wight, has not escaped. Many of its members have been removed to a sanitarium.

Criminal Record.

John Fritz, wife murderer, hanged himself in jail at Celina, Ohio.

Rev. A. C. McGiffert is to be tried for heresy by the New York presbytery.

A mob at Cleveland attempted to lynch a motorman who ran down a farmer.

Three of the best known residents of a Mississippi county were killed recently in a duel.

Gen. A. W. Greely was assaulted by a drunken man in Washington and is in a serious condition.

Miss Rachel Ferguson was sandbagged to death and robbed by an unknown assailant at Toronto, Can.

A Battle Creek, Mich., coroner's jury has decided that Sherman Church, whose body was found under a mill wheel with the hands tied behind it, committed suicide.

Mrs. Maude Johnson, colored, was shot dead at Chicago by J. H. Toner, white, with whom she had eloped from Terre Haute. Toner afterwards shot himself, inflicting a probably fatal wound.

When Tax Collector-elect Scott attempted to assume his office at San Francisco, his right thereto was contested by Collector Sheehan, and a fight ensued in which one man was shot and several badly bruised.

People Talked About.

Rev. Aloysius Schyns, head of the Order of Alexian Brothers in the United States, died at Chicago of heart disease.

Julia Marlowe Tabor has been granted a divorce.

Secretary Root says he will not be a candidate for vice president.

J. W. Smith was inaugurated as governor of Maryland last week.

Alfred E. Burr, editor of the Hartford, Conn., Times, is dead.

Admiral Dewey has accepted the invitation to visit St. Louis in May.

President San Clement of Colombia is dead. The political outlook there is greatly complicated.

Dr. Edward McGlynn, the celebrated Catholic priest of New York, died last week of Bright's disease.

Dr. Franklin W. Fisk, president of the Chicago Theological seminary, will retire from active work next May.

Philip C. Swab, one of the largest coal operators at Middlesboro, Ky., died suddenly of heart disease.

Gov. Tanner of Illinois confirmed the report that he is a candidate for United States senator against Senator Cullum.

Nathan S. Harwood, for many years a leading figure in business and political circles, died suddenly at Lincoln, Neb. He was president of the Bankers' Life Insurance Company of Lincoln.

From Washington.

Senator Pettigrew has offered a resolution authorizing the United States government to offer mediation between Great Britain and South Africa.

Congressman Fitzgerald of Massachusetts has introduced a bill for a more equitable distribution of chaplaincies in the army and navy.

The commissioner of internal revenue has held that "a bequest of a sum of money to a priest for the purpose of paying for masses is liable to legacy tax."

The demand for small notes continues beyond all precedent, and has resulted in reducing the supply on hand to a point where an increase is absolutely necessary.

Senator Allen has introduced a bill in the senate granting a pension of $10 a month to every soldier or sailor who served in the Civil War for three months or more.

Senator Wellington has introduced a bill to establish the University of the United States. The bill is substantially the same form as has been introduced in previous congresses.

Gen Otis has informed the war department that First Lieut. Daniel T. Bowman, Thirty-seventh Volunteer infantry, while temporarily deranged, committed suicide by shooting himself.

Representative Levy of New York has introduced in the house a bill to provide for the payment of interest on all internal revenue receipts now on deposit, or hereafter deposited in national banks of the United States.

The Siamese government has given another evidence of its friendliness to the United States by offering to present to this country the temple grounds on which the United States legation is located at Bangkok, worth $57,000.

The senate has rejected the nomination of Richard S. Berdin as census supervisor for the second census district of Nebraska, embracing the city of Omaha. The adverse action was taken because of the opposition of Senator Thurston.

The state department has received a report from United States Consular Agent Mitchell at San Pedro, Honduras, that the killing of the two Virginians, Imboden and Golde, was the result of a private quarrel, and does not implicate the government of Honduras.

The secretary of war has sent to congress a request for an urgency deficiency appropriation of $750,000 to supplement the $1,500,000 heretofore appropriated for the repatriation of the Spanish prisoners and their families held by the insurgents in the Philippines.

Commissioner Wilson, of the internal revenue bureau, has decided that where an officer of a bank holds a membership in a stock exchange for his bank and the business done by him on the exchange is the bank's business, neither he nor his bank is required to pay special tax thereon as a broker.

The postmaster general will submit for the approval of the president an amendment to the civil service rules, permitting the department to reinstate persons who have been temporarily separated from the service because of the discontinuance of a postoffice, or of free delivery, which has been re-established. The president has informally signified his approval of the change.

Otherwise.

Gen. T. M. Anderson will be retired on the 21st inst.

Dewey was recently given a loving cup made of 70,000 dimes.

Deposits in the banks of New York city increased $40,000,000 last year.

An order for 500 street cars for France has been placed in Pittsburg.

The railroads have agreed not to accept trunks weighing over 200 pounds.

Gen. Shafter will escort Lawton's body from San Francisco to Washington.

Agoncillo boasts that Aguinaldo has 50,000 armed men and nearly 100 cannon.

Ex-Senator Blackburn has been chosen senator by the Kentucky legislature.

An effort is being made to stop the manufacture of buttons by Iowa convict labor.

The cruiser Albany, built in England, on her trial trip developed a speed of 20.87 knots.

All the bequests of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt have been paid. The estate will not exceed $75,000,000.

The lake traffic for 1899 showed an increase over the preceding year, chiefly in ore and lumber.

The National Business league has endorsed the bill to create a new government department of commerce.

The United States court has decided that oleomargarine colored as butter cannot be sold in Missouri.

Oregon land cases have been decided adversely to the Northern Pacific by the United States supreme court.

Torpedo boat builders have been granted an extension of time on the boats now under construction.

The wages of employes of the American Steel and Wire company, at Joliet, Ill., have been increased 7 1-2 per cent.

H. A. Longton & Co. of Frankfort, Ind., manufacturers of gun stocks, are in receipt of a rush order from the Transvaal for 125,000 gun stocks.

The State Building and Loan Association of Indianapolis, Ind., and Association No. 3, both managed by the same officers, went into voluntary liquidation.

The executive committee of the National Photographers' association has decided to hold its next national convention at Milwaukee during the week of July 16.

Miss Etta Thomas, niece of Gen. Joe Wheeler, has begun suit at Chicago against William H. Fahrney, asking $100,000 damages for alleged breach of promise to marry.

IN SERRIED RANKS

GO FORWARD THE UNION FORCES TO VICTORY IN MINNESOTA.

Aftermath of the Great Jackson Day Celebration—Immense Accessions to the United Army—The Slogan Is for Complete Redemption of the State in November, and the Electoral Vote for Bryan and Americanism—Our Great and All-Powerful Triumvirate of the People, Bryan, Lind and Towne—Mr. Bryan's Coming Eastern Tour—The Week's Round-Up of National and State Politics.

Reform Press Bureau.
ST. PAUL, Jan. 15, 1900.

While the great speeches and intensely interesting events of the Jackson day celebration at Minneapolis go echoing round the state doing their whole, perfect work for the cause of the Union forces, there are numerous points and aftermath which should not be overlooked.

A feature overlooked or minimized, was the meeting with Republican and Gold Democrat, Anti-Imperialist and other independents with Mr. Bryan. This had been arranged by those who best knew Mr. Bryan's wise conservatism, and desired the earnest, honest Americans in the anti-imperialist movement who have been prejudiced against Mr. Bryan, to see him personally and as he actually is. The result was of importance. Rightly and shrewdly ganging that great man of the people, it is believed that without exception those enthusiastic Americans, believers in the old-fashioned doctrines of the fathers, and of the Bill of Human Rights, will be found voting and working for Bryan in November. Their position is, even those who are still gold standard men, that we will first see whether we have a republic, before we spend further time on economic or financial theories. See if this prediction does not prove true: That there will be an immense spread of anti-imperialist organizations under the American League.

The Republican reports of the events must, in the main be called quite fair. The Tribune could not, however, fairly state the numbers at the exposition, "estimating" them at "4,000 in the building," and "perhaps 500" on the stage. Not less than 9,000 were "in the building," as everybody knows. One thousand tickets were issued for "stage," and every one "went." Other thousands were turned back from the closed doors and long stood in the gently and kindly falling snow, vainly hoping that those charged with the safety of the building would relent and let them in. The writer knows, for he carefully noted these facts for this very use of the truth.

The Tribune, however, must be credited with reporting Mr. Bryan's closing of the panther hunt incident. The Trib man asked Mr. Bryan if it was true that the panther, after being caught, was returned to the cage from which, as Mr. Bryan explained, it had been released for the sport. "Yes," said Mr. Bryan; "the panther was spared, for in these gold standard times people cannot afford to waste a whole panther on one hunt."

Governor Lind's speech, and the circumstances attending it, were by all and by far the most intensely interesting political incident within the recollection and probably in the state's history. Relating to the future, he made in substance the declaration forecast in this bulletin, but under such circumstances as no one could have anticipated. The one great, grand feature to be noted, was the absolute clearing of the atmosphere of all doubt and hesitation as to issues, and such inspiration to battle, from this on, as has never before been felt in this state. Likewise was it such a rebuke to what Mr. Towne termed "peanut politics," as will clear, there is no doubt, even the Twin City atmosphere.

The management of all the functions must be accorded due praise, as there is but one "Banquet" Baldwin, so is there but one Breslauer, when it comes to getting out and managing great political gatherings.

It was a proud time for the representatives of our Reform Press, and only to be regretted that more could not have attended. We should all feel a just pride at the renewed compliments paid our press by our great chieftain, Mr. Bryan.

Mr. Bryan went direct to Lincoln and from there to a Kentucky banquet, whence he will go to New Jersey. Before returning home he will make an extensive tour through New England, with his gospel of true Americanism, of human, political and industrial freedom.

So many uncertain comments have been made with reference to the new duties given Surveyor General Corsor, and recent "conferences" by him, that it will be a matter of political information to state what are the facts. Mr. Corser has been commissioned by the Democratic national committee, by Chairman Jones, to have official charge of the allies in this campaign, with reference to their relation to the Democratic organization—a function, the importance of which cannot be overestimated. This includes the Silver Republicans, the Anti-Imperialists, the Anti-Trusters, and other independent movements. Mr. Corser will, no doubt, much of the time later on in the campaign, be located at Chicago. The selection was made at the instance of Mr. Towne and other close friends of Mr. Corser who are aware of his tremendous energy and his great executive ability. It is to be hoped that the new and important duty will not too largely encroach on his connection with local and state work. His other work will cover any part of the whole country, and may especially apply to the close congressional districts.

The Boers have shown their good sense by firing the young son of McKinley's secretary of state, sent as our consul. Oom Paul don't intend to catch the British Hay fever.

The city lumbermen have given lumber another hitch, making $6 or more raise within the past few months. Wheat keeps "hitched" the other way, and is lower by 5 cents than at this time a year ago.

Don't take any stock in a rumor now traveling about the state, to the effect that there will be no ice palace at the carnival in St. Paul. There will be an ice palace, and 10 days of real old-time carnival fun, if the weather permits. St. Paul is preparing to do herself proud and make the carnival a memorable event in her history.

The address of Ex-Governor Boutwell of Massachusetts, the other day, in which he declared that McKinley would fail of re-election even more ignominiously than did Van Buren, suggests the close resemblance of the two administrations in points of weaknesses, inconsistencies, turmoil, lack of confidence and sharp antagonisms of large classes of people. Of Van Buren's administration a historian says it was like the definition of the parenthesis, "It may be read in a low tone of voice, or altogether omitted without injuring the sense." That will certainly apply to McKinley's, except for some of the crimes that will live to cry out against it!

And speaking of comparisons, the military features of the McKinley administration will be likened to Polk's and the Mexican War. Forced into the righteous war with Spain, McKinley's wicked and unnecessary Philippine war is the counterpart of the war with Mexico which arose in the false claim to Coahuila, in addition to the Texas territory. Polk gave away a 250 mile strip across our whole Northern boundary to England because strong, while taking weak Mexico by the throat for the Coahuilan strip on the Rio Grande. Polk paid Mexico $15,000,000, and assumed $3,500,000 of debt, or a total near to the McKinley figure paid Spain. Polk's administration was outdone by England, as McKinley's is being "hornswaggled" by Pauncefote and Chamberlain. Finally, McKinley, like Polk, will not be re-elected, though Polk was not even renominated.

The naked truth about Twin City business conditions is that the winter finds about the same situation as for several years back. The spurt of work, in numerous lines during the year, makes the every day laborer in better shape, but salaried people have less to show for their gold standard trust year than for a long time. Salaries have not as a rule increased at all, and living is much higher, as the trusts design. Small business concerns closed a poor year, and so do such lines as insurance, and agencies and commission earners. Few large business concerns, among retailers, are believed to have made much, and only such as had large stocks contracted ahead of the trust rises. These are plain, unvarnished facts and none know this better than the poorly paid writers of the G. O. P. press who write the contrary.

As to property interests they are absolutely flat and lifeless. The little building done in '99 has been cheap and skimpy, the one to three-story building, where six to eight stories rose when there was real prosperity. Real estate does not move, and what is to move it?

And speaking of conditions, some of the Minneapolis feeders of grain are actually hauling oats from near-by country elevators, so low is country produce. Such were paying 18 cents at points below Mendota on the Milwaukee. Eighteen cent oats and 50 cent wheat for the farmers, 100 to 300 per cent increase on all that they purchase of trust controlled articles!

Men and women who speak from experience, say it never was harder in St. Paul or Minneapolis to find decent and remunerative employment, and say if you don't believe it, just strike out and "find a place." We know an earnest, honest, business trained man who had this experience: After a diligent search, he heard from his application with one of the transcontinental roads that he could have a place at $35 per month! Hoping to do better, he hesitated, and was summarily disposed of, for they said they had plenty who would take the place. This man's child is carrying bundles in one of the department stores at $2.00 a week, and the father is still in search of work, and now regrets that he did not take the railroad offer.

Said Tammany Croker: "Twenty thousand drummers are doing more against McKinley than Democrats could do with $50,000,000 a year."

A celebrated palmist read Mr. Bryan's beautiful hand, on a train in his recent campaign. "This long, sweeping line," said the palmist, "is the line of life. It says long life, health and happiness to you, Mr. Bryan. All these long ray lines, long and short, rising in the life line, mean success, power, high ideals and their realization."—There was a sudden stop—thousands of voices cried out: "Bryan! Bryan! Bryan!" The famous hand and its owner were borne out into the darkness upon a very sea of humanity.

No man living or dead, we believe, has ever swayed the masses as does W. J. Bryan. Ever right and honest, ever sound in judgment, his influence is ever in right lines, and the result is that increasing confidence of his countrymen which is the chief foundation for the abiding faith of the millions that he will be called to the presidency.

G. S. C.

BRITONS WORRIED

GROWING IMPATIENCE AT THE INACTION IN SOUTH AFRICA.

Entire Absence of News Giving an Insight Into the Situation—Believed That Roberts Will Return to the Original Plan of Campaign—Roberts Will Be Unable to Move Before the End of the Month—Rumor Has It That Methuen Is Mentally Unbalanced and Has Been Recalled—War Office Denies It.

London, Jan. 13. — Even the announcement of the arrival of Field Marshal Lord Roberts and Gen. Lord Kitchener at Cape Town has failed to stem the growing impatience of the country at the prolonged inactivity in the main British camps, and the entire absence of news giving an adequate insight to the local situation. The public and press being unable to form any just judgment as to the actual position of affairs, stories are rife that inaction is enforced on Gen. Buller, owing to the exhaustion of the reserves of ammunition, and there are even wild rumors of a shell famine at home. But not much importance need be attached to these rumors. It is almost universally assumed that with the landing of Generals Roberts and Kitchener, a prompt return will be made to the original plan of campaign, namely, a great central advance on Bloemfontein, but the most impatient of the enthusiasts admit that Gen. Roberts will be unable to move before the end of the month. Up to the time of filing this dispatch no news of any importance had been received from South Africa. The officials of the war office here denied the report published in the United States that Gen. Methuen has been recalled.

Methuen Breaking Down.

Chicago, Jan. 13.—A special cable to the Tribune from London says:

Lieut. Gen. Lord Methuen, commanding the column advancing to the relief of Kimberley, is to be relieved of his command within two weeks. Later he will be sent to Cape Town and eventually ordered home. When he reaches England he will be retired.

These facts have been confirmed by an official of the war office. Lord Methuen's case is a sad one. Always a man of rather frail physique—although a clever boxer and an all-around sportsman—his constitution began to show signs of breaking down almost immediately after he took command of his division. Three days after the battle of Belmont Gen. Wolseley suggested to the officials of the war office that Methuen be relieved. His advice was not heeded. The wisdom of the aged and keen commander-in-chief of the British army is now realized to the fullest extent by the war officials, who scoffed at his suggestion. Friends of Lord Methuen insist he is only in broken health, that the strain of many campaigns has shattered his naturally nervous system. Those who know the circumstances and the situation on Modder River equally well and who are willing to state facts plainly say that Mtehuen's mind is unbalanced. Constant proof of this has been coming to the notice of the war office for two weeks past.

Censor's Awful Work.

London, Jan. 13. — The newspapers were reconciled during the early days of the war to cable censorship, taking it for granted that full narratives sent by mail would supply all deficiencies. For some weeks, however, even the mail correspondence that has arrived in London has shown signs of habitual censoring by the officials. Pages are numbered without chronological or logical connection, leaving the happenings described quite unintelligible in some matters. The papers, acting apparently in conjunction, are laying these matters before the public, insisting that they be permitted to know and print the facts. The Daily Mail accuses the war office of "doctoring" in the editing of dispatches before their issuance, and cites particulars.

Losses at Ladysmith.

London, Jan. 13. — The Daily Mail says: "We learn that in the attack on Ladysmith last Saturday, Jan. 6, the British losses were 14 officers killed; 34 wounded and over 800 non-commissioned officers and men were killed or wounded. The Boer losses are estimated at between 2,000 and 3,000."

Boers Are Foxey.

London, Jan. 13.—The Standard has the following dispatch, dated Monday, from Frere Camp: "Our patrols have searched both flanks of the Boer position. They find a large camp five miles east of Colenso, evidently in anticipation of a British attempt at a turning movement."

EXCITEMENT ABATED.

Citizens of Ripley, Tenn., Return to Their Homes and Work.

Ripley, Kan., Jan. 13.—Excitement over the murder of Officers Turner and Durham and the double lynching which followed has abated and the citizens have returned to their homes and work. Yesterday the last of the residents composing the posse in pursuit of the two remaining negroes rode into the town and announced they could find no trace of the fugitives after reaching Hatchie river, on the Tipton county side. At a meeting it was decided to ask Gov. McMillin to offer an additional reward of $500 for the apprehension of the missing criminals.

Better Pay for Engineers.

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 13.— The recent demand of the engineers employed by the Lake Shore road that the salary classification be abolished and a uniform scale of $3.80 be paid for a day's work has been granted. Two hundred engineers will be affected. The advance will amount to about $20 per month.

Parliament Is Closed.

London, Jan. 13.—The queen has proclaimed the meeting of parliament for Jan. 30.

ONE LONE ROBBER.

Does Business in Fine Western Fashion.

Kansas City, Jan. 16.—In true Western fashion, a lone robber, masked and armed, cleaned out two restaurants in the center of the city at 6 o'clock yesterday morning under the glare of an electric light. In Lewis' restaurant, at 1240 Walnut street, he pointed a pistol at Stanley Brushwood, the cashier, and tapped the register while he kept his revolver in plain view of two customers eating near-by. The contents of the register had been transferred to the safe but a few minutes previous and the robber secured only a handful of change. When he had satisfied himself that there was nothing more in sight he gave the waiter and the two customers a parting word of warning and skipped across the street to the restaurant of Robert McClintock. Here the robber covered Cashier Joseph Drysdale and commanded two waiters and three customers to hold up their hands. They complied promptly and the robber emptied the register in a twinkling. He pocketed the entire contents, $146, and, backing out of the door, encountered a grocery solicitor. He poked the revolver into the solicitor's face with the command not to make an alarm and forced him into the restaurant where all the others still stood with arms upstretched. At this instant the robber darted down a near-by alley and disappeared. Hardly more than five minutes were consumed at both jobs, and the robber had plenty of time to get away before the scared victims had recovered composure.

BANK ROBBERS CAPTURED.

Made a Desperate Effort to Escape From Officers.

Evansville, Ind., Jan. 16.—Three men who are believed to have been implicated in the bank robbery at Owensville, in Gibson county Thursday night, were arrested in this city yesterday by Police Sergeant Fred Heuke. They gave their names at Joseph Lydon, Joseph Norton and Patrick Nones. The men made a desperate effort to escape from the officer and drew their guns. Their room was searched and a full kit of burglars' tools found and over $110 in money. The tools were wrapped in red flanel which smelled very strongly of powder. A stick of nitro-glycerine was found in the room. The men came from Evansville the morning after the Owensville robbery, and have been under shadow ever since. They refuse to talk.

DANGER OF LYNCHING.

Result of an Unprovoked Murder in Indiana.

Petersburg, Ind., Jan. 16. — Frank Percell and two companions who are in jail here are in immediate danger of being lynched on account of the killing of William Riss of Arthur by Percell early yesterday. Riss was returning home from a party with two young men about 2 o'clock when he was met by Percell and two companions. Percell asked if the party was over and on being told that it was, drew his revolver and shot Riss in the eye, killing him instantly. Percell and his companions were arrested and hurried here by the officers to save them from friends of the victim who threaten to lynch the murderer.

ASTOUNDED THE UNDERTAKER.

Woman Emerges From a Trance While Being Embalmed.

East St. Louis, Ill., Jan. 16. — Mrs. Christina Harth emerged from a trance yesterday morning to find herself under process of being embalmed and prepared for the grave. The discovery of life was the result of the merest accident and astonished the undertaker. A movement of the eyelid saved the woman from death at the hands of the undertaker or from being buried alive.

MUTINY AMONG PRISONERS.

Inmates of a Jail Overpower the Turnkey, But Fail to Escape.

St. Louis, Jan. 16.—The prisoners of the St. Clair county jail at Belleville mutinied and attempted to escape. They overpowered Fred B. Phillips, the turnkey, handcuffed him, and took his revolver and keys from him. Sheriff Barckol was shot through the arm. The sheriff shot Ed Revely, one of the prisoners, twice. He will die.

COL. BRYAN MAKES DENIAL.

Says He Never Wrote a Letter Advocating a Protective Tariff on Wool.

Columbus, Mo., Jan. 16.—Col. William J. Bryan addressed an audience of over 1,000 people at the university chapel, when he denied the report set out from Boston that he had written a letter favoring a protective tariff on wool.

Opposed to Trusts.

New York, Jan. 16. — The board of managers of the Commercial Travelers and Hotel Men's Anti-Trust league held a meeting here. Letters were received from ex-Gov. William Stone of Missouri, vice chairman of the Democratic national committee, and John R. McLean, accepting membership.

He Feared Hydrophobia.

Chicago, Jan. 16. — Frank Conrick, secretary of the builders and trades' exchange, committed suicide by shooting himself through the head. He was bitten by a dog a week ago, and the dread of hydrophobia, it is thought, had unsettled his mind.

Fatally Shoots His Wife.

Salem, Ill., Jan. 16.—Edward Hanes shot his wife twice in the face and head and it is thought she cannot live. The couple had been separated the last few weeks and the woman refused to longer live with Hanes.

Cleveland Goes Shooting.

Georgetown, S. C., Jan. 16.—Ex-President Cleveland, Commodore Benedict and Capt. Bob Evans arrived at Murphy's Island Gun clubhouse, Fairfax, yesterday, from South island, at which place the shooting was not good.

Rothschild Too Fat for a Soldier.

London, Jan. 16.—The Hon. Walter Rothschild, the eldest son and heir of Lord Rothschild, has been rejected for service in the Yeomanry on the ground of his weight, which was about 200 pounds.

GEN. BULLER MOVES

IMPORTANT OPERATIONS ARE NOW IN PROGRESS.

Forward Movement Interpreted as Meaning That Buller Has Pressed Around the Western End of the Boer Lines at Colenso—Can't Move Far Without Encountering Boers, So News of a Big Battle Is Expected Soon—Much Sickness at Ladysmith—Boer Forces Greatly Augmented.

London, Jan. 14. — The war office yesterday morning received the following dispatch from Gen. Buller, dated Springfield, Jan. 11, at 9 p. m.:

"I occupied the south bank of the Tugela river at Potgeiter's Drift this morning and seized Pont. The river is in flood. The enemy is strongly intrenched about four and one-half miles to the north."

Gen. Buller's twenty-eight words announcing his forward movement of Thursday is interpreted as meaning that he has passed around the western end of the Boer lines at Colenso and is now several miles beyond them and seventeen miles from Gen. White's outposts at Ladysmith. The Boers a few days ago had forces with guns at Springfield. When Buller sent his dispatch these commandos had been obviously dislodged either by fighting or by maneuvers, the Boers retiring across the Tugela as Gen. Buller advanced. From Gen. Buller's dispatch, coupled with the fact that official intelligence from the seat of war has virtually ceased since Monday, the deduction is drawn that important operations are in progress, as he cannot move far without going against the Boer intrenchments.

The death list from fever and dysentery at Ladysmith, averaging about eighty daily, are considered more serious than the 420 casualties of Saturday's fighting, as they show the unsanitary condition of the beleaguered town. A letter from Ladysmith dated Dec. 6, said that even then ninety men out of the battalion of which the writer was a member, were sick with either dysentery or enteric fever, and, according to a dispatch to the Daily Chronicle, dated Jan. 8, the patients and attendants in Tombige Camp, where the hospital is, then numbered 2,800. An apparently well informed correspondent of the Morning Post says:

"The Boer forces, originally 83,000 men, is now heavily augmented by Cape Colonists, and the enemy's fighting force may be estimated fairly at 100,000 men and 206 guns. The Boers are not compelled to guard their communications. The grass is good, crops are growing, vegetables, cattle and sheep are plenty and game is abundant."

MANY LIVES LOST.

Late Details of the Wreck on the Newfoundland Coast.

St. John's, N. F., Jan. 14.—The following comprises all the details of the wreck in St. Mary's bay that could be obtained up to midnight:

The ship is a two-masted steamer of nearly 3,000 tons, and probably carried a crew of sixty, with possibly some passengers. She went ashore before daybreak on Thursday morning, striking a ledge at the foot of the cliff, where escape was hopeless. The crew launched the boats, but probably during the panic some were crushed against her sides, others being swamped, all their occupants apparently perishing. The ship was seen to be on fire by residents six miles away. Attracted to the scene they found the after part of the wreck blazing fiercely and the fore part under water. Kerosene in the cargo helped the blaze. At that time only three men were left on board. Two were on the bridge and one was in the rigging. Those on the bridge were safe until after 2 p. m., when they were washed overboard and drowned, the bridge being carried away. The survivor soon after left the rigging, swam to the rocks and twice endeavored to get a footing. Failing in this he made his way back to the rigging, where he died of exposure during the night. Many dead bodies are visible tossing in the surf. Yesterday was more stormy than the day before and it was impossible to reach the wreck, which has sunk to such an extent that it is beneath the waves. A severe gale is raging which threatens to break up the wreck. It is hoped to be able to obtain her name to-day. Residents along the shore made every possible effort to rescue the survivor in the rigging, but lacking proper outfit they were unable to succeed. There is not the slightest prospect that any one on board escaped death, as the intense cold would kill any one who escaped drowning.

SHE WOULDN'T MARRY HIM.

The Rev. Mr. Hall Shot His Deceased Wife's Sister.

Middlesboro, Ky., Jan. 14.—The Rev. Wesley Hall, at Hindman, Knott county, is reported to have shot and killed Mrs. Lucinda Isaacs, a sister of his dead wife, and then to have shot himself in the abdomen. He will recover. The cause was Mrs. Isaac's refusal of his offer of marriage.

Charged With Bribery.

Omaha, Jan. 14. — Members Cowle, Hess and Sears, of the board of education, arrested for accepting a bribe in connection with contracts yesterday gave bonds for appearance for trial. Member Irey has not yet been arrested, being at the present time visiting in Pennsylvania.

Arrested for Forgery.

Omaha, Jan. 14.—E. F. Holmes, who conducted a curbstone broker's office during the exposition, was yesterday held for trial for forging tickets. He was arrested in Natchez, Miss., and brought here for trial. He was accused of raising the time limit on tickets which had expired.

Fought a Draw.

Leadville, Colo., Jan. 14. — Harry Purtell and Carson Will Bean fought twenty rounds to a draw last night at Galvin's Athletic arena.

St. Hilaire Spectator.

ST. HILAIRE, - - MINNESOTA.

It requires two for assent to make a bridal couple.

A messenger boy would be a novelty in moving pictures.

Love is probably the only thing that has more lives than a cat.

Never write a popular novel. The public will expect you to do it again.

Truth is the hub around which all the strong spokes of the universe revolve.

An honest man is still the noblest work of God, all Wall Street reports to the contrary.

Wall street flurries may come and go, but the country, fortunately, is not upon a speculative basis.

Some things are past all human understanding. A man drinks whisky to warm himself and ice water to cool the whisky.

When a political party comes to depend on the criminal elements for success at the polls its days of usefulness are past.

Waldorf Astor refused to mention the death of the Duke of Westminster. Oh, well, the duke will doubtless serve him the same way.

The public school is the light and the hope of the nation, provided that foreigners are not permitted to monkey with the text books.

Scientific men predict that pathogenic bacteria, or disease-breeding germs, are destined to be exterminated in civilized lands, along with man-eating beasts and venomous serpents. And why not? Already the progress of medical science has gone far to eliminate or cancel the poison of typhoid and diphtheria; the bacillus of consumption is being hunted to its lair; and in cities where sanitation is duly regarded the scourge of cholera and yellow fever need no longer be feared.

There will be introduced in congress soon a bill to grant an increase of pension to the widow of Captain Allyn Capron, who commanded Capron's battery at Santiago. Many private pension bills are without merit. Not so the one to be introduced for Mrs. Capron. She is receiving now the $20 a month which the law gives to the widows of captains in the regular army. That is her sole income, and out of it she has to support as best she can three children, all under 12 years of age. Her oldest son, Captain Allyn Capron, Jr., was the first American officer killed in the charge up San Juan Hill by Roosevelt's "Rough Riders," in which command he served.

The Chippewa outbreak in Minnesota in the fall of 1898 is attributed by the commissioner of Indian affairs, in his annual report, to the misconduct of federal officials. Deputy marshals had been in the habit of making wholesale arrests of Indians, either as witnesses or offenders, solely for the fees which would accrue to them. The estimators appointed to appraise the Chippewas' timber had made heavy charges for their work, which was worthless and had to be done over a second time and a third time. The Indians also had suffered from timber depredations, and from the sale of their lands at prices much below their real value. The distrust and exasperation occasioned by these wrongs led them to armed resistance to the military force sent to arrest their chief.

Most of the corn exported from the United States goes to Europe, and its popularity seems to be gaining there. To the United Kingdom, the exports of corn in the ten months ending with October were in 1899, 69,333,800 bushels, against 61,939,167 bushels in 1898; to Germany, 35,804,109 bushels in the ten months of 1899, against 34,888,381 in the ten months of 1898; and 27,472,388 bushels in the ten months of 1897; to France the exports in 1899 were slightly less than those of 1898 or 1897, by reason of the unusually large grain crop in that country, while to other European countries the exports of the ten months of 1899 were 42,505,443 bushels, against 39,211,885 in 1898, and 36,866,388 in the corresponding months of 1897. This steady increase in the exports of corn to European countries, and especially the increase in 1899 over preceding years, is the more remarkable because of the fact that the general supply of breadstuffs in Europe in the present year is vastly in excess of the preceding year when the supply was unusually short, and the fact that the demand for corn continues in the face of an increased supply of home-grown breadstuffs indicates a rapid growth in its popularity.

The navy has hitherto been commonly regarded as the junior branch of the nation's militant service, subordinate in rank to the army. But now it becomes the senior branch, because its head is an admiral, whose rank is technically two grades higher than that of a major-general, who is now the highest officer in the army. That is one of the consequences of a war in which the navy had greater opportunities of distinction than the army.

Courtesy opens many doors and lack of courtesy leaves them open.

The Chicago bar association has decided that it is unprofessional conduct for a lawyer to send out circulars advertising his business and soliciting patronage. As yet, however, the association has taken no action which will prevent attorneys from promenading with a "sandwich board" announcing reduced legal rates and guaranteeing satisfaction to all customers while they wait.

A man never fully realizes how golden silence is until he tries to buy some of it.

INVASION OF THE NORMANDY COAST OF FRANCE BY DEVILFISH

There has been a strange occurrence in the English channel off the French coast. It is something so uncommon that it is doubtful whether it ever has happened before in the history of the world, and it reminds one at once of Victor Hugo and his "Toilers of the Sea."

Devilfish in hordes have invaded the fishing waters between Trouville and Capo de la Hague.

They have ruined the fishing and destroyed the gear of the French fishermen, so that they have become a real and mighty menace. The men have been fighting them with axes and knives, and finally boiling water, but their efforts have been of only temporary avail, for the numbers of the hideous creatures seem inexhaustible.

Victor Hugo's devilfish was an inmate of these same or nearly the same waters, for it was in the island of Sark, one of the Channel islands near the notorious Casket Rocks, that he saw and studied the repulsive creature which he described so wonderfully later in his novel, when he said:

"To believe in the devilfish one must have seen it. Compared with it the hydras of old are laughable.

"At certain moments one is tempted to think that the intangible forms which float through our vision encounter, in the realm of the possible, certain magnetic centers to which their lineaments cling, and that from these obscure fixations of the living dream beings spring forth. The unknown has the marvelous at its disposal, and it makes use of it to compose the monster. Orpheus, Homer and Hesiod were only able to make the chimera; God made the octopus.

"When God wills it, He excels in the incredible.

"All ideals being admitted, if terror be an object, the octopus is a masterpiece."

Victor Hugo went pretty far in his description of the octopus. He gave it the attributes of many different genera of the cephalopods, and parts of his description fit the giant squid, and not the octopus, while other qualities which he describes belong to the polyps. But the great truth in his tale is the expression of the horror and loathing with which all the animals of this species fill the beholder.

The devilfish which have invaded the Normandy coast are not so ferocious as was the monster which Hugo delineated. But they are fierce enough, though they have not attacked man as yet. Hundreds of them have twined their arms around the meshes of nets, eaten the fish out of them and weighted the nets down so that the fishermen found it impossible to raise them, and finally had to cut their gear loose and let it sink.

The first knowledge of the presence of the strange creatures was conveyed to the fishermen when they raised a net not far from the shore and found it full of the twining and writhing things. By actual count there were over three hundred of them in the meshes, and some of them had tentacles more than ten feet long. The next net that the men essayed to lift was so full of them that it broke and was lost. Then net after net became clogged with them, and they were lucky vessels that were not forced to cut at least part of their nets loose and abandon them.

Day after day the plague grew in extent, till at last the ugly and horrible objects could be seen swimming everywhere, and their warty-suckerlined arms clung to the sides and sterns and bows of the vessels. Finally the smaller craft found it almost impossible to sail among them, and some were stopped absolutely.

The fishermen did not find it easy to fight the beasts. They can run with remarkable agility, and, therefore, when any were landed on the deck of a fishing craft the battle had only begun. They whipped their long tentacles around everything, even the limbs of the sailors, and often they got so firm a hold on the axes or knives or spears that were being used to kill them that it was found almost impossible to get the weapons away from them. The same applies to those of the animals that clung to the sides of the boats, sending their long feelers on ghastly exploring tours into the interior of the craft. Scarcely was one tentacle chopped off before another would rise from the water and sway horribly in the air, seeking for something around which it might twine. At last somebody thought of the expedient of using boiling water, and this proved more successful than axes or knives. But nothing has been devised as yet to annihilate the plague, and the fishing industry is completely ruined for the time. No one knows how long the disgusting things will remain.

The occurrence furnishes a striking proof that truth can vie with fiction every time. Only about a year ago H. G. Wells, the author of "the War of the Worlds," wrote what seemed then a wildly improbable story entitled "The Sea Raiders," which dealt with gigantic devilfish that appeared suddenly in hordes off Sidmouth on the Devon coast, and attacked boats and bathers. Sidmouth is opposite the Channel Islands and almost opposite the scene of the real incidents just described.

In Mr. Wells' striking story he describes the appearance of the sea raiders thus:

"The rounded bodies were new and ghastly looking creatures, in shape somewhat resembling an octopus, and with huge and very long and flexible tentacles, coiled copiously on the ground. The skin had a glistening texture unpleasant to see, like shiny leather. The downward bend of the tentacle-surrounded mouth, the curious excrescence at the bend, the tentacles and the large, intelligent eyes gave the creature a grotesque suggestion of a face. They were the size of a fair-sized swine about the body, and the tentacles seemed to him (Mr. Fison) many feet in length. There were, he thinks, seven or eight of the creatures. Twenty yards beyond them, amid the surf of the now returning tide, two others were emerging from the sea.

"Their bodies lay flatly on the rocks, and their eyes were regarding him with evil interest; but it does not appear that Mr. Fison was afraid or that he realized that he was in any danger. Possibly his confidence is to be ascribed to the limpness of their attitudes. He shouted to them, with the idea of driving them off, and, finding that they did not budge, cast about him, picked up a big, rounded lump of rock, and flung it at one. And then, slowly uncoiling their tentacles, they all began moving toward him, creeping at first deliberately. In a moment Mr. Fison realized that he was in danger. He shouted again, and started off with a leap forward. Twenty yards off he stopped and faced about, judging them slow, and, behold! the tentacles of their leader were already pouring over the rocky ridge on which he had just been standing."

Later men went out in a boat to hunt the monsters, and they have this adventure:

"At first they could see little below them save a dark jungle of laminaria, with an occasional darting fish. But presently they saw one of the monsters swimming through the water seaward, with a curious rolling motion that suggested to Mr. Fison the spinning roll of a captive balloon. Almost immediately afterward the waving streamers of laminaria were extraordinarily perturbed, parted for a moment, and three of these beasts became darkly visible. In a moment the copious olive green ribbons had poured again over this writhing group.

"At that all four men, greatly excited, began beating the water with oars, and shouting, and immediately they saw a tumultuous movement among the weeds. They desisted, to see more clearly, and as soon as the water was smooth they saw, as it seemed to them, the whole sea bottom among the weeds set with eyes.

"'Ugly swine!' cried one of the men. 'Why, there's dozens!' And forthwith the things began to rise through the water about them. Mr. Fison has since described to the writer this startling eruption out of the waving laminaria meadows. To him it seemed to occupy a considerable time, but it is probable that it was an affair of a few seconds only. For a time nothing but eyes, and then he speaks of tentacles streaming out and parting the weed fronds this way and that. Then these things growing larger, until at last the bottom was hidden by their intercoiling forms, and the tips of tentacles rose darkly here and there into the air above the swell of the waters."

Victor Hugo's idea of the devilfish is more striking. He says:

"What, then, is the octopus? It is the cupping glass.

"This creature applies itself to its prey. Covers it, and knots its long bands about it. Underneath, it is yellowish. On top, earth colored; nothing can represent this inexplicable hue of dust; one would pronounce it a creature made of ashes, living in the water. In form it is spider-like, and like a chameleon in its coloring. When irritated it becomes violet in hue. Its most terrible quality is its softness.

"Its folds strangle; its contact paralyzes.

"It has an aspect of scurvy and gangrene. It is disease embodied in monstrosity. It is not to be torn away. It adheres closely to its prey. How? By a vacuum. Its eight antennae, large at the root, gradually taper off and end in needles. Underneath each one of them are arranged two rows of decreasing pustules, the largest near the head, the smallest ones at the tip. Each row consists of twenty-five; there are fifty pustules to each antenna, and the whole creature has four hundred of them. These pustules are cupping glasses.

"When Gilliat entered that cave for the second time, the octopus was lying in wait in that hole.

"Can the reader picture that lying in wait?

"Not a bird would dare to brood, not an egg would dare to hatch, not a flower would dare to open, not a breast would dare to give suck, not a heart would dare to love, not a spirit would dare to take flight, if one meditated on the sinister shapes patiently lying in ambush in the abyss."

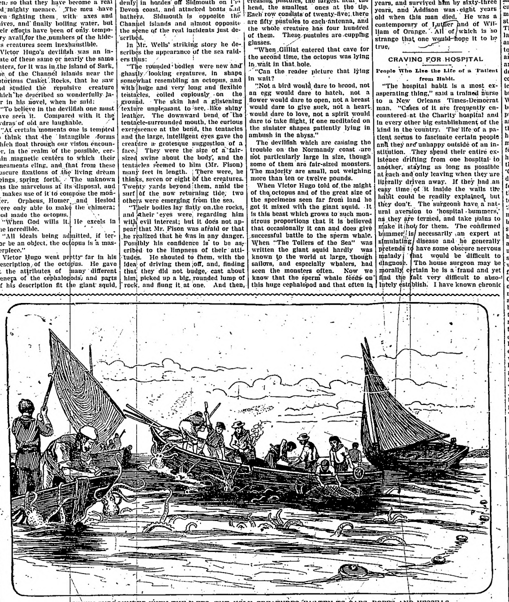
The devilfish which are causing the trouble on the Normandy coast are not particularly large in size, though some of them are fair-sized monsters. The majority are small, not weighing more than ten or twelve pounds.

When Victor Hugo told of the might of the octopus and of the great size of the specimens seen far from land he got it mixed with the giant squid. It is this beast which grows to such monstrous proportions that it is believed that occasionally it can and does give successful battle to the sperm whale. When "The Toilers of the Sea" was written the giant squid hardly was known to the world at large, though sailors, and especially whalers, had seen the monsters often. Now we know that the sperm whale feeds on this huge cephalopod and that often in the death flurry the cachalot whale will vomit forth mighty pieces of tentacles that must have belonged to monsters such as would justify any story of the sea serpent as far as size goes.

Frank T. Bullen, in "The Cruise of the Cachalot," tells a vivid story of a fight that he witnessed between a cachalot and a giant squid. They kept the sea a-foam for hours, and the sounds of the combat could be heard for miles.

It is believed that the famous circumstantial story of the British warship that reported some years ago having seen a marine monster twine around a right whale and kill him and drag him down was based on such a fight. Squids that have arms fifty feet long are not rare, and it is believed by scientists that they grow in sizes far beyond anything that these proportions indicate.

The giant squid, like all the cephalopods, including the small squid that is used for bait in the Newfoundland fisheries, the cuttlefish and the inkfish, swims backwards. He acquires his motion, which is wonderfully swift, by squirting water out of his mouth, his body acting as a force pump of rare power and perfection. When he is moving this way the tentacles stream along behind, or, at least, what must be termed behind, though it really is the head. The curious tail, shaped like a broad-bladed spear, often appears above the surface and disappears again as the suction pump pushes the animal along. The ten enormous arms, in the meantime, writhe in a great elongated mass near the surface, and from time to time are thrust into the air. It is believed that such sights of the giant squids propelling themselves rapidly along the surface have made people believe that they have seen a sea serpent. It will be noted that most observers who report the sighting of marine monsters generally speak of the "mane" which streams in the water. Scientists incline to the belief that this "mane" is nothing except the bunch of tentacles, which toss and squirm in the rough water created by the jets that the creature forces from its body.



WHEN SURROUNDED WITH THE NETS, THE UGLY CREATURES FASTEN TO OARS, ROPES AND VESSELS.

Henry Jenkins' Long Life.

Henry Jenkins, who died on Dec. 8, 1670, is said to have reached the astounding age of 169 years. Supposing this to have been true, he was born soon after the end of the wars of the Roses, and was eight years old at the time of the death of Henry VII. He was a witness of the struggles which characterized the Protestant Reformation in England. He lived, an old man, through the reign of Mary and "the spacious days of great Elizabeth," and was 87 years of age when the Armada was defeated. He completed his century before the union of the crowns of England and Scotland. He lived through a civil war, the beheading of a king, the protectorate, the restoration; and he died within eighteen years of the revolution of 1686. He preceded Shakespeare by sixty-three years, and survived him by sixty-three years, and Addison was eight years old when this man died. He was a contemporary of Luther and of William of Orange. All of which is so strange that one would hope it to be true.

CRAVING FOR HOSPITAL

People Who Live the Life of a Patient from Habit.

"The hospital habit is a most exasperating thing," said a trained nurse to a New Orleans Times-Democrat man. "Cases of it are frequently encountered at the Charity hospital and in every other big establishment of the kind in the country. The life of a patient seems to fascinate certain people and they are unhappy outside of an institution. They spend their entire existence drifting from one hospital to another, staying as long as possible at each and only leaving when they are literally driven away. If they had an easy time of it inside the walls the habit could be readily explained, but they don't. The surgeons have a natural aversion to 'hospital bummers,' as they are termed, and take pains to make it hot for them. The confirmed bummer is necessarily an expert at simulating disease and he generally pretends to have some obscure nervous malady that would be difficult to diagnose. The house surgeon may be morally certain he is a fraud and yet find the fact very difficult to absolutely establish. I have known chronic habitues to submit to treatment that caused them agonizing pain and stand it for days at a time. One man that I call to mind was blistered with cantharides at a hospital in a neighboring city for fake case of hip disease. He was one solid blister from hip to knee, but he stayed right there and asked for more. Men of that type will stand emetics or electric batteries or any of the other things usually employed without a murmur. What satisfaction there can be in such a life I can't imagine, but they are as hard to get rid of as mosquitoes in the dog days. There used to be a character in New Orleans known as 'Hospital Jack.' To my certain knowledge he spent nearly ten years in different institutions and he owned up to me on one occasion that he was never really sick a day in his life. He had been a sailor, drifted into the Baltimore city hospital years ago and got the habit. He knew the routine of such places thoroughly and finally became so useful that he was rather liked. He died last year, and, strange to say, died in a lodging house."

Too Polite.

It is well to be thoughtful of other people's feelings, but in all things it is well to be discreet. This is the moral of an amusing tale found in Short Stories. At a recent church dedication the preacher, who was a stranger, followed up his sermon by an earnest appeal for the balance of the money needed to pay for the building. The collectors went round, and promises came in. As the subscriptions were one after another read, a collector announced, "The five Black children, one dollar." The courteous preacher quickly amended the statement by announcing, "Five little colored people, one dollar." Amidst an outburst of merriment, the pastor hastily explained that the donors were white children by the name of Black.

Afraid of Calves.

During his recent trip in German east Africa Prof. Koch found that the natives fear calves as if they were lions. One day he got four natives to hold a calf for him while he inoculated it with the germs of malaria. When he cut the skin the animal kicked, whereupon the negroes let it go, howled in terror and climbed trees.

The only advantage about being famous is that you don't need a chaperon.

AMERICAN BLUFF WON

YANKEE TOURIST DIDN'T PROPOSE TO BE LEFT OUT.

A Chicago Man Who Offered to Buy a Venice Hotel so That He Could Get the Room He Wanted—It Chilled the Troublesome German Guest.

"Here at home a bluff doesn't count for much," said a globe trotter, "but I'm telling you that a good, stiff bluff, with a cheeky American behind it, is worth a lot of money in Europe. When I got around to Nice last year the best hotels were crowded, and I had to take up with a small room. On the same floor was a German who was occupying a suite, though not spending much money or putting on any great style. One day there was a great row. The landlord asked him as a particular favor to vacate for a newcomer, and, of course, the man didn't propose to be turned out. The landlord coaxed and argued, and the German growled and muttered, and I followed them down to the office to see how it would come out. At the desk was an American I had run across in Venice—a buyer for a Chicago dry goods house. When the landlord and the German began to gabble in chorus the buyer pulled a blank check from his pocket and reached for a pen and said: 'All this talk is of no use. I want rooms here. I will buy the hotel and select my suite. Sir, what is your cash price for this hotel?' 'You would buy the hotel?' exclaimed the landlord, as he threw up his hands in surprise. 'Grounds and all, and I want it today. How much—a million—three or four? And what name shall I fill in on the check?' Say, now," laughed the tourist, "you ought to have seen that thing work! The German had determined to be ugly about it, but when he bumped up against a man who had as soon pay four millions as one for what he fancied, he felt awed and humbled and ready to quit. The landlord figured that to turn away such a Croesus would ruin his house, and it wasn't half an hour before the bluffer was installed in the suite and the German was chucked into a dog hole on the top floor. And that wasn't all, mind you. When they sent the buyer a bill based on his supposed millions, he got up and threatened to buy the town and start six soap factories to running, and they cut every item in two and begged his pardon to boot. I don't believe that chap had $1,000 to his name, but he just walked over everything and everybody for two weeks, and it was current gossip that he owned the whole of Chicago and a good share of St. Louis and Cincinnati. Nothing but cold bluff, which wouldn't have taken him into an American dance hall as a deadhead, but it was equal to a letter of credit for $1,000,000 over there."—Seattle Times.

DANTE AND SHAKESPEARE.

Singular Parallel Which Seems to Have Escaped Commentators.

I wish to point out a singular parallel which, so far as I know, has escaped the attention of Shakespearean commentators, says the Athenaeum. The sesquipedalian word quoted by Costard in "Love's Labor Lost" (Act V., scene 1), "I marvel thy master hast not eaten thee for a word; for thou are not so long by the head as honorificabilitudinitatibus," seems to have been taken from Dante's "De Vulgari Eloquio" (Book II., chapter 7). Dante, speaking of words whose excessive length forbids their use in the canzone, gives as an instance "Illud honorificabilitudinitate, quod duodena perficitur syllaba in vulgari, et in grammatica tredena perficitur in duobus obliquis." (I quote from Dr. Moore's text of Dante, Oxford, 1897, p. 396.) The coincidence is too remarkable to have been the result of pure accident. It will be observed that Shakespeare, or the persons to whom he was indebted for the word, turned Dante's Italian word into its Latin form ("in grammatica"), and gained an additional syllable by the use of one of the oblique cases referred to. Is it possible that Shakespeare had actually some acquaintance with Dante's treatise, either in the Italian translation of "Trissino," published in 1529, or in the Latin text, which appeared for the first time in Patris in 1577? The latter must have been an interesting literary novelty in the time of Shakespeare's youth, and early manhood, and while our poet's genius was still in its lyrical stage, and he was engaged in the composition of "Love's Labor Lost" (very possibly the earliest of all his comedies), he may well have taken a pleasure in the Italian poet's curious and elaborate rules for the making of canzoni, as Don Armado and Sir Nathaniel and Master Holofernes would most certainly have done. It is obvious to remark that the play shows some acquaintance on Shakespeare's part with both Latin and Italian.

O Death Where Is Thy Sting?

From the New York World: "There goes the proudest, biggest-feelin' man in the hull town," remarked the village grocer, indicating a bronzed but exceedingly pompous individual who was passing the store. "He went to the Klondike a year ago and just come back last week. He's carryin' himself mighty high since he got home." "Ah," replied the coffee salesman, "he happened to be one of the few lucky fellows who struck it rich, did he?" "Not he. It's s'posed that he had to walk the rest of the way home when he got to Seattle. You see, while he was gone it was reported he was dead, and the home paper published his obituary. The blamed chump read it when he got home. A person can't touch him with a ten-foot pole any more."

"Taps."

A young recruit having returned to his native town from camp at Montauk, was being entertained by some friends. He was very willing to tell all he knew. "What do you mean by 'taps'?" asked one of a group of girls. "They play taps every night on the bugle. It means 'lights out.' They play it over the bodies of dead soldiers." The girl was puzzled. At last she asked: "Well, what do they do if they haven't any dead soldier?"

More than 12,000 persons are regularly employed in the London theaters.

FIERCE BATTLE WITH A LOON.

Wounded Bird Kills an Indian Hunter With His Beak.

From the Youth's Companion: The loon, or great northern diver, is a powerful bird. The following instance of one of them conquering a man happened a few years ago: A young Micmac Indian, living at Grand Lake, Nova Scotia, wanted to get the skin of one of these beautiful birds to present to his mistress on her birthday. One day the youth, who was an adept at imitating the peculiar sobbing cry of the loon, succeeded in calling a bird within shooting distance. His shot, however, failed to kill outright and the bird, although so severely wounded that it could neither swim nor dive, yet retained sufficient life and strength to remain upright in the water. The boy, thinking that his game did not need another shot, swam out to retrieve it, but when he approached near enough to seize the bird it suddenly made a dash at him, sending its head and neck out with a spring like an arrow from a bow. It was only by a quick duck of the head that the Indian succeeded in evading the blow. He swam about the loon several times, attempting to dash in and seize him by the neck, but the wary bird succeeded in foiling each effort by continually facing him and lunging out with his powerful neck. The Indian then swam up to within a few feet of the bird, and diving under him, with considerable skill caught him by the legs. He carried him under, and, although the bird struggled fiercely, managed to retain his hold. But when they both rose to the surface again a battle royal began, the Indian seeking to carry his prize ashore and the bird attempting to regain his freedom. The bird, however, was too much for his foe and before the Indian had covered a yard on his shore-bound course disabled him with a vicious blow from his beak full on the naked chest. The effect of the blow was almost instantaneously fatal, for the beak penetrated close to the youth's heart.

SAVED BY HIS NERVE.

Warden's Presence of Mind in Dealing With a Murderous Prisoner.

An instance of the rare nerve and resource of Chief of Police McClaughry of Chicago, who had the reputation of being the coolest man in Illinois, was related recently by a New York detective. At the time McClaughry was warden at the state penitentiary at Joliet. "He was," said the detective, "as shifty as any of the men he had to handle, and as quick and calm about it as a regular Sherlock Holmes. Nothing could phase him. One day McClaughry was sitting in his office at just about the time the men were being marched back to their cells from work. He was alone. There was a sound behind him, and whirling around he saw a convict who had passed the guard in some way creeping toward him with an ugly-looking iron bar in his hand. 'Don't you stir!' the man whispered. 'I'm going to get out of this if I have to kill you to do it.' 'O,' McClaughry said, 'I thought you were going to-morrow.' The man stared at McClaughry and grunted 'Wot?' McClaughry simply looked at him as though he didn't care much and said: 'They sent up your dismissal papers this afternoon, that's all. You've been such a model prisoner all the time that they decided to commute your sentence. You can go all right enough, if you want to. You're not my prisoner any more. If you want to see your papers—why, I think—they're here in—the drawer—' and before the poor fool could lift the bar to strike McClaughry had snapped a revolver out of the desk and leveled it at his head.

Strange Beasts' Flesh as Food.

It may be doubted whether we do not lose much from the gastronomic point of view by our over-fastidiousness in eating. One who has recently experimented upon the flesh of strange animals says that crocodile, though tasting somewhat of musk, is yet far from unsavory meat. Elephant's foot is a delicacy well known to African travelers, and the flesh of lions is said to taste well, differing therein from that of the tiger, which is dry and full of nerves. The rhinoceros is said to furnish a sort of cross between pork and beef, while all are agreed that the monkey is capital eating, and better than the best rabbit. The opossum and the kangaroo only require to be known to be appreciated, while the flesh of the seal, though rather dark, is extremely nutritious, and, above all, very digestible. All these are animals which, although unfamiliar to most of us, have in themselves nothing repulsive or unsightly. When we come to hear that locusts are at least as good eating as shrimps, and that nine-tenths of the potted lobster in circulation is made from octopods, we think it well to drop the curtain. There are some mysteries which should not be pried into too closely.—Pall Mall Gazette.

A Log with a Long History.

From the Portland Oregonian: The section of birch log taken from a forest once covered by the Muir glacier, Alaska, which L. L. Hawkins secured from Mr. Covell, of the Harriman party, for the city museum, has quite an interesting history. Some time in the dead, dim past a section of the Muir glacier receded for several miles. On that tract thus uncovered a birch forest grew, and the trees arrived at a large size for that country, the specimen in the museum being nearly a foot in diameter. Then, through some change in the surface of the country, gravel was washed in among the trees to a considerable depth, and then the glacier extended itself again and the ice in its progress shaved off the forest even with the surface of the gravel deposit. The trunks of the trees, imbedded under the encroaching glacier, remained frozen and buried for no one knows how long—ages probably. Then the glacier receded again, and the Harriman party found the trunks of the trees standing safe and sound in the gravel, and secured a number of sections, one of which Mr. Hawkins secured for the city museum.

As to the value of conversions, God alone can judge.—Goethe.

DAIRY AND POULTRY.

INTERESTING CHAPTERS FOR OUR RURAL READERS.

How Successful Farmers Operate This Department of the Farm—A Few Hints as to the Care of Live Stock and Poultry.

Dairy Notes.

The old way of feeding corn fodder should give way to the new as fast as men can afford to invest in fodder cutters and shredders. By the old way, waste was encouraged. The large ends of the stalks were uneaten and had to be cast out as rubbish. They were not even fit to be used for bedding. Where shredding is possible these same stalks are not only rendered fit for the cows to eat, but if, by chance, anything be left, it is suitable for bedding.

It is estimated that the butter and cheese consumed in England amount to 495,000 tons, of which 264,000 tons are imported. The wonder is that the English buy much of their dairy products from countries that are more densely populated than England. Even the far ends of the earth are helping to supply this important class of food. It is rather humiliating that the United States of American can get so small a part of this immense trade, and that, too, because some greedy men are allowed to impose on the British public by bogus products.

A contemporaneous dairy paper says that it does not regard the grinding together of the corn and cob, into what is known as corn and cob meal, as any advantage to the feeding ration. However, it has been demonstrated that the cob ground up is as valuable as the meal pound for pound provided it be ground or mixed with the corn meal. One of the largest feeding establishments in Nebraska not only grinds up all the corn on the cob that it can get, but even goes to the trouble of purchasing corn cobs by the carload to grind up for the use of its cattle, and regards corn and cob meal as very valuable.

New Zealand is not going to be behind other countries in fostering her export trade in dairy products. Realizing that the government regulations of Canada, Australia and Denmark have accomplished much in the way of developing their export trade in dairy products, New Zealand has placed on the statute books an act called the "Dairy Industry Act." Among other things this act provides for the storing, at government expense and under government supervision, of all butter intended for export, provided the butter be not put into the warehouses more than thirty days before the steamer that is to take it sails. Similar regulations are made as to cheese. The whole is under control of the department of agriculture.

The Pure Butter Dealers' Association of Philadelphia is doing a work that should be paralleled in every state where there are butter laws. It is gathering evidence to present in court as to the sale of oleomargarine for butter, not only by the butter stores, but also by the restaurants and hotels. It is not that the sellers of this product cars much about the lawsuits, but it stirs up the people to a realization of the fact that such places are selling or using butterine instead of butter. Most of our hotels put on proud airs and would not for a good deal have the traveling public convinced that they use a substitute for butter. Only keep these places advertised and they will soon discard oleomargarine for pure butter. The same is true of big grocers, especially those that cater to the best paying custom, that of the rich and well-to-do. Too little effort has been made to bring their habits to the notice of the people.

Keeping the cow stable clean and sweet is one of the necessary requisites of good dairying. It is impossible to draw milk in a stable that is nauseating in its atmosphere and have the milk pure. The atmosphere furnishes the cause of bad odors that become worse when developed in the milk. It is not infrequent that a man takes great pains to have his hands washed and clean clothes on when he milks and yet allows the odors of the manure to so permeate the whole stable that it is impossible to get good results as to a clean product. Every few months the stable should be given a thorough cleaning, using not only lye washes but disinfectants as well. Then the daily task should be to keep it clean. Of course it is not possible to do as a great New Jersey dairyman does—keep a man to do nothing but to remove the droppings as fast as they are made, but the barn should be cleaned out often enough to prevent the odors from permeating everything. Whitewashing is valuable because it not only covers up germs that may have escaped the disinfectant washes, but acts as a reminder to the dairyman that his stable is to be kept clean. Dirt cannot accumulate on whitewash without being recognized, and thus the cleanings are likely to be nearer together. Some have adopted the practice of painting the boards near the cows with coal tar. This would appear to be a good thing, as it prevents the boards taking in filth and holding it. They should also be easier cleaned for this painting.

Poultry Notes.

A writer on poultry topics says: "Mix red pepper with morning soft food." We doubt the correctness of this advice. If such stimulant be given at all it should be only seldom. Some of our best breeders believe that too much red pepper is detrimental to the fowls. It is far better to give them a proper variety of food, with all the constituents necessary to build up bodies and supply material for eggs. It would appear to us that red pepper is rather a medicine and as such should be used only in case of sickness. We fail to see why if stimulants are not advantageous to healthy men they should be advantageous to healthy fowls.

In buying new fowls the greatest care should be used to keep them from giving lice and disease to fowls that do not have them. We have known of flocks free from mites for years where the purchase of a half dozen new birds brought the pest into the flock. It would be well if newly purchased fowls could be kept by themselves for some weeks till they are found to be free from parasites and disease germs. Only a few weeks ago a man known to the writer planned to increase his flock of layers by purchasing some Plymouth Rocks from a farmer near. The birds were all that could be desired, to all appearances; but they brought with them that terrible disease—the roup.

Because the cold weather of winter has reduced the danger from mites to the minimum is no reason why we should not keep the poultry house clean. In a way the droppings at this time of year become more dangerous than in the summer time. Dampness is held by the manure and is let loose in large quantities on every warm day in winter. The fumes of ammonia are sometimes so strong on warm winter days that it is a wonder how the birds can endure it. Were this condition confined to the day time it might not be so bad, for during warm winter days the poultry house is generally opened, but during the warm nights the houses are kept closed to protect the fowls from cold drafts while sleeping. It is never advisable to leave the poultry house open on winter nights, and the only thing that can properly be done to keep down the fumes of ammonia is to keep the house clean.

The export of eggs from the United States is never likely to assume large proportions. The population of this country is already so great that it is with difficulty that the pressing demand for fresh eggs can be supplied. The American buyer will always pay more for fresh eggs than will the foreigner when the cost of transporting eggs long distances is considered. The American hotel is an institution that abominates a stale egg, and the egg whose source is known and whose freshness is beyond question is in reality ready-money, for it can always be exchanged for the circulating medium, and at par. We have more than 70,000,000 people in this country now, and that number is being increased by more than a million a year. But the farming area is not perceptibly increasing, and the future is sure to see our sources of egg production taxed to the limit to meet the demand. Under these conditions we need not worry about securing a foreign market for our eggs.

Profitable Management of Sheep.

Let ewes drop their first lambs after warm weather and grass have come in the spring. Grass is the best milk producer and young ewes need it to enable them to nourish their lambs satisfactorily, says an exchange. From the late weaned lambs I would renew the breeding flock, for I believe it will be much more satisfactory, for many reasons, to grow one's own ewes. These lambs, of course, should be of the breed desired in the permanent flock, and for them I should use a mature ram. The male lambs of this crop may be sent to the mutton market at 10 and 12 months of age. If Merinos, they will sell better when shorn than in full fleece.

Whether to breed the ewes for a second crop of ewe lambs or not should be determined by the need of more ewes. Under a well-established flock on this plan, two crops of lambs of this class would be required to keep up the number of the entire flock. The second or third crop of lambs from any class of ewes I should have weaned in March.

The age at which a ewe should drop her first lamb depends somewhat upon the breed, but more upon the care she has been given. When they have been pushed to rapid maturity, ewes may raise a lamb at 2 years of age. But they should be fed so as to continue to grow during their third and fourth years, which they will do after this temporary check. If the wool will approximately pay for their keeping, I prefer they should not raise a lamb until 3 years old. Raising a lamb will reduce the fleece 20 per cent in weight and the possible carcass weight about 10 per cent. Hence, a lamb raised before the ewe is mature is not entire gain. With her first lamb at 3 years of age, a ewe may raise four lambs and be put upon the market herself fat at 6 years of age.

Missouri's Poultry.

When the state statistician at Jefferson City completed his compilation of the surplus products of Missouri recently he discovered that the greatest gain of the year was in poultry, says St. Louis Globe-Democrat. His returns of shipments showed that the Missouri hen had cause to cackle loudly. One hears a great deal these days about Missouri's booming zinc and lead industries. All that is claimed for these wealth-producing factors is well founded. But what tribute is due the hen when it is realized that the poultry shipped by rail in Missouri last year exceeded in value the zinc ore, while the eggs went the lead ore $25,000 better? Furthermore, in the case of the poultry and eggs, these shipments were the surplus after the home consumption had been satisfied. And it is claimed that fully half the chickens and eggs produced in the state do not find the way to market by rail.

The figures are amazing. The poultry product shipped and sold last year amounted to over 70,000,000 pounds. It realized the producers at first price $4,900,000. The eggs shipped were 33,935,000 dozens, and they brought to the people who gathered them from the nests $3,393,000. Poultry and eggs together yielded to the farmers of Missouri, after their own tables had been supplied, $8,293,000. Why! The two great items of agricultural gain for Missouri last year, cattle and hogs, realized, respectively, $34,000,000 and $36,000,000 each, only about four times what the poultry did. And they consumed the corn crop, of 190,000,000 bushels, and kept a considerable proportion of the farmers of the state doing chores from daylight to dark all winter. Where is the farmer who can figure the cost of his flock of chickens? The poultry product is the "velvet" of the farm.

The poultry product of Missouri gained 20,000,000 pounds last year, which meant $1,500,000. And the product this year will score a notable advance, the buyers and shippers say.

J. H. Monrad says that the average cow is the curse of dairying. If that is so, what about the cow that falls a good way below the average cow and that helps to make the average cow possible?

ARTILLERY SHELLS AND THEIR USE

While a great deal is written about artillery in these warlike times, it is a subject not always fully understood. The artillery now being used by the British in South Africa consists of the twelve-pounder horse artillery gun and the fifteen pounder field artillery gun. They are practically to the same pattern, the lighter gun being shorter in the barrel. Horse artillery invariably co-operates with cavalry and is able to keep up with the same at its fastest pace, its gunners always being mounted. Field artillery, on the other hand, co-operates with infantry, and must be ready to be pushed into action at a moment's notice.

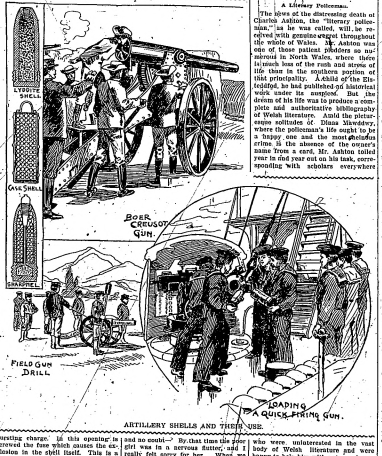
It is only in field and horse artillery that the guns are known by the weight of their charge, other guns deriving their name from the diameter of their bore—that is, their caliber. In horse and field artillery the caliber is three inches, both for case shot and shrapnel. A shrapnel is a hollow shell filled with some 200 bullets and a small bursting charge sufficient to burst it and disperse the bullets over a conical area. This charge of an ounce and a half is at the base of the shell, with the bullets packed above it and round an inner tube reaching from the tip of the shell to the exploding charge. The bullets are placed in rosin to prevent their rolling and interfering with accuracy of aim. The powder charge projecting the shell is independent and is contained in a silk bag to facilitate handling and exactly fitting the breech of the gun.

The method of exploding the shrapnel is interesting. At its upper end the projectile has a funnel shaped opening, whence a tube extends down to the bursting charge. In this opening is screwed the fuse which causes the explosion in the shell itself. This is a gem of mechanical skill and works with clockwork accuracy. It can be used either as a percussion fuse or a time fuse. If the former, it will cause the shell to burst by impact, a needle in the tip igniting the explosive and scattering a shower of bullets and broken shell in all directions. Percussion fuses are used against a solid target, such as a wall or fortified house, while the time fuse is employed against troops in the open with little or insignificant intrenchment. When this is so, a simple manipulation of the gunner ignites a ring of slow burning substance in the shell which, at a certain time after it has left the gun, will ignite the explosive and shower its leaden rain on the enemy. The pieces of shell and bullets thus set free and exploding in the air retain the same velocity the shell had at bursting. It is easy to imagine the terrible way in which such a charge will tear up the ranks of an enemy. What a wonderful piece of mechanism the time fuse is will be clear from the fact that gunners are able to determine within a yard or two just where it will explode, notwithstanding the tremendous rate at which it whistles through the air.

Case shot is less often used than shrapnel. It is looked upon as the last resort of a battery threatened by infantry or cavalry at close quarters and is not effective beyond a range of 600 yards. It is made up of 300 shot packed in a case of sheet tin, which breaks into pieces when the gun is first fired, scattering the bullets in all directions, and not carrying its bullets in a compact mass to the target like the shrapnel and then exploding.

A third kind of projectile, used in heavy guns, such as the 5-inch howitzer, big naval guns and fortress ordnances, is the common shell, similar to the shrapnel in appearance, but containing no bullets. It holds, however, a large bursting charge and is of much heavier metal. It always explodes on impact, being ignited by a percussion cap at the tip. These shells are used for the destruction of masonry, earthworks and all solid targets. They will explode after imbedding themselves in masonry, and so not only pulverize the point where they strike, but also tear up the surrounding stone layers. Their destructive power has been greatly increased by using lyddite for the bursting charge, this explosive being named after the town of Lydd in England, where the British government factories are.

The machine gun forms an independent section in the service. Maxims can fire 600 rounds per minute. To prevent the barrel getting redhot from the friction it is surrounded by a jacket holding water. This heats and passes off in steam, one and a half pints of water being required for every 1,000 rounds fired.



ARTILLERY SHELLS AND THEIR USE.

HE CALLED HER "MY DEAR."

Somehow or Other He Didn't Succeed as He Expected.

"I don't know anything more exasperating than an inattentive clerk," said a mild-mannered little man on the street car the other night, "but unless you have a certain aplomb way about you, so to speak, you might as well endure the cross in silence. Now I have a friend," he continued, "who possesses just such a gift, and, needless to say, he is never neglected. I went into a store with him the other day, and the young woman at the counter where we stopped continued conversing calmly with another young woman in the next department. 'My dear madam,' said my friend, blandly, 'I trust you will pardon me for intruding upon that important discussion, but if you—' 'What do you wish?' said the clerk, looking startled. 'Do not be angry,' my friend replied; 'I know, of course, that the occasional interruption of customers must be very annoying, and no doubt—' By that time the poor girl was in a nervous flutter, and I really felt sorry for her. When we went out I expressed surprise at the ease with which her attention had been secured, and my friend laughed. 'O, it's no trick at all,' he said. 'All you have to do is to keep yourself cool.' Next day I was fool enough to try the system myself, after I had camped beside a counter for ten minutes waiting for a large and haughty lady to conclude a protracted conversation. 'My dear mad—' I began, trying to imitate my friend's sang-froid. 'Sir!' exclaimed the saleslady, wheeling on me suddenly and freezing my blood with a ferocious glare. 'My dear,' I stammered, 'my dear—' Really I could go no further. My tongue stuck to the roof of my mouth, and I could feel the sweat breaking out on my forehead. I know I must have looked the picture of helpless imbecility. 'What do you mean by calling me your dear and things like that?' demanded the enraged amazon. What earthly reply could I make? I did the only thing possible—I got up and sneaked out, expecting every minute to feel a policeman grab me by the collar. So, as I said before, unless you have the way about you, you might as well put up with these little annoyances. The faculty of blandly bluffing one's fellow beings is something that can't be acquired.—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

Royalty's Dress Allowance.

An enterprising fashion writer tells us that before her marriage the duchess of Fife had a very small dress allowance—about $1,500 a year. Besides yachting and every-day dresses and all the usual costumes required by a girl of the upper classes, royal princesses have also to wear the costly and elaborate dresses which their rank demands at the weddings of their near relations. They are, however, fortunate in having stores of beautiful laces, priceless furs and marvelous jewels, all of which can be used again and again. On the whole, it may be asserted that a frugal princess may spend as little as $5,000 a year on her dress, while her more wealthy and extravagant sister may find her dress bills amount to ten times that sum. Age has nothing to do with the matter, for the queen of Italy spends far more than does her beautiful young daughter-in-law, the crown princess of Naples. The empress of Russia, who, more than any other European princess, is able to indulge her wildest fancies, dresses with the greatest simplicity. In the daytime she mostly wears tailor-made coats and skirts, and in the evening favors the purest white materials.—Chicago Chronicle.

Lucid.

A famous verdict rendered many years ago by a coroner's jury in a case of mysterious death ran thus: "We, the jury of twelve good men and true, duly impanelled and responsible on our consciences, do hereby return the following verdict on the demise of the deceased, namely: That said corpse came to its death through the abrupt ceasing of his heart to perform its natural office, for no reason whatever discernible by man, but solely an act of providence." If this was not altogether explicit, at least the public knew there had been no foul play; but what meaning could possibly be attached to the verdict which a legal magazine assures us was rendered, much more recently, by a Missouri court? "We, the jury impanelled, sworn and charged to inquire into the insanguinity of Hezekiah Jones, do occur in the affirmative." This leaves the matter still shrouded in mystery. Was Hezekiah, dead, an ensanguined corpse? Was he, living, accused of homicide, or merely of insanity? Insanguinity is a resonant and mysterious multisyllable that must leave the everyday juryman in a very uncertain frame of mind.

A Literary Policeman.

The news of the distressing death of Charles Ashton, the "literary policeman," as he was called, will be received with genuine regret throughout the whole of Wales. Mr. Ashton was one of those patient plodders so numerous in North Wales, where there is much less of the rush and stress of life than in the southern portion of that principality. A child of the Eisteddfod, he had published an historical work under its auspices. But the dream of his life was to produce a complete and authoritative bibliography of Welsh literature. Amid the picturesque solitudes of Dinas Mawddwy, where the policeman's life ought to be a happy one and the most heinous crime is the absence of the owner's name from a card, Mr. Ashton toiled year in and year out on his task, corresponding with scholars everywhere who were uninterested in the vast body of Welsh literature and were happy to help him with notes and suggestions.—London Mail.

Smallest Religious Sect in the World.

The smallest religious sect in the world is that of the Samaritans, who are to be found in the small city of Nablous, in North Palestine. This city, which is the Neapolis of Josephus, the Shechem of the Old Testament and the Sychar of the New Testament, is situated in the narrow valley between the Mts. Ebal and Gerizim. The population of Nablous numbers about 12,000, all of whom are Mahometans with the exception of this little religious community (now numbering between 100 and 150), which has defied the ravages of war, poverty and oppression for 3,000 years. These Samaritans have lived on through the centuries, and their unity has never been broken. They have clung to little Nablous and to their sacred Mt. Gerizim as the very cactus roots to the granite sides of the somber Ebal that confronts them across the valley. They are regarded by the Jews as heretics, as they accept only the pentateuch. They possess an ancient copy of the pentateuch, written in Phoenician characters, or, according to some, the ancient Hebrew characters in use before the Babylonish captivity.—Stray Stories.

Ground Floor Bedrooms.

There is danger in the porous character of plaster ceilings, which are often very thin, indeed. The ordinary ceiling is "only a porous diaphragm permeable by gases with considerable freedom." The vitiated air of sitting-rooms, therefore, frequently finds its way into bedrooms. The British Medical Journal asks any skeptic to "compare his bodily and mental sensations after sleeping in such a room and in one situated over a similar room well ventilated, and not occupied or illuminated by gas during the evening." The remedy, it says, is to have bedrooms on the ground floor, and living, working and cooking rooms upstairs. But how about noise?—London Chronicle.

Not Even a Name.

The Korean woman is so little esteemed that she has not even a name.

OUR BUDGET OF FUN.

SOME GOOD JOKES, ORIGINAL AND SELECTED.

A Variety of Quips, Gibes and Ironies, to Cause a Smile — Flotsam and Jetsam from the Tide of Humor—Witty Sayings.

Harsh Treatment.

"My dear, I thought they had abolished corporal punishment in the navy."

"They have."

"Does that apply to yachts, too?"

"I suppose it does. What are you driving at?"

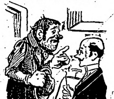
"Why, I noticed that in a recent race off Newport one of the yachts was steered so badly that her spanker struck a buoy."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Art for Art's Sake.

Miss Rosebud—Maude Osborne vows she never means to marry.

Miss Pepperton—I presume, then, that all that work she does on her complexion is nothing but art for art's sake.—Sydney Town and Country Journal.

His Kind of Courage.



"I want you to pull a tooth, but not with gas. That costs too much!"

"Well, you're a brave man. Show me the tooth."

"Wait a minute. My mother-in-law will be here right away. It's her tooth."—Der Floh.

The Lessless Age.

"It's a 'lessless age,'" remarked Simpers.

"What do you mean?" inquired Gales.

"Here's a couple who entered upon a loveless marriage, drove away in a horseless carriage and received all their congratulations by wireless telegraphy."—Philadelphia North American.

They Got Together.

"Papa," said little four-year-old Margie, "I think you are just the nicest man in the whole world."

"And I think you are the nicest little girl in the world," replied her father.

"'Course I am," said Margie. "Ain't it queer how such nice people happen to get into the same family?"—Sydney Town and Country Journal.

Luck.

"They say," he said, "that it is no longer fashionable to attach to wedding presents the cards of the people who give them."

"Then," she declared, "I'm going to take back that $20 picture I intended to give Nell Waterson, and get her a solid silver teaspoon."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Old Time Dexterity.

Joe Ker—The earlier watches were much cleverer timepieces than those of the present.

Jacques—How so?

Joe Ker—They marked the time with only one hand.—Jewelers' Weekly.

Generally Ruled by Kindness.

"You are one of those humanitarians who believe in bringing up children without corporal punishment, aren't you?"

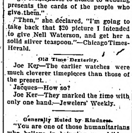
"Yes. As true as I'm standing here, I've never struck one of my children, except in self-defense."—Answers.

Neighborly Ties

"The telephone is a great social factor."

"That's so. We wouldn't have called on those people next door at all if we hadn't wanted to use their telephone."—Chicago Record.

A Careful Mother.



Teacher—What do you know of the microbe family?

Little Maude—Please, ma'am, mamma has forbidden us to gossip about other people's family affairs.—Exchange.

Effectual.

Gentleman (to village cobbler)—What's that yellow powder you are taking so constantly, my friend?

Cobbler—It's snuff—catarrh snuff.

Gentleman—"Is it any good? I'm troubled somewhat that way myself.

Cobbler (with the air of a man who could say much if he chose)—Well, I've had catarrh for mor'n thirty years, and I've never took nothin' for't but this.—Epoch.

The Difference.

"Detectives in real life are not a bit like the story-book detectives."

"That's so," said the man who hasn't any savoir faire whatever. "The story-book detective invariably catches his man, sooner or later."—Washington Star.

THE BLOODTHIRSTY YAQUI.

Americans Driven Out by Their Raids in the Mountains of Mexico.

If there is any particular place on earth that is wilder than the part of Mexico now being depredated by the Yaqui Indian warfare then that place has not been located, unless it is the counterpart of No Man's Land in west Texas. The Yaqui have their reservation in the spurs of the Sierra Madre mountains. For hundreds of miles in any direction that you choose to turn you find nothing but the wildest wilderness surrounding you. There are hundreds of Americans, however, who leave El Paso and plunge into these mountains in search of that alluring commodity in this great world of ours, gold. During the past two or three years hundreds of Americans have disappeared in these mountain fastnesses and have never been heard of since, or at least until the last few weeks, and now they are pouring out of the mountain dells every day like rats leaving a sinking ship. It is getting too warm up in those dark recesses and those narrow gorges for the average miner in search of wealth and not bloody Indian warfare. For awhile it was thought that the American miners in the mountains would be able to hold their ground by being neutral, but that is something the Indian knows nothing at all about. For a while the big chiefs were able to hold the young bucks in hand and nothing but Mexican soldiers were selected as targets to shoot after. One or two of these engagements, however, and everything was at an end. The young buck, like the tiger, had smelled blood, and he was beyond any future restraint. He went charging and tearing through the mountains, laying everything in waste before him. Hundreds of the Americans in those mountain ranges with free grass and no fences to interfere had begun the raising of cattle in addition to their mining prospecting, and were having a fine time of it up to the time that the uprising came. For awhile they stemmed the tide, but only for awhile. The Indians swooped down on some of the ranches, laid the small adobe houses close down against the sod and killed the men. The few women there were were carried into bondage. Now the wives and ranchmen are pouring out of the mountains and rushing to the border.

HOW THEY RAISE GEORGIA MEN

All This Poor Widow Had, to Raise Them on Was Prayer and Hickory.

Gen. Wheeler was being entertained by a party of northern men at dinner, when one of the gentlemen said, laughingly: "How is it, general, that the sleepy farms of the south produce such whirlwind fighters in such small packages?" "Well, gentlemen," said the little general, puffing a large man's cigar, "I believe I'll have to give you the answer of an old 'cracker' woman once gave me when I asked her a similar question. Not many years ago I had occasion to make a saddle journey through the pine barrens of Georgia, where most everybody is a 'cracker' and mighty shiftless. One day, however, I rode into a little community that showed such signs of thrift as to be quite out of keeping with the general character of the barrens, I do assure you, gentlemen. I rode up to a cabin where a gaunt old woman stood in the doorway, and asked her who owned the little farms that were so well kept. 'That farm on the left belongs to my son Jabez,' said she, 'and the next one to my boy Zalem, and the next to my lad Jason, and the next is my boy Photiphar's place, and——' 'Hold on, sister,' said I. 'How did you manage to raise such a fine lot of boys way off here in the woods?' 'Wal, stranger,' she answered, 'I am a widdy woman, and all I had to raise 'em on was prayer and hickory, and I raised 'em powerful frequent.'"—Current Literature.

JAPAN'S BIG MERCHANT MARINE

Astonishing Progress of the Former Hermit Kingdom on the Seas.

From the Buffalo Express: According to an official list of the merchant vessels of Japan, which has just been issued, there are now 3,027 boats in service. Of this number 1,995 are registered, aggregating 613,200 tons. Of the 674 registered steamers 530 are below 1,000 tons gross, while the others vary from 1,000 to between 6,000 and 7,000 tons. Of the sailing vessels 1,291 are below 200 tons and only one rates between 1,000 and 2,000 tons. As regards material, 128 steamers are built of iron, 88 of steel, 10 are composite, while the remainder are of wood. All the sailing vessels are of wood except the largest, which is of steel. This boat was built last year at Nagasaki. Up to the present time Japanese shipyards have constructed in steel or iron only two steamers of over 6,000 tons, two steamers of between 1,000 and 2,000 tons, and thirty-two other smaller steel or iron steam vessels. In the dockyards thirteen vessels of cruiser or gunboat type, totaling 21,600 tons, have been launched since 1885, the largest being the cruiser Hashidate, of 4,277 tons. There are seventy-three ship-building yards in Japan.

Too Obliging.

The ameer of Afghanistan must surely be a very obliging man, if a story told of him be true. Not many years ago a queen's messenger or some other official was on his way to Cabul, when he had the misfortune to be robbed. He was in no way injured by the robbers, but the British government preferred a complaint, which came duly to the knowledge of the ameer. No reply was received, and the months passed. At last the ameer wrote, and his letter showed the earnestness of his desire to oblige the queen. "The matter you mention," said the letter, "has been thoroughly investigated, and not only have the robbers of your messenger been put to death, but all their children, as well as their fathers and grandfathers. I hope this will give satisfaction to her majesty the queen." Nevertheless it is doubtful if it did.

Frankness in the Home.

John—You're an ignorant woman, Maria! Maria—I don't know everything, John. John—Umph! Some people don't know enough to know how little they do know. Maria—I'm surprised to hear you say that, John; I didn't think you were frank enough to make such an honest confession.—Boston Courier.

Bank of St. Hilaire.

HANNAY & CO., Bankers.

Real Estate Loans.
Chattel Loans.
Foreign & Domestic Xchange
INSURANCE.
Collections a Specialty.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

St. Hilaire, Minn.

Livery and Feed Stable!

DAN PATERSON, Prop.

Dray in Connection.

The finest equipped turnouts in the northwest. Safe drivers and furnished at a moments notice at reasonable rates. Don't forget the place

BIG - RED - BARN

Located on the east side of Broadway nearly opposite Rapp & Post's Store

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

PATENTS DESIGNS TRADE-MARKS AND COPYRIGHTS OBTAINED

ADVICE AS TO PATENTABILITY FREE
Notice in "Inventive Age"
Book "How to obtain Patents"

Charges moderate. No fee till patent is secured. Letters strictly confidential. Address,
E. G. SIGGERS, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

GET YOUR PICTURE TAKEN BY
D. COLLINS
THE
Photograper.
ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

IMPROVED
FARMS!

K. O. GIGSTAD has a large list of Improved Farms for sale. Also agent for the best fire and cyclone insurance company. Sick and accident insurance Co., and hail insurance.

Money to loan on improved farms at low interest. All collections are promptly attended to.

NOTARY PUBLIC.

Office east of the city well.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

2nd STORE

(SECOND HAND STORE.)

Everything in this line now on hand. Special bargains given. If you have anything to dispose of give me a call.

C. A. SKEIE.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA

FIRE
INSURANCE
DO
YOU
NEED
SOME?

The Best is the Cheapest.

I have nine of the best companies doing business in the State

Call for rates.

H. E. IVES.

CUSTOM WORK.

JUST LOOK AT THESE PRICES:

Roll Carding—per pound........5 cts
Spinning Single Yarn—per pound........15 c
Stocking Yarn—2 or 3 ply, per pound.....20 c

LITCHFIELD WOOLEN MILLS.

LITCHFIELD, MINN.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Spectator.

IVES & SOLL, Publishers.
JOHN J. SOLL, Editor.

Entered at the postoffice at St. Hilaire, Minn., as second-class mail matter.

Published every Wednesday at St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minn.

TERMS:—$1.50 Per Year in Advance.

SUBSCRIBERS should notify the publisher on or before expiration of subscription if discontinuance is desired. Otherwise paper will be continued.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 17, 1900.

ST. MARTIN DAYS.

She is a woman past her prime,
  Yet age has left her still as fair
  As when, with roses in her hair,
She knew life's golden summer time.
Her smile more sweet for fallen tears,
  Her heart grown kinder since it learned
  The griefs that marred, the pain that burned,
The disappointment of the years.

Call her not old whose lips can speak
  So tenderly to those oppressed.
  Call her not old within whose breast
The loveless find the love they seek,
For now, with holy purpose rife,
  She scatters incense, balm and myrrh,
  Until I know these are for her
The blest St. Martin days of life.
  —Lalla Mitchell in American Agriculturist.

PASSING OF WASHINGTON.

"'Tis Well!" Were the Last Words of the Father of His Country.

"As the day advanced the patient Washington began to realize the extreme gravity of his condition," writes William Perrine of "The Last Years of Washington's Life" in The Ladies' Home Journal. "Suffering and nearly exhausted, he asked his wife to bring him his wills from his desk and indicated which of the two should be destroyed. Toward night he became very weak. 'I find I am going now,' he said, and added, after giving injunctions as to his accounts and papers, 'It is the debt which we must all pay.'

"Occasionally he made such remarks during the evening as, 'Doctor, I die hard, but I am not afraid to go,' and 'You had better not take any more trouble about me, but let me go off quietly; I cannot last long.' Dr. Craik could do little more than press the hand of his old friend and then sit by the fireside in the simply furnished room, sadly waiting for the end. Mrs. Washington, seated at the foot of the bed, listened in silent grief.

"At 10 o'clock the dying man, after much effort, made those around him, who included four servants, understand that he wished to be buried decently and that his body might not be put in the vault until three days after his death. The last words he was heard to say when he was told that he had been understood were, ''Tis well.'

"Not long afterward his breathing became easier; he rested quietly; he even made a movement to feel his own pulse, but his countenance changed, his hands fell, and he died without a struggle or a sigh. Major Lear motioned that the end had come. ''Tis well,' said the widow in a composed voice. 'I shall soon follow him.'"

Caged Tigers.

When you see the animals in the park menageries pacing back and forth restlessly in their cages, do not take it for granted that the creatures are unhappy or even discontented. It may be that the lion or the tiger or the polar bear that moves about with apparently ceaseless activity is only taking his daily exercise, without which he would pine and die soon. When the wild creatures are in their native jungles, they are kept pretty busy hunting food. Thus each day they walk many miles perhaps. In their narrow cages in the parks they are plentifully supplied with food, but their brawny bodies still demand a great amount of exercise. Mile after mile is paced off daily by the uneasy creatures.

Usually they move with a long, swinging stride, but when mealtime comes around then the step quickens until, when the keeper appears with his baskets of meat, the tigers and lions and other animals leap against the bars and growl and whine and lash their tails. In fact, they act like great, hungry boys do after a long day's tramp if they find that supper is late.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Servant Without Salary.

A writer in The Dumb Animals tells us that one of Uncle Sam's most faithful servants in the state of Maine, but one that draws no salary, lives at Portland Head lighthouse. It is a large gray parrot, brought from Africa some time ago and presented to the keeper of the light.

The bird soon noticed that when the fog began to blow in from the ocean somebody would cry out: "Fog coming. Blow the horn!"

One day the fog suddenly began to come in thick, and the men did not notice it. But Poll did and croaked out: "Fog coming. Blow the horn!" Ever since then, whenever fog is perceptible, Poll never fails to give warning.

A Serious Complication.

In the mountains of east Tennessee the natives, or rather the lower circle of natives, take many liberties with the Queen's English. A physician who practices in that region tells of an incident illustrative of this. He had a patient who was being nursed by a friend. One day the doctor called and said to the nurse:

"Well, Jim, how is Bill?"

"Bill air mighty bad today, Doc," Jim responded. "His whole nervous system seem to be in a perfect strategy."—Memphis Scimitar.

They Would Laugh.

If a man should wear his pantaloons so long that whenever he appeared on the street he would be obliged to reach around behind and grab hold of the basement and hold them up, wouldn't the ladies laugh?—Lowville (N. Y.) Journal.

Slandering the Hatchet.

"They continue to find fresh defects in Washington's character."

"Anything particularly new?"

"Yes. They say his manner of illustrating the truth was a little lax."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

It's generally the man who protests loudest against soulless corporations who scatters his traps over two seats in the car.—New York Telegram.

The rainbow is all right in its way, but when a fellow gets wet in a storm it's cold consolation to him.—Atlanta Constitution.

HORRIBLE REMEDIES

THOSE USED BY DOCTORS IN THE SIXTEENTH CENTURY.

Patients Cast Into Wells to Cure Convulsions—A Ladder Used In Setting a Dislocated Shoulder—Dead Bodies Made Into Medicine.

A fragment of a curious volume has fallen into the hands of a local physician which graphically describes the methods of surgery of several centuries ago. When it is considered that anesthetics were unknown in those ancient days, the modus operandi of the surgeon of the sixteenth century must appear startlingly cruel in the light of the present day.

The work is that of Ambrose Parey, who in 1579, being then the much famous "chirurgion" of his day, published a bulky volume which became such an established authority and held its place for so long a time that 70 years afterward it was translated into English and published in London.

In his first book he considers the general phenomenon of the body in health and disease, and in the chapter relating to temperaments and humors he writes, "An humor is called by physicians what thing soever is liquid and flowing in the body of living creatures inclosed with blood." Proceeding to the "manifold divisions of humors," he separates them into four parts, distinct in color, taste, effects and qualities—namely, blood, phlegm, choler and melancholy. Exact in his subdivisions, he says: "All men ought to think that such humors are wont to move at set hours of the day as by a certain peculiar motion or tide. Therefore, the blood flows from the ninth hour of the night to the third hour of the day; choler to the ninth of the day. Then melancholy the blood flows from the ninth hour of the night is under the dominion of phlegm."

Equally curious is the following on spirits, which he divides into "animall," "vitall" and "naturall:"

"The animal spirit hath taken his seat in the brain. It is called animal because it is the life, but the chief and prime instrument thereof. Wherefore it hath a most subtle and aery substance. This animal spirit is made and harbored in the windings and foldings of the veins and arteries of the brain, brought thither sometimes of the pure air or sweet vapor drawn in by the nose in breathing. The vital spirit is next to it in dignity and excellency, which hath its chief mansion in the left ventricle of the heart. The natural spirit, if such there be any, hath its station in the liver and veins."

Describing "certain juggling and deceitful ways of healing of cures by such means as fear, surprise and even by music for spider bite, the music causing the patient to dance so lustily that he shakes all the poison out of his system," he sums up some of those heroic remedies thus: "I would not cast the patient headlong out of a window, but would rather cast them sodainly, and thinking of no such thing, into a great cistern filled with cold water, with their heads foremost. Neither would I take them out until they had drunk a good quantity of water, that by that sodain fall and strong fear the matter causing the frenzy might be carried from above downward from the noble parts to the ignoble."

A medicine upon which he dilates at great length is "mummie," referred to as the usual remedy for contusions, and he describes it as follows:

"Mummie is a liquor flowing from the aromatick embalmens of dead bodies, which becomes dry and hard" and being ground into medicine was "administered either in whole or portion to such as have fallen from high places, the first and last medicine of almost all our practitioners at this day in such a case."

He also gives some grewsome facts connected with the preparation of "mummie" when he says: "Certain of our French apothecaries, men wondrous audacious and covetous to steal by night the bodies of such as were hanged and embalming them with salt and drugs they dried them in an oven so as to sell them thus adulterated instead of true mummie, whereupon we are thus compelled, both foolishly and cruelly, to devour the mangled and putrid particles of the carcasses of the basest people of Egypt, or of such as are hanged, as though there were no other way to help or recover one bruised with a fall from a high place.

"I have not thought it fit in this place," he says, "to omit the industry of Nicholas Picart, the Duke of Guise, his surgeon, who, being called to a certain countryman to set his shoulder, being out of joint, and finding none in the place besides the patient and his wife, who might assist him in this work, he put the patient, bound after the forementioned manner, to a ladder, then immediately he tyed a staffe at the lower end of the ligature, which was fastened about the patient's arm above his elbow, then put it so tyed under one of the steps of the ladder as low as he could find, got astride thereupon and sate thereon with his whole weight and at the same instant made his wife pluck the stool from under his feet, which, being done, the bone presently came into its place."

He also gravely discusses witches and witchcraft, the birth of monsters with horns, hoofs and wings, ascribing their birth to the master of evil, and closes with a lofty panegyric upon Hippocrates and Galen, the princes of physicians.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

A Better Name.

Miss Summit—He is one of the most generous men I ever met. Why, he took me out to luncheon yesterday and let me order it all myself.

Miss Palisade—I don't call that generosity. That's pure recklessness.—Brooklyn Life.

We Want Correspondents.

We desire a correspondent in every school district in the county, one who will give the local news of his or her locality in a fair and impartial manner. To any one who will undertake the matter the SPECTATOR will furnish the necessary stationery and postage, and will send the paper free during the time the person acts in that capacity. Only one correspondent desired in each district. It is an advantage to any community to be represented in the columns of the local paper.

Supposing the Ax Had Fallen!

Some years ago an inquisitive medical student, while examining the guillotine in a big waxworks exhibition in London, took it into his head that the sort of yoke which fits down on the shoulders of the criminal to hold him in his place would not be sufficient to confine a person who struggled.

His curiosity on that point led him to watch till the place was empty, when he actually put himself in, letting down the yoke. He soon found, however, that he was quite unable to lift it, and it at once flashed into his mind that the sharp ax suspended over his neck might not be firmly fixed, or it would fall, as it should, with a touch.

He was afraid to struggle lest the shaking should bring it down and at once deposit his head in the basket of sawdust below him, into which his eyes were of necessity steadily looking.

Having staid some time in this plight, he was overjoyed to hear the approach of a visitor, whom he implored to release him. It was in vain.

"I'm thinking," said the gentleman, a Scottish visitor to the metropolis, to his wife, "that he must be hired to show how the thing acts, and I think we'd better not interfere."

So the luckless student was left till one of the attendants came in and made fast the ax before releasing him from his predicament. The ax was afterward removed and laid by the side of the structure to prevent future accidents.

A Convincing Answer.

There are many people who do not care for libraries who pride themselves on having "only the books they read" about them; but the answer made by a distinguished scholar to one of those persons very well illustrates how valuable is this idea as to what a library should be. The scholar was connected with an institution of learning which had been greatly helped by a liberal man of the neighborhood, but the liberal man was not much of a sympathizer with the idea of increasing the library. When appealed to in the matter, he replied:

"More books? Dear me, it seems to me you've got more than you can read now. Have you read all you have already?"

"No," returned the scholar, "and I never expect to read them all."

"Then why do you want more?"

"Let me ask you," said the scholar, "did you ever read the dictionary through?"

"Certainly not," was the reply.

"Well, sir," said the scholar, "a library is my dictionary."

The answer was convincing, and the merchant provided the professor with the funds he wished for.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

It Can't Be Done Now.

"An increase of salary!" exclaimed the pompous manager of a small omnibus company to a clerk who had just made that request. "I am afraid, sir, that you are too extravagant!"

He toyed with his heavy watch chain and looked severely at the young man, who returned his stare boldly. It was the set phrase on such occasions, and the applicant had heard it all before. He meant to have that rise or—go somewhere else.

"Excuse me, sir," he replied respectfully, "I haven't any chance to be extravagant on what I earn."

"Young man," continued the pompous gentleman, "I have risen from the monkey board. How? By being careful. When I was young I made money by saving 'bus fares."

"Ah, that was in the old days," said the young man, with a knowing wink. "But with the bell punches and the present system of inspection, you would find you couldn't save sixpence without being collared, however careful you were."

The manager nearly fainted, and the young man had to seek other employment.—London Standard.

Getting Rope Sense.

A peculiarity about roping horses or steers with a lasso is that after getting a hard fall a few times they quickly get "rope sense." I have often seen them, in a corral, stand stock still when the rope falls across their backs—even when, as a matter of fact, they are not caught. If any reader has ever encountered a clothesline while running at full speed in the dark, the line stretched at about the level of the throat, he will notice that he doesn't run across that lawn any more after nightfall. He's got "rope sense," in fact.—Wide World Magazine.

Why She Enjoyed It.

On Sunday, as a certain Scottish minister was returning homewards, he was accosted by an old woman, who said:

"Oh, sir, well do I like the day when you preach."

The minister was aware that he was not very popular and answered:

"My good woman, I am glad to hear it. There are too few like you. And why do you like it when I preach?"

"Oh, sir," she replied, "when you preach I always get a good seat!"—Scottish Nights.

Queer Lot.

Stranger—I have heard that you have a good many queer people in this town.

Citizen—As odd a lot as you'd find in a year's travel. They are a queer set, the whole of 'em, outside my family. And my wife is almost as bad as the others. But then, you know, she wasn't originally of my family.—Boston Transcript.

A peculiar clock of the time of Charles I was the lantern, or birdcage style, which hung from the walls high up, with its works exposed.

Submarine volcanoes are constantly being discovered, and are at times, owing to their sudden appearance, a great danger to navigation.

To Subscribers.

All who know themselves to be indebted to THE SPECTATOR will confer a great favor by settling early. These accounts are small, but we have a lot of them on our books. Please do not put the matter off or forget it altogether, because it don't amount to very much.

—Every farmer who writes a letter occasionally should get envelopes with his name and address printed in the corner. We will furnish 100 of the best quality printed in any style for the small sum of 75 cts. Send in your order

A Kansas farmer is kicking because he gave his daughter a pair of chickens two years ago and promised to feed the increase for four years if she would take care of them. He says she has $46 in the bank and also has 200 chickens that they will have to feed this winter. He also says at the end of four years that she will own the farm and will be charging him rent for living on it.

The late distinguished Union general, John C. Newton, after careful investigation, declared that more great battles were fought, more men engaged, and more execution done on the famous battlefields in Spottsylvania county, Virginia, known as Fredericksburg, Salem Church, Chancellorsville, the Wilderness, and Spottsylvania Court House, than on any territory of similar area in the world. For this reason Mr. Brosius of Pennsylvania has introduced a bill appropriating $100,000 for the purpose of acquiring and suitably marking this territory and transforming it into a national park.

Don't forget your "little subscription account" when selling your wheat.

The Ideal Lunch Room.

In the Paradis Building is noted for its Convenience.

FIRST-CLASS MEALS.

PROMPT SERVICE.

OPEN UNTIL ONE O'CLOCK A. M.

A. F. LANG, Prop.

NEW YORK WORLD.

THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION.

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly.

The striking and important events of the last year have established the overwhelming value of The Thrice-a-Week World to every reader. For an almost nominal sum it has kept its subscribers informed of the progress of all our wars and, moreover, has reported them as promptly and fully as if it were a daily. With our interests still extending throughout the world, with our troops operating in the Philippines and the great Presidential campaign, too, at hand, its value is further increased.

The motto of The Thrice-a-Week World is improved. It strives each year to be better than it was the year before, and public confidence in it is shown by the fact that it now circulates more than twice as many papers every week as any other newspaper, not a daily, published in America.

We offer this unequaled newspaper and The St. Hilaire Spectator together one year for $1.65.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.50.

Barber Shop
AND
BATH ROOMS.

Haircutting, Shaving, Shampooing.

Razors honed and put in first-class order.

J. H. PENNO, Prop.

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

First Mortgage Loans.

I am prepared, for the next 60 days, to make loans at the

LOWEST

possible rates ever made in Red Lake county. If you want to make a loan or renew an old one call on

H. E. IVES.

NORTHERN PACIFIC
YELLOWSTONE PARK LINE

RUNS THROUGH CARS

TO
ST. PAUL
MINNEAPOLIS
DULUTH
FARGO
GRAND FORKS
AND WINNIPEG

To—
HELENA
BUTTE
SPOKANE
TACOMA
SEATTLE
PORTLAND

PULLMAN SLEEPING CARS
ELEGANT DINING CARS
TOURIST SLEEPING CARS

PATENTS GUARANTEED

Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.

Patents taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in THE PATENT RECORD, an illustrated and widely circulated journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.

Send for sample copy FREE. Address,

VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.
(Patent Attorneys,)
Evans Building, WASHINGTON, D. C.

By special arrangement with the publishers we are enable to give FARM, STOCK AND HOME one year and the ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR for $1.35.

BANK OF RED LAKE FALLS,

RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA

GENERAL BANKING. FOREIGN XCHANGE

Real Estate, Farm Loans and Insurance.
Abstracts of Title.
Steamship Tickets.
Interest Paid on Time Deposits.
Collections of all Kinds Given Prompt Attention.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli the only set of Abstract Books in Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

Why does the boy hate the beer?

He doesn't—he loves it because it is Hamm's delicious brew. It is the medicine his kind aunty has mixed in it that he dislikes. Never mind he is to have a drink of the pure article afterwards to take the bad taste away.

Hamm's St. Paul Beer

Drink a beer you know is pure.

Theo. Hamm Brewing Co.
Tel. 972 St. Paul, Minn.
Agents Everywhere.

UNCLE SAM'S MONOGRAM WHISKEY

Everybody Likes It

Sold by Druggists and Dealers.

Geo Benz & Sons, St. Paul.

FARMS { 250 farms in Red Lake county for sale, also a large list of Railroad lands. Prices going up.

LOANS { First Mortgage Farm Loans A Specialty.

ABSTRACTS { furnished on short notice. Neat and accurate work guaranteed.

S. A. SWANSON,
Official Abstracter.

RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.

OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U.S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U.S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

—The SPECTATOR is for sale—at $1.50 a year—strictly in advance.

Cigars.

BRINK BROTHERS

DEALERS IN

Wines & Liquors

Minneapolis Beer.

Corner Broadway and 3rd St. St. Hilaire, Minnesota

L. K. KOLSTAD

DEALER IN

BOOTS AND SHOES!

Repairing a Specialty.

ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA.

Cosmopolitan and Spectator.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we will leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal, both together one year for only $1.50.

SOME OF OUR CLUB RATES WITH THE

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR

OUR TERMS ARE STRICTLY CASH IN ADVANCE

OFFICIAL PAPER OF ST. HILAIRE AND RED LAKE COUNTY.

Farm, Stock & Home.

50 cents per year. Read by a greater number of Northwestern farmers than any other agricultural paper published. Are you among the number? If not, Why not? Every department in the hands of a specialist. Short talks department. A department where all kinds of questions are answered for the benefit of subscribers, is a leading feature of the paper. No northwestern farmers list of papers is complete without it. This paper and Spectator one year for $1.25.

Cosmopolitan, New York World and The Spectator.

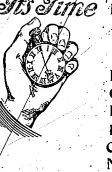
You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine. Three together one year for only $2.50.

NEW MEAT MARKET.

L. M. ROLAND, Proprietor.

Fresh and Salted Meats.

Highest Market Price Paid for Hides.



Now then
If you are
Looking for
Bargins in
Dry Goods
Groceries
Hats, Caps,
Boots, Shoes
Clothing
Notions!

Or in fact anything carried in a first-class general merchandise store; why you are cordially invited and we will accommodate you. Call and look over our large stock.

E. M. HOFF.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

I. O. O. F. St. Hilaire Lodge No. 147.—Meets at their hall every Thursday evening, eight o'clock. Visiting members are cordially invited to attend.
J. B. O'Brien, N. G.
A. F. Land, Secretary.

M. W. A. CAMP 3530.—Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every second and fourth Tuesday of every month. Visiting neighbors are cordially invited to attend.
H. O. Jackson, V. C.
Jas. M. Hall, Clerk.

R. N. A.—WILD ROSE CAMP.—No. 831 Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every Friday evening. Visiting members of the order are cordially invited to attend.
Mrs. W. A. Arthur, Oracle.
Miss T. Hughes, Recorder.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.

E. J. Holmes	President
J. L. Johnson	Recorder
D. Patterson	Councilmen
J. C. Dahl
W. A. Sorsoleil
L. Holmes	Treasurer

DR. BLOMBURGH.
SCANDINAVIAN
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
☞ Calls attended day or night. ☜
Teeth Extracted.
Office and residence opposity M. E. church. St. Hilaire, Minn.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

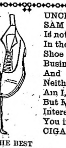
Auditor	Adam Zeh
Treasurer	O. T. Tandberg
Register of Deeds	Samuel Gibeau
Sheriff	Chas. Sampson
Attorney	Van R. Brown
Judge of Probate	J. T. Knight
Clerk of Court	Joe Perrault
Supt. of Schools	Frank Jeffers
Coroner	Joe Belaire
Court Commissioner	J. C. Mathews
Surveyor	P. O. Hagglund
Commissioner 1st Dist.	J. Suter
Commissioner 2nd Dist.	W. L. C. Demann
Commissioner 3rd Dist.	O. J. Johnsen
Commissioner 4th Dist.	Karl M. Hanson
Commissioner 5th Dist.	J. B. Herbert

HENRY FRANCIS, M. D., C. M.
Member College Physicians and Surgeons, Ontario, ...
Office and residence first door south of Oen's hardware store.
Thief River Falls, Minn.

List of Town Clerks.

Names	Township	Postoffice
Olof Larson	Numedal	Viking
C. E. Purdy	North	Thief River Falls
John E. Peterson	Bray	Bray
N. K. Anderson	Sanders	St. Hilaire
F. T. Satre	Rocksbury	T. R. Falls
O. T. Romsos	Polk Centre	Wylie
P. A. Eckstrom	Black River	Wylie
A. S. Anderson	River Falls	St. Hilaire
Ole J. Johnson	Wyandotte	"
A. D. Berry	Louisville	Huot
Ildaige Baril	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
Chas. E. Asp	Emardville	Lost
Edward Havik	Equality	Grit
Moses Ducharme	Lake Pleasant	R. L. F.
Edonor Perusse	Terrebonne	Terrebonne
J. B. Herbert	Poplar River	Brooks
Louis Doucet	Lambert	Lambert
J. L. Johnson	St. Hilaire	St. Hilaire
Lars Backe	Thief River F.	T. R. F.
A. P. Toupin	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
H. D. Baaryson	Norden	T. R. Falls
Olof Tande	Garnes	Garnes

A. O. LETVIG,
TUBULAR WELL CONTRACTOR.
A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed.
Repairing a Specialty.
WYLIE, MINNESOTA.



UNCLE
SAM
Is not
In the Shoe
Business,
And
Neither
Am I,
But I can
Interest
You in
CIGARS.

ALL THE BEST
SMOKERS BUY THEM

J. B. Cigars.

ALL THE BEST
DEALERS SELL THEM.
J. B. ARMSTRONG,
Manufacturer,
Red Lake Falls, Minnesota.

DAY F. STACY, C. E.
DEPUTY
County Surveyor.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.
Drainage and Farm Surveys a Specialty.

Market Report.—To-Day.

Wheat No. 1	51½	Oats	16
Wheat No. 2	47½	Barley	21
Wheat No. 3	44½	Flax	131
Eggs (per doz).	16	Butter (per lb)	20

LOCAL NEWS.

Masquerade ball Feb. 14th.

Fresh oysters at A. F. Lang's.

A cow for sale. Inquire W. Allen.

Flour and feed at Leonard Holmes elevator.

Oysters prepared in any style at A. F. Lang's.

H. Aronsen of St. Paul was in town on business yesterday.

A new stock of boys clothing just received at E. M. Hoff's.

Try a lunch, a meal or a weeks board at the Ideal Lunch Room.

Born: To Mr. and Mrs. Steve Nelson January 10, 1900, a girl.

Miss Nellie Hannay was a visitor at the county seat last Thursday.

J. B. Kortgaard and Arnt Peterson visited at Thief River Falls Sunday.

Patronize home industry by buying your wall paper at the New Drug store.

Teachers examination February 2nd and 3rd. See notice elsewhere on this page.

The thermometers for the past week have been hovering around the 20 above mark.

K. O. Gigstad, the real estate dealer, made a business trip to the county seat Saturday.

Mr. and Mrs. Louis Carpenter are making an extended visit with relatives at Crookston.

Mrs. H. Fredrickson has been very sick for a few days but last report she was improving.

About three inches of snow fell Saturday which is scarcely enough to make real good sleighing.

A. G. Ness, the prosperous farmer of River Falls made a business trip to Crookston Monday.

Mr. and Mrs. K. O. Gigstad entertained a number of their friends for several hours Sunday evening.

County Commissioner Johnson was in the village Monday to learn how the bond issue was progressing.

Ole G. Ness and Gilbert Ness of Roseau county are here visiting with their brother and father A. G. Ness.

Dan Patterson returned Sunday from a weeks stay at Minneapolis where he had been consulting a specialist.

Mr. I. Sorsoleil of Owatonna arrived Monday on the sad mission of attending the funeral of his aged father.

Some of the friends of A. Aubol drove out to his place last Thursday evening and had a very good time.

H. E. Ives is expected home the latter part of the week from a ten days stay at the twin cities and Cass Lake.

H. Richards, shipping clerk of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company left Monday for Minneapolis on a two weeks vacation.

An election will be held throughout the county on February 24th to vote on $10,000 bonds for building a court house.

Chas. Brink came down from the upper Falls yesterday on matters pertaining to the sale of the Brink Bros. corner building.

J. G. Ballord, formerly of this place, but now a stock-holder in the Thief River Lumber Co., was here the first of the week.

Mrs. W. Mageau, nee May Halvorson of Crookston arrived Monday and will spend a week visiting with her parents and friends.

From cards received by the county treasurer yesterday you will note taxes are twenty-five per cent higher than on previous years.

F. H. Kratka of Thief River Falls was here yesterday enroute to Chicago where he goes as an important witness in a damage suit.

We are sorry to dissappoint our readers, but will state it is impossible to get out the commissioners proceedings in time for this issue.

Martin McAndress, of Winnipeg arrived Monday and will remain a fortnight visiting with his brothers Mike and Pat of the Hotel Markham.

Our wood pile is getting low; now that the roads are good, will some of our farmer subscribers please bring us a load or two that they promised us last year?

Ripe Old Age

Died in this village on Friday, January 12, 1900, at his home on Red Lake avenue, Mr. John Sorsoleil, in the 87th year of his life. He was one of the earliest settlers, coming here from Nova Scotia in the early eighties. He enjoyed perfect health all his life and never was attended by a doctor until the last two days previous to his death. His death was caused by extreme old age and not from any physical ailment. Rev. I. N. Vernon officiated at the funeral which was held Monday and which was attended by a large concourse of people. He leaves an aged wife and a large family of grown up children, four of whom where at his bedside when the final summons came. The many friends of the family sympathize with the bereaved and extend to them their heartfelt sympathy.

A surprise party took possession of the residence of Mr. and Mrs. B. Kortgaard Monday evening and a pleasant time is the verdict of all who attended.

A great many of our well-to-do farmers called in on us last week and in every case were strictly opposed to bonding the county for a $10,000 court house.

Evidently some people in Cass county have no respect for the game laws as only last week a sportsman was taken for a deer and shot, near the town of Bena.

Mike McAndress returned Monday from a few days absence at Pembina, N. Dak., where he was summoned as an important witness in a suit before the district court.

Aug. Swenson, John Peterson and E. E. Anderson and their families drove out to Rev. Matson of Black River last Friday with lots of good things and the Rev. gentleman was agreable surprised.

Ex-County Commissioner Anderson was in the village Monday. Voting of $10,000 bonds does not meet with his approval and he said he would write a letter to the Spectator giving his views.

The heavy dray team of D. Patterson made things fly in their path yesterday while running away from the depot to the barn. Outside of a smashed wheel and a twisted axle no other damage was done.

It is said that "pink-eye" has broken out among horses in the lumbering woods in Itasca and Beltrami counties. Should this disease spread to the west it would be a serious thing for this section of the country.

Joe Juneau, the veteran cruiser of the pine districts was seen upon our streets the first of the week. Joe has a reputation of scaling a tree that would put to shame old bruin—and the latter can climb—a few.

The band boys will give a Masquerade ball Feb. 14th. They have secured the best orchestra of Red Lake Falls and that is a sufficient guarantee that the best kind of a time is in store for all who attend. All are invited.

Died of cancer in the haed last Sunday Jan., 14th, Mrs. Arneson, wife of Ole Arneson of the town of Norden. Deceased was about 53 years of age and leaves a husband and four children to mourn the loss of a kind wife and mother.

Miss Henrietta Lunde, who has been teaching school and visiting with her brother Rev. Lunde, here for the past year departed Monday for her home at Franklin, Minn. A large number of friends accompanied her to the train to bid her farewell.

Meetings were held Saturday evening here and at Thief River Falls and committees appointed for the purpose of fighting the $10,000 bond issue. Both committees will meet sometime this week and act in conjunction with each other on a course to proceed.

Arno Mereen, Superintendent of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company performed the last duties of his office here Monday and left on the evening train for Minneapolis where he enters the employ of the C. A. Smith Lumber Company in the same capacity.

The northwest will be interested in a bill introduced by Senator Davis of Minnesota, restoring the annuities to the Sisseton and Wahpeton bands of Dakota or Sioux Indians and the Medawakanton and the Wahpakoota (Santee) Sioux Indians, which were declared forfeited for misconduct in 1863.

The McIntosh hustlers are out circulating petitions for the purpose of dividing Polk county. They want to cut enough off the east end to make a county of their own with that village as the county seat. We done the same thing and now we are going to fight a $10,000 bond issue for a court house.

Chas. Murch of Crookston arrived Saturday and will hold down the responsible position of superintendent of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company until such time as Mr. Fred Miller completes the building of a mill at Cass Lake, when it is understood he will be installed as chief mogul of this institution.

Wall paper and calcimine at the New Drug store.

It is poor politics to shield any man or excuse his acts just because he belongs to a certain party. To continue Dar Hall in office as Chippewa Indian commission at $13 per day, when his services are no more needed than a jack rabbit needs a chaperone, is blamed poor politics. We are sorry that Senator Nelson and other members of the Minnesota delegation are responsible for his retention.—Bemidji Pioneer.

—To cure a cough or cold in one day take the Imperial Cough Syrup.

—It is better than ready money because it cures rheumatism, constipation sick headache, indigestion. Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure.

The Wolf Bounty.

For the information of those who do not thoroughly understand the wolf bounty law, we publish the following passed by the last legislature.

Section 1. Every person who shall kill a full grown wolf during the months of January, February, March, April and May shall be entitled to a reward of seven dollars, for a cub wolf any season of the year three dollars and any person who shall kill any fullgrown wolf at any season of the year shall be entitled to a reward of five dollars, one third of which shall be paid by the county wherein the wolf or wolves were killed, and two thirds thereof shall be paid by the state, and all counties wherein the interest and welfare thereof require are hereby empowered to grant such rewards herein provided, and to increase the same so far as concerns the liability of said county.

Section 2. The person or persons claiming such reward shall within thirty days after the killing of such animal exhibit the carcass of the animal so killed with the head and ears entire to the town clerk in the presence of two witnesses of the town wherein such animal was killed, and make oath that the animal so exhibited is the animal killed by such claimant, stating the time and place and where such animal was killed by him, and that the claimant did not spare the life of any wolf within his power to kill.

—For cuts and sores there is nothing better than the Imperial Carbolic salve.

Now and Then.

Do you know that—

It requires 60 per cent more wheat to buy a stove now than it did in '96?

It requires twenty bushels more corn to buy a wagon than in '96?

It requires 100 per cent more corn or wheat to buy a copper kettle than in '96?

It requires twice as much corn to purchase a coil of rope than in '96?

It requires 40 per cent more corn to buy a plow than in '96?

That it requires 75 per cent more corn to buy a hoe, rake or shovel, or spade or both than in '96?

A set of common wheels cost $7 in '96, and now cost $12.50?

The price of cultivators is higher by from $3 to $4?

Galvanized barbed wire cost from $4 to $4.50 a hundred pounds more than in '96?

You pay 40 per cent more for glass than in '96?

The rates of freight are back to the exorbitant figures that caused the popular revolt in legislation a few years ago?

McKinley prosperity comes high, but the trusts and corporations must have it.—Wichito (Kan) Democrat.

Methodist Church.

Services will be held in the Methodist church on Sunday morning at 11 a. m. and in the evening at 7:30.

N. J. Vernon, Pastor.

—Go to the New Drug Store for your Stationery and School supplies.

Mr. and Mrs. Rev. A. M. Lunde started Monday on their southward journey in hopes of finding a more suitable climate for Mrs. Lunde, who is bothered more or less with bronchitis troubles. Their first stop will be at Colorado Springs, Colorado, and if that place does not prove beneficial to her health will proceed further south, perhaps to San Antonio, Texas. It is hoped by the entire community that the needed health resort can be found and she may soon return to her former robust health.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

I want to let the people who suffer from rheumatism and sciatica know that Chamberlain's Pain Balm relieved me after a number of other medicines and a doctor had failed. It is the best liniment I have ever known of.—J. A. Dodgen, Alpharetta, Ga. Thousands have been cured of rheumatism by this remedy. One application relieves the pain. For sale by the Imperial Drug Store.

Council Proceedings.

Regular meting of the village council Tuesday January 2nd 1900.

All members present except Sorsoleil.

Meeting called to order by President Holmes.

Minutes of previous meeting read and approved.

On motion the following bills were allowed:

C Hall, 1 month marshal salary	$40 00
Ed Whaley, work as per bill	75
C W Peters, " "	75
S Harris, " "	9 75

On motion bill of P. O. Hagglund was laid on the table until next regular meeting.

On motion meeting adjourned.

Emil J. Holmes, Pres.
J. L. Johnson, Recorder.

Special meeting of the village council Friday evening Dec. 22nd 1899.

All members present except Sorsoliel.

Meeting called to order by President Holmes.

On motion I. Dahleen was allowed $130.00 for building village hall and jail as per contract, and the recorder was instructed to issue an order for balance due him.

On motion meeting adjourned.

Attest:— E. J. Holmes
J. L. Johnson, President.
Recorder.

—Dr. Thomas is an up-to-date in all the different branches in his profession. Remember the dates, Jan. 29th and 30th.

—If you are troubled with rheumatism take the Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure. It will positively cure all diseases arising from impure blood, and is sold under an absolute guarantee to benefit or money refunded. Call for free sample at the New Drug Store.

Rate of Taxes and Valuation.

Auditor Zeh and Deputy J. E. Ford have been very busy men for the past three weeks working on the abstract of Red Lake County taxes, and on Dec. 30 the auditor mailed to the state auditor the document which shows the exact condition of the county. A few figures taken from the abstract show the county to be in a flourishing condition, as the valuation and assets have increased several thousand dollars over last year. There were 345,600 acres of land assessed exclusive of town lots, and a valuation of $776,307 was placed thereon, and the valuation of town lots brought this amount up to $1,072,855. The valuation of personal property is $318,755, making the total valuation in the county $1,390,606. Upon this amount there was made a levy of $63,341, making an average rate of 45½ mills.

The following table gives the rate of taxes for all purposes in mills on property located in the different townships cities and villages, as well as the assessed valuation of both real and personal property:

Town, City or Village	Rate of Taxes		Val. R & P Property
Thief River Falls, city	46.02	mills	$189,031
Red Lake Falls, city	61.99	"	211,312
Numedal	31.99	"	22,885
Norden	37.61	"	28,715
North	40.62	"	17,305
Bray	29.18	"	42,592
Sanders	41.76	"	42,030
Rocksbury	32.68	"	55,460
Polk Center	37.91	"	61,720
Black River	30.52	"	55,148
River Falls	42.15	"	49,045
Wyandotte	49.01	"	30,372
Louisville	34.58	"	63,428
Red Lake Falls, town	40.22	"	67,543
Gervais	41.66	"	45,521
Emardville	59.65	"	24,550
Garnes	46.93	"	16,970
Equality	58.35	"	12,725
Lake Pleasant	37.99	"	59,604
Terrebonne	42.38	"	64,418
Poplar River	39.97	"	49,715
Lambert	40.50	"	57,396
St. Hilaire, village	41.01	"	103,197

A Hint to the Boys.

Every young man in Minnesota should read this from the Minto Journal and remember that it is true; heed its moral and shape life accordingly: "When we see boys on the street and in public places we often wonder if they know that business men are watching them. In every bank, store and office there will soon be a place for some boy to till. Those who have the management of the affairs of that business house will select a boy in whom they have confidence. When they select one of those boys they will not select him for his abitily to talk 'sassy,' swear, use slang, smoke cigaretts or tap a keg of beer. These men may have little to say and some may have a few of those habits themselves, but they are looking for boys who are as near gentlemen in every sense of the word as they can find, and they are able to give the character of every boy in town. They are not looking for rowdies, and when a boy applies for one of these places and is refused they may not tell him the reason why they do not want him, but the boy can depend on it he has been rated according to his behavior. Boys cannot afford to adopt the habits and conversation of loafers and rowdies if they ever want a chance to be called to responsible positions."

If you want a 1900 calander call at this office or at K. O. Gigstad's real estate office and get one.

Regulate Your Watch.

As Johnson's barber shop and if it don't keep time, leave it, and we will repair it and warrant it to keep time for one year. New watches, clocks chains and jewelry for sale at the lowest prices. I will be at Johnson's barber shop the 10th 11th and 12th of every month. All work left at the shop has my personal attention. When you come to Red Lake Falls make the Palace Jewely Store your headquarters.

I am yours truly
Prof. J. Q. Adams,
Watchmaker and Optician.

"A young man came into our store yesterday suffering from a severe attack of cramp colic," writes B. F. Hess; miller and general merchant, Dickey's Mountain, Pa. "He had tried various home remedies without relief. As I had used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy I gave him a dose and it soon brought him out alright. I never saw a fellow so rejoiced." Sold by the Imperial Drug Store.

Notice.

Teachers examination for Red Lake County under the new law will be held in the high school building in the city of Red Lake Falls Friday and Saturday February 2 and 3. It will be necessary for all persons expecting to teach in this county whose certificates expire prior to March 1st 1900, to attend this examination. All applicants will please be present promptly at 8 o'clock on the morning of the first day, as no questions can be furnished after the examination in any subject begins.

Frank Jeffers,
County Superintendent.

Rev. Dr. Forbes will preach in the M. E. church on Saturday Feb. 3rd at 8 p. m., also on Sunday Feb. 4th at 11 a. m. After the morning service the sacrament of the Lord's supper will be administered. All are welcome.

An elegant line of Rockers just received at Holmes Furniture Co. Come early while the selection is good.

Dentist.

—Dr. J. H. Thomas, the Crookston dentist will be at Hotel Markham, St. Hilaire, Jan. 29th and 30th prepared to do all kinds of up to date dental work in all branches. All work warranted. Remember the dates 29th and 30th.

The Spectator would like to have a correspondent from the towns of Black River, Sanders, Bray, Rocksbury, River Falls and Wyandotte. Stationery and stamps furnished at this office. Don't be backward in coming forward.

We Handle Everything.

Start the Day Right

And everything will go smoothly. The proper way to start the day is by coming around to our store and ordering a supply of groceries for the day, such things as you may need. It will take you but a few minutes, and we feel sure you will not regret it.

Our Groceries

Are always fresh, and then the prices are as near right as we know how to make them. If you have not been in the habit of trading with us, drop in and see us anyway; you might get into the habit.

Hardware

We carry everything in the hardware line from cooking stoves down to tacks—all you have to do is to ask for what you want. If you want anything in the tin or copper line done drop into our tin shop and your wants will be attended to.

Yours very truly,
RAPP & POST
St. Hilaire, Minnesota.

M. A. HALL
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS,
GROCERIES,
NOTIONS,
GENTS FURNISHING GOODS,
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
CONFECTIONERY

GO TO THE New Hardware Store for anything you need in the line of Hardware, Paints, Oils, Stoves, Harness
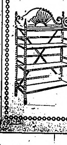
AND PLOWS.
Also agent for Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines. Call and get prices.
A. H. WEAGANT.

LEONARD HOLMES,
—DEALER IN—
Agricultural Implements..
WHEAT, FLAX OATS AND BARLEY.
Flour and Feed always on Hand.

Lumber! Lumber!
OF ALL KINDS.
We have a large and well assorted stock of Dry Lumber and are prepared to fill all orders on short notice. We also carry a complete assortment
—OF—
Sash, Doors, Paper
AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL
Which we buy in large quantities and are thereby enabled to sell at lowest market prices.
ST. HILAIRE LUMBER CO.



IF YOU INTEND TO
Buy Furniture
Come and look our assortment over. We carry everything in the Furniture line including picture frames and musical instruments. Prices reasonable.
Holmes Furniture Co.

The Arnewood Mystery

BY MAURICE H. HERVEY.

Author of "Dead Man's Court," "Somerville's Crime," "Dartmoor," "Maravia's Money," etc., etc.

CHAPTER IX. (Continued.)

I still possess the original handbill given to me that evening, and it runs as follows:

£5,000. FIVE THOUSAND £5,000
POUNDS, REWARD.

Whereas, upon the morning of November 20th, the dead body of Luke Arnewood, Gentleman, was found in a lodging house, Greek Street, Soho; and whereas, upon the medical evidence adduced at the inquest, a verdict was returned of Wilful Murder against one, Thomas Webb, and another person or persons unknown. The above reward will be paid by the undersigned, his solicitors or agents, for such information as may lead to the conviction of the said Thomas Webb, or any other person or persons concerned in the said murder.

RICHARD ARNEWOOD.
(Captain 91st Fusileers, Aldershot.)
Junior Naval and Military Club, Piccadilly, W.
Agents: Hawkins & Co., 160 Exeter Street, Strand, W. C.
Solicitors: O'Brien & Grudgery, Harcourt Street, Dublin.

It certainly looked a striking notice in print. And since Captain Arnewood was so eager for publicity, I struck off six copies for immediate insertion in as many of the leading dailies. Apparently, he had overlooked them.

CHAPTER X.

My Client Puzzles Me.

Punctual as I was to my appointment next morning, I was not more so than Captain Arnewood, whom I found eagerly awaiting my arrival. He was scanning the Morning Post as I entered, but he had not noticed the reward notice in the agony column, and was, apparently, greatly pleased when I showed it to him.

"An excellent idea of yours, Mr. Weston," he remarked, "and one which strange to say—never occurred to me. However, what with the newspapers and the bill posters, matters should become lively for the man who strangled Luke Arnewood, eh?"

"Let us hope so," I answered. "The readers of the great dailies must number several millions, and they are of all classes. Within a few days the news of the reward will have spread throughout the United Kingdom, and your posters will serve to keep public interest alive in the matter. But, candidly, I am not over-sanguine of any good results."

"Why so?" he demanded, pausing—in the act of decapitating an egg—for my reply.

"Simply because no actual accomplices in the crime could claim the reward without putting a rope around his own neck as well as around that of the actual murderer; and I believe that the man who planned your cousin's death is too clever a villain to allow any accidental discoverer of his secret to live. This, I may add, is also Inspector Traill's opinion. Indeed, he goes the length of asserting that the missing lodger, Webb, was made way with in obedience to the old murder adage that 'dead men tell no tales.'"

"For goodness sake, don't quote that addle-headed inspector's theories!" he exclaimed, irritably. "I have placed the affair in your hands, not in his!"

"Very well, Captain Arnewood," I rejoined, feeling strongly tempted to smile at his persistent antipathy to the police. "My own individual opinion is that, for the reasons I have stated, too much reliance must not be placed upon the reward, however well advertised. It may, however, bring us such information as will fully justify your liberality and foresight."

"Time will tell," was his comment upon the not over-hopeful forecast. "Meanwhile, I want to get those posters off my mind. How am I to proceed?"

"Simply write me an order upon your printers for their delivery to Hawkins & Co. Our people will do the rest through the big agencies."

"Come! That's what I call business!" he exclaimed, hastily swallowing his coffee as he proceeded to write the required order.

I then urged him, as gently as I could, to write to the Home Secretary, and, if possible, see one of the Upper Secretaries forthwith at the Home Office.

"We stand to lose rather than gain," I pointed out, "by appearing to act independently of, or at cross purposes with, the police, however widely our methods of inquiry may differ from theirs."

"I suppose you know best in a matter of this sort," he answered, somewhat reluctantly, "and I'll follow your advice. What is the use of employing an expert and ignoring his instructions? It's some comfort to know that the advertisements are out and the posters well under way. Oh! by-the-bye, my solicitors want me over in Ireland. There's no reason why I should not run across to-night, is there?"

"None that I am aware of," I replied.

"What I mean is that my presence in London is not essential, so far as you are concerned?"

"Certainly not. In fact, there are one or two points in connection with your late cousin's antecedents which you might elucidate better on the spot than I could by mere correspondence with Messrs. Grudgery & O'Brien. you make a note of them?"

"With pleasure," he assented, seizing a sheet of note paper with almost childish eagerness. "Fire away!"

"Ask them whether your cousin, in any of his later letters to them, gave any definite information as to his position financially. What I want to get at is whether or not he would be likely to arrive in London with any considerable sum in his possession."

"I understand," remarked the captain. "Anything else?"

"Yes, one more thing," I answered, speaking very deliberately and fixing my eyes full on his face. "To how many persons and to whom did he communicate the fact that the missing heir was coming home by the Wairoa?"

For some moments Captain Arnewood stared at me blankly, pencil in hand. The question had clearly surprised, if not startled him; but, although I am a good physiognomist, and had the advantage of taking him unawares, I could detect no positive indication of any guilty fear upon his pale, thin countenance. What I read there was rather an expression of suddenly-aroused anxiety. I was fairly puzzled; but I waited for him to speak without appearing to notice his hesitation.

"That seems to me a very clever question," he said, at length, with a poor attempt at a smile, "if it can be answered with any sort of accuracy. But I'm afraid it can't. The Arnewood succession has been ordinary club gossip in Dublin for months past, and everyone knew that old Basil's grandson was returning to claim his inheritance."

"Very likely," I rejoined, quietly; "but that is not the point. Did everyone know he was returning by the Wairoa?"

Again the same anxious, worried look, and the same hesitation in replying. My reference to the Wairoa evidently struck some chord in Captain Arnewood's memory which jarred his shaky nerves sorely. He pressed his hand to his left side, as though in sudden pain, and walking, with obvious effort, to a sideboard, helped himself to some brandy.

"It's nothing," he said, faintly declining my proffered arm. I shall be all right in a minute or two. I suffer from weak heart-action."

His prediction proved true. The attack of faintness passed off almost as quickly as it had come on. I am not much of a doctor, but I could see that the incident was no mere device to avoid an awkward topic, and that his explanation was the true one. Yet, although a person suffering from heart disease is liable to be stricken down at any moment, I could scarcely suppose that there had been no casual connection between the recent attack and my reiterated mention of the Wairoa. There was a skeleton in the closet somewhere. But what that particular skeleton was I had yet to discover.

Now, it was obviously my cue to keep my suspicions to myself. I accordingly dropped the Wairoa entirely, and confined my remarks to the subject of heart troubles. All invalids love to talk of their ailments. Captain Arnewood was no exception to the rule, and I soon had him entirely at his ease again. I wanted to understand my man better.

"I've always known that my heart is all wrong," he explained, "but it is only within the past month or so that it has caused me any serious trouble. I had occasion to cross over to Ireland on business for about a fortnight, and I was ill during almost the whole of my stay there. Since my return to London I have been ever so much better; in fact, the twinge I had just now was the first I have experienced for more than a week."

"And yet you propose starting for Dublin to-night?"

"I cannot help myself," he rejoined. "I am bound to put in an appearance as the new owner of the family estates. But I shall cut my visit as short as possible, I can assure you. I have come to regard Ireland (although I am an Irishman myself) as a veritable graveyard. And yet, up to the time of my last visit, I liked the country, and the climate suited me well enough."

"That's rather strange," I remarked. "Did you take medical advice?"

"Yes; but the doctors, as usual, disagreed. The nearest approach to an intelligent explanation I could get was, that the damp air favored certain rheumatic tendencies, which, in turn, reacted upon the heart. Anyhow, and whatever the reason, Ireland no longer agrees with me, and I shall not stay there a day longer than I can help. I literally dread going there at all."

For the first time I began to entertain some slight misgivings as to my excitable client's sanity. The difference in climate between Dublin and London, within a week of Christmas, could scarcely be so greatly to the disadvantage of the Irish capital as he seemed to imagine. Indeed, the very reverse seemed far more likely, at this particular season. And yet, his dread of Ireland was very real. Why? Was it merely one of his fads? Or was the cupboard that contained the skeleton situated in the Emerald Isle?

While I was endeavoring to think out answers to these questions the captain chatted away freely, and I allowed him to talk himself to a standstill. I then assisted him to draw up a short memorial for the Home Secretary, and left him contentedly writing out a fair copy of the document. He exacted a promise that I would keep him informed, by means of a daily report, of the progress of affairs; and he undertook to obtain replies from the solicitors to the two questions I had proposed. Finally, he wrote a check in favor of Hawkins & Co. for £200 on account, although I had not even hinted at any such provision.

"I like to do things my own way," he remarked. "You'll have to pay for the printing and advertising, and your inquiries must not be cramped for lack of funds. And now good-bye for the present, and good luck."

I cordially reciprocated these good wishes, and so for the time being (a very brief time it turned out) we parted.

"Very good business, indeed," was Mr. Hawkins' verdict when I handed him the check. "It is a pleasure to work for a client so generous and considerate as Captain Arnewood. We must; we really must, get at the bottom of this mystery, Mr. Weston—for his sake as well as our own. And, by the way, you must not cramp your personal expenses."

As a matter of fact, I never did. Still, it was pleasant to be allowed even a freer hand than usual.

CHAPTER XI.

The Steward Finds a Clue.

To judge from the appalling number of letters which reached the office—to say nothing of a steady stream of callers—the £5,000 reward had sunk deep into the minds of many persons possessed of more leisure and imagination than money. I opened these letters at first hopefully, and finally despairingly. The so-called "information" offered for sale was usually of the vaguest and most worthless description.

A large number of correspondents promised (under guarantee of strictest secrecy on my part, and in consideration of a round sum in advance) to reveal the name and whereabouts of a man they "suspected" of complicity in the crime. Many others simply propounded theories, which I was invited to adopt upon the pay-by-results system. Several offered their services as detectives, on reasonable terms, etc.

Out of several hundreds of letters, but two proved worth the trouble of perusal. Mr. Gray (the steward, it will be remembered, of the Wairoa) wrote briefly, but to the point. He hoped shortly to find a reliable clue to Mr. Arnewood's movements for the first hour or so, at all events, after leaving the ship.

"I had intended this tip for the police," he explained, candidly; "but, of course, I'll follow the big money. I've a wife and family to think of. If all goes well you'll hear from me again within twenty-four hours." Remembering the man, this sounded promisingly.

The other letter was from a fellow-passenger, who, after expressing his regret and horror, informed me that he had been asked by deceased, just before the vessel entered the dock, if he could recommend a quiet bachelor's hotel of good class; and that, in reply, he had suggested the "Beresford," Convent Garden. He remarked that Arnewood made a memorandum of the address, and certainly left him under the impression that he would follow his advice. He trusted that this clue might be of some use, and signed himself "H. C. Burton," giving his address as the Union Club, Birmingham. Clearly there were possibilities in this communication, also.

The callers, if not quite so numerous as the letter-writers, were just as irritatingly remarkable for vagueness of statement. They were all brimful of advice, opinions and theories, but not one of them knew aught of the dead man or of his movements. The only possible helpful outcome of some scores of vexatious interviews was my engagement, at thirty shillings a week, of a newsvendor who had known Tom Webb well, and who, rightly or wrongly, believed he had recently caught a glimpse of him in some slum in Clerkenwell.

"Then, why on earth didn't you follow him up?" I asked, incredulously.

"What for?" he retorted, drily. "To give the bloomin' 'tecs a lift? Not much. Tom must know he's wanted, thinks I, and, if he's drav to hide hisself, 'tain't my business to split on 'im an' do myself no good."

"Was the police reward out, then?" I inquired.

"No," was the reply; "it warn't."

I guessed as much. The man really believed he had seen Webb (with whom he must have been on intimate terms to speak of him as Tom), but was too loyal to betray him to the police—gratis. Our big reward made all the difference.

"Well," I said, "I may as well tell you at once that I am sure you are mistaken, and that the man you saw was not Webb at all. But I will give you a fair chance of verifying your opinion. I'll give you thirty shillings a week, with one shilling a day extra for expenses, so as to enable you to give the whole of your time to hunting up Webb. How does that suit you?"

"First-class," he answered, briskly. "No harm, I suppose, in carrying a few papers about with me? The police might have a nark on me, if they saw me leafin' around empty-handed."

"All right," I responded. "Ply your present calling enough to keep out of trouble; but, for your own sake, don't neglect the job I've intrusted to you. Report yourself here every morning at 10 o'clock, and the cashier will give you six shillings. Here's half a sovereign to start you. And now, off with you!"

"Thankee, sir; I'll turn up reg'lar, never fear!"

I had very little doubt that he would attend, with great punctuality, for his daily pay, and could only hope that he would do his utmost to earn it. If only poor Tom Webb should be discovered, after all! What possible explanation (short of complicity in the crime) would he have to account for his disappearance? With my utmost effort of will-power I thrust this maddening and wholly unanswerable question from my mind, and resolved to pay Mr. Gray a surprise visit.

I made myself comfortable during the cold drive this time, in a fur-lined overcoat which, in addition to keeping me warm, would be calculated, I thought, to impress the steward with a proper sense of my dignity and importance. I drove straight to the docks, not even calling at the White Bear on the way, and was again fortunate in finding Mr. Gay on board the Wairoa. He received me with all his former civility, and, being off duty, gladly accepted an invitation to accompany me ashore. At my request, he piloted me to a quiet little hotel, where, in a private room, we could converse at our ease over cigars and refreshments.

"Have you anything fresh to add to this?" I inquired, producing his letter. "I have come upon the off-chance that you might have."

"Yes—and no," was his somewhat enigmatical reply. "Let me explain. All my inquiries on board proved futile, until I chanced to hear from one of the cook's boys that a stranger (who had somehow boarded the ship before she was made fast) gave him a shilling and a letter which he was to deliver at once to a saloon passenger named Arnewood. The boy saw nothing more of the stranger, but pocketed the shilling and proceeded to execute his commission.

"Not knowing Mr. Arnewood by name, he naturally inquired from the first steward he met, who happened to be the bathman, Spratt. Spratt took the letter from the boy (despite the latter's protests), saying he would deliver it himself. As this probably meant the loss of a tip, the boy naturally resented the bathman's action, and kept an eye upon his movements, with a view of subsequently claiming a share in any resulting gratuity. Spratt examined the address and envelope very carefully, turning it over several times, and finally opened it. He read the contents eagerly, replacing the letter in a fresh envelope from the writing table in the saloon, re-addressed it, and then coolly proceeded to deliver it to a passenger (presumably Mr. Arnewood) in one of the state rooms."

"The dickens he did!" I exclaimed. "This is decidedly interesting. I have met this Mr. Spratt, and have his solemn assurance that he neither saw or heard anything of Arnewood after the ship entered the channel. Excuse me for anticipating you. But does a somewhat grimy person named Blogg come into your narrative, also?"

"Well, as a matter of fact, he does," assented the steward, in some surprise, "as you will presently see. The boy, it seems, appealed to Spratt for a reward, and received a sound cuffing for his pains; whereupon he vowed vengeance against his tyrant, but resolved to wait a more favorable opportunity of denouncing him than could be found in the hurry and bustle of disembarkation. Still, brooding over his wrongs and watching his enemy's movements, he presently saw him in earnest conversation with the fifth engineer, the very man you just mentioned, Blogg. At any other time he would have paid no attention to this, as the two men were known to be chums. But the bathman's tampering with the letter made him suspicious, and he watched.

"By this time the gangways were in position, and the passengers were scrambling ashore in their usual headlong fashion. Among them was a tall man, carrying a small brass-bound valise, in whose movements Spratt and the engineer seemed strangely interested. Immediately he landed, he was accosted by the same stranger who had given the boy the letter, and led away, somewhat hurriedly, to a brougham, in which he at once drove away, leaving the stranger, apparently, to pass his luggage through the custom house.

"When the brougham went Blogg sprang hastily to the gangway, as though about to start in pursuit, but (perhaps realizing the unlikelihood of overtaking it) went quietly ashore and kept a watchful eye upon the stranger, little dreaming that he was being shadowed himself just as carefully by the boy, who was now resolved to see the thing through, even if he had to take French leave of the ship for a few hours to do so.

"Well, the stranger succeeded in clearing the luggage (which merely consisted of two portmanteaus and a box) smartly enough, and had them conveyed to a spring-cart, which he had in waiting by his own servant. He then took his seat beside the latter and drove Cityward, in the track of the brougham, followed by Blogg at a smart run. Whereupon the boy started in pursuit of Blogg."

"Quite dramatic," I remarked. "Is it not rather strange, though, that these incidents should have attracted no attention?"

"Not very, if you take into account the hurry and confusion of disembarking," replied Mr. Gray. "Everyone is too busy to pay much heed to any business but his own. You must observe, also, that the prompt dispatch of Mr. Arnewood in a private brougham and the handling of his luggage solely by a stranger and his servant were clearly devices to obviate the necessity of hiring a cab or employing porters. The whole affair was evidently planned to burke subsequent inquiries as to Mr. Arnewood's movements, and (as it would seem) with his own sanction."

"How far did Blogg and the boy follow the dog-cart?" I inquired.

"It soon passed out of sight, but Blogg kept on doggedly in pursuit for about two miles, pausing now and then, apparently, to make inquiries. At last, thoroughly blown and exhausted, he jumped into a passing hansom. The boy, having but a shilling, and dressed as he was, was unable to follow suit, and had to abandon the chase."

"Did he take the number of the cab?"

"He says he did, but forgot it again before he could borrow a pencil to jot it down. He was anxious, moreover, to get back to the Wairoa before his absence should be discovered, and, favored by the confusion, managed to sneak on board unquestioned."

"And Blogg?"

"He did not return to the ship for nearly three days. This prolonged absence without leave very nearly led to his dismissal; but he got around the skipper, with some fairy-tale about a sick mother at Deptford, and escaped with a severe reprimand."

"This, then, is the clue you refer to in your letter, I suppose?"

"Yes; but I hoped to improve it by later news about Blogg. Ever since the boy told me his story I have bound him over to secrecy and have intrusted him with a special mission to watch both the bathman and the engineer. I ascertained yesterday that Blogg would be going to town to-day. He has done so, and so has the boy. I expect to learn something when the latter returns."

"You have acted with great judgment," I said, cordially, "and you have certainly found a clue which should prove of the utmost value. I must see this boy of yours."

"He may be on board now," rejoined Mr. Gray. "He is sure to return some time to-night. Will you await him on board? At the worst, I can offer you a wide choice of state-rooms to sleep in."

I at once accepted the offer, and we presently adjourned to the Wairoa.

(To be Continued.)

The First Telescopic Comet.

"On the evening of Oct. 1, 1847, the Mitchells were entertaining a party of guests," writes Amelia H. Botsford, author of "The Mother of the Stars" in the January Ladies' Home Journal. "But Maria Mitchell was not to be deterred by 'company' from following her custom of sweeping the heavens with the telescope every clear night. She slipped away and ran up to the observatory. Soon afterward she returned and told her father that she thought she had seen a comet. He hurried up to the observatory to look himself, and declared that it was indeed a comet. This discovery entitled Miss Mitchell to the gold medal that had been offered some years before by the king of Denmark to the first discoverer of a telescopic comet, and it was struck off and forwarded to her."

What Tim Told Them.

Some weeks ago a bridal couple came in from Sacramento and put up at the Palace. The bridegroom was very sensitive, and so he told his valet not to tell any of the servants at the hotel that he was newly-married. Notwithstanding all precautions, the young couple seemed to be the center of attraction. In the dining room they were ogled by the ladies and in the corridors by the men. Finally they could stand it no longer. Calling his valet, the bridegroom said, severely:

"Tim, I thought I told you not to tell anybody that we were newly-married."

"Shure, sorr," was the reply, "an' I tould thim all yez wuzzent married."—San Francisco Wave.

No Help For It.

He—The persident of a California woman's club says that not one woman in a thousand marries the man she wants.

She—Well, that is only natural under existing social conditions.

He—I suppose you mean that it would be different if the women could propose?

She—No; not more than one man in a thousand is rich.—Chicago Times-Herald.

Young and Pretty.

"Let's stand under the mistletoe," said Miss Elder to Miss Younger. "It will be such jolly fun."

"Thanks, but I don't need to," replied Miss Younger; whereupon Miss Elder was grievously shocked.

A Courageous Request.

"That photographer is a brave, heroic man, Clara."

"What do you mean, David?"

"Why, he told you to look pleasant—and I never dare to."

SCIENTIFIC TOPICS

CURRENT NOTES OF DISCOVERY AND INVENTION.

Private Mail Boxes—New Fire-Escape Truck—A Novel Voting Machine—Will Make the Blind See and the Deaf Hear.

Will Make the Blind See.

The Russian electrician, Paul Stiens, is now in London, exhibiting an invention by which he claims he can restore sight to the blind, and even to those who were born blind. Stien's idea is to supply a substitute for the lens of the eye by the aid of electricity. "Immediately the apparatus is brought into contact with the body of the individual operated upon," said he, "as in the camera, it focuses the rays of light from the object to the brain, and sight is given. Objects are clearly seen. They are not inverted, but appear in their proper form. My apparatus simply constitutes a substitute for the lens of the eye." Experiments seem to bear out Stien's statements. He claims also that his invention will enable the deaf to hear perfectly. You know," he said, "that even though the drum or tympanic membrane is at fault, if the small bones called the incus malleus and stapes are present, a man is enabled to hear by means of a plug which is put in his right ear. In fact, such a plug is called a false drum. Now, with the aid of my apparatus, when the membrane and bones are at fault, hearing is given by application of my apparatus to the surface of the body. The body is a good conductor of the electric current, and when the apparatus is in use a man wishing to talk to the deaf person speaks into the apparatus. The voice vibrations are carried through it to the person spoken to, thence by his nerves to the resonating chambers and along the eustachian tubes to the auditory nerves, which convey the sound to the center of hearing in the brain." Asked what happened when the auditory nerve was at fault, Mr. Stiens said another nerve would gradually be educated to take its place.

Perpetual Night in the Ocean.

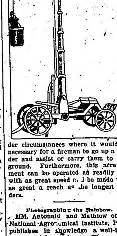
Sir John Murray recently summed up the latest discoveries concerning the ocean. The deep sea, he says, is a region of darkness, as well as of low temperature, because the rays of the sun are wholly absorbed by the superficial layers of water. Plant life is absent, but animal life is abundant in those night-haunted depths. The majority of the deep-sea animals live by eating mud and by catching minute particles of organic matter which descend from above. Many of the mud-eating animals are of gigantic size compared with the allies in shallower waters, but they are the prey of rapacious enemies armed with peculiar prehensile organs. Some deep-sea fishes are blind, while others have very large eyes. Phosphorescent light plays an important role in the great deeps. Sometimes the animals are furnished with phosphorescent organs which recall the use of bull's-eye lanterns.

The West Indies Hurricane.

The United States hydrographic office has tracked out the late destructive West Indian hurricane. It was first encountered on August 3 at a point near latitude 12 degrees north, further east than any tropical storm hitherto reported to the hydrographic office. The center of the storm reached Porto Rico on the 8th, Hayti on the 9th, Bahamas on the 12th, and Jupiter, Fla., on the 13th. It then continued parallel to the United States coast, where hurricanes were reported by vessels until the 19th. When last reported, on the 21st, it was near latitude 40 degrees north and longitude 60 degrees west, much weakened in character. The life of this hurricane is stated to have been longer than any hitherto reported to the hydrographic office.

New Fire-Escape Truck.

No great improvement in fire ladders has been made for some time, the hook and ladder truck having retained its present character for many years. In a new and apparently practicable patented improvement in fire-escape trucks the familiar ladder is replaced by a telescoping extensible steel shaft which is pneumatically extended, resembling when extended an elongated pole with many sections. At the top of this steel column is a bracket arm from which swings a basket supported on ropes, in which the fire-bound victims make their descent to the ground. Provision is also made for tilting the steel shaft so as to throw the basket directly in front of the windows where it is required. With a fireproof basket and a rope it is possible for women and children to make their escape from the upper stories of blazing buildings under circumstances where it would be necessary for a fireman to go up a ladder and assist or carry them to the ground. Furthermore, this arrangement can be operated as readily and with as great speed and be made with as great a reach as the longest ladders.

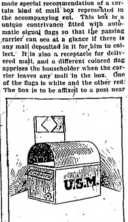


Photographing the Rainbow.

MM. Antonald and Mathiew of the National Agronomical Institute, Paris, publishes in Knowledge a well-illustrated article on clouds. The application of photography to the study of meteorology enabled them to study the form and height of clouds, waterspouts, rainbows, halos, coronae, etc., and to record the "fugitive sinuosities" of lightning. A photograph of a rainbow, taken June 2, shows that the inner space of the bow is much brighter than the outer, an appearance which is not always noticeable to the naked eye. This difference is due to the existence of secondary rainbows, or "supernumerary bows," unexplained by Descartes and Newton, but to which Young applied his discovery of the law of interference of light.

Private Mail Boxes.

The postoffice department has ordered that in all cities and towns having free delivery the postal system shall be extended to include house-to-house collections, and the system is also extended to all rural free delivery routes. One of the requirements, says the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, which the citizen must observe is to supply his own mail box. Postmasters are, instructed to give information about the boxes and encourage householders to put them up. The government has made special recommendation of a certain kind of mail box represented in the accompanying cut. This box is a unique contrivance fitted with automatic signal flags so that the passing carrier can see at a glance if there is any mail deposited in it for him to collect. It is also a receptacle for delivered mail, and a different colored flag apprises the householder when the carrier leaves any mail in the box. One of the flags is white and the other red. The box is to be affixed to a post near the street convenient for the carrier. It is fitted with perfect locks, and when the carrier drops mail into the box the white flag immediately comes up, which indicates that there is mail for the people in the house. Dropping a letter to be mailed into the box raises the red flag, which is the signal to the passing carrier. It is large enough for the largest-sized letter, and has separate spaces for papers and packages. It is the intention of the postoffice department to introduce the house-to-house collection system as soon as possible.



A Novel Voting Machine.

A novel voting machine was tested the other day at the government printing office in Rome. It is the work of Dr. G. Trespioli, a well-known scientist, and his brother Faustus. A voter goes to the polling booth and the official in charge cancels his name on the register and puts in its place a stamp bearing the number of the ward, and a progressive number, which he obtains by consulting and setting the machine in operation. Until this number is obtained the voter can do nothing, for the machine would not act. When he learns his number all he has to do is to step on the pedal of the machine and press on the ticket bearing the name of the candidate he prefers. Then, after he has removed his foot from the pedal, he sees under a plate of glass his ticket go directly into the ballot box, and thus his duty is done. The machine is in the form of a box, and it contains scrolls of cardboard on which are printed the names of the various candidates. After each voter has made his selection a ticket is cut from one of the scrolls, and passes into the ballot box, which is constantly revolving. When the day's work is over the ballot box is opened and the votes are counted in the usual manner.

Graveyard Studies.

In his opening address on "Geological Time" to the geology section of the British association, Sir Archibald Geikie urged upon town geologists and those in the country who have no opportunities of venturing far afield, that they may do good service by carefully scrutinizing ancient buildings and monuments. In the churchyards they will find much to occupy and interest them; not, however, like Old Mortality, in repairing the tombstones, but in tracing the ravages of the weather upon them and in obtaining definite measures of the rate of their decay. Sir Archibald himself, twenty years ago, studied in the graveyards and cemeteries of Edinburgh the rate at which marble gives way in such a moist climate as that of Scotland.

Recent Inventions.

An improved snow-melting machine has an air compressor operated by the motion of the machine, to drive air into contact with a gas flame and combine the two for increasing the heat in the melting chamber, the gas being formed from gasoline.

Time of each collection from a mail box is indicated in rotation by a new apparatus having an endless chain of card holders, rotated by the action of opening the box at each collection, thus throwing a new card in front of the indicator slot.

To enable a person to float in the water in an upright position a Massachusetts man has designed an apparatus composed of a belt to be inflated and placed around the waist, with a weighted rod attached to each leg to keep the floater verticle.

An electric band has been patented for use in giving treatment to patients, comprising two semicircular pieces of metal, one being zinc and the other copper, hinged together at the back, with an adjustable fastening in front which grips the band around the waist.

An Echo from the Shore.

They sat together on the shore, she as romantic as the moonlit scenery about them, he practical in every fiber. "How do you account for that peculiar sound?" she inquired. "There, it is repeated. Sea mews, they call them."

"Catfish, I suppose."—Detroit Free Press.

Giving Way to Her Elders.

Miss Oldie—Kissing under the mistletoe is a very ancient custom.

Carrie Dash—Of course, dear, I couldn't contradict you as to that.—Philadelphia North American.

England's Armored Trains.

The magnificent armored trains used by England in her war with the Boers will protect her troops in about the same way that Hostetter's Stomach Bitters drives dyspepsia from the human stomach, and then mounts guard that it does not return. The Bitters has won in every case of indigestion, constipation, liver and kidney trouble for fifty years.

Cranial Exposure.

"I wish I knew," said Mr. Tucker, "how I caught this cold."

"Didn't you get a bad cold when you changed your underclothes last spring, paw?" asked Tommy.

"Yes, I believe I did."

"This cold's in your head, ain't it paw?"

"Yes."

"I guess you got it by changing your mind."—Chicago Tribune.

"Proof of the Pudding Is in the Eating."

It is not what we say, but what Hood's Sarsaparilla does, that tells the story. Thousands of people give the proof by telling of remarkable cures by Hood's Sarsaparilla of Scrofula, Salt Rheum, Dyspepsia, Catarrh, Rheumatism, and all other blood diseases and debility.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Never Disappoints

Rural Texas Justice.

In one of the remote counties of the Panhandle of Texas two lawyers were trying a case before a justice of the peace. It was sixty miles as the crow flies to the nearest law book, and the attorneys differed, of course, as to the law upon the main issue in the case. They were trying the case without the intervention of a jury, and his honor, who conducted a gambling house in connection with his hotel, saloon and livery stable, was in doubt as to what his decision ought to be. Finally Miller, the plaintiff's counsel, offered to bet Hoover, the defendant's attorney, $10 that he was right. Hoover did not happen to have that much of the circulating medium concealed about his person, and was naturally at a loss how to parry this forcible argument. The court waited a few moments for Hoover, and finally said:

"Well, Mr. Hoover, the court has waited long enough. Miller's proposition seems to be a fair one, and since you don't put up I will decide this case in favor of the plaintiff."—Green Bag.

The Old Gives Place to the New.

"What did the death of the Marquis of Winchester suggest to you?"

"Nothing."

"Well, it suggested to me that the Winchester had been downed by the Mauser."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

His Status.

"Dorothy," said the mistress of the establishment, happening in just as the gardener went out, "who is that man?"

"Only a hoe beau, ma'am," replied the kitchen maid, blushing rosily.—Chicago Tribune.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY.

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. 25c. E. W. Grove's signature on each box.

The Savage Bachelor.

"The Mohammedan religion," said the Sweet Young Thing, with a purpose of starting something, "says every man shall have four wives."

"Well," retorted the Savage Bachelor, "what of it? Did you ever know of a religion from which the idea of penance was absent?"—Indianapolis Journal.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Class.

Envious Foreigner—You Americans are making a great ado over the loss of the Charleston. She was only a second-class cruiser, anyhow.

Patriotic American—She makes a first-class wreck all the same.—Chicago Tribune.

I know that my life was saved by Piso's Cure for Consumption.—John A. Miller, Au Sable, Michigan, April 21, 1895.

Cautious.

The Bride's Father (on the wedding day)—Here is my daughter's dowry, 20,000 marks. And now I hope you'll promise me that you'll be a faithful and loving husband to her.

The Bridegroom—Let me count it first!—Lustige Blaetter.

Reliable Help Wanted

(Either sex.) The Humanitarian Home and Sanitarium for Invalids and Health Seekers, incorporated. Send 10c in stamps for full information. Address J. H. Teitlebaum, Treasurer, East Las Vegas, N. M.

Bearing Up.

"Mistletoe is awfully scarce this year," she remarked. "Mamma tried everywhere to get a sprig."

"Well," he replied, consolingly, as his arm stole around her, "we'll try to struggle along without it this year."—Philadelphia North American.

A Bright Sunday School Teacher.

"Can you tell me," asked a Sunday school teacher of a little boy, "why the Israelites made a golden calf?"

"Because they didn't have gold enough to make a cow," was the reply.—Ohio State Journal.

Attractive Booklet Sent Free.

Choice Recipes for making Cocoa and Chocolate. Address Walter Baker & Co. Ltd., Dorchester, Mass.

That Was All.

Mr. Northside—Who was that friend you had with you this afternoon?

Mr. Shadyside—That wasn't a friend. That was my father-in-law.—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

Red the Advertisements.

You will enjoy this publication much better if you will get into the habit of reading the advertisements; they will afford a most amusing study, and will put you in the way of getting some excellent bargains. our advertisers are reliable; they send what they advertise.

A Man of Breeding.

She—You are the most exasperating man on earth. Here I scold you for half an hour and you won't answer. Why don't you talk.

He—I never use strong language in the presence of a lady.—Indianapolis Press.

The man who is always borrowing trouble has no trouble in finding plenty of lenders.

Providence has given us hope and sleep as a compensation for the many cares of life.—Voltaire.

GREAT MAN'S TENDER HEART.

An Incident of Lord Lawrence's Sea Voyage to India.

Lord Lawrence, viceroy of India, was a blunt man of action, impatient of contradiction and thoroughly self-reliant. Yet, like many of the truly great, he had a heart as tender as a woman's. The night on which he started from London to govern India he gathered all his family in the drawing room and made each child repeat a favorite hymn to him. His youngest son, ten years old, nestled in his father's arms. Suddenly the strong man burst into tears.

"I shall never," he cried, "see Bertle a child again."

It was not of the hardships before him, or of his own death he thought, but of the fact that Bertle would not be a child to him on his return.

On board the steamer with the governor general of India was a lady with her infant child. She neglected the baby, which revenged itself by crying day and night. The passengers complained in language more forcible than polite.

"Steward, throw that baby overboard!" was petulantly shouted from sleepless berths.

At last Lord Lawrence, seeing that the child was left motherless by its own mother, took it, showing it his watch and anything that would amuse it. The child took to the great strong man and was always quiet when he held it.

"Why do you, my lord," asked one of the relieved passengers, surprised to see the governor general of India playing nurse to a crying baby, "why do you take such notice of that child?"

"Because, to tell you the truth," answered Lord Lawrence, with a merry twinkle in his eye, "that child is the only being in the ship who I can feel quite sure does not want to get anything out of me."—Pastimes.

Old Story In New Dressing.

Notwithstanding most of the national legislators are lawyers, a joke at the expense of the profession never fails to elicit general laughter in the house. For instance, recently, Mr. Vandiver, in the course of his speech in opposition to the financial bill, illustrating a certain point, said: "That reminds me of a story told on an Irishman in Missouri. He went into a graveyard one day, and was looking around casually. Coming to a certain grave, he read the inscription on the tombstone, which was as follows: 'Here lies Jonathan Jones, who was born July 2, 1831, and died April 3, 1892. He was a lawyer and an honest man,' etc. 'Holy Patrick!' exclaimed the Irishman, 'the soil about here must be very expensive, when they have to bury two men in the same grave.'"—Washington Times.

Couldn't Stand It.

"Did you ever get the money that D'Auber owed you?"

"No. He wanted to square accounts by painting my house inside and out."

"Well, that would have evened things up. Why didn't you let him?"

"I was going to, until I saw one of his pictures."—Philadelphia Press.

Love levels all ranks, except in Kentucky. There a man is either a major or a colonel just as long as he pays his liquor bills.

Half a Bottle Cured Me

"About thirty years ago I bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor to stop my hair from falling out. One-half a bottle cured me. A few days ago my hair began to fall out again. I went to the medicine shelf and found the old bottle of Hair Vigor just as good as when I bought it."—J. C. Baxter, Braidwood, Ill., Sept. 27, 1899.

Keeps Thirty Years

Ayer's Hair Vigor is certainly the most economical preparation of its kind on the market. A little of it goes a long way. And then, what you don't need now you can use some other time just as well.

It doesn't take much of it to stop falling of the hair, restore color to gray hair, cure dandruff, and keep the hair soft and glossy. There's a great deal of good and an immense amount of satisfaction in every bottle of it.

$1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

Write the Doctor

If you do not obtain all the benefits you desire from the use of the Vigor, write the Doctor about it. Address, Dr. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

POTATOES $1.20 a Bbl.

Largest Seed POTATO Growers in America. Prices $1.20 a bbl. Enormous stocks of Grass, Clover and Farm Seeds. Send this notice and 10c for catalog and 11 RARE FARM SEED SAMPLES.

CLOVER

JOHN A. SALZER SEED CO., LA CROSSE, WIS.

DROPSY NEW DISCOVERY; gives quick relief and cures worst cases. Book of testimonials and 10 DAYS' treatment FREE. DR. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box E, Atlanta, Ga.

CARTER'S INK Is THE BEST Ink.

Wt. 75 pounds. Write for prices. O. H. Hanson - - Litchfield, Minn.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

PRISONER OF WAR

"No rent again this month? This is the third time it has happened within the half-year. I'll go there myself and get the money, or I'll know the reason why."

Matthew Deane was in particularly bad humor this raw December morning. Everything had gone wrong. Stocks had fallen when they ought to have risen—his clerk had tipped over the inkstand on his special and peculiar heap of paper—the fire obstinately refused to burn in the grate—in short, nothing went right, and Mr. Deane was consequently and correspondingly cross.

"Jenkins!"

"Yes, sir."

"Go to the Widow Clarkson's, and tell her I shall be there in half an hour and expect confidently—mind, Jenkins—confidently to receive that rent money. Or I shall feel myself obliged to resort to extreme measures. You understand, Jenkins?"

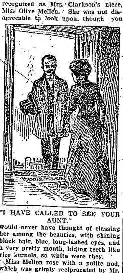
"Certainly, sir."

"Then don't stand there starin' like an idiot," snarled Mr. Deane, in a sudden burst of irritation, and Jenkins disappeared like a shot.

Just half an hour afterward Matthew Deane brushed the brown hair just sprinkled with gray from his square yet no unkindly brow. Putting on his fur-lined overcoat he walked into the chilly winter air fully determined, figuratively, to annihilate the defaulting Widow Clarkson.

It was a dwarfish little red brick house which appeared originally to have aspired to two-storyhood lot, but cramped by circumstances, had settled down into a story and a half, but the windows shone like Brazilian pebbles, and the doorsteps were worn by much scouring. Neither of these circumstances, however, did Mr. Deane remark as he pulled the glittering brass doorknob and strode into Mrs. Clarkson's neat parlor.

There was a small fire—very small, as if every lump of anthracite was hoarded in the stove, and at a table with writing implements before her sat a young lady whom Mr. Deane at once recognized as Mrs. Clarkson's niece, Miss Olive Mellen. She was not disagreeable to look upon, though you would never have thought of classing her among the beauties, with shining black hair, blue, long-lashed eyes, and a very pretty mouth, hiding teeth like rice kernels, so white were they.



"I HAVE CALLED TO SEE YOUR AUNT."

Miss Mellen rose with a polite nod, which was grimly reciprocated by Mr. Deane.

"I have called to see your aunt, Miss Mellen."

"I know it, sir, but as I am aware of her timid temperament, I sent her away. I prefer to deal with you myself."

Mr. Deane started—the cool audacity of the damsel in gray, with scarlet ribbons in her hair, rather astonished him.

"I suppose the money is ready?"

"No, sir, it is not."

"Then, Miss Olive, pardon me, I must speak plainly. I shall send an officer here this afternoon to put a valuation on the furniture, and——"

"You will do nothing of the kind, sir."

Olive's cheek had reddened and her eyes flashed portentously. Mr. Deane turned toward the door, but ere he knew what she was doing, Olive had walked quietly across the room, locked the door, and taken out the key—then she resumed her seat.

"What does this mean?" ejaculated the astonished "prisoner of war."

"It means, sir, that you will now be obliged to consider the question," said Olive.

"Obliged?"

"Yes—you will hardly jump out of the window, and there is no other method of egress unless you choose to go up the chimney. Now, then, Mr. Deane, will you tell me if you—a Christian man in the nineteenth century—intend to sell a poor widow's furniture because she is not able to pay your rent? Listen, sir!"

Mr. Deane opened his mouth to remonstrate, but Olive enforced her words with a very emphatic little stamp of the foot, and he was, as it were, stricken dumb.

"You are what the world calls a rich man, Mr. Deane. You own rows of houses, piles of bank stock, railroad shares, bonds and mortgages—who knows what? My aunt has nothing; I support her by copying. Now, if this case be carried into a court of law, my poor ailing aunt will be a sufferer—you would emerge unscathed and profiting. You are not a bad man, Mr. Deane; you have a great many noble qualities, and I like you for them." She paused an instant and looked intently and gravely at Mr. Deane. The color rose to his cheek—it was not disagreeable to be told by a pretty young girl that she liked him, on any terms; yet she had indulged in pretty plain speaking. "I have heard," she went on, "of your doing kind actions when you were in the humor of it. You can do them, and you shall in this instance. You are cross this morning—you know you are! Hush! no excuse; you are selfish and irritable and overbearing. If I were your mother, and you a little boy, I should certainly put you in a corner until you promised to be good."

Mr. Deane smiled, although he was getting angry. Olive went on with the utmost composure.

"But as it is, I shall only keep you here a prisoner until you have behaved, and given me your word not to annoy my aunt again for rent until she is able to pay you. Then, and not until then, will you receive your money. Do you promise? Yes or no?"

"I certainly shall agree to no such terms," said Mr. Deane, tartly.

"Very well, sir; I can wait."

Miss Mellen deposited the key in the pocket of her gray dress and sat down to her copying. Had she been a man, Mr. Deane would probably have knocked her down; as it was, she wore an invisible armor of power in the very fact that she was a fragile, slight woman, and she knew it.

"Miss Olive," he said, sternly, "let us terminate this mummery. Unlock that door!"

"Mr. Deane, I will not!"

"I shall shout and alarm the neighborhood, then, or call a policeman."

"Very well, Mr. Deane; do so, if you please."

She dipped her pen in the ink and began on a fresh page. Matthew sat down, puzzled and discomfited, and watched the long-lashed eyes and faintly tinged cheek of his keeper. She was very pretty—what a pity she was so obstinate!

"Miss Olive!"

"Sir?"

"The clock has just struck 12."

"I heard it."

"I should like to go out and get some lunch."

"I am sorry that that luxury is out of your power."

"But I'm confounded hungry."

"Are you?"

"And I'm not going to stand this sort of thing any longer."

"No?"

How provokingly nonchalant she was. Mr. Deane eyed the pocket of the gray dress greedily, and walked up and down the room pettishly.

"I have an appointment at 1."

"Indeed! What a pity you will be unable to keep it!"

He took another turn across the room. Olive looked up with a smile.

"Well, are you ready to promise?"

"Hang it, yes! What else can I do?"

"You promise?"

"I do, because I can't help myself."

Olive drew the key from her pocket with softened eyes.

"You have made me very happy, Mr. Deane. I dare say you think me unwomanly and unfeminine, but indeed you do not know to what extremities we are driven by poverty. Good-morning, sir."

Mr. Deane sallied forth with a curious complication of thoughts and emotions struggling through his brain, in which gray dresses, long-lashed blue eyes and scarlet ribbons played a prominent part.

"Did you get the money, sir?" asked the clerk, when he walked into the office.

"Mind your business, sir," was the tart response.

"I pity her husband," thought Mr. Deane, as he turned the papers over on his desk. "How she will henpeck him! By the way, I wonder who her husband will be?"

The next day he called at the Widow Clarkson's to assure Miss Mellen that he had no idea of breaking his promise, and the next but one after that he came to tell the young lady she need entertain no doubt of his integrity. And the next week he dropped in on them with no particular errand to serve as an excuse!

"When shall we be married, Olive? Next month, dearest? Do not let us put it off later."

"I have no wishes but yours, Matthew."

"Really, Miss Olive Mellen, to hear that meek tone one would suppose you had never locked me up here and tyrannized over me as a jailer."

Olive burst into a merry laugh.

"You dear old Matthew; I give you warning beforehand that I mean to have my own way in everything. Do you wish to recede from your bargain? It is not too late yet."

No, Matthew Deane didn't; he had a vague idea that it would be very pleasant to be henpecked by Olive!

Very Definite.

Mrs. Sewell, who is the head of a classical school for girls in Indianapolis, could contribute a readable sequel to English as she is taught, for the pupils in a girls' classical school are not above the amusing blunders which characterize the efforts of their young sisters in the public schools. On one occasion Mrs. Sewell was instructing a class in physics. Force was the subject, and she made plain to the girls the difference between centrifugal and centripetal force. "Centrifugal," said Mrs. Sewell, "is a force whose direction is from the center and centripetal is a force whose direction is toward the center. Do you all understand that?" The class chorused assent. "Now, will some girl give me an illustration?" continued Mrs. Sewell. "The domestic virtues are centripetal," replied a small girl, "because they keep a man in the center of his home, and a centrifugal force is—is—well, a saloon is a centrifugal force."—Philadelphia Post.

Victoria Not So Wealthy.

It has been stated that Queen Victoria has accumulated a fortune of over $100,000,000. The actual amount of the queen's savings is known to a few people. One of these is Henry Labouchere, the radical, who came by his information officially as member of a special committee of the House of Commons about eight years since. Subsequently Mr. Labouchere wrote: "The impression prevails that the queen has effected large savings, but that is not the case. As the sum total of the queen's investments was given to the committee under a pledge of secrecy, I cannot violate this pledge, but I do not think I am breaking faith in saying that the amount is surprisingly small."

Heavy Calls Upon the Czar's Purse.

No sovereign is so rich as the czar, and no sovereign has such heavy calls upon his purse. The grand dukes Michael, Vladimir, Alexis, Serge and Paul Alexandrovitch, as the sons of emperors of Russia, receive from the head of the house an annual sum of 185,000 roubles (£26,200) each, which added to private means, makes them very rich. The wives and widows of Russian grand dukes receive 40,000 roubles each; their sons 150,000 roubles. It was the Czar Alexander III. who decreed that every member of the imperial family must spend a part of the year in Russia, or else lose a third of his or her allowance.

GOOD NOVEL MAKING.

The Four Things Which Are Fundamental—Character-Drawing.

Good novel making, technically viewed, rests four-square upon invention (plot), construction, characterization and description. These may be called the fundamentals of fiction. The form of literature known as the story is, often spoken of carelessly or in shallow wise as if its manner—its style of diction—were the chief thing, even the only thing, says the Forum. "Have you read so and so?" queries one lady of another in the car. "The idea isn't anything, but then, you know, Brown writes so well! His style is so good!" Again, with the great class of uncritical readers, represented in the lower grade by the blue-clothed messenger boy in the car immersed in the latest number of the Fireside Companion, plot outweighs every other consideration. Possibly it does with the majority of all novel-readers.

But, if looking to the permanent successes and great names of fiction, we ask ourselves what qualities constitute the essentials of fiction, we shall be likely to settle on these fundamental four. Furthermore, if forced to pick out the quality ministering most to the successful result, we must, I fancy, reply: Character-creation. This judgment may fall strange on the ear nowadays, because other traits are emphasized—construction or style, for example. Indeed, if we examine the clever work of present day novelists, we shall find that what often gives them reputation is ability in ways aside from this central, this solar, gift of characterization. Compared with it, invention and construction are secondary; description and style, important as they may be in the abstract, are as naught. A novel without salient character-drawing, whatever its merits in other directions, can never take high rank; it is almost certainly a failure foredoomed. The truth of the proposition becomes apparent when we come to apply it and illustrate by it. The firm, steady hold upon the public of certain fictionists, who are more or less roughly handled by critics, is easily explained, if we agree to this central post of importance held by character-lining. The cold, aloof position of the late-century fictionmaker toward the people of his brain and heart may be high art, but it is precious poor humanity. And it is this perhaps more than any other one thing that is likely to keep out of our fiction the red blood of life. "But," cries the novelist, "look at my skill, my ingenuity, my technical excellences in half a dozen particulars of a difficult art." To which the public: "True, it is magnificent, but it is not war."

SHAKESPEARE AND PSALMS.

Cipher Like That Used by Bacon's Adherents Would Prove It.

Though the Bacon cipher may have proved that Shakespeare did not write the plays credited to him for three centuries, another cipher proves just as conclusively that Shakespeare wrote the Psalms. Of course, this is a joke, but there is as much evidence to support the other theory. In Shakespeare's name lies the key to this wonderful cryptogram. As Mr. Donnelly says, the spelling "Shakespeare" was the poet's nom de plume, while "Shakespere" was his name—an evident change from "Shakspear." In each of the two spellings last given are 10 letters—four vowels and six consonants. Combine these two figures and we have the number 46—the key to the mystery. Turning to the 46th Psalm in the Revised Version, it is found that the Psalm is divided into three portions, each one ending with "selah." Remember the number—46. Counting 46 words from the beginning of the psalm one reaches the word "shake," in the first portion. Then, going to the last portion and counting 46 words from the end of the psalm one reaches the word "spear." There is 'Shakespear" as plainly as letters can make it. Now, turn to the middle portion of the psalm and apply the rule of averages. To get this average one goes to the middle verse, which is the sixth, as it has five verses on each side of it. Observe the significant six, the last figure of our key number. Now six in Roman letters is "VI," and so one looks for a word in the verse that has the letters vb and i in it. There is only one—"Voice." What can be plainer than that it is Shakespear's voice speaking to us from the Psalms?—New York Herald.

Too Much for Him.

They are telling this story in Washington about Congressman Clayton of Alabama, who used to be district attorney in his state. It became his duty at one time to prosecute an old man for making illicit whisky. It was not a very serious infraction of the law, but the old backwoodsman had been reckless in his open violation, and it was necessary to make an example of him. He was brought into court and, after the government had stated its case, the old man, who had no lawyer, asked to be allowed to go upon the stand. He was told that this would render him liable to answer any questions, but he insisted. "Well, Uncle John," said Clayton, "did you really make any whisky in your still?" "Henry," replied the old man, with pathetic tone, "I know'd your pa; I voted for your pa every time he ran for jedge. And, Henry, your pa would never have axed me no question like that!" The jurors laughed, the court smiled and Clayton relented. The old man drove home that night.—New York Tribune

Boyish Ideas.

"It is strange what queer ideas we had when we were young," said a gentleman the other day. "My father once asked me how I supposed the French managed to spell wagon wheel, when they had no 'w' in their language. I never could solve the problem." "And when I was a boy," replied another, "I thought it was an easy matter to translate from foreign languages. I had an idea that the only difference was the alphabetical characters, and if I were to learn the Greek alphabet, for instance, I would have no trouble in turning Greek into English. I found out my mistake after I went to school, though."—Harlem Life.

Wild boars still abound in some parts of Morocco, one hunting party having lately killed over 100 in one week.

SQUAW IS A WIFE.

WILL SHARE IN MILLIONAIRE'S ESTATE.

Romance of the Old Gold Days in California Recalled by a Bitterly Contested Suit That Has Just Been Closed by the Decision of a Court.

Indian Lucy, who, as a dusky-hued maiden, sat upon the knee of John R. Hite, a California gold miner, twenty-eight years ago, and solemnly declared "Conna me oba," while Hite, with equal gravity, replied, "Meenee conna longa," has been declared the legal wife of the millionaire mine owner, though with the declaration comes annulment of the marital tie, for which she prayed. This has been decided "one of the most unique cases ever tried in an American court, and one which has attracted attention throughout the United States. An Indian marriage under the old statute has been declared valid, and as a consequence John R. Hite will be called upon to share his millions with the woman who, in times of adversity, occupied his humble miner's cabin and administered to his wants, but who, when wealth lay at his feet, was thrown aside, as a cast-off garment, to have her place usurped by a white woman.

The other day Judge Joseph P. Jones, before whom the celebrated case was tried, handed down the long-looked for decision. It not only makes "Lucy" Mrs. Hite in the eyes of the world, but allows her $50 monthly alimony, pending further action for a division of community property and gives to her attorneys $4,000 in fees. Though the decision does not so mention, it is obvious that Hite's subsequent marriage to Celia Nougues, who nursed him through a critical illness, is invalid. Next will come a suit for the wife's share of the wealth the millionaire has amassed, and doubtless long delays and stubbornly contested appeals, which may drag along for years in court. The history of this unusually interesting case, at points, is as dramatic as the early life of John Hite and "Lucy" was romantic. In 1858, Hite, a tall, muscular and handsome southerner, came to California and drifted into Mariposa county. He was a favorite in the mining camps, and when he took a pretty young Indian woman into his cabin, after the irresponsible fashion of the early days, there were none to question his right. She followed him about on his prospecting tours, and it was her keenness which located the spot, which, from Hite's first prospecting, developed into the great Hite mine and made its owner a millionaire.

This pretty Indian woman died, but a younger sister, "Lucy," survived, and though she was then the mistress of another's cabin, Hite induced her to come to him, and he gloried in the ownership of the prettiest squaw in the county. Then, after a time, those Indian words were spoken which meant to Hite, "I am your wife," and to the girl, "I am your husband." Lucy grew old and Hite tired of her as his wealth increased. Finally, in October, two years ago, the millionaire married a former nurse, casting off "Lucy." Then came the suit for acknowledgment and wealth, the decision of which has just been handed down. The action was for divorce on the ground of infidelity, naming Cecilia Nougues as co-respondent, though she had gone through the marriage ceremony with Hite, for alimony and a division of community property. In answer Hite declared he had never married "Lucy," disclaimed her title to "wife," declaring Cecilia Hite was his lawful wife and denying the existence of any community property. The divorce action was begun in Mariposa Sept. 25 of this year, but subsequently was transferred to San Francisco.

A bitter legal struggle ensued. So intense did the conflict wage that it engendered hard feelings among the attorneys, and at one time the "lie" was bandied in the court room, directed at Attorney W. W. Foote of Hite's counsel, who had charged in a stinging speech, that blackmail was being attempted. The scene at the time was one of excitement, heightened by talk of "guns," "assassination" and other similar expressions. Finally the case was ended and Judge Jones retired to Mariposa county to prepare his decision. Prior to this time the Supreme court was appealed to to make an order allowing "Lucy" alimony and sufficient funds out of Hite's hoard with which to prosecute her case. This motion was denied, on the ground that the plaintiff must first prove her legal right to wifehood, but now that Judge Jones' opinion establishes this fact the woman will receive the money.

Boy Choirs Abroad.

From the Baltimore Sun: My principal object in England was to make a tour of the cathedral towns to hear their music and study their choir methods. The training of the boys' voices there is reduced to a science, but it is a fact that the finest music is not always to be found in the finest cathedrals. The choir at Oxford surpassed any of those of the London cathedrals, and that at Canterbury, the first among English churches, is positively bad. The boys at St. Paul's, London, show marvelous training. King's college, Cambridge, and Magdalen, Oxford, probably have the best-trained choirs in the world. The boy voice doesn't seem to be well understood in Germany, where I heard several choirs. I never heard worse choir music in my life than at Magdeburg, where I visited three churches, including the cathedral. Church music in Germany is far "below par," compared with that of England.

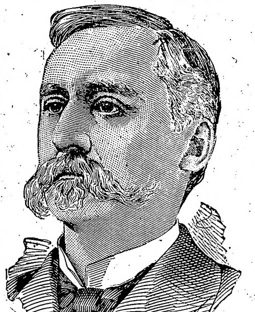
Unintentional.

A London exquisite went into a West End restaurant, says an exchange, and was far from pleased with the manner in which his order was filled. "Do you call that a veal cutlet?" he demanded of the waiter. "Why, such a cutlet as that is an insult to every self-respecting calf in the British empire." The waiter hung his head for a moment, but recovered himself and said, in a tone of respectful apology: "I really didn't intend to insult you, sir."

Gawf is shinny that girls can play at without getting their legs hurt.

U. S. SENATOR ROACH

Says Peruna, the Catarrh Cure, Gives Strength and Appetite.



Hon. W. N. Roach, United States Senator from North Dakota.

Hon. W. N. Roach, United States Senator from North Dakota, personally endorses Peruna, the greatest catarrh cure and tonic. In a recent letter to The Peruna Medicine Company, at Columbus, Ohio, written from Washington, D. C., Senator Roach says:

"Persuaded by a friend, I have used Peruna as a tonic, and I am glad to testify that it has greatly helped me in strength, vigor and appetite. I have been advised by friends that it is remarkably efficacious as a cure for the almost universal complaint of catarrh."

Senator Roach's home address is Larimore, North Dakota.

Peruna is not a guess, nor an experiment; it is an absolute, scientific certainty. Peruna cures catarrh wherever located. Peruna has no substitutes—no rivals. Insist upon having Peruna. Let no one persuade you that some other remedy will do nearly as well. There is no other systematic remedy for catarrh but Peruna. Address the Peruna Medicine Company, Columbus, Ohio, for a free book on catarrh, written by Dr. Hartman.

Cheap at That.

Mrs. Dormy—I wonder you are not afraid of smoke. Just let me read you what there is in a cigar: Acetic, formis, butyric, valeranic, propionic and prussic acids; creosote, phenol, ammonia, sulpheretted hydrogen; and, besides, nicotine, viridine and picoline.

Mr. Dormy—And you can get all that for a nickel!—Life.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

John Chlal, Lake Park, Minn., straw stacker; John K. Christy, Minneapolis, Minn., shaft tug; David H. Houston, Hunter, N. D., magazine camera; Mike M. Jerdee, Dawson, Minn., harrow tooth; Chauncey E. Richardson, Duluth, Minn., seal lock; Herbrand O. Simle, Manvel, N. D., thill coupling; George Wetherby, Duluth, Minn., apparatus for boring and disintegrating earthy matter.

Merwin, Lothrop & Johnson, Patent Attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul

Observation.

As the west-bound train dashed in the young hopeful in the Pullman gazed out upon the animated platform.

"What do you see, Frankie?" inquired the stately woman by his side.

"Oh, mummy!" he shouted, "I see the Chicago platform, but I don't see Bryan."—Chicago News.

$100 Reward $100.

The readers of this paper will be pleased to learn that there is at least one dreaded disease that science has been able to cure in all its stages, and that is Catarrh. Hall's Catarrh Cure is the only positive cure now known to the medical fraternity. Catarrh being a constitutional disease, requires a constitutional treatment. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system, thereby destroying the foundation of the disease, and giving the patient strength by building up the constitution and assisting nature in doing its work. The proprietors have so much faith in its curative powers that they offer One Hundred Dollars for any case that it fails to cure. Send for list of Testimonials.

Address F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by druggists 75c.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

The Proving Exception.

George Q. Cannon, the Utah statesman, takes a deep interest in irrigation and is a regular attendant at the congresses which are held in the Far West to discuss that subject. At one congress a drowsy delegate read a paper on artesian wells, which, he declared, always brought water except when they struck rock. He repeated this statement several times. At the fourth repetition he defied anyone to deny the proposition. Cannon looked up and in his full, musical voice asked: "How do you account for Moses' success?"—Philadelphia Post.

Some people are charitable only when they are sure the world will hear of it.

FOR 14 CENTS

We wish to gain this year 200,000 new customers, and hence offer

1 Pkg. City Garden Beet, 10c
1 Pkg. Earl'st Emerald Cucumber 15c
1 " La Crosse Market Lettuce, 15c
1 " Strawberry Melon, 15c
1 " 13 Day Radish, 10c
1 " Early Ripe Cabbage, 10c
1 " Early Dinner Onion, 10c
3 " Brilliant Flower Seeds, 15c
Worth $1.00, for 14 cents. $1.00

Above 10 Pkgs. worth $1.00, we will mail you free, together with our great Catalog, telling all about SALZER'S MILLION DOLLAR POTATO upon receipt of this notice & 14c. stamps. We invite your trade, and know when you once try Salzer's seeds you will never do without. $200 Prizes on Salzer's 1900—rarest earliest Tomato Giant on earth.

JOHN A. SALZER SEED CO., LA CROSSE, WIS.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

MILLIONS of acres of choice agricultural LANDS now opened for settlement in Western Canada. Here is grown the celebrated NO. 1 HARD WHEAT, which brings the highest price in the markets of the world; thousands of cattle are fattened for market without being fed grain and without a day's shelter. Send for information and secure a free home in Western Canada. Write the Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, or address the undersigned, who will mail you atlases, pamphlets, etc., free of cost. Ben Davies, 154 East Third St., St. Paul, or T. O. Currie, Stevens Point, Wis.

Wheat 327 Millions Short As compared with the World's crop of 1898.

Send for our booklet "How to Sell a Crop and Have It," and you will then know how large fortunes are made in Wheat speculation. Phone 1 603 M.

W. H. HAMMOND & CO., Brokers,

Bank Reference, Corn Ex., Minneapolis, Minn.

PLEASE TRY Cascarets CANDY CATHARTIC REGULATE THE LIVER 10c. 25c. 50c. All Druggists.

Meat smoked in a few hours with KRAUSERS' LIQUID EXTRACT OF SMOKE. Made from hickory wood. Cheaper, cleaner, sweeter, and surer than the old way. Send for circular. E. KRAUSER & BRO., Milton, Pa.

DR. ARNOLD'S COUGH KILLER

CURES COUGHS AND COLDS. PREVENTS CONSUMPTION. All Druggists, 25c.

When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.

S N W N U —No. 2.— 1900.

AN APPEAL TO HUMANITY GENERALLY

We need your assistance in announcing to the world the GREATEST REMEDY that Science has ever produced, and you need our assistance to secure relief for yourself and friends through SWANSON'S "5 DROPS."

A REMEDY SUPREME As surely as the American Navy has conquered and will conquer all that opposes it, so will "5 DROPS" unfailingly conquer all diseases like Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Lumbago, Catarrh of all kinds, ASTHMA, Dyspepsia, Backache, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Heart Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis, Liver and Kidney Troubles, etc., etc., or any disease for which we recommend it. "5 DROPS" is the name and the dose. "5 DROPS" is perfectly harmless. It does not contain Salicylate of Soda nor Opiates in any form. The Child can use it as well as the Adult.

5 DROPS [TRADE MARK]

Read carefully what Mr. L. R. Smith, of El Dorado Springs, Mo., writes us under date of Nov. 27, 1899, also Martan Bowers, of Caraghar, Ohio, under date of Dec. 16th, 1899:

NEURALGIA

I do not know how to express how wonderful I think your "5 DROPS" medicine is. I was suffering intensely with NEURALGIA and thought for a month that I would have to die. One day a lady called to see me and brought me an advertisement of your "5 DROPS." I resolved to try it and sent for a sample bottle. Have been taking it for three weeks and have not had an attack of suffering since I took the first dose. I believe it has saved my life. This statement is positively true. I shall also take pleasure in recommending your "5 DROPS" for the cure of NEURALGIA.

L. R. SMITH, El Dorado Springs, Mo., Nov. 27, 1899.

RHEUMATISM Your "5 DROPS" came to hand on the 11th of last month and was glad to receive it for I was suffering at the time with untold agonies. The first dose helped me out of my pain on short notice. Bless the name of God for it. It will do all you say it will and more too. I had severe pains all over my body, when night came I could not sleep. The worst pain was in my left leg. I could not put my foot to the floor without suffering great pain. Have used four different kinds of medicine for RHEUMATISM and got no relief until I got your "5 DROPS," which gave me immediate relief as above stated. MARTAN BOWERS, Box 63, Caraghar, Ohio, Dec. 16, 1899.

30 DAYS to enable sufferers to give "5 DROPS" at least a trial, we will send a sample bottle, prepaid by mail for 25c. A sample bottle will convince you. Also, large bottles (300 doses) $1.00, 6 bottles for $5. Sold by us and agents. AGENTS WANTED in New Territory. Don't wait! Write now!

SWANSON RHEUMATIC CURE CO., 160 to 164 Lake St., CHICAGO, ILL.

HELP FOR GEN. WHITE

PERSISTENT RUMOR THAT LADYSMITH HAS BEEN RELIEVED.

Field Marshal Roberts Reports That There Is No Change in the Situation—Report From Boer Headquarters Says That a Big Battle Is Expected in a Few Days—Silence Surrounding Buller's Movements Not Yet Explained—Not Believed That He Has Met With a Serious Reverse.

Durban, Jan. 16.—The entire absence of news from Chieveley or Frere camps continues, but there is a persistent rumor here that Ladysmith has been relieved.

No Change, Says Roberts.

London, Jan. 16.—The war office issued at midnight a dispatch from Field Marshal Roberts, dated yesterday at 8:30 p. m., saying: "There is no change in the situation to-day."

Boers Expect a Big Battle.

Boer Headquarters at Colenso, Jan. 11, via Pretoria, via Lorenzo Marquez, Jan. 13.—Everything points to a great battle within the next few days. Ladysmith for the last two nights has been firing rockets. The object is not known here.

Gen. Warren Moves Eastward.

London, Jan. 16.—A dispatch to the Daily Mail, dated Jan. 12, from Pietermaritzburg, says: "Sir Charles Warren marched with 11,000 men eastward from Frere by way of Weenan. His scouts found no sign of the enemy at Grobler's kloof and Colenso was described as deserted. There are rumors that the Boers are preparing to leave Natal, discouraged by their failure to reduce Ladysmith."

Boers Are Active.

Ladysmith, Jan. 16.—The besiegers have been quiet for two days, but can be seen in active movement on the distant hills. We have perceived two small bodies galloping with two machine guns. The Boer heavy piece on Bulawana hill has not been fired for two days. More Boer dead have been found at the base of Caesar's camp. All is well here.

Raw Boers Get Supplies.

Durban, Natal, Jan. 16.—There is a Boer commando in Zambaans country, Zululand, within a day's march of the sea, with wagons. It is believed to be waiting for supplies and ammunition secretly landed near St. Lucia bay. The Boers have looted all the stores and houses in the Zwazi territory and the ruined natives are completing the destruction.

Britain Buys Krupp Guns.

London, Jan. 16.—The Berlin correspondent of the Daily Mail says: "Great Britain has bought 240 Krupp guns that were supplied about two years ago to one of the southern European states. These guns are not quick firers, but will be used to replace the guns sent to South Africa from British home garrisons."

BULLER'S MOVEMENTS.

Surrounded by Complete Silence—Not Believed That He Has Met With a Reverse.

London, Jan. 16—Lord Roberts' enigmatical announcement "No change in the situation," does nothing to allay public anxiety or to explain the silence surrounding Buller's movements on the Tugela, and although there is a disposition to regard the dispatch as disposing of Saturday's adverse rumor, the week has opened in a state of suspense almost equal to that of last week because it is recognized that failure in Gen. Buller's present attempt would seal the fate of Ladysmith. Presumably "no change in the situation" refers to previous dispatches sent to the war office which have not yet been revealed to the public. Except the announcement of the seizure of Pottgeiter's drift and of the advance of Gen. Warren, there has been no news from the Tugela for a week. A ray of hope is in the fact that the same silence prevails from the Boer side. Thus, it may, perhaps, be fairly inferred that Gen. Buller has not yet met a serious check. If the announcement of Gen. Warren's movement be correct, it is evident that Gen. Buller's forces are spread over a very wide front—perhaps twenty-five miles—and in the event of a sudden fall of the river, his operations might be full of danger. It is believed that Gen. Buller has no good survey maps of the district. This will add to his difficulties. Sir Charles Warren's advance probably means an attempt to seize Hlangwan hill, the main post of the Boers south of the Tugela. Upon the success or failure of these operations depends the whole future of the campaign. Until the result is known Lord Roberts will be unable to decide how to dispose of the two divisions and the reinforcements now arriving.

BURNED TO A CRISP.

Terrible Fate of a Man and His Wife and a Boarder.

Manchester, N. H., Jan. 16. — A. Blachard, aged sixty-five, his wife, aged forty-three, and a boarder named William Money, aged fifty-eight, were burned to death in their home in Merrimac. The cause of the fire is unknown. When the bodies were discovered nothing could be told. The Blachards were in the habit of using kerosene to light their fires, and it is thought an explosion took place, demolishing the kitchen, and at the same time setting fire to the house so that they were unable to get away. All the bodies were burned to a crisp.

Gen. Greely Recovering.

Washington, Jan. 16. — Gen. A. W. Greely, who was badly injured by being thrown down his steps by a drunken man last week Sunday, was able to sit up several hours yesterday, and his general condition continues satisfactory.

Taxation in Cuba.

Havana, Jan. 16.—Gov. Gen. Wood will to-day issue an order appointing a commission of three to study and report upon the problem of taxation throughout the entire island.

New Food for Infants.

Paris—Deputy Edmond Blanc has presented a report to the chamber advocating the use of the recently discovered nourishment for newly born infants made of sow's milk, which is claimed by doctors of the French faculty of medicine as superior to that of cows or goats.

Postal Union Celebration.

Berlin—A private telegram states that Switzerland has invited sixty-two countries of the postal union to celebrate the union's twenty-fifth anniversary at Berne July 2.

THE MARKETS.

Latest Quotations From Grain and Live Stock Centers.

St. Paul, Jan. 16. — Wheat — No. 1 Northern, 64@65 3-4c; No. 2 Northern, 61@63 1-2c. Corn — No. 3 yellow, 28 1-2@29c; No. 3, 28@28 1-2c. Oats—No. 3 white, 23 1-4 @ 23 1-2c; No. 3, 22 3-4@23 1-4c. Barley and Rye—Feed barley, 31@32 1-2c; malting grade, 33@35c; No. 2 rye, 47 1-2@47 3-4c; No. 3 rye, 46@46 1-2c.

Minneapolis, Jan. 16.—Wheat—No. 1 Northern, 64@65 3-4c; No. 2 Northern, 61@62c; No. 3 wheat, 57@58 1-2c. Corn—No. 3 yellow, 28 1-2@28 3-4c; No. 3, 28@28 1-4c. Oats—No. 3 white, 22 3-4@23 1-2c; No. 3, 22 3-4@23 1-4c. Barley, 36@39c.

Duluth, Jan. 16.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, 66c; No. 1 Northern, 64 1-2c; No. 2 Northern, 62c; No. 3 spring, 58 1-2c; to arrive, No. 1 hard, 66c; No. 1 Northern, 64 1-2c; May, No. 1 Northern, 67c; July, No. 1 Northern, 68 1-8c; oats, 23 1-2@24c; rye, 49 1-4c; barley, 34@37c; flax, to arrive, $1.44; cash, $1.43 1-2; May, $1.47; corn, 30 1-2c.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 16.—Flour is dull. Wheat weaker; No. 1 Northern, 65@65 1-4c; No. 2 Northern, 63 1-2@64c. Rye firmer; No. 1, 55 1-2c. Barley dull; No. 2, 45@46c; sample, 34@44c. Oats steady; No. 2 white, 25 1-4c.

Chicago, Jan. 16—Wheat—No. 2 red, 67@67 1-2c; No. 3, 64@67c; No. 2 hard winter, 64 1-4c; No. 3 hard winter, 60@64c; No. 1 Northern spring, 65 1-2@67c; No. 2 Northern spring, 65 1-2@66 1-2c; No. 3 spring, 62@66c. Corn — No. 2, 31 1-4c; No. 3, 30 3-4@31c. Oats—No. 2, 22 3-4c; No. 3, 22 1-2c.

Chicago, Jan. 16. — Cattle — Beeves, $4@6.50; cows and heifers, $4@5; stockers and feeders, $3@4.85; Texas fed beeves, $4@5.50. Hogs—Mixed and butchers, $4.40@4.65; good to choice heavy, $4.55@4.75; rough heavy, $4.40@4.50; light, $4.30@4.55; bulk of sales, $4.50@4.65. Sheep, $4.30@4.90; lambs, $4.50@6.15.

Sioux City, Iowa, Jan. 16.—Cattle—Beeves, $4.50 @ 5.50; cows and bulls, mixed, $2@3.50; stockers and feeders, $3.50@4.40; calves and yearlings, $3.75@4.60. Hogs, $4.45 @ 4.52 1-2; bulk, $4.47@4.50.

South St. Paul, Jan. 16. — Hogs — $4.42 1-2@4.47 1-2. Cattle—Cows, $2.65@3.50; bulls, $3.25; stockers, $4.10@4.30; heifers, $3.30@3.75; calves, $5@6.

MAIL ROBBER HAS CONFESSED.

Man Who Stole the Pouch Containing $10,000 at Effingham Arrested in Canton, Ohio.

Effingham, Ill., Jan. 16.—Postmaster Lawson is in receipt of a telegram from the sheriff at Canton, Ohio, saying that J. L. Durm, under arrest there, has confessed to stealing the mail pouch at this place last Monday night. It contained $10,000, most of which has been recovered.

GUILTY OF MURDER.

Soldier Is Convicted in a Federal Court at Topeka, Kan.

Topeka, Kan., Jan. 16.—Joe Leach, a private of Company B, Fourth artillery, was found guilty by a federal court jury of murdering Corporal Finnell, Company B, Fourth artillery, at Fort Riley, Kan., Nov. 1, 1897. The verdict was "guilty, without capital punishment." The defense pleaded hereditary insanity.

MORE TROUBLE FOR SPAIN.

Republican Press Working Up an Agitation Against the Monarchy.

Lisbon, Jan. 16. — The Republican press is working up an agitation against the monarchy on the basis of England's interference with vessels outside Delagoa bay. They declare that England's action is a violation of Portugal's neutrality and is due to the weakness of the existing regime.

To Abolish Woman Labor.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—Woman labor is to be abolished in all factories where building material is produced in Chicago if a resolution passed by the building material trades' council last night can be made effective. The resolution provides that each of the organizations affiliated with the council demand that a clause be inserted in all union contracts hereafter specifying that no women be employed in the shops. There are now 200 women at work in the various factories, for the most part as metal polishers and buffers and on plumbers supplies.

Too Ready With His Gun.

Helenwood, Tenn. Jan. 16.At Almy Andy Chitwood, a highly respected young man, was shot and instantly killed by Elvin Phillips. The men had quarreled over some change. Phillips was a member of the Fourth volunteer infantry. While at Oneida last Wednesday he shot a drummer's valise to pieces, and the same day shot a man named Chambers. Saturday he shot at Charles Keelon, held up the Paint Rock engine that carries the mail from the mines at Oneida, and at 6 p. m. killed Chitwood. He has not been captured.

Discharged From West Point.

West Point, N. Y., Jan. 16. — The academy board has finished its review of the January examination of the corps of cadets at the military academy. The following were found deficient and discharged: Second class, W. M. Cooley, Michigan; W. C. Russell, Illinois; fourth class, C. F. Coury, Ohio; A. G. Crow, Michigan; C. L. Lacy, Indiana. Some will appeal their cases to the war department.

Carter Harrison Declines.

Chicago, Jan. 16.—Mayor Carter Harrison yesterday refused formally the offer of the Democratic nomination for governor. As a result of Mayor Harrison's action friends of Former Vice President Stevenson are urging him to accept the nomination.

Kicked by a Horse.

Beaumont, Tex., Jan. 16.—J. S. Harrison, a real estate man of Kansas City, a brother of ex-President Harrison, was kicked on the head by a vicious horse here. He was knocked senseless and his skull was fractured. The doctors hope for his recovery.

Charged With Embezzlement.

Sandusky, Ohio, Jan. 16.—William J. Affleck, secretary of the board of water works for several years, has been arrested on the charge of embezzlement of city funds. A shortage of about $20,000 is alleged.

Severe Punishment for Scorchers.

Paris—Count Goeffen, while scorching with his automobile, ran over a woman, breaking her leg. The courts condemned the count to two months in prison and a fine of 15,000 francs.

Milder Sentence for Jews.

Breslau—All Russian Jews condemned to deportation are to go to Siberia hereafter instead of to Tsachalin island, whose horrors are said to far exceed those of Siberia.

Thomas F. Conway, one of the oldest attorneys in the territory, died at Silver City, N. M., aged sixty-five years.

News of the Northwest

THE SALOON'S ENEMIES

Ask for Legislation That Will Restore Prohibition.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 14. — The anti-saloon league convention yesterday adopted a resolution favoring "the passage of a law at the present session of the legislature which shall prohibit the sale or manufacture of intoxicating liquors within five miles of any of the state institutions of learning, as a safeguard which the people of the state demand for their children sent out from the care of home. And we further favor such other temperance legislation as can be secured pressing the demand from year to year until Iowa is restored to that happy states in which the saloon shall again be an outlaw." The committee on resolutions demanded an enforcement of the temperance laws as they now exist and in opposition to the local option and "mulct" law. A committee on temperance was appointed headed by H. H. Agrams.

SCOFIELD FOR VICE PRESIDENT.

Wisconsin Governor Suggested as McKinley's Running Mate.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 14.—The Madison State Journal, the official Republican organ, last night printed a letter to the editor of the Journal signed "A Badger," in which Gov. Edward Scofield is proposed as a vice-presidential candidate. The letter, in part, reads as follows:

"The Republican party is looking about for a suitable running mate for William McKinley. Edward Scofield of Wisconsin is clearly the man that both party and country are looking for. He is from the West, which is desirable at this time. He is a veteran soldier of the war, which will please great numbers. He is a business man. He has an experience in public affairs, including four years as governor of Wisconsin. This is imperative. He is available and will strengthen the ticket."

DASSEL SCORCHED.

Midnight Blaze Carries Destruction to Many Business Places.

Dassel, Minn., Jan. 14.—A disastrous fire occurred here in which nine business houses were burned, together with stocks of goods, excepting such as were carried into the streets by citizens. The loss on buildings and stocks will reach $50,000, with insurance of $29,650. The fire started in the barber shop of Charles Robinson, a small wooden building, and in three hours the entire block, from street to street, was in ashes. There was no wind or the damage would have been greater, as the fire apparatus was out of repair, and could not be used. Prompt action by the citizens in forming bucket brigades saved the town from greater loss.

THROUGH THE ICE.

Member of a Logging Crew Near Cloquet Is Drowned.

Cloquet, Minn., Jan. 14.—Mat Jamelson, a Norwegian employed in Miles' camp near this village, was drowned in the St. Louis river. He was riding on the rear runner of a pair of logging sleds loaded with logs, when the ice broke under the hind bob, precipitating the logs and Mr. Jamelson into about twenty feet of water. The front bob was caught over a boom stick frozen in the ice, thus preventing the team and driver from an immersion and possible drowning. Mr. Jamelson was thirty years old and unmarried. He leaves no relatives in this country.

PER CAPITA TAX RAISED.

Milwaukee, Jan. 14. — The National Building Trades Council of America passed resolutions raising the per capita tax. Local unions which have been paying 1-2 cent per capita to the national body will hereafter pay 3-4 of a cent. Local unions having no national affiliations must pay 5 cents per capita instead of 3 cents as formerly. Most of the work of the convention is being done in committees, and these not being ready to report, a recess was taken.

Natural Gas in Wisconsin.

Brillion, Wis., Jan. 14.—Well drillers on the farm of William Wieckert, at a depth of 145 feet, struck a gas vein which haisted their drilling machinery out of the hole and has continued to emit gas continually for several hours. They touched a torch to the flow and a flame twenty to thirty feet hight, which could be seen for miles continued to burn until it was smothered. This is the fourth of fifth time natural gas has been struck in this vicinity within the past few years.

Donated by Gov. Drake.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 14.—Ex-Gov. F. M. Drake of Centerville, for whom Drake university of this city is named, yesterday increased his donations to that institution $32,000, which will be used in making immediate necessary improvements. He said he hoped to see the university have an endowment of a million dollars and expected to furnish at least one-fourth of that sum.

Exchange Building for Winona.

Winona, Minn., Jan. 14.—The lumber and grain men of this city will soon organize a corporation for the purpose of erecting an office building to be known as the Grain and Lumber exchange. A lot centrally located was purchased yesterday for $6,250. Mr. Charles Horton is the head of the concern. The building will be three stories, of brick, and will cost about $50,000.

Caught at Canton.

Canton, S. D., Jan. 14.—Sheriff Nelson of Minnehaha county arrested H. S. Ransom of Sioux Falls on complaint of W. H. Booth of that city, charging Ransom with having stolen diamonds worth several hundred dollars.

Bad Man From the Woods.

Menomonie, Wis., Jan. 14.—Dan Curtis was arrested for attempted assault on a girl twelve years of age. He came down from the woods last Sunday. He has served a term in jail for a similar offense.

The First Snow.

Garfield, Minn., Jan. 14.—The first snow fell here yesterday and farmers are rejoicing in the prospect of sleighing. The traffic in wood has been almost at a standstill as a result of the open winter.

Strike Is Settled.

Racine, Wis., Jan. 14.—The molders' strike at the Lakeside Malleable Iron company's plant was satisfactorily settled last night and the factory will resume on Monday morning with a full force.

LUMPY JAW EPIDEMIC.

An Entire Herd May Have to Be Killed.

Black River Falls, Wis., Jan. 16 — The state veterinary surgeon has been visiting the farm of H. M. Swarthout, several miles south of here in La Crosse county. He was called there to investigate the severe cases of lumpy jaw in the large stock of cattle on Mr. Swarthout's dairy farm. The entire herd seem to be affected, and there will be a large number of them killed. There are isolated cases on several other farms, but of a milder form. It is raising a great deal of excitement among the farmers in that vicinity.

SHINGLES ADVANCE.

Association Raises Price Ten Cents Per Thousand.

Marinette, Wis., Jan. 16—The annual convention of the Northwestern Cedarmen's association was held here. Over fifty members from Wisconsin, Michigan, Minnesota and Illinois attended. The association advanced the price of shingles 10 cents a thousand on all grades. An advance of 10 per cent was made in the price of posts and a slight advance was made in poles. The principal object of the association is to make the official price list for the guidance of its members.

DEAL INVOLVES HALF MILLION.

Perley Lowe Company of Chicago Takes Season's Product of Witbeck Mills at Marinette, Wis.

Marinette, Wis., Jan. 16.—The Perley Lowe Company of Chicago has purchased the season's cut of the H. Witbeck company of this city, amounting to 40,000,000 feet of lumber, shingles and lath. The deal involves over half a million dollars and is the largest made this year.

Amateur Skating Races.

St. Paul, Jan. 16. — The Western championship meeting of the National Amateur Skating association will be held in St. Paul Friday and Saturday, Feb. 9 and 10. There will be four events, 500 1,500, 5,000 and 10,000 meters in distance, with gold, silver and bronze championship emblems to first, second and third in each event. The races will be under the auspices of the St. Paul Carnival association, and will be managed by the Northwestern Skating association.

Inflicted Loss of $60,000.

Iowa City, Iowa, Jan. 16. — A fire started in the store of Mrs. Hattie E. Horne inflicted a loss of $60,000. Lena Delshied, a saleswoman, in attempting to light the gas dropped a burning match in a pile of cotton batting, and the entire store was soon ablaze. The stock, valued at $35,000, was a total loss, and the building, owned by W. P. Coast, was damaged to the extent of $10,000. The fire spread to adjoining buildings.

Floods Ar eSubsiding.

Seattle, Wash., Jan. 16.—Reports received here from White river valley towns and points north of this city are to the effect that the January floods are subsiding and that no further damage will be done. Trains were only a few minutes late and are expected on time to-morrow. The weather is much colder, which has resulted in a subsidence of the floods.

Robbery And Burglary Charged

Sioux City, Iowa, Jan. 16. — John Conway has been indicted here for alleged robbery and burglary. He and Robert Gilmore, who were indicted with him, are accused of holding up a restaurant one night last month. Conway is a brother of Supt. Stephen Conway, of Armour's Chicago packing house.

Killed in a Mine.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 16.—Joe Melivitch and Joseph Maxwell, working in the Colsuna-Parrott mine, were instantly killed yesterday by the explosion of a blast that had hung fire. A round of holes had been fired and the men had returned to clean up the debris when a missed hole went off.

Funding Warrants Taken Up.

Bismarck, N. D., Jan. 16. — State Treasurer Driscoll has taken up $80,000 funding warrants issued last year to pay the expenses of the legislative session. These have been paid from the ordinary revenues of the state, in addition to the payment of the current expenses.

Injunction Dissolved.

Hudson, Wis., Jan. 14.—Judge Dunwiddie heard arguments in the injunction case restraining the county authorities from issuing bonds and proceeding with building of the new court house plant at Hudson. Numerous able arguments were made on both sides and at 5 o'clock the judge dissolved the injunction.

Murder Charge Withdrawn.

Pierre, S. D., Jan. 14.—After a day of wrangling in the Rudy case at Fort Pierre the charge of murder was withdrawn and a new one of manslaughter substituted. On this charge Rudy secured a continuance until the next term of court, and is out on bail.

Fire at Osakis.

Osakis, Minn., Jan. 16. — Fire destroyed Davis & Morton's general store. The flames spread and other losses were: B. L. Maupe, grocery; William Lenz, jewelry, and several families living overhead. The loss will reach $20,000; insurance, $8,000.

Prominent Hastings Man Dead.

Hastings, Minn., Jan. 14. — S. G. Rathbone died suddenly of apoplexy, aged sixty-eight years. He leaves a wife and one daughter. He was one of Hastings' most wealthy and prominent citizens.

Miners Killed by Explosion.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 16. — By the premature explosion of a blast on the 1,700 level of the Mountain Consolidated mine Peter Sullivan and Thomas Smith were instantly killed. Both were single men.

No Carnival.

St. Paul, Jan. 16.—The St. Paul winter carnival is off. At a meeting of the association it was concluded that it would be impossible to carry out the plans of the proposed winter carnival on account of the warm weather.

Date Changed.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 16.—The date of the thirty-fourth annual encampment of the Wisconsin G. A. R. at West Superior has been changed from June 6 and 7 to June 27 and 28.

In Far Northland

Tid-Bits of News for Scandinavians.

DR. ASHMEAD AN ALARMIST.

Danger of Leprosy From Scandinavian Immigrants.

The following statement by Albert S. Ashmead, M. D., of New York city, in the New York Sun of Jan. 8, is calculated to arouse the ire of the sons of Sweden and Norway in America. He claims that there is grave danger of the spread of leprosy in this country, owing to immigration from the Scandinavian countries, and wants all immigrants examined before leaving their homes. The following is a quotation from his letter to the Sun:

"Mrs. Schwichtenberg 'fears that with the American troops in the Philippires, leprosy may be brought to our country.' She need have no such fear. The history of the world of leprosy is against it. Leprosy is only transmitted to one country from another by immigration, or by troops returning with captives or slaves. There is more danger of leprosy to the people of the United States from the Norwegians and Swedes already scattered over every state in the Union than can be threatening this country from our new acquisitions—Hawaii and the Philippines. Five hundred thousand Norwegians are already here—17,000 of them of leprous family. These are scattered over the Union, thanks to Hansen's Norwegian leper law, which allows lepers and suspected lepers to be isolated in private homes of Norway, and thus give them all facility to escape to the United States. There are 600,000 Swedes here, also; five of these established in Minnesota are lepers; how many in other states, we do not yet know.

"The leper law enforced in Hawaii is an international law, at least as far as Japan and China China are concerned. These two countries are, for Hawaii, the only source of danger. Officers in the service of Hawaii examine in Asia all emigrants headed for the islands, to prevent the starting of lepers or suspected lepers. Upon their arrival, the emigrants are again examined. All danger of leprous importation is thus removed. Had such a law been enforced in the early '40s, Hawaii would now be pure and healthy, for the inoculation came from Asia. Hawaii, entering the American Union, brings with her the admirable and successful caution against the importation of leprosy. If congress should adopt this wise and successful law and apply it to the United States as a nation; if it ruled by law its relations, not only with Japan and China, but also with Norway and Sweden, it would operate to keep away Dr. Hansen's Norwegian lepers and leprous families; Dr. Sederholm's Swedish lepers and leprous families; Dr. Peterson's Russian lepers and leprous families, and even the 159 Icelandic lepers (from Manitoba and our Dakotas) of Mr. Ehlers of Copenhagen.

"The danger to this country does not lie in a possible contamination from Hawaii or the Philippines. The Hawaiian and Filipino do not think of coming here."

AFTER THE ISLANDS.

Negotiations Pending Between Denmark and the United States.

That negotiations between the United States and Denmark regarding the transfer of the Danish West Indies are pending, in spite of the denials from Washington, seems to be substantiated by C. M. Koedt, a former Danish consul at Chicago. Mr. Koedt has recently returned from Denmark, and learned several interesting things. In an interview this week he said, in part:

"I have just returned from Denmark and am sure that the Danish minister in Washington is not in any way connected with the Danish West India matter. I believe that Col. Clark E. Carr, formerly minister to Denmark, is at the bottom of this movement. Mr. Gron must represent the American side—the same side that placed him in the conspicuous position he occupied during the presidential campaign as the confidential agent of Mark Hanna, in whose employ he has continued ever since. The Danish ministry is perfectly willing to dispose of the islands to the United States, but I do not believe it will receive the support of the Danish riksdag."

Vikings in South Africa.

While there are many Scandinavians fighting on the Boer side in South Africa, there are apparently quite a number on the British side, as well. The Cape Town Skandinaven mentions three Norwegians among those who fell in the Natal campaign, J. Espeland, of the Durban Light Infantry; Mr. Schram, of the Natal Mounted Rifles, and a Peter Nielsen. These three were Natal colonists, and volunteered with the British troops. The same paper also speaks of a Swede, a Norwegian and a Dane among the prisoners captured by the Boers in Natal.

American Hospitality.

A banquet was tendered to the officers of the Norwegian warship Elida by the Cosmopolitan club of Santiago de Cuba, on Jan. 6. The club parlors were handsomely decorated with national emblems, and the affair was a success. The Norwegian commander, in responding to the toast, "The Vikings," eulogized Admiral Sampson, and compared his work with the old-time vikings of history. The Norwegians expressed their recognition of the great work performed by the United States at Santiago.

Norsk Vessel in Trouble.

It was not to be expected that Norway, with its merchant marine, would be long in running afoul of the British blockade of the Portuguese port of Lourenzo Marquez, and a Norwegian vessel is now at Durban in the hands of the British authorities. The owners are cited to appear before the prize court at Durban, but refrained from doing so on the instruction of the Swedish-Norwegian foreign office, which proposes to take the seizure of the Norwegian vessel a matter of diplomatic investigation and treatment.

New Food for Infants.

Paris—Deputy Edmond Blanc has presented a report to the chamber advocating the use of the recently discovered nourishment for newly born infants made of sow's milk, which is claimed by doctors of the French faculty of medicine as superior to that of cows or goats.

Postal Union Celebration.

Berlin—A private telegram states that Switzerland has invited sixty-two countries of the postal union to celebrate the union's twenty-fifth anniversary at Berne July 2.

NOT FRENCHY.

King Christian Shows Resentment Towards Napoleon's Country.

The correspondent who makes a specialty of gossip pertaining to Old World royalty and nobility, says that few people are aware of the fact that old King Christian of Denmark has, all his life long, entertained a most profound aversion for France, dating from the time when the French court gave countenance to that French ex-modiste who, as Countess Danner, became the morganatic wife of his predecessor on the throne. He has seldom, if, indeed, ever, visited Paris since he succeeded to the throne, nearly forty years ago, and it is owing to his objection to France that the dowager empress of Russia, with her two younger children, the hereditary Grand Duke Michael and Grand Duchess Olga, the Princess of Wales and Princess Victoria, and the Duke and Duchess of Cumberland will foregather next month at some place in Italy, possibly San Remo or Sorrento, in order to be with him, instead of taking up, as usual, their residence at Nice or at some other point of the French Riviera for the spring. Indeed, what with the absence of the Russian, Danish and English royalties in the Italian Riviera, Nice and Cannes threaten to be sadly deserted this spring. I hear that King Christian, though in good health, is much depressed in spirits, and that it is on this account that his three daughters, the czarina mother, the Duchess of Cumberland and the Princess of Wales have arranged to spend the spring with him in some sunny clime.

MESSAGE FROM KING OSCAR.

ipprines, leprosy may be brough to our

Expresses Deep Interest in the Scandinavians in the United States.

King Oscar, in the course of a private audience, recently granted a correspondent of the Associated Press, dictated the following message to Scandinavians in the United States:

"Tell those of my two peoples who have taken up their abode in the United States, and their descendants, that I follow their path with interest; that I feel their joys and sorrows as if they were my own.

"I am glad to hear that the Swedes and Norwegians are among the most respected citizens of your great country. May it always go well with them."

His majesty, who talked in a charming manner of events in the United States and elsewhere, seemed greatly interested in hearing of the era of prosperity in America, showed himself well informed regarding the American problems in the Philippines, and expressed a fervent wish that the war there, as well as the war in South Africa, might soon be over.

He refrained from expressing any opinion on the subject of the troubles in Sweden and Norway.

Relief Funds All Right.

To those who have contributed to the relief funds collected for the sufferers by the storms in Norway last October, the Skandinaven states that there is no reason to suppose that any portion of the contributions are diverted from the purpose for which they were intended. The funds are handled by the interior department, and all the expenses entailed are included in the running expenses of the department. It is inconceivable that any of the local committee are taking any pay for their services or making any claim for expenses. The poor commission which buried the dead at Roevaer thought to reimburse itself from the gifts; but this course raised such a storm of resentment that the plan was quickly dropped. The Skandinaven is confident that every cent contributed from the United States will be used exclusively for the benefit of the sufferers. The paper, up to date, has collected 82,192.70 kroner, or over $22,000.

Can Learn From America.

The experiments by the Norwegian marine of using salt meat and pork prepared in Norway has not proven successful, as the product does not keep as long as is desirable. The department of defense has requested the interior department to consider the qeustion of what should be done in Norway to secure salted meats which could compete with the American products with regard to its keeping qualities.

Of General Interest.

The Norwegian skater, Lindahl, was the winner of the siver cup at the international races at Littleport, Eng., on Dec. 16. He appears to be destined to take the place held by Alex. Paulsen.

W. A. Kjellman, who introduced reindeer into Alaska, is home again in Wisconsin for the winter. He has several valuable claims at Cape Nome, and is not greatly interested in the reindeer, as might be suspected.

Olof Jonsson, the Swedish politician, advises his government to consider the union question quietly and with deliberation. He believes that the consular and diplomatic questions should be acted upon together.

Fritz Thaulow, the famous Norwegian landscape artist, has been named by the French government as a member of the reception jury for the art works of those countries who will not officially participate in the world's exposition this year.

The famous Lutteman singers have returned to America after a long tour in the Scandinavian countries, Finland, Russia, Holland and Germany. Miss Ollie Torbett and Messrs. Ericson, Smith, Schill and Kindlundh are still members of the organization.

P. H. Anderson, the Swedish missionary, who was one of the very first arrivals at Cape Nome, has presented $100,000 to the Swedish Mission union, to be devoted to spreading the gospel. This handsome gift will be followed by others, for Anderson is probably a millionaire by this time, or soon will be.

Christiania's biggest fire in several years broke out on Dec. 22, in a big building at Graensen and Aker streets. Dageravisen was burned out, several wholesale concerns and the quarters of Henrik Bull, the architect, which contained the drawings for the National theater, the government building and the historical museum. A rare and costly library was also destroyed. The loss was about 1,500,000 kroner, nearly all covered by insurance.

It is reported that Sweden closed the fiscal year with a surplus of 24,000,000 kroner in the state treasury.

Was Once Hospital Chaplain.

New York—Obituary notices of the Rev. Edward McGlynn make no reference to an interesting part of his career. The war department rolls show that Father McGlynn was a hospital chaplain for two years during the Civil war.

Girl Babies in Demand.

New York—According to the twenty-seventh annual report of the State Charities Aid association the demand for girl babies for adoption in this state is greater than the supply, while boys are a drug on the market.

MINNESOTA ITEMS

The safe in the grocery store of W. A. Riddle at Proctorknott was broken into. The thieves secured $200 in cash. There is no clue.

Weber Bros.' clothing and shoe store was damaged by fire at Sleepy Eye to the extent of $4,000 on stock and $500 on the building. Insured.

The proposition to issue bonds to the amount of $160,000 to purchase the West Duluth water plant will not be submitted to the people this winter.

Thomas Glory died at Hastings at the advanced age of seventy-seven years. Mr. Glory was a pioneer farmer of Wabasha county in the vicinity of Lake City, coming to Hastings ten years ago.

S. M. Bear, manager of the opera house at Sioux Falls, S. D., has leased the theater in Mankato and will operate it with C. H. Griebel as resident manager. It is expected that circuit will be made with Sioux City.

A railroad man named Chris Uhlig was instantly killed in the Northwestern yards at Sanborn. A switch engine knocked him down and, running over him, severed his legs from his body at the thighs. He died almost instantly.

Frank Korthols, aged about twenty-one years, was brought to Wadena by the sheriff from Germany township, charged with assault upon Mrs. Joseph J. Nold of the same place. He was bound over to appear before the next grand jury.

Considerable spurious coin has been found in circulation in Winona. Some time ago some lightweight five-dollar gold pieces were discovered, and recently counterfeit half-dollars were presented at the banks. There is no clue to their origin.

The Stillwater Manufacturing company has begun the construction of a two-story addition to its factory at Stillwater, the addition being necessary by reason of increased business embracing contracts received in this country and the Hawaiian islands.

The production of flour at the head of the lakes in 1899 fell off nearly 30 per cent as compared with 1898. The impression with some people is that the combining of the mills into a big trust has had a demoralizing effect locally, but better results are expected this year.

At a meeting of the stockholders of the Bank of Waterville A. M. Sleeum and James Quirk of Minneapolis, H. B. Hermsmeyer and G. C. Kane were elected directors for the ensuing year. The directors elected A. M. Sleeum president and H. B. Hermsmeyer cashier.

Patrick Cain of Westline was the first man to get into trouble in the new towns along the Minnesota & Iowa division of the Northwestern railroad on account of disposing of intoxicating liquor without a license. He was arrested on that charge and held to the grand jury.

At the annual meeting of the directors of the Southern Minnesota Fair association at Rochester the following officers were elected: President, A. T. Stebbins; vice president, W. J. Boynton; secretary, J. A. Bear; treasurer, A. C. Gooding; superintendent of grounds, F. W. Willett.

Nels Nelson, employed in the clay pits at Clay Bank, Red Wing, fell from the top of the pit to the bottom, a distance of thirty feet, breaking both legs. The bones in his left leg even protruded through his clothing. He also sustained other injuries. Physicians think the man will recover.

Emil Wandersee, son of Fred Wandersee, a farmer living about two miles east of Montrose, is reported to be suffering from smallpox in the most malignant form. The fact that eight days elapsed after he was first stricken before medical assistance was secured has given an opportunity for the spreading of the disease.

John H. O'Brien, a freight conductor on the Chicago Great Western railroad, living in St. Paul, was instantly killed in an accident at Kenyon. He fell from the top of a car and was caught under a moving train, meeting instantaneous death. He had been in the employ of the road for several years. He leaves a wife and family.

A man claiming to be C. Luzinger of Montrose some days ago at the National hotel at St. Cloud and lately left, leaving an unpaid board bill. It now develops that he was an organizer of the Modern Brotherhood, and that he collected about $100 from men who purposed joining the order. The police are searching for him.

Sam Stabler, Martin Klevjer, Fred Magnuson, James Hackettson, Charles Hackettson, Henry Scott, George Crandall and L. Schagale were arrested at Willmar charged with the illegal sale of intoxicating liquors. The village authorities have been working for several months trying to obtain evidence. The authorities are determined to close up all "blind pigs."

Earle Mitchell, thirteen years old, son of Eugene Mitchell of Clearwater, was fatally injured while playing with his schoolmates on a merry-go-round, which had been erected upon the ice near the school house. The arm upon which Earle was seated gave way, throwing him with great force, backward upon his head. He lived but a few minutes after his fall.

Walter Ricker, an employe at the Washington Tool company's works at Owatonna, was badly injured by the breaking of an emery wheel at which he was working. One of the flying fragments of the broken wheel struck him in the face just below the eye, cutting a long, deep gash and injuring the eye to an extent which has not yet been ascertained.

State Auditor Dunn has instructed County Attorney Street of Beltrami county to commence proceedings against T. B. Walker and his loggers to prevent their cutting the pine off of lands on which Mr. Walker has not paid taxes. Mr. Walker is the only large owner of pine lands in the county who has not paid his taxes for the last two years, and there is considerable public feeling current in the county against him on that account, as the county revenues are not large under the law organizing the county.

Lord Nelson's Snuff Box.

London—A snuff box of polished steel and lined with gold, which once belonged to Lord Nelson and was presented to him in 1792 by the Birmingham Society of Steel Workers, sold in London at auction recently for $375.

Royalty Will Cruise.

Berlin—The emperor and empress of Germany are to start on a five-week cruise in the Mediterranean the last of February in the imperial yacht Hohenzollern. They will meet Queen Victoria at Bordigheria.

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

Minnesota Historical Society

HISTORICAL SOCIETY

VOLUME XIX. ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 24, 1900. NUMBER 27.

AMERICANISM

ITS CAUSE GOES BRAVELY MARCHING ON TO VICTORY.

While Liberty's Red-Mouthed Guns on Distant Shores Hold the Imperial Invader at Bay—Echoes of State and National Politics—Score Another For Minnesota Grain Inspection and Grades—Twin City Political News—Nelson and John Goodnow, and Doc Ames and the Veal Market—Work of the American League. Note and Comment of a Week.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, Jan. 22, 1900.

While Liberty's red-mouthed cannon are holding at bay the ruthless imperial invader of the South African republics, emphasizing the iniquity which the McKinley administration has been perpetrating in the Philippines in the now completed destruction of an infant republic, the armies of Americanism have continued to make good progress in the peaceful but no less momentous struggle going on in the United States. Nothing like the deep earnestness now prevailing with the united forces has ever been known in this state at this distance before the formal opening of a national campaign.

Indicative of the deep interest and great power of the recent Bryan, Lind and Towne meetings, it is stated as a fact that one of the brightest and ablest of the political writers of one of the leading Twin City dailies has seriously debated with his conscience and his friends, as to whether, moved as he was by conviction of the right and truth of what he heard at the meetings, he could conscientiously remain in the service of the journal that was constantly preaching contrary and fallacious doctrines, and uttering, as none than himself better knew, political untruths, and unwise and un-American sentiments. It is the fact that men are being moved in this manner that gives hope for success of our righteous cause.

As another like pointer, it is given as the opinion of a Republican tenant of the great New York Life building in Minneapolis, the large majority of whom are Republicans, that on the question of support of the McKinley administration those tenants are unquestionably two to one against it.

One dark and forbidding recent night, Doc Ames "returned" to the Minneapolis G. O. P. fold, and the slaughter of the fatted calves has not increased the price of veal!

A portion of Senator Knute Nelsen's recent speech, carefully censored out, as well as the "break" Nelson made, was his illusion to the greatness of one John Goodnow as America's great representative now standing in the China "open door." Nelson used it as a great climax in one part of his speech, pausing as he reached it to remove his specs, for emphasis. As he roared out his tribute to the great and good(?) John he paused for the expected applause from John's former neighbors, and received not even a grunt of approval. Knute was knocked clear out of the box. He dropped his specs, lost the place in his manuscript and did not regain his composure to the end of the address. It was extremely painful.

Minneapolis Republicans are worried about their coming ban-quit. The sophomoric Beveridge hesitates about venturing into the G. O. P. frost of Minnesota, and wisely so. The Republicans scarcely dare undertake an Exposition meeting, and may confine themselves entirely to the ban-quit.

And, by the way, a very poor Beveridge is the article on tap in the senate labelled "Indiana." It lacks both age and flavor.

The tremendous pro-Boer meeting held in St. Paul has called liberty lovers in Minneapolis into action. On Jan. 27, evening, two anti-imperialist meetings will be held in South Minneapolis, in Normanna and Dania halls, and the following Sunday afternoon, a Boer meeting in the Exposition building, all to be addressed by that great man of the people ex-Governor John P. Altgeld of Illinois, with whom, Rev. Father Cleary will also probably speak. Look out for music!

Ex-Governor D. M. Clough is about to locate permanently in the state of Washington, either at Seattle or Everett. He will take with him the best wishes of hosts of personal friends in Minnesota.

It is now less than 50 cent wheat. What it will be before this gold standard rule is overthrown, the Lord only knows, and he does not seem inclined to inform even Hanna.

Hanna's call for cash has been made, and curiously enough he declared that it is for the purpose of sending men "out West" to open debating schools where the people may discuss whether they are prosperous or not. A prosperity that requires a debating school to determine whether or not it exists is—well, it is of the elusive, gold standard variety.

Get-there Eli Warner has got there on the surveyor generalship Hence the lachrymal manifestations on St. Paul Newspaper Row.

Talk of the Kentucky contests—if the Republicans only keep on killing each other off, none will be necessary.

We judge from a letter from Captain O'Farrell, that Minneapolis' anti-imperialist meeting had a rival in Washington's. A dramatic incident was the solemn declaration of the venerable ex-Governor Boutwell of Massachusetts, that as he had helped the McKinley administration into power, so, by the help of God, would he do all in his power to drive it out of power. An incident "censored," Captain O'Farrell says, was that ex-Senator J. B. Henderson, an old time Republican declared that he prayed God to strengthen the right arm of Aguinaldo and his brave men, so that they might achieve independence, and shouted the challenge, "If this is treason, I challenge a trial." "The entire audience rose to its feet, cheering and shouting," Captain O'Farrell writes, "and yelled themselves hoarse with shouts of 'Down with McKinley and the traitors to the Declaration of Independence!'"

Our friends in the senate are doing themselves proud in opposing the Republican financial bill. Daily speeches of great force and power are delivered, of which, in the discrimination of the Associated Press, however, the people not having the privilege of the Congressional Record know little or nothing.

The state labor department has completed an elaborate report on wages of Minnesota labor, which will be considered next week. Suffice to say now, that it is entirely lacking in evidences of any material or general increase.

Watch for the "war" dispatches from Duluth, when the Truelson Boers will sweep the goppite British into the "unsalted sea," in the spring election.

What reform administration is doing for Minnesota wheat grades and prices is shown by current New York quotations. In connection therewith it is pertinent to remark that some years ago Duluth No. 1 Northern was quoted about the same or a little higher than No. 2 Red winter wheat. This condition, however, was gradually changed under the former inspection service, until No. 1 Northern fell below No. 2 Red.

Under the present inspection service No. 1 Northern is up again to its former position. And that this is not due to error of accident, is evident from the fact that it continues at its relatively high figure day after day without a break.

But the quotations speak for themselves:

New York Quotations—Wheat:

Date.	No. 2 Red Winter.	No. 1. Northern, Duluth.
Jan. 8, 1900	75¼	79
Jan. 9,	74¾	78⅝
Jan. 10,	76½	79⅜
Jan. 12,	75¼	78⅝

And so on.

Oh, yes, grades and reputation of Minnesota wheat have been "ruined" by the present regime!

Said Bob Ingersoll in his great speech nominating Blaine at Cincinnati in 1876: "For the first time since man kept record of events the sky has arched above and domed a land beneath, that holds neither a serf, a servant nor a slave."

These words were uttered in his speech attempting to show that the Republican party, above all things, stood for freedom and equality of all men, of all races and all creeds. This quotation sounds beautiful under conditions as they now exist. What Republican dares quote Ingersoll's speech, in the face of the fact that some of our new citizens own "slaves and harems galore," and we poor devils lick the stamps to pay the freight?

Brave Andrew Carnegie! The stand that son of Scotland has taken for true Americanism, redeems him from a host of sins he committed in aiding the election of McKinley.

What a swipe Carnegie gave the imperialists, when they charged him with paying the cable tolls on Senator Hoar's speech, to carry the same to Aguinaldo. "I did not do it," declared Mr. Carnegie, "because the Filipinos did not need the speech to inspire them. But I would contribute the amount ($4,000), to put the speech into the hands of Americans who should read it, and who should follow the advice it contains."

While corn is also lower than a year ago, wheat continues the "Jim Dandy" for driving home the political lesson to farmers. Wheat is now 10 cents per bushel lower than the average January price for the past five years, and 8 cents lower than the January average for 10 years past! And this, too, with short crops and good foreign demand. What will be the result with big crops and less foreign demand? How the farmers must enjoy this gold standard, trust-ridden administration—this sway of the money power!

Hanna has made his first shout for campaign money, to send men out "to meet the labor agitators," says Hanna, "who are at work in the west." In the same breath Hanna declares the prosperity of labor will be a chief issue in the campaign. Labor is so prosperous that it needs campaign money to show it how prosperous and contented it is.

Apropos, Hanna's gold standard, 50-cent wheat prosperity has been conserved by the trust flouring mills of Minneapolis and Duluth shutting down, discharging employes, and, in some cases, boarding up the mill windows. For explanation the management simply said it was "ordered from headquarters."

Are these the "smokestacks" that were to so becloud the sky as to drive the people to spectacles?

The indications are that the name "American League," may be adopted to embrace all the work of organization of the different forces that will unite under one banner in this campaign. It is certainly more euphonious and less objectionable than "anti," as applied to imperialism and to the trusts, and altogether most suggestive and patriotic. With that, and with the flag already adopted as the Liberty symbol, the anti-Republican forces will have the goppites where the hair is short and the skin very tender.

G. S. O.

News of the Week

From Washington.

The Philippine commission's report has gone to the printer.

The Blackfeet Indians of Montana have a grievance against the government.

The president has asked congress to pay $4,500 for repairing the cable which Dewey cut.

American exports for 1899 were $1,275,486,641, breaking the 1898 record and exceeding the imports by $475,652,021.

The senate has passed resolutions asking information about the Philippine war, flour seizures and fiscal operations in Cuba.

The house committee is unanimous as to Roberts' polygamous status, but will present two reports as to the method of ousting him.

The urgency deficiency bill appropriates $20,000 to complete surveys of lakes to ocean routes, and increases the appropriation for the Paris exposition to $1,199,500.

The director of the census will call a meeting of the twenty-three supervisors, to be held in Washington Jan. 24, for conference with himself and other census officials.

The fleet in the Philippines is to be reduced. The navy wants to place an appropriation of over $6,000,000 in the deficiency bill to keep the naval stations of the late Spanish islands in repair.

The secretary of war has sent to the senate the draft of a bill prepared by the judge advocate general of the army making it a misdemeanor to refuse to obey a subpoena from a court-martial.

Among the bills introduced in the senate was one by Senator Pettus to create a commission of five to adjudicate the claims of citizens of the United States in connection with the war in Cuba.

Gen. Buffington, chief of ordnance, war department, writes that the experience of the Civil and Spanish wars show the necessity of large plants for small arms, the number on hand being inadequate for emergencies.

The house committee on military affairs acted favorably upon the bill establishing a military post at Fort Sheridan, Wyo., and making an appropriation of $100,000 for a military hospital at Fort Leavenworth, Kan.

Commander C. C. Pollock has been appointed chief hydrographer of the navy department, relieving Capt. Craig, who is going to England in a few days on an American line steamer to bring the cruiser Albany to this country.

The attorney general, sitting with the secretary of the treasury and secretary of war, gave a second hearing to the representatives of the State of Tennessee in respect to the claims of the state and the United States against each other. The matter was taken under advisement and it is not expected a conclusion will be reached for a month or more.

Accidental Happenings.

A recent fire at Dawson City caused a loss of $500,000.

William McDorman, a painter, was caught in an elevator shaft of a Lima (Ohio) hotel and crushed to death.

A church collapsed during the celebration of mass in Maloousene township, Sumara district, Russia. Nineteen persons were killed and sixteen were wounded.

Mrs. George Sabal arrived from Germany, met her husband at Virden, Ill., after ten years' separation, started to cross the track, was dragged under an engine and beheaded.

The fishing steamer Grayling, Capt. Sullivan, which has reached Seattle, reports the probable drowning of three men, the crew of the Ruby Ann, a small sloop, which was found off Whidby island.

A tube in the boiler of the government yacht Capron exploded at Wilmington, Del., scalding nine men, three of them so seriously that they may die. The other six men sustained only slight burns and bruises.

Fire in the large dry goods store of J. B. Wells, Son & Co., at Utica, N. Y., did damage amounting to $75,000 to $100,000. The building suffered but slightly. Smoke and water seriously injured the stock.

Lieut. Samuel Howard, U. S. N., the pilot and the last of the officers and crew of Ericsson's Monitor during her memorable engagement with the Confederate ironclad Merrimac, died at Washington from concussion of the brain, the result of a fall.

Personal.

The marquis of Lothian, former keeper of the great seal of Scotland, is dead, aged sixty-seven years.

Collis P. Huntington has refused to make a donation of $20,000 to the Throop Polytechnic institute of Pasadena, Cal.

Mrs. S. M. F. Henry, for twenty-five years national evangelist of the Woman's Christian Temperance union, died at Graysville, Tenn., of pneumonia.

Marion Manola Mason, the comic opera singer, has filed a suit for divorce at New York from her husband, John Mason, the actor, on statuory grounds.

R. R. Cable, president of the Rock Island Railway company, was elected president of the Corn Exchange Bank of New York in place of R. McIntyre, resigned.

Capt. Graham Stone, county treasurer for many years, and who, during the Civil war, served gallantly in the Confederate navy, died at Mobile, Ala., aged sixty years.

Judge James Phelps died suddenly at his home at Essex, Conn., aged seventy-eight years. He served in the Forty-fifth, Forty-sixth and Forty-seventh congresses.

Dr. Adam H. Witmer, first assistant physician at the government hospital for the insane, died of heart failure at Washington, aged fifty-five years. He leaves a widow and one child.

Foreign.

Dum-dum bullets are said to have been found on Boer prisoners.

Prince Alfieri, commander of the papal guard of nobles, is dead at Rome.

The Paris exposition will open on April 15. A reproduction of Vesuvius will be a feature.

The French cabinet has approved Lockroy's naval plans, involving an expenditure of $80,000,000.

Prof. John Le Martineau, the eminent theologian, died in London. He was in his ninety-fifth year.

Li Hung Chang is again vested with vice regal power, succeeding Viceroy Kan, whom the French have forced out.

Consul Skinner of Marseilles reports to the state department that the olive crop in Italy, France and Spain is practically a failure and will hardly reach 30 per cent of the average.

The Burmese rice crop has broken the record and over 2,020,000 tons will be available for export to foreign countries. Burmah is also able to supply a practically unlimited quantity to the Indian famine districts.

Criminal Record.

Two Denver newspaper men were shot by a lawyer recently.

A New York man convicted of robbery tried to hypnotize the judge, but got twelve years.

David Harvey of Summit, Ill., was arrested, charged with forgery, the sum involved being $2,200.

A Columbia (Ga.) bank cashier called an assistant to his room, and then killed himself. He was insane.

A feud between two Kentuckians led to shooting in a Frankfort hotel, killing three persons and wounding five.

Two prisoners at West Plains, Md., killed their jailer and escaped. There was talk of lynching if the prisoners were caught.

The strike of 20,000 vehicle drivers in Rio Janeiro led to a riot, during which the monarchists tried to start a revolution, but failed.

The mayor and aldermen of the city of Milwaukee were adjudged in contempt of court in granting the street railway franchise recently.

Otherwise.

Atlantic steamship companies have advanced rates, in view of the Paris exposition.

No negotiations are in progress looking to the abrogation of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty.

McLaurin was elected senator for the long term and Sullivan for the short by the Mississippi legislature.

For the first time in ten years a bounty has been claimed for a wolf shot in the wilds of Cook county, Ill.

Davis & Drake, wholesale liquor dealers of Boston, have filed a petition in bankruptcy. Liabilities, $90,160; assets, $18,160.

Another big colony of Dunkers from the northern part of Wabash county, Ind., will probably leave for North Dakota in March.

Trading in "puts" and "calls" on the Chicago board of trade has been finally and absolutely prohibited by the directors of the board.

There is a soft coal famine at Philadelphia and in consequence several manufacturing concerns in the Schuylkill valley have shut down.

The Virginia house of delegates has passed the "Jim Crow" car bill, a measure requiring separate cars for whites and blacks on railways.

The Live Stock Commission Merchants' Protective association has been formed at Kansas City to secure better protection against cattle swindlers.

At meetings held at New York the foundation plans were laid for the ecumenical conference to be held in this city from April 21 to May 1, 1900.

Attorney General Griggs has filed an answer in the supreme court that Dewey's Manila bay captures and Sampson's destruction of Cervera's fleet cannot be considered personal prizes.

The North Carolina Populist state committee has called the state convention for April 18 at Raleigh. It was practically decided to continue the fusion arrangement with the Republicans.

The professors of the university at Cincinnati will immediately quit if President Ayer insists that all members of the faculty should resign and he accept such resignations as he may select.

D. A. Grutzer of Chicago and several other capitalists of that city have decided to establish a large furniture factory in Knoxville, Tenn. One thousand Swedes will be colonized here to operate the plant.

Notice has been given to the employes of the American tin mill at Canal Dover, Ohio, that the mill is to be shut down indefinitely. The closing of the mill throws about 800 heads of families out of employment.

Trustee Jacob Schwab, of the Chicago board of education, will offer a resolution at the next meeting to provide separate school buildings for boys and girls. He says: "The girls learn too much roughness from the boys."

The judiciary committee of the house unanimously agreed to grant the request of the Woman's Suffrage union for a hearing on Feb. 13, at the time when the National Woman Suffragist association will be in session here.

Representatives of the cement trade in the trans-Mississippi territory at a called meeting at Kansas City, Mo., are said to have decided to raise prices on that articles. Delegates were present from Kansas, Nebraska and Iowa.

Mrs. Roswell P. Flower has presented $100,000 to Flower hospital at New York, and Mrs. Flower-Taylor, daughter of the late Roswell P. Flower, also gave the institution $100,000. The only condition attached to the gifts was that the Flower hospital shall be retained in perpetuity.

BOERS FALL BACK

THEY RETIRE BEFORE BULLER'S ADVANCING ARMY.

Colenso Evacuated by Boers in Order to Strengthen Their Force at Spearman's Farm—Boers Set Fire to All the Houses in the Village—Reinforcements Going Forward to Buller's Assistance — Every Hour He Delays His Combined Attack Makes His Position Stronger.

London, Jan. 21.—The Standard publishes the following, dated yesterday, from Spearman's Farm:

"It is reported the Boers east of Colenso on finding Gen. Buller had outmaneuvered them, crossed to the south of the Tugela on Monday and set fire to all the houses in the village. As the force from Chieveley advanced the Boers retired before them to trenches on a hill in line with Colenso. Our infantry advanced to the attack in skirmishing order, followed by supports and reserves, our cavalry scouting on the right close up to the river. The Boer forces at Colenso must have been considerably weakened by the dispatch of large reinforcements westward to meet Gen. Buller's advance, and they now hurriedly evacuated the river trenches and the kopjes opposite the village and scattered before our shrapnel. By evening none of the enemy was left within rifle-shot of Colenso. The British force then retired to Chieveley."

Boers Evacuate Colenso.

London, Jan. 21. — The Daily Mail publishes the following dispatch, dated Thursday, from Spearman's Camp:

"It is rumored that the Boers have evacuated Colenso in order to reinforce their troops here. Heavy gunfire was heard from Ladysmith this morning. Gen. Buller's order instructs the men to heed the white flag of the Boers only when they lay down their arms. It also instructs them to beware of false bugle calls."

Buller Close to Ladysmith.

London, Jan. 21.—A Durban special dated Thursday night, says:

"It is reported here that Lord Dundonald has smashed a Boer convoy. Gen. Buller is said to be within twelve miles of Ladysmith and Gen. Warren to be about six miles to the rear."

As Reported by Boers.

London, Jan. 21.—The Boer accounts of the passage of the Tugela river are given in two following dispatches from Commandant Viljoen's camp on the Upper Tugela, via Lourenzo Marquez, dated Jan. 18:

"Jan. 16—Buller's second move was a reconnoissance in force with an armored train and a large body supported by cannon last night. A heavy bombardment ensued, and thereupon the British returned, having wounded some of our men. No reply was made. The movement was a feint to cover extensive movements up the river. Kaffirs on this side of the Tugela have been warned by the British to leave their kraals as the fight will commence shortly."

The second dispatch runs thus:

"Jan. 17—The night was unbroken save for slight rifle encounters between outposts, which led to nothing. At daybreak the enemy was located as before. He had not brought a single gun across the river, but from the heights of Swartzkop a battery and a half of siege guns opened on our position at 5 a. m. The bombardment was probably the most frightful ever witnessed on land. Frequently five heavy naval guns fired simultaneously at one schanze (intrenchment)."

REINFORCING BULLER.

Every Hour That He Delays His Attack Makes His Position Stronger.

London, Jan. 21. — Every hour that Gen. Buller delays his combined attack makes his position stronger. Transports continue to arrive at Durban and fresh troops are being sent up the line to reinforce those in front of Colenso. It appears that Gen. Buller's troops north of the Tugela number at least 22,000, and possibly 25,000, with fifty guns. His total forces, forming a great outer curve south and west of Ladysmith, probably number 40,000. While Gen. Buller's forward operations, which began on Jan. 10, develop rather leisurely, the Boers appear to be fully aware that they must meet a strenuous assault. Balloon observers have roughly estimated that Boers are using spade and pick in artificially strengthening positions, which nature has rendered easy of defense. Military critics in touch with the war office think that news that general fighting has begun may be expected at any hour. It is not thought that one day's fighting will settle the fate of Ladysmith, but rather that there will be two or three days of continuous fighting.

LIABLE TO LEGACY TAX.

Decision as to Money Left to a Priest for Saying Mass.

Port Townsend, Wash., Jan. 21.—According to the ruling received by the treasury department and made by the commissioner of internal revenue, a bequest of money to a priest for the purpose of saying mass for the repose of souls is liable to legacy tax. The case came before the commissioner from Illinois, where a bequest had been made for that purpose.

RELOADING THE CARGO.

The Bundesrath Free to Pursue Her Trip to Delagoa Bay.

Hamburg, Jan. 21. — A dispatch received here from Durban, Natal, says the Bundesrath's cargo has been redelivered to her agents and will be reloaded. The steamer expects to sail for Delagoa Bay Monday.

Forming an Electric Light Trust.

Chicago, Jan. 21.—A $500,000 electric light trust to operate between Evanston and Waukegan is in process of formation. The territory proposed to be lighted includes twenty-seven miles along the shore of Lake Michigan and twelve towns.

Greenway's Excuse.

Winnipeg, Jan. 21. — Greenway admits his efforts to aid the Canadian railroad and the truthfulness of the latters produced, but contends he was working in the interest of the people.

BRITONS GUESSING.

Speculating on Davis' Visit to the Transvaal.

Lourenzo Marquez, Jan. 23. — Webster Davis, United States assistant secretary of the interior, arrived here yesterday on his way to Pretoria, and called upon the governor general, Capt. Alvaro Don Ferriera, who gave him a most courteous reception and requested him to convey a message of special friendship to President McKinley. The Transvaal representative has informed Mr. Davis that President Kruger's salon carriage will convey him to Pretoria.

-0-

London, Jan. 23.—The publication of the fact that President Kruger is sending a private car to take Webster Davis from Lourenzo Marquez to Pretoria is causing considerable speculation here as to whether Mr. Davis, notwithstanding the denial from Washington, has not some sort of official mission. It is thought rather singular that a simple traveler, even though an official at home, should receive so much attention. The subject is attracting the continental papers, who are inquiring through the London representatives whether the British government has information regarding the mission of Mr. Davis. They are loath to believe that one of President McKinley's assistant secretaries would take a vacation in the Transvaal and be given a leave of absence for several months without some such purpose. A recent dispatch from Washington pointed out that Mr. Davis had given up his proposed visit to the Transvaal owing to the possibility that it might be misinterpreted.

Says Macrum Has Peace Terms.

London, Jan. 23.—A special dispatch from Naples says that Mr. Macrum is reported to be the bearer of a letter from President Kruger to President McKinley in which the former proposes peace terms based upon the status quo, with complete independence and a seven-year franchise.

Davis' Trip Purely Personal.

New York, Jan. 23.—A special to the Times from Washington says: It is stated authoritatively that Webster Davis is not charged with any mission from this government to the Transvaal. Mr. Davis, who holds the office of assistant secretary of the interior, left the department some weeks ago. It is said, as the result of a controversy with Secretary Hitchcock and Pension Commissioner Evans, and will probably not return. He was granted three months' leave of absence and has gone on a purely personal trip to South Africa.

MUCH DAMAGE DONE.

Earthquake in Mexico Attended by Serious Results.

City of Mexico, Jan. 23.—News is arriving from the interior points affected by the earthquake Friday night and Saturday morning. Much damage was done to property in Guadalajara and the City of Colima, capital of the state of the same name, was the scene of terrifying experiences, accompanied by loss of life. The City of Mexico came off comparatively unscathed in the quake, few accidents occurring here or in the suburbs, although some huts in the suburbs fell in and one bridge was partly wrecked. The subterranean electric light insulation was not harmed and the city continues to be well illuminated.

-0-

Colima, Mex., Jan. 23. — An earthquake shock began here at a quarter before midnight Friday and assumed serious proportions at Tenimata, many houses being badly injured and some of light construction wrecked. There was great consternation and people rushed into the streets, some barely escaping with their lives. Seven people were killed outright and sixty were wounded and are being cared for by local surgeons.

-0-

Guadalajara, Mex., Jan. 23.—At midnight Friday an earthquake shock cracked the arches and staircase of the state palace and the porticoes of the university and the Degallado theater, the latter one of the most massive structures here. The churches of San Francisco and San Jose were damaged. The former is one of the handsomest edifices on the continent and is locally known as the Golden Cup from the magnificence of its interior. The government has closed Ragario church, fearing the dome will fall in. Carmen barracks were badly damaged, and news from Zapaotlan and Sarula state that several houses were demolished.

HUNG HIS RIVAL.

While the Execution Was Not a Complete Success It May Result in Murder.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Because he loved Bartholomue Pieta's wife, John Staezeh, a farmer, tried yesterday to hang the man who stood in his way. In the little cottage of his rival out near Rose Hill cemetery, the self-appointed executioner partially carried out the murder. He would have succeeded had not his victim fought so for his life that he escaped from the house with the noose about his neck and the rope dragging behind him, and fell unconscious in a ditch. While the hanging was not a complete success it may yet result in murder for the victim is in a critical condition.

BOMBS FOUND IN HAVANA.

Explosives Stolen From the Arsenal Are Located, and Several Arrests Are Made.

Havana, Jan. 23.—A quantity of explosives and bombs, supposed to have been stolen from the Havana arsenal, has been discovered and several arrests have been made. Chief of Police Cardenas says the men identified with the theft of the bombs and in whose possession they were found, are not suspected of being engaged in any plot.

Street Cars Tied Up.

Albany, N. Y., Jan. 23. — All the street cars in Troy were tied up as a result of the strike of 365 motormen and conductors of the United Traction company. The men demand 20 cents an hour and a ten-hour day.

Suspects Are Captured.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Two men who the police believe have been responsible for many bank robberies in small Indiana towns during the past few weeks were arrested in a Clark street saloon after a severe struggle.

HOT FIGHT RAGING

GEN. WARREN IS FORCING THE BOERS BACKWARD.

Two Days' Continuous Attack on the Boer Position — Boers Evacuate One Position to Fall Back into Another Strongly Entrenched One—Gen. Buller Reports That Satisfactory Progress Is Being Made—Warren Fights a Deliberately Planned and Successful Battle—Three Boer Positions Occupied.

London, Jan. 23.—The Times has the following, dated Sunday evening, from Spearman's Camp:

"All Saturday and Sunday Gen. Warren has been attacking the Boers. Their position is on a long ridge, four miles northwest of Trichard's drift, ascending from the river. At dawn Saturday our guns occupied a kopje on the east of the range. The enemy's defenses were chiefly stone sangars extending forward and right along the spur, making the position semi-circular. At 11 o'clock Gen. Hart's brigade advanced on the left along a rocky, uneven spur into the semi-circle, under heavy fire from three directions. Taking advantage of all possible cover, the troops advanced to a point within 500 yards of the enemy's right wing, but they did not advance beyond the edge of the cover. There they remained until dark and bivouacked. At night the enemy's right wing evacuated its position."

Boers Retreated.

Spearman's Camp, Jan. 23.—After ten hours of continuous and terrific fire Generals Hart and Clery advanced 1,000 yards. The Boers maintained an irregular fire during the night, but the British outposts did not reply.

At daybreak the Boers opened a stiff fire. The British stood at the guns where they had slept and the engagement was renewed vigorously. The field artillery poured shrapnel into the enemy's trenches. A rumor that Ladysmith had been relieved enlivened the British, who sent up a ringing cheer. This was taken for an advance. The first kopje was carried at the point of the bayonet and the Boers retreated to the next kopje, which, like most others, was strewn with immense boulders surmounted by mounds on the summit. The British advanced steadily and the Boers relaxed slightly. The latter did not show such tenacity as previously. Their Nordenfeldts fired at long intervals and their cannon fired but seldom. Apparently the Boers were short of ammunition. All day the roar of musketry fire continued. The British took three Boer positions on the mountain, and found shelter behind the boulders.

Substantial Progress.

London, Jan. 23.—Gen. Buller cables as follows to the war office from Spearman's Camp at 9 p. m. last night:

"Gen. Warren has been engaged all day, chiefly on his left, which he has swung forward about two miles. The ground is very difficult, and as the fighting is all the time up-hill, it is difficult to say exactly how much we have gained, but I think we are making substantial progress."

Warren's Successful Battle.

London, Jan. 23. — The Daily Telegraph has the following, dated Saturday, from Spearman's Camp:

"Gen. Warren's force have fought a deliberately planned and successful battle. This engagement occurred to the west of Spyon kop, and practically resulted in our securing the south tableland, which constituted the key of the Boer position. After a fierce cannonade had been directed against the enemy's lines for some time the British troops assembled near an eminence known as Three Tree Hill, which forms the center of a semi-circle of crests, crowned with the enemy's works and some six miles long. Steadily and with great dash the British infantry went forward in the face of a heavy fusilade from Mauser rifles. Soon after midday the battle on the hill became furious, and from 3 in the afternoon until 6 in the evening the fire from both cannon and rifles was extremely heavy. Point after point of the enemy's position were seized by the British troops, and eventually the Boer right broke and was forced back toward Spyon kop. In yesterday's fighting our losses were trifling, but the Boers suffered heavily.

Secrecy Is Essential.

London, Jan. 23.—The justifiable severity of the censorship at the present moment prevents the special correspondents from giving additional information to supplement Gen. Buller's latest dispatch. The success of the movement depends almost entirely upon how far he proves able to outmaneuver the Boers, whose available forces are doubtless larger than his own. The chief difficulty lies in the ability of the Boers to transport men, stores and ammunition quickly and to intrench new positions. Secrecy regarding Gen. Buller's progress, therefore, is essential, and the public press is quite content to wait patiently.

Boers Are Disheartened.

London, Jan. 23.—The correspondent of the Times at Lourenzo Marquez, telegraphing Saturday, says:

"I learn from an absolutely unbiased and trustworthy informant that the Boers are disheartened. I also learn that the British residents in the two republics would suffer severely at the hands of the burghers did not the latter fear the result to the Boers in the hands of the British."

Destroyed by Fire.

Lafayette, Ind., Jan. 23.—The buildings, machinery and manufactured lumber of the Taylor Lumber company was totally destroyed by fire. Loss, $47,000; insurance, $57,000, which covers entire plant. The lumber yard was saved.

Killed in a Family Row.

New York, Jan. 23.—Three Italians of one home were shot to death in an interfamily row which began in an Italian tenement house on East Eleventh street about noon yesterday.

St. Hilaire Spectator.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

It would be a blessing if the whisky trust trusted nobody.

Truth is the grandest word in the language, but few can discover it.

The fellow that kicks the most about taxes is the one who pays none at all.

All women are born equal—but some of them spoil it by marrying worthless men.

You can never convince a man that a luncheon can be as satisfying as a dinner.

Michigan's fighting parson is now to spar for charity. But he has not been reported as turning the other cheek.

A Chicago woman dreamed of burglars and awoke to find them in her room. In other words, it was "no dream."

A child feels that life is worth living when it is allowed to drive without some grown-up holding the reins back of it.

Fashion has ordered womankind to again wear high-heeled shoes. This is not the sole offense of the fussy old dame, either.

If a woman has but one gray hair in her head, it is going to show just at the time when she is trying to impress some one that she is younger than she really is.

Judge Shiras of Iowa has decided that a married woman cannot be compelled to attend school. It is always cheerful to learn of common sense being used on the bench.

When one does discover a grateful woman, she appears to be a veritable rara avis, and is regarded as possessing an unusually fine character, whereas she only has the decency to be properly appreciative.

Queen Victoria, it is said, is manifesting deep interest in Mrs. Kruger, and has asked many questions concerning "Oom Paul's" wife and her influence with her shrewd but warlike spouse. The South African bloodshed may not be stopped through the good offices of two aged, kindly and most estimable women. Had the Transvaal question been left to the queen and Paul Kruger's wife for decision in the first place the present struggle might have been averted.

According to perfectly reliable reports from the seat of war the Boers are quarreling among themselves and the British are suffering from typhoid fever; the Kaffirs are rising against the Boers and the Cape Dutch against the British; 2,000 Boers were killed at Modder river, this loss crushing the spirits of the survivors, and 5,000 British fell at Colenso, thus breaking the hearts of Buller's army. Meanwhile both Boer and Briton sit calmly in their trenches and wonder why the fate of Ananias does not overtake various war correspondents of unlimited imagination.

In 1813 Napoleon in order to increase the popularity of an issue of 5-franc pieces, announced that several bonds redeemable at 5,000 francs each had been inserted in coins of the issue. Dispatches from Binghamton, N. Y., state that J. W. Hoban who opened a saloon recently in Waverly, took a 5-franc piece over the bar. Having read of Napoleon's announcement, and noticing the date on the coin, he opened the latter and found a slip of paper which, presented at a French bank through the banking house of Roger Ryan, was cashed for $11,500, the amount of the bond with interest to date.

The Muncie High School of Muncie, Ind., is self-governing and in control of the students. The governing board consists of a president, who must be a student elected by popular vote, the superintendent of public schools, the principal of the High School, a member of the school board, a woman member of the faculty and one member chosen from each of the high school grades. Five student vice-presidents are the heads of as many departments. All questions of government are brought before the board, on which students hold the controlling vote. The regular studies and study hours, except where they may conflict with some department law, are controlled by the teachers, as usual. A company of uniformed High School cadets is supported; tennis, football, basket-ball and baseball teams are kept up and field day sports are directed. The association also keeps up a glee and mandolin club and a dramatic club. A dramatic club manager and property man are among the officers. The Australian ballot is used.

Representative Berry of Kentucky wants the government to coin 3-cent pieces with a round hole in the center one-quarter of an inch in diameter. The Kentucky congressman has probably had a 3-cent coin put off upon him at some time for a dime and is taking precaution against the recurrence of the act. Possibly, also, he may have borrowed the idea from Chinese coins, in which the hole is so large and the value of the metal so small that a man would have to load himself down with strings of cash in order to pay for a dairy lunch.

England is raising "a corps of gentlemen" for service in South Africa. The invention of gunpowder and cannon is said to have done away with the distinction between a knight and a yeoman, and there is reason to believe that Maxims and Mausers also are not respecters of persons.

If Andrew Jackson resembled the old woodcut portraits which are regularly resurrected on the 8th of January it is small wonder that neither Briton nor Indian could stand before his awful countenance.

THE BOER WOMAN A FIGHTER

She is Never Too Old to Shoot Straight.

Two of my three trips to the Transvaal have been made while the country was in a state of excitement, and on each of these visits I was very glad to get away in safety. My first trip was at the time of the famous Jameson raid, at the beginning of the year '95. The second journey was an uneventful one in '97. Last year I again accompanied my husband, Prof. Mongrenl de Lassomm, to South Africa, from which country we have just returned to San Francisco.

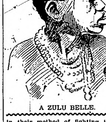
My husband's business, that of a prestidigitateur, takes him all over the world, and I always accompany him. Oom Paul, whose name the Boers pronounce "Ome Powl," is the last on the list of dignitaries before whom the professor has appeared in private exhibitions of his skill. Others are the shah of Persia, empress of Russia, queen of Italy, king of Belgium and prince of Wales. But none of these proved more appreciative or genial than President Kruger, whom the Afrikanders, as a prominent Boer once said to me, regard as a god.

The entertainment took place in the president's home and in the presence of about fifty invited guests who enjoyed Oom Paul's kindly hospitality. The old gentleman was in a very jolly mood that evening, and was as pleased as a child at the program. The tricks with coins amused him most, and he laughed heartily at the mysterious appearance and disappearance of money which passed in and out of hats and pockets with lightning ease through my husband's hands.

Oom Paul looks older than his pictures. He has a very keen expression in his eyes, but this is not readily observed, his eyes not being a conspicuous feature. He cares nothing for clothing of fashionable cut. The house which is his home in Pretoria is quite plain in appearance, but comfortably furnished. On either side of the door is a huge lion in white marble, the pair being a gift to the president from Cecil Rhodes. It seems rather odd just now to think of a British lion guarding a Boer house.

The Boers impressed me as being a very uncouth sort of people, although those that we met were pleasant enough. It is easy to see that they are required to pay little attention to the courtesies of life while young, so that their manners are devoid of polish, and they frequently have a surly air, which does not by any means create a favorable impression upon strangers. But of their fighting qualities there can be no question, and England need not expect to subdue them until their last shot has been fired, and their last ounce of strength is exhausted. There is no more determined and stubborn race of people on earth than the Boers. The children, both boys and girls are taught the use of firearms as soon as they are old enough to hold a gun. They practice constantly. From one generation to another the Boers have been preparing for war, until to fight is now their natural instinct. The women are as courageous and combative as the men. A Boer woman is never too old to shoot straight. You should see them as I have seen them coming to the station to say good-by to husbands, fathers, brothers and sweethearts on their way to the front. Such stoicism is astonishing. Not a tear does a Boer woman shed when she sends a son away from her to fight for his country. Not a tear does she shed when he falls in battle. Fighting to them is a business, a duty—anything but a matter for sentiment.

My opinion is that when there are no more Boer men left in the field, the Boer women will take their places and give desperate battle to the English foe, whom they hate with all their heart. These Afrikander women are better soldiers than most men.



A ZULU BELLE.

One peculiar thing about the Boers in their method of fighting is their custom of standing one behind the other, and when the front man falls the next in turn faces the enemy, then the one behind him, and so on until the last is downed.

Housekeeping in the Transvaal has its servant problem, for the blacks are very inefficient, lazy, untidy and untrustworthy. There are no other domestics to be had. Once in awhile one finds a Zulu or Kaffir who is faithful and honest. We had one with us that we named Ben. He was very proud of the suit of clothes my husband gave him, and became quite attached to us. He obeyed our commands implicitly. A Zulu servant brings his blanket with him, and at night rolls himself up in it, sleeping like a housedog outside the door, in a hall, or anywhere else on the floor. If he is on the street after 9 at night he must be provided with a written excuse from his employer, otherwise the police will arrest him. The law deals very severely with the natives in the Transvaal. One night poor Ben forgot his "passport," and was promptly thrown into jail. We did not discover him for three days. In the mean time we had to hire another Kaffir, who proved as worthless as the blacks usually are. My husband invited a friend to dine, and when we looked for a quart bottle of champagne which he had provided it was nowhere to be seen. Neither was our servant. We found him in a drunken stupor propped against a table. So we dined without our wine. Before he left he stole Ben's clothes and a number of other articles.

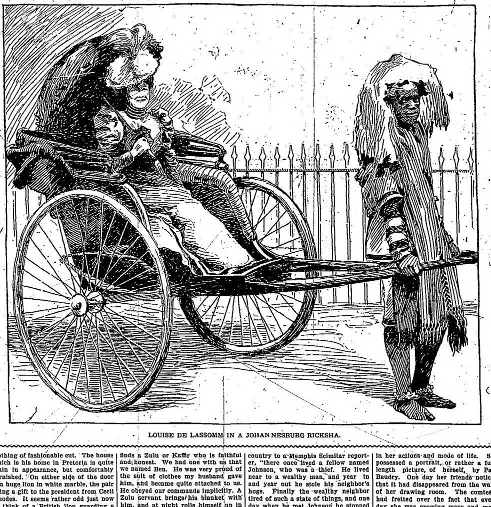
Ugly as the blacks look, though, they are not dangerous unless drunk. They are not permitted to walk on the sidewalks in Johannesburg, and must keep to the middle of the street. While formerly they wore only a cloth about the loins, they are now nearly all dressed in odds and ends of the white man's clothes, but go barefooted.

Life in the Transvaal for women is very pleasant. In Johannesburg I saw more bicycles than in any other city, and I have visited all the large cities of the world. But while all women ride bicycles, the two-wheeled vehicle which is called a ricksha is the favorite means of transportation and outdoor amusement in Johannesburg. The ricksha man is extremely picturesque as to costume. He delights in gay-colored clothes. On his head is a curious bushy covering of white vegetable fiber, and he wears anklets of bells that jingle as he runs. A ricksha costs three shillings an hour.

The horse races attract thousands of people to Johannesburg, who come into town on wheels. A fine vaudeville performance takes place every night in the year, the best seats selling at $2, the lowest 60 cents.

The first time I went to Johannesburg I lived in a barricaded house, where for days people were jumping by the windows in their haste to get out of town. This was because of the Jameson raid. There was a drought, too, and for some time we were compelled to wash our faces with soda water. At that time we gave our clothing to the blacks to launder, but we were wiser after our linen came back to us in shreds. The natives carried the laundry bundles on their heads to a little stream about a mile out of Johannesburg and washed them in muddy water, beating the garments on stones in order to cleanse them.

Whatever happens in the Transvaal, I hope that no harm will come to "Uncle" Paul. I would like to visit South Africa again, pass by the marble lions, and hear the president laugh at my husband's sleight-of-hand tricks in the home of the "god of the Boers."



LOUISE DE LASSOMM IN A JOHANNESBURG RICKSHA.

Agreed to the Bargain.

"In upper East Tennessee," said a Memphis lawyer who was born in that country to a Memphis Scimitar reporter, "there once lived a fellow named Johnson, who was a thief. He lived near to a wealthy man, and year in and year out he stole his neighbor's hogs. Finally the wealthy neighbor tired of such a state of things, and one day when he met Johnson he stopped him and said: 'Now, look here, Johnson. This stealing must stop. You have been stealing my hogs for years, and I'm tired of it. You've got a good Christian wife, and good, honest children, and I don't want to cause you any trouble, but if you don't stop stealing my hogs I'm going to send you to the penitentiary. I'll tell you what I'll do. If you promise not to steal from me any more, I'll give you 500 pounds of bacon every time I kill hogs. Is it a bargain?' Johnson thought for a moment, and then said: 'Well, Mr. Smith, I'll do it, but I'm satisfied I'll lose bacon by it.' Both lived up to the bargain."

King of Siam and His Wives.

The king of Siam has forty wives, and in the harem are 3,000 women who never go out. When Miss Jessie Ackerman, in a missionary spirit, urged upon him the benefit of education for them, he replied: "You know with education there always comes culture and refinement. If I educate my women I should educate them into a state of discontent, for they would want many things which it is impossible for them to have." Now that is a perfectly logical statement, and the king's mind, to all appearance, has traveled as far as that of the Lord Chancellor of England. The Lord Chancellor is very anxious lest women should gain the parliamentary franchise, because in his experience "she will accept nothing but what she believes to be right," a quality which renders her a dangerous guide in political questions. Neither man has, apparently, grasped the thought that there is something wrong about the institution itself that needs mending. The one pool will have its waters stirred to advantage by education, and the other will gain by having in it more people who "will accept only what they think is right."

COMTESSE DE CASTIGLIONE.

She Was as Beautiful as She Was Eccentric.

It needed the news of her death to remind Parisians that one of the most renowned of the beauties of the second empire had lingered on in obscurity for all these years in their midst, says a Paris correspondent of the Pall Mall Gazette. The Countess de Castiglione was one of the most lovely women of her epoch; but she was as eccentric as she was beautiful, and, however much she altered physically with advancing age, she remained true to her character to the end. The only difference was that the nature of her eccentricities changed. In the heyday of her glory she was the heroine of adventures that did more credit to her audacity than to her judgment or reputation. She was wont to express the regret that she had not been born in Greece in the classic age, when no considerations of prudery interfered with the full appreciation of the human form divine. As it was, she was disposed to do her best to override prejudices with which she had no sympathy. Thus she created a memorable sensation, and, it must be confessed, a very considerable scandal, by appearing at a ball in the Tuileries dressed as Salammbo, in a tunic that allowed it to be seen that she had dispensed with any covering whatever for her limbs. Were it possible to show her supreme contempt for the proprieties many other stories might be told of similar exploits on her part. When her beauty began to vanish her anguish of mind was intense and was displayed in her actions and mode of life. She possessed a portrait, or rather a full-length picture, of herself, by Paul Baudry. One day her friends noticed that it had disappeared from the walls of her drawing room. The comtesse had fretted over the fact that every day she was growing more and more unlike the exquisite creature portrayed on the canvas, which, in a final fit of anger and vexation, she had cut up into strips with a pair of scissors. For many years she had lived as an absolute recluse, without a servant of any kind, in an apartment only furnished with carpets and cushions, the shutters of which were always closed.

Nature as an Embalmer.

A curious circumstance concerning the body of Admiral Spotts has been reported from the Falkland islands, where he died 17 years ago. The Falkland physician who attended him during his fatal illness was present at the exhumation of the body when the cruiser Badger was sent for it last year. The coffin had disappeared, but the corpse was absolutely unchanged, even the features having retained the exact appearance that they presented on the day of death. This wonderful preservation was due to the action of the peat water which saturates the islands. It had embalmed the body completely.

They Earn a Living Picking Worms.

Some Japanese women earn their livings by picking worms from the leaves of growing tobacco. The worms secured are put into a bottle, and this bottle serves as evidence that the woman has earned her wage. Without it she would not be paid.

SCIENTIFIC TOPICS.

CURRENT NOTES OF DISCOVERY AND INVENTION.

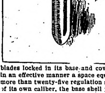
Deadly New Projectile—Rocker and Vehicle—White and Wholemeal Bread—The Prehistoric Tin Trade—The Strength of Aluminum.

White and Wholemeal Bread.

It is commonly supposed that wholemeal bread is more nourishing than ordinary white bread, because it contains a higher proportion of nitrogenous and mineral substances. But as we have frequently pointed out, says the Lancet, the nitrogenous value of a given food is not necessarily indicated by an empirical chemical analysis. Not all nitrogenous substances are feeding stuffs, and, further, it does not follow that the quantity of food partaken of is the quantity of food assimilated. In other words, eating is not necessarily feeding. Whether or not, however, wholemeal bread is superior as regards its nitrogenous contents, it is certainly inferior as regards its digestibility. This may be attributed in a large measure to the fact that wholemeal bread contains comparatively large, indigestible, and irritating particles of husk. There seems, however, no reason for doubting that wholemeal bread would be much more digestible if the branny particles were finely comminuted. We still hold that a more nourishing article, as it is certainly more palatable, is the old-fashioned farmhouse loaf, which presents a gold wheaten color, rather than the blanched appearance which seems to be looked upon as a guarantee of quality in the modern white loaf. Our own laboratory experience, at any rate, shows that probably on account of the increased employment of roller milling processes the important mineral constituents of white bread have very materially diminished. When it is considered that these constituents play a not unimportant part in supplying the bone-forming factors of the organism, this fact assumes a serious importance and may even throw light upon the prevalence of dental decay. On the other hand, wholemeal bread and germ bread contains an enhanced proportion of mineral salts, such as the phosphates of lime and potash, which are necessary in the building up of the entire human frame.

Deadly New Projectile.

Not content with the havoc wrought in warfare by the ordinary explosive shells, an American inventor of Washington city has perfected a new projectile which, in the words of an ordnance expert who has examined it, contains "more potent hell than anything of the like nature ever invented." He calls his invention "the new conical, rotating, ball-bearing, base shell." When ready for firing, the base shell differs but little in appearance from the long, conical shell now in use. Like it it is filled with some high explosive, and carries either a time fuse or a percussion cap. The shell has a base which is separate from but attached to the main body of the shell. This base works on ball bearings and is so attached that while the shell revolves rapidly in its flight the base, working on frictionless steel balls, remains free from any but the forward motion of the projectile. But the distinguishing feature of the base shell, as compared with the shells in everyday use, is this: Attached firmly to the four sides of the base of the shell and fitting in specially fashioned grooves which run the entire length of the shell are four long, murderous-looking steel weapons. In shape and appearance these weapons resemble, when opened from the shell, the American bowie knife. When closed the knives fit closely into the body of the shell. The base shell is touched off from the powder charge after the ordinary method. In its passage to the muzzle of the gun the rifling causes the shell to revolve at a high rate of speed. Thus, almost at the moment the projectile leaves the muzzle of the gun, a set of specially contrived springs, aided by the centrifugal force of the revolving body, causes the knives to be thrown outward and back. A simple mechanical contrivance locks each knife in its place. The four blades held thus perpendicular to the length of the shell steady the base and cause it to come to a state of rest, while the main body of the shell continues to revolve on the ball-bearings. With the four terrible, razor-edged blades locked in its base and covering in an effective manner a space equal to more than twenty-five regulation shells of its own caliber, the base shell plows into the ranks of the enemy against whom it is directed. Its possible execution is something fearful to contemplate. For example, take a five-inch base shell whose length is a little over twenty inches. Add to its base, which is five inches, the projection of two twenty-inch knives. The distance from tip to tip of these knives is forty-five inches. Imagine the shell flying with knives set into the thick ranks of a great army, with its four wings of sharpened steel cutting to pieces everything that stood opposed to its path and leaving within a few seconds a long, clear path through the enemy's lines where fighting men had stood. But when the shell has cut its way through the ranks of the enemy against whom it is directed its work is by no means finished. It has yet to explode, and even in its bursting it will prove more baneful than the ordinary shell, as the four flying knives will be almost certain to strike some one.



Tempestuous Jupiter.

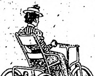
Studies of the planet Jupiter during the opposition of 1899 have afforded some new figures concerning its rate, or rather rates, of rotation. These figures do not affect the round numbers in which the equatorial velocity of Jupiter's rotation is usually stated, viz., about 28,000 miles per hour. But they furnish additional proof that the motions visible on the great planet's surface are not uniform from year to year. Since the spring of 1897 the equatorial region appears to have experienced an acceleration of velocity. Relatively to the surface some 30 degrees north or south, Jupiter's equator rushes ahead with hurricane speed, between 200 and 300 miles an hour—in itself a sufficient indication that what telescopes show of Jupiter is not a solid crust but layers and masses of restless vapors.

Paper That Will Not Burn.

It has been found possible to make a thin, smooth and strong paper of asbestos, which can be employed in the manufacture of paper lanterns and other articles which need to be at the same time light and fireproof. The asbestos paper can also be made waterproof. It is prepared with the same machinery used for making ordinary paper.

Rocker and Vehicle.

The latest idea in tricycles is shown in the accompanying cut, representing a recent patent taken out by a California man. Instead of the rider using his arms or legs to operate levers, or pedals, as the case may be, he is now bolstered up in a rocking chair and rocks himself back and forth. The motion of the rockers, which rest on springs, is translated into a rotary motion which operates the sprocket wheel and chain and this in turn operates the driving wheels in the rear. The latest achievement of inventive genius will at least aid in developing the abdominal muscles, and, as this is a weak spot in the present generation, perhaps the rising generation in the west will be exhibiting wonderful development in this region.



The Prehistoric Tin Trade.

Recent investigation of the old problem of the diffusion of tin over eastern Europe and Asia Minor in prehistoric times leads to the conclusion that about a thousand years before Christ the tin of the British Isles was carried overland to the Aegean sea. The invention of the anchor led about 2,700 years ago to the opening of a marine route between England and the eastern end of the Mediterranean, and then the Phrygians controlled the tin trade with their ships. The short summer nights of North Britain were among the wonders that Greeks talked of in the days of Homer.

Bacteria as Engineers.

Improbable as it seems, says the London Lancet, it appears to be a fact, that bacteria are able to cause the breaking down of stone walls. Recent investigations have shown that nitrifying bacteria swarm in the mud formed by the disintegration of cement in reservoirs, and it is believed that the decay of the cement results from the action of nitrous acid produced by the bacteria. Yet these same microscopic engineers, whose myriads undermine solid walls of masonry, are nevertheless of immense use to man because they are chief agents in the purification of water.

The Strength of Aluminum.

In reply to the question which, it is said, metal workers frequently ask, "What is the strength of aluminum?" the Aluminum World says that cast aluminum is about equal in strength to cast iron in tension, while in resisting compression it is comparatively weak. Under transverse strain aluminum is not very rigid, but it will bend nearly double before breaking. The tensile strength of aluminum is greatly improved by forging and pressing at a temperature of 600 degrees Fahrenheit, and aluminum alloyed with nickel is much stronger than the pure metal.

American Physique.

Prof. Angelo Mosso of Turin, a celebrated Italian savant, who recently visited this country, was greatly impressed by our gymnasiums and athletic sports. He thought it especially admirable that physical education was carried to so high a degree here without any military object. The American boys and girls in point of physique, he says, are far superior to those of Italy, and he confesses that he had "only to look at the passers-by in the street" to be convinced how much more developed and strong they were than his compatriots.

The Number of Our Hairs.

According to the Medical Record, fair-haired people possess, commonly, between 140,000 and 160,000 hairs on the scalp, the number being about the same for man and woman. Dark-haired people have, on an average, about 105,000, while red-haired people are said to have only 30,000 hairs. But the latter apparently possess one great advantage in the fact that they retain their hair better, seldom becoming bald. Their hair is much coarser than that of dark or fair-haired persons.

A Giant Cobra.

Mr. Etheredge, of the Colombo museum, reports the measurement of a specimen of this terrible cobra-de-capello, taken at Jaffna, Ceylon, and showing the formidable length of seven feet nine inches. The measurement was made on the skin of the dead snake. This is said to be by far the largest cobra ever recorded.

Beauty may be only skin deep, but it is nearly always effective.

DAIRY AND POULTRY.

INTERESTING CHAPTERS FOR OUR RURAL READERS.

How Successful Farmers Operate This Department of the Farm—A Few Hints as to the Care of Live Stock and Poultry.

Dairy Notes.

Reports from the eastern seaports tell of butter being sent back from Europe and having to be sold for packing stock or even for grease. It was reported to have been put up in such poor shape that the boxes did not stand the journey and the packages became broken and their contents injured. Whether this was the reason for their rejection by the English we do not know, but it is certain that this manner of shipping butter is a poor recommendation for its sale on any market. Would Canadian butter have been sent in any such shape?

* * *

In New York state the violators of the oleomargarine law are being prosecuted vigorously and the cases have resulted, when brought into court, in the securing of verdicts for the prosecutors. One case went up to the Supreme court and the prosecutors were upheld. There will evidently be no Supreme court decision in New York pronouncing the oleomargarine law illegal, as has been the case in Michigan, and as is threatened in Illinois. Some of the Chicago manufacturers have also violated the internal revenue law in sending oleomargarine into New York state without revenue stamps on each tub. About 200 tubs were recently returned from Albany to the makers in Chicago, but the latter did not dare take them from the cars, fearing arrest by officers of the national government for not having used revenue stamps.

* * *

The dairy farmer is more prosperous than most of the general farmers, largely because his business is more of a cash business than theirs. The effect is seen also on the tradesmen in dairy communities. The credit system is with many tradesmen stretched to the limit. We have heard of some farming communities where the farmers do not settle more than once a year. This is very hard on the men that sell them goods, especially on the men of small capital. The farmer must needs be charged a good round interest in the way of a higher price for goods. Not only does the tradesman frequently lose his bill, but in other cases the farmer, keeping no account of what he buys, finds himself deeply in debt, often so deeply that he cannot get out without making some great sacrifice. The dairyman receives his pay as he goes and pays as he goes. This is best all round. It is a system that is bound to make him master of the situation, and moreover win for him the respect of every man with whom he deals.

* * *

The good price of butter this fall and winter should stimulate winter dairying. The industry seems to be experiencing the results of former low prices in butter and present good prices of beef. In some sections of the west and northwest the low price of both grain and all kinds of meat turned the attention of the farmers to dairying. But as soon as beef began to bring good prices the farmers began to neglect their dairy cows for their beef cattle. In most cases they had stuck to the beef cattle to some extent even for dairy purposes. In Minnesota particularly comparatively few of the dairymen had herds of pure bred dairy cattle. As the profits from such cows must necessarily be small it is no wonder that as soon as beef began to rise in price the producing of beef became a larger item in their eyes than the producing of butter. We believe it to be a mistake for the farmers in any section of the west to let up on the production of butter. Milk products are bound to bring a good price in the future, and the man that goes into dairying with any kind of determination to make it succeed, and begins to develop a good herd of the right kind of cows, will be doing the wise thing. The price of butter is more stable than the price of almost any other product of the farm.

Rye for Poultry.

From Farmers' Review: There is entirely too little written of rye as a green feed for poultry. Why, it is hard to tell, for surely there is nothing cheaper and easier had, also it is extra good for all kinds of poultry and at the same time it is making pasture for fowls and possibly the cow it is loosening the ground for next year's crop. Its fertilizing qualities may not be so good but it does no harm and without a doubt makes the ground looser. There is no one but what can sow a patch in his garden anyhow and after it gets a start let the fowls have the run of it. Unless your poultry is in very great numbers and the rye patch small no harm is done to allow them the run of it all the time—except the ducks and geese. Their broad feet pat the soft ground down so hard and then after it is up the blades do not seem to grow up so quickly after being nipped off by ducks' or geese bills as when they are picked by chickens or turkeys. After it gets a start there is nothing better however for laying ducks than to be turned into a rye patch. Four weeks ago we sowed the garden and truck patch to rye after harrowing the ground. The rye was broad-casted, then logged, and now (Nov. 18) it is quite green, notwithstanding the short winter we had the week after it was sown and that almost a hundred head of poultry have had the run of it all the time. There is a little over two acres on which was planted two and one-half bushels of rye. We were compelled to keep the ducks off it, much to their disgust, but can soon allow them to pasture on it.

There is hardly a bit of pasture for the chicks, and for awhile it seemed the rye would have to give up the struggle, for the chicks would eat in the day nearly all the growth the rye could make in twenty-four hours, but it is coming on nicely now, thanks to the warm rains. If you have never watched chicks, you have no idea how busy they will keep on a patch of rye all day. Were the ground in condition and I had no rye or clover pasture, I would not hesitate to sow now, for it would probably make pasture for the poultry next spring before grass starts up much.

During every warm spell this winter the rye will be there inviting the poultry to eat, and they will not wait for the second invitation. Then in the early spring what a feast! It will not only result in our getting a larger number of eggs, but they will hatch better and stronger chicks, ducks and turkeys. By all means have a patch of rye if you haven't a patch of clover, especially for your poultry's use.

We sold all of our young gobblers and the largest of our young turkey hens the first of the month, receiving 8½ cents per pound. We received but 7¼ cents last year. The way prices are running now we sold them well. We will keep the young hens for the February market. Our experience the past two years in turkey raising has been such that our plans are now to procure enough old hens, so that they may sit after laying their first litter, unless too early in the season; let them sit upon, hatch and raise their own young, but not without our supervision. To be sure they will need to be watched to the nests, eggs gathered and taken care of until they are set; then after hatching they will need to be penned a week or two, but after that they will be comparatively little bother, nothing like as when chicken hens raise them, and they make a better growth, also are free of disease.

EMMA CLEARWATERS.

Heaves.

"I cannot understand," writes a western farmer, "why it is that in the last five years four of my horses have become badly affected with "heaves," so that I cannot work them. I have always fed them all they wanted and in winter they have had a yard to run in where there was a stack of clover hay and another of flax straw so they could not want for food."

We fail to see how horses so fed could escape having "heaves." Yet comparatively few farmers understand how the disease is brought on. The fact of the matter is that coarse fodders are practically always at the bottom of the trouble, so to speak, and dusty timothy hay is also a common cause. Average farm horses get far too much hay and cannot possibly derive any benefit from it, for the surplus amount that cannot be digested becomes a burden and sets up indigestion, eventually a lesion of the pneumogastric nerve, and as a reflex consequence emphysema of the lungs. The disease is incurable when fully developed, although the severe symptoms may be alleviated by commonsense methods of feeding. Bear in mind that no working horse should have all the hay he can eat three times a day. Indeed, when working hard he should be fed hay but once daily and that meal by preference at 8 p. m., after the oats have been eaten and largely digested. Should the hay be dusty it is liable to produce heaves even when fed but once daily, unless it be well shaken up and wetted with water, or where cases are already present, with lime water, which is easily prepared by pouring water upon hot lime. Where the intestines are continuously distended with undigested hay they soon lose tone, gas forms, and the characteristic cough of heaves with the accompanying passage of flatus from the bowels are the next sure signs of the disease.

It may be confidently asserted that "heaves" need never occur if horses are carefully fed as we have so often advised in these columns, viz., feeding hay and fodder in moderation, always providing old, sound, sweet, dustless hay, always giving drinking water before feeding, never allowing horses to eat when hot, fatigued or perspiring, and feeding oats in preference to corn during times of hard labor in hot weather. In addition to these precautions every horse should get a bran mash at least twice a week when working and much oftener when idle with carrots in winter time, as both of these foods tend to keep the bowels acting properly and so ward off attacks of indigestion.

If the following rules are followed any horse afflicted with heaves will in time be fit for light work but will not entirely recover. Keep in clean, well-ventilated barn, and make it impossible for horse to eat bedding. Place a lump of rock salt in manger. When idle feed clean, bright oat straw in preference to timothy hay. Never feed clover hay. Wet all food with lime water. Feed grain in small quantities never using grain under one year old. Never work horse immediately after a meal. Arrange feeding hours so horse will have at least one hour of rest before going to work. If there is any tendency to constipation keep bowels acting freely by giving sloppy bran mashes and gradually accustom horse to taking raw linseed oil in these mashes. In bad cases where great improvement does not follow above method of treatment give one-half ounce of Fowler's Solution of Arsenic morning and night, and in one week, if necessary, increase to three doses daily. In using arsenic in this or any other disease it must, however, be remembered that a horse will "go all to pieces" if suddenly deprived of it, so that when it is decided to quit its use it must be done very gradually by lessening the dose day by day until the horse can get along without it. Fluid extract of lobelia may also be given in very small doses along with the arsenic in aggravated cases.

Eating Oleomargarine.—We wonder whether the writers who urge the use of oleo as a worthy food product have ever really eaten it for any considerable period. The writer lived for nearly two years with a co-operative colony in a southern state. The native butter was scarce, and of miserable quality, our dairy was in an embryonic state, and from motives of economy it was not deemed practicable to buy good northern butter. So we tried to content ourselves with oleo as a fat ration. Scarcely one individual out of 300 ever professed to like it, and many cases of sickness, treated by resident physicians, seemed to be directly caused by eating the oleo.—Rural New Yorker.

Recent experiments in Rhode Island conducted under more nearly normal soil conditions give about 90 for the assimilability of the best quality of dried black blood.

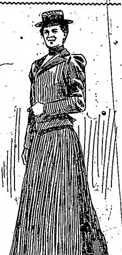
A QUEER COLONY IN MAINE.

Astounding Claims of One E. W. Sandford to Supernatural Power.

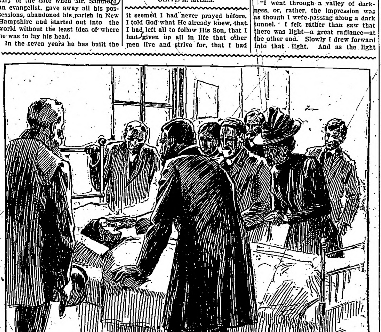
If the testimony of all the 150 inmates of the temple at Shiloh, Maine, is to be believed, the Rev. Frank W. Sandford, chief of the "Holy Ghost and Us" school, and leader of the world's evangelization movement, with its headquarters at Shiloh, has raised from the dead Miss Olive A. Mills, who has been for some time a dweller at the temple.

The testimony given concerning the alleged miracle is earnest, interesting and impressive, if only for the reason that the students at Shiloh are taught that the most absolute veracity must be a part of their Christian life.

People in that section who have been watching the progress of affairs on the Durham sand hill are at a loss to understand how this latest manifestation at Shiloh shall be characterized. Be it understood that the Shiloh temple is located in the farming town of Durham, on the highest elevation in the place—a great, sandy, bare poll. The scattered population about is composed of hard-headed Yankee farmers. The events of the last four or five years on the hill are almost too much for their credulity, and yet in the next breath after expressing doubt as to some things they will tell the listener that they have found Mr. Sandford and his disciples the best citizens the town has had. They pay their bills promptly; they feed the hungry. All are welcome at the temple. The persons who dwell there devote themselves to a life based upon all the precepts of the Bible to the letter. The farmers have had opportunity to watch the doings, for though little has been said about the movement until recently, the work has been going on for seven years. New Year's day was the seventh anniversary of the date when Mr. Sandford an evangelist, gave away all his possessions, abandoned his parish in New Hampshire and started out into the world without the least idea of where he was to lay his head.



OLIVE A. MILLS.



"RAISING THE DEAD TO LIFE." (Drawn from Description.)

In the seven years he has built the great temple without passing the contribution box, has erected a children's building near by—a structure of stone—and has completed and equipped a $25,000 brick building that is called "Bethesda," and which is used as a hospital for the healing of persons by the power of God.

In this building of Bethesda was wrought the alleged miracle that has attracted such wide attention. When a bare outline of the story had been published in the local papers and had made the rounds of the press, the mail for Shiloh (the temple has a post-office of its own) increased to hundreds of letters daily. People all over the United States have been asking for additional facts and seeking corroboration.

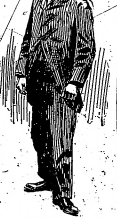
"I have been unable to reply to these letters," said Mr. Sandford to the writer the other day. "They have poured in on me in such numbers that a dozen writers could not keep up with the replies. Furthermore, my sense of responsibility in this matter will not allow me to dismiss it with a brief word of reply. I deprecated the first publication of the matter, for I knew that I should incur the charge of charlatanry. I was talking the matter over with a friend one day and in that way an outline of the case got into the papers. As I feared, the affair has created wide misapprehension as to the purposes of this movement and as to the character of Shiloh. Some people appear to think that I am in business now as a cure-all and propose to anticipate a great deal of the duty that is reserved for the Angel Gabriel. A man in the West, for instance, writes a tearful letter to ask if I will not come there and raise his wife from the dead. She has been in the grave since last August."

In reference to the Mills miracle he said:

"When I entered the room where Miss Mills was lying my heart sank. She was on her bed, where she had been confined for several days. The smell of death was in the room. Her jaw had dropped and her eyes were uprolled and staring. Those who were about the bedside told me she had quivered and passed away. There was, so far as I could judge, not a sign of heartbeat, no pulsation, no evidence of breathing.

"'Oh, God, give her back to me!' I cried.

"Then I knelt by the side of the bed and prayed in a whisper. I prayed as it seemed I had never prayed before. I told God what He already knew, that I had left all to follow His Son, that I had given up all in life that other men live and strive for, that I had allowed myself to be called a fool for His sake, that I had tried to walk as closely to Him as mortal could. I had observed all his commandments, even to the giving no thought to the morrow, extending ungrudging hospitality, praying, fasting, and doing all the works that He has asked as evidence of the true and contrite heart.



F. W. SANDFORD.

"As I prayed there with the people about me, and the motionless form on the bed, there came into my mind as though some kind angel whispered them these words from the gospel of John:

"'Verily, verily, I say unto you; he that believeth on me, the works that I do he shall do also; and greater works than these shall he do, because I go unto my Father. And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son. If ye love me keep my commandments.'

"'I have kept Thy commandments,' I said. 'I have believed on Thee, not with the mere belief that there was once such a man as Jesus Christ, but with all the dread and awful significance of the great word "belief." I believe not in Christ as a historical personage, but as a present help in time of trouble.'

"And as I prayed thus there came to me the consciousness that God was hearing me with the intent to grant my prayer.

"I stood up beside that bed of death. I placed my hand on the brow of that woman. I cried with the perfect confidence of faith and almost without volition on my part:

"'In the name of Jesus of Nazareth, Olive Mills, come back!'

"There was then no entreaty, no supplication for her to come back—it was command—and she came!

"In a little while her eyelids commenced to twitch, her lips to flutter, her breast to heave. She was with us again. In an hour she was sitting up in bed and a little after she was down in my office telling me her wonderful story. I had hardly dared realize until then that in reality this woman had been in the hands of death.

"In order that there may be no doubt as to her opinion on this matter she has written out this statement."

Evangelist Sandford took from his pocket several closely written sheets. The statement is as follows:

"I had been ill for several days at Shiloh, but I was not very much worried at first. Then I grew worse. The elders at Shiloh prayed with me, but in spite of their appeals I know I passed out of this life. I knew when my jaw dropped. It was death. Then for a time I was in darkness.

"I went through a valley of darkness, or, rather, the impression was as though I were passing along a dark tunnel. I felt rather than saw that there was light—a great radiance—at the other end. Slowly I drew forward into that light. And as the light gleamed brighter and brighter my joy grew more and more profound. I knew that I was approaching the kingdom of God Almighty. I was afraid just a moment—there in the dark; then I got out of the fear into the great, wonderful peace of God that I shall never forget. I know I went almost to heaven. I know—I know that, for the joy touched my spirit. As you approach a vineyard you scent the fragrance of the grapes before you get where they are. Well, I was near enough to heaven for the fragrance to touch my spirit. It was beautiful! Then, from away back somewhere, came thinly and faintly the words, 'In the name of Jesus of Nazareth, Olive Mills, come back.'

"But I didn't want to go back. I rebelled. I kept on into the brightness. At the mouth of the dark place I saw a word written on the wall in letters of fire. The word was 'Preach.' I stopped to read and wonder. And again came from far behind the command, 'Olive Mills, come back.' Oh! how hard it was to turn away from all the radiance ahead. But somehow I knew that the word of God Himself was in that faint voice I heard. I just had to go back.

"And again I was over the body from which I had departed. The people were gathered about. It seemed to me that this poor, sunken casket of flesh was some old, soiled, discarded garment. I rebelled at putting it on again. But I knew there was good reason for this command that had been laid upon me. After what I had experienced I was in no mood to withstand the commands of God. So I went back into my body. I have but faintly and vaguely recorded my impressions. I have not the power of language to tell you of the wonderful sensations—to make you realize all the experience. But what I have told you is true. My sister came down to Shiloh to see how much of my recovery was faith and how much was fact, and she found that faith was fact."

To the two hundred apostles and students at Shiloh Miss Mills has related this story in detail, standing before them in the temple at one of the regular services of the day. Nearly all the inmates of Shiloh have talked with her and have heard her wonderful narrative again and again. There is only one opinion on the matter at Shiloh. That is entire and implicit belief. Furthermore, a dozen or so of the elders were in the room with Mr. Sandford when the alleged miracle was wrought.

In the section round about Shiloh there are all sorts of expressions. The clergymen of Lewiston and Auburn have preached sermons on the matter, for it has excited much religious interest in these two cities. These clergymen have been interviewed. All of them state their conviction that Mr. Sandford is sincere but misguided. When the expression of these opinions was laid before Mr. Sandford he said:

"These men, though honest in their intent, do not believe that God can do this. They practically say so. Therefore it will never fall within their experience to witness such manifestations of the power of the Holy Ghost. For if God should answer doubt with success. He would be putting a premium on unbelief, and practically dethroning faith. They who did not see this thing stand counter to many other worthy Christians here who did see it. I never enter into controversies with the churchmen. I have no patience with hair splitters. I don't preach. I practice. And, therefore, the Holy Ghost does by me as He agrees in His Book to do by every man who will follow out His commands, not in their own roundabout way, but in His direct path. Let us be cautious how we strive to make God out a liar."

HOME LIFE OF CONSUELO.

The Woodstock Almshouse Petticoat Has Become Famous.

"Malbrouck s'en va-t-en-guerre," according to the old French song—which was written to celebrate the valorous achievements of the first duke of Marlboro'"—and his young duchess will have to stay at home in England with the babes, while his grace is shooting Boers, says the New York Commercial Advertiser. Her grace Consuelo is a devoted mother, and her two boys occupy the most charming suite of rooms in the palace of Blenheim; they are as closely guarded from amateur photographers as from kidnappers, and on "show days," when the palace is open to the public, they are wheeled about the kitchen gardens in their blue and white perambulators. On other days their nurses take them for long jaunts in the 350 acres of private grounds which surround the palace, and to the various schools and institutions of which the young duchess is patroness. The Woodstock almshouse petticoat has become famous since Consuelo came to Blenheim. Hitherto the red flannel garments worn by the women inmates of the almshouse had measured three yards round. Consuelo heard that new clothing would not be despised by the paupers, and she had ten petticoats made. Five and a half yards of flannel were used in each garment.

TOO MANY EUROPEANS COMING.

The Majority from the Southern Part of That Continent.

Secretary Taylor of the United States treasury says immigrants from Europe are flocking into this country too fast and something ought to be done to stop the flood of immigration. Last month 33,000 immigrants landed in New York, or at the rate of nearly 400,000 in a year. The immigrants from the southern European countries are those we fear most. Those from the north, the English, Irish, Scandinavians, Danes, Dutch, Germans, all make desirable citizens. But those from Italy, Hungary, Turkey and Spain are coming over faster than they can be assimilated. The immigrants from the north usually hasten through New York bound for the west and the northwest, where they become farm laborers, and gradually rise to be farm owners. They add to the productiveness of the country. The others linger about the large cities, New York Chicago and St. Louis. They go into sweat shops and sleep twenty in a room, or they become fruit peddlers or organ grinders, and never get away from the cities. A few are employed in the coal or iron mines. As a rule, however, they are most undesirable. We do not need so many of this class of immigrants, and something should be done to check the tide.

Knew the Tricks of the Trade.

From the Indianapolis Sun: Tramp—"Kin yer give me a cold bite, leddy?" Housewife—"Let me see. You were all through the Cuban war, wasn't you? When a boy you fell and injured your spine and never got over it, didn't you? You are trying to get to a certain place where steady employment is awaiting you, aren't you? You haven't had a square meal for three days, have you, and the cake I am baking smelled so good to you, didn't it? You tried the lady next door and said all she could give you was a little advice, and that was that you shouldn't come here, because my bread was something awful, didn't she? You've got a wife and seven children to support, haven't you? You——" But the tramp had fainted. He knew he couldn't offer anything new.

A Close Call.

There were a pair of colored whitewashers standing on the street corner and talking about hard times, when a white man stepped up, bent over and felt around their heels, and presently rose up with three $10 gold pieces in his hand. "I dropped 'em here an hour or so ago," he explained, as he jingled them under their chins and walked off. The two men looked at each other for a long time and then one observed: "Rastus, deir hain't no luck in dis world fur us, fur shore. We was walkin' right on dat gold and didn't know it!" "Reckon it's de doins of de Lawd," humbly replied the other. "If we'd afound dat money we'd bin so stuck up ober it dat de Lawd would hev had to send de cholera around to take de vanity out ob us. It was a cluss call, Brudder Smith—a cluss call."

The government buildings at Caracas, Venezuela, are planned after the structures at Washington. They are of wood with rough stone steps.

LAKES FAR ABOVE SEA LEVEL.

Mysterious Bodies of Water Found in the Cordilleras.

From Crucero Alto, the highest town in the world, the Southern railroad of Peru drops into Lake Lagunillas, or lake region of the Cordilleras, where, group of large lakes of very cold pure water without inlet or outlet, says the Boston Journal. They receive the drainage of the surrounding hills, and conceal it somewhere, but there is no visible means of its escape. A fringe of ice forms around the edges of the lakes every night the year round, yet they contain an excellent variety of fish called the pejerray, which is caught near the shore and sold at Puma and in other neighboring towns. The two largest lakes, Sarachocha and Cachipascana, with several smaller ones in the same neighborhood, are owned by the family of Mr. Romania of Arequipa, who has just been elected president of Peru. He owns immense tracts of land in this locality, with thousands of sheep, cattle, lamas, alpacas and vicunas, which are herded upon it. A curious phenomenon about the lakes is that they keep at the same level all the time, regardless of dry and rainy seasons. No amount of rain will make any difference with their depth, which, however, in the center is unknown. And this adds to the awe and mystery with which they are regarded by the Indians. There are no boats upon the lakes except a few small balsas, or rafts, made of bundles of straw, which keep very close to the shore for fear of being drawn into the whirlpools that are said to exist in the center. There is some foundation for this fear, for only two or three years ago a balsa containing five men disappeared in the darkness, and it was never heard of again. Of course, it may have been tipped over and its occupants have been paralyzed by the cold water in an ordinary way, but their bodies were never recovered, nor did the balsa ever float to shore. Therefore the people think the whole party was lured into a maelstrom and swallowed up by the mysterious waters. The whirlpool near the center of Lake Popo, which receives the waters of Lake Titicaca, is well known, and hundreds of men have lost their lives by venturing too near it. Boats that are drawn into the current are whirled around swiftly a few times and then disappear. For the protection of navigators the government of Bolivia has anchored a lot of buoys in Lake Popo, and boatmen who observe them are in no danger. There is supposed to be an underground outflow from all these lakes. It is claimed that articles which have been thrown into their waters have afterwards been picked up on the seacoast near Africa, and careful observers say that on the beach in that locality are frequently found cornstalks, reeds and other debris which do not grow on the coast, but are found in great abundance among the interior lakes.

A STORY OF JOUBERT.

Why He Would Rather See Officers Killed Than Privates.

A conversation I had with Gen. Joubert, when I met him, with the other Boer leaders, at Newcastle, South Africa, in 1881, may now be read with interest, says a correspondent of the London Times. I was deploring the number of casualties among our officers on the day of Majuba. "Oh," replied Gen. Joubert, "we give special instructions to our men always to pick off your officers." I said, "Thank you; why are we to receive so much attention?" Now I think there was some reasoning in Gen. Joubert's reply, which was as follows: "You officers are all rich and quite independent of your profession; you can go into your army and leave it when you please, but the privates are poor men and they cannot get away when they please, and they must fight when they are ordered to, and it is how they get their living. Besides, we have no quarrel with them, and we do not want to kill one of them if we can help it." I told Joubert of the promotion of Hector MacDonald from the ranks, and of the claymore that the officers of his regiment had presented him with. The general was much interested, and said: "That brave officer must have his sword back again. I will search the Transvaal for it and offer £5 reward for it." Gen. Joubert recovered Lieut. Hector MacDonald's sword from a Boer farmer, who, when he heard the particulars, declined to accept the offered reward, and Gen. Joubert handed his sword back to Lieut. MacDonald at Newcastle.

As a Satire.

Lester Stewart is the author of "The Soldiers of the Queen," a song which is now on every one's lips in England. Concerning it he said recently: "The funny thing about the song is that originally I wrote it as a satire; it wasn't at all the patriotic song it has since become. It came out in the 'Artist's Model' and it fell flat. The public wouldn't stand the satire. No wonder I withdrew and rewrote it. I felt sure I had a good inspiration in the tune and now I think my belief has proved right. Of course, I am very grateful to Queen Victoria for having a diamond jubilee at the night time. That began its popularity, and now I tell myself that it has become 'The Marseillaise' of England." The song is selling at an average rate of 12,000 copies a week.

Matter of Courtesy.

A good story, which has the merit of being true, is told of the late Lady Howard de Walden. On one occasion she had a little wager with her neighbor, Lady Emily Foley, based on her firm belief that the rustics of Worcestershire were more polished in their manners than those of Herefordshire. A fitting opportunity to solve the question soon occurred. The two ladies went for an afternoon drive in a pony cart. Presently they reached a closed gate, which was civilly opened for them by a laboring lad. "I am sure," said Lady Howard de Walden, as she gave the boy a sixpence, "you are a Herefordshire boy." "Thou beest a loiar," replied the boy, "Oi'm a Worcestershire lad." That settled the question.—Exchange.

Bank of St. Hilaire.

HANNAY & CO., Bankers.

Real Estate Loans.
Chattel Loans.
Foreign & Domestic Xchange
INSURANCE.
Collections a Specialty.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

St. Hilaire, Minn.

Livery and Feed Stable!

DAN PATERSON, Prop.

Dray in Connection.

The finest equipped turnouts in the northwest. Safe drivers and furnished at a moments notice at reasonable rates. Don't forget the place

BIG - RED - BARN

Located on the east side of Broadway nearly opposite Rapp & Post's Store

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

PATENTS DESIGNS TRADE-MARKS AND COPYRIGHTS OBTAINED
ADVICE AS TO PATENTABILITY FREE
Notice in "Inventive Age"
Book "How to obtain Patents"
Charges moderate. No fee till patent is secured.
Letters strictly confidential. Address,
E. G. SIGGERS, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

GET YOUR PICTURE
TAKEN BY
D. COLLINS
THE
Photograper.
ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

IMPROVED
FARMS!

K. O. GIGSTAD has a large list of Improved Farms for sale. Also agent for the best fire and cyclone insurance company. Sick and accident insurance Co., and hail insurance.

Money to loan on improved farms at low interest. All collections are promptly attended to.

NOTARY PUBLIC.

Office east of the city well.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

2nd STORE

(SECOND HAND STORE.)

Everything in this line now on hand. Special bargains given. If you have anything to dispose of give me a call.

C. A. SKEIE.

ST. HILAIRE, - - MINNESOTA

FIRE
INSURANCE
DO
YOU
NEED
SOME?

The Best is the Cheapest.

I have nine of the best companies doing business in the State
Call for rates.

H. E. IVES.

CUSTOM WORK.

JUST LOOK AT THESE PRICES:

Roll Carding—per pound.......5 cts
Spinning Single Yarn—per pound.......15 c
Stocking Yarn—2 or 3 ply, per pound.....20 c

LITCHFIELD WOOLEN MILLS.
LITCHFIELD, MINN.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE
PATENTS
TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.
Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.
Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.
A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.
MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Spectator.

IVES & SOLL, Publishers.
JOHN J. SOLL, Editor.

Entered at the postoffice at St. Hilaire, Minn, as second-class mail matter.

Published every Wednesday at St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minn.

TERMS:—$1.50 Per Year in Advance.

SUBSCRIBERS should notify the publisher on or before expiration of subscription if discontinuance is desired. Otherwise paper will be continued.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 24, 1900.

A Penalty For Being Polite.

It is more difficult to be polite in the city of Hamburg than in any other place in Europe. There the most chivalrous man has to think twice before giving up his seat in a car to a lady, as he may be turned off the car for politeness. It seems that the Hamburg trolley cars will seat, according to size, 20 or 28 persons, 10 to 14 on each side. In addition four persons are allowed on the front and five persons on the back platform. When the car is full, the conductor hangs out a sign, "Besetzt," which means "occupied," and is absolutely forbidden to take on another passenger until some one gets off the car.

Sometimes, while the conductor is in front collecting fares, a lady will step on the car which is already "occupied." As there is no conductor on hand to prevent her, the lady steps inside, and the gentleman who may offer her a seat comes out and takes his stand on the platform. When the conductor after going his rounds returns to his post, he promptly requests the gentleman to step off the car, as he has forfeited his seat and the car is fully "occupied." Should he refuse to leave the car he is put off. The policemen on the streets are instructed to watch the cars sharply, and if they find a car carries even one more passenger than its proper complement the conductor is fined 72 cents, which is paid to a charity fund of the street railway company.—Philadelphia Press.

Salt and Horse Radish.

Some people care for nothing but lemon on raw oysters, but there are others who desire horse radish. Usually such folk regard the strongest horse radish as the best, but an experienced vender of the condiment poohpoohs this point of view.

"Why should the strong horse radish be considered good?" says he. "It brings tears to your eyes and lifts the top of your head off and makes you want to sneeze. It has no taste whatever. The mild horse radish, that which has stood awhile, is the best and pleasantest always.

"There is nothing so foolish as to think that the strong, biting kind is the fresh—that is the reason why it is preferred to the mild sort—for the very stalest, weakest horse radish can be made in 20 minutes strong enough to blow your head off. All you need to do is to add salt to it. Try this some time. Just take any old horse radish, dump in a spoonful of salt and then notice the difference. I don't know why salt should have such a powerful effect on the stuff, but no doubt a chemist could tell you that."—Philadelphia Record.

Turned It to Account.

A Derbyshire man, accompanied by his wife, happened to be traveling in a train when, near Stafford, a collision occurred. He was well known for his shrewdness in business, and he proved that in the collision his wife received a contusion between the eyes, for which a jury awarded £50 damages. Some time after the affair had blown over the following confession, or something to the like effect, was elicited from the plaintiff in a moment of unguarded conviviality:

"Well, you see, when the collision happened t' owld woman and I wur all reet, but when I looked out o' t' carridge I seed a lot of fellies in a terrible state. One slugs out: 'Ey, lad! Ise getten me head cut open. I'll ha' twenty peounds for this.' 'Twenty peounds, ye silly fule?' cries another. 'Ise gotten me shoulder out, and I'll ha' forty peounds for 't.' When I heard this," continued the clever business man, "I jumpt at t' owld woman straight out and druv my 'ead betw'en her eyes, and we'se gotten fifty peounds for it."—London Answers.

A Natural Bridge In Arizona.

Natural bridge, on Pine creek, in the northern part of Gila county, is one of the greatest natural curiosities in the United States, equaling if not surpassing the Natural bridge of Virginia. It spans the creek at a height of about 200 feet, and the walls of the canyon rise above it on either side 700 or 800 feet and on one side form a perpendicular precipice. The bridge is of lime formation, and the inside of the great arch, which is some 250 feet across, is worn by the water as smooth as though chiseled by the skillful hand of a stonemason. The arch on top is nearly, if not quite, 400 feet in width, 1,000 feet in length across the canyon and at the thinnest part only six feet through. About the center of the arch is a hole large enough to admit the body of a man and through which one can look down into the crystal pool of water 200 feet below.—Globe (A. T.) Silver Belt.

Fright, Not Fascination.

Naturalists are not at all agreed upon the point as to whether snakes are able to fascinate their prey. Certainly they do not possess the power to the extent that popular belief would have it. Stories of the weird and mystic influence of a serpent's eye fall flat in the face of scientific accuracy. What can be said of snakes, however, is that their very appearance paralyzes the victim. It cannot move for fright, for its faculties are temporarily suspended. There is no fascination about this, however. It is fright, and fright alone.

A Nice Cousin.

Jack—You know when Mabel rejected me last week I told you my troubles, and you promised to help me. Well, she accepted me last night. Am I to thank you for interceding for me?

Cousin Belle—Not exactly, dear boy. I simply intimated to Mabel that I was after you myself.—Philadelphia Press.

In Finland and Lapland amber oil is believed to be a certain cure for rheumatism, neuralgia and similar troubles.

A color expert declares that a pure white flower does not exist.

MANUFACTURED FREAKS.

Sometimes the Public Recognizes Them, and Trouble Follows.

"While I was absent from my show," says a circus proprietor, "my manager once engaged two boys with heads little larger than teacups. One of them had a clubfoot and some little claim of intelligence," says the Philadelphia Saturday Evening Post. "Our people had painted them to look like savages, and they were exhibited as the 'Aztec children.' One day when the lecturer was expatiating upon these remarkable children a burly countryman shouted:

"'Hello, John Evans, I know you. I worked in the harvest field with you many a day. Oh, you can't fool me!'

"The 'Aztec child' had been taught to make no reply to anything said to him, and the lecturer paid no attention to anything said to the countryman's interruption, but the countryman was not to be put down, and once more he shouted:

"'Say, Bill Evans, maybe you think I don't know that clubfoot. Just come off, now!'

"The audience was greatly amused at this, and the lecturer saw that he had plenty of trouble on hand. Consequently he called the countryman aside and told him that he was certainly mistaken as to the identity of the freak. 'Oh, no, I ain't,' replied the obdurate fellow, 'and, what is more, you and your whole shebang are frauds and humbugs.' Then the lecturer took another tack, gave the countryman $5 and thought the incident closed. But it was not, for the fellow proceeded to spend the money on whisky and tell his friends of his discovery, with the result that the business at that point was ruined."

BAKE THEMSELVES ALIVE.

Russian Fanatics Thus Obtain Release From Trouble.

Baking themselves in huge roaring ovens is the climax of emotional enthusiasm and self sacrifice of a strange sect of Russians. They are the Begonny, and they live in the village of Ternowo, near Tiraspol.

The sect's origin was rather political and economical than religious, their agitations having always been directed toward greater personal liberty and political power for individual members of society.

They demand the abolition of documents for proving identity and also the abolition of the necessity for the passport. They repudiate compulsory military service, and if forced to bear arms they are liable to emotional enthusiasm, leading to self sacrifice. The form of death which they adopt is usually burial while alive, but occasionally it is self destruction by fire.

When the last great sacrifice of the sect was made, the people adopted the voluntary cremation method as a means of getting an eternal release from their troubles. On a single day four families went out from a village and did themselves to death. A huge oven was built, and into it those who voluntarily decided to die plunged themselves.

The people who lacked the necessary enthusiasm or strength of mind or who felt that they were not worthy of attempting the great achievement knelt and prayed while they went for their relatives and friends, whose charred bones they kissed in an ecstasy of affection and admiration.

The Doctors Disagreed.

Some Vienna savans were lately confronted with a language difficulty. According to the Independance Belge, a young girl, unknown, was found unconscious in a street at Presburg and was conveyed to the hospital at Vienna, where she recovered consciousness and began to speak in a language which no one present could understand. The doctors came to the conclusion that the young woman was a native of an eastern country.

Consequently some professors from the oriental school were called in, and they were all agreed that the girl did not speak a correct language, but a dialect. The professor of Persian held that she spoke a Persian dialect and that he understood it. Another professor was of opinion that it was an Abyssinian dialect. A third was convinced that it was a Turkish patois.

Since the savans were not agreed the police deemed it necessary to make inquiries, with the result that the stranger was proved to be a Hungarian who had escaped from a prison and who did not understand a word of Persian, Abyssinian or Turkish.—London Globe.

Raising Leeches.

Leech farmers go about their business in an interesting way. Having fenced and watered a suitable meadow, they proceed to sow it with leeches by scattering them broadcast on the land from sacks containing 15,000 leeches each. All that is now necessary is to provide for the crop plenty of water and plenty of blood. The usual method of providing the latter is to drive old horses and cattle into the inclosure, but sometimes fresh blood from a slaughter house is supplied.—Chicago News.

Trite Expressions.

We are tired of hearing the expression, "Stood like a stag at bay." How many ever saw a "stag at bay?" Is it anything like the way a cow stands when a woman approaches with a pail? "Sounded like a fog horn whistle" should also be dropped. A fog horn is never heard in Kansas.—Atchison Globe.

Inquisitive people are the funnels of conversation. They do not take in anything for their own use, but merely to pass it to another.

Passions weaken, but habits strengthen with age.—W. E. H. Leckey.

To Subscribers.

All who know themselves to be indebted to The SPECTATOR will confer a great favor by settling early. These accounts are small, but we have a lot of them on our books. Please do not put the matter off or forget it altogether, because it don't amount to very much.

—Every farmer who writes a letter occasionally should get envelopes with his name and address printed in the corner. We will furnish 100 of the best quality printed in any style for the small sum of 75 cts. Send in your order

He Was "Swiped."

He sat in the reading room of a Chicago hotel with a notebook and pencil in his hand, and after wetting the pencil on his tongue a dozen times without writing anything he turned to the man on his left and said:

"I want to get at an expression, but can't think of it. I want something synonymous with avalanche."

"Would landslide do?"

"I've got that."

"In what sense are you going to use it?"

"Well, I'm running for alderman at a special election in my town, and I want to make a memorandum of how it resulted."

"Oh, I see! You could say you were snowed under."

"Yes; but that's hardly strong enough."

"Buried out of sight."

"That's better, but lacks strength."

"How badly were you beaten?"

"By over 300, where I ought to have had 450 majority."

"Then I should put it that you were literally swiped off the face of the earth."

"That's good—that's the idea. That's strong and euphonious and has rhythm in it. Yes; I was on the ticket and sure of election. I had $500 up that I had a walkover. I was swiped, and there are not enough of my mangled remains left to fill a thimble. Thank you, sir—literally swiped off the face of the earth and be hanged to me!"—Washington Post.

A Complicated Flag.

The Spanish royal standard is most complicated. The red and yellow of the Spanish flag is said to be derived from this occurrence: In 1378 Charles the Bold dipped his fingers in the blood of Geoffrey, count of Barcelona, and drew them down the count's golden shield in token of his appreciation of the latter's bravery. The shield, so marked, became the arms of Barcelona, which became part of Aragon, and its arms were taken by that kingdom.

Now to the royal standard: In the first quarter or upper left hand part of the flag are the arms of Leon and Castile, the lion and the castle; the second quarter is taken up, one-half by the arms of Aragon, one-half by the arms of Sicily. The upper third of the quarter (directly under the first) shows the Austrian colors, the lower two-thirds is divided between the flag of Burgundy and the black lion of Flanders; the upper third of the fourth quarter shows the checkers, another Burgundian device, while the lower two-thirds is shared by the red eagle of Antwerp and the golden lion of Brabant, and on the top of all this are two shields, one showing the Portuguese arms, the other the French fleur-de-lis. Considerable of a flag that!

Got the Watch.

A Camden lawyer put up a bluff successfully not long ago. A client came to him and explained that a young man had bought a watch from him on the installment plan. He made one payment, gave the watch to a young lady and skipped out. The client wanted to know if he could recover the watch from the young lady. The lawyer said that he could not without spending more money than the watch was worth, except the young woman could be bluffed. The client said a bluff would be paid for if successful, and the lawyer posted the following letter:

"Dear Madam—The watch recently presented to you by Mr. Blank was obtained surreptitiously from the establishment of my client, and unless it is returned by next Tuesday morning I will be obliged to, very reluctantly, dispatch a judicial functionary to your residence with process."

The watch was delivered the following morning and the lawyer received a fine gold chain for writing the letter.—Pittsburg Dispatch.

The Sponge Animal.

If the sponge as brought up fresh from the sea bottom were a familiar object, says Dr. Ledekker, few would be in doubt as to its being an animal. When fresh it is a fleshy looking substance covered with a firm skin, and if cut it presents somewhat the appearance of raw meat. Its cavities are filled with a gelatinous substance called "milk." American sponges, and those of all other parts of the world, are inferior to the sponges of the eastern shores of the Mediterranean. The finest of all sponges is the Turkey toilet sponge, which is cup shaped. The American sponge most nearly approaching it in quality is the West Indian glove sponge.—Youth's Companion.

Dewey Had No Grievance.

"Where do you take command of the fleet?" a lady friend asked Dewey just before he left for Manila.

"At Hongkong," he replied.

After a silence the lady said:

"Aren't you aggrieved, in view of our possible trouble with Spain, over being ordered to the remote Asiatic station, which can hardly be in the picture in case of war?"

"Sailor's luck!" replied Dewey. "Moreover, I haven't entertained grievances for years."

And then he added, evidently as an after thought, "Besides, you know, Spain owns the Philippines."—Ladies' Home Journal.

Giving Him a Hint.

"John," she said softly, "have you been saying anything about me to mother lately?"

"No," replied John. "Why do you ask?"

"Because she said this morning that she believed you were on the eve of proposing to me. Now, I do not wish you to speak to mother when you have anything of that kind to say. Speak to me, and I'll manage the business with mother."

And John said he would.

We Want Correspondents.

We desire a correspondent in every school district in the county, one who will give the local news of his or her locality in a fair and impartial manner. To any one who will undertake the matter the SPECTATOR will furnish the necessary stationery and postage and will send the paper free during the time the person acts in that capacity. Only one correspondent desired in each district. It is an advantage to any community to be represented in the columns of the local paper.

The following gem from one of our exchanges should be cut out and pasted in every man's hat as a reminder of his duty when he speaks ill of any woman: "Beware how you speak of a woman's character. Think how many years she has been building it, of the toils and privations endured, of wound received and, let no suspicions follow her actions. The purity of woman is the salvation of the race, the hope of future greatness and the redemption of man. Wipe out her purity and man sinks beneath the wave of despair with not a star to guide his life into a channel of safety. Think then, before you speak, and remember that any hog can root up the fairest flower that grows; so the vilest man can ruin the purest character.

Don't forget your "little subscription account" when selling your wheat.

DON'T BE ASHAMED—

To tell us if you have company.
If a child is born.
If you are going to get married.
If any relative or friend has died.
If your wife has gone away on a visit.
If anything happens worth printing.

The Ideal
Lunch Room.

In the Paradis Building is noted for its Convenience.

FIRST-CLASS MEALS.

PROMPT SERVICE.

OPEN UNTIL ONE O'CLOCK A. M.

A. F. LANG, Prop.

NEW YORK WORLD.

THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION.

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly.

The striking and important events of the last year have established the overwhelming value of The Thrice-a-Week World to every reader. For an almost nominal sum it has kept its subscribers informed of the progress of all our wars and, moreover, has reported them as promptly and fully as if it were a daily. With our interests still extending throughout the world, with our troops operating in the Philippines and the great Presidential campaign, too, at hand, its value is further increased.

The motto of The Thrice-a-Week World is improved. It strives each year to be better than it was the year before, and public confidence in it is shown by the fact that it now circulates more than twice as many papers every week as any other newspaper, not a daily, published in America.

We offer this unequalled newspaper and The St. Hilaire Spectator together one year for $1.65.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.50.

Barber Shop
—AND—
BATH ROOMS.
—0—
Haircutting, Shaving, Shampooing.

Razors honed and put in first-class order.

J. H. PENNO, Prop.

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

First
Mortgage
Loans.

I am prepared, for the next 60 days, to make loans at the

LOWEST

possible rates ever made in Red Lake county. If you want to make a loan or renew an old one call on

H. E. IVES.

NORTHERN PACIFIC
YELLOWSTONE PARK LINE
RUNS
THROUGH CARS

TO
ST. PAUL
MINNEAPOLIS
DULUTH
FARGO
GRAND FORKS
AND WINNIPEG

TO HELENA
BUTTE
SPOKANE
TACOMA
SEATTLE
PORTLAND

PULLMAN SLEEPING CARS
ELEGANT DINING CARS
TOURIST SLEEPING CARS

PATENTS GUARANTEED

Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.

Patents taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in THE PATENT RECORD, an illustrated and widely circulated journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.

Send for sample copy FREE. Address,
VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.
(Patent Attorneys,)
Evans Building, WASHINGTON, D. C.

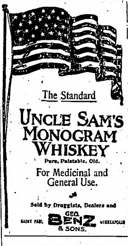
By special arrangement with the publishers we are enable to give FARM, STOCK AND HOME one year and the ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR for $1.35.

BANK OF RED LAKE FALLS,
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA
GENERAL BANKING. FOREIGN XCHANGE

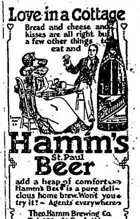
Real Estate, Farm Loans and Insurance.
Abstracts of Title.
Steamship Tickets.
Interest Paid on Time Deposits.
Collections of all Kinds Given Prompt Attention.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli the only set of Abstract Books in Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.



The Standard
UNCLE SAM'S
MONOGRAM
WHISKEY
Pure, Palatable, Old.
For Medicinal and General Use.
Sold by Druggists, Dealers and
GEO. BENZ & SONS.
SAINT PAUL MINNEAPOLIS



Love in a Cottage
Bread and cheese and kisses are all right but a few other things to eat and Hamm's
St. Paul
Beer
add a heap of comfort. Hamm's Beer is a pure delicious home brew. Won't you try it? ~ Agents everywhere.
Theo. Hamm Brewing Co.
Tel. 972 ~ St. Paul, Minn.

FARMS { 250 farms in Red Lake county for sale, also a large list of Railroad lands. Prices going up.

LOANS { First Mortgage Farm Loans A Specialty.

ABSTRACTS { furnished on short notice. Neat and accurate work guaranteed.

S. A. SWANSON,
Official Abstracter.

RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.
OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U.S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.
A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U.S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,
C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

—The SPECTATOR is for sale—at $1.50 a year—strictly in advance.

Cigars.
BRINK BROTHERS
DEALERS IN
Wines & Liquors
Minneapolis Beer.
Corner Broadway and 3rd St. St. Hilaire, Minnesota

L. K. KOLSTAD
DEALER IN
BOOTS AND SHOES!
Repairing a Specialty.
ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA.

Cosmopolitan and Spectator.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we will leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal, both together one year for only $1.50.

SOME OF OUR CLUB RATES WITH THE

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR

OUR TERMS ARE STRICTLY CASH IN ADVANCE

Farm, Stock & Home.

50 cents per year. Read by a greater number of Northwestern farmers than any other agricultural paper published. Are you among the number? If not, Why not? Every department in the hands of a specialist. Short talks department. A department where all kinds of questions are answered for the benefit of subscribers, is a leading feature of the paper. No northwestern farmers list of papers is complete without it. This paper and Spectator one year for $1.35.

Cosmopolitan, New York World and The Spectator.

You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine. Three together one year for only $2.50.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF ST. HILAIRE AND RED LAKE COUNTY.

NEW MEAT MARKET.
L. M. ROLAND, Proprietor.
Fresh and Salted Meats.
Highest Market Price Paid for Hides.

Supplement to ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, JANUARY 24, 1900.

PROCEEDINGS

Of the Board of County Commissioners at their Regular Meeting, Jan. 2, 1900.

Board of county commissioners met in regular session this day. Meeting called to order by Chairman Demann. Present, Commissioners Johnson, Hansen, Hebert, Sutor and Demann. On motion duly carried Board proceeded to elect by ballot a chairman for the ensuing year. Johnson and Sutor were appointed tellers.

Ballot resulted as follows: Informal ballot; Hanson 2, Deman 2, Hebert 1. Formal ballot; Hanson 2 and Demann 3. Wm. C. L. Demann declared elected chairman for the ensuing year. Motion made by Hebert, seconded by Sutor, to take up bond of Co. Attorney. Motion carried.

Motion made by Hebert 2nded by Sutor that bond of Co. Atty. Van R. Brown be approved, Hebert, Sutor and Demann voting in the affirmative, Hansen and Johnson voting in the negative. Motion carried.

School petition of Frank Plante was on motion taken up, and on motion made by Hebert, seconded by Sutor, and carried unanimously, the same was granted, and the following order was made:

Whereas, the petition of Frank Laplante, a legal voter, freeholder and resident of School District No. 49, in this County, with the approval of the County Superintendent endorsed thereon, representing that he is the owner of the lands hereinafter described, which are situate in said School District and adjoin School District No. 27, and asking that he with his said lands may be set off from said District No. 49 to said School District No. 27, for the following reasons: That he lives two and one-half miles from the school house in District No. 49; that this is too great a distance for his children to travel to attend school, and for that reason they have always attended school in District No. 27; that he wishes to pay taxes in the district where he derives a benefit from the school, was presented to the Board of County Commissioners of this county, at a session of said Board held on the 21st day of July, A. D. 1899, for the action of said Board thereon; and whereas, it was thereupon ordered by said Board that a hearing should be had on said petition at a session of said Board, commencing on the 5th day of September A. D. 1899, at the County Auditor's office in Red Lake Falls, in said County; and whereas, it was further ordered in and by said order that notice of the time and place of such hearing be given by posting a notice of said order in one public place in each of the School Districts to be affected by said petition, and by handing to and leaving with the Clerk of each of said School Districts, personally, a copy of said notice, at least ten days before the time appointed for such hearing; and whereas, at the said session of the said Board of County Commissioners, commencing on said 5th day of September A. D. 1899, due proof of the posting and service of said order of hearing as therein directed and required, more than ten days prior to said last named date, having been made and filed, said petition was publicly read and considered by the Board, with everything which was said by said interested parties for or against granting the prayer of the petitioner, and said Board being of opinion that said petition should be granted, it is hereby ordered and determined, that the said petitioner and the following described lands owned by him, to-wit: The sw¼ of section 31, twp 151, range 43, be and the same are hereby set off from said School District No. 49 to said adjoining School District No. 27, and said lands are hereby made a part of said last named School District for all purposes whatever.

By order of the Board of County Commissioners.

Dated the 2nd day of January A. D. 1900.

WM. C. L. DEMANN,
Chairman of the Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, Minn.

Attest:
ADAM ZEH,
County Auditor and ex-officio Clerk of Board.

ACCOUNT OF COUNTY ATTORNEY

Of the County of Red Lake, Minnesota, for the year 1899.

Van R. Brown, County Attorney in and for said County, being first duly sworn, says that the following is a true and correct account of all moneys received by him during the year 1899, by virtue of his office for fines, recognizances, forfeitures, penalties or costs:

For fines	None
" recognizances	None
" forfeitures	None
" penalties	None
" costs	None

VAN R. BROWN.

Subscribed and sworn to before me this 30th day of December, 1899.

ADAM ZEH,
County Auditor Red Lake County, Minnesota

Motion made by Hebert, seconded by Johnson, that the report of Co. Atty. be approved. Motion carried unanimously.

On motion duly carried meeting adjourned to 9 o'clock a. m.

9 O'CLOCK A. M., JAN. 3RD, 1900.

Board reconvened. Meeting called to order by the Chairman.

All members present.

Commissioner Hansen offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Resolved that J. O. Gjerberg be and is hereby appointed Janitor for the ensuing year, at a salary of $30.00 per month.

Which resolution was seconded by Commissioner Hebert, and on motion carried unanimously the same was adopted.

Commissioner Hansen offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Resolved that the County Auditor be instructed to advertise for bids for the furnishing to the County of 40 cords of second growth green poplar wood, which resolution was seconded by Com. Sutor and on motion carried unanimously was adopted.

On motion duly carried a recess was taken to 1 o'clock p. m.

1 O'CLOCK P. M.

Board reconvened. Meeting called to order by the Chairman.

All members present.

Motion made by Sutor, seconded by Hebert, that Board select 72 names from which to draw Grand Jury. Motion carried unanimously.

Motion made by Johnson, seconded by Hebert, that Board select 72 names from which to draw Petit Jury. Motion carried unanimously.

Certified lists of 72 names for Grand Jury and 72 names for Petit Jury were then made and filed with the Clerk of Court.

The school petition of Octave Lefavre and others, asking for the formation of a new school district in the towns of Terrebonne and Poplar River was read.

Motion made by Hansen, seconded by Johnson, that the same be rejected. Motion carried, Commissioner Hebert voting no.

Motion made by Hansen, seconded by Johnson, that petition of Peter Anderson and others for a county road between the township of Rocksbury and town 151, range 43, be granted. Motion carried unanimously.

Motion made by Johnson, seconded by Hansen, that John A. Dahl be and he is hereby appointed Road Overseer for Road Dist. No. 1. Motion carried unanimously.

Commissioner Hansen offered the following resolution and moved its adoption. Resolved that the Auditor be and is hereby instructed to draw his warrant in favor of J. T. Knight for $50.00, balance of salary due him as Judge of Probate for the year 1899, as readjusted by the Board; which motion was seconded by Com. Sutor, and on motion carried unanimously the same was adopted.

Commissioner Hebert offered the following resolution and moved its adoption: Resolved that the salary of Judge of Probate for the year 1900 be fixed at $600.00, which resolution was seconded by Com. Johnson and on motion carried unanimously, the same was adopted.

On motion duly carried meeting adjourned to 9 o'clock a. m.

9 O'CLOCK A. M. JAN. 4.

Board reconvened. Meeting called to order by the Chairman.

All members present.

The Chairman appointed committees as follows for the ensuing year:

Finance—Hebert, Hansen and Sutor.
Printing—Hansen, Johnson and Hebert.
Road and Bridge—Johnson, Hebert and Sutor.
Court House and Supplies—Johnson, Hebert and Sutor.
Poor—Hebert, Sutor and Johnson.
Bond—Demann, Hansen and Hebert.

REPORT BOARD OF AUDIT.

Red Lake Falls, Minnesota, Dec. 19th, 1899.

To the Honorable Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, Minnesota.

Gentlemen:

We the Board of Audit of Red Lake County, Minn., report as follows:

That on the above named date we examined the accounts, books and vouchers of the Treasurer of Red Lake County, and counted and ascertained the kind, description and amount of funds in the treasury belonging to said County, as follows:

Balance in treasury Dec. 19th, 1899, shown by the books of Auditor and Treasurer	9170.27
Distributed as follows:
Received for postage and express		59.08
Money orders, checks and cash items		140.61
Deposit in 1st State Bank, Thief River Falls		3253.27
Deposit in 1st State Bank, Red Lake Falls		2768.04
Merchants State Bank, Red Lake Falls		2433.67
Bank of St. Hilaire		524.60
	9170.27	9179.27

Respectfully submitted.

WM. C. L. DEMANN, Ch'n,
JOSEPH PERRAULT, Clerk of Court,
ADAM ZEH, County Auditor,
Board of Audit.

Motion made by Hansen, seconded by Hebert, that report of Board of Audit be approved. Motion carried unanimously.

Commissioner Hansen offered the following resolution and moved its adoption: Resolved that the Auditor be and is hereby instructed to draw his warrant for $120.00 on Co Revenue fund in favor of O. T. Tandberg, balance of salary due him as Co. Treasurer, for 1899 as readjusted by the Board, which resolution was seconded by Com. Sutor, and on motion carried unanimously the same was adopted.

Motion made by Hansen, seconded by Johnson, that the salary of County Treasurer be estimated at $1200.00 for the ensuing year, and that the Auditor is hereby instructed to draw his warrant in favor of O. T. Tandberg for $100.00 monthly in payment of same. Motion carried unanimously.

Motion made by Hebert, seconded by Sutor, that the salary of County Auditor be estimated at $1200.00 for the ensuing year, and he is hereby instructed to draw his warrant for $100.00 monthly in favor of himself in payment of same. Motion carried unanimously.

Motion made by Hansen, seconded by Hebert, that the Auditor is hereby instructed to prepare financial statement of Red Lake County for the year ending Dec. 31st, 1899. Motion carried unanimously.

Motion made by Hebert, seconded by Hansen, that the salary of Supt. of Schools be estimated at $800.00 for the ensuing year, and the Auditor is hereby instructed to draw his warrant for $66.67 monthly in favor of Frank Jeffers in payment of same. Motion carried unanimously.

Motion made by Hansen, seconded by Hebert, that the Auditor is hereby instructed to transfer $150.00 from the Co. Revenue fund to the Incidental Expense fund. Motion carried unanimously.

On motion duly carried a recess was taken to 1 o'clock p. m.

1 O'CLOCK P. M.

Board reconvened. Meeting called to order by the Chairman.

All members present.

Motion made by Hebert, seconded by Hansen, that the application of Nels Holberg for abatement of taxes be rejected. Motion carried unanimously.

On motion duly carried, Commissioners' reports for year ending Dec. 31st, 1899, were accepted and ordered placed on file in Auditor's office.

On motion duly carried meeting adjourned to 9 o'clock a. m.

9 O'CLOCK A. M. JAN. 5TH.

Board reconvened. Meeting called to order by the Chairman.

All members present.

Annual reports of Frank Jeffers, Supt. of Schools, John C. Mathews, Court Commissioner, Joseph Belair, Coroner, P. O. Hegglund, County Surveyor, and J. T. Knight, Judge of Probate, were read, and on motion made by Hebert, seconded by Hansen, and carried unanimously, the same were approved and placed on file.

On motion duly carried a recess was taken to 1 o'clock p. m.

1 O'CLOCK P. M.

Board reconvened. Meeting called to order by the Chairman.

All members present.

Motion made by Hansen, seconded by Hebert, that Board take up Viewers' report in ditch proceedings. Motion carried unanimously.

Commissioner Hebert offered the following resolution and moved its adoption: Resolved, that the Sanders Black River Ditch, No. 1, be and the same is hereby established according to plans and specifications and viewers report on file and of record in the Auditor's office of Red Lake Co., Minn., which resolution was seconded by Commissioner Hansen, and on motion carried unanimously the same was adopted, and the following order made.

ORDER ESTABLISHING SANDERS BLACK RIVER DITCH NO. 1.

State of Minnesota, }
 } SS
County of Red Lake. }

Whereas, at a session of the Board of County Commissioners of the County of Red Lake State of Minnesota, held on the 5th day of Sept., 1899, a petition signed by Chas. Hellberg and others, land owners, whose lands were liable to be affected by, or assessed for, the expense of the construction of the work proposed therein, praying for the establishment and construction of a public ditch along a route described therein, accompanied by a bond duly approved, as provided by law, was filed with the County Auditor of said County; and it appearing by proper evidence to the satisfaction of said board of County Commissioners that at least thirty (30) days' notice has been given of the pendency of said petition and of the time at which the same would be heard, as by law provided, whereupon the said Board did, at its session on the 5th day of September, A. D. 1899, proceed to hear and determine said petition; and said Board having determined that the construction of said ditch would be of public benefit and utility, and conducive to the public health, convenience and welfare, we did accept said petition, and thereupon did appoint, as viewers of said proposed work, three (3) resident freeholders of said Red Lake County, who are not interested in the construction of said proposed work, and are not of kin to any of the parties interested therein, and directed them to meet preparatory to commencing their duties as such viewers, at the terminus of said ditch in said County, at one o'clock p. m., on the 9th day of October, 1899; and certified copies of the said petition and order of said Board appointing them as viewers was issued to and served upon said viewers, as by law provided, as will more fully appear from the certificate of service of Charles Sampson, as Sheriff of said County, now on file in the office of the County Auditor of said County, they proceeded, at the time set in said order, with a surveyor who is a civil engineer, and made an accurate survey of the line of said ditch from its source to its outlet, and did cause stakes to be placed along said line at each 100 feet, as numbered progressing down stream from its source, and made and filed a report thereof; and reported that said ditch would be of public utility; and in their said report made the necessary computations and assessments, description of location, the land through which the same would pass, the names of the owners, and the damages or allowances thereto, the expense attending such work, and all the estimates, as required by law, duly sworn to as by law required.

And the Auditor of said Red Lake County did, after the filing of said report, cause a notice to be given, to be published, posted and mailed, as by law provided, of the pendency of said petition and of the time and place set for the hearing thereof;

Now therefore, we, the Board of County Commissioners of the County of Red Lake, Minn., having met in session at the time set for the hearing of said petition, to-wit, the 5th day of January, 1900, and proceeded to hear the same, and having found that the report of said viewers is made according to the provisions of law, and that the proposed ditch, to be of public utility, and conducive to public health, or of public benefit and convenience, and, from the evidence before us, that the estimated benefits of said work are greater than its total cost, including damages awarded, do hereby locate and establish the said ditch, according to the report of said viewers appointed and acting as aforesaid; which said report, together with the plats and exhibits accompanying the same is hereby referred to and made a part hereof for greater particularity, as determining the location, width, depth and manner of construction of said proposed Ditch No. 1. And the said Board of County Commissioners having from said viewers' report and the evidence before them, determined upon the benefits to be assessed and the damages to be awarded to the several tracts of land in said report described, do hereby assess benefits and award damages to the said lands as follows:

According to Exhibit 4 of Viewers' report on file in the Auditor's office of said Red Lake county.

On motion duly carried bids for printing were opened and read, as follows:

Bid of St. Hilaire Spectator, for publishing commissioners' proceedings, financial statement and all legal notices, 75 cents per folio for first insertion and 35 cents for each subsequent for ensuing year. Bid of St. Hilaire Spectator for publishing delinquent tax list of 1898, 12 cents for each description.

Red Lake Falls, Minnesota, Jan. 4th, 1900.

To the Honorable Board of County Commissioners of Red Lake County, Minn.

Gentlemen:

We hereby agree to do and furnish all job printing and stationery for Red Lake County for the year 1900, at the following rates, provided you award us the contract:

	Per 500	Per 1000
Letter Heads, plain	$2.30	$3.40
Letter Heads, linen	2.60	3.80
Note Heads, linen	2.00	3.40
Note Heads, plain	1.90	2.80
Memo Heads, plain	1.90	2.80
Memo Heads, linen	2.00	3.00
County Blanks, 2 sides	3.50	5.00
Blanks, ½ sheets, 2 sides	4.00	6.25
Blanks, ¼ sheets, 2 sides	3.30	5.00
Blanks, ½ sheet, 1 side	3.25	4.75
Blanks, ¼ sheet, 1 side	3.00	4.00
Envelopes, No. 6½	2.25	3.25
" No. 10	3.10	4.00
" No. 12	3.30	4.75

Court Calendars, at 85c per page for 100 calendars; all other job work at prices to correspond with the above.

Our bond with sureties in the sum of $500.00 accompanies this bid.

Respectfully yours,
JEFFERS & BOUGHTON,
Publishers of the Courier.

Commissioner Hansen offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Whereas, This board has received the bids of Ives & Soll, publishers of the St. Hilaire Spectator, wherein they agree to publish the official proceedings, financial statement and other legal notices at 75 cents per folio for first insertion and 35 cents for each subsequent insertion, and the delinquent tax list at 12 cents per description.

Resolved, that the same be and is hereby accepted, and the St. Hilaire Spectator, a weekly newspaper published at St. Hilaire, Minn., be and is hereby designated the official paper of the county of Red Lake, wherein shall be published according to law the delinquent tax list, financial statement, commissioners' proceedings, and other official notices.

Which resolution was seconded by commissioner Hebert and on motion carried unanimously the same was adopted.

Motion made by Hansen, seconded by Johnson that the bonds of Ives & Soll, publishers of the St. Hilaire Spectator, be approved. Motion carried unanimously.

Motion made by Hebert, seconded by Hansen, that the bid of Jeffers & Boughton, publishers of the Red Lake County Courier, be accepted and their bond for same be approved.

Motion carried unanimously.

On motion duly carried meeting adjourned to 9 o'clock a. m.

9 O'CLOCK A. M., JAN. 6TH

Board reconvened.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

All members present.

Petition of Jacob Fontaine and others for formation of new school district was read.

Motion made by Hansen, seconded by Sutor, that the 19th day of Feb., 1900, be set for a day of hearing on the same.

Motion carried unanimously.

Petition of Sophia Gomoll, asking to be set off from school district No. 112 to school district No. 88, was read.

Motion made by Johnson seconded by Hebert that 19th day of Feb., 1900, be set for a day of hearing on the same.

Motion carried unanimously.

Motion made by Hansen, seconded by Sutor that S. A. Swanson be and is hereby appointed official abstracter in and for the county of Red Lake, and that the appointment of Swanson & Grady as official abstracters is hereby revoked.

Motion carried unanimously.

Application of Frank E. Hunt for correction of assessment and abatement of Personal property taxes asking for a reduction in valuation from $2314.00 to $1914.00 was read.

Motion made by Sutor, seconded by Hebert that the same be granted.

Motion carried unanimously.

On motion duly carried a recess was taken to 1 o'clock p. m.

1 O'CLOCK P. M.

Board reconvened.

Meeting called to order by the chairman.

All members present.

Motion made by Hebert, seconded by Hansen, that the auditor is hereby instructed to draw his warrant on the Incidental expense fund in favor of O. T. Tandberg for $80.62 in payment of amount paid by him for stamps and express for County officers as per verified bill. Motion carried unanimously. Motion made by Hebert seconded by Sutor that the following bills be allowed. Motion carried unanimously.

COUNTY POOR FUND

Red Lake Falls Milling Co., Flour to Mrs. Tom Benston	$ 3 10
E M Hoff, merchandise for Mrs Johnson order Commissioner Sutor	6 00
John Alben, board and care of John Ortenquist, Sept. 1st, to Jan. 1, 1900	25 00
A R Rolstad, merchandise and nursing family of A. Swanson	11 90
Treffle Daoust, board of G. Carle, months of May and June	12 00
F J Stebbins, medicines furnished paupers, order of Commissioner Hansen	9 55
Rapp & Post, merchandise furnished Mrs. Swenson, order of Commissioner Johnson	2 95
John Beaudry, board of E. Morrissette Sept 1st, 1899 to Jan. 1st, 1900	32 60
Theo LaBissoniere, merchandise to Mrs. Brault, May 1st, 1899 to Jan. 1st, 1900	40 00
Theo. LaBissoniere, merchandise to O. Forstad, three months to Dec. 23 1899	15 00
Theo LaBissoniere, merchandise to John Doyen, pauper	2 70
Theo LaBissoniere, merchandise to Mrs. Brouillette, May 1st to Oct. 22, 1899	61 00
Dr. I. Lemieux, services rendered Mrs H. Benoit	1 00
Dr I Lemieux, services rendered Jos Joe Doyen, pauper	2 00
Dr. I Lemieux, services rendered Mrs. Robert Poutz	13 00
St. Luke's Hospital, medicine and care of Mrs. Anna Johnson, twelve days	13 50
St. Gabriel's hospital, board and care of Mary Demers three months, to Dec. 25th, 1899	15 00
Anton Benson, board of Anna Johnson Oct. 25th to Nov. 11th, 1899	7 50
Wm H Randall, nursing Fred Blomgren 24 days in June, 1899	24 00
Dr N M Watson, services rendered Fred Blomgren, setting fracture and attendance from May 29 to Aug. 22d 1899	250 00
Ed Gareau, two months' board of J Doyen by Lacourciere to Jan 1st	20 00
Hans R Kolseth, coffin and funeral expenses Erick Anderson	8 00
Ernest Buse, house rent for Mrs Marchildon, two months to Jan 5 1899	8 00

County Revenue Fund.

Ives & Soll, publishing notice of hearing on school petition	2 25
Ives & Soll, publishing forest and prairie fire notice	11 00
Ives & Soll, publishing report of grand jury	3 75
Ives & Soll, publishing final order school district	4 50
Ives & Soll, publishing ditch notice	24 65
Ives & Soll, publishing commissioners' proceedings Sept meeting	31 50
Courier Pub. Co, printing for county officers	35 00
Geo D Barnard & Co, blanks for delinquent tax sale	31 50
Geo D Barnard & Co, pens	1 04
Geo D Barnard & Co, blanks for judge of Probate	1 81
Geo D Barnard & Co, blanks for judge of probate	6 00
Geo D Barnard & Co, ink and supplies for county officers	16 15
Free Press Printing Company, blanks for sheriff	3 00
Pioneer Press, blanks for register of deeds	1 40
Adam Zeh, one day board of audit	3 00
Val Detling, juror's fees State vs Jacob Bahlen	1 00
Red Lake Falls Electric Light Company, wiring in 11 lights and services Nov. 8 1899 to Jan 1, 1900	21 85
Polk county, boarding Ed Miller, prisoner, eight days in August, 1899	5 68
James Brady, lumber and making shelves, auditor's office	2 50
J C Mathews, court commissioners' fees state vs Fred Strois	8 26
E A Moran, constable fees, State vs H Jummer	16 35
Jos Belair table for vault	1 25
Joseph Belair, coroner's inquest body of Christ Siegfried	10 15
Joseph Belair, coroner's fees inquest body of Mrs. A G Swenson	21 30
Chas N Bourdon, moving safe in auditor's office Feb 1899	1 70
Ernest Buse, rent of court room October term	6 00
Frank E Hunt, window glass, brush and oil for court house	3 75
Joseph Perrault, 3 days board of audit	9 00
Thief River Falls Lumber Company, lumber for vault	5 37
Joseph Perrault, clerk of court fees	128 20
Chas Simpson, sheriff's fees as per bill	278 85
Free Press Printing Co., to 500 tax receipts $12 allowed at	9 00
Ives & Soll, publishing auditor and treasurer's statement $5.25 allowed at $4.50	4 50
Ives & Soll, publishing proceedings of Oct 25 $22.50 allowed at	11 25
Ives & Soll, 100 copies ditch notices $13.50 allowed at	3 00

County Poor Fund.

Anton Peterson, medicine and lumber for coffin for Mrs. Andrew Sorenson deceased $7.30 allowed at	5 18

On motion duly carried the following bills were rejected:

Dr A F Blomburg, for services rendered Mrs Anna Johnson	24 00
Otto Amundson, board of Mrs Anna Johnson and children	27 00
John Perrault, boarding Mrs G Violette	15 50

On motion carried unanimously bills in Sanders Black River ditch proceedings were allowed as follows:

Geo A Ralph 28 days service engineer $112 and stationery $3	115 00
E A Moran, 15 days as viewer and 8 days' team hire	60 00
Ole J Johnson, 10 days as viewer	30 00
Alex A Sweans, 21 days as viewer	63 00
P O Hagglund, 8 days rodman, 8 days team hire	40 00
L Boisvert, 8 days rodman	16 00
Iver Johnson, 1 day axman	1 50
J E Ford, typewriting, specifications	3 00
Adam Zeh, 13 days' services	39 00

Commissioner Hansen offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Resolved that the notice of Special Delinquent Tax Sale for the year 1895 and prior years, Law of 1899, be published in the official paper of the County of Red Lake for the ensuing year, provided that the County of Red Lake shall not be liable for the payment of such publication.

Which resolution was seconded by Commissioner Hebert and on motion carried unanimously the same was adopted.

Motion made by Hebert, seconded by Sutor that the bond of S. A. Swanson as Official Abstracter be approved. Carried unanimously.

Motion made by Hanson, seconded by Johnson, to adjourn, Hansen and Johnson voting in the affirmative, Hebert, Sutor and Demann voting in the negative. Motion lost.

Commissioner Sutor offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Whereas, There has been filed with the County Auditor and presented to this Board, the petition of more than one hundred legal voters and freeholders of Red Lake County, praying that the County erect and construct and furnish a court house at the county seat, and that this Board raise the sum of Ten Thousand dollars to be expended in the erection, construction and furnishing of such court house, and that said sum be raised by issuing and negotiating the bonds of this County in the sum of Ten Thousand dollars

Therefore, Resolved that this Board erect, construct and furnish a court house at Red Lake Falls, the county seat, at an expense not to exceed Ten Thousand dollars, and that the bonds of Red Lake county in the aggregate amount of Ten Thousand dollars be issued and negotiated as follows: Ten bonds of One Thousand dollars each payable in 20 years from date of issue, bearing interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually; bonds and interest to be payable at the County Treasurer's office in said Red Lake County, the proceeds to be used in the construction of court house aforesaid.

Which resolution was seconded by Commissioner Hebert and declared carried and adopted on the following vote:

Yeas, Commissioners Sutor, Hebert and Demann.

Nays, Commissioners Hansen and Johnson.

Commissioner Hebert offered the following resolution and moved its adoption:

Resolved that a special election be and the same is hereby called and ordered to be held in and throughout Red Lake County in the several election districts thereof, on Saturday, the 24th day of February, 1900, for the purpose of voting on the proposition to issue and negotiate the bonds of Red Lake County in the aggregate amount of Ten Thousand dollars payable in 20 years from date of issue, bearing interest at the rate of 5 per cent per annum, interest payable semiannually, for the purpose of building a County court house at the county seat of said Red Lake County, and the County Auditor is hereby instructed to issue the proper notice of election accordingly.

Which resolution was seconded by Commissioner Sutor, and declared duly carried on the following vote:

Ayes, Commissioners Hebert, Sutor and Demann.

Nays, Commissioners Johnson and Hansen.

On motion made by Sutor, seconded by Johnson and carried unanimously, meeting adjourned.

WM. C. L. DEMANN,
Chairman.

Attest:
ADAM ZEH,
County Auditor.

PENSIONS,
PATENTS,
AND
MISCELLANEOUS
Claims against the Government.

ALLAN RUTHERFORD,
(Formerly Third Auditor U. S. Treasury.)

Attorney and Counsellor at Law.
Solicitor of American and Foreign Patents, Trade Marks and Copyrights.

Practices before the Supreme Court of the U. S., Court of Claims, and all Departments of the Government.

Special attention given to claims of officers and enlisted men, in Army and Navy service in the Mexican War, War of the Rebellion and the War with Spain. Also Claims of Government Contractors. Collection of Accounts.

Refers by permission to Hon. Geo. L. Wellington, U. S. Senator from Maryland, General O. O. Howard, U. S. Army, George C. Henning, President, Traders National Bank, Washington, D. C., and others.

No charge for advice. Correspondence solicited.

Offices, Atlantic Building,
928 and 930 F Street, N. W.,
Rooms, 95, 97, 99 and 100,
WASHINGTON, D. C.

Kodol
Dyspepsia Cure
Digests what you eat.

It artificially digests the food and aids Nature in strengthening and reconstructing the exhausted digestive organs. It is the latest discovered digestant and tonic. No other preparation can approach it in efficiency. It instantly relieves and permanently cures Dyspepsia, Indigestion, Heartburn, Flatulence, Sour Stomach, Nausea, Sick Headache, Gastralgia, Cramps, and all other results of imperfect digestion.

Prepared by E. C. DeWitt & Co., Chicago

PATENTS GUARANTEED

Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.

Patents taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in THE PATENT RECORD, an illustrated and widely circulated journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.

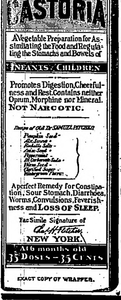
Send for sample copy FREE. Address,

VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.
(Patent Attorneys,)
Evans Building, WASHINGTON, D. C.



900 DROPS
CASTORIA
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of
INFANTS & CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral.
NOT NARCOTIC.
Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed
Alx. Senna
Rochelle Salts
Anise Seed
Peppermint
Bi Carbonate Soda
Worm Seed
Clarified Sugar
Wintergreen Flavor
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac Simile Signature of
NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES – 35 CENTS

EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of
Chas. H. Fletcher.
The Kind You Have Always Bought.
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

THE AMERICAN MONTHLY REVIEW OF REVIEWS

"A great monthly newspaper."—The Bookman.

THE magazine for up-to-date people. It gives its own illustrated account of the current history of this country and Europe, and, in addition, selects the best that is in all the other magazines, American, English, French, German, Italian, Spanish, and Russian. It is for people who want to know what is going on in the world. A hundred timely illustrations in every number.

Price, $2.50 per year.
Sample copy, 10 cents.

Send a postal card to learn how to get Dr. Albert Shaw's "History of the Spanish War" (over 500 illustrations, 1,200 pages) and the "Review of Reviews" together for only two dollars down and monthly payments.

THE REVIEW OF REVIEWS CO., 13 ASTOR PLACE, NEW YORK.

Perfect in Quality

No Rochelle Salts
No Alum
in the food prepared with
Calumet Baking Powder

MODERATE IN PRICE

We will give $1000 for anything injurious found in food prepared with
CALUMET
NOT MADE BY THE TRUST.

CANDY CATHARTIC
Cascarets
CURE CONSTIPATION
REGULATE THE LIVER
10¢ 25¢ 50¢
ALL DRUGGISTS
ABSOLUTELY GUARANTEED to cure any case of constipation. Cascarets are the ideal Laxative, never grip or gripe, but cause easy natural results. Sample and booklet free. Ad. STERLING REMEDY CO., Chicago, Montreal, Can., or New York. 311

BLANK PAGE

Now then
If you are
Looking for
Bargins in
Dry Goods
Groceries
Hats, Caps,
Boots, Shoes
Clothing
Notions

Or in fact anything carried in a first-class general merchandise store, why you are cordially invited and we will accommodate you. Call and look over our large stock.

E. M. HOFF.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

I. O. O. F. ST. HILAIRE LODGE No. 147.—Meets at their hall every Thursday evening, eight o'clock. Visiting members are cordially invited to attend.
J. B. O'BRIEN, N. G.
A. F. LANG, Secretary.

M. W. A. CAMP 3650.—Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every second and fourth Tuesday of every month. Visiting neighbors are cordially invited to attend.
H. O. JACKSON, V. C.
JAS. M. HALL, Clerk.

R. N. A.—WILD ROSE CAMP.—No. 834 Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every Friday evening. Visiting members of the order are cordially invited to attend.
MRS. W. A. ARTHUR, Oracle.
MISS T. HUGHES, Recorder.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.

E. J. Holmes	President
J. L. Johnson	Recorder
D. Patterson	Councilmen
J. C. Dahl
W. A. Sorsoleil
L. Holmes	Treasurer

DR. BLOMBURGH.
SCANDINAVIAN
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Calls attended day or night.
Teeth Extracted.
Office and residence opposity M. E. church. ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

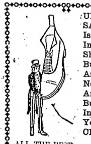
Auditor	Adam Zeh
Treasurer	O. T. Tandberg
Register of Deeds	Samuel Gibeau
Sheriff	Chas. Sampson
Attorney	Van R. Brown
Judge of Probate	J. T. Knight
Clerk of Court	Joe Perrault
Supt. of Schools	Frank Jeffers
Coroner	Joe Belaire
Court Commissioner	J. C. Mathews
Surveyor	P. O. Hagglund
Commissioner 1st Dist.	J. Suter
Commissioner 2nd Dist.	W. L. C. Demann
Commissioner 3rd Dist.	O. J. Johnsen
Commissioner 4th Dist.	Karl M. Hanson
Commissioner 5th Dist.	J. B. Herbert

HENRY FRANCIS, M. D., C. M.
Member College Physicians and Surgeons, Ontario.
Office and residence first door south of Oen's hardware store.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.

List of Town Clerks.

Names	Township	Postoffice
Olof Larson	Numedal	Viking
C. E. Purdy	North	Thief River Falls
John E. Peterson	Bray	Bray
N. K. Anderson	Sanders	St. Hilaire
F. T. Satre	Rocksbury	T. R. Falls
O. T. Roinsos	Polk Centre	Wylie
P. A. Eckstrom	Black River	Wylie
A. S. Anderson	River Falls	St. Hilaire
Ole J. Johnson	Wyandotte	"
A. D. Berry	Louisville	Huot
Hilaire Baril	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
Chas. E. Asp	Emardville	Lost
Edward Havik	Equality	Grit
Moses Ducharme	Lake Pleasant	R. L. F.
Edonor Perusse	Terrebonne	Terrebonne
J. B. Herbert	Poplar River	Brooks
Louis Doucet	Lambert	Lambert
J. L. Johnson	St. Hilaire	St. Hilaire
Lars Backe	Thief River F.	T. R. F.
A. P. Toupin	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
H. D. Baaryson	Norden	T. R. Falls
Olof Tande	Garnes	Garnes

A. O. LETVIG,
TUBULAR WELL CONTRACTOR.
A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed.
Repairing a Specialty.
WYLIE. MINNESOTA.



UNCLE SAM
Is not
In the Shoe
Business,
And
Neither
Am I,
But I can
Interest
You in
CIGARS.

ALL THE BEST
SMOKERS BUY THEM

J. B. Cigars.

ALL THE BEST
DEALERS SELL THEM.
J. B. ARMSTRONG,
Manufacturer.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA.

DAY F. STACY, C. E.
DEPUTY
County Surveyor.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.
Drainage and Farm Surveys a Specialty.

Market Report.—To-Day.

Wheat No. 1	53½	Oats	16
Wheat No. 2	49½	Barley	27
Wheat No. 3	46½	Flax	131
Eggs (per doz).	15	Butter (per lb)	16

LOCAL NEWS.

Masquerade ball Feb. 14th.

Fresh oysters at A. F. Lang's.

A cow for sale. Inquire W. Allen.

Flour and feed at Leonard Holmes elevator.

Oysters prepared in any style at A. F. Lang's.

Wall paper and calcimine at the New Drug store.

A new stock of boys clothing just received at E. M. Hoff's.

Try a lunch, a meal or a weeks board at the Ideal Lunch Room.

Mr. Isaac Sorsoleil returned to his home at Owatonna Friday.

Miss Selina Hoff left Monday on a short visit with friends at Crookston.

Patronize home industry by buying your wall paper at the New Drug store.

The thermometers took a thirty degrees fall in less than six hours Monday.

Teachers examination February 2nd and 3rd. See notice elsewhere on this page.

Supt. Murch returned to-day from a few days visit with his family at Crookston.

Mrs. W. A. Case returned yesterday from a few days visit with her husband at Crookston.

Mrs. H. E. Adams left Monday for Park Rapids on a three weeks visit with relatives.

W. E. Rowe, one of the ablest attorneys of Crookston was here last Saturday on legal matters.

Yesterday was the quietest day in business circles our merchants have experienced in ten years.

H. E. Ives returned to-day from a two weeks trip at the twin cities and points on the Duluth line.

Mrs. W. Mageau terminated a weeks visit with her parents here and left Monday for her home at Crookston.

A. C. Schmidt, the artistic painter of Crookston was here a few days last week looking up some spring contracts.

Herman and Louis Adams and Frank Rossen returned last Wednesday night from a three weeks stay in the lumbering woods.

Mr. and Mrs. D. Collins were over Sunday visitors with the Powers family near Wylie, returning home on the Monday morning train.

The black bear presented to Admiral Dewey by the town people of Bemidji is no more, having died at the Zoo gardens in Washington.

I. Dahleen has taken the contract to finish H. W. Lee's residence at the upper Falls. He expects to complete the job inside of thirty days.

Messrs. Armstrong, Murphy, Hunt and Converse of Red Lake Falls, accompanied by their ladies attended the dance at Hotel Markham last Thursday night.

The most effective thing to rid the house of cock-roaches, is phosphorus paste spread around places they frequent. Hot water is sure death, if they are where it can be used.

B. Berger after spending several months in the lumbering woods working for Herman Nelson returned Thursday. He left the following day for Cloquet on a short visit to his brother and sister.

C. G. Rapp returned Thursday from a three weeks trip to Chicago and West Baden, Indiana Springs. He claims the latter as a health resort is second to none and intends to make another trip next summer.

A communication under date of Jan. 16th, reports our former townsman, Tobeas Oidne, now of Scotia, Washington, as seriously ill. Mr. Oidne's many friends here will be much grieved to hear of his illness.

Messrs. Zaiser, Sarasin and Paradis of Red Lake Falls passed through Monday enroute to Crookston to see the "Little Minister." Jas. Meehan of the upper Falls accompanied them for the same purpose.

Our wood pile is getting low; now that the roads are good, will some of our farmer subscribers please bring us a load or two that they promised us last year?

Same Old Song.

When Red Lake Falls wanted votes to divide the county they said if it carried would reduce taxes and now when they want votes for to bond for $10,000 more they use the same old song that it will reduce our taxes if carried but I don't think the average taxpayers are as easily gulled; one fact stands out too plain namely that during the three years we have been in existence as Red Lake county we have been taxed up to the limit and still falling short of paying the running expenses of the county to the tune of $10,000 per year. This is very plain since we have already bonds for $30,000 and that don't look much like reducing taxes.

HENRY NORLAND.

A half dozen of farmers were brought in from the Clearwater last evening and this afternoon will be brought up before Justice Gigstad to answer the charge of swiping logs from the Lumber Company.

T. H. Shevlin and H. C. Clark of Minneapolis, president and secretary of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company were here Thursday looking after their interests. They returned to Crookston on the evening train.

C. G. Rapp, E. J. Brink and J. J. Soll hied themselves off to Crookston Monday to see the "Little Minister" perform at the opera house that evening. They are all unanimous in pronouncing it a first-class show.

The band boys will give a Masquerade ball Feb. 14th. They have secured the best orchestra of Red Lake Falls and that is a sufficient guarantee that the best kind of a time is in store for all who attend. All are invited.

We acknowledged the receipt of a copy of the Holiday Supplement to the Moorhead Independent. It is a little the best in this line we have ever seen and D. W. Meeker, the publisher has every reason to feel proud of his work.

Thursday evening the many friends of Mrs. M. McAndress tendered her a surprise at the Hotel Markham on the anniversary of her birthday. About thirty couple were in attendance and dancing was the enjoyable feature of the evening. A delicious lunch was served at the usual time. Music was furnished by the Peters orchestra.

Birthday Party.

A Birthday party under the auspices of the Ladies Aid of the M. E. church will be given at Brink's hall on Tuesday evening Jan. 30th at 8 p. m.

A Birthday party is given to you.
'Tis something novel, 'tis something new.
We give to each a little sack;
Please kindly send, or bring it back
With as many pennies as years you are old;
Or as many more as the sack will hold.
Kind friends will give you something to eat;
'And others will furnish a musical treat.
The ladies aid, with greetings most hearty.
Feel sure you'll attend your own birthday party.

No extra charges for refreshments.

Teachers Lose Money.

Many of the school teachers in the western part of the county have been swindled out of considerable money by three people, a Mr. E. T. Walker and Misses Miller and Palmer. These three persons represented themselves as being in the employ of the "Minnesota School of Correspondence" of which institution W. G. Hyde, formerly assistant superintendent of public instruction, is a faculty member. They had with them forged letters from prominent educators and represented that one course would cost $8. The secured close to $2,000, part of which was in notes, the payment of which will be resisted. They played a sharp game, but they may yet have more trouble than they anticipate.—Polk County Journal.

Church Building Declared Off.

Superintendent Murch of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company imagined he could hear saws cutting up logs belonging to his company one day last week, and so to make sure he put his ear close to the ground and proceeded the direction the noise of the saws came from. In less than three hours he run up against the real thing that was chewing up the log marks of his company. He was spotted as a "detective" and grasping the situation he palmed himself off as a cattle buyer asking a few questions he bid them adieu and proceeded onward to the next farmer in search of cattle. His next appearance at this mill was last Sunday—he was out of the cattle business and right into the lumber business. Warrants were issued and served and in less than three hours nine teams with 18,000 feet of lumber formed a procession headed for St. Hilaire. It is said the whole neighborhood is involved in swiping these logs that in a few days would have been converted into a house of worship as plans and specifications were found to that effect. It is said the farmers do not realize the offense they have committed in stealing these logs. It was necessary to batter the end marks of the logs in order to jar them loose from the frozen ground. The case rests with the Lumber Co.

Notice for Bids.

Notice is hereby given that the county auditor will receive bids for 40 cords second growth poplar wood to be delivered at the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls. Bids will be received and considered by the board of county commissioners on ten cord lots or more. Bids to be presented to the county auditor on or before Feb. 10th 1900. The board reserved the right to reject any or all bids.

Attest. By order of the Board,
ADAM ZEH, County Auditor.

—To cure a cough or cold in one day take the Imperial Cough Syrup.

—It is better than ready money because it cures rheumatism, constipation sick headache, indigestion. Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure.

PAY YOUR TAXES.

There Will be no Redemption From the Forfeited Sale to be Held Next May. Owners of Real Estate Delinquent in Taxes May Lose It—Tax Title Sharks Watchful.

Chapter 322 of the laws of 1899 provides for a cleaning up sale of all real estate upon which the taxes are delinquent for the year 1897, or any prior year or years. The sale will take place immediately after the regular delinquent tax sale in May. There will be no redemption from this sale. In the language of the statute it "shall be absolute and final." Section 7 of the chapter above referred to provides that "when any piece or parcel of land shall be so sold, the purchaser shall be entitled to immediate possession of the piece or parcel purchased by him, and if no demand and no presentation of the certificate of sale, the person in possession of the piece or parcel refuse or neglect to deliver such possession such person may be proceeded against as a person holding over the termination of his estate."

Chapter 322 is modeled after the '81 law, and the forfeited tax law of '81 has been declared valid by the supreme court. We are reliably informed, in fact we have positive information, that a syndicate of bidders will be represented at the Mille Lacs county sale who will bid on every village lot and every piece of acre property that is worth the taxes. In fact several syndicates have been organized in St. Paul and in the southern part of the state who will have representatives at every county seat in northern Minnesota to bid on every lot or tract of land that is considered worth the taxes.

These bidders can not possibly lose anything. If the sale is sustained by the courts a tax certificate will be as good as a warranty deed, and if the sale is held to be invalid the holder of the certificate will be refunded his money with interest. We would advise every reader of the Union that the only safe policy to pursue is to pay up all back taxes at once. It is safe to assume that if you own a forty acre tract reasonably worth $600, and there are delinquent taxes against it to the amount of $100 or $150, the speculators in tax titles will not permit you to bid it in for less than the full amount of the taxes. It would be unwise to wait until the day of sale with the expectation of being able to bid in your home for 50 per cent of the taxes.—State Auditor Dunn in the Princeton Union.

Times Sets the Pace.

The Minneapolis Times has certainly made a strong move for popularity by securing the New York Herald's special cable service. This gives The Times the best service from a telegraphic news standpoint that is held by any northwestern newspaper. The new service is of great value to the readers of The Times, especially during the Boer war. And from present indications other countries than England are bound to be involved in the South African troubles, thus making the news service of greater value to the readers, as it gives to them a service equal to that enjoyed by the people of London and New York. The Times sets the pace for enterprising newspaper service in the northwest, and its latest bid for popularity is but another evidence of its lead in that direction.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

From Farm, Stock and Home.

It requires an increase of at least 50,000,000 bushels of wheat a year to supply the natural increase of the world's wheat eating people, yet this year there is a decrease of nearly 100,000,000 bushels and without increase of price! "Price is regulated by supply and demand." To be sure; but 'twould be hard to believe it if one didn't see it with his own eyes!

It is now proposed to make it an inducement to national banks to exercise the sovereign right to issue money by removing the tax from their circulation and allow them to issue currency equal to the full value to the bonds they deposited instead of 90 per cent of the value, as heretofore; and this is called "financial reform." A sewer by any other name would smell as foul.

The Pillsbury-Washburn flouring mills report net earnings for the past year of £208,510, exclusive of £65,841 spent for improvements and repairs, which added that much to value of property, hence the net gain was about $1,371,755. The earnings are stated in pounds because the properties are English owned, and the profits, unfortunately, go to England, which is an unpleasant feature of the situation.

Methodist Church.

Services will be held in the Methodist church on Sunday morning at 11 a. m. and in the evening at 7:30.

N. J. VERNON, Pastor.

—Go to the New Drug Store for your Stationery and School supplies.

I want to let the people who suffer from rheumatism and sciatica know that Chamberlain's Pain Balm relieved me after a number of other medicines and a doctor had failed. It is the best liniment I have ever known of.—J. A. Dodgen, Alpharetta, Ga. Thousands have been cured of rheumatism by this remedy. One application relieves the pain. For sale by the Imperial Drug Store.

—Dr. Thomas is an up-to-date in all the different branches in his profession. Remember the dates, Jan. 29th and 30th.

—If you are troubled with rheumatism take the Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure. It will positively cure all diseases arising from impure blood and is sold under an absolute guarantee to benefit or money refunded. Call for free sample at the New Drug Store.

The Story That Snow is a Fertilizer Must Be Abandoned.

There is a quite general belief that snow is the poor man's fertilizer, that with it comes a generous crop, without it a lean harvest. If this were true, then the outlook for the harvest of 190 would be dark. But like many another notion this one must go to the wall, for not only are the snowless seasons followed by good crops, but the very nature of the snow itself, is opposed to the fertilizer theory.

Professor Snyder of the Minnesota state experiment station has paid much attention to soils, says the Minneapolis Journal. He has made exhaustive study in this direction and says the absence of snow by no means indicates a poor crop. A large fall of snow may be benefical in adding ammonia to a soil that is dificient in it, by drawing it from the atmosphere and tendering it to the soil, and some have claimed that this has in certain instances added as much as one bushel of wheat per acre. The real value of the snow however is that it may add to the soil a needed amount of moisture in the spring. This, of course, is a question for the spring conditions to settle for if the soil is deep frozen and snow goes away under the influence of a warm rain, but comparatively little benefit will come to the soil. Professor Snyder estimates that in order to produce an average acre of wheat 350 tons of water are needed. The average amount of rainfall during the growing season should be at least two inches per month, but even with this a good deal is lost by evaporation and the wheat calls upon the soil for its stored up supply of water.

This reverse supply of water may or may not be influenced by the presence of snow—it certainly is not when the snow, heavy or light is fall, goes away swiftly in the spring. The water reaches the wheat, or other crop, in three forms—bottom water, that which stands in the soil at a general level and fills all the space between the soil particles; capillary water which is held in the capillary spaces between the particles of soil; and hydroscopic water, the moisture which is present in the atmosphere of the soil. In any event, there does not appear to be any reason for believing that the snow is any sense a manure fertilizer or that the absence of it in this, or any other season, presages crop failure.

The Journal man was told a story the other day of two Hebrews, of the tribe of Levi. They were in the clothing business. One brother conducted a store in a large city and the other a branch house in a country town some distance away. The country brother laid down one day and died. The local undertaker telegraphed the city brother the following message: "Your brother dead. How will you have body cared for? Can embalm for $50 or freeze for $25." The city brother replied by mail as follows: "Freeze Isaac from the ankles up. He had his feet frozen last winter and they don't need it any more. Inclosed find check for $20." Isaac was frozen "from the ankles up" and promptly shipped to the sorrowing brother.

If you want a 1900 calander call at this office or at K. O. Gigstad's real estate office and get one.

Regulate Your Watch.

As Johnson's barber shop and if it don't keep time, leave it, and we will repair it and warrant it to keep time for one year. New watches, clocks chains and jewelry for sale at the lowest prices. I will be at Johnson's barber shop the 10th 11th and 12th of every month. All work left at the shop has my personal attention. When you come to Red Lake Falls make the Palace Jewely Store your headquarters.

I am yours truly
PROF. J. Q. ADAMS,
Watchmaker and Optician.

"A young man came into our store yesterday suffering from a severe attack of cramp colic," writes B. F. Hess, miller and general merchant, Dickey's Mountain, Pa. "He had tried various home remedies without relief. As I had used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy I gave him a dose and it soon brought him out alright. I never saw a fellow so rejoiced." Sold by the Imperial Drug Store.

—For cuts and sores there is nothing better than the Imperial Carbolic salve.

Notice.

Teachers examination for Red Lake County under the new law will be held in the high school building in the city of Red Lake Falls Friday and Saturday February 2 and 3. It will be necessary for all persons expecting to teach in this county whose certificates expire prior to March 1st 1900, to attend this examination. All applicants will please be present promptly at 8 o'clock on the morning of the first day, as no questions can be furnished after the examination in any subject begins.

FRANK JEFFERS,
County Superintendent.

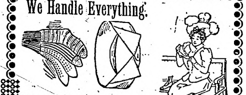
Rev. Dr. Forbes will preach in the M. E. church on Saturday Feb. 3rd at 8 p. m., also on Sunday Feb. 4th at 11 a. m. After the morning service the sacrament of the Lord's supper will be administered. All are welcome.

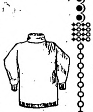
An elegant line of Rockers just received at Holmes Furniture Co. Come early while the selection is good.

Dentist.

—Dr. J. H. Thomas, the Crookston dentist will be at Hotel Markham, St. Hilaire, Jan. 29th and 30th prepared to do all kinds of up to date dental work in all branches. All work warranted. Remember the dates 29th and 30th.

The SPECTATOR would like to have a correspondent from the towns of Black River, Sanders, Bray, Rocksbury, River Falls and Wyandotte. Stationery and stamps furnished at this office. Don't be backward in coming forward.





We Handle Everything.

Start the Day Right

And everything will go smoothly. The proper way to start the day is by coming around to our store and ordering a supply of groceries for the day, such things as you may need. It will take you but a few minutes, and we feel sure you will not regret it.

Our Groceries

Are always fresh, and then the prices are as near right as we know how to make them. If you have not been in the habit of trading with us, drop in and see us anyway; you might get into the habit.

Hardware

We carry everything in the hardware line from cooking stoves down to tacks—all you have to do is to ask for what you want, If you want anything in the tin or copper line done drop into our tin shop and your wants will be attended to.

Yours very truly,
RAPP & POST
St. Hilaire, Minnesota.

M. A. HALL
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS,
GROCERIES,
NOTIONS,
GENTS FURNISHING GOODS,
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
CONFECTIONERY

GO TO THE New Hardware Store for anything you need in the line of Hardware, Paints, Oils, Stoves, Harness
AND PLOWS.
Also agent for Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines. Call and get prices.
A. H. WEAGANT.

LEONARD HOLMES,
—DEALER IN—
Agricultural Implements..
WHEAT, FLAX OATS AND BARLEY.
Flour and Feed always on Hand.

Lumber! Lumber!
OF ALL KINDS.
We have a large and well assorted stock of Dry Lumber and are prepared to fill all orders on short notice. We also carry a complete assortment
—OF—
Sash, Doors, Paper
AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL
Which we buy in large quantities and are thereby enabled to sell at lowest market prices.
ST. HILAIRE LUMBER CO.

IF YOU INTEND TO
Buy Furniture
Come and look our assortment over. We carry everything in the Furniture line including picture frames and musical instruments. Prices reasonable.
Holmes Furniture Co.

8

7

The Arnewood Mystery

BY MAURICE H. HERVEY.

Author of "Dead Man's Court," "Somerville's Crime," "Dartmoor," "Maravin's Money," etc., etc.

CHAPTER XII.

Billy's Yarn.

Mr. Gray's prediction as to the boy's return proved wrong; he did not put in an appearance until 8 o'clock next morning, while I was dressing after a sound night's rest in a luxurious cabin. The captain, principal officers and most of the crew were away on leave, and, under these circumstances, the chief steward can do pretty well as he pleases. Certainly, I had nothing to complain of as a guest of the ship; such a breakfast as was set before me I have seldom sat down to anywhere.

The cook's boy, a foxy-looking lad of fifteen, was then brought in for examination. He glanced at me suspiciously at first, but a fair imitation of an encouraging smile and the suggestive jingling of some loose change in my pocket seemed to reassure him.

"Now, then, Billy," said the steward, impressively, "you may talk before this gentleman just as freely as though you and I were alone—you understand? Just tell us, as shortly and plainly as you can, what happened since yesterday afternoon until you reported yourself this morning. Sit or stand, as you please."

Thus adjured, Billy, who elected to stand, squared away to his recital manfully. At first he fixed his eyes steadily upon the skylight, and spoke as though anxious to make an end of the job; but gradually warming to his work, he became more confidential and explanatory. I took down portions of his narrative in shorthand, and these I am therefore enabled to give in his own words.

"I knowed when I saw Jim Blogg dressed in his Sunday togs as how he wouldn't wait for no dinner aboard, and I just sneaked a sausage and a hunk of soft tack out of the galley and watched 'im. Sure enough, he and Spratt slipped ashore, just before two bells, and I after 'em. I guessed they'd begin by a booze, and so they did, at the first pub they struck. Then they went on to another pub called the White Bear, where I 'spects they had a feed, 'cos they was such a bloomin' long time inside. From behind a dray, t'other side of the road, I saw 'em shake hands and sep'rate. Spratt, he turned back towards the docks, while Jim Blogg, after walkin' a bit ahead, hailed a tramway and clambered up outside to smoke his pipe. So I just popped inside and kept my eye on the steps. 'Course I didn't know how fur I was a-goin', so I chanced a pen'orth, same as others was a-doin'. I had to part with another ha'penny, though, afore I saw Jim gettin' down the companion-way."

"Where did he get out?" I inquired.

"Just in front of a big pub, painted w hiteau' called the Sheet Anchor, where he went in for another booze, I s'pose. Then he turned into a narrow, dirty street called Rodney avenue, and cracked on so that I had to trot to keep 'im in sight. He gets over the ground uncommon smart for a heavy man, does Jim! Presently I sees 'im turnin' into a gate, and, when I comes to the spot, I find it leads to a queer-lookin' old house, a bit back from the street and with a pathway up to it. The door was just a-closin' on Jim as I got up.

"I dursn't venture inside the gate by daylight, for fear Jim'd see me, an' so I just hung around for more nor three mortal hours, until t'was dark. A cove with 'ot chestnuts come along, and I 'ad 'alf a pint off a milkman, so I wasn't bad off for vittles, at least. What worried me was, 'ow I was to get inside that house unknowst to Jim Blogg. I thought of all the yarns I'd read of Jack Sheppard, an' Charlie Peace, an' other smart cracksmen; but the game warn't the same. They always went to a job purwided with tools and ladders and all they wanted. I had nothing to help me but my finger nails and an old jack-knife. 'Twasn't fair, nohow, an' I could only see one ghost of a show.

"There was a wide, double wooden gate, with a wicket let into it, at one side of the house (leading, as I supposed, to the stables.) Well, just inside the gate, and about twelve feet from the ground, was a window; and it struck me that if that window should chance to be unfastened, I need only find some way of reach it to do the trick. So I bought a box of wax matches, in case I should want 'em; and as soon as 'twas dark enough to prevent a passing copper seeing what I was up to, I made for the wicket. It was only on the latch, and so I goes in. Just as I expected, there was some stablin' a bit further on, and, groping about, I presently comes across a ladder such as I've seen 'em use for haylofts. That was right into my hands, in course. I precious soon had it shifted to the window, and up I goes. At first I thought I was sold, 'cos, though I dragged at the top sash fur all I was worth, I couldn't budge it an inch. Then I tried the bottom sash, an' almost 'ollered out with joy when I found it rose a bit under the blade of my knife. Bit by bit I prised it up, until I could get my fingers underneath.; and then, with a steady shove, up she went!

"You bet I listened pretty carefully afore I ventured inside; but not the faintest sound could I hear, and so, after a bit, in I went. It was too dark to make out anything; but of course, the odds were I was in a bedroom, and I had to risk striking a light to find the door. So I lit a match on my pants (it don't make no noise that way) and took a look around. Lucky for me I did! The window faced on a landing, and I was standing within a yard of a steep staircase. I sat down upon the top step and took off my boots, which I crammed into my pockets. Then I braced up and went down stairs.

"In the hall was a small, open naptha lamp, that smoked awful and gave scarce no light at all and there were doors on either side, both shut. I peeped through the keyholes and listened; but I could neither see nor hear anything. There was a longish passage leading towards the back and ended in the kitchen stairs. There, at last, I made out the sound of voices coming from below.

"If you'll believe me, that was the first time I began to feel scared. I'd heard and seen enough of Jim Blogg to know that he warn't exactly the safest man in the world to run foul of, and that, if he caught me a-spin' on him, he'd make it 'ot for me. Howsomever, I plucked up heart and crept like a cat down stairs. There was no light except what came from the kitchen, owin' to the door being a few inches ajar, but I managed to get within earshot without making no noise. Two men was arguing, and I spotted one of 'em as Jim by his voice. The other I dirn't recognize.

"'Tain't worth while arguin' all night about a thing wot's got to be done,' Jim was saying. 'I was promised a thousand—I earned the money, and jolly well mean to have it.'

"'That's right enough,' said the other. 'You've had a hundred and fifty, and you shall have the rest within a week. Can't you understand that the drafts became useless when the name of—the man—was discovered? The actual hard cash did not, as you know, amount to much—in fact, you got most of it. And it takes time to raise £850.'

"'That's none of my business,' sez Jim, sulkylike. ' wants my 'oof and wants to get away, and I don't want to be choked off with excuses and explanations. See here, mate. You 'pear to take your master's place all through in this business, and I believe you mean square enough. If I agree to wait till this day week, will you undertake to see me paid off, without any more nonsense? Your boss can do it right enough if you keep him up to it.'

"'To be sure he can,' said the other man, 'and he'll do it, too. The money will be paid in this very room, at 3 o'clock this day week.'

"'That's a wager,' growled Jim. 'And now let's have a drink.'

"Well, they sat there boozing and talking about all sorts of things that I didn't bother my head with, until the clock struck seven, when Jim made up his mind to clear, and the other one remembered he had a cove to see in the West End. This was a straight enough tip for me, and I slipped up stairs to the landing as quick as I could. I drew on my boots, knotted the laces anyhow, and waited, astride the window sill, until I heard the door slam. Then I pulled down the window, put the ladder back where I found it, and bunked after the pair of 'em. They walked together as fur as the Sheet Anchor, where Jim went in, but the other one wouldn't. I got a fair look at him, under a lamp, and at once spotted him as the stranger that gave me the letter and the shilling. What was I to do? Follow him, or stick to Jim Blogg? I hadn't much time to make up my mind, but I stuck to the stranger for two reasons."

"What were they, Billy?" asked Mr. Gray, encouragingly.

"Well, I felt pretty sure that Jim was on for nothing more than a good old drunk, for one thing," was the reply, embellished by a vulpine grin; "and, besides, you'd give me money for cabs, if necessary. So I felt I could crack on as much steam as he could."

"And did he take a cab?"

"Why, in course he did; but I didn't find it quite so easy to get one to take me, and I had to part two shillings afore the cabby would make a start. However, he turned out a real clipper when he did get under way."

"'Wotever 'appens, don't lose sight of that cab in front, with the grey horse!' I bawled at 'im, forking out the two bob.

"'All right,' says he. 'Wot's up?'

"'Don't know,' I answers back, ''cept that the gent in that cab has been playing some game on my sister, and I means to find out where he's going to. I've more 'oof on me, so don't you worry.'

"'Oh, that's his game, is it?' says he. 'I'll not lose him, young'un, never fear!'

"Lor! what a drive that was! Pretty, too, when we came to where the streets and swell places was all lit up with 'lectrict lamps. At last we passed out of a blaze of light, where several streets met, into a wide road with a park on one side, and presently the cab in front turned into a gateway. My cabby pulled up

"'See here, young'un,' says he, 'the bloke you're after has gone into a swell club, where you can't follow him.'

"'Can't I?' I replies. 'Well, I can wait outside for him, anyhow. What do I owe you?'

"'Call it another bob,' says he 'You'd best take a Liverpool Street 'bus to get back by, and then ask a copper.'

"I paid him the bob, and watched him drive off, and then crossed to the opposite side of the road, where there were trees, in order to keep a good eye upon the two gateways that led to the club."

"Did you ask the name of the club, Billy?" I inquired. I had little doubt, from his description, but I wished to be quite sure.

"Yes; it was a club for young officers," was the reply, "and the street was Piccadilly. I waited for the stranger to come out until I was that cold and hungry I could stand it no longer. For aught I know, he might stop there all night, and I couldn't ask for him, 'cos I didn't know his name. So, long after midnight, I gave it up and went and had a feed at a coffee-stall. Of course it was too late to get back to the ship, without parting no end of money for a cab, so I turned into a doss-house for the night. That's about all, gents."

"And very well you've told your story," I remarked, handing him half a sovereign. "Can you describe your stranger to me?"

"Thank'ee, sir," said Billy, pocketing the coin, gleefully. "Describe 'im? Well, he's a small, rather stout man, with little twinkling eyes and a black moustache. He's got a red mark (a scar, I think) just over his right eyebrow, and he has a queer way of saying words over twice. I'd know him again anywhere"

I then had a brief colloquy with Mr. Gray, and Billy was bidden to put on his Sunday best and accompany me on shore. I wanted to ascertain the exact position of the house in Rodney avenue.

I told the steward, quite frankly, that I thought his clue would lead to the very best results, and that I had no hesitation in asking him to accept £25 on accountdetvhg&so(b shrdlu rdurdlt as an earnest of his possible share of the reward. This pleased him vastly, and he readily undertook that no hint of Billy's discoveries should reach the police during the ensuing week.

I drove Billy up Rodney avenue, and, having made sure of the house, sent him back very happy, with yet another half-sovereign in his pocket.

CHAPTER XIII.

A Missing Link.

I had ample food for reflection during my drive back to the Strand. Blogg was, almost to a certainty, implicated in the decoying of Arnewood, if not, also, in his murder. So was the mysterious "stranger," and so, too, was the other unknown, referred to by Blogg as the stranger's master or boss. Mr Spratt seemed to have merely played jackall, but was probably the engineer's adviser and instigator throughout.

The description given by Billy of the stranger tallied with no one that I knew. Moreover, if he had a master, he must necessarily himself be a servant of some sort, and could by no possibility be either a member or a member's guest of the first-class Service club. Either he was concealing his real rank, to deceive Blogg, or he had merely called at the club to leave a message for his employer, and had slipped out unseen by Billy. It was strange, though, that the club should be, also, Captain Arnewood's—very strange, when one came to think of it.

I almost wished I was still working with Inspector Traill when I thought out the full strength of the Rodney Avenue incident. Blogg and the stranger had, indeed, arranged to meet there again in a week's time—the one to receive, the other to pay £850; but might not something occur meanwhile to scare one or both from keeping the appointment? With such evidence as I had to work upon Traill would certainly have the engineer rigidly shadowed during the interval, if he did not resort to the expedient of having him arrested upon some more or less trivial, trumped-up charge, to make sure of him. But was I morally bound, on that account, to invoke Scotland Yard aid once more? This question I answered in the negative, to my own satisfaction, at all events. If (as Mr. Gray believed) the police had ceased to suspect Spratt and Blogg, despite Bradshaw's instinctive suspicion of them at first, so much the worse for the official intelligence. It did not occur to me to remember that it was the bathman whom Traill had singled out, and whose every movement was being quietly watched, while stolid-looking, gin-drinking Blogg was ignored. Was Spratt himself aware of it? Most probably he was, and played his game accordingly. He was a clever as well as an audacious scoundrel, quite capable of drawing suspicion upon himself in order to leave his less astute accomplice a free hand.

More as a matter of detail than with any expectation of news, I called at the Beresford Hotel, in Convent Garden. A reference to the books showed that no room had been engaged for any Mr. Arnewood—at all events during the past six months covered by the entries. But it appeared that, during the latter part of November, the hotel had been exceptionally crowded, and in tending guests had been refused daily Possibly the gentleman I inquired for had been in this latter category. As usual, vague and utterly unsatisfactory. If Luke Arnewood had gone to any other hotel, I must trust to the reward to bring me notice of the fact. Meanwhile, Mr. Burton's well meant suggestions came to naught, like so many others.

I next visited the Junior Naval and Military Club, in Piccadilly, and inquired for Capt. Arnewood, although I was, of course, well aware that he was in Ireland.

"Out of town, sir," replied the janitor. "Present address, Shelborne Hotel, Dublin. Good many inquires for him since he left."

"Indeed!" I remarked, seizing my opportunity. "Do you remember a short, stout gentleman inquiring for him last night at about 8 o'clock?"

"Yes, sir. The party seemed so astonished to hear of Captain Arnewood's departure that I think he hardly believed it at first."

It was clear, then, that the mysterious stranger had gone straight from his interview with Blogg to see Captain Arnewood, whom he fully expected to find at his club. Moreover, if appearances could be trusted, the captain must be the "master" who was to supply the £850. The least intelligible part of the affair was that he should have been represented to Blogg as unable to find this sum without borrowing it; but that, after all, might be quite a politic stroke to keep down Blogg's claim, or a mere trick of the stranger's to avoid paying away money already intrusted to him. Upon the whole, I could not blink my eyes to the fact that things were beginning to look very black indeed against my client, and that I might yet find myself in the dilemma of having to choose between my duty towards society and my desire to serve him

I don't think I ever felt more worried and perplexed than I did after quitting the club, and I proceeded to Exeter street more than half-inclined to communicate my suspicions to Mr. Hawkins, and ask to be relieved of any further connection with the Arnewood case. Mr. Hawkins, however, had not yet arrived; and before he did make his appearance a telegram came which drove all idea of withdrawing from the inquiry clean out of my mind. It ran:

"Heart again queer, and need you urgently. Let affair wait, if need be, but come at once. Reply.
—"Arnewood, Shelborne Hotel, Dublin."

No better solution of my doubts could possibly have presented itself. If Richard Arnewood were, indeed, a guilty man, he could scarcely fail to betray himself under the unexpected and searching questions which it was in my power to put to him If, after all, the evidence which now seemed to tell so heavily against him, should prove to have no reference to him at all, then I would be free to plunge into my task with redoubled energy and confidence. And so, without even waiting to consult Mr. Hawkins, I forwarded the following terse reply:

"Very sorry. Shall be with you tomorrow morning. All well.
—Weston."

My chief expressed no opinion, one way or the other, when I showed him Captain Arnewood's message and a copy of my reply.

"Do exactly as you please, Weston," was his comment. "The case is absolutely in your hands, and I would rather not interfere, even with advice. I want to hear nothing more about the affair until you can tell me either that you have succeeded or have given it up"

"Very well, sir," I made answer, and the subject dropped.

Eight o'clock found me at Euston Station, fortified by an excellent dinner, and in ample time to select a berth in the sleeping car. I have always admired the sound common-sense of the text which asserts that "the laborer is worthy of his hire," and, while I pride myself upon doing my very utmost for my client, I deny myself nothing that can contribute to my material comfort when I am on active service. A short, stout man had preceded me at the booking office, and asked for a second-class return to Westland Row. There was nothing remarkable in that, seeing that the train was the Irish mail, and that Westland Row is the name of the Dublin terminus. But there was something in the speech of the man that at once riveted my attention. He repeated the words "second-class" four or five times, as though he either believed the clerk to be deaf or was frightened of being compelled to travel first-class against his will. I took an opportunity, after securing my ticket, of having a good look at him. Bright, beady eyes, a scar near the right temple, his face absolutely clean-shaven; in other words, he answered Billy's description of the "stranger" exactly, with the exception of the black moustache. He was booked to Dublin, and by the class almost always affected by servants of superior station. The plain inference was that his master was in Ireland. So was Captain Arnewood. And it required all my trained habit of caution to avoid the conclusion that they were one and the same person.

My first impulse, after satisfying myself of the identity of my fellow traveler, was to follow him into a second-class carriage (at all events, as far as Rugby or Crewe), and endeavor to enter into conversation with him. But a little reflection served to deter me from this course. If he were, indeed, the astute "stranger" and Captain Arnewood's servant rolled into one, he would subsequently recognize me as the individual who had sought his acquaintance on the train, and would be suspicious of me at once. If I had been deceived by a mere accidental resemblance, and he were some entirely harmless person, I still stood to gain nothing. So I made myself comfortable in my Pullman, and left him to his less luxurious horsehair seat.

The journey was as uneventful as such journeys are nowadays. I saw my man on board the packet, and again at Westland Row, where I lost sight of him. I quite expected that he would precede or follow me to the Shelborne Hotel, but he did not. Whatever his mission in Ireland, his business with Captain Arnewood was apparently not of an urgent nature.

I was told by the people at the hotel that the captain expected me, and had given orders that I was to be conducted to his bedroom as soon as I arrived. It was not yet 8 o'clock, and there was therefore nothing surprising in the fact that he was still in bed. But I was fairly startled by the change that had been wrought in his appearance during the brief interval, that had elapsed since I had last seen him. A delicate man with a weak heart may be expected to fall away rapidly when ill; but Richard Arnewood could have looked no worse had he barely escaped with life from some terrible accident.

"Thank Heaven, you have come!" was his greeting, as he motioned me to a chair by his bedside. "You remember what I told you about Irish air disagreeing with me? Well, I have collapsed this time even worse than when I was here last month."

"You are certainly looking very poorly," I replied, "though I cannot bring myself to believe that the air of this place is wholly to blame."

"Do you really think not?" he asked, with nervous eagerness. "Tell me—to what other cause would it occur to you to attribute it?"

"I am not doctor enough to say," I made answer. "I think, though, that worry and mental anxiety would go a long way; and you will pardon my remarking that you have impressed me as suffering under some severe mental strain ever since I first met you"

"Indeed? You mean on account of my cousin's tragic fate, I suppose?"

"Yes," I assented. "I have thought that was at the bottom of your extreme nervous tension. But it fails to account for your sudden prejudice against Ireland."

"Prejudice!" he repeated, irritably. "It's no mere prejudice, I can assure you. I wish to Heaven it were!"

"Then, if the doctors cannot help you, and you really find your system breaking down over here, surely, your wisest course is to return to England at once. I suppose you will be able to stand the journey?"

(To Be Continued.)

CURIOSITIES IN CUBA.

Natives Plant Fences and Soldiers Plant Fences to Let Them Grow.

Some odd things happen in Cuba. A man wishes a fence around his yard or field; he doesn't build it, he plants it—and it grows, too. First, he cuts a big bundle of pinon twigs, then he scratches a little trench where he wants the fence to run, and, finally, he sticks in the twigs in a row a few inches apart. The soil of Cuba is so rich and the weather so warm and moist that directly the twigs take root, throw out branches and leaves, and presently there is a dense hedge of pinon trees inclosing the field. And there are no nails to drop out here nor boards to fall down and let in the cattle, and the fence is good for a hundred years.

Nor is that the most curious thing that one may see in Cuba. What would you think of a camp table that grew? While the American soldiers were camping back of Santiago they made great numbers of little tables by driving forked sticks into the ground for legs and using a top of boards. Of course the legs took root, and some of those tables are now nicely shaded by leafy branches, and in two or three years four nice trees will be growing there, and no one would ever dream that they were once table legs.

Another curious thing: At Quantanamo an old tin can was fastened around the branch of a big Cuban laurel tree some four or five feet from its leafy end. It was packed full of dirt, and I wondered what could be the purpose of it.

"That's simple enough," said the Cuban householder. "In a few weeks roots will grow in the earth inside the tin can. Then we can cut off the limb just back of the can, stick it in the ground, take away the can, and it will grow into a large tree."

Plant a cauliflower plant in Cuba, and instead of spreading out in a big fat head, like a cabbage, it spindles up for all the world like a sunflower three or four feet high, with big, rank leaves, and a little flower at the top that you would never recognize as a cauliflower.

A Fair Exchange.

A certain joke writer, wearied by excessive coinage of bonmotographs, laid himself down to sleep. Near to his hand there was a pad and pencil, for who can tell "what dreams may come?" In the middle of the night he was awakened by a noise, and, lo, in the dim light he saw a thief calmly appropriating his watch. "Excuse me for taking up your time," murmured the marauder. "Certainly," grinned the joke writer, "the watch only cost me a dollar, and I can sell your remark for three."

Eggs, Likely.

Miss Stagestruck—Don't you feel inspired when you stand up before a large audience?

Haakter—Yes; and I've stood up before some audiences when I felt other things besides inspiration.—Ohio State Journal.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

SOME GOOD STORIES FOR OUR JUNIOR READERS.

Called in Haste—A Physician's Somewhat Amusing Experience—A Lesson in Politeness—Something That Young People Should Learn to do.

A Study-Hour.

Oh! what a mystery
The study is of history!
How the kings go ravaging
And savaging about!
Plantagenet or Tudor,
I can't tell which was ruder;
But Richard Third
Upon my word,
Was worst of all the rout.

Alfred was a hero,
Knew no guile nor fear, oh!
Beat the Danes and checked the Thanes,
And ruled the country well.
Edward First, the Hammer,
Was a slaughterer and slammer;
And Bruce alone
Saved Scotland's throne,
When 'neath his blows it fell.

Edward Third was great, too;
Early fought and late, too;
Drove the French from Cressy's trench
Like leaves before the blast.
But Harry Fifth, the glorious,
He, the all-victorious,
He's the one
I'd serve alone,
From first unto the last.

Oh! what a mystery
The study is of history!
Queens and kings
And wars and things,
All shut within the book,
Though sometimes a trifle bloody,
'Tis our best-beloved study.
If you want to see how good are we,
Why, only come and look!
—Laura E. Richards.

Called in Haste.

A physician, like a soldier, must respond to the call of duty without always waiting to discover the why and wherefore. A doctor, who is evidently the soul of devotion to his profession, was recently put to the test and, much to his subsequent irritation, was not found wanting. It befell in this wise, according to the doctor's report: One day last week I was just sitting down to dinner, when I received a call from a little five-year-old girl whose father lives in the adjoining block. She was out of breath, but she managed to gasp out for me to come up to the house right away. Thinking it must be something serious that should cause the little girl to be sent for me, I seized my medicine-case and hurried off. "Who is sick?" I asked, picking her up in my arms and carrying her, so that I might get along faster. "Elizabeth," she answered. "Is she very sick?" I asked. "I think it is typhoid fever," she replied. This gave me a scare and quickened my steps. We were not long in arriving at the house, and I was surprised that no one met us. "This way," cried the little girl, seizing my hand. Allowing myself to be led along, I soon found myself in a bedroom by the side of a doll's cradle, in which reposed a doll with a red rag tied round its throat. I was dazed for a moment and came to only when I heard the little girl, inquiring anxiously if I thought Elizabeth was going to die. I assured her that she wasn't, and all that she needed was a spanking. I meant the little girl, not Elizabeth. But from what I heard as I came away I am afraid that my advice was not understood and that Elizabeth got the spanking.

A Lesson in Politeness.

Adrian is three years old, and a few days ago his father bought him his first cap. It is a real soldier cap, with a sword and gun crossed in front. "Now," said his aunt, "if Adrian is big enough to have a cap, he is big enough to know what to do with it." She took him up in her lap and explained very carefully what gentlemen do with their hats, and how they take them off when they say "How do you do?" or "Good-by" to a lady, and she told him he must never wear his cap in the house. At the conclusion of the lesson Adrian went out on the porch to practice it. When Miss Nina passed he took off his cap and said, "How do?" "Why, how do you do, little dear?" said Miss Nina, smiling. When mamma came up the street he took off his cap, and she kissed him and called him her precious little man. Then he took off his cap and bowed to all the ladies that came along. When he went in to eat his dinner he took off his cap the minute he stepped inside the door, but he thought it so fine that he had to keep it on the table while he was eating. That evening, when papa took him out for a walk, he raised his hat very politely to the ladies on the porch when he said good-by. He has had his cap for two weeks now and he has not once forgotten about taking it off in the house, and whenever he speaks to a lady or an old gentleman. I know some boys twice as old and twice as big as Adrian who have not yet learned that lesson in politeness. It is a little thing, to be sure, but it is one of the little things that mark the gentlemanly boy. Does it not pay to learn all these little trifles well?—Selected.

Laugh at Yourself.

Men in plenty are to be found that will forgive wrong, insult an even personal violence, but few that ever forgive ridicule. To be made a laughing-stock to others cuts deeper to the quick than to be convicted of lying and stealing; just as picking a pocket or robbing a hen-roost seems to set one in a more contemptible light than raiding a bank. Men are mightily given to taking themselves seriously, and they want to have others take them so. Thence it is that the way in which a man stands ridicule is so searching a test of character. Not without reason has it been said: "Ridicule is the final test of truth," for the truth that has gone through the fire of this martyrdom, and comes out so triumphant as to turn the laugh on the laughers themselves, is thenceforth impregnable. Therefore, one of the first lessons a sensible parent will insist on with his children will be that of courage to laugh at themselves, and to join merrily in with the laughter of others at their expense. Nothing so takes the nonsense out of a child as timely ridicule; nothing makes him so brave and sensible as seeing the justice of it, and joining in with the laugh against himself. "He that sweareth to his own hurt and changes not," may be a very heroic character; but the boy that has made a fool of himself, and, without conceit or silly vanity, can see the fool's cap put on his own head and laugh at himself in the mirror on his own bureau, is a yet greater hero. Legion is the number of children that have gone to the bad through the fear of being laughed at for doing right.—Boston Herald.

How Ants Know Their Own Family.

It is known that ants recognize each other very easily. When an ant enters a colony which is not its own, it is almost immediately put to death. A German naturalist has discovered and has established that it is by the sense of smell that this subtle recognition takes place. If an ant touches water it is invariably attacked by its sisters on its return to the colony, the water having removed from the ant the special property on which depended the recognition. The following experiment would prove it: Some ants were crushed, and with the juice thus obtained an ant was smeared and placed in a strange colony. If the ant were perfumed with the juice of this colony, it was well received; if not, it was at once attacked. An ant washed with alcohol at 30 degrees was returned to its nest and was attacked as a stranger. On the contrary, put at one side twenty-four hours before being returned to the colony, it was well received; that length of time being enough for the reparation of its family odor. This odorous substance which distinguishes one colony from another is called matter or perfume of the nest.

Ways of Eskimo Children.

One might think that the queer little Eskimo children would find life very, very dull now that they have so little sunshine and the weather is so cold away up there in northland. A visitor among them assures us, however, that they seem to be perfectly contented in their little round huts with conical tops and one narrow doorway. To begin with, they have strange garments made of sealskin or the skins of reindeer, bears, foxes and even dogs. Beneath their outer suits they wear more fur clothes, with the hair turned inside, and stockings of dogskin or reindeer skin. The boys and girls look almost exactly alike, and at this time of the year they are so bundled up that about all you may see of them is their eyes. In each "igloo," or home, a place is set apart for the use of the children. There no one may disturb them, and after the girls have dressed their dolls, which are made of wood and clothed in skins, story telling time begins. Each child takes a turn. When the time comes the first story teller takes off his jacket turns his face to the wall and commences. And so the play goes on till each has told a story.

Cacti Will Grow in a Sealed Bottle.

Growing cacti in a bottle is a new and simple method that was recently discovered in the Botanical gardens at Berlin. A cordial bottle is about right for the purpose. Clean it, cover the bottom with ground an inch deep, wet it thoroughly, and throw in two or three cactus seed. Cork the bottle, close it with sealing wax, and hang it in a window where the sun strikes it for several hours every day. In cold weather the bottle must not be exposed to the air. The opening and rooting of the seeds and the development of the plants will be almost as if by magic. The plants will flourish for years, a statement proven by the fact that those at the Berlin Botanical gardens have been sealed up for five years. Growing cacti in this way should prove an excellent scheme for a schoolroom or in a house where children would find the developing plants an unfailing source of interest.

Did You See God?

One of the delegates to the National Convention at Seattle tells us this little incident which happened on her return home: "My little six-year-old daughter, to whom I had written about our journey through the mountains, said to me, "Mamma, were you really up on top of the clouds?" 'Yes, dear.' Then with such a reverent, earnest face, she asked, 'Did you see God?' 'No, darling, I didn't see Him, but I felt very near Him.' Wistfully, 'Oh, I wish I'd been there. Maybe I'd got a little peek at Him.'"

Wide Awake Boys.

The head of a large firm in one of our largest cities, who was noted for his keenness in discerning character, was seated at his desk, one day, when a boy came up and took off his hat, smiling. "Do you want a boy, sir?" Mr. J. looked at him. "I did not a minute ago. But I do now, and you are the boy." He said afterwards that he was completely captured by the frank, honest, all-alive face before him. The boy entered his service, rose to be confidential clerk and is now a successful merchant.—Selected.

GERMAN NOVELIST'S

Description of a Fall of Sixty Feet on a Railway Train.

It is not often that a man who has fallen 60 feet is able to analyze his sensations. Usually he is too near death; often his forte is not description. Herr von Omteda, the German novelist, was upon a mountain railway on the Austrian Schneeburg when the car ran off the line. He fell 60 feet and had a rib broken. He thus describes his sensations: "It is psychologically interesting that none of us screamed as we fell. I knew exactly what to do. I waited till the wagon was in the middle of the fall, and then, crossing my arms over my head, jumped off sideway, for the first thought was—before all, don't get under the wagon. The violinist (who was killed) was standing near me, clinging convulsively to the wagon, and I was just about to cry to him, 'Let loose!' But it was too late. Singularly, I felt sure that my wife was safe. I believed she had not fallen, and wanted to stand up and give her a sign. But I could not move. All at once she bent over me, with blood running out of her mouth, and cried, 'My darling, are you dead?' I said, 'No, I can move,' but I could not move. My glorious wife thought only of me, and not for a moment of herself! Her left side is frightfully torn and bruised, but she is brave and keeps up. I am obliged to lie still. So—enough!"

An Important Difference.

Sopwith—Lombardo says there is no difference between genius and madness.

Waggle—Pardon me; madness gets three square meals a day.—Life.

New Cable Line.

France is dependent upon England for news of the Transvaal war, because the cables are under their control, and she is ready to spend a vast sum of money to free herself. This is like many people who have dyspepsia, spend a fortune seeking deliverance. They should try Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It never fails to cure dyspepsia, constipation and biliousness.

Its Probable Effect.

A teacher in a North of England boarding school was recently examining a class of small boys in mental arithmetic. She said:

"If your father gave your mother thirty shillings to-day and £2 to-morrow, what would she have?"

And a small boy near the bottom of the class replied:

"She would have a fit."—Woman's Journal.

"A Miss is As Good as a Mile."

If you are not entirely well, you are ill. Illness does not mean death's door. It is a sense of weariness, a "tired feeling" a life filled with nameless pains and suffering. In 90% of cases the blood is to blame. Hood's Sarsaparilla is Nature's corrective for disorders of the blood. Remember

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Never Disappoints

The Main Point.

"Yes, my dear," said a New York man to his eighteen-year-old daughter. "I wish you would do your best to captivate the heart of our coachman."

"And elope with him, papa?"

"Yes, my dear."

"Ah, I see; you dear, cute papa! You want all the papers to say I am a fascinating beauty and a reigning belle."

"Well, that would help a little; but that is not the main point."

"What is it, then, papa?"

"Why the papers will all say you are the daughter of a millionaire, and that will enlarge my credit. See! Now, you run out to the stable; that's a good girl."—Ohio State Journal.

AN APPEAL TO HUMANITY GENERALLY.

We need your assistance in announcing to the world the greatest remedy that Science has ever produced, and you need our assistance to secure relief for yourself and friends through Swanson's "5-DROPS."

A REMEDY SUPREME.

As surely as the American Navy has conquered and will conquer all that opposes it, so will "5-DROPS" unfailingly conquer all diseases like Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Kidney Troubles, Lumbago, Catarrh of all kinds, Asthma, Dyspepsia, Backache, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Heart-Weakness, Toothache, Earache, Creeping Numbness, Bronchitis, etc., or any disease for which we recommend it. "5-DROPS" is the name and the dose. Trial bottles 25c. Large bottles, containing 300 doses, $1.00 prepaid by mail or express. Six bottles for $5.00. Why suffer pain and agony when for such small amount you can obtain the relief for which you have been so long waiting? Don't wait! Write now, and the Swanson Rheumatic Cure Co., 164 Lake St., Chicago, Ill., will immediately give your order attention.

A Wise Precaution.

Husband—My dear, I want to ask you one favor before you go off on that long visit.

Wife—A thousand, my love. What is it?

Husband—Don't try to put the house in order before you go.

Wife—It isn't hard work.

Husband—Perhaps not; but think of the expense of telegraphing to you every time I want to find anything.—Collier's Weekly.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

John Chial, Lake Park, Minn., straw stacker; John K. Christy, Minneapolis, Minn., shaft tug; David M. Houston, Hunter, N. D., magazine camera; Mike M. Jerdee, Dawson, Minn., harrow tooth; Chauncey E. Richardson, Duluth, Minn., seal lock; Herbrand O. Simle, Manvel, N. D., thill coupling; George Wetherby, Duluth, Minn., apparatus for boring and disintegrating earthy matter.

Merwin, Lothrop & Johnson, Patent Attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul.

Confession.

"You shall yet confess that you are wrong."

Hortense Pottgieser's eyes flashed.

"Never!" she retorted.

"Even," hissed her now thoroughly infuriated husband, "if I have to confess that I am wrong myself."

Now her demeanor changed, and she trembled and stood aghast before this masterful exhibition of a broad and correct understanding of the feminine nature.—Detroit Journal.

How's This?

We offer One Hundred Dollars reward for any case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.

We, the undersigned, have known F. J. Cheney for the last 15 years and believe him perfectly honorable in all business transactions and financially able to carry out any obligations made by their firm.

West & Truax, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, O.; Walding, Kinnan & Marvin, Wholesale Druggists, Toledo, Ohio.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, acting directly upon the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Testimonials sent free. Price 75c per bottle. Sold by all druggists.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

Struck Him as Strange.

Mrs. Jingso—Oh, that Roberts of Utah!

Jingso—He's crazy, so don't worry about him.

Mrs. Jingso—Crazy?

Jingso—Yes. Do you suppose a man in his right mind would marry three women at a whack?—Syracuse Herald.

Important to Mothers.

Examine carefully every bottle of CASTORIA, a safe and sure remedy for infants and children, and see that it

Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

In Use For Over 30 Years.

The Kind You Have Always Bought

Brought the Wrong Sign.

"But you are not blind?"

"No, sor. I am deaf and dumb."

"But your sign says blind."

"Oh, begorrah! It's the wrong board I've brought!"—Life

The uncertainty of sure things always causes a lot of worry.

It Looked Suspicious.

"Isn't your neighbor, Blinkinoff, a drinking man?"

"I wouldn't like to give an expert opinion on the subject. I'll admit, however that I saw him, the other night, trying to drive a spigot into an ash barrel, thinking it was cider."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Reliable Help Wanted
(Either sex.) The Humanitarian Home and Sanitarium for Invalids and Health Seekers, Incorporated. Send 12c in stamps for full information. Address J. H. Teitlebaum, Treasurer, East Las Vegas, N. M.

Where It Was Kept.

It was in one of the big department stores.

"What do you wish to-day, madam?" asked the courteous floor-walker.

"Nothing. I—"

"Sixteenth floor. Take the elevator. We have nothing there in large and varied assortments. James, ring the bell for the lady."—Harper's Bazar.

THE GRIP CURE THAT DOES CURE.
Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets removes the cause that produces La Grippe. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25c.

Her Fleeting Regret.

"Don't bother, Henry, because I won't marry you," said she. "There are just as good fish in the sea as ever were caught."

"Better," said he, shortly, as he rose to depart. And for once she wished she had consented to marry him, so that she might make him suffer for his horrid remark.—Harper's Bazar.

Piso's Cure for Consumption is the only cough medicine used in my house.—D. C. Albright, Millinburg, Pa., Dec. 11, '95.

Nearing the Limit.

He—Do you know, darling, I think it makes me a better man every time I kiss you?

She—Well, at the pace your're going now there will soon be no more room for improvement.—Chicago News.

The Largest in the World.
Walter Baker & Co. Ltd., Dorchester, Mass., are the largest Mfrs. of Cocoa and Chocolate in the world.

Excusable.

Wickwire—From superficial notice, I should say you had a holy terror of water. Am I right?

Hungry Higgins—You are. And if you had a wife that made you carry all the wotter for the washin' she's done for five years, an' kep' you so busy at it you didn't have time to run away, you'd hate the stuff, too, you would.—Indianapolis Press.

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. DR. R. H. KLINE, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

Circumstances Alter Cases.

Singleton—My wife never has the last word.

Wederly—That's strange. How do you manage it?

Singleton—I haven't any wife.—Chicago News.

Up-to-Date Portraiture.

"I have been working on this woman now for five weeks."

"And yet not successful?"

"No. She still complains that the picture looks like her."—Life.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Holding Him Off.

Doctor (casually)—Well, Mr. Brown, how are you to-day?

Mr. Brown (defensively)—Oh, I'm all right, doctor. There's nothing the matter with me that would be worth $2 to you.—Chicago Record.

The new window draperies at the Bellevue are exquisite enough to be the ball frock of a captious debutante.

There are few wild beasts more to be dreaded than a talking man having nothing to say.—Swift.

The readiest and surest way to get rid of censure, is to correct ourselves.—Demosthenes.

I am Past 80 and Not a Gray Hair

"I have used Ayer's Hair Vigor for a great many years, and although I am past eighty years of age, yet I have not a gray hair in my head."—Geo. Yellott, Towson, Md., Aug. 3, 1899.

Have You Lost It?

We mean all that rich, dark color your hair used to have. But there is no need of mourning over it, for you can find it again.

Ayer's Hair Vigor always restores color to gray hair. We know exactly what we are saying when we use that word "always."

It makes the hair grow heavy and long, too; takes out every bit of dandruff, and stops falling of the hair. Keep it on your dressing table and use it every day. $1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

Write the Doctor

If you do not obtain all the benefits you desire from the use of the Vigor, write the Doctor about it. He will tell you just the right thing to do, and will send you his book on the Hair and Scalp if you request it. Address, Dr. J. C. Ayer, Lowell, Mass.

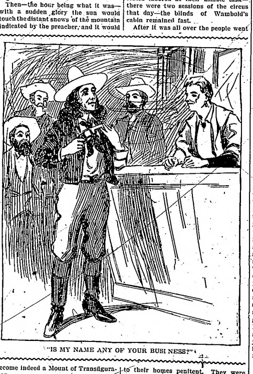
THE MILLION DOLLAR POTATO
Most talked of potato on earth! Our Catalog tells—also about Salzer's Earliest Six Weeks' Potato. Largest farm and vegetable seed growers in U.S. Potatoes, $1.20 and up a bbl. Send this notice and 5c. stamps for Big Catalog.
JOHN A. SALZER SEED CO. LA CROSSE, WIS.

WAMBOLD.

Wambold came out of the mountains. He had long curling black locks, a slender, supple body, and an indefinable air which can, perhaps, best be described as patience. No one in town had ever seen him before, and he did not say anything about his past. He appeared, in fact, to be interested only in the future, and his interest in that was so broad and general that it was almost the sole theme of his discourse. Not only was it the subject of his conversation, but he harangued about it on the street corners evenings after the men had come down from the mines.

"What are you waiting for?" he would cry, standing hatless on the street with the sunset throwing a red light about his emotional face. "You waiting for these mighty mountains to roll up as a scroll? You want the sun to drop down out of the sky and the stars to shoot from their places? Does it need all that to show you that the day of judgment will surely come? Why, you blind leaders of the blind, the miracles are about you on every hand, and they are within yourselves: Nothing is so wonderful as yourselves, and if you will read the book of your own hearts you will find there the assurances of immortality—nay, you will discover an inborn sense of justice which will warn you that the day of judgment must come." Such words as these he would speak in rather a low voice of even modulation; then, with a sudden wild gesture, he would fairly scream: "Why, then, do you dally? Tomorrow exploding dynamite at your mines may hurl you out of the world. While you are delaying your horse may slip and carry you with him down the precipice. Now is the time to repent! Hurry! Hurry! You can not run fast enough. But the way is difficult and the shadows of night are coming fast. There he waits you on the mountains. Will you run with eager feet?"

Then—the hour being what it was—with a sudden glory the sun would touch the distant snows of the mountain indicated by the preacher, and it would become indeed a Mount of Transfiguration.



"IS MY NAME ANY OF YOUR BUSINESS?"

It was easy, listening to words like these, to forget that the speaker's green velveteen jacket, with its tarnished bullion embroidery, was greasy with the trailing of the long black curls about the shoulders, nor was it pertinent to observe the incongruity of this tawdry garment with the miner's coarse shirt and the weather-beaten sombrero, which, oddly enough, was not the sombrero of the mountains, but that of the Arizona cattle plains. The trousers reached only to the knee and matched the jacket in color, texture and decoration; from the knees down the preacher's legs were incased in high-heeled top boots such as cowboys affect.

"Ain't you no more to your name than what you've told?" asked Cud White, the bartender. "Wambold ain't much of a Christian name to my way of thinkin'."

The bartender, who knew Christian usages, and the preacher, who did not, smiled at each other meaningly, and a crowd gathered round. The parson drew something from his hip pocket with a sort of a flourish—something like the throwing of a kiss—and as the crowd looked at it with a close but impersonal interest.

"Cud," he said, softly, "is my name any of your business?"

"I don't know as it is," replied Cud, agreeably. So they shook hands, and it was decided, generally, that the preacher had grit. His stock went up 60 per cent.

As time went on the preacher grew more impassioned, and many of the women and a few of the men submitted to immersion in the icy mountain stream and went on their way praising. For a time an excessive and demonstrative happiness pervaded the town. The echoes gave back the hymns which the people sang together in the open air under the stars, and the dawn saw praise meetings held by the side of the tramway that led to the mines. A strange light began to burn in Wambold's eyes, and his cheek bones became more prominent, as fasting and prayer and exhortation wore him thin, and his magnetic hands were more restless than ever in their movements.

In the midst of all this excitement the posters of a circus were posted on the billboards. It was done over night between the coming of the passenger and the going of the freight trains, and in the morning the preacher was seen standing before them a long time. It worried the people. Was he going to be so rigorous as to forbid them indulgence in their chiefest pleasure?

It proved to be the case. Never before had he been so fierce in his denunciations of anything as he was of that circus. The town was shaken by the storm of his disapproval—and it was divided as to its course of action.

The night the circus came to town Wambold held a prayer service, and he cried with a great voice that Satan was in the midst of them with a scarlet temptation. Some of the children wept. They did not want to belong to Satan, but neither did they want to stay away from the circus.

The blinds of the preacher's cabin were closed that evening, and no light shown through them. The people wondered why. They could never have imagined the truth—that Wambold lay face downward upon the clean linen of his bed crying aloud to the Lord of the hills to give him refuge from the harassments of the evil one. Nor could they have guessed that when the mountains brooded over the sleeping town that the preacher crept out of his house and did not stay his steps till he stood where the showmen were driving the stakes for their tents, and the women were boiling black coffee over their camp fires. He sniffed the indescribable circus aroma—horses, leather, sawdust, fodder—as if it were the sweet south wind breathing upon a bank of violets. He bent an eager ear to the jokes of the men, to the long night plaint of the caged leopard and the loud laughter of the women. Then he stole back again to his darkened cabin.

The next morning the sun smiled with confidential jocularity upon the town, and it beheld every woman and son of woman going to the circus—and the town was clear of hysteria for the first time in a month.

"We'll meet the parson by the roadside a-warnin' us, I'll bet," said Cud White to his wife. But he was wrong.

All day, while the drums beat and the horns played, and the ringmaster snapped his whip, and the bareback riders labored at their nimble task—there were two sessions of the circus that day—the blinds of Wambold's cabin remained fast.

After it was all over the people went to their homes penitent. They were touched by the silent rebuke of those closed shutters. Some of them knocked at the door, but there was no answer.

"We'll have to make up with the parson tomorrow," said they, contritely. But the morrow brought them a strange tale. It was the station agent who told it.

"Yes," he said to those who got wind of his tale, "when the circus folks come down to take No. 6 at 4:15, I seen a familiar form amongst 'em. 'Shucks,' says I, 'it's the parson!' But I didn't reely believe it. It was, though. The women, they was pettin' him an' twistin' his curls about their fingers, and the men was slappin' him on the back an' laughin' fit to kill. I called out: 'That you, parson?' An' he stopped stone still an' looked at me like a baby that's goin' to cry. Then he puts his fingers to the end of his nose and wags 'em at me, an' then there girl that did the jumpin' through the paper whoops, she pulls him up on the platform. 'Oh, friend of yourn?' I asks the ringmaster. 'Who? Wambold?' says he. 'Well, I should snicker! Best clown I ever had.' I thought that was the last of th' parson, but just as th' train was pullin' out he comes on the platform and he looks at th' mountains an' kin' o' trembles, an' then he looks like a cryin' baby agin. But I heard th' women yellin' to him, an' he looks round, an' th' fellers they come out an' yanks him in. An' th' train just opened 'er up an' went slidin' down th' grade."

Tombstone Photographs.

Photographing tombstones is a novel industry which has been instituted by a colored man in this city, who was at one time boy-of-all-work in a photograph gallery. He has recently branched out for himself, and has already established a remunerative business, which promises to open even a wider field in the future. He visits the various cemeteries with his camera, and when the day is fair he takes pictures of any of the imposing monuments. After he has developed the plates he takes proofs around among the relatives of the deceased, and usually finds a ready sale for his pictures. Of course, he has to take chances, for he works entirely without orders, trusting to sentiment for his sales. Still, he says it is very seldom that he doesn't get an order. He also has a habit of haunting the marble works where tombstones are made, and by striking while the iron is hot he takes a picture before even the bereaved relatives have seen the stone.—Philadelphia Record.

THE BLACK WALNUT.

Our European Cousins Are Paying High Prices for It.

The great size often reached by this tree, the richness of the dark brown wood, the unique beauty of the grain sometimes found in burls, knots, feathers and in the curl of the roots, all conspire to make this the most choice and high-priced of all our native woods, says the Berea Quarterly. Twenty-five years ago walnut was extensively used in the manufacture of fine furniture and finishings in this country, but manufacturers adroitly drew attention to the beauty of darkly stained quartered oak and the use of the rarer wood has greatly declined. But all this time the search for fine black walnut logs has gone on systematically, though quietly, the trade attracting little attention, though the volume of lumber handled has been large. Though found to some extent in the Atlantic states from Massachusetts southward, the great source of supply has been the central portions of the Mississippi valley. The walnut is at home in the rich alluvial bottom lands of the western streams and in the stony limestone soils of the hills and mountains and in such localities the buyers have left few trees unsurveyed. Throughout eastern Kansas, Missouri and Arkansas, as well as the states along the Ohio and its tributaries, may be seen a few logs at this little station, a car or two at that, with carefully hewn sides and painted ends, ready for the market. If you ask where the market is you will find that the great bulk of this rare lumber goes to Europe. While we have been led into an enthusiastic admiration for fine oak, stained according to the degree of antiquity it is supposed to represent, our European cousins have been paying fancy prices for the rich black walnut that we have allowed to go "out of fashion."

LOVING WIFE

And the Trouble She Saved Her Husband, by Thoughtfulness.

Philadelphia Inquirer: "You've all read lots of jokes about the woman who gets up in the dead of the night to rifle her husband's pockets," said a friend of the Saunterer. "They usually confine themselves to the purloining of what small change happens to be there. But here's a case I know of, of a woman in West Philadelphia, who showed much more enterprise than that, and who, I think, deserves the palm. It happened the other night. The woman's husband is a traveling man and is now home for a couple of months. He was out the other night, and as he did not get in until between two and three in the morning, he was pretty sleepy and his slumber was resultantly heavy. His wife happened to be just out of change at the time, and she thought of the old way of getting it. She got up quietly and proceeded to go through the suit which her husband had just taken off. There was not a cent of change to be found, and she saw with dismay that the smallest thing was a ten-dollar bill. She didn't have nerve enough to take that, and she was rather in despair for a moment. Then she came upon a little bundle of tickets bound with an elastic. Her face brightened up and she put the package in her jewel box. The next morning the clerk at the redemption office of one of the railroads paid out three dollars and thirty-two cents for seven unused return coupons, and the woman went briskly off to spend her ill-gotten gains. And when she told a friend, and the friend suggested that her husband wouldn't bless her when he wanted the tickets, she answered in a very injured tone: 'Why, just think of the trouble I saved him in going way down to that horrid office myself.'"

STATISTICS OF HUMAN LIFE.

Value Which Should Be Attached to Every One's Words.

Statistical scientists will not let us alone. Everything we do or say is submitted to the closest analysis; and the figures emerge full of warning and reproach, says Collier's Weekly. The newest tabulation of our doings comes from the workshop of M. Alfred Arkas, who is minuteness itself. He has worked out, first, an approximate calculation of the number of words the normal man utters in the course of a year. Ignorant or cultured, playing on the miner's vocabulary of 200 words, or on the university professor's thesaurus of many thousands, it appears that we let fall 11,800,000 words between January and December. Every year we shake hands about 1,200 times, expending on the ceremony a force sufficient to raise a locomotive weighing eighty tons. The raising of our eyelids is accomplished 94,600,000 times per year and represents the consumption of energy capable of lifting a weight of fifty-one pounds. Turning to the division of our time, it is found that a normal man living seventy years has spent no less than twenty-four years, nine months and fifteen days asleep, and eleven years and eight months at work. His recreation has occupied exactly the same length of time as his work. He has passed five years and ten months in moving about and the same space of time in the operation of feeding. His toilet has occupied two years and eleven months. Two years and eleven months, also, passed in doing nothing or in little things that are not easily classed. The surprise is the estimate that a man passes exactly the same time in thinking as in speaking—one year five months and a half. Which gives one a new idea of the value of what ought to be attached to every man's utterance.

She Gave Herself Away.

The York (Maine) Transcript says that a Portland minister recently called upon one of the families in his parish. He ascended the steps and knocked at the door. Receiving no response he was about to depart, when he heard a window in the next house open and a woman's voice: "Mrs. Smith, the minister's at your door." What was the pastor's surprise and amusement when he caught Mrs. Smith's response wafted gently around the corner of the house: "Sh! don't you s'pose I know it!" The next Sunday after service Mrs. Smith met her pastor and expressed her sorrow that she was away when he had called.

OUR CLOCKS ABROAD.

TIMEPIECES SENT TO EVERY QUARTER OF THE GLOBE.

Demand For Cheap Goods so Great the Manufacturers Cannot Meet It—Peculiarities of the Trade—Round Clocks for China.

American-made clocks and watches are now shipped direct from this port to every quarter of the globe where civilization has made or is making its way, says the New York Evening Post. They are for the most part of a kind with the nickel alarm clock and the dollar nickel watch—machine-made goods, with which the foreign manufacturer cannot compete. The export demand of last year has been the greatest the manufacturers have known; they have not resources sufficient to supply the whole of it. The shipments in the ten months ending October aggregate in value nearly $1,500,000; which is the same as saying about a million and a quarter clocks and watches. In 1878 the exports were valued at about $1,000,000; in 1889, at about $1,300,000, and it is estimated that for 1899 the value will reach about $1,700,000. The clocks go to Hongkong, Buenos Ayres, Bombay, London, Cape Town, Manila, Arabia, northern Africa—everywhere; even, in some considerable quantity, to Switzerland. The clockmaking industry in the United States is just as old as the century. It is on record, however, that Eli Terry patented and manufactured an equation clock in 1797. In 1807 this same Terry entered into a contract with a clockmaker of Waterbury to make 4,000 thirty-hour clocks with seconds pendulum, dial and hands, and all for $4 each. He was given three years to complete his contract. There was then a clockmaker at Plymouth, another at Salem Bridge and another at Roxbury—all distinguished in their profession. In 1814 Terry perfected a thirty-hour clock of a new construction and at once all the makers took it up successfully.

Since then the industry has rapidly developed, until now one concern, the Ansonia Clock company, makes eight clocks and cheap watches a minute, or 5,000 a day or 1,600,000 a year; and another, the Seth Thomas Clock company, makes, of clocks alone, two a minute, or 1,200 a day, or 400,000 a year. It may be said, in passing that the cheapest nickel clock requires 450 "handlings" to complete.

"I estimate," said a manufacturer, "that about 10,000 clocks a day are made in the United States. That this enormous supply continues is simply explained. The cheap clock or watch will keep good time for about two years. Then the oil dries and clogs the wheels; and the owner buys a new one rather than go to the expense of having the old one repaired. Here's a little clock called the 'bee.' It was invented in twenty minutes, it has gone all over the world, and I shouldn't wonder if it held its own in the market until 20,000,000 are sold. You must know that clockmaking some time ago reached a point in progress near perfection. The important improvements of recent years have been few."

In ten months of 1898 $11,000 worth of clocks and watches were exported to China and $170,000 worth to Japan. The Japanese are teaching themselves clockmaking; in the corresponding ten months of this year only $50,000 worth of clocks and watches were exported to that country. The demand in China, however, has increased; and it is peculiar concerning it that nothing but round or octagon clocks can be sold to the Chinese merchants—old fashioned wooden, large dial clocks, such as have hung in country schoolrooms and churches for years, and which now must be made to supply this demand. The Chinese are beginning to make the cases for themselves, as the Japanese did long ago; for the most part only the movements to fit are sent to these countries. The amount saved to the buyer is extremely small. The manufacturers have tried vainly to introduce clocks of an improved form and movement; but there is practically no sale for anything other than the octagon style, which can be shipped in any position, and therefore first made their way so far east.

The nickel alarm clock goes to the mining camps of Alaska and the Hudson bay posts of British North America and to North Africa and Arabia—even to the tents of the Bedouins. In the orient, however, the sale is small, as it [illegible] indolent peoples. Queer orders come to the manufacturers from such places. The catalogues of the various firms drift through many countries, being carried to this place by a commission salesman and to that by a traveling merchant, being lost and found and traded and sold, gathering business for the firm all the time. Often orders arrive in New York that have been put in the mail in some out-of-the-way corner of the world six or nine months before. It turns out usually that the selection is made from a long out-of-date catalogue, and sometimes it happens that the clocks are out of date, too, being made no more at all. When such orders are filled the packing cases are wired tightly, as they are in all shipments to eastern countries; for the thieves are many and find it easy to loosen a board and abstract clocks from the cases in transit.

What the Dog Got.

A very curious circumstance happened at Clinton in the fox hunt on Thursday. The dogs were hard on the heels of a fox, when the fox darted into a hole, but some obstruction impeded his passage, and it only entered far enough to conceal its body, leaving the tail sticking out of the hole. When the men came near they saw one of the dogs tearing across the field with the brush in its mouth and the fox flying in another direction, with nothing left of its beautiful tail but the skinned stump. The dog had literally pulled off the hide, and having obtained the brush retired from the contest. Several shots were fired at the fox, but failed to bring him down.—Hartford Courant.

There are critical moments in every life when we must act and act quickly.—Rev. D. C. Garrett.

IRON GATES.

Decay in Ironworking a Sign of National Weakness.

Iron gates, through the bars of which landscapes and gardens could be seen and admired, were brought into vogue by a settled feeling of public security, says the Magazine of Art. They were among the earliest outdoor ornaments of a civilization which had become national in its force and industrial in its aims. They proved that the social spirit, long fostered by religion, by commerce and by law, had at last triumphed over the fierce pride, the tyrannical lust of power, which during so many years had set the nobles at variance with one another, and with growing townships, making the drawbridge and the armored gate of wood as necessary as were a good sword and a heavy suit of mail. Thus the smith's craft, after long ministering to the needs and passions of those unquiet times when war was an instinct, became, little by little, not only the agent of a warfare which had been raised into a art, but also the necessary friend of many peaceful industries; and we all know that our own civilization is bound up with the history of iron, is really dependent on the active working of this metal. Long may it be so; for a general decay in ironworking has ever been a sign of national weakness. Thus it was in Italy, in Flanders, in Spain, as Mr. Starkie Gardner points out in his well-known handbooks on smithing; and thus we see how readily we may pass through an iron gate into the vast field of modern history—the history of civilization in Christian times. As might have been expected, iron gates were first set up on sacred ground, within churches and abbeys. They were known then as grilles or screens, and they inclosed the choir and the added side chapels. A very old one has been handed down to us—namely, the St. Swithin grille in Winchester cathedral, that takes our thoughts back to the red-handed days of William II. These gates, we must remember, were slowly evolved out of much older type of grille, a grille in bronze, which came into use either late in the seventh century or early in the eighth. Other ecclesiastical gates of iron have yet to be mentioned; they were of later date, and were put outside a good many sacred buildings. Some are still extant in this country, the oldest of all being probably those in front of Cirencester abey, which are supposed to be early Elizabethan. Like the younger gates at Canterbury cathedral, they close the principal doors.

TWO BLUFFS.

A Pleasant Meeting Between the Editor and the Reporter.

Jack Rogers was a newspaper reporter and broke. He had hung around the Dubuque newspaper offices for a job until he had been requested to move on. So he decided to move on to Des Moines. But how to get there was the question. Jack put on his thinking cap, and the result was that two hours later he found himself on a train and the conductor standing by his seat. "Ticket!" said the conductor. "See here, conductor," said Jack, easily, "my name's Rogers, and I'm a reporter on the Des Moines 'Air Blast.' I'm broke and I'm in a hurry to get back home with a big scoop. You let me ride and the office'll fix it up with you. See?" "Well," said the conductor, "I guess that'll do all right. The road feels friendly toward the 'Air Blast.' In fact, the editor is in the back coach. Come along and I'll introduce you. If he says you're all right it goes." Jack was knocked all in a heap at the turn things had taken, but he had nothing to do but to follow the conductor. They halted in front of a man in the coach, and the conductor said: "Mr. Smitem, this is Mr. Rogers. He says he's a reporter on your paper, and wants the office to pay for his transportation when he gets to Des Moines." "How do you do, Mr. Rogers?" said the editor pleasantly, extending his hand. "Glad to see you. Sit down here with me." The conductor didn't wait for any more, but went off. "Well, this is nice of you," said Jack, too astonished and embarrassed to talk straight. "Of course, I'm not on your paper, but I'm broke and yarned to the conductor, hoping to get a job and square it up later." "Oh, that's all right, my boy," said the other. "Neither am I on the paper. I'm only riding on the editor's pass."—San Francisco Bulletin.

Railroad Building in 1899.

Preliminary estimates made by the Railroad Gazette indicate that the mileage of new railroads built during the year will aggregate 4,557 miles. This is more than double the average mileage for the four years from 1894 to 1898 inclusive, and has not been equaled since 1892. Last year there were 3,265 miles built in the United States. The state which stands highest is Iowa, with a total of 553 miles. Next come Minnesota with 374 miles; Arkansas, 265; California, 209, and Michigan, 178. These five states include one-third of the total new mileage of the year. Twenty-nine of the states and territories have added over fifty miles each to their lines, and sixteen have added over 100 miles each. Among the latter states are Pennsylvania with 170 miles; Alabama, 161; Louisiana, 149; Florida and Mississippi each, 148; South Carolina 139; Georgia, 137; Oklahoma, 135; New Mexico, 125; Tennessee, 118, and Missouri, 107 miles. The railroad which stands at the head of the list is the Chicago & Northwestern, with a total of 358 miles. Then follow the Illinois Central with 196 miles; the Choctaw, Oklahoma & Gulf, 162; the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe, 160; the Seaboard Air Line, 145; the Minneapolis & St. Louis, 102, and the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul, 98 miles. With comparatively few exceptions the larger additions of mileage have been made by the old roads.

A Renegade Englishman.

The editor of Voortrekker, a Krugersdorp paper, which has gained notoriety of late by its violent attacks on the British race in general and the troops in particular, is an English curate, and late head master of Aliwal public school.

MURDEROUS MICROBES

Breeding and Feeding in Human Intestines.

A New Powerful Germ Destroyer Discovered—How Microbes Are Killed While You Sleep.

Millions of microbes, bacteria, ptomaines, disease-germs of every kind live and breed and feed in the stomach and bowels.

For their propagation it is only necessary for the liver and intestines to become lazy and operate irregularly.

Modern science has been at work to find a means of killing microbes, and the most successful germ destroyer of all is Cascarets Candy Cathartic. They slaughter bacteria wherever they find them, are antiseptic, stop sour stomach, make the liver lively, the blood pure, the bowels regular, everything as it should be.

Go buy and try Cascarets to-day. It's what they do, not what we say they'll do, that proves their merit. All druggists, 10c, 25c, or 50c, or mailed for price. Send for booklet and free sample. Address, The Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago; Montreal, Can.; or New York.

CCC This is the CASCARET tablet. Every tablet of the only genuine Cascarets bears the magic letters "C C C." Look at the tablet before you buy, and beware of frauds, imitations and substitutes.

Revised Version.

"Well, that's enough to try the patience of Job," exclaimed the village minister, as he threw aside the local paper.

"Why, what's the matter, dear?" asked his wife.

"Last Sunday I preached from the text, 'Be ye Therefore Steadfast,'" answered the good man, "but the printer makes it read, 'Be ye There for Breakfast.'"—New York World.

Her Sudden Belief.

"George," she said, and her brilliant eyes sought the glowing embers, "I don't believe you love me as you used to."

"Why, Fanny!" he exclaimed, slipping on his dragon-embroidered slippers, "you are my idol!"

"But you don't show it; you don't worship me a tiny bit."

"Fanny!" and his voice rang with all that is empyreal, "only the wicked worship idols!"—Chicago News.

Evolution.

"It is really wonderful," mused the deep thinker, "how a thing or an entity will have its beginning, run its course and end exactly as it began. You follow me, I hope?"

"I think I do," replied the worldly one. "For instance, a man will get a jug and hit it up. Immediately a jag is developed. Then he may produce a jig, and very likely he'll wind up in the jug."—Philadelphia Press.

There is no witness so terrible, no accuser so powerful as conscience which dwells within us.—Sophocles.

SALZER'S 3 EARED CORN
This new, earliest, corn will revolutionize corn growing, yielding in 1899, in Minnesota, 400 bu. per acre.
BIG FOUR OATS yields 250 bus. per acre, and you can beat that!
SPELTZ 80 bus. per acre. Greatest grain and hay food this side of the stars!
BARLEY, BEARDLESS, yields 121 bus. in N.Y. Wonderful!
RAPE 25c. A TON. Gives rich, green food for cattle, sheep, swine, poultry, etc., at 25c. a ton. We sell best seeds of the Rape seed in the U.S.
BROMUS INERMIS. Greatest grass on earth. Grows to perfection in America everywhere. Salzer warrants it!
THE MILLION DOLLAR potato is the most talked of potato on earth, and Salzer Six Weeks both will make you rich. Largest grower of Potatoes and Farm Seeds in the world.
VEGETABLE SEEDS. Largest, choicest list in U.S. Onion Seed, 60c. lb. Everything warranted to grow. 35 pkgs. earliest vegetables, postpaid, $1.00.
FOR 10c. STAMPS and this notice, we mail great Seed Catalog and 10 pkgs. Farm Seed Novelties. Catalog alone, 5c. postage.
JOHN A. SALZER SEED CO. LA CROSSE WIS.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE
MILLIONS of acres of choice agricultural LANDS now opened for settlement in Western Canada. Here is grown the celebrated NO. 1 HARD WHEAT, which brings the highest price in the markets of the world; thousands of cattle are fattened for market without being fed grain and without a day's shelter. Send for information and secure a free home in Western Canada. Write the Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, or address the undersigned, who will mail you atlases, pamphlets, etc., free of cost. Ben Davies, 154 East Third St., St. Paul, or T. O. Currie, Stevens Point, Wis.

Wheat 327 Millions Short
As compared with the World's crop of 1898.
Send for our booklet "How to Sell a Crop and Have It," and you will then know how large fortunes are made in Wheat speculation.
W. H. HAMMOND & CO., Brokers,
Bank Reference, Corn Ex., Minneapolis, Minn.

Meat smoked in a few hours with KRAUSER'S LIQUID EXTRACT OF SMOKE. Made from hickory wood. Cheaper, cleaner, sweeter, and surer than the old way. Send for circular. E. KRAUSER & BRO., Milton, Pa.

DR. ARNOLD'S COUGH KILLER
CURES COUGHS AND COLDS. PREVENTS CONSUMPTION. All Druggists, 25c.

CARTER'S INK
Has the endorsement of the U. S. Government and all the Leading Railroads.

PENSION JOHN W. MORRIS, Washington, D. C.
Successfully Prosecutes Claims.
Late Principal Examiner U.S. Pension Bureau. 3 yrs in civil war, 15 adjudicating claims, atty since.

DROPSY NEW DISCOVERY; gives quick relief and cures worst cases. Book of testimonials and 10 days' treatment Free. DR. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box E, Atlanta, Ga.

[illegible] Write for prices. O. H. Hanson, Litchfield, Minn.

Afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water.

When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.

PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION

AN UNPROVED CLAIM.

REPUBLICAN BALDERDASH ABOUT PROSPERITY.

The Transfer of Several Hundred Thousand Soldiers from Field of Production to Field of Consumption the Only Cause of Activity.

The improvement in the times is due, according to Republican leaders, to the policy and action of the present administration, but before this claim can be allowed it would be well to investigate the causes which produced the changes in trade conditions. During the campaign of 1896 Republicans claimed that McKinley's election would restore confidence and that the difference would be felt as soon as the returns were in. Well, McKinley was elected, and times grew harder instead of better. Then we were told that the improvement would come with his inauguration. He was inaugurated March 4, 1897. Times were no better, and we were told to wait till congress should meet. Two weeks later congress assembled and confidence seemed still lacking. Then we were told to wait for the tariff bill. The bill was passed in July and began to get in its work and still no improvement in the times. The summer, fall and winter wore away and still no one was able to tell the difference between a Cleveland panic and McKinley prosperity. Then came the war with Spain. This started activity, and everybody knows that the Republican administration at Washington did not relish the prospect of war. In the spring improvement began and times grew better, but the year following McKinley's inauguration was the darkest known in commercial circles for many years. During that period and later not one act of the Republican party can be given credit for the change in trade conditions. President McKinley and his party are no more entitled to credit for the improvement in the times than are dogs who howled at the moon during that period.

The improvement in the times can well be credited to the war together with the natural reaction always following a commercial depression. For several years we had been going through a house cleaning process, and while the people were earning but little they were spending less. Economy was the order of the day, people wore out their old clothes, ate up their reserve provisions, made the old furniture, tools, machinery, etc., last a while longer, and the result was that all lines of trade and manufacturing were the reverse of overdone. Loans had been withdrawn, money had been hidden and the incomes of capitalists were in consequence greatly reduced. A quarter of a million men were employed as soldiers, reducing the working force of the country that much. The government borrowed two hundred millions of dollars and turned it loose in the channels of trade to arm and equip an army and navy and to transport, to feed and to clothe its soldiers and sailors. Gold poured in from the Klondyke, silver was coined by the mints, crops were good, crop shortages abroad and the using up of surplus articles at home created a demand for our products here and elsewhere. Capitalists, tired of getting no interest on their money, embarked in the wildest speculations and organized numerous combinations known as trusts, and the wheels moved. Now asked for the primal cause of this commercial activity, I would unhesitatingly reply, the war with Spain, which necessitated the employment of so many men and threw so much money into circulation among so many people of such varied occupations. The administration can certainly claim no credit for bringing on the war, for it was literally forced into it against its wishes by popular opinion. When war was declared general conditions were favorable to a trade revival, and only a slight movement was necessary to bring it about. This the war furnished, although the change would soon have come without it, as a natural event. Had there been no war there would be no activity in fields of production. No so-called prosperity.

POPULISM IN ENGLAND.

In his pursuit of big things the American is apt to neglect the cities of medium size in Great Britain, and to concentrate his attention on London, Glasgow, Birmingham or Liverpool. This is a mistake, for among the cities of 100,000 or 200,000 population there are instances of municipal enterprise not excelled by any metropolis. Such a town is Huddersfield, a Yorkshire town of 100,000, situated in the midst of the British textile industries.

Every municipal monopoly is under city management. The waterworks have been satisfactorily maintained for years. In 1872 the gas works were taken over, the object being to reduce the price of gas and increase its use by the poorer classes. To this end the department introduced penny-in-the-slot meters, which have been so well received that about one-fifth of the population is now supplied in this way. When this meter is used a stove is supplied and "fixed" free of charge. Not one penny need be invested, except for the thirty feet of gas sold for 2 cents

This is a great boon to the poor, who find it very difficult to save enough to purchase fittings outright. Stoves alone may be rented for 10 per cent of the cost per year, and the department has its own stores containing styles to suit the poorest or the most fastidious. The price of gas has been steadily reduced, until now it is 2s 2d (66c) for lighting and 2s (45c) for heating and trade purposes. Indeed, the city has been so considerate of public welfare in every way that practically the whole population consumes municipal gas. How does this compare with some of our cities—St. Paul, for instance, where not more than one-fourth of the population use gas?

The workingman and the taxpayer have cause to rejoice as well. The hours of labor have been reduced to eight—Huddersfield was the first city to adopt the eight-hour program. About $20,000 is annually used to decrease taxes, and yet adequate amounts have been set aside for depreciation, renewals and amortization of debt. The object, however, is not to make a profit, but to lower the price as rapidly as possible. It is cheaper in some other cities, but the density of population is very, very low, being only seven per acre, which makes it necessary to have an unusually large number of miles of pipe. The interest and maintenance charges are correspondingly high.

ECHO OF GREAT CRIME OF '96.

It was claimed at the time by many that the large Republican majority on the election of 1896 was due to fraud, says the Illinois Courier. No actual proofs of such fraud were produced and published, but the belief is strong in the minds of many that Mr. Bryan was defeated by unfair methods. So far as known the state and national committees made no systematic effort to probe these charges, so that the question will always be an open one so far as the general result of that election is concerned.

While no general investigation of election frauds was made, Fusionists in certain localities made some attempt to find where the large Republican vote came from, and made discoveries which threw light on the subject. In a county in central Illinois, the name of which is not necessary to give, the vote was unusually large and the Republican gain over the previous election enormous. A group of Democrats secured copies of the poll books, and going over them carefully made a list of all those who were known to them and who had voted. These lists were distributed among the different precincts and a search made for the men bearing the names. A few were found and scratched from the list, after which a letter was addressed through the mail to each of those not found. Two or three were found by the postoffice people, and the letters to the others, over 200 in number, were returned to the writers. A further examination showed that the men not found were, with five exceptions, negroes. These negroes had voted and disappeared, and members of their race living in the precincts where they had voted could give no account of them. Some were remembered to have been around before the election some time, and others were scarcely remembered.

The result of this investigation indicates that wholesale importations of negroes from Missouri took place, and it would be well for the Fusion committees to guard against a repetition of this practice in the coming campaign.

INFERNAL TAX.

The internal revenue tax will not be abolished for another year. Benevolent assimilation still costs lots of money. Some Republican statesmen are figuring, however, on a few slight changes in the law. The tax on alcohol is to be reduced, express stamps are to be abolished, patent medicines are to be made free and the increased tax on beer is to be repealed. It will be noticed that each of these amendments has a wealthy lobby behind it. It will also be noticed that each change will help a trust and hurt the people. There is a bill pending to make express companies pay for the stamps instead of the people, which was the intention of the original law, but instead of passing that bill the stamp tax on express packages will be repealed. It would be very cruel to make the companies pay anything for the privilege of robbing the people. The manufacturers of patent medicines have to stamp their medicines and as they were already so high that they could not raise the price in order to cover the stamp therefore they ask for its abolition. Their request will be granted because they are ready to pay liberally for the concession and besides it would hurt trade to tax the sale of patented poisons. The tax on beer will be repealed on political grounds. All the brewers are fighting that tax; they control a million of voters. McKinley cannot be re-elected without those votes, therefore the extra tax on beer will be abolished. If these taxes are so changed the people will not derive a cent of benefit, but all the money saved will be for the benefit of some particular class of very rich men. As a result of this legislation the people will have to pay higher taxes in some other direction. Is it not strange that all the proposed legislation of the present congress is to benefit a few rings and combines and to injure the mighty multitudes—to reward greed and punish labor?—Nonconformist.

IT WILL BE A FACTOR.

The Transvaal war will be a factor in our next presidential campaign. Heretofore wars between foreign nations have had no effect on American politics, but since the determination of the McKinley administration to adopt a colonial policy every foreign disturbance has its influence upon domestic politics. In the case of the South African war this influence is heightened by the evident sympathy shown England by the administration, and the evidence of the existence of a secret understanding between the state departments of the two countries. The war would soon end if it were not for the fact that such an understanding is supposed to exist. The great nations of continental Europe would have interfered in behalf of the Boers ere this if they had not been afraid of the United States, but as it is they dare not move in opposition to the combined strength of the two English-speaking nations. We are thus actually aiding England in her efforts to subjugate the Boers, yet an overwhelming majority of the American people side with the Boers in the war in which they are engaged. The president will be called upon to make an open declaration of his position in this matter. The greatest cause of complaint against the Boers by the English residents of the Transvaal was that the latter were not allowed to vote without renouncing allegiance to Great Britain, and the refusal of the Boers to give these Englishmen the franchise is the alleged cause of the war now raging in South Africa. Curious, is it not, when we remember that not one in ten of the men clamoring for the franchise in the Transvaal were allowed to vote in England before they left there. England wants the Boers to give the uitlanders privileges which they never enjoyed at home.

WHERE ARE WE AT?

The flurry on Wall street alarms no one in this part of the world, where business is good and money plentiful. Conditions in this section are normal and healthful, and there is no reckless speculation and stock jobbing to cause men to lose their heads and overreach themselves. Happily the west no longer is compelled to look constantly to the east for its money supply.—Omaha Bee.

The Bee is blowing its prosperity bugle just as Wall street did two months ago. Everything is lovely in the west and all our banks stand up as solid as a stone wall, but in the same number of the paper from which the above clipping is taken we find the following facts about some of the Nebraska banks. Since last September Omaha banks have lost $156,000 in deposits and Lincoln banks have lost $613,000. In September Omaha banks had a reserve fund of over 34 per cent, and now they have about 22. In September the Lincoln banks had a reserve of over 39 per cent and now they have less than 21 and during the same time the Lincoln banks have reduced their loans and discounts $1,147,519. Those banks now hold one dollar in cash for each five dollars they owe depositors. How long would these banks last in the case of a general run? If a panic should start, a bank having but one dollar with which to pay five, wouldn't last a holy minute.

This brings to mind another thing which perhaps many of our readers have never thought of. Suppose all the banks in the United States have as large a reserve fund as the banks in Omaha and Lincoln, how much money would be left in the hands of the people for general circulation? There would be about $430,000,000 or $6.00 per capita and here is the proof of that proposition. The banks of the country owe over seven billions of dollars to depositors. If all those banks have a reserve fund of 21 per cent, they would hold in their vaults $1,470,000,000 of dead money and as all the money in the United States outside the national treasury amounts to only $1,900,000,000 we would have left only $430,000,000 of actual circulation. If good times continue and everybody has confidence in existing conditions, the banks are all right, and so are the people; but if widespread panic comes—and it was fearfully near us last week—then look out for breaking banks, ruined merchants and universal disaster. The bankers, brokers and speculators can join in singing that grand old hymn:

> "Lo, on a narrow neck of land,
> Between two boundless seas we stand,
> Yet how insensible."

—Nonconformist.

SOME QUESTIONS.

Below is an extract well worth reading. It is taken from a speech of Congressman Lentz of Ohio, during the debate on the financial bill:

"They are shooting down liberty in South Africa, while you are shooting it down in the Philippine islands. There is evidence sufficient enough that both governments are operating on parallel lines. The first blossom of liberty in the orient to be cut off by the Republican party of the United States, the first substantial struggle for liberty in Africa to be mowed down in its infancy by the queen of England, with czar as king for a peace conference.

"If these things are not inside out, how can the Republican party stand impotent and silent while England is shooting to death a republic in South Africa, and while under the military and imperialistic powers that patronage has delivered to the president here, the crime of crimes is being committed under the stars and stripes of the union? The president at Madison, Wis., said: 'One small fraction of one small tribe contests our authority in the orient.' Aye, my friends, with an army there and on the way of 75,000 men to subdue one small fraction of one small tribe, an army larger than Sherman needed to march to the sea, an army larger than Grant needed to take Vicksburg, is now called into requisition and kept there for nearly a year to subdue 'one small fraction of one small tribe.'

"Is that the source of our prosperity? Is your Egan pension of $7,500 for being reduced, degraded and dishonored; is your beef trust, that murdered 4,800 men, while the Spaniards only killed 350, is that the source of your prosperity?

"Is your humiliation and subordination of the man who won the most magnificent naval victory that the world has seen, Winfield Scott Schley, is that the source of your prosperity?

"Is your subordination of Brooke, of Miles and of Merritt, who were trained, together with their associates, at an expense of millions of dollars to this country, and putting of politicians in the army saddle, is that the cause of your prosptrity? You will live to be ashamed of your record."

THE LIST OF HEROES.

Look on the list, the sad long list, of heroes who are low.
The colonel's name is given so that all the world may know.
The names of all the majors and captains lying there
Are mentioned in the bulletins and posted everywhere.

But the ordinary soldier—
Ah, he's made of poorer stuff,
And his name is never mentioned,
For there isn't room enough!
Let the ones at home that love him
Learn his fate some future day.
Death to him is ever only
Incidental, anyway!

Gold Standardism.

The John P. Lovell Arms company of Boston was born in 1841 and died in 1899. The patient suffered much from a lingering sickness caused by the crime of 1873, and finally died from an acute attack of the gold standard. Many mourning creditors followed the remains to their final rest.

Sixty-six mining companies at Johannesburg, South Africa, have suspended operations on account of the war, and as a result many families are destitute.

WORK OF CONGRESS

Washington, Jan. 18.—An agreement was easily reached in the senate yesterday to take the final vote on the pending bill fixing gold as the standard of value in the United States on Feb. 15.

After several days of debate the drag-net resolution of inquiry regarding the conduct of the Philippine war was adopted. It was introduced by Mr. Hoar of Massachusetts and practically was adopted as a general substitute for resolutions of a similar, but less extended character offered by Mr. Pettigrew and Mr. Lodge. Beyond a vigorous speech by Mr. Pettigrew the resolution aroused no debate, as it was within the discretion of the president to send or not send any of the information requested.

The resolution offered by Mr. Hale of Maine asking for information as to the seizure of flour by the British authorities was adopted, but only after a spirited debate and after the resolution had been materially amended. Mr. Davis, chairman of the committee on foreign relations, made a sharp attack upon the resolution, but withdrew his objections after it had been amended.

Mr. Teller, Silver, of Colorado, addressed the senate upon the financial bill and will continue his speech to-day.

The House.

The house had another debate yesterday over the sale of the New York custom house by Secretary Gage. Mr. Sulzer of New York, the author of the resolution for an investigation of the secretary's transaction with the New York banks, started the ball rolling by charging that the mandate had already gone forth to suppress it. Mr. Sibley, a Pennsylvania Democrat, formerly a radical advocate of free silver, and who is now out of sympathy with the Democrats in the house, warmly commended Mr. Gage's course. The statement precipitated a debate which lasted almost three hours. Mr. Grosvenor of Ohio explained that the committee on rules, to which the Sulzer resolution had gone, had not acted because no evidence had been produced before the committee to warrant the ordering of such a far-reaching investigation. Mr. Hepburn of Iowa assailed Mr. Sulzer for some of his extravagant statements and declared there ought to be some way to rebuke a member for slandering honored officials. Later in the day, during the discussion of the appropriations for the army, Mr. Cannon, in charge of the bill, challenged any member to move to strike it out. Mr. Williams of Mississippi replied to Mr. Cannon in an eloquent speech in which he affirmed the loyalty of every American citizen to the flag, and charged Mr. Cannon with shrewdly issuing a challenge that he knew would not be accepted. The urgent deficiency bill was passed with only one unimportant amendment.

Washington, Jan. 19.—For an hour yesterday Mr. Wellington of Maryland occupied the attention of the senate, continuing the debate on the Philippine question. He took as his text the resolution he introduced last Tuesday providing that the United States should not take permanent possession of the archipelago, but after subduing the insurrection, which he sincerely deplored, should confer upon the Filipino the right to govern themselves, offering them such protection as they might need.

Mr. Teller of Colorado resumed his speech on the financial bill, in the course of which he arraigned Secretary Gage for his negotiations with the National City Bank of New York. He had not concluded his remarks when he suspended for the day.

The House.

The house passed the senate bill extending the powers of the director of the census, after striking out the committee amendment to authorize the director to contract for extra printing with private contractors. The whole fight was upon the amendment. The influence of the public printer and the labor organizations of the country were employed against it, and after a debate of several hours it was overwhelmingly defeated. The publication of the bulletins of the census will be made by the public printer as in the past.

Washington, Jan. 20.—A speech, sensational in its interest and international in its importance, was delivered in the senate yesterday by Mr. Hale of Maine. The occasion of the utterance was the simple question whether a resolution introduced by Mr. Allen of Nebraska calling for information as to whether any representative of the Transvaal had applied to the United States government for recognition, and if such application had been made, if it had been accepted, and if not, why not, should be directed to the president or to the secretary of state. Mr. Hale made the question the text of an impassioned speech in which he declared that nine-tenths of the American people sympathized with the Boers in their gallant struggle for liberty against one of the greatest powers in the world. He declared that "the war which Great Britain is waging is the most foul blow at human liberty that has been struck in the century." He denied that the American people "were in sympathy with Great Britain in the South African war to stamp out the liberty of a people," and when Mr. Balfour, in the house of commons made such a statement "he should be met with some disclaimer from this side of the Atlantic." He declared that the British people themselves were not in favor of the war which "had been brought on by a sharp cabinet minister engaged with gold speculators." Mr. Hale spoke with unusual force, decisiveness and earnestness, even for him, and his passionate eloquence claimed the closest attention of every auditor.

The resolution which previous to Mr. Hale's speech had caused a sharp colloquy between Mr. Allen and Mr. Spooner, was passed finally as amended. The amendment directs it to the president.

Mr. Morgan of Alabama addressed the senate briefly on the financial bill.

The House.

The pension appropriation bill, carrying $145,245,250, was passed by the house yesterday. It was made the vehicle of an attack upon the commissioner of pensions by Mr. Curtis of Kansas, who was seconded by Mr. Lentz and Mr. Norton of Ohio and Mr. Robinson of Indiana and other Northern Democrats. All inveighed against the lack of liberality in the administration of the pension laws. The commissioner was ably defended by a score of members from both sides of the house. Mr. Mahon of Ohio charged that the assault upon him had been instigated by the "pension sharks" of this city who were robbing the old soldiers. As a result of the latter's disclosures a rider was put upon the bill by unanimous consent empowering the commissioner, in his discretion, to withhold the fees of attorneys of record in pension cases where he was satisfied that the attorneys had not prepared the cases under their personal supervision.

Washington, Jan. 22. — When the house met Saturday Mr. Taylor of Ohio, chairman of the special committee to investigate the case of Representative-elect B. H. Roberts, presented the majority report in favor of the exclusion of Mr. Roberts, and gave notice that he would call the case up on Tuesday. Mr. Littlefield of Maine presented the minority report in favor of seating Mr. Roberts and then expelling him. The minority report was signed by Mr. Littlefield, Rep., and Mr. De Armond, Dem. Five thousand copies of the reports were ordered printed for general distribution. Mr. Roberts was in his seat during these proceedings, but made no effort to address the house.

THE MARKETS.

Latest Quotations From Grain and Live Stock Centers.

St. Paul, Jan. 23. — Wheat — No. 1 Northern, 62 1-4@63 1-2c; No. 2 Northern, 59@62c. Corn — No. 3 yellow, 29 1-2@29 3-4c; No. 3, 29 1-4@29 1-2c. Oats—No. 3 white, 23 1-2@23 3-4c; No. 3, 22 3-4@23 1-4c. Barley and Rye — Feed barley, 31@32 1-2c; malting grade, 33@35c; No. 2 rye, 47 1-2@47 3-4c; No. 3 rye, 46@46 1-2c.

Duluth, Jan. 23.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, 63c; No. 1 Northern, 62 1-2c; No. 2 Northern, 60c; No. 3 spring, 56 1-2c. to arrive, No. 1 hard, 64 3-8c; No. 1 Northern, 62 7-8c; May, No. 1 Northern, 65c; July, No. 1 Northern, 66 1-2c; oats, 23 1-2@24c; rye, 49c; barley, 34@37c; flax, to arrive, $1.44 1-2; cash, $1.44 1-2; May, $1.48 1-2; corn, 30 1-4c.

Minneapolis, Jan. 23.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, 64 7-8c; No. 1 Northern, 62 1-4@63 1-2c; No. 2 Northern, 59@60 1-2c. Corn — No. 3 yellow, 29 1-4c; No. 3, 28 3-4@29c. Oats—No. 3 white 23 1-4@23 1-2c; No. 3, 23@23 1-4c. Barley, 33@39c. Rye, 47 1-2@48c.

Chicago, Jan. 23.—Wheat—No. 2 red, 66 1-2@67c; No. 3 red, 64@66c; No. 2 hard winter, 62 1-2c; No. 3 do, 59@62c; No. 1 Northern spring, 63 1-2@65c; No. 2 do, 63@64 1-2c; No. 3 spring, 58 1-2@63c. Corn—No. 2, 31 1-2c; No. 3, 30 3-4@31 1-4c. Oats — No. 2, 23c; No. 3, 22 3-4c.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 23.—Flour is steady; Wheat firmer; No. 1 Northern, 64@65c; No. 2 Northern, 61@62 1-2c. Rye steady; No. 1, 55 1-2@56c. Barley steady; No. 2, 46@46 1-2c; sample, 35@42 1-2c. Oats firm; No. 2 white, 25 1-4@25 1-2c.

Chicago, Jan. 23. — Cattle — Beeves, $4@6.50; cows and heifers, $3@4.60; stockers and feeders, $3.25@4.75; Texas fed beeves, $4.10@5. Hogs — Mixed and butchers, $4.45@4.72 1-2; rough heavy, $4.45@4.55; light, $4.40@4.72 1-2; bulk of sales, $4.55@4.65. Sheep, $4.30@4.90; lambs, $5@5.65.

Sioux City, Iowa, Jan. 23.—Cattle—Beeves, $4.50@5.40; cows and bulls, mixed, $2.25@4; stockers and feeders, $3.50@4.40; calves and yearlings, $3.50@4.70. Hogs, $4.45@4.52 1-2; bulk, $4.45@4.47 1-2.

South St. Paul, Jan. 23. — Hogs — $4@4.57 1-2. Cattle—Steckers, $3@4.25; heifers, $3.25@3.50; cows, $2.60@3.45; steers $4.40. Sheep, $3.50@4.60; lambs, $5@5.75.

MAKES LYNCHING TREASON.

Colored Congressman Offers a Solution of the Mob Question.

Washington, Jan. 23.—Representative White of North Carolina, the colored representative in the house, offered a bill for the protection of all citizens of the United States against mob violence, etc. It provides that all persons shall be protected from being murdered, tortured or burned to death by mobs known as "lynching bees," whether spontaneous or premeditated; and all parties participating, aiding or abetting in such affairs are made guilty of treason against the United States government and subject to prosecution in the United States court.

FRACTIONAL CURRENCY.

Secretary Gage Says That the Country Needs More of It.

Washington, Jan. 23. — Secretary Gage was before the house committee on coinage, weights and measures, and spoke in favor of the adoption of the metric system. Mr. Gage also referred to the need of fractional silver currency. He pointed out that at present the demand for fractional coin was so urgent that the issue ran considerably beyond the $50,000,000 authorized by law, and he recommended that this legal restriction be repealed, leaving the treasury to determine the proportion of fractional currency necessary.

SKELETONS IN A CAVE.

Ghastly Discovery Is Made by a Prospector on Lookout Mountain.

Chattanooga, Tenn., Jan. 23.—W. L. Allison, while prospecting for minerals on Lookout mountain, discovered five skeletons in a cave fifteen miles from this city. There is a difference of opinion whether they are skeletons of Indians or of miners who disappeared several years ago. The cave is being explored to see whether it contains more skeletons.

Must Be Tried Together.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 23. — Judge Wyman denied motions for change of venue for Miller, one of the four alleged murderers of Kehr, and also motions for separate trial for Trapp, Voss and Klick. The case may not be taken up at this term.

Col. Colson Indicted.

Frankfort, Ky., Jan. 23.—The grand jury reported indictments charging Col. David G. Colson with the wilful murder of Ethelbert Scott and L. W. Demaree.

To Prevent Diphtheria.

Paris—Impressed with the frightful mortality of children on account of diphtheria, the city council of Paris offers all doctors, free of charge, the use of municipal laboratories, chemicals, and instruments to make experiments and study means for arresting the disease, by the discovery of a serum of inocculation to prevent infection.

Money in Deep Waterways.

Washington—An item of interest to the people of the West in the urgent deficiency bill authorizes the expenditure of $20,000 for the completion of surveys and investigation of the deep waterways and routes between the Great Lakes and Atlantic tide water.

Whipping Posts in Washington.

Washington—There are evidences of a growing sentiment in the District of Columbia for the enactment of a law authorizing the establishment of whipping posts for the punishment of parties convicted of minor offenses.

Pinero's Play Condemned.

Berlin—Pinero's comedy, "The Gay Lord Quex," is being played at the Lessing theater. It has been unfavorably received, the critics declaring it altogether too coarse.

News of the Northwest

AUDITOR DUNN EMPHATIC.

He Will Reject All Claims for Abatement of Taxes.

St. Paul, Jan. 20.—Auditor Dunn put his foot down yesterday—hard—with hobnail boots on. He isn't going to approve another application for abatement of taxes, not one. He is going to reject them as fast as they come, unsight and unseen, and that's a fact. The only correction he proposes to make after this is where there is some manifest clerical error.

"See that pile of tin boxes?" says he. "There's a dray load of applications there and it's safe to say they don't any of them deserve consideration. The man who owns a farm or his little house pays his taxes every year. He is the man that supports the state institutions and his local government. The speculative corporation or the big lumberman lets his taxes go and after five years he comes in with a proposition to knock off the costs and penalties and settle on a basis of 80 or only 50 per cent of the original tax. I don't propose to sanction that any longer. Hereafter the tax-shirker gets no help from me."

TEN PERSONS INJURED.

Serious Wreck Occurs During a Heavy Fog.

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 20.—Ten persons were injured in a train collision on the Great Northern at Hillyard, four miles east of this city yesterday. The east-bound passenger train was standing on the main line at the depot. There was a dense fog and a passenger train running at high speed crashed into the rear sleeper. The wrecked car was filled with escaping steam from the locomotive and some of the passengers were pinioned by the debris and were rescued with some difficulty. The shock of the collision knocked down several persons in the dining car and a number of them suffered slight injuries. None of the injured persons are seriously hurt.

OFFICIALS DECAPITATED.

New Manitoba Government Dispenses With Offensive Partisans.

Winnipeg, Man., Jan. 20.—As expected a number of civil service heads are to be chopped off by the new Manitoba government. An order in council was passed by Premier MacDonald, dispensing with the service of M. J. A. MacDonnell, chief provincial engineer. Mr. MacDonnell has occupied the position for several years. He is the Liberal member from Lisgar division in the Ottawa parliament. As the bye-elections are approaching Premier MacDonald wants an engineer of his own political stripe who may award contracts where they will gain the most votes.

QUARANTINE DIPHTHERIA.

Sections of North Dakota Ravaged by Disease.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 20.—State Health Officer Quarry of Grand Forks is in the city on his return from investigating the diphtheria scare in Eddy, Foster and Wells counties. No cases were found at Carrington or New Rockford, but at New Home, in southeastern Wells and Northwestern Stutsman, the situation is serious. The section is populated by Roumanians. There have already been thirty cases and ten deaths. Strict quarantine regulations were enforced.

SHAFT HOUSE AND TRESTLE.

Contracts for $165,000 Worth of Steel Structure Awarded.

Houghton, Mich., Jan. 20.—The Wisconsin Bridge and Iron Works of Milwaukee has taken a contract to build a new shaft house at No. 7 shaft of the Quincy mine for $30,000, the work to begin next month. Also to build a $20,000 trestle crossing for the South Shore railroad, tracks for a railway connecting Isle Royal mine and mill. This makes a total of $165,000 worth of steel structures for copper country mines contracted for already this year by this one concern.

Masonic Grand Officers.

St. Paul, Jan. 20.—The grand lodge, A. F. & A. M., concluded its business and adjourned after the election of the following officers: Grand master, Alonzo Brandenburg, Fergus Falls; deputy grand master, Ambrose D. Countryman, Appleton; senior grand warden, Gil S. Ives, St. Peter; junior grand warden, Henry R. Adams, Minneapolis; grand treasurer, J. H. Thompson, Minneapolis; grand secretary, Thomas Montgomery, St. Paul.

Can Take No More.

Mayville, N. D., Jan. 20.—President Joseph Carhart has announced to the students that if any of their friends are contemplating attending the normal school here this year, they are requested to advise them not to do so, as the capacity of the building is now overtaxed and admission will have to be denied, or at least reluctantly granted. The school is progressing most satisfactorily, but the need of more room is great.

A Death at Chatfield.

Chatfield, Minn., Jan. 20.—Mrs. Minerva Taynior died at her home here from the effects of a stroke of apoplexy. She was born in Youngstown, Ohio, March 18, 1826, and leaves two sons and a daughter.

Was a Big Stone Pioneer.

Graceville, Minn., Jan. 20. — John Connolly, a prominent farmer and one of the pioneer settlers of Big Stone county, died after a long illness of cancer of the stomach, aged seventy-four years.

Elevator Burned.

Castlewood, S. D., Jan. 20. — A mill building owned by W. H. Stokes of watertown and used as an elevator, was burned. Loss on building, $6,000; contents, $4,000; insurance, $3,000.

Gift to Ottumwa.

Ottumwa, Iowa, Jan. 20.—A proposition was received from Andrew Carnegie to give $50,000 for a public library if the city will provide a suitable site and appropriate $5,000 annually for its maintenance.

Suspect War Office Attache.

Rome—Dr. Arturo Minghetti, who is employed in the ministry of war, has been accused of having relations with the military attache of the French embassy. Minister Pelloux has appointed a commission to investigate the case.

General of Papal Guard Dead.

Rome—Prince Emilio Altieri, chief commander of the Papal Noble Guards, died, aged eighty-one. He had been a member of the Vatican guards for half a century.

It's one thing to have an idea and another thing to carry it out.

WRONG MAN HANGED.

Deathbed Confession Points to a Miscarriage of Justice.

Redwood Falls, Minn., Jan. 21. — A report has just reached here, and said to come from relatives of the deceased, that old man Slover recently died in California, and that he made a deathbed confession to the effect that he killed Moses Lufkin, in Gales township, this county, some twelve years ago, instead of William Rose, who was afterward hanged for the crime. The crime was committed at night. Lufkin was sitting in the kitchen of his house reading a paper. All of a sudden there came the explosion of a gun and a charge of shot passed through the window into Lufkin, killing him instantly. The state's testimony was that Rose was in love with Grace Lufkin, and that Grace's father forbade him coming around the house. On the night in question it was proved by circumstantial evidence, Rose, on a buckskin pony, rode to within half a mile of the house, hitched his pony to a tree, and then walked over to Lufkin's house and killed Lufkin. Rose was tried twice, the first trial resulting in a disagreement, and in the second, in which Rose was defended by W. W. Erwin, there was a conviction. Rose was game to the last, and he made a speech from the gallows, telling the people to look out for old man Slover, that he was the man who committed the crime.

SAWED HIS WAY OUT.

Fargo Prisoner Does the Trick With Outside Assistance.

Fargo, N. D., Jan. 21.—There was a jail delivery in Fargo. Some time ago the officials arrested a fellow named Farsdale at Davenport on suspicion of being a crook. Some dynamite, fine saws and other burglar tools were found. The recent term of court had rid the jail of a large number of toughs, and as there was no actual crime charged against Farsdale, he was not confined in a cell. In the temporary absence of the jailer Farsdale sawed through the steel roof and jumped to a lower shed and to the ground. He is supposed to have had outside assistance.

LOGGERS QUIT.

Thoroughly Discouraged by Reason of Spring-Like Weather.

Bemidji, Minn., Jan. 21. — Owing to the extreme mild weather and continuous thaws, a number of lumber camps in this vicinity have during the past week suspended operations for the season. The scarcity of labor and high wages, together with the unfavorable conditions of the weather, has made this season the most unprofitable on record in the history of lumbering in Northern Minnesota.

CASS LAKE SUICIDE.

Charles Belanger Whipped His Wife and Then Took Carbolic Acid.

Cass Lake, Minn., Jan. 21.—Charles Belanger committed suicide last night by taking carbolic acid. He whipped his wife, locked the door, drank the acid and died in half an hour. His people live at Forest Lake. Jealousy is supposed to have been the cause.

Last of the Davis Bank Cases.

Butte, Mont., Jan. 21.—Judge Beatty of Idaho, sitting in the United States court here, yesterday decided the last of the famous bank stock cases growing out of the fight over the estate of the late millionaire and banker, Andrew J. Davis. Harriet Wood, a sister of Davis, sued to set aside the deathbed bequest to his nephew and namesake, Andrew J. Davis, by which the latter acquired practically the whole of the First National Bank of Butte. The decision is in favor of the defendant and confirms his title to the bank.

Caused a Sensation.

Oshkosh, Wis., Jan. 21. — While the judge was charging the jury in the Campfield murder case, a report came from the town of Rushford that Edward Loker, one of the important witnesses for the state, had shot himself. Relatives were notified and quite a sensation was created by the announcement. The report that it was suicide is not yet confirmed. The Loker family was very active in the Campfield case for the state.

Died on His Birthday.

Minneapolis, Jan. 21. — Walter S. Benton, a well known and highly respected business man of Minneapolis, reached the sixty-fourth milestone of a useful and honorable life yesterday, and then passed away as the result of a lingering illness. Mr. Benton died in the presence of his family at the residence. He has for many years been president of the Minnesota Linseed Oil company.

Neck Broken by a Fall.

Rapid City, S. D., Jan. 21.—The 12-year-old son of M. Connaughby of Nemo, near this city, fell from a horse and broke his neck, death resulting almost instantly. He and his little brother were riding a horse, with a picket rope dragging, when the rope caught, jerking the horse around suddenly. Both boys were thrown off, but one escaped without injury.

Ice Moving Out.

Chamberlain, S. D., Jan. 21.—Stockmen report that ice in White river began moving yesterday, and for the present crossings are impassible. This is the earliest break-up in the history of the country. Ice in the Missouri river is also in precarious condition and two more days of the present weather will send it out.

Telephone Company Officials.

Winnebago City, Minn., Jan. 21. — At the annual meeting of the Blue Earth Valley Telephone company the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: W. Z. Haight, president; J. H. Sherin, vice president; W. H. Hodgman, secretary and manager; David Secor, treasurer.

Morgan, Minn., Jan. 21.—It is alleged that farmers of Leavenworth township, Brown county, have deposited some twenty carcasses of hogs which died of cholera in Cottonwood river. A great deal of indignation exists.

Almost Leather Famine.

London—Owing to the vast amount of leather used by the government for cavalry equipments, it has almost caused a leather famine in England, and the price has advanced

Col. F. F. Hilder, attached to the United States bureau of ethnology, has been selected by that bureau, in conjunction with the National Museum and Smithsonian institution, to proceed to the Philippines and make a thorough investigation of the anthropological, ethnological and general scientific conditions in the archipelago. His researches, it is understood, will include the little Jolo group.

Minnesota Historical Society

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

MINNESOTA

VOLUME XIX. ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, JANUARY 31, 1900. NUMBER 28.

News of the Week

From Washington.

The Paris peace commission cost $155,102.

United States Naval Constructor Gilmore will inspect German navy yards.

Under American rule the imports at Manila have increased at a wonderful rate.

Assistant Secretary of State Hill has been chosen president of Columbia college.

The Miles faction defeated Corbin in the matter of reorganizing the Ordnance board.

Government inspectors condemned 155,502 animals examined at abattoirs last year.

The war department has been criticised for buying ordnance from the navy department.

Police courts with salaried judges are to be established in Cuba. Speedy justice is promised.

The president is annoyed by opposition to the reciprocity treaties with France and Argentina.

A statue of Webster was unveiled in Washington recently in the presence of a distinguished gathering.

Lord Pauncefote will remain at Washington until after the Boer war, notwithstanding the age limit.

Congressman Caldwell favors a canal across the United States connecting the Atlantic and Pacific.

Manila imports from July to September, 1899, were $5,802,581, of which $329,114 was from the United States.

From 185 to 1899 Great Britain's exports increased 19 per cent, while those from the United States increased 152 per cent.

The house committe on agriculture has agreed upon a favorable report on a bill reorganizing the weather bureau force and providing a system of retirements.

Secretary Long has written to Secretary Root suggesting that army officers attend the naval war college to formulate plans of co-operation with the navy.

The war department has just issued a regulation regarding army campaign hats, which reads: "The wearing of these hats in any other than their legal shape is prohibited."

The house committee on library has favorably reported a bill appropriating $25,000 for a statue to Commodore Perry, the hero of Lake Erie, to be erected at Put-in-Bay, Ohio.

The fund for the McClellan monument, which it is proposed to erect in Washington, now amounts to $10,000, and the committee in charge will ask congress for $50,000 for the pedestal.

It is rumored in Washington that a strong feeling of resentment against the United States has been aroused in Nicaragua and Costa Rica as the result of the action of the senate and house committee in reporting bills contemplating the acquisition of the territory through which the canal will be cut.

The war department has given out the statement that the total receipts for the entire island of Cuba for the month of December were $1,733,221. The total receipts for the entire island for the calendar year ending Dec. 31, 1899, by items, were: Customs, $14,072,114; internal revenues, $757,283; postal receipts from July 1, 1899, to Dec. 31, 1899, $94,514; miscellaneous receipts from July 1 to Dec. 31, $293,584; total receipts, $15,217,497.42.

Secretary Gage has sent to congress an estimate of $7,872,000 as the cost of collecting the customs during the next fiscal year. The December statement of collections of internal revenue show the total receipts to have been $24,219,308, an increase over December, 1898, of $2,026,416. The total receipts for the six months of the present fiscal year were $151,780,158, an increase of $13,457,683 over the corresponding period last year.

Foreign.

Steel wagon roads prove successful in Pomerania.

Greece is likely to appoint a German to the command of the army.

French railroads have ordered thirty locomotives from Philadelphia.

The Prince of Wales will attend holy week exercises at Rome.

The ill feeling in Germany caused by the British seizures is disappearing.

Italy is striving for commercial union between it, Germany and Austria.

It is reported that France will send to Madagascar 5,000 troops, fearing a British invasion.

The French government will try to crush religious communities for relations with royalists.

The pope has ordered special prayers in Italian churches for cessation of the influenza epidemic.

A Leipsic newspaper warns German manufacturers that Americans may crowd them out of Russia.

The Bohemian coal miners' strike involves 60,000 men. The public schools are closed for lack of fuel.

An earthquake killed seven people near Colima, Mex., and wrecked buildings in many other Mexican towns.

The telephone service in Paris is cheap, no buzzing in the ears, no crossed lines, and subscribers may use any public instrument free.

Osman Digna, principal general of the Khalife Abdullah, and who was captured in the hills near Tokar, was brought to Suakim and imprisoned.

The Nicaraguan government will appoint Jose D. Rodriguez as arbitrator for Nicaragua in adjusting the differences with the Maritime Canal company.

The Copenhagen correspondent of the London Daily Mail says: "The United States government intends to acquire a sphere of influence in China. In that case, Denmark, for the benefit of her newly-founded commercial connections in East Asia, would, through American concessions, obtain a valuable equivalent for her western colonies."

Casualties.

Fire destroyed the West Farmington (O.) high school at a loss of $10,000. None of the students were hurt.

Three women were badly burned during the progress of a fire in a brown stone boarding house at New York.

Jefferson Davis Starts, formerly of Shannon county, Mo., and later a lawyer in St. Louis, is dead as a result of an accident on a street car.

Miners Kratt and Sweet, while on a hoist coming out of a shaft in the Atlanta mine at Houghton, Mich., fell 2,000 feet and were instantly killed.

At Chicago a gas pipe leak caused the explosion of four manholes, fatally injuring Charles Burroughs, wrecking the asphalt pavement and shattering glass in buildings in the vicinity.

Nick Leddick and William Robertson, employed by the Illinois Central railway, and George Teus, a miner, were killed by cars at La Salle, Ill., within twenty-four hours.

A freight engine on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy struck a bowlder near Ferryville, Wis., and rolled down a bluff. Sixteen freight cars were wrecked and traffic was stopped. The crew escaped.

Dr. Howard Kelly, professor of gynecology in the medical school of Johns Hopkins university, was bitten on the right hand by a large rattlesnake, which he was exhibiting to illustrate a lecture. The doctor sucked the blood from the wound, and continued his lecture for nearly an hour after the occurrence. No serious results are anticipated.

Personal.

Andrew Carnegie has given $50,000 to East Orange, N. J., for a public library.

Richard D. Blakemore, the novelist, died in London. He was born at Longworth, Berks, in 1825.

Alfred Watts, the inventor of crystal gold, which is used in dentistry, died at his home in Brooklyn of old age.

Andrew Carnegie has promised to present York, Pa., with $50,000 for the erection of a public library building.

William Sonntag, the artist, died at his home in New York, aged seventy-eight years. He was born near Pittsburg.

Rev. Dr. J. Henry Sharpe, a prominent Presbyterian clergyman, died at his home in Philadelphia, aged fifty-nine.

A. J. Vanlandingham, commissioner of the St. Louis Traffic bureau, died at his residence in St. Louis of heart disease.

Collector of Customs Ovey of Alaska has resigned, his resignation to take effect upon appointment and qualification of his successor.

Sherwood Kerr, former proprietor of the Commercial hotel at Muscatine, Iowa, and one of the most widely known landlords in the West, died of quick consumption.

Theodore Bacon, one of the most prominent lawyers of Western New York, who was an independent candidate for government against Theodore Roosevelt in 1898, died at Rochester, N. Y., aged sixty-five years.

A complete report of the vital statistics of Havana for 1899 has just been issued. The deaths show an apparent excess over the births of about 4,000. Gen. Ludlow says, however, that a great many birth were not recorded.

Criminal Record.

Another street car at Springfield, Ill., was wrecked with dynamite.

Three Italians were killed in an inter-family fight in a New York tenement house.

Frank A. Sears and George H. Hess, members of the Omaha board of education, have been held on the charge of receiving bribes in connection with the letting of contracts for school work.

J. Edgar Walton, the Augusta, Me., forger, was arrested at Chicago as he was attempting to escape from the Chicago National Bank. He had nearly 200 blank checks on various banks in his possession.

Guy Dennett, aged twenty-one years, a nephew of President Dole of Hawaii, attempted suicide at Denver by cutting his wrist with a knife in a rooming house. He was out of money and despondent. He will probably recover.

General.

Iowa's amended inheritance law has been upheld by the courts.

Dartmouth college will have a school of administration and finance.

East Orange, N. J., may refuse Carnegie's offer of $50,000 for a library.

American ties and sleepers are to be used on a North China railway.

Thirty men who attempted to found a colony in Cuba have returned home bankrupt.

The Lawrence Scientific School of Harvard will have a course in landscape architecture.

The Prohibitionist nominating convention has been called to meet in Chicago June 27.

A bill has been introduced in the Iowa legislature providing for three additional normal schools.

A New York man has invented a relay system which doubles the carrying power of a telephone line.

The Oregon Democratic state committee has decided to hold the state convention in Portland, April 12.

President Eliot of Harvard and his opposition to Jesuit colleges is based on their low standard of scholarship.

The supreme court reversed the decree of the South Dakota court and held that state legislation on railway rates is void.

A device invented by a Boston doctor is said to rob chloroform anaesthesia of its dangers by mixing air with the inhaled drug.

Congress will be asked to take control of the Chicago drainage canal and convert it into a ship canal to connect the great lakes and the Mississippi.

BOLD SPION KOP

OBSERVATION POINT FOR A GLIMPSE OF STATE AND NATIONAL POLITICS.

The Outlook Discouraging to the British Party in Africa, England and America, and Especially to the British Party in Minnesota—The Solid "Liberty" Sentiment is Against the G. O. P.—Van Sant and His "Waterloo"—"He That Is Not For Me Is Against Me"—McKinley and British "Aggression" One and the Same Thing—State Note and Comment of the Week.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, Jan. 29, 1900.

At the moment of writing this Spion Kop is a good point of observation from which to view the situation political in Minnesota, affording as it does opportunity for looking into the Boer entrenchments on the heights beyond, or down towards the Tugela whence the British have come on their arduous journey into Republican Ladysmith! according as the view is pro-Boer or pro-British! The Spion Kop of state and national politics!

It is surprising how rapidly developments are placing those of all parties who favor liberty and self-government regardless of what part of the world the case is in, or with what nations or peoples on the one side, and the Tories and friends of imperialism on the other; and how Democrats, Populists and independents are to a man with the one, while the small numbers in the other are almost to a man of the G. O. P. persuasion!

The Twin City Pro-Boer meetings have disclosed this. It is true that when the St. Paul meeting was held in which several thousand people participated, Republicans were present, some, like ex-Attorney General Moses E. Clapp, taking prominent part. But as it has been more and more clear to what extent the McKinley administration is tied up with England, gradually prominent Republicans, as if having received the cue so to do from Hanna or his underlings, have withdrawn from all anti-English movements. Thus the promoters of the Minneapolis Boer meetings, who especially aimed to keep partisan politics out, extending earnest invitations to prominent Republicans to take an active part, found it impossible to secure active Republicans for speakers, even after it was known that ex-Governor Altgeld would be unable to be present. Ex-Candidate Eustis formally declined the invitation to speak, while would-be candidate Van Sant found it convenient to be out of the state. So with Bob Evans, and not only Republicans generally declined or dodged, but the Republican press sought every means for discouraging the meetings.

How have the mighty fallen, when Republican speakers refuse invitations to meetings whose sole purpose is to commend a struggle for liberty, or possibly to condemn those who would stifle it, and destroy two republics? When, in these degenerate days, a Republican administration of America is itself conducting a war against liberty, also in distant lands, and has itself destroyed a republic?

And gazing from that same Spion Kop may it not be regarded as deeply significant that "Waterloo" is the name of the town to which Van Sant is said to have gone as reason for declining the Pro-Boer invitation? Is the "liberty" question to be that on which Captain Van Sant shall meet his "Waterloo?" We shall soon see.

Referring to the recent report of the state bureau as to wages, we find that the bureau gathered no details for a comparison as to increase or decrease, except upon two industries, lumber and iron ore production, finding in those cases that there had been an increase of 9 or 10 per cent. Of course this is practically nothing, compared with the boost of living, and as to profits of the lumber men and mine barons, considering the arbitrary boosts they have given lumber and ore. The wage scale, on the average for all Minnesota is distressingly low. Sixty-five per cent of male employes in the whole state receive under $12 per week, and the average pay of the largest number of women is between $6 and $7 a week. In all Minneapolis and St. Paul but seven women were found receiving over $20 a week, while in the same cities 886 females are paid less than $3 per week!

And, speaking of business and "prosperity," besides the closing of the flour mills, the largest farm machinery concern at Minneapolis is closed by a strike for more wages, the men showing in their statement that they were promised more if McKinley was elected, and that instead they have taken reductions every little while since 1896. Here are some men that will not be marching in the G. O. P. "peroot" this year.

Hanna is making ready for next year's campaign, and at Cleveland is fitting up secret rooms, where, in an immense building, he can receive the leg pullers and dispense the campaign millions undisturbed.

Other signs of Hanna eruptions are that mud volcanoes are commencing to sprout in California!

The Tri-State Grain Growers association chose Hon. E. W. Randall for its president, the association, as well as the Minnesota Agricultural society, knowing a good thing.

No stronger approval of Inspector Reishus' administration and position regarding inspectors, has appeared than in the letter of H. M. Anson of Casselton, N. D., published in the Minneapolis Journal. Mr. Anson cited numerous large shippers of grain who approve the present inspection. When there is only occasional complaint, says Mr. Anson, as now, arising from the fact that grain differs on different land, "you may be pretty sure that the inspection is pretty near right. But when two-thirds of the shippers in three states roar, you may rest assured there is a big steal on, and that was the case under the Clausen administration. Do you suppose that elevator men can accumulate vast fortunes in a few years simply from the per cent they get for handling grain! Not much. Their wealth comes from the over-run and dockage and differences in grade from what is taken in and taken out."

Mr. Anson has recalled one of the key notes of the last campaign in the pledge given the people under the slogan, "Remember the grades."

Poor Schoolmaster McCleary. His pedantic speech on the currency bill was riddled as full of holes as a Kentucky shirt in election time, especially on the worn out point that silver coinage was not wanted because in a certain period, under free coinage, few dollars were coined. The reason was that the smaller coins then coined were "full legal tender," and dollars were not wanted. Now, the subsidiary coins are not full legal tender and the dollars are wanted. Also, the fact was thrown into the schoolmaster's frontispiece that fewer "gold dollars" were coined at that time than even of silver, and so few of the little chaps, that their coinage was soon dispensed with altogether, while the coinage of the larger pieces went on as usual.

These and other facts were adroitly brought out by interruptions of the schoolmaster, and with most telling effect. Thus was exploded, and wiped out, one of the "points" that has long done duty on the gold side of the money question.

The New York Sun, which has become the advocate and intimate of the McKinley administration, has openly attacked the Republican financial bill, and openly come out for the abolition of the national bank system. The straw to break the camel's back, is the provision tacked on the bill, which creates a fund of $850,000,000, 2 per cent bonds, in order to permit the national banks to take out circulation at par value, for which they are to pay but one-half of per cent tax, thus setting the banks clear 1½ per cent on the vast sum, without turning a hand over. The government guarantees, and pays in case of failure of the banks, their outstanding notes. The Sun boldly advocates the issue of government notes direct to the people without the national bank system, and declares that the national banks have got to go! This, says The Sun, is at the risk of "Bryanism," and indeed it declares that "Bryanism" will find an issue of great power with the people, which it more than intimates will succeed, if the money power and the administration go on with this proposed surrender of the money issuing perogative to the banks by the government! Good for The Sun.

In the Fifth (Hennepin) district, the opposition to Mr. Fletcher has reached the stage that leading Republicans are openly denouncing him. In this contingency there is more and more talk of ex-Mayor P. B. Winston as the man to beat "Your Uncle Loren." Certain it is that some one will do it.

And, as to the Fourth district, there is considerable talk that Hon. Thomas R. Kane, secretary of the Democratic state central committee, is the man to redeem it. Mr. Kane's recent pro-Boer speeches have added to his former strength with all liberty lovers, and his praise is on many lips.

Daily the St. Paul reform forces are getting into shape to redeem the Saintly city in the coming municipal election. Republican mal-administration can be smelled—well, as far off as Spion Kop!

Why, in the world is the Doc Ames party, in Minneapolis, proposing to banquet on Lincoln's birthday. What single principle is left, of all that Lincoln stood for, that the Doc Ames party now represents. But the said party is wise in abandoning the exposition meeting. It couldn't fill the hall.

While the clergy, for the most part, stand supinely idle to the issues of the hour, or, what is worse, bend fawningly before those in power, or commend the sycophantic hypocrisy enthroned in the White House, how refreshing come such fervent utterances as those of Bishop James Ryan, bishop of Alton, Ills., which have usually first appeared in The Irish World.

"Vainly," says the Bishop, "has the Nestor of Ohio (Sherman) cried to his party that it has gone far from home and business. Reckless of expenditure and of the blood and burdens of the people, it must have colonies, forsooth. The party of Lincoln is dead; its heroic days are over; its great leaders stepping aside. It has set itself to reverse its own career, to reverse Lincoln, to tear out the embodiment of his work from the Constitution, to make the republic again half slave and half free, though he said that it could not so endure. * * *

"The flag of Lincoln is hauled down. The Republic is in danger."

Gradually is the light dawning, in which the people will see that the money power underlies all of the evils of which they complain; that free coinage and control of the volume of money, imperialism, trusts—whatever the issue—can only be obtained, resisted or destroyed, as the case may be, by first taking the money power by the throat and wresting control of the government from Wall and Lombard streets.

G. S. C.

BRITISH IN RETREAT

WARREN'S FORCES WITHDRAW SOUTH OF THE TUGELA.

Spion Kop Was Abandoned Owing to Lack of Water, Inability to Bring Artillery There and the Heavy Boer Fire—Boers Report British Losses in Wednesday's Fight as 1,500—Great Gloom Prevails in England—Worst Disaster in a Campaign Thus Far Disastrous.

London, Jan. 30.—Gen. Buller says that Warren's troops have retreated south of the Tugela river. The Boers say that the British lost 1,500 killed Wednesday. It is believed here that this includes the wounded. The Boers also claim that 150 of the English troops surrendered at Spion Kop.

Gen. Buller's dispatch to the war department states that Spion Kop was abandoned on account of lack of water, inability to bring artillery there and the heavy Boer fire. Gen. Buller gives no list of casualties. His whole force withdrew south of the Tugela with the evident intention of reaching Ladysmith by another route. Of the withdrawal of Warren's force, Gen. Buller says:

"Warren's force was concentrated south of the Tugela without the loss of a man or a pound of stores. The fact that the force could withdraw from actual touch—in some cases the lines were less than a thousand yards apart—with the enemy in the manner it did, is, I think, sufficient evidence of the morale of the troops, and that we were permitted to withdraw our cumberous ox and mule transport across the river, eighty-five yards broad, with twenty-foot banks and a very swift current unmolested, is, I think proof that the enemy has been taught to respect our soldiers' fighting powers."

If Boer reports are to be accepted, "the abandonment of Spion Kop was due to the inability of the British to resist the Boer attack, the Boers carrying the first trenches and taking 150 prisoners."

Deep Gloom in England.

London, Jan. 30. — The week has opened with the utmost gloom for the British public, and the reaction is all the stronger because of the high hopes that were reposed in Gen. Buller's turning movement and his reported announcement that there would be "no turning back." At the very moment when Dr. Leyds is being received as an honored guest in the highest circles on the continent, Great Britain has to suffer the worst disaster in a campaign thus far disastrous. Talk is heard about the absolute necessity of abandoning Ladysmith to its fate, while Lord Roberts reverts to the original plan of an advance over the Orange river upon Bloemfontein. To Ladysmith the disappointment must be very bitter. A dispatch from the Boer laager near the town, dated Jan. 24, describes the garrison as "very evidently preparing a desperate coup in order to effect a junction with Gen. Buller's advancing army." It may be regarded as a certainty that in the confident hope of early relief Sir George White has lately been issuing extra rations, and this fact has given rise to an aggravated idea as to the length of time the provisions would last. Even should it be decided to send Gen. Buller reinforcements and to attempt to reach Ladysmith by a movement through the still more difficult country east of Colenso it is extremely doubtful whether the garrison could hold out long enough, as such a movement would occupy at least a month.

Government Frankly Criticised.

London, Jan. 30.—All the editorials this morning breathe a spirit of calm determination. Not one will allow that any reverse could deter the country from the object it has set itself to attain, whatever the sacrifices which may be involved. Very frank criticism of the government, however, is beginning to be heard even in quarters that have hitherto refrained. The Daily Mail boldly throws all the blame upon Sir Michael Hicks-Beach, Lord Lansdowne and Lord Wolseley.

British Checked at Every Point.

London, Jan. 30. — The Times says: "The most carefully planned and executed movement of the whole campaign has entirely failed, and it can hardly be necessary to dwell upon the extreme probability that we shall learn a little sooner or a little later of a catastrophe almost without precedent in our military history, a catastrophe indeed without a parallel except in the surrender of Yorktown. We are checked at every point of the campaign."

Leyds Predicts a Long War.

Berlin, Jan. 30.—The Deutsche Tages Zeitung publishes an interview with Dr. Leyds which represents him as having said: "The war will certainly last a very long time. The Transvaal will decidedly not be the first to seek for peace, and will refuse all propositions on the basis of the status quo."

Roberts Preparing Plans.

London, Jan. 30. — The situation at other points is unchanged, but indications that Lord Roberts is preparing plans for an advance across the Orange river come in a dispatch to the Daily Chronicle from Sterkstroom, dated Jan. 25, which says that "Thebets, an important position near Steinsburg, on the Storms-Rosmead line, is now occupied by the British, who are repairing the railway and bridges." The correspondent says this will facilitate a junction between Gen. Gatacre and Gen. Hily-Kenny.

Many Strikers in Germany.

Washington, Jan. 30. — During the first nine months of last year 78,300 persons in the German empire engaged in strikes; the majority of them during the summer months. Detailed statements of these strikes are furnished in a report to the state department by Consul Worman at Munich.

Town Almost Wiped Out.

Pana, Ill., Jan. 30. — A fire almost totally destroyed the town of Ramsey, several miles north of this city. Loss, $25,000; insurance, $10,000.

KILLED BY POLICE.

Running Fight With Robbers at Quincy, Ill.

Quincy, Ill., Jan. 30.—Quincy police officers last night killed two expert safe blowers, supposed to be from Chicago, and wounded another badly. The tragedy included a running fight through the streets, through which the men were pursued. The men are believed to have operated recently in Freeport, Galesburg and other Illinois towns, making a specialty of cracking safes in building and loan associations.

On Jan. 6 the safe of the Adams County Building and Loan association was blown open at the noon hour and cash and securities amounting to $20,000 taken. Saturday three men came to the Moecker's hotel and registered from Kansas City. The proprietor recognized their hand writing as being the same as that of the men who came here Jan. 6 and who afterward were suspected as crooks. He warned the police, and when one went out he was shadowed by Detective George Koch. The stranger acted strangely and the officer finally appeared, showed his star and asked the man to go to the station and explain himself. The man drew a pistol and pointed it at Koch's heart, but as he did so Koch drew his own and fired four shots. The man fell dead at the fourth. This happened at 9 o'clock on Saturday night. The baggage of the suspected men at the hotel was examined and found to contain burglars' tools and nitro-glycerine. When the other two men returned to the hotel at 2 o'clock Sunday morning they learned of the death of their comrade and found the hotel surrounded by officers. Then there was a running fight through the hotel corridors. One rushed into the street, followed by Policeman George Ahern. He turned to fire and as he did so he was shot by the officer, dying in a few minutes. The third man was struck by Officer Charles Horst and sank to the floor with a broken hip. He was captured but refused to give any information. The men were all well dressed, wore diamonds and other jewelry and had plenty of money. Skeleton keys were found on all of them. When the two men came here on Jan. 5 they registered as Burt and Crowley. Saturday Burt was recognized as C. H. Rogers. The wounded man refuses to give his name. The men are believed to be three of the best workers in the country.

AMNESTY TO REBELS.

Gen. Otis May Give Filipinos Time to Surrender.

Washington, Jan. 30.—Amnesty will be granted to the Filipinos who are willing to lay down their arms when Gen. Otis decides the situation in the Philippines will justify such action. When this time arrives Gen. Otis will be authorized by President McKinley to issue a proclamation granting amnesty to all inhabitants of the archipelago who will lay down their arms and return peacefully to their homes within a reasonable time. That time will be thirty or sixty days, and notice will also be given the insurrectionists who do not avail themselves of the privilege offered by the president will be regarded as outlaws and treated as such whenever they are found.

Some time ago it was determined by the administration to wage a relentless war upon the the Filipinos and all who resisted the authority of the United States in the Philippines. This is done for the purpose of impressing upon the rebels that the government proposed to be stern with them and make them feel the heavy hand of war.

Since that time Gen. Otis has reported he has practically broken the backbone of the insurrection and has practically driven the organized army of Aguinaldo from the field. With a few more aggressive operations similar to those of the last few weeks in Southern Luzon the insurgent army will have lost all semblance of organization and have dwindled into small bands of unorganized men, who will endeavor to keep beyond the reach of the military authorities and support themselves by predatory raids on small and unprotected communities.

The Filipino government has long since ceased to exist, and while here and there the insurgents show some signs of life, they are practically beaten and discouraged. The good intentions of this government in being lenient with the Filipinos has been mistaken for cowardice, and the promise of amnesty which will soon be offered will be coupled with threats of punishment to those who refuse to lay down their arms.

MINISTERS FOR THE JURORS.

Commissioners of South Carolina Wish to Have the Best Men Serve.

Columbia, S. C., Jan. 30.—The names of three doctors of divinity appeared in the panel of jurors drawn for the approaching session of court in Greenville. The jury commissioners say the ministers and editors have had a good deal to say about the best men shirking jury duty, so this fall all of their names have got into the box. While they are exempt by law, the commissioners say they have the right to serve as a personal privilege. The ministers have not yet decided what course to take.

Carlist Arsenal Unearthed.

Madrid, Jan. 30.—The gendarmes unearthed a Carlist arsenal in a house in Palencia, capital of the province of that name, and seized 100,000 cartridges and a large quantity of arms. Six Carlists who are implicated fled across the frontier.

Route of the Nationalists.

Paris, Jan. 30.—The election of ninety-nine senators yesterday resulted in a practical rout for the Nationalists, only three of their thirty candidates being elected.

Big Asphalt Deposit.

City of Mexico, Jan. 30.—What is believed to be the best asphalt deposit in Mexico is about to be developed. It is situated near Tampico and is controlled by Mexicans, who have refused offers from American contractors.

Torpedo Station Shuts Down.

Newport, R. I., Jan. 30.—All the mechanical departments at the United States torpedo station were shut down Saturday afternoon for an indefinite period from lack of coal. Forty machinists are affected.

WARREN FALLS BACK

SPION KOP ABANDONED DURING THE NIGHT.

Brief Message From Gen. Buller Gives No Further Information—Seven Days of Fighting Leaves the Boer Positions Intact and Gen. Buller's Army 706 Weaker—England Possessed of a Depressing Sense of Failure—Impression That Worse News Is to Come.

London, Jan. 28.—The war office has just posted the following dispatch from Gen. Buller, dated at Spearman's Camp, Jan. 25, noon:

"Gen. Warren's garrison, I am sorry to say, I find this morning, had in the night abandoned Spionkop."

-o-

London, Jan. 28—Seven days of fighting have left the main Boer positions intact and Gen. Buller's army 706 weaker, according to the official casualty lists, which seemingly do not include the Spionkop losses, as those last forwarded do not mention Gen. Woodgate's wounding.

England is possessed by a depressing sense of failure, although a word in criticism of her generals and soldiers is not uttered. Not much effort is made to place a happy construction upon Gen. Buller's bare eighteen words telling of the retirement from Spionkop, and there is an uneasy impression that worse news is yet to come. At the military clubs the statement passed from one member to another that the war office had received an unpleasant supplementary dispatch from Gen. Buller which was being held up for twelve hours. Spencer Wilkinson, in the Post, writes as follows of the Spionkop loss:

"This is a serious matter and an attempt will not here be made to minimize it, for no greater wrong can be done to our people at home than to mislead them about the significance of the events of the war. The right way is to tell the truth as far as we know it. But facts from the neighborhood of the Tugela are scantier than ever. The censorship now is simply prohibitive and with the cables. The break on the east coast lines has been repaired, but the cable between San Thome and Loanda, on the west coast is now interrupted. 'More troops' is the one suggestion in the way to break the Boer resistance."

Something Is Wrong

Mr. Wilkinson regrets that Gen. Buller has not 20,000 more men, declaring if they would not make victory certain his enterprise without them is hopeless.

The Spectator, dealing with the necessity of large additional military preparations, says: "It may be yet that we have another cycle of disasters in front of us."

The transport Asaye arrived at Cape Town last Friday with 2,175 officers and men. The first portion of the Seventh division is afloat. Hence, with the 10,000 men of this division and about 9,000 others now at sea, it lies in the power of Lord Roberts to reinforce Gen. Buller heavily. This course is advised by several military writers. Although English nerves are severely tried, her nerve is absolutely unshaken and probably nothing that can happen in South Africa will change in the slightest degree her intentions. She will continue to receive bad news, if, of course, it comes, with dignity, and will maintain her determination to win at last.

Boer Short on Ammunition.

Durban, Jan. 28.—One hundred and sixty Boers captured during Gen. Buller's recent operations, have arrived here. A Free Stater, who is among the recent arrivals, says President Steyn has been removing his furniture to Pretoria, where several of his officials have taken houses. It is stated that no big guns are now left in the Pretoria forts, that the Boers have expended their stock of good cartridges and are now using cartridges formerly condemned by Col. Joubert. They are said to be manufacturing 12,000 cartridges and 200 shells daily at the dynamite factory.

Germans Call It a British Defeat.

Berlin, Jan. 28. — The latest news from South Africa is interpreted as a signal defeat for the British. The Deutsche Tagesblatt Zeitung calls the British position there a "most serious trap." The last outgoing German mails to the Transvaal are now being returned from Cape Town without any explanations. The German press comments upon the fact with considerable heat.

PARIS STRIKE.

Carpenters on the Exposition Buildings Are Demanding Increased Pay.

Paris, Jan. 28.—A great strike of carpenters employed on the exposition buildings, involving 5,000 men, has been inaugurated. The strikers demand an increase of wages to 1 franc per hour. All the work yards are now guarded by strong forces of police. The bridges are also guarded; but there is no danger unless other workmen join in a sympathetic movement, which does not seem probable. Small groups of carpenters discuss the situation here and there, but there has been no disturbances. The strike is not considered serious by the officials, who believe it will be settled in two or three days.

Plague Breaks Out.

Buenos Ayres, Jan. 28—Official notice has been received of the appearance of bubonic plague at Riozara, on the west bank of the Para, about fifty-three miles by water northwest of here. The government has issued a decree of absolute isolation.

Three Miners Killed.

Hurley, Wis., Jan. 28. — At the Superior mine, located west of Hurley, the timber gave way on the eighth level and killed three men and injured two others, one of whom may die.

St. Hilaire Spectator.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

An honestly taxed nation is a wisely governed nation.

The man with a corkclimb is more of a stopper than a goer.

China seems to have remarkably little to do with the open door.

Style on the street sometimes means a meager bill of fare at home.

Every man imagines himself honest until his sins have found him out.

It is but natural that a breach of promise case should be heard in a court house.

Muncie, Ind., has managed to round up eighteen boy thieves. Such is life in a great city.

If marriage is sometimes a failure it is probably because so many people marry without experience.

Major Nolan has captured Naic. It was felt all along that some one would get the worst of it in that quarter.

When the cruel war is over the veterans will have a mighty different time of it in trying to "vote the way they shot."

Says a rural editor in speaking of an explosion: "One man was killed and another had his head severed from his body."

Napoleon said that the Lord is always on the side of the heaviest artillery, but the Boers seem to be doing very well.

A great nation is made up of great individuals. The man who is the architect of his own character builds for the republic.

The work of saving the country will soon be in progress again; but who is going to save the fellows that are responsible for the job?

It must have been a curious complication of ancestral circumstances that could produce that New Jersey judge who values a child's life at $1.

The fact that in two instances man has found it necessary to disguise himself in woman's clothes in order to swindle successfully is a high tribute to woman's general reputation for honesty and conscientiousness.

The raising of a fund to preserve the house in Philadelphia in which the first American flag was made and in the erection of a monument over the grave of Betsy Ross, the maker, has been successfully carried out.

Boston has an Authors' club, every member of which "must have written something worthy to be called literature." With the club itself sitting in judgment, the modesty of the organization is something significant.

The situation in Canada in regard to the scarcity of white paper is becoming serious. All Canadian mill owners and large dealers have sent out circulars withdrawing prices for the present and for the first time in years orders are being rejected or half filled. American manufacturers have been vainly seeking shipments of wood pulp from Canadian millers. English dealers also have made inquiries in Canada.

Owing to the overcrowding of the western cattle ranges Secretary of Agriculture Wilson will, it is said, recommend that congress allow the western states to lease these public grazing lands, and that the rentals derived be applied to irrigating and educational improvements within the states. This will warrant each renter in fencing and improving his holding, sinking wells and resting his grass lands, which will result in a greater grazing capacity for the land.

It is estimated that there are now 7,000,000,000 feet of white pine still standing within the borders of Minnesota. It is stated further that this pine is melting away at the rate of 1,500,000,000 feet every year, and that in another five years, if the present rate of consumption continues, an end will have been reached to the lumber business of the state. This, however, is a prospect that causes no particular alarm among business men, for, according to Minneapolis reports, they are confident that with the passing of the lumberman there will be a great addition to the agricultural population, and that the added trade which will naturally come as the result of the development of the rich farming lands of the northern part of the state will more than compensate them for any loss they may sustain by the closing down of the saw mills.

A New York lawyer, delivering an address before a prominent club of Manhattan, deliberately asserted that the aldermen of New York were thieves and boodlers. This declaration will be a severe shock to the confiding thousands who have always maintained that all aldermen, those of Chicago and New York included, were paragons of Spartan virtue and rigid honesty.

Judge, the comic publication, has trained its guns on John Bull, and is out for the Boers. Mr. Bull had now better retire from the field at once.

The editor of the Cubano says the fine of $5 imposed upon him by Gen. Ludlow for making a false statement in his paper "has passed the bounds of what is reasonable, just and civilized." Probably a little thing like that wouldn't have cost more than a dollar under Spanish regime.

Two men were killed and four wounded over a game of cards in a Kentucky "blind tiger." That is the result of cultivating the ferocious striped beast instead of the more gentle and domesticated blind pig.

SOMEONE BLUNDERED

FAMOUS CHARGE OF LIGHT BRIGADE.

Lord Tennyson Immortalized It by a Stirring Poem—The Britons Are Prone to Blunder but Always with a Bravery that Is Even Admirable to Foes.

It would appear that a considerable portion of the history of active warfare is a record of blunders, says the Kansas City Star. There was a savage little battle down in northern Arkansas, in the days of the civil war, and after it was over the story spread among the union soldiers that one of their commanders had said of the day's fighting: "We blundered in and we blundered out." Whoever will read the late Lord Tennyson's spirited poem on the "Charge of the Light Brigade" will be struck by the lines:

> "Forward the Light Brigade,
> Was there a man dismayed?
> No! Tho' the soldier knew
> Some one had blundered."

The charge of the light brigade was a palpable blunder, and presumably the common soldiers who were sent to their death knew at the time it was a mistake. That was why the verse was written:

> "Theirs not to make reply,
> Theirs not to reason why,
> Theirs but to do and die,
> Into the valley of death
> Rode the six hundred."

Exactly who blundered is not known, or has been covered up. By some it is supposed that Capt. Nolan was trying to explain the blunder when he rode across the front of the brigade shouting something to Lord Cardigan, to which that gallant officer paid no attention, but Nolan was killed and the brigade rode ahead in the further execution of its fateful blunder.

History repeats itself. Forty-four years after the Balaklava blunder England is again at war for the first time with a civilized people and there are more blunders. Gen. White and Gen. Gatacre and Gen. Lord Methuen and Gen. Buller have all made blunders of the same kind—the rushing of their men against an unseen, unknown enemy, with a severe loss in killed, wounded and captured. But there has not been another poem in glorification of blundering, and there has not been another blunder exactly like the charge of the light brigade. The unfortunate British detachments which have been fed, as it were, to the enemy in South Africa have been surprised. They have marched into the muzzles of the Boers' rifles and field guns without knowing where they were going. The great and glorious feature of the Balaklava incident, as sung by the poet, was that everybody knew from the first that the brigade was going to useless destruction and nobody was disappointed. In South Africa this foreknowledge seems to have been lacking. Hence, the blunder has been less glorious and the need of poetry has been wanting.

It is not a little singular that an army should retain the same characteristics for centuries. Of one of the old battles in the low countries it was written: "The English officers fought with their usual ignorance of war and contempt of death." The ignorance of war is of the sort that produces blunders, and the ignorance keeps up and the blunders go on. There seems to be no readiness, no capacity to change or seize the situation. A trap being set by the enemy, the brave brigade rushes into it, and the commander records with pride that the few who got away marched off with ranks dressed and at the regulation step. To blunder with pertinacity and perfect courage seems to be the historic tradition of the British army.

Queer Wedding Music.

The following incident happened in a fashionable English provincial church a week or so ago, and was, apparently, not noticed by anybody in the congregation. The music for the occasion was furnished by a relative of the bride, a somewhat nervous gentleman, shy of manner and near of sight. The bridal procession entered to the gladsome melody of one of the two or three wedding marches, without which a fashionable wedding is hardly recognized as legal. When they had reached the channel rail, the organist rose to watch the ceremony. His eyeglasses fell from his nose, and his nervous feet trod upon them. Of course they were broken. When the ceremony was ended, the organist—Of a sudden he realized that he could not see his music well enough to play the bridal recessional he had intended. A cold perspiration bedewed his brow. There was no time to be lost. He could play but two marches from memory. One of them, the musician thought, was quite out of harmony with the sacredness of the building, so he chose the other, and the beaming bridegroom and his bride swept down the aisle to the most familiar movement of Chopin's Funeral March.—Stray Stories.

The Thing He Liked.

From Judge.—My western friend, the colonel, having seen the illuminated portion of New York, and done full homage to the liquid delights of Broadway, proposed to see Central Park. After an unqualified approval of McGowan's pass tavern and the casino he wandered about, gazing at the collection of effigies, which mar the landscape and listening in a bored fashion to my halting explanations; but when we hove in sight of the memorial to a great South American liberator his eyes visibly brightened and he viewed the rampant group with wide-opened mouth. "And that," said I, "is the statue of Bolivar the Venezuelan." "So?" he replied. "Stampin' fine horse, that. Who in thunder's the jockey?"

Haven of Refuge.

The Bore—"Do you know how many years it would take to reach the nearest fixed star if you traveled at the rate of sixty miles an hour?" Victim—"No, I do not, but I should be willing to take the trip if I were sure that there were no statistical fiends there."—New York Journal.

HER SUCCESS.

She Started a Shopping Service for Out-of-Town Buyers.

A young woman in a southern city, some years ago, placed a modest little advertisement in the paper, to the effect that she would purchase on commission for out-of-town buyers. She paid for keeping her advertisement in the paper by writing short articles on topics with which she was familiar, such as the best way to do up a white muslin dress; the making of jelly, etc. A few small orders began to come in. Her commission was small, and in order to make it, to lay the money to the best advantage, and to satisfy her customers, she resorted to various expedients. If a hat was included in the order, instead of buying it ready trimmed, she would buy the hat and the trimming, thus getting a much better quality for the money, and trim it herself, charging nothing for her work. This, however, was only necessary with a very limited amount of money and a very long list. She received orders for farming tools, men's clothing and various things she would naturally know nothing about. She filled them all by calling on her brother-in-law for advice. Soon her name began to be known for the painstaking and thoroughly satisfactory way in which she filled her orders. All who had tried her recommended her to their friends. From the first she made enough to support herself, and as business improved she began to extend help to her friends. A young cousin, with a taste for dressmaking, was thoroughly taught and was given all the orders for dressmaking. Business continued to improve; another cousin was installed as bookkeeper, and a third as errand girl and general helper. Now at the end of about twenty years the young woman who started so modestly finds herself in middle life at the head of a large household, whom she has placed in comfort, and carrying on an excellent business, while the originator and head does little more than dispense the money and take her ease.—Albany Argus.

DAWSON CITY'S PROGRESS.

Conditions of Life Getting Easier in the Great Gold Camp.

Dawson City is getting to have many of the earmarks of civilization. It is connected now with the outside world by telegraph; it is making its own brick; it is preparing to have its own schools; it has stood up and been counted; it is getting fresh beef, mutton and pork, and everybody seems to be happy. Vice-Consul Morrison reports that the Canadian government telegraph line, from Bennett to Dawson, 600 miles, with a branch to Atlin from Bennett of 75 miles, is completed to Dawson, at a reported cost of less than $130,000. Connection is made at Bennett with the line of the White Pass railroad to Skaguay, 40 miles, messages being forwarded from Skaguay by first steamer to Vancouver, thence by Canadian Pacific wire to destination. Rates as now established for the United States range from $4.35 to $4.75 for ten words, and from 23 to 27 cents for each additional word. No arrangements have yet been made for the transfer of money by wire. The population of Dawson is set down as 4,445 (3,659 male and 786 female), and 163 children under 14 years of age. Of the inhabitants of Dawson, 3,205 are from the United States, 645 from Canada and 200 from England, the remainder scattering. It is estimated that 2,000 people left for Cape Nome district from August 26 to September 26. The question of food supplies no longer agitates the community. In addition to ample stocks of canned goods, there is an abundance of fresh beef, mutton and pork, and plenty of fresh vegetables. There are also in the market wild swan, geese, ducks, ptarmigan, grouse, Arctic hare, squirrels, beaver, bear, moose and caribou. Boots, shoes and clothing are much lower in price than last year.

COST OF THE ARCH.

Points of Construction Which Make $1,000,000 a Conservative Figure.

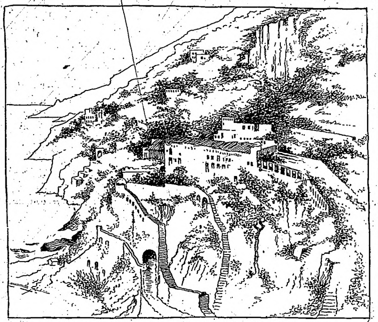
The National Sculpture society has been giving the citizens' committee in New York, which has in charge the plan to recreate the "Dewey arch" in marble and bronze, as a naval arch of triumph, some reasons why a minimum estimate of $1,000,000 is fixed as the cost of the work, says the Buffalo Commercial. The society, through its secretary, calls attention to the fact that the mass and importance of the sculpture involved exceeds that on any similar monument of modern times. There are almost eighty statues or figures of colossal scale, the greater number of which at least are double life size, and many of them still larger, besides the historical portrait medallions and other sculpture enrichment—all in addition to the architectural details. "The heroic scale of architecture; the size of the columns and capitals, of each of which there are forty; the dimensions of the monoliths necessary for bases and pier groups; the massive foundations required, all involve expense, for the calculation of which there is no precedent in any similar monument." It is believed that a further inquiry will show, when all the details are taken into consideration, that the estimate of $1,000,000 is fair, though conservative. This is the largest sum ever called for by public subscription for such a purpose. But the committee is by no means dismayed. On the other hand, it is confident of success.

Curious Effects of the Air.

Prof. H. A. Hazen records that on one occasion he walked down to the edge of Lake Michigan in the face of a strong wind. Although he was in perfect physical condition, within five minutes he had every symptom of a very hard cold. This severe influenza continued until, on walking away from the lake, it disappeared as by magic when he had gone less than 500 feet. He then learned that hundreds of residents had been compelled to move back from the shore to escape influenza. He ascribed the effect to the abundance of ozone in the air at the edge of the lake. He has accumulated many instances of persons of nervous temperament who cannot sleep during the passage of high pressure areas in the atmosphere. The cause in this case is obscure.

RECENT DISASTER AT AMALFI.

The Uncertainties of Life in Volcanic Italy.



The uncertainties of life in the volcanic districts of Italy are again forcibly called to mind by the Amalfi disaster, one of the most remarkable that have occurred in the year just closed. Part of a great rock upon which stood the Capuchin hotel and the Hotel Santa Caterina slid bodily into the sea on the afternoon of Dec. 22, carrying the hotel and other buildings. The hotel is the white building in the center of the above picture. Thirteen lives are known to have been lost, but had it not been for warnings caused by preliminary earth tremors, the destruction would have been much greater. Owing to the tremendous noise and the great crack in the surface of the earth, which suddenly yawned, it was at first feared that many more had perished. Some persons who were in the vicinity are still unaccounted for, and their names may be added to the list of dead. Amalfi is twenty miles southeast of Naples and but a few miles from the site of ancient Pompeii, with its dreaded neighbor, Vesuvius. Residents of the town are taught from childhood to fear landslides and volcanic eruptions. At the first sign of danger most of them temporarily abandon their homes, but, as is usual in such cases, there are some who do not take precautions. This was illustrated forcibly at Amalfi. Among the killed was Miss Weir, a daughter of James Galloway Weir, a member of the British house of commons. She was with her governess. They had escaped, but returned for their valuables, and were killed together. One of the buildings that was damaged was a venerable monastery founded in 1212 A. D. The building, which has been used for a naval school and other purposes in the course of its existence, has fine cloisters and a charming veranda. Amalfi now has about 10,000 inhabitants. In the days of its prosperity it rivaled Genoa as a seaport and had 50,000 population, but its importance has long been on the decline. It is surrounded by imposing mountains and picturesque rocks.

HANDY WITH THE GLOVES.

Years Ago Both Miles and Weston Were Famous as Clever Boxers.

Think of the commanding general of the army and the commissary-general of subsistence as the best boxers in the army. Gen. Miles has used the gloves with great effect upon many of his fellow-officers, but he met his match in Gen. Weston, and more than his match in Brig.-Gen. Leonard A. Wood, now commanding the department of Santiago. The fight with Gen. Weston was declared a draw, while in the "scrap" with Gen. Wood, Gen. Miles got a crack on the jaw which caused him to be counted out. Gen. Miles and Gen. Weston have always prided themselves upon their athletic accomplishments. Though both had seen hard service in the civil war, and one of them had been wounded more than once in the Wilderness, and the other had been through several arduous Indian campaigns on the frontier, they were at the time of the fight, which is historic in the annals of the army, active and quick, in fact, "fit" for the work cut out for them. Both were known as the crack boxers of the army. Which was the better of the two was the question. One bright, frosty morning, after a deal of palavering at the Officers' club, Gen. Miles and Capt. Weston, accompanied by six bottle-holders, their seconds, two timekeepers, officers and the chaplain, who volunteered to act as referee, wended their way to a barranca, a mile or two from the post, and stripped for action. No enlisted man was permitted to be present. It was remarked by several of the onlookers that "Nelson was trained a bit too fine," but "John stripped beautifully." After the chaplain had instructed the principals in the center of the ring they were gloved and ordered to their corners. As there was no gong, it was agreed that the referee should clap his hands and cry "Quit!" at the end of every three minutes; then the principals were to retire each to his corner for refreshment and rest. "Gentlemen, let her go," said the referee; "but gently, gentlemen—do not, I beg of you, excite yourselves. Be calm, gentlemen." The round ended, the chaplain clapped his hands, shouted "Quit!" and the principals retired each to his corner. Again the principals advanced to the center of the ring, and after a rare exhibition of sparring, Miles made a tremendous effort and uppercut, but the blow missed Weston, who wheeled around to deliver a pivot blow, which Miles dodged, but the impetus was such that Weston kept spinning like a top until the chaplain again clapped his hands and shouted "Quit!" Weston went to his corner groggy. After five more rounds the chaplain, after long consideration, and much argument with the witnesses, solemnly announced that it was a draw and declared all bets off. This was satisfactory, but it was found that the principals were completely exhausted by their efforts—so much so, indeed, that it was necessary to send to the post for a water wagon to convey them to the hospital, where they remained under the surgeon's treatment for three weeks.—New York Herald.

AS WISE AS BEAUTIFUL.

Paderewski Sociable Enough with His Friends—Won't Be Interviewed.

Paderewski is as wise as he is beautiful. The Pole with the auburn hair dislikes to be interviewed, and, after briefly expressing the compliments of the season on his arrival, he escaped to the seclusion of his hotel, says the New York Press. Among his friends the pianist is sociable enough, being possessed of a pretty wit and a lively sense of humor, but to the general public he is a melancholy, absorbed, romantic personality, which is an interesting pose, and advantageous. The domestic life of great men, however decorous it may be, is not revealed to their admirers without imperiling their fame. The author of "Vanity Fair" once met at a dinner one of his most enthusiastic worshipers. Unconscious of the ecstasy with which she gazed at him, he asked for a second helping of potatoes. Her idol was dethroned by his appetite, and crying, with a shudder, "Oh, Mr. Thackeray!" she left the table in dismay at the realization that her doll was stuffed with sawdust. Paderewski must eat, and that his appetite is Thackerayian may be judged from the fact that he has gained almost 100 pounds since he left us; but he eats in private and thus maintains the sentimental delusion of his devotees. In his habit as he lives the pianist is an every-day young man who would like to have his hair cut and enjoy life like his neighbors. But secrecy, when it can be preserved, is the badge of all the tribe of artists, and, by not knowing its favorites, the public exalts them. Jean de Reszke refused all social invitations while he was singing in our opera, though among his familiars he was full of fun. Augustin Daly insisted on drawing a veil of mystery around Ada Rehan, who was never allowed to be interviewed by newspaper men or to accept social invitations save from her intimates. The same system of seclusion was practiced with remarkable success by Eleonora Duse, and J. M. Hill established the fame of Margaret Mather by keeping her sedulously hidden except when she was on the stage.

The Great Trek.

At the outbreak of war between France and England in 1803, Cape Colony belonged to the Netherlands, says Alleyne Ireland in the current Atlantic. In 1806 Louis Napoleon was made King of the Netherlands, and in the same year England attacked the Cape as it was then a French possession. The colony capitulated on January 10, 1806. The British occupation was made permanent by a convention, signed in 1814, between Great Britain and the Netherlands, by the terms of which England paid $30,000,000 for the cession of the Cape Colony and of the Dutch colonies of Demorara, Berbice and Essequibo, which now form the colony of British Guiana. It was hoped that the Dutch and the English in the Cape Colony would live together in friendly intercourse, and that eventually, by intermarriage a fusion of the two races would be effected. This hope was doomed to disappointment, for an antagonism gradually developed between the old and the new colonists which led to the establishment of two republics beyond the border of the colony. The first step toward the formation of these republics was the emigration, during 1836 and 1837, of about eight thousand Dutch farmers from the Cape Colony, a movement which is generally referred to as the Great Trek. These men went out of the colony and established themselves in the vast hinterland.

OTHER PEOPLE'S PREJUDICES.

Little Things That Should Be Regarded in Exportations.

A gentleman who has traveled much and has a very large interest in American export trade said, in conversation the other day, that the principal drawback to a wider extension of American commerce in certain parts of the world is that manufacturers in the United States do not sufficiently study the wants, the customs and the tastes of their prospective customers. "For example," he said, "a certain American firm sent some electrical goods, which were decorated in green, to Japan. They did not sell. No Japanese would bring such a thing into his house; it would mean an invitation to the evil deities. Green is an evil color in Japan. What a Japanese wants is red things. Upon this simple matter of color rested the failure of that manufacturer to succeed in export trade." A German employer of labor said: "I like American machines so far as their performance of their work is concerned, but they demoralize my men. They come here in sober colors of paint, and with no bright parts. The men who tend the machines do not have any brass to keep clean or any surfaces to rub, and they get lazy. The German workman needs to be kept busy with things of this sort." Here, now, are some practical instances of what the American manufacturers must learn before he can attain the widest success in the new field of the foreign trade. Do not send to Germany catalogues in the English language, or to Japan things decorated in green, or to the Isthmus of Panama anything with blue spots on it. It looks as if we need in this country a commercial kindergarten in which such information as the above may be taught for those of a curious and inquiring mind for their everlasting benefit and profit.—Electrical Review.

An Apt Comparison.

A 4-year-old Prospect street boy has a strong talent along the line of comparisons. He is a bright little fellow and learns rapidly. His parents, however, are not at all anxious to push him forward, and have made no effort to teach him the names of the letters of the alphabet, something in which he is much interested.

The other day he brought a book to his father and pointed to a capital "B."

"I know what letter that is," he said.

"Well, what is it?"

The little fellow looked at it sharply, tracing its shape with a chubby forefinger.

"I guess it's the letter wiz two tummies."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Parlor Pets.

Perhaps the most adventurous addition to the house menagerie in London is that of a hive of bees, which live in a sitting room and fly out to gather honey in Hyde Park among the flowers and the blossoms of the London lime trees. The bees are reported to be as industrious and exemplary as bees should be and not to be demoralized by such intimate association with less industrious human buildings. The practical difficulty in the way of keeping bees in the house arises when the cold weather comes in, because they are tempted to carry on "work" in the house, when it is too chilly for them to be abroad, and when bees are anxious to be busy with no work to hand their temper is always uncertain.—Spectator.

Of Course.

Mack O'Rell—There is some place where they manufacture artificial eggs. What name would you give an establishment of that kind? Luke Warme—Why, an egg plant, of course.—Toledo Blade.

OUR BUDGET OF FUN.

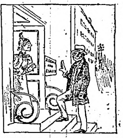
SOME GOOD JOKES, ORIGINAL AND SELECTED.

A Variety of Quips, Gibes and Ironies, to Cause a Smile — Flotsam and Jetsam from the Tide of Humor—Witty Sayings.

The Bashful Man.

I care not whether she be short or tall,
Lithe, plump, blonde or brunette,
If only she will love me, that is all
I'll ask, dear girls—and yet
With these concessions promised in advance,
And this, that I'll be good,
All womankind still looks at me askance
In my lone bachelorhood.
I wonder why? I'd love to ask, but O!
My courage oozes out;
My heart beats fast, I squirm and puff and blow,
When nice girls are about.
My feet are pious, so I cannot waltz;
I'm not a man for style;
I try to talk, my voice sounds harsh and false;
I suffer much from bile.
It really makes me sad. I tire of life—
I was not born to roam—
I'd give most all I've got to have a wife,
A living place—a home.
But, hang it all! my nerve is out of joint,
My head is in a whirl;
Somehow I cannot work 'round to the point
Of popping to a girl.
—Philadelphia North American.

An Eye to Business.



Collector—I can't keep coming here every day after this bill.

Landlady—I'll rent you a room for ten dollars a week.

The Run-Off.

"Once," said the dreamy tragedian, "I toured the great state of Illinois in less than a week."

"Who was your backer?" inquired the press agent.

"Beg pardon?"

"I say who backed you on this tour?"

"I really do not grasp your meaning."

"Who was behind you on this meteoric tour?"

"Oh! The sheriff."—Chicago News.

Impressed on His Memory.

"You don't know wot you're talkin' about," said Tuffold Knutt, as the two wayfarers came to the forks of the road. "Yere's where we turn to the left."

"How do you know so blame much about it?" sulkily inquired Goodman Gonrong.

"I'd ort to know," rejoined Tuffold Knutt. "I was rode on a rail all over this neighborhood wunst about fifteen years ago."—Chicago Tribune.

Both Satisfied.

"Papa, if you will not buy me that diamond ring I will run away with the coachman."

"My dearest child, let me embrace you."

"I am to get the ring, then?"

"Heaven forbid. You get the coachman. I have owed him his wages for eight months."—New York World.

Adding Fuel to the Flames.

"Sir," said the irate individual with a wicked eye, as he entered the editorial sanctum of a rural weekly, "I am told you called me a loafer in your last issue."

"You have been misinformed," replied the editor, calmly. "We print only the very latest news."—Chicago News.

His Wondrous Faith.

Hix.—Weeks seems to have a lot of faith in homeopathy, doesn't he?

Dix—Never saw anything to equal it. Why last summer when he had an attack of hay fever he married a grass widow.—Chicago News.

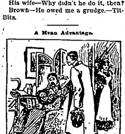
How He Got Even.

Brown—Robinson claims that he could have cut me out and married you himself if he had wanted to.

His wife—Why didn't he do it, then?

Brown—He owed me a grudge.—Tit-Bits.

A Mean Advantage.



Very voluble man (to invalid ditto)—Ah, dear boy! I heard you had quite lost your voice, so I just took the opportunity of looking in to have a chat.—Punch.

A Man of Breeding.

She—"You are the most exasperating man on earth. Here I scold you for half an hour, and you won't answer. Why don't you talk?"

He—"I never use strong language in the presence of a lady."—Indianapolis Press.

His Status.

"Dorothy," said the mistress of the establishment, happening in just as the gardener went out, "who is that man?"

"Only a hoe-beau, ma'am," replied the kitchen maid, blushing rosily.—Chicago Tribune.

FOR WOMEN AND HOME

ITEMS OF INTEREST FOR MAIDS AND MATRONS.

Stylish Street Outfit — Dainty White Flannel Shirt Waist—The Dainty Use of Perfume That Becomes an Exceeding Charm of Woman.

The Old-Fashioned Girl.

She's only an "old-fashioned girl," she says,
(Is it enough to disgrace?)
An "old-fashioned girl" with womanly ways,
And a winsome and womanly face;
A girl who is innocent, modest and sweet,
Who is sensible, honest and true—
The kind that will surely be obsolete
In another short year or two.
She isn't ambitious for questionable fame,
She doesn't ape man in her dress,
She doesn't read books that have a bad name,
Nor herald her "views" in the press;
She doesn't use slang nor smoke cigarettes,
Nor loudly expound "Woman's Rights."
She shuns all the fads of the "fashionable sets,"
And "home" is her chief of delights.
She's only an "old-fashioned girl," you see,
And not in the least "up-to-date,"
But she is the kind of a girl for me,
And the kind that I want for a mate.
I know it's very "old-fashioned" to say
Your wife is a "saint from above"—
But I own I am fond of her "old-fashioned" way,
And proud of her "old-fashioned" love!
—Arthur Grissom in St. Louis Republic.

The Dainty Use of Perfume.

I saw such a clever idea carried out in a home I visited yesterday that I want it to become general, says a writer in the Philadelphia Times. No girl could expect an exclusive right to it, even though she copyrighted it, for it is one of those things that are bound to be copied right and left just as soon as their existence is known. In a house with generous closets—blessed belongings—one of the most ample was placed at the disposal of a young woman, who is known among her friends as "Miss Daintiness." She always looks as if she had made a fresh toilet; she never gets mussed on long journeys or in crowds. She says that there is no magic in that, because it is simply due to the manner in which she puts herself together and ordinary care. She never trusts to luck, never pins faith to weakened threads and shaky buttons, never depends upon common pins to do duty where safety pins are none too strong. And she places plenty of hairpins where they will do good service for her hair. When once arranged she takes the common precautions against personal misfortunes. However that may be, she is as fresh as a new pin all through the 24 hours. She is a sensible young woman, inasmuch as she clings to violet scent, and every article in her possession is touched with the delicious fragrance. One day she conceived the idea of lining her closets with white cloth to protect her gowns from contact with the walls, and then she said to herself, "Why not hang bags of sachet powder mixed with orris root back of the white linings?" which were suspended by small rings from a series of little hooks. That was quickly done and the sweet odor crept all through the folds of the clothing hung there. When this had been achieved she turned her attention to the drawers of the dressing case and the scent became a part of the room. I know women who carry their perfume in tiny little bags, slipped under the hat lining, into the palm of the gloves, under a fall of lace, and wherever else they can be concealed. I know another woman who uses a rare French perfume and puts it only upon the palm of her hands, as did Beau Brummel, rubbing it softly into the skin and taking care to keep it away from her clothing. It is simply a fastidious taste of hers. Another woman prefers to place a drop of scent just back of her ear or over the eyebrows or even on her hair, and all are fads. It really matters nothing, so long as the scent is perceptible, and no more—it is better to search for an elusive fragrance than have it literally forced into one's nostrils.

Carrying Money.

Many women, when traveling, carry their surplus money in an envelope pinned inside the dress, but some one has now invented for the purpose a pretty case made of a bit of linen, eight inches long and 3½ inches wide, embroidered with the heavy white Roman silk in five-pointed stars, made by taking from the center five stitches, each an eighth of an inch long. If this is too troublesome, a simple cross-stitch, made with this silk irregularly over the linen, about three-quarters of an inch apart, will give a pretty effect. Or the bag may have on the back the future owner's three initials, written with a fine-pointed, hard lead pencil—to make the line as narrow and light as possible—by the giver, and done in outline stitch heavy enough to cover the pencil marks, says the Baltimore Herald. Having embroidered the linen, hem one end three inches, and, beginning half an inch above the pocket thus formed, round off the square corners, which will give the envelope shape. Commencing at one end, baste a piece of linen tape half an inch wide along the sides and around the flap of the envelop, and ornament it with a row of feather-stitching. Finish the hem across the pocket in the same way; sew a small pearl button one inch below the hem in the center, and make a white silk loop in the middle of the flap.

Some Uses of Soda.

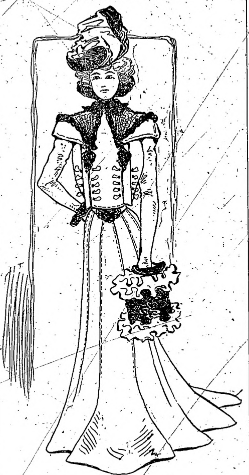
Apart from the use of bicarbonate of soda as a relief for indigestion, both this form and the crude washing soda are useful to the cook and the housekeeper.

A burn caused by a hot iron will cease to pain almost immediately if a piece of soda, moistened with the tongue, is put on. A scald or burn, if the skin is not broken, can be cured by placing the burnt part in strong soda water.

Boil greasy tins in soda water once a week, and use hot soda water for a greasy sink.

Put a piece of soda the size of a walnut to a tablespoonful of salt into a basin and pour on boiling water. Allow dirty sponges to stand in this for a short time, when they will be quite clean and free from grease. Rinse in cold water.

STYLISH STREET OUTFIT.



Dark red cloth, with seven box plaits stitched to knee, Eton jacket with box-plaited front. Hood, cuffs and muff, trimmed with broadcloth. Hood lined with bright Oriental panne velvet. Toque of black cloth and black pointed curved plumes.

Dissolve a cupful of soda in a gallon of water, and leave in a jar near the kitchen sink. Into this throw all pieces of soap and remains of packets of dry soap. Dip into the jar and add to the water used for washing and scrubbing very dirty pans, earthenware, tinware, woodwork (but not paint), and for washing kitchen cloths and dusters.

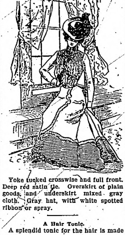
Common washing soda dissolved in water until the liquid will take up no more is said to be an excellent cure for warts. Moisten the warts with it, and let them dry without wiping.

A pinch of carbonate of soda put into the teapot will increase the strength of the tea. This applies particularly to places where the water is hard.—Seattle Post-Intelligencer.

How to Use Sachet.

It is always in good taste to use sachet for the clothing, provided one uses the right sort. Violet, heliotrope, rose and clover are all right. Sandalwood is too violent, but a little can be used provided discretion is shown. Stronger odors are tabooed. Dainty sachets are made of bits of wide ribbon. Several of these strung on baby ribbon are nice to hang over the hooks in one's closet.

Dainty White Flannel Shirt Waist.



Yoke tucked crosswise and full front. Deep red satin tie. Overskirt of plain goods, and underskirt mixed gray cloth. Gray hat, with white spotted ribbon or spray.

A Hair Tonic.

A splendid tonic for the hair is made of glycerine, one ounce; eau de cologne (strongest), one-quarter pint; liquor of ammonia (880-882), one fluid dram; oil of origanum, oil of rosemary, of each one-half fluid dram; tincture of cantharides, one fluid ounce. Briskly agitate them together for eight or ten minutes; then add of camphor-julep (strongest), one-half pint. Electricity, properly applied, will often do wonders toward restoring vitality to the hair. In the case of a young girl who had lost her hair in spots after an attack of typhoid fever, a hair specialist advised cropping and electricity applied through a good-sized sponge, three times a week, in conjunction with the above wash. The treatment resulted within three months in a beautiful head of new hair. The hair should be kept short for at least a year under the above or similar circumstances.

Good Taste.

It is not always costly garments that are the prettiest and most becoming. One's own good taste should tell one what to wear. An inexpensive gown, well brushed and well put on, will look a hundredfold better than one that cost a heap of money but is ill-fitting and slouchy and trailing in the dirt. It is an easy matter to find what colors suit you best, and also what general styles are most becoming to your figure. It would appear, though, as if half the women planned their gowns so that their defects and not their good points would be made more prominent. Don't be one of them. Reform, and mend your ways. To be beautiful is the ambition of every woman in every walk of life. It is not an ambition to be sneered at, for beauty does not mean merely a doll-like reproduction of rosy cheeks and wide, beaming eyes, but sweetness of character and a mentality that is worth the name. I wouldn't give a nickel with a hole in it for the girl who neglects the cultivation of a pleasant, happy, inspiring disposition and spends six hours out of the day experimenting with freckle cures and fretting over a mole on her left cheek! The freckles and the mole won't be noticed if she is sweet and dear and unselfish and lovable.

Toilet Creams.

It is a bad plan to keep quantities of toilet cream on the table for any length of time. The heat of the room may affect the oils. Instead have small salve and cream jars, into which a portion of each cream may be put, to be renewed as needed. Put that which is not in use in a cool place and it will last longer and keep better. Jars kept for the use of creams should be thoroughly cleaned when emptied.

OUR COOKING SCHOOL.

Apple Sauce

Pare, core and slice some apples; stew them with sufficient water to prevent burning; when done, mash them through a colander, sweeten to taste, add a small piece of butter, a little nutmeg or lemon.

Bacon Omelet.

Beat up some eggs (according to the quantity required), then add salt, pepper, some finely cut parsley and green onions, and a slice or two of bacon cut into very fine mince meat; mix all well together, fry and scorch the top with a red hot poker.

To Cook Squash.

If very young and tender, merely cut in pieces and core; otherwise peel and core, and stew it with a small amount of water. When tender press out the water through a sieve or in a coarse cloth, mash it fine, and dress it with butter, pepper and salt.

Macaroni With Tomatoes.

Boil one-half pound of macaroni till tender, pour off all the water, then add one-half cup of sweet cream, one-third of a cup of butter; pepper and salt; let simmer for a short time, but be careful that it does not become much broken, turn into vegetable dish; have ready one pint of stewed tomatoes, season with butter, salt and pepper, pour over the macaroni.

Cauliflower.

Break off the green leaves, cut the flower close at the bottom, from the stalk; if large, divide into four quarters. Put into cold water, let it lie not over an hour, then put into boiling milk and water, or water only—milk makes it white—skim while boiling. When the stalks are tender, take it up, which must be done before it loses its crispness. Lay it on a cloth or colander to drain, and serve with melted butter.

A New York druggist says that Chinamen patronize the drug stores very little, as they have little faith in American drugs.

SCIENTIFIC TOPICS

CURRENT NOTES OF DISCOVERY AND INVENTION.

Telephone Number Annunciator — Boat Propelled by Explosions—An Ingenius Use of Electricity — The Tomb of Romulus.

An Ingenious Use of Electricity.

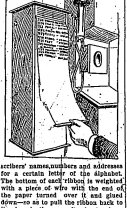
An ingenious method of freeing a bicycle path of tacks is described by a New York paper. The experiment was tried on a new cinder path between Binghampton, N. Y., and a suburban town, which at once achieved a bad reputation for puncturing tires. The mystery was revealed in a peculiar way and the trouble removed by a remarkable contrivance, hastily invented by an amateur electrician and enthusiastic wheelman. A shoe factory at Lestershire had furnished the cinders for the first quarter of a mile of the path, and when the head of the factory was questioned about the matter he admitted that there were probably thousands of the tacks in the cinders. The matter had never occurred to him before, he said, and he generously offered to share with the county the expense of laying fresh cinders. Apparently there was no other course to take, but in the emergency the amateur electrician came forward, and he said he could get every tack out of the path in one morning without removing a cinder. Commissioner Hecox was skeptical, but told him to go ahead. He made a framework of wood about three feet square, fitted it with rollers and a long handle, so that it could be operated like a carpet sweeper, and then placed six large and powerful electro magnets in it. The magnets were so arranged that they would almost scrape the ground when the machine was operated. With this simple contrivance he started to work the dangerous end of the cinder path. He hadn't done ten yards before his magnets were so covered with tacks that he had to clean them off. Before he had finished the work he had to scrape his magnets nearly fifty times, and when he was through he had filled a quart can to overflowing with the wickedest looking lot of tacks and sharp-pointed scraps of metal that ever decorated a cycle path. As a precaution he went over the path several times, but got nothing after the first trip. There hasn't been a puncture along the cinder path since, and more grateful wheelmen than those of Broome county it would be hard to find.

"The Tomb of Romulus."

A notable recent achievement in archaeology is the discovery in the Roman Forum of a massive pavement of black marble nine feet square, which some believe to be the veritable "black stone" which the Romans venerated as marking the tomb of Romulus. Under the marble, among other objects, was a broken stele, or sepulchral column, covered with archaic Latin characters, and this is considered to bear out the statement of the later Roman historians that in the early days the Romans spoke a tongue which their descendants could not understand.

Telephone Number Annunciator.

So universal has the telephone been that a telephone directory of a large establishment is very quickly the worse for wear, and often becomes so mutilated with constant handling that its usefulness is somewhat impaired. Then again it is frequently carried away by thoughtless persons, and the 'phone is practically out of use until it is found again. The telephone number and address annunciator recently patented by an inventor of Hamilton, Canada, not only overcomes these drawbacks, but also offers a more convenient and quicker method of securing the desired address and number. The device consists of a rectangular box or case about four feet high or eight inches broad and seven or eight inches on the sides and is provided at its upper section with a series of sheet metal diaphragms, curved about a quarter-circle. There are as many diaphragms as there are letters in the alphabet, and they are placed about a quarter of an inch apart, leaving a space between each. In each of these spaces between the diaphragms is placed a ribbon of paper or other material about six inches wide and long enough to receive a list of subscribers' names, numbers and addresses for a certain letter of the alphabet. The bottom of each ribbon is weighted with a piece of wire with the end of the paper turned over it and glued down—so as to pull the ribbon back to its place in the case after having been consulted. The pull log on each of these sheets is lettered for the convenience of those using it.

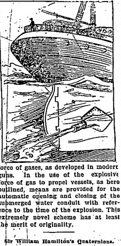


Artificial India Rubber.

No natural product has tempted artificial imitation more than india rubber, and many fortunes have been spent in such enterprises. Rubber substitutes have, it is true, been produced which have proved of commercial importance, but no artificial substance has yet been made which exhibits the valuable qualities of that obtained from the rubber tree. The demand for the article has enormously increased since the invention of rubber tires for wheels, to say nothing of the wants of the electrician; hence any new source of supply is of great importance. There is, however, always the hope that the real rubber may some day be produced synthetically in the laboratory; indeed, it has already been prepared in small quantities. Some time ago a hydrocarbon known as isoprene was discovered among the products of the destructive distillation of india rubber, and later on the same substance was produced from turpentine. It has recently been found that isoprene kept for several years gradually assumes the qualities and appearance of true rubber. Chemists have now to discover a means of effecting the change more quickly, and a great and useful problem will have been solved.

Boat Propelled by Explosions.

While not generally known, some years ago a boat was built and operated on the Delaware which had for its only means of propulsion streams of water which were pumped in at the bow of the boat and forced out at the stern. While the boat proved to be operative, the method was abandoned as impracticable. Now an inventor of New York comes to the fore with an equally novel proposition; namely, to utilize the reactionary force of explosive gases through a submerged tube to drive a boat. This amounts to practically running a boat by continuously shooting off a gun under water. Experience with gas engines has shown that the explosive force of the gas can be accurately controlled as regards the period and force of the explosion, and every one is familiar with the enormous power generated by the explosive force of gases, as developed in modern guns. In the use of the explosive force of gas to propel vessels, as here outlined, means are provided for the automatic opening and closing of the submerged water conduit with reference to the time of the explosion. This extremely novel scheme has at least the merit of originality.



Sir William Hamilton's Quaternions.

The board of Trinity college, Dublin, is publishing a new edition of that remarkable work, Hamilton's "Elements of Quaternions," which has long been out of print. The attitude of mathematicians to Hamilton's great discovery is most remarkable, some, like Tait of Edinburgh, regarding it as one of the great events of the century, while others have failed entirely to catch the spirit of his work. Nature states that one really eminent mathematician, who picked up a copy of Hamilton's "Lectures," gladly transferred his prize next day to a friend, remarking that the man must have been mad who invented quaternions, for he made two sides of a triangle equal to the third side!

1900 Not a Leap Year.

The reason why 1900 will not be a leap year, although it is divisible by four, is that according to the Gregorian system, on which our calendar is based, the closing year of a century is never a leap year unless it is exactly divisible by 400. The next leap year will be 1904, the last having been 1896. Ever since 1600 the leap years at the end of a century have been separated by a gap of eight years, but the year 2000 will interrupt the series.

Scientific Jottings.

In the electric supply stations in London the boilers and engines in use are divided as follows: Water tube, 75.5 per cent; marine, 11 per cent; Lancashire, 5.5 per cent; miscellaneous, 8 per cent; while the engines are high speed, 62.5 per cent; low-speed vertical, 25 per cent; low-speed horizontal, 6.25 per cent; special, 6.25 per cent. Direct coupling is universal.

Some samples of the cement used in the antique water conduits of Ephesus and Smyrna were recently subjected to chemical analysis, and the various samples were found to be similar in composition. The waterworks from which the samples of cement were taken were constructed from a period several centuries before Christ to 300 years after. The chief constituent of the samples was calcium carbonate mixed with a small percentage of organic material. This latter was found to consist of a mixture of fatty acids. Experiments were made with a cement such as burned lime and olive oil or linseed oil, but it was not found to be permanent. On the other hand, a mixture of two-thirds of either slag or lime and one-third olive oil hardened readily and possessed such great endurance that it led to the belief that this was the composition of the ancient cements which were analyzed.

Germany will make a large display of machinery at the Paris exposition. Two leading firms will each have a dynamo actuated by a 2,000-horse-power engine; the one company of Cologne will have one of 1,900-horse-power installation, and another of Frankfort-on-the-Main will have one of 14,000 horse power. The crane which is to be used for transporting heavy machines in the central gallery will be capable of raising twenty-five tons to a height of forty feet.

In Pennsylvania a new telephone transmitter has been devised and is being manufactured. It is so constructed that the outer casing and mouthpiece may be removed for the purpose of cleaning without disturbing the diaphragm and carbon parts in an inner casing independent of the outer shell. The diaphragm is held in place by a threaded ring which screws on the inner casing. It is, therefore, independent of the adjustment of the mouthpiece or any other condition of the outer casing. The manufacturers adjust the instrument, and no subsequent adjustment is needed.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

SOME GOOD STORIES FOR OUR JUNIOR READERS.

Where Stilts Are Used—Something About These Aids to Easy Locomotion—What Ailed Snarly—George Sand's Dolls—When Trees Go to Sleep.

House of Too Much Trouble.

In the House of Too Much Trouble
Lived a lonely little boy;
He was eager for a playmate,
He was hungry for a toy.
But 'twas always too much bother,
Too much dirt and too much noise
For the House of Too Much Trouble
Wasn't meant for little boys.

And sometimes the little fellow
Left a book upon the floor,
Or forgot and laughed too loudly,
Or he failed to close the door.
In the House of Too Much Trouble
Things must be precise and trim—
In the House of Too Much Trouble
There was little room for him.

He must never scatter playthings,
He must never romp and play;
Every room must be in order
And kept quiet all the day.
He had never had companions,
He had never owned a pet—
In the House of Too Much Trouble
It is trim and quiet yet.

Every room is set in order—
Every book is in its place.
And the lonely little fellow
Wears a smile upon his face.
In the House of Too Much Trouble
He is silent and at rest
In the House of Too Much Trouble
With a lily on his breast.
—Albert Bigelow Paine, in The Juvenile.

Where Stilts Are Used.

Some twenty years ago, you might have seen at Bordeaux on market days strange crowds of villagers arriving on stilts from distant hamlets, heavy-laden with sacks and baskets, but now the sight would cause almost as much sensation there as it might in one of our own towns. The only stilt-walkers that I have ever seen in Bordeaux were great mannikins, prancing about among the crowd on gigantic stilts at the autumn fair to the joy of small children, but these were merely professional acrobats. Near Lake Cazaux however, where much of the land is yet unreclaimed and marshy, the peasants cling to this mode of locomotion, and we may still see the shepherd guarding his flock on stilts. In the neighborhood of Arcachon there are stilts to be found in the cottages, and small boys, with the prospect of a few sous to be gained, will buckle them on and perform various tricks for your edification. There is some difficulty about putting on the stilts, and they will not be hurried over it. The shepherd starting from home will often mount on the windowsill for the purpose. In the fields, he sits on the ground to tie them on, and then rises with the help of a long stick. The Landes of Gascony, once endless plains covered with brushwood and undergrowth, were blessed with a soil so impenetrable that it never absorbed the rain, and even after a slight shower the hollows would be transformed into marshes. There were no roads or sheep-paths of any kind, and the cottages of the shepheds and small farmers were dotted about so far from each other in the swamps that the "long legs" were an absolute necessity. Now the Landes, for centuries regarded as a hopeless waste, unprofitable and unhealthy, have been for the most part reclaimed and drained. Forests of pines have been planted, and, instead of being unhealthy, some parts of the district such as Arcachon, have even become health resorts. Thus the strange old stilts are fast vanishing, for they have lost their "raison d'etre." The stilts are usually about six or seven feet in height, and about five feet from the ground there is a rest to support the foot, provided with a stirrup and a strong strap; higher up a band of leather holds the top of the stilt firmly to the leg below the knee. Some stilts are much higher than these, especially for fancy-walking and tricks, and the man mounted on them is gifted with veritable seven-leagued boots, for he can cover the ground at a truly prodigious pace—often as much as eight or ten miles an hour. The lower end of the stilt, which touches the ground, is usually capped with a sheep bone to strengthen it.—Pearson's Magazine.

What Ailed Snarly?

They called her "Crosspatch," "Old Maid" and "Snarly," and all the children thought unkindly of her but patient little Rachael. "She must be so unhappy living there alone, with no one to speak a kind word to her; I don't wonder she is cross," Rachel, who by the way, is a member of the G. G. R. C. would say when her mates complained about the fretful little woman, who lived all by herself in a big mansion across the street from the schoolhouse. "Why don't you give Snarly a Christmas present if you love her so well?" questioned a girl friend one day, when Rachel, as usual had been defending the unhappy old lady. "I'm real glad you mentioned it," answered Rachel, "for I think it would be a fine plan. Snarly shall have a present." And straightway Rachel commenced to wonder what she should give her. Christmas morning, when the maid opened the front door of the big mansion across the street from the schoolhouse, she found on the veranda a beautiful little orange tree, all fresh and green, wrapped round and round with bright-colored papers. Tied to the plant was a note, and it read: "This present come from one who loves you. They say that the thorns on orange trees grow in the place of blasted blossoms. Please, Miss Perkins will you keep this plant and always think that every unkind word uttered is a thorn growing where blossoms might be?" After Christmas time the children were heard to wonder—"What ails Snarly? She's so changed."

One Unselfish Helper.

A queer little fellow indeed was Tommy Dick. Why, he would give away the last marble he had if a boy wanted it. He would run on errands all day long and never grumble. He would always give the best place to somebody else, no matter who, and feel so honestly glad in seeing other folks having a good time that he really forgot all about himself. Don't you see he was a very queer little fellow? But somehow everybody liked to have the "queer little fellow" around. Grandma always smiled all over her face when she saw Tommy coming. Aunt Lois, who was a very busy woman, used to say: "Well, now, you've come just in time, Tommy. Run and ——" When Tommy went to spend the day with grandma or Aunt Lois the folks at home all missed him. One would say, "Now, if Tommy were only here!" You see, Tommy was one of the unselfish helpers. And what a tiresome world this would be if there were not a good sprinkling of such people! Are there any Tommies at your house? It wouldn't do any harm if there is more than one, you know. Indeed, half a dozen boys and girls with the spirit of Tommy Dick would make home a very pleasant place. Don't you think so?—Pittsburg Dispatch.

Queer Winter Customs.

Some of the young people may think that the queer little Eskimo children would find life very, very dull now that they have so little sunshine and the weather is so cold away up there in northland. A visitor among them assures us, however, that they seem to be perfectly contented in their round little huts with conical tops and one narrow doorway. To begin with, they have strange garments made of seal skins of reindeer, bears, foxes and even dogs. Beneath their outer suits they wear more fur clothes, with the hair turned inside, and stockings of dog skin or reindeer skin. The boys and girls look almost exactly alike, and at this time of the year they are so bundled up that about all you may see of them is their eyes. In each "igloo," or home, a place is set apart for the use of children. There no one may disturb them, and after the girls have dressed their dolls which are made of wood and clothed in skins, story-telling time begins. Each child takes a turn. When the time comes the first story teller takes off his jacket, turns his face to the wall and commences. And so the play goes till each has told a story.

George Sand's Dolls.

At what age must a girl leave off caring for her dolls? George Sand, the great French novelist, was 14 before she took this question seriously to heart, and even then she only thought the matter over because someone had laughed at a big girl like her still nursing dolls. With many a bitter sigh and groan, she decided the time had come when she must bid them good-by forever. So she gave each a tender kiss, tears coursing down her cheeks the while, and locked them all in a closet in the attic. But the parting was almost more than she could bear. Every day she sat outside the garret closet and poured the sweetest messages she could think of through the keyhole. However, she stuck to her word bravely and never played with them any more. Perhaps it would have been better if, after the heart-rending farewell, she had given them to some poor little girls who had no dolls at all, and who would have gladly befriended hers.

A Kind Pony.

Tommy owned a very fine pony, which was very fond of him, and would come from the paddock at the sound of his voice and follow him about like a dog. One day the pony became lame and was kept in the stable. About this time a cat had a family of kittens on a ledge just above the pony's manger. She and the pony became great friends. One morning, while jumping up to her kittens, she rolled off the ledge into the manger, injuring her foot so that she could scarcely crawl along to obtain her food at the house. When she came back she was unable to get up to her kittens, so she laid down at the pony's feet and mewed and looked up piteously several times. At last the pony, seeming to understand what she wanted, reached down, took the cat gently in his teeth and lifted her up to the ledge to her kittens. This was repeated morning after morning. The cat would roll off into the manger, go and get her breakfast, come back and be lifted up to her family.

A Bad Dog.

Grandfather Hale had a dog named Billy, who, every day when the school bell rang, would trot off just as if he knew the bell as well as the children. No one could discover where he went or what he went for. But one day Billy came into the garden with a small parcel in his mouth. He laid it down on the lawn and fumbled about with it until he had unwrapped it, the contents turning out to be two thick slices of bread and butter. After this it was discovered that Billy went to the school every day, barked at the children, and so frightened them that they would drop their lunch and run away; then he would pick it up and scamper off with his prize.

When Trees Go to Sleep.

Trees and plants have their regular times for going to sleep as well as boys and girls. They need the same chance to rest from the work of growing and to repair and oil the machinery of life. Some plants do all their sleeping in the winter while the ground is frozen and the limbs are bare of leaves. In tropical countries, where the snow never falls and it is always growing weather, the trees repose during the rainy season or during the periods of drouth. They always choose the most unfavorable working time for doing their sleep, just as man chooses the night, when he cannot see to work.

Proved.

Him—This administration is as futile and ineffective and useless as—
His Wife—It is, John; it is. Why, there isn't a single letter box with a slit big enough for you to mail a bundle of papers.—Life.

The Japanese come nearer following American customs in celebrating Christmas than the other diplomates of non-Christian countries at Washington.

Bank of St. Hilaire.

HANNAY & CO., Bankers.

Real Estate Loans.
Chattel Loans.
Foreign & Domestic Xchange
INSURANCE.
Collections a Specialty.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

St. Hilaire, Minn.

Livery and Feed Stable!

DAN PATERSON, Prop.

Dray in Connection.

The finest equipped turnouts in the northwest. Safe drivers and furnished at a moments notice at reasonable rates. Don't forget the place

BIG - RED - BARN

Located on the east side of Broadway nearly opposite Rapp & Post's Store

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

PATENTS DESIGNS TRADE-MARKS AND COPYRIGHTS OBTAINED

ADVICE AS TO PATENTABILITY FREE
Notice in "Inventive Age"
Book "How to obtain Patents"
Charges moderate. No fee till patent is secured.
Letters strictly confidential. Address,
E. G. SIGGERS, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

GET YOUR PICTURE
TAKEN BY
D. COLLINS
THE
Photograper.
ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

IMPROVED
FARMS!

K. O. GIGSTAD has a large list of Improved Farms for sale. Also agent for the best fire and cyclone insurance company. Sick and accident insurance Co., and hail insurance.

Money to loan on improved farms at low interest. All collections are promptly attended to.

NOTARY PUBLIC.

Office east of the city well.

ST. HILAIRE, - - MINNESOTA.

2nd STORE

(SECOND HAND STORE.)

Everything in this line now on hand. Special bargains given. If you have anything to dispose of give me a call.

C. A. SKEIE.

ST. HILAIRE, - - MINNESOTA

FIRE INSURANCE

DO
YOU
NEED
SOME?

The Best is the Cheapest.

I have nine of the best companies doing business in the State

Call for rates.

H. E. IVES.

CUSTOM WORK.

JUST LOOK AT THESE PRICES:

Roll Carding—per pound	5 cts
Spinning Single Yarn—per pound	15 c
Stocking Yarn—2 or 3 ply, per pound	20 c

LITCHFIELD WOOLEN MILLS.

LITCHFIELD, MINN.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Spectator.

IVES & SOLL, Publishers.
JOHN J. SOLL, Editor.

Entered at the postoffice at St. Hilaire, Minn, as second-class mail matter.

Published every Wednesday at St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minn.

TERMS:—$1.50 Per Year in Advance.

SUBSCRIBERS should notify the publisher on or before expiration of subscription if discontinuance is desired. Otherwise paper will be continued.

WEDNESDAY, JAN. 31, 1900.

Feeding Their Dead.

Twice a year, in the first week of April and October, the Chinese feed their dead. They think, very sensibly, that once their friends and relatives leave this mortal coil they ought to stay away from this world, and to prevent their return they faithfully transmit to them all the necessaries of life. It has been discovered by oriental wisdom that the way to transmit servants, songs, plays, books and money is to manufacture them in paper and burn them. But actual eatables must be carried to the grave.

The Chinese are not stingy, and wagon loads of roasted chickens, pigs, ducks, various sweetmeats and fruits are taken to the cemeteries. The food is piled before each grave amid burning red, carrot shaped candles and joss sticks. Then the living prostrate themselves before the dead and beg them to rise up and enjoy themselves. Chinese wines are then sprinkled liberally over the graves, while some graves receive boxes of cigars and packages of cigarettes.

But you must not suppose that the eatables are left on the graves. Oh, no! That would be throwing too much temptation in the way of heathen tramps. In about two hours it is believed that the ghosts got the essence of the eatables conveyed to them, and then the devotees gather up the offerings and carry them home again to feed to their own material bodies. But the cigars and cigarettes are burned on the graves.

Directory Fiends.

A man with a grip entered a down town drug store and asked permission to look at the city directory. He was so long about his search that one of the clerks got to watching him, and not without results. The man was apparently looking through the business indexes at the back of the book, and whenever he came to a page he fancied he cut it out with a deft movement, barely detectible. The clerk called the proprietor, and between them they saw him cut no less than five pages from the book.

Then the proprietor beckoned to a policeman just outside the window and went up to his customer.

"Got through with the book?" he asked.

"Yes, quite," was the reply. "Much obliged. Is there any charge?"

"Yes; the usual charge," said the drug store man. "Eight dollars, please."

The man looked at the proprietor, took in the policeman and without a word produced his wad and settled.

"This is not the first time people have mutilated my directory," said the druggist in relating the incident, "but it's the first vandal I caught at it. Instead of copying the few names he wants he preferred to cut out whole leaves. Well, he paid for his fun."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Convincing a Connoisseur.

Some years ago the late Dr. Colonette undertook to make a bottle of port that should not cost more than threepence which the best judges should be unable to distinguish from the highest priced wine that could be obtained in the island. The preparation was compounded openly before a large assemblage, and three competent judges were selected to test the product. The basis of this compound was cider, colored with an infusion of logwood. To this he added a few grains of tartaric acid and salt of tartar to give respectively a rough taste and a mellowed appearance. When three glasses of this compound and three glasses of recognized port were presented to the judges to taste and pass their verdict, without being told which was which, they unanimously pronounced in favor of the doctor's cheap preparation and rejected the genuine port. What they would have said the next morning if they had consumed a bottle of this preparation remains a matter of conjecture.—London Chronicle.

Migrating Birds.

The distances over which birds migrate vary between wide limits and are often surprisingly great. The bobolinks, which rear their young on the shores of Lake Winnipeg and go to Cuba and Porto Rico to spend the winter, twice traverse a distance exceeding 2,800 miles, or more than a fifth of the circumference of our earth, each year. The kingbird lays its eggs as far north as the fifty-seventh degree of latitude and is found in the winter in South America. The biennial pilgrimages of the little redstart exceed 3,000 miles and the tiny humming bird 2,000.

A Money Saver.

When you flip a coin with the other fellow and win, don't stop to argue with the other fellow as to whether "dates is heads" or "dates are heads" is correct. Go on flipping till you begin to lose. Then start up the argument. This money saving device is not patented.—St. Louis Post-Dispatch.

Not Up on French.

French Vagrant—Pouves vous me donner quelque chose pour manger, madame?

American Lady — You impudent scoundrel, how dare you call me names like that? Why, I could have you arrested if I chose.—Ohio State Journal.

Must Have Been Born Lucky.

"How did you make out with that effort to break your uncle's will?"

"Fine! After it was all settled up and the lawyers had the estate I didn't owe them a cent."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Its Drawback.

A minister having preached a very long sermon, as was his custom, some hours after asked a gentleman his candid opinion of it, to which the latter remarked that "'twas good, but it had spoiled a goose worth two of it."

LIVE HIGH ON CREDIT

DAINTY DINERS WHO GET COSTLY MEALS FOR NOTHING.

How Some Big Accounts That Are Never Paid Are Run Up at the Fashionable Restaurants That Flourish in New York City.

Legal proceedings recently taken to recover from a well known citizen who belongs to the "fashionable" class the amount of a tailor's bill revealed the fact that the man was poor, had no money and no means of support and owed many bills. Besides tailors, shoemakers and hatters, he owed money to florists, jewelers, livery stable keepers, dealers in theater tickets, shirtmakers, stationers and restaurateurs. One of the largest bills against the man was contracted in the course of several years at a prominent up town restaurant.

"You must have been hung up for a great spread," said a patron of the place to the manager, pointing to the item.

"Not at all," he answered. "That bill represents hundreds of charges and has grown slowly to its present magnificent proportions."

"But how is it done—how do people run big bills in a restaurant?"

"Well, in the first place, because we look upon men who come here as gentlemen and treat them accordingly. I don't remember just how the account in question was opened, but usually it is done in this way: Some day, after a man receives his check, he scrawls his name across its face and tells the waiter, 'I'll pay this tomorrow; it's all right,' and then if the person in charge at the desk marks it 'O. K.' the check is 'hung up,' and an account is opened with the man.

"In most instances the man comes back, as he said he would, the next day and settles his little bill and thanks us for accommodating him. If, however, the man intends to work the house, he does not come back the next day and settle, but waits three or four days. Then he drops in and orders a modest luncheon or a not elaborate dinner and scribbles his name across the check, gives the waiter a tip, and the new account receives its first addition.

"Little by little the account grows but never by any really large charge and when at last the man has a little dinner party with a big appetite the check is liable to be 'O. K.'d' because the account is already so large that it would be poor policy to turn it down.

"When the account has grown so large that we think it should have attention, we give the head waiter a tip, and without telling the man in so many words he is given to understand that cash would be preferred to an autograph. Sometimes the man takes the hint and makes a payment or asks for more time and tells us that he will pay as he goes, and he remains a customer without increasing his account, but generally he leaves us and goes to some other place and complains about poor service here and in other ways tries to injure our business because he can't have what he wants to eat and drink for nothing. His account remains open, and when it becomes outlawed we put it on the list which bears many good names, but we never dun the man."

To show how anxious some people are to have it known that they are well acquainted in the fashionable restaurants the following story was told:

"Some months ago a man came here early in the day and said that he would have a little party of friends to supper with him after the theater that evening and ordered what he wanted. His order showed that he was unaccustomed to the part, but it is our business to fill orders, and we said that his supper would be served all right. Then he laid down a sum of money, more than enough to pay the bill, and said, 'This will save me the trouble this evening,' and went away. The supper passed off nicely, the man's friends from the country or the country part of the city seemed to enjoy their spree, and finally the host asked for his check, looked at it and then said grandly and loud enough for all to hear, 'Charge it.' The supper was a 'grand' affair in the eyes of the guests, but the climax—the order to 'charge it'—overwhelmed them, and I dare say the man accomplished his object, which was evidently to make himself solid with his guests."—New York Tribune.

A One Sided One.

There are times, even in the best regulated families, when it becomes necessary to discipline some young and stirring member of the household. The other evening an indulgent father concluded that such a time had arrived, as his 8-year-old son had committed an act of insubordination and threatened to repeat it. Rebukes and warnings were in vain, and at last the youngster was given a sound spanking. Half an hour later, after friendly relations had been resumed, an older son came home and was somewhat surprised when the 8-year-old said to him: "You ought to have been here awhile ago. Me and papa had a fight."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

A Mystery of the Sea.

A mystery with which every sailor is familiar is the formation of dust at sea. Those who are familiar with sailing ships know that, no matter how carefully the decks may be washed down in the morning and how little work of any kind may be done during the day, nevertheless if the decks are swept at nightfall an enormous quantity of dust will be collected.

When a girl says that some other girl is pretty, the men present can always make a ten strike by disagreeing with her.—Atchison Globe.

To Subscribers.

All who know themselves to be indebted to THE SPECTATOR will confer a great favor by settling early. These accounts are small, but we have a lot of them on our books. Please do not put the matter off or forget it altogether, because it don't amount to very much.

—Every farmer who writes a letter occasionally should get envelopes with his name and address printed in the corner. We will furnish 100 of the best quality printed in any style for the small sum of 75 cts. Send in your order

Conquerors Conquered.

It is a remarkable and instructive fact that the career of four of the most renowned characters that ever lived closed with a violent or mournful death.

Alexander, after looking down from the dizzy heights of his ambition upon a conquered world and weeping that there were no more to conquer, died of intoxication in a scene of debauch, or, as some suppose, by poison mingled in his wine.

Hannibal, whose name carried terror to the heart of Rome itself, after having crossed the Alps and put to flight the armies of the mistress of the world, was driven from his country and died at last of poison administered by his own hands in a foreign land, unlamented and unwept.

Caesar, the conqueror of 800 cities, and his temples bound with chaplets dipped in the blood of a million of his foes, was miserably assassinated by those he considered his nearest friends.

Bonaparte, whose mandate kings and emperors obeyed, after filling the earth with the terror of his name, closed his days in lonely banishment upon a barren rock in the midst of the Atlantic ocean.

Such the four men who may be considered representatives of all whom the world calls great, and such their end—intoxication, or poison, suicide, murdered by friends, lonely exile!

Queer Sights Abroad.

When I was in Aix-les-Bains last summer, I saw a stout German woman sitting at another table eating from an enormous pile of plates. I thought at first she was carving or doing something of that kind, but as the meal progressed and the pile became no less I made inquiry and found out that she was extremely nearsighted, and the pile of plates—exactly 19 in number—was necessary to raise her food to a point where it would come within her range of vision. She was no less a personage than the Duchess of Sleswick-Holstein.

In Italy they do not use glass in the windows on account of the expense and replace it with wood or other material. In order to relieve the monotony, I suppose, they have a habit of painting household scenes on these blank spaces. In one window you will see an old chap reading his paper and in another a young miss doing up her hair. There are also other scenes of even more intimate family character, which I will leave to your imagination.

In Athens one day I went out to buy something or other, which, I remember, cost 5 drachmae. For it I tendered a 10 drachma note in payment, and in order to make change the storekeeper tore it neatly in two and returned one-half to me. Convenient, wasn't it? —New York Tribune.

Showed Her Teeth.

One of the last things people like to admit usually is that their teeth are not their own in the sense of not having grown in their mouths. A single member from a porcelain factory is not objectionable. The need of it might be caused by an accident or for a good many reasons, but when it comes to several and a plate, then the subject becomes a delicate one.

But there was a woman in the street cars the other day who apparently had a brand new set of teeth and she was strangely proud of them. She first attracted the attention of passengers by the smiles that she lavished upon them indiscriminately. Every smile brought the new teeth into view more prominently and the evidence that they were false and the people began to smile quietly themselves. But even then the woman was not sure that her new treasures were properly observed, and, drawing in her lower lip, she brought her upper teeth down upon it and tapped them carelessly with her finger, looking off into vacancy meanwhile with a conscious air of unconsciousness.—New York Times.

Not the Same Genesis.

A well known divinity professor, a grave and learned man, had five daughters, whom his students irreverently named "Genesis," "Exodus," "Numbers," "Leviticus" and "Deuteronomy."

Beginning his lecture one day, the professor said, "Gentlemen, I wish to speak to you about the age of Genesis."

Roars of laughter came from the students.

"Genesis is not so old as you suppose," continued the professor.

More roars—so long continued, indeed, that the worthy man had time to think before he made the next remark. He said timidly—and he managed to hit the mark this time:

"I may not be thinking of the same Genesis as you are!"

A Hopeless Case.

The Senior Partner—I guess we will have to give up trying to get that money from Sharpe.

The Junior Partner—Really?

"It looks that way. His office is in the second floor of his place, you know, and he threw our last collector out of the window, where the man fell through an awning, you remember."

"Yes."

"Now he sends a claim for the damage to the awning."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Laughed Till He Cried.

"Papa fell over my express wagon this morning," said Willie. "My, it was funny. I laughed till I cried."

"Did yer?" said Tommy.

"Yes," replied Willie. "Papa caught me laughing."—Philadelphia Record.

Athos, a small town on the coast of Macedonia, may not inaptly be termed "The Bachelors' Paradise," as no woman is to be seen anywhere in the place.

Alcohol was first distilled by the Arabians, and when we talk about coffee and alcohol we are using Arabic words.

We Want Correspondents.

We desire a correspondent in every school district in the county, one who will give the local news of his or her locality in a fair and impartial manner. To any one who will undertake the matter the SPECTATOR will furnish the necessary stationery and postage and will send the paper free during the time the person acts in that capacity. Only one correspondent desired in each district. It is an advantage to any community to be represented in the columns of the local paper.

Commissioners Proceedings.

[Regular Meeting]
(Ommited last Publication.)

BILLS ALLOWED COUNTY POOR FUND.

K Wilmes boarding prisoners Oct. term of court	$3 00
Samuel Gibeau recording attys. bond	1 50
J B Hebert 5 days regular meeting Co. com. 40 miles	19 00
K M Hansen 5 days regular meeting Co com. 40 miles, 2 days attending poor	25 00
Ole J Johnson 5 days regular meeting Co. com. 40 miles, 2 days attending poor	26 00
J Sutor 5 days regular meeting Co. com. 30 miles, 1 day special meeting 20 miles Oct., 3 days attending poor 50 miles	37 00
Wm C L Demann 1 day board of audit	3 00
" " 5 days regular meeting Co. com., 14 miles	16 40

Attest: ADAM ZEH,
County Auditor, Red Lake County.

Order to Examine Accounts, &c.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, } ss. In Probate Court.
County of Red Lake. } Special Term,
January 27th A. D. 1900.

In the matter of the estate of Hosea Tway, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Hannah Tway, administratrix of the estate of Hosea Tway, deceased; representing among other things, that she has fully administrated said estate, and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining, settling and allowing the final account of her administration, and for the assignment of the residue of said estate to the parties entitled thereto by law.

It is ordered, that said account be examined and petition heard by this court on Monday the 5th day of March A. D. 1900, at two o'clock P. M., at the court house in said county of Red Lake.

And it is further ordered, that notice thereof be given to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order once each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Spectator, a weekly newspaper printed and published at St. Hilaire in said county.

Dated at Red Lake Falls the 27th day of January A. D., 1900.

By the Court,
[SEAL.] JOHN T. KNIGHT,
27-29 Judge of Probate.

Don't forget your "little subscription account" when selling your wheat.

DON'T BE ASHAMED—

To tell us if you have company.
If a child is born.
If you are going to get married.
If any relative or friend has died.
If your wife has gone away on a visit.
If anything happens worth printing.

The Ideal Lunch Room.

In the Paradis Building is noted for its Convenience.

FIRST-CLASS MEALS.

PROMPT SERVICE.

OPEN UNTIL ONE O'CLOCK A. M.

A. F. LANG, Prop.

Barber Shop
—AND—
BATH ROOMS.

Haircutting, Shaving, Shampooing.

Razors honed and put in first-class order.

J. H. PENNO, Prop.

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

First Mortgage Loans.

I am prepared, for the next 60 days, to make loans at the

LOWEST

possible rates ever made in Red Lake county. If you want to make a loan or renew an old one call on

H. E. IVES.

NORTHERN PACIFIC
YELLOWSTONE PARK LINE

RUNS
THROUGH CARS

TO
ST. PAUL
MINNEAPOLIS
DULUTH
FARGO
GRAND FORKS
AND WINNIPEG

To
HELENA	PULLMAN
BUTTE	SLEEPING CARS
SPOKAND	ELEGANT
TACOMA	DINING CARS
SEATTLE	TOURIST
PORTLAND	SLEEPING CARS

PATENTS GUARANTEED

Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.

Patents taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in THE PATENT RECORD, an illustrated and widely circulated journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.

Send for sample copy FREE. Address,

VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.
(Patent Attorneys,)
Evans Building. WASHINGTON, D. C.

By special arrangement with the publishers we are enable to give FARM, STOCK AND HOME one year and the ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR for $1.35.

BANK OF RED LAKE FALLS,

RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA

GENERAL BANKING. FOREIGN XCHANGE

Real Estate, Farm Loans and Insurance.
Abstracts of Title.
Steamship Tickets.
Interest Paid on Time Deposits.
Collections of all Kinds Given Prompt Attention.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Stomasli the only set of Abstract Books in Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

A Comfort for the Home

Appetine Bitters
Appetine Bitters

Cures Stomach and bowel troubles. An excellent tonic.

Sold by Druggists, Dealers or,
GEO. BENZ & SONS, St. Paul and Minneapolis

Hamm's St. Paul Beer

There's Honest Blood, Bone and Sinew in this Strengthening brew!

Agents everywhere

Theo. Hamm Brewing Company.
Tel. 972
St. Paul, Minn.

FARMS { 250 farms in Red Lake county for sale, also a large list of Railroad lands. Prices going up.

LOANS { First Mortgage Farm Loans A Specialty.

ABSTRACTS { furnished on short notice. Neat and accurate work guaranteed.

S. A. SWANSON,
Official Abstracter.

RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.

OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

—The SPECTATOR is for sale—at $1.50 a year—strictly in advance.

Cigars.

BRINK BROTHERS

DEALERS IN

Wines & Liquors

Minneapolis Beer.

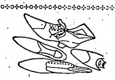
Corner Broadway and 2nd St. St. Hilaire, Minnesota

L. K. KOLSTAD

DEALER IN

BOOTS AND SHOES!

Repairing a Specialty.



ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA.

Cosmopolitan and Spectator.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we will leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal, both together one year for only $1.50.

SOME OF OUR CLUB RATES
WITH
THE

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR

OUR TERMS
ARE STRICTLY CASH
IN ADVANCE

OFFICIAL PAPER
OF
ST. HILAIRE
AND RED LAKE COUNTY.

Farm, Stock & Home.

50 cents per year. Read by a greater number of Northwestern farmers than any other agricultural paper published. Are you among the number? If not. Why not? Every department in the hands of a specialist. Short talks department. A department where all kinds of questions are answered for the benefit of subscribers, is a leading feature of the paper. No northwestern farmers list of papers is complete without it. This paper and Spectator one year for $1.35.

Cosmopolitan, New York World and The Spectator.

You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine, Three together one year for only $2.50.

NEW MEAT MARKET.

L. M. ROLAND, Proprietor.

Fresh and Salted Meats.

Highest Market Price Paid for Hides.

Now then
If you are
Looking for
Bargins in
Dry Goods
Groceries
Hats, Caps,
Boots, Shoes
Clothing
Notions

Or in fact anything carried in a first-class general merchandise store, why you are cordially invited and we will accommodate you. Call and look over our large stock.

E. M. HOFF.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

I. O. O. F. ST. HILAIRE LODGE No. 147.—Meets at their hall every Thursday evening, eight o'clock. Visiting members are cordially invited to attend.
J. B. O'BRIEN, N. G.
A. F. LANG, Secretary.

M. W. A. CAMP 3650.—Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every second and fourth Tuesday of every month. Visiting neighbors are cordially invited to attend.
H. O. JACKSON, V. C.
JAS. M. HALL, Clerk.

R. N. A.—WILD ROSE CAMP.—No. 834 Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every Friday evening. Visiting members of the order are cordially invited to attend.
MRS. W. A. ARTHUR, Oracle.
MISS T. HUGHES, Recorder.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.

E. J. Holmes	President
J. L. Johnson	Recorder
D. Patterson	Councilmen
J. C. Dahl
W. A. Sorsoleil
L. Holmes	Treasurer

DR. BLOMBURGH.
SCANDINAVIAN
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Calls attended day or night.
Teeth Extracted.
Office and residence opposity M. E. church. ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

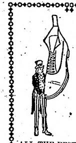
Auditor	Adam Zeh
Treasurer	O. T. Tandberg
Register of Deeds	Samuel Gibeau
Sheriff	Chas. Sampson
Attorney	Van R. Brown
Judge of Probate	J. T. Knight
Clerk of Court	Joe Perrault
Supt. of Schools	Frank Jeffers
Coroner	Joe Belaire
Court Commissioner	J. C. Mathews
Surveyor	P. O. Heggland
Commissioner 1st Dist	J. Suter
Commissioner 2nd Dist	W. L. C. Demann
Commissioner 3rd Dist	O. J. Johnsen
Commissioner 4th Dist	Karl M. Hanson
Commissioner 5th Dist	J. B. Herbert

HENRY FRANCIS, M. D., C. M.
Member College Physicians and Surgeons, Ontario, ...
Office and residence first door south of Oen's hardware store.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.

List of Town Clerks.

Names	Township	Postoffice
Olof Larson	Numedal	Viking
C. E. Purdy	North	Thief River Falls
John E. Peterson	Bray	Bray
N. K. Anderson	Sanders	St. Hilaire
F. T. Satre	Rocksbury	T. R. Falls
O. T. Romsos	Polk Centre	Wylie
P. A. Eckstrom	Black River	Wylie
A. S. Anderson	River Falls	St. Hilaire
Ole J. Johnson	Wyandotte	"
A. D. Berry	Louisville	Huot
Hilaire Baril	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
Chas. E. Asp	Emardville	Lost
Edward Havik	Equality	Grit
Moses Ducharme	Lake Pleasant	R. L. F.
Edonor Perusse	Terrebonne	Terrebonne
J. B. Herbert	Poplar River	Brooks
Louis Doucet	Lambert	Lambert
J. L. Johnson	St. Hilaire	St. Hilaire
Lars Backe	Thief River F.	T. R. F.
A. P. Toupin	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
H. D. Baaryson	Norden	T. R. Falls
Olof Tande	Garnes	Garnes

A. O. LETVIG,
TUBULAR WELL CONTRACTOR.
A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed.
Repairing a Specialty.
WYLIE. MINNESOTA.



UNCLE SAM
Is not
In the Shoe
Business,
And
Neither
Am I,
But I can
Interest
You in
CIGARS.

ALL THE BEST SMOKERS BUY THEM

J.B. Cigars.

ALL THE BEST DEALERS SELL THEM.

J. B. ARMSTRONG,
Manufacturer.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA.

DAY F. STACY, C. E.
DEPUTY
County Surveyor.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.
Drainage and Farm Surveys a Specialty.

Market Report.—To-Day.

Wheat No. 1	.53½	Oats	.16
Wheat No. 2	.50½	Barley	.27
Wheat No. 3	.47½	Flax	1.37
Eggs (per doz.)	.12½	Butter (per lb)	.15

LOCAL NEWS.

Masquerade ball Feb. 14th.

Fresh oysters at A. F. Lang's.

35 degrees below yesterday morning.

Flour and feed at Leonard Holmes elevator.

Oysters prepared in any style at A. F. Lang's.

Wall paper and calcimine at the New Drug store.

The ice harvest is on and the crop is an excellent one.

J. G. Eggan has returned after an absence of five weeks.

A new stock of boys clothing just received at E. M. Hoff's.

Try a lunch, a meal or a weeks board at the Ideal Lunch Room.

Mrs. H. Tway was a visitor at the county seat Thursday last.

Oscar Larson departed for his home in Manatowoc, Wis., last week.

Chas, Hitchcock of Crookston came up Monday on a collecting tour.

Patronize home industry by buying your wall paper at the New Drug store.

Teachers examination February 2nd and 3rd. See notice elsewhere on this page.

BORN: To Mr. and Mrs. Aug. Erickson of River Falls township, Jan. 18 1900, a boy.

J. Hogquist will move to town next week and open up a tailor shop in the Dahleen building.

Mrs. Eli Blair of Red Lake Falls was the guest of her sister Mrs. Geo. Olson several days recently.

J. Q. Adams the optican and jeweler will be here Feb. 12th, 13th and 14th. Please remember the dates.

An elegant line of Rockers just received at Holmes Furniture Co. Come early while the selection is good.

The birthday party given at Brink's hall last evening was a success regardless of the 35 below weather.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

Two boiler makers arrived from Minneapolis and started in this morning to build a new smoke stack for the planing mill.

After April 1st L. J. Stranahan will hold down an office position with the Shevlin-Carpenter Lumber Company at Minneapolis.

Geo. Ossmann, the St. Paul fur buyer was here the first of the week and wrote out checks amounting to several thousand dollars.

H. Richards, shipping clerk of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company returned Monday from his two weeks vacation at the twin cities.

Alex Thompson, general agent for the Minneapolis Brewing Co., was here yesterday checking up the books of his house at this place.

Arnt Pederson, planing mill foreman of the St. Hilaire Lumber Co., left yesterday for Minneapolis to spend his two weeks vacation.

R. E. Farley, of Oakland, Neb., is here looking the country over with a view of locating a lot of good farmers from his state next spring and summer.

Banker Hannay returned home last Thursday after an absence of three weeks doing business and visiting at Omaha, Chicago and other points in the east.

Mrs. B. McVicker returned to her home in Minneapolis last week after spending several months as the guest of her sister Mrs. Wm. Lonsdale of this place.

W. W. Tousley and C. G. Kesler, representing the Dispatch and Globe of St. Paul respectively, were here the first of the week looking up old and new subscribers.

Seven parties were brought up before Justice Peters last Friday for stealing logs belonging to the Crookston Lumber Company. Two plead guilty and paid their fine and costs while the others were bound over and their cases will be brought before the next district court.

—Dr. Thomas is an up-to-date in all the different branches in his profession. Remember the dates, Feb. 26th and 27th.

The Strawbridge Mercantile Co., at one time in business here, but lately of Crookston will move their large stock of goods to Cass Lake and open up business there next month.

Gus. Olson returned home last Thursday from the lumbering woods near Black Duck on a visit to his family. He expects to go back again soon to put in the balance of the logging season.

The band boys will give a Masquerade ball Feb. 14th. They have secured the best orchestra of Red Lake Falls and that is a sufficient guarantee that the best kind of a time is in store for all who attend. All are invited.

The Hotel Wilmes of Red Lake Falls caught fire early Monday morning caused by an over-heated stove in the kitchen which ignited the wood box. The fire department quickly responded and soon had the fire extinguished. Considerable damage was done by smoke and water.

A defective chimney on the J. J. Branum house caused quite a commotion last Wednesday afternoon as it was burning out during the strong wind storm. As luck would have it, it was noticed in time and the fire put out. The fire warden should go around and examine all stove-pipes and chimneys and see that they are in good shape.

I want to let the people who suffer from rheumatism and sciatica know that Chamberlain's Pain Balm relieved me after a number of other medicines and a doctor had failed. It is the best liniment I have ever known of.—J. A. Dodgen, Alpharetta, Ga. Thousands have been cured of rheumatism by this remedy. One application relieves the pain. For sale by the Imperial Drug Store.

A new American girl will be introduced to the public in the pages of the March Ladies' Home Journal. She will owe her creation to Howard Chandler Christy, the young artist who has recently won great distinction for his most interesting portrayals of American womanhood. The first drawing will show the "American Girl at Church and subsequent ones will picture her as a bride, at college, at sports, on the farm, in society, as a daughter, and as a mother. There will be eight page pictures in all.

Swing a Broad Ax.

W. A. Case, the Modern Woodmen organizer has been presented with an elegant ring set with diamonds as a prize for having been the most successful organizer of lodges in the state of Minnesota during the last six months of 1899. In that time he personally secured 181 members and instituted 13 lodges. Mr. Case has been working in Crookston adding to the membership during the past six weeks, and as a result the local lodge has added fifty members.—Crookston Times.

The Red Lake Falls Schemers say that St. Hilaire is too late with its offer to give the county a free Court House and that if the bond proposition is voted down they will make it cost the county $2,000 for another election. Will the temporary court house schemers explain what they mean by this threat? They must either rule or ruin. It is never too late to do good and St. Hilaire's $10,000 Court House will prove a very acceptable gift at a time when crops are light and wheat ranging at about 50 cents a bushel.

—Go to the New Drug Store for your Stationery and School supplies.

Getting to the Front.

Whatever your idea of its politics—and it don't seem to have any to hurt—The Minneapolis Times—as a newspaper—is certainly getting to the front. Colonel Haskell seems to be at the head of a metropolitan daily—with all the news—there is to be had. The Times announces—and keeps it word—that The Times in addition to its extensive Association Press reports, has arranged, and is publishing every morning the New York Daily Herald's cable reports. There is no bluster about this—The Times is doing it.

—To cure a cough or cold in one day take the Imperial Cough Syrup.

The national convention to renominate President McKinley meets at Philadelphia in June. Think of it and how time passes! The state convention delegates must be elected at least thirty days before. This brings the state convention together not later than May. The county conventions must elect delegates at least twenty days prior—that means a convention in each county in the state not later than April and caucuses should be called at least ten days prior and with a ten day's previous notice—that means March. And here we are nearly up to February. Are we not—right in it—almost?—Fargo Forum.

Rev. Dr. Forbes will preach in the M. E. church on Saturday Feb. 3rd at 8 p. m., and on Sunday Feb. 4th at 11 a. m. After the morning service the sacrament of the Lord's supper will be administered. All are welcome.

Notice.

Teachers examination for Red Lake County under the new law will be held in the high school building in the city of Red Lake Falls Friday and Saturday February 2 and 3. It will be necessary for all persons expecting to teach in this county whose certificates expire prior to March 1st 1900, to attend this examination. All applicants will please be present promptly at 8 o'clock on the morning of the first day, as no questions can be furnished after the examination in any subject begins.

FRANK JEFFERS,
County Superintendent.

—It is better than ready money because it cures rheumatism, constipation sick headache, indigestion. Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure.

VOTE NO ON BONDS

Below You Will Find a Few Reasons why You Should Vote Against Bonds.

St. Hilaire or Thief River Falls Will Build a Court House Free to the County.

To The Voters of Red Lake County.

The schemers and county ring at Red Lake Falls want you to vote $10,000.00 more bonds. They are trying to fool you with a misleading array of figures into voting more bonds, by pretending that it will save you money. If you follow their advice, you will land the county in debt as badly as Red Lake Falls already is.

WHAT THEY HAVE DONE WITH RED LAKE FALLS:

The tax rate is almost seven per cent per annum: they are above the legal limit of debt, and Red Lake Falls is to-day the most bankrupt town in the state. Over four thousand three hundred lots in that town will be sold in a few weeks to pay accumulated back taxes.

RED LAKE COUNTY IS ALREADY BONDED FOR $30,000.00:

And the money is all spent, without very much to show for it: Polk county is claiming $15,000.00 more, which, if allowed, will make the total debt $50,000.00. The ten thousand more which they ask you to vote is merely a bait to draw you on. When that is spent more money will be needed, and the probable result will be that you will be drawn into an expenditure of thirty or forty thousand dollars before you get through with the court house scheme.

If this scheme was an honest one, why was it kept concealed till the last minute, and passed over the protest of two of the county commissioners, and the election called at a time when it was known that many of the voters were away from home at work in the woods?

YOU CAN HAVE A COURT HOUSE FREE!

If you think that a new court house is absolutely necessary, you can have one free by locating the County Seat either at St. Hilaire or Thief River Falls.

We published a copy of the guarantee of these towns, and the original documents are now in the vaults of the First State Bank of Theif River Falls, and can be seen by any voters of the county.

If Red Lake Falls has the interest of the county at heart, and wishes to economize, let it donate a suitable site for a court house and give the $10,000.00 to boot.

RED LAKE COUNTY NEEDS MONEY TO SPEND ON DRAINS AND DITCHES, AND IMPROVED ROADS.

Farmers, help yourselves first, and don't load yourselves down with taxes, to accomodate the citizens of Red Lake Falls!

To the County Commissioners and Tax Payers of Red Lake County, Minn.

THE UNDERSIGNED, citizens and residents of St. Hilaire hereby guarantee to you that if the County Seat of Red Lake county shall during the next three years be located within the Village of St. Hilaire, we will furnish a suitable site for a Court House and Jail, and build thereon a suitable Court House and Jail, to cost not less than ten thousand dollars, which ground and building shall be the property of the county FREE.

H E Ives.	J L Johnson.
J K Hannay.	E J Brink.
C G Rapp.	Emil J Holmes.
M McAndress.	J J Soll.
Daniel Patterson.	D Collins.
Peter Hall.	O F Post.
M E Bjerk.	Leonard Holmes.
A H Weagant.	H O Jackson.
P G Paradis.	Wm Olson.
W A Sorsoleil.	Ed Whaley.
Wm Eikhoff.	A C Adams.
J W Peterson.	R H Almer.
E M Hoff.	Alfred Dalnard.
J Nelson.	M Lacousiere.
T J Thorkelson.	J H Fenno.
K O Gigstad.	O W Brink.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Red Lake. } ss.

On this 30th day of January A. D., nineteen hundred, personally appeared the persons whose names are above subscribed, and acknowledged that they severally executed the same as their free act and deed.

[SEAL.] K. O. GIGSTAD.
Notary Public, Red Lake Co., Minn.

Dentist.

—Dr. J. H. Thomas, the Crookston dentist will be at Hotel Markham, St. Hilaire, Feb. 26th and 27th prepared to do all kinds of up to date dental work in all branches. All work warranted. Remember the dates 26th and 27th.

Methodist Church.

Services will be held in the Methodist church on Sunday morning at 11 a. m. and in the evening at 7:30.

N. J. VERNON, Pastor.

—If you are troubled with rheumatism take the Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure. It will positively cure all diseases arising from impure blood, and is sold under an absolute guarantee to benefit or money refunded. Call for free sample at the New Drug Store.

Regulate Your Watch.

As Johnson's barber shop and it if don't keep time, leave it, and we will repair it and warrant it to keep time for one year. New watches, clocks chains and jewelry for sale at the lowest prices. I will be at Johnson's barber shop the 12th 13th and 14th of every month. All work left at Johnson's will have my personal attention. When you come to Red Lake Falls make the Palace Jewelry Store your headquarters.

I am yours truly
PROF. J. Q. ADAMS,
Watchmaker and Optician.

—For cuts and sores there is nothing better than the Imperial Carbolic salve.

THE COURT HOUSE.

The following article from the Thief River Falls Press in regard to voting $10,000 bonds to build a court house size up the situation exactly. Read it over carefully and look it over again just before you go to the polls:

The Courier came out last week in a double column article in which they represent a settlement page in book keeping with the county twenty years hence in which they bring the county in the "hole" $26,147,80. This voluminous amount of loss is figured on the basis "IF carried on for 20 years." Why do they not "if" it alone for 40 or 50 years or even 100 years, the figures would be still larges, but has anyone an idea that this thing will continue 20 years, or even 5 years or of a necessity 2 years. There are buildings in this county today, perfectly suitable for a court house that, if the people would say the word would not cost the county one cent to occupy. Cut this long period of 20 years down to 2 years if you please, which the electors can do if they choose and see what we have.

	20 yrs.	2 yrs.
Rent at $28.10 per year	$562.00	$56.20
Extra ins. present rate	700.00	70.00
Total	$262.00	1026.20

Overestimate $235.80.

Admitting that a new vault must be built at a cost of $500 does anyone expect for a moment that that will run 20 years at 5 per cent before it is paid?

Again they figure the cost of keeping prisoners in Polk Co., paid for 20 years at the present rate to be $6600.00, and transporting the same $235.00 What a bonanza for Polk Co. Is this county going 20 years without a jail? Has Red Lake Falls offered to present the county with a jail if the court house is built there? Not as anyone has heard of. There is a little sum of 15,885.80 extra figures against the county without any cause. This leaves a total of superfluous figures of 24,121.60.

In another collection of figure work the Courier has as follows:

Proposed bond issue	$10000
20 years interest at 5 per cent	10000
Total	20000
Less premium at time of sale estimated	1000
Total	10000

It will be plainly seen if the Court house is built as proposed on this 20-year-5-per cent bond basis it will cost the county an unecessary outlay of $19000.00 or an outlay of 17,373.80 after a 2 year run as we are sure the electors of this county will never submit to. They have also figured $1,000 as a premium on the sale of the bonds which is not done yet neither is there any prospects of its ever being done. If anyone will examine the figures carefully they will see plainly that it is a vast stretch of imagination set down in figures with the idea that the voters of this county would not "see the woodchuck in the wood-pile" that Red Lake Falls is anxious to fasten the county seat in that progressive city at a time when the county would poll its lightest vote and a deficiency in the territory that would be the strongest against them besides being called on Saturday which would give the shortest possible time to get in their returns unless there is a special provision to bridge over Sunday. Then another advantage they no doubt figure on is the District Court which convenes in that city on Monday the 12th and will no doubt continue in session over the 24th, thus giving Red Lake Falls her full vote and drawing, as necessary attendants at court, a large per cent of the electors in the balance of the county, who could not get home to vote. It appears to be a big scheme, poorly covered.

Just see for a moment:

A petition and resolution kept in the dark until presented to the County Commissioners at the last minute before adjournment and passed by a vote of 3 in faver and 2 against. See.

Called on a day, the 24th of February when 30 if not 50 per cent of the electors who they fear as opponents to the scheme are away from home. See.

At a time when court will probably be in session and thus force a large per cent of the electors, who are not away to work, to be away from home, at the county seat. See.

Setting the election on Saturday when the question of taking the returns to the county seat in 24 hours from the closing of the polls, as prescribed by law, would be cut down to 9 hours, 12 o'clock Saturday night. See.

Let the settlers in this county devote their energy and means to getting the water off their farms and thereby make their farming more profitable and thus become able to pay their taxes regular every year until some of the $35,000 if not $75,000 of the bonded indebtedness is taken care of before they vote to help a scheme that will benefit only a single locality and but a stepping stone to another demand that is sure to come sooner or later, a jail, which will cost twice the amount of the proposed court house.

"A young man came into our store yesterday suffering from a severe attack of cramp colic," writes B. F. Hess, miller and general merchant, Dickey's Mountain, Pa. "He had tried various home remedies without relief. As I had used Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy I gave him a dose and it soon brought him out all right. I never saw a fellow so rejoiced." Sold by the Imperial Drug Store.

Notice for Bids.

Notice is hereby given that the county auditor will receive bids for 40 cords second growth poplar wood to be delivered at the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls. Bids will be received and considered by the board of county commissioners on the second day of their session in March next or more. Bids to be presented to the county auditor on or before Feb. 19th 1900. The board reserved the right to reject any or all bids.

Attest. By order of the Board,
ADAM ZEH, County Auditor.

We Handle Everything.

Start the Day Right

And everything will go smoothly. The proper way to start the day is by coming around to our store and ordering a supply of groceries for the day, such things as you may need. It will take you but a few minutes, and we feel sure you will not regret it.

Our Groceries

Are always fresh, and the prices are as near right as we know how to make them. If you have not been in the habit of trading with us, drop in and see us anyway; you might get into the habit.

Hardware

We carry everything in the hardware line from cooking stoves down to tacks—all you have to do is to ask for what you want. If you want anything in the tin or copper line done drop into our tin shop and your wants will be attended to.

Yours very truly,

RAPP & POST
St. Hilaire, Minnesota.

M. A. HALL
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS,
GROCERIES,
NOTIONS,
GENTS FURNISHING GOODS,
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
CONFECTIONERY

GO TO THE New Hardware Store for anything you need in the line of Hardware, Paints, Oils, Stoves, Harness
AND PLOWS.
Also agent for Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines. Call and get prices.
A. H. WEAGANT.

LEONARD HOLMES,
—DEALER IN—
Agricultural Implements..
WHEAT, FLAX OATS AND BARLEY.
Flour and Feed always on Hand.

Lumber! Lumber!
OF ALL KINDS.
We have a large and well assorted stock of Dry Lumber and are prepared to fill all orders on short notice. We also carry a complete assortment
—OF—
Sash, Doors, Paper
AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL.
Which we buy in large quantities and are thereby enabled to sell at lowest market prices.
ST. HILAIRE LUMBER CO.

IF YOU INTEND TO
Buy Furniture
Come and look our assortment over. We carry everything in the Furniture line including picture frames and musical instruments. Prices reasonable.
Holmes Furniture Co.

The Arnewood Mystery

BY MAURICE H. HERVEY.

Author of "Dead Man's Court," "Somerville's Crime," "Dartmoor," "Maravin's Money," etc., etc.

CHAPTER XIII. (Continued.)

"Yes, I think so; with help. But it seems I must go through the formality of taking possession of Arnewood Hall in person. Grudgery tells me there is a binding clause to that effect in the title deeds; and, of course, I must comply with it. I sent for you, in fact, to ask you to accompany me."

"Most certainly. But are you fit to travel?"

"It is no distance, barely twenty-four miles, and there is a railway station within three miles of the house. I can manage it all right with your assistance. Indeed, I feel better already. The knowledge that you are with me seems to brace me up. I told Grudgery that, in the event of your coming, we would all three travel down to Naas by the 12:15 train, so I've nothing to do but notify him that you are here. If you'll order breakfast, I'll try and share it with you in the next room. Meanwhile, perhaps you won't mind telling them to send some one to help me dress."

There was an attempt of briskness in his tone which the weak voice sadly belied. Nevertheless, I affected not to notice it, and proceeded to execute his orders with great show of alacrity. In the hall a short, stout man was talking to the porter. He turned his head at the sound of my voice. It was the mysterious "stranger."

CHAPTER XIV.

A Tell-Tale Check.

From the utterly uninterested look with which my late fellow-traveler favored me, I felt pretty sure that he was not aware we had crossed the Channel together, nor did I affect to take the slightest notice of him. I simply ordered breakfast for two, and a valet for No. 8, as requested. Then I became interested in time-tables and play-bills, wondering the while what the stout man was trying to explain to the hall porter. This latter functionary looked extremely perplexed, not to say distressed, but kept on shaking his head as though resolved that nothing should extract an affirmative reply from him. His questioner, with an impatient shrug, went toward the hotel office, as though to pursue his inquiries there, but suddenly changed his mind, turned upon his heel and walked out into the street.

"Beg pardon, your honor," said the hall-porter to me, in an apologetic tone, "but as you're a friend of the Captain's, maybe you'll tell him there's another of them wanting to see him. My orders to say he's not here at all (exceptin' to your honor and the lawyers), but this chap wouldn't take that for an answer. He's as good as told me I was a liar; but in the end, he said he'd call again in the afternoon."

"Did he leave no name or message?"

"Never a one, sir; except that his business was very important."

"Very well," I said. "I'll let Captain Arnewood know. Meanwhile, you stick to your orders."

"Trust me for that, sir," he rejoined, grimly. "Shure, it's paid I am to tell lies to order."

I was agreeably surprised to see what an improving effect a careful toilet (or was it, really, the result of my arrival?) had produced upon the Captain's appearance. Weak, he certainly was; indeed, he could scarcely walk without help. But the hopeless, weary-unto-death look had given place to something approaching animation. Coffee and dry toast were all I could persuade him to touch; and he nibbled and sipped while I did ample justice to a first-rate breakfast. I kept up as lively a conversation as possible during the meal, but when the things had been cleared and we had our cigars fairly under way, I deemed the opportunity a good one to deliver the hall-porter's message, adding thereto a very careful description of the inquirer.

I could not refrain from a deep-drawn sigh of relief. Suddenly and pointedly as I had sprung the very marked peculiarities of the man upon the Captain, he evinced not the faintest sign of recognizing him.

"I haven't the least idea who the fellow can be," he remarked, carelessly; "but I may tell you that ever since the news of my succession to Arnewood has become known, relatives to the tenth degree and hangers-on of the family of all sorts are (as I understand) hunting for me everywhere. Hence, my orders to the hotel people are to deny all knowledge of my whereabouts."

This was as plain and satisfactory as any statement could well be, but it naturally intensified my desire to find out the identity of the stranger and the name of his employer. And I think my heart beat a little faster than usual when I reflected that if I could but satisfactorily ferret out either of these secrets, the key to the solution of the great Arnewood Mystery would be in my hands.

"I should very much like you to see the man," I rejoined, "even though you do not recognize him form my description. It may be you would remember having seen him at some time or other, and I may as well tell you that I attach the utmost importance to finding out who he is."

"In connection with the murder?"

"Yes," I assented. "I have reason to believe he could throw some light on it if he chose."

"Then you must yourself know something of the fellow?" he urged, eagerly. "You have, at all events, seen him before?"

"He answers very exactly to the description of an individual who inquired for you at your London club, and who certainly traveled by the mail last night from Euston. More than this, I scarcely feel justified in saying at present, because I have, after all, nothing but a description to go upon, and I might be quite wrong in my conjectures."

"You have made me feel quite anxious to see him, and, as you suggested just now, I may possibly be able to identify him. I certainly think I shall tell the people here to show him up, should he change his mind and call again before we start."

Of this proposal I expressed my entire approval, and the necessary instructions were accordingly given. Our conversation then became somewhat embarrassing to me, for the reason that Captain Arnewood would insist upon harping upon the subject of his unknown visitor, and pushed me very hard to reply to all his questions with telling him everything. This I could not make up my mind to do. He was of too excitable a temperament (especially in his then overstrained nervous state) to be intrusted with so trying a secret. He would be unable, I felt sure, to keep it to himself, even if he did not go to the length of at once invoking police aid to effect his visitor's arrest. Now, anything like premature action of this sort would infallibly ruin my plan to entrapp Blogg and the stranger in the old house in Rodney avenue. So I had to parry the questions as best I could, and saw plainly that he was but poorly satisfied with my explanations. I was right down glad when a sharp rapping at the door eased the situation.

"Come in!" exclaimed the Captain, with a glance of eager curiosity toward the door. We naturally, both expected the earlier visitor.

No greater contrast could well have been found than the tall, slim, yellow-moustached, blue-eyed, well-bred young man who entered a moment later.

"How d' do, Dick?" was his greeting, spoken in the leisurely manner characteristic of idle men. "Not looking very bright, I must say. London evidently don't agree with you, old fellow, and the sooner you settle down to your new life at Arnewood, the longer you'll live to enjoy it."

The look of expectation upon Captain Arnewood's face had been succeeded by one of barely-concealed annoyance upon the entrance of the newcomer. But the calm assurance of the latter's introductory remarks—so utterly at variance with the invalid's own convictions—seemed to irritate him exceedingly.

"London agrees with me well enough," he answered, testily; "it is this confounded place that is killing me. As to living at Arnewood Hall, I'd rather inhabit a garret in the Seven Dials! So soon as ever I can get through the absurd formalities which the lawyers say are so essential, I'll either shut up the house or let it. I've told you so before."

"I know you have," was the rejoinder, "but it never occurred to me to believe you were in earnest. In fact, I don't see how you possibly can be in earnest. It's just a whim that has come over you, and I mean to cure you of it."

"See here, Philip," said the Captain, with frigid distinctness, "I wish you to understand that my mind is quite made up on that point, and that I shall regard any further reference, on your part as to my future movements as an unwarrantable liberty. Moreover, I am engaged upon business of the utmost importance, and cannot just at present spare time for discussion of any sort. The gentleman with me is my London agent, Mr. Weston. Mr. Weston, this is my kinsman, Mr. Philip Blake."

There was little to choose between us for coldness in acknowledging this introduction. Mr. Blake probably regarded me as an interloper, while I most certainly felt prejudiced against him for irritating my client. We merely bowed.

"Oh, bother business, Dick!" he exclaimed, impatiently. "Fancy a man who has just come into ever so many thousands a year, bothering about business!"

"My business with Mr. Weston does not concern the thousands a year," rejoined Captain Arnewood, drily.

"What! Still worrying about that Soho affair? What's the use. I daresay it's quite the correct thing for you to offer rewards and stir up the police, but why worry about a dead man? You never even saw? You can't bring him back to life!"

"No; but I may do him the tardy justice of bringing his murderer to the gallows."

"Ah, well! You were always a romantic sort of fellow," remarked Mr. Blake, with a half-pitying shrug of his shoulders. "I hope you'll succeed in hanging the brute, if you think you'll feel the better for it. Meanwhile, does it occur to you that the day after to-morrow will be Christmas Day, and that, if you don't show up at Arnewood for the silly old festival, there'll be something like an insurrection among the tenantry?"

Captain Arnewood looked by no means pleased in having his hand forced in this manner. "Mr. Blake," he said, turning towards me, "refers to an old family tradition which makes it out to be an extremely unlucky event for everyone connected with the place, should the Squire be absent from the Hall at Christmas. But," he added, with a marked pause upon the pronouns, "as you and I are going down there to-day, the claims of superstition will be amply satisfied."

Mr. Philip Blake ignored the emphasized pronouns completely. "The deuce you are!" was his comment. "Then I'll go, too!"

I pitied Captain Arnewood. His visitor's persistence evidently annoyed him extremely, and yet he seemed to lack the moral courage to assert himself. He shifted uneasily upon his chair and signalled me plainly to leave the room. Of course, I did so, upon some half-muttered excuse, allowing them a quarter of an hour to arrive at an understanding, and then returned. I noticed, as I entered, that my client's check-book was lying open upon a writing table.

"Well, ta-ta for the moment, old fellow," said Mr. Blake, apparently accepting my reappearance as a signal for leave-taking. "If I'm anywhere near Broadstone I'll see you off. Good-day, Mr.—er—Watson."

There was a poorly-veiled insolence in the man's tone that convinced me the mistake in my name was intentional, and I am slow at pocketing an affront.

"Should you ever have occasion to address me again," I retorted, "be good enough to remember that my name is Weston."

He looked at me as though about to complicate matters by an angry rejoinder, but suddenly seized his hat and quitted the room.

"Thank Heaven!" ejaculated Captain Arnewood—but he offered no further explanation, and I was left to form my own conclusions for my abrupt dismissal and the presence of the check book upon the table.

Once more I felt myself upon the horns of an awkward dilemma. I had been sent away, and, during my absense, Philip Blake had received a check. This much seemed quite clear. But why had this check been given to him? Was it merely the usual sop thrown to a hard-up kinsman by the head of the family? Or was it—blackmail? There are times when one has to decide upon a prompt course of action at a moment's notice. This was one of them. Fair or unfair, good form or bad, I deemed it essential that I should know something more about that check, and my instant thought was to examine the counterfoil. This I did, under pretext of handing the check-book to its owner. The last check was drawn in favor of Richard Blake, Esq., or Bearer, for £850. And this was the exact amount payable to Blogg by the stranger, on behalf of his employer, four days later, in Rodney Avenue!

"As I understand, then, Mr. Blake will not accompany us to Arnewood?" I asked, with an effort to appear unconcerned.

"Thank Heaven, no!" he again ejaculated. "I have enabled him to tide over a difficulty he has got into in London, and he leaves for the Metropolis to-night, or, at latest, to-morrow. The dearest wish of my heart is that I may never see him again."

There was no mistaking the bitter sincerity of either the words or the tone that expressed them; and, little subject as I am to emotional weakness, my heart went out to him in very pith of his misery. And then there came upon me, as though by inspiration, a revelation of my duty. I was no briefed counsel defending a prisoner on trial for his life, and justified in taking almost any measures to acheive that end. I was the paid agent of a client, and my mission was to unravel a mysterious murder. Evidence had, more or less indirectly, throughout, tended to incriminate my client himself; and now came the utterly convincing check, obviously paid under pressure. In the face of this I could no longer feel any confidence in my client's innocence. The time has come for an explanation with Richard Arnewood.

"Captain Arnewood," I said, very earnestly, "you are in some heavier trouble than you have deemed it expedient to confide in me, and I am compelled to form an opinion as to what that trouble is."

"Are you, Mr. Weston?" he echoed, with a poor, wan attempt at a smile. "Why?"

"The lawyers cannot be here for another half-hour. Do you think you are well enough to hear all that I know—and suspect—about your cousin's death?"

"Yes!" he answered, with almost startling force. "That is precisely what I want to learn; what you know, and (above all) what you suspect!"

I looked at him, more puzzled than ever by his strange changes of humor. Expectancy — eager expectancy — was all I could read in his face. My task was not a very lengthy one, as I had merely to superadd what I had previously supposed to what he already knew. He only once interrupted me, with a request for some brandy, while I was speaking of Billy's adventure in Rodney Avenue. I paused at the incident of my dismissal from the room in favor of Mr. Blake.

"Well?" he interjected, passing his hand several times cross his forehead.

"There is little more to be said, Captain Arnewood," I rejoined, "except that, unless you can satisfy me that the check you gave your relative had no reference to the case intrusted to me, I must ask you to place it in other hands. I have seen the counterfoil in your check-book!"

The unhappy man started to his feet, but fell back, limp and helpless, in his armchair. One look he gave me—a look of such wild horror, that I shall never forget it—and then he seemed to double up on the chair and from it slip to the floor. I sprang forward to raise him just as two gentlemen entered, in one of whom I recognized Mr. O'Flynn.

"Bless my heart!" exclaimed the latter. "Another fit, is it? Sure, it's lucky they sent Dr. Redwood with me! Do you think he'll manage the 12:15 train, doctor?"

"No," replied the doctor, gravely, after a careful examination of the prostrate form, "Captain Arnewood will travel by no more trains—alive. The heart's action has failed. He is dead!"

CHAPTER XV.

News of the Newsman.

For some moments Mr. O'Flynn and I stood staring at the doctor in speechless surprise. Was it, indeed, true that another heir to the fateful Arnewood succession had been stricken down ere he had fairly entered into his inheritance?

"Did anyone iver hear the like?" groaned the confidential clerk. "Another of 'em cut off at a moment's notice, without so much as a 'by your lave!' Is it sure you are, doctor, that he'd dead entirely?"

"Quite sure," was the convincing reply. "But, although I have several times attended the deceased gentleman, I am not prepared to certify the cause of death. There has been some other agency at work, in my opinion, than heart-weakness. You should at once notify the coroner, Mr. O'Flynn."

This decision had, of course, the effect of expelling us from the chamber of death, and I accompanied the head clerk to the solicitor's office, where we found Mr. O'Brien upon the point of starting for the Shelborne Hotel to pick up his client. A clean-shaven, portly, hard-featured man, little likely to be upset by even a sudden death. Nor was he. He simply removed his overcoat, issued such instructions as the occasion demanded, and expressed regret that my mission should have such an abrupt termination.

"Oddly enough," he remarked, "Captain Arnewood had a strange foreboding of impending death, which he seemed to think your presence would somehow avert. He was, nevertheless, prepared for the worst, and only yesterday signed a codicil to his will, which I drew up at his request. I may, without indiscretion, inform you that this codicil provides for the payment of the reward as well as of all inquiry fees; and I may congratulate you upon a bequest of 'one thousand pounds to Ralph Weston, Esquire, as a mark of personal esteem.' My late client thought very highly of you."

"You astound me!" I exclaimed. "My acquaintance with Captain Arnewood was so brief that such a bequest is absolutely bewildering!"

"No reason for declining it when the will is proved," was the dry rejoinder. "May I ask whether you see any hope of a speedy termination of the Soho affair?"

"Impossible to say at present," I replied, guardedly; "but I must, if possible, be back in London within four days."

"Nothing to prevent you, as far as the inquest is concerned, from returning to-morrow. You will merely have to give evidence as to the death in your presence. The doctors will do the rest."

I was not so sure of that. Dr. Redwood's opinion had not been a reassuring one, and it was bound to carry great weight in the inquiry. Almost certainly I would be cross-questioned as to the subject-matter of our conversation immediately preceding death. And how could I bring myself to make admissions that would besmirch my unfortunate patron's memory with almost obvious complicity in a terrible crime? It was not only that he had been throughout a model client; it was not that he had made a handsome posthumous provision in my favor. As a man of the world, these facts could not fail to enlist my sympathies on his behalf, living or dead. But, quite apart, I had an underlying belief (against the weight of evidence and my own judgment) that Richard Arnewood had been guiltless of his cousin's blood; and, for once in a way, I resolved to obey instinct rather than reason. Mr. O'Brien looked at me curiously, and the hard, stern face gradually softened.

"See here, Mr. Weston," he resumed. "I have no wish to pry into your affairs, but your manner leaves me under the impression that you do not exactly court an inquiry into the decease of Captain Arnewood."

"Sir!" I exclaimed, "what do you mean?"

"No harm, I assure you," he rejoined, placing a friendly hand upon my arm. "The position is simple enough. For many generations the Arnewoods have been valued clients of our firm, and we would go very far, indeed, to save the old family name from the breath of scandal. Do you follow me?"

"Scarcely," I answered. "Surely no scandal attaches to the sudden demise of a man known to be suffering from disease of the heart?"

"You are fencing with me, Mr. Weston."

This was so true that, had he spoken with even a trace of sarcasm in his tone, I should have retorted hotly. But his words were uttered in such kindly fashion that I could not.

"Will you please tell me exactly what you would suggest?" I asked.

"Yes," he replied, "I will. Let me compliment you, also, upon your use of the word 'suggest.' It exactly fits the case. What I would suggest, then, is, that—you have ascertained more about the facts of the so-called Soho Mystery than you have yet made public."

"Well, admitting that, what more?"

"That—were Captain Arnewood still alive—you would, say, dissuade him from pursuing the inquiry, with the same zeal as heretofore, lest results disastrous to the family name should ensue."

"Were he alive, I should simply obey his instructions," I replied. "I could scarcely offer advice implying a doubt of his own innocence, especially as I am convinced that he had no hand or part in the death of his cousin."

Mr. O'Brien gave a deep sigh of relief.

"Your words take a load off my mind," he said, earnestly. "The fact is that Captain Arnewood's manner had been so strange, ever since that terrible affair, and his references to it so mysterious, I was driven to conclude he was somehow mixed up in it. I even ventured to hint as much once, and was by no means favorably impressed by his incoherent reply. The reward I came to regard as merely a herring across the trail. In short, I have been in daily dread of some awful exposure, and my anxiety has been fully shared by my partner. May I take it that no real cause exists for this anxiety, as regards our late client?"

"I hope so, and believe so," I replied, still strong in my conviction that Richard Arnewood was innocent, despite appearances. "But, even should it prove otherwise, would you ask me to spare the guilty living in order to shield the memory of the possibly guilty dead?"

"God forbid, Mr. Weston!" exclaimed the old lawyer, energetically. "The utmost I intended to ask of you was that, should the evidence in your possession point to my late client as the instigator (if not the actual perpetrator) of Luke Arnewood's murder, you will refrain from publishing the disgraceful fact to the world. Captain Arnewood has passed beyond the jurisdiction of any earthly tribunal, and no good could result from branding his name with infamy. But if, as your words imply, others than he were guilty, you are, I think, bound by every consideration of duty and honor to bring them to the bar of justice."

(To Be Continued.)

HAND BETRAYS THE CHARACTER.

Revelation Is to Be Found in the Way the Hands Hang in Repose.

There is a great deal in the hang of the hand when free and at ease: A man drops his hands to his sides by a purely unconscious action in the majority of cases, and all unconscious actions are important to a would-be judge of character. Sit at a window and watch the passers-by. The man whose first and little fingers are stretched straight down, with the two others curled inward, is endowed with accurate judgment and precise forethought.

If a long and well formed thumb hangs parallel with the outstretched fingers, al his actions will be the result of thought and his words well weighed before spoken. Unless the upper phalange of his thumb shows a tendency to turn outward he will be too grave to be good company.

Another, whose forefinger alone points downward, is by profession a teacher—possibly a preacher. The same man, when listening intently, will have a habit of resting the finger on his temple.

The characteristics of the teacher, and the man of judgment, combined in the right and left hands, respectively, denote some one in the capacity of a judge—a man who is constantly accustomed to weigh a point and lay it down as his dictum.

The forefinger and second finger, if seen hanging down close together, might denote the judge's clerk, whose business leads him to turn over papers with a hand constantly ready for the pen.

The average man of all classes walks with his fist half-doubled. Marked characteristics are, in his case, unusual, or too undeveloped to be demonstrated by the fingers in this way.

This instance might be brought forward in corroboration of the theory advanced by professors of palmistry, who say that the seat of the will lies in the thumb.—Pearson's.

Luck.

"No," she answered coldly, "I cannot marry a man who carries a rabbit's foot for luck."

For a moment he contemplated her in intense silence, but only for a moment.

"Who," he exclaimed, "can doubt the efficacy of the rabbit's foot after this?"

Then he left her forever, pausing only to laugh the wild, mirthless laugh which was suitable to the occasion.—Detroit Journal.

Champagne.

It is asserted that the wine cellars of France contain champagne enough to supply the world's demand for three years—nearly 150,000,000 bottles.

The world may owe every man a living, but the miner is the one who digs down into the earth's pockets and gets it.

FARM AND GARDEN.

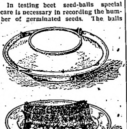
MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof—Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

Testing Seeds.

We herewith show an arrangement for testing seeds, as described in a publication by the Department of Agriculture. Take two plates and place in one of them a folded cloth. Wool or flannel is preferable, since it remains moist for a long time, but any cloth will do. The cloth should be free from dyes that will come out in water, since they may contain chemicals that may be injurious to the seed. Wet the cloth, pressing out the surplus water, leaving it very damp, but not soaked. Place the seeds between the folds of cloth, put in the number of the record, marked in pencil on a piece of paper, with date and number of seeds, and cover with the second plate inverted. Plenty of air will get in between the plates and the upper one will prevent too rapid evaporation of moisture. If the tests are to be made during the winter, keep the apparatus in the living room, as the heat of such room will be sufficient for most seeds. During the night the seeds should be put in a warm place. Instead of the cloth, old newspapers well-soaked may be used. These need to be moistened more frequently, however.

In testing beet seed-balls special care is necessary in recording the number of germinated seeds. The balls must be left in the test during the entire time of fourteen days, but whenever a seed has sprouted it must be cut out with a sharp knife. One hundred seed balls should produce at least 150 seedlings.



Simple germinating apparatus: A, closed. B, open.

Growing Potatoes.

In early spring, last year, I plowed to the depth of six inches, a piece of blue grass sod. In May I cut the sod thoroughly with the disc. The latter part of June I planted the land to potatoes in the following manner, says a contributor to Epitomist: Plowed one round in the middle of the patch. Planted potatoes—which were cut in halves—in these two furrows. Placed the seed on the mellow soil, at the side of the furrow, and a little from the bottom in order to prevent the furrow horse from stepping on it, and also to guard against planting too deep. Covered with the plow, and then planted in every third furrow.

The flat side of the seed was placed underneath, for that gives each plant a fair chance and the crop will ripen evenly. When the potatoes had had time to sprout nicely, the ground was thoroughly harrowed. As soon as the plants appeared above ground the cultivator was put to work, and followed with the harrow. They were now left alone until six or eight inches high. Potatoes planted in this way do not make much growth until the fall rains come. But I have always succeeded in growing a good crop by planting the middle of June. My last year's crop yielded 285 bushels per acre. I always plant a late variety, if I plant late in the season.

My regular system is to plow my potato ground late in the fall or very early in the spring. I am never much bothered with bugs. Just as soon as the soil is fit to work in the spring I plant early potatoes. I always cut off and throw away the cluster of sprouts at the bloom end of the tuber when cutting the seed. Too many sprouts in one bunch will produce small potatoes. If early potatoes fail—and they often do in this locality—the late crop can be relied upon. Last year my late potatoes were sold for 50 cents a bushel, which made me $142.50 an acre.

Horticultural Observations.

When trees are planted in an orchard with the idea of cutting some of them out the Missouri pippin is recommended for alternate rows. It is an early bearer and short lived. The trouble with trees that are not short-lived is that when once put into the orchard they are neglected and allowed to grow long after they should have been taken out. A tree that dies itself is to be preferred in such a position.

The state fruit lists are open to criticism, especially when the states cover several degrees of latitude or have diverse conditions caused by large bodies of water or many elevations. Most of these fruit lists are made by a committee chosen from different parts of the state, often coming from counties where the soil, climate, and elevations are different. They meet and find themselves at variance and have to patch up the best truce they can. Perhaps this is as well as can be done under the circumstances, but it is evident that we will have to get down to more serious work in the future.

Someone asks the question: "Is cold storage diminishing the necessity for late-keeping varieties of apples?" In the light of the present year's experience we would say no. Even cold storage cannot be depended on to keep the fall varieties till mid-winter or spring. Many thousands of barrels of that kind of fruit that went into cold storage last fall kept very badly. This may not have been the fault of the cold storage, but of the condition of the fruit when it was put in. We cannot depend on storing fruit in proper condition for storage, or if it is to be eaten up as soon as it gets out of the cold storage house. We must have apples that will hold together for weeks before being stored as well as weeks after coming from the cold storage house. If a man buys a barrel of apples for his family he wants to know that they will last some weeks till they can be used up. No, cold storage has not diminished the necessity for late keeping fruits.

Conserving Virility.

The surest way to ruin a bull's breeding qualities is to consider him a prisoner condemned to durance vile in a solitary cell where he is fed all the corn he will eat. Lack of exercise and corn explain the fact that many a bull fails to get calves and the wise stockbreeder will substitute oats, middlings, bran, oil meal and roots for that great hog fattening food, corn. Rather than keep the bull penned up in a stall all of the time it would be much better to harness him to a manure cart or other vehicle and keep him thus in good muscular trim. On the other hand bulls are also frequently spoiled by turning out to pasture with the cows where they often overdo themselves and soon prove impotent. The bull should only be treated in this manner upon the great ranges of the west where it is out of the question to do otherwise. Give the bull ample exercise in a roomy box stall and paddock attached, turn a young bull in with him for company, and feed him upon a nitrogenous ration, bring the cows to him, and there will be little complaint of his failing to breed.

The same remarks apply to the stallion and other male animals, for, with all of them lack of exercise, too much corn or overbreeding are the common causes of impotence. We are also of the opinion that the reason so many cows fail to come in heat or prove with calf is the same overfeeding upon corn, and breeders will do well to remember this rather than experiment with nostrums and empirics. Nature will set such matters right if given a chance.

Concentration of Breeding.

Important as the head of the herd is to the highest development of its members, it is surprising to continually hear of dairymen ignoring breed and performance of a strain and selecting the cheapest animal, says New Zealand Dairyman. It is all the more strange considering that, in buying a bull, it is not so much a matter of putting money into an individual animal, but it means the improvement of the whole future stock, and the improvement, of course, must be largely gauged by the value of the animal selected as the head. Selection and culling of the cows is most important, but the surest and speediest way of bringing up the herd is to have a finely bred bull from a proved milking strain. As dairy farmers in New Zealand get cramped for room, concentration in everything else must necessarily follow—concentration of cultivation, of feeding and of breeding. By concentration of breeding we mean making one good, well bred-up cow do the work of two scrubbers. When prices get tighter, dairymen who are slow to see this principle now will have the fact forced upon them that they can't afford to feed and care for the scrub animal; it is the men who have already learned this lesson who are now happy and prosperous members of the great dairying fraternity.

Old or Young Sows.

A bulletin on hog raising in the south says: The number of litters which a sow should be allowed to have before she is fattened for butchering depends on the animal herself. When a young sow has only four or five pigs, or shows herself to be a poor milker or a careless and indifferent mother, the sooner she is fattened the better; but if she does fairly well she should be given a second trial. The second litter is usually larger than the first. If she then proves a good mother and her pigs from both litters develop into good porkers, she should be kept as a breeder until she can be replaced by a more prolific and better animal. An old sow which regularly raises large litters of good pigs is worth half a dozen untried gilts. An aged sow mated with a young boar will produce pigs which will mature earlier than those produced when the sow is young and the boar aged, which is a strong argument in favor of keeping a sow as long as she continues to breed satisfactorily. Ordinarily sows cease to be profitable breeders after they are 4 or 5 years old, but some raise good litters after they reach 8 or 9 years. When a sow more than 4 years old fails to give a good litter whenever it is due, she may as well be fattened at once.

The Piggery.

The winter housing of hogs is no an easy problem to deal with, says a writer in Nebraska Farmer. The main difficulty is encountered in getting enough for the animals. When a man has comparatively few hogs, he can master this part of the difficulty fairly well; but when the numbers are large and comprise all ages, sexes and breeds, the real magnitude of the question is appreciated. Our buildings are not well adapted to provide exercise, and in the winter we are compelled to confine animals more closely than we would desire. We have been able to obtain very satisfactory growth, but have not yet convinced ourselves that we are producing bacon of the best quality. A piggery, above all things, should be dry and warm. We have had best satisfaction from wooden buildings, and prefer wood to anything else for the walls of the building. We have some cement floors, with planked sleeping places, which are giving very fair satisfaction; but our farrowing pens are floored with plank.

Nitric Acid.—Nitrogen as nitrates, such as nitrate of soda and nitrate of potash, acts most quickly. Ammoniacal nitrogen, as for example sulphate of ammonia, while it may possibly be utilized directly by plants to a slight extent, is practically all changed to nitric acid before its assimilation. For this reason it cannot act quite as quickly as nitrate nitrogen. Some loss of nitrogen is also possible, since as a rule nitrogen as sulphate of ammonia is not as useful as the same amount of nitrogen in the form of nitrates.

The Point of View.

He—Hasn't Miss Hauton a Roman nose?

She—I think retrousse is a better name for it—she turns it up on the slightest provocation.—Washington Star.

The Craving for Stimulants
Has lately attracted a great deal of attention. The use of them seems to be increasing. This clearly shows an exhausted condition of the nerves and blood, which may be remedied only by strengthening the stomach. Hostetter's Stomach Bitters will do this for you. It cures dyspepsia, constipation and nervousness.

That Unlucky Number.

"I sat down to dinner with thirteen yesterday."

"Don't you consider that unlucky?"

"It was in this case. I had to pay for Press.

"Take Time by The Forelock."

Don't wait until sickness overtakes you. When that tired feeling, the first rheumatic pain, the first warnings of impure blood are manifest, take Hood's Sarsaparilla and you will rescue your health and probably save a serious sickness. Be sure to get Hood's, because

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Never Disappoints

Biographies of Famous Women.

A German statistician has been counting up the books that have been written about famous women. He finds that Marie Antoinette, Joan of Arc, Mary Stuart and "Pope Joan" head the list, with over 100 books each. They are followed in order by Maria Theresa, Queen Elizabeth, Catherine II. of Russia, Marie de Medici, Mme. de Maintenon and Christiana of Sweden. Then, at a considerable interval, by Mme. de Stael, Queen Louise of Prussia, Mesdames De Sevigne, de Pompadour, and du Barry, the Duchess de Berri, Heloise, Charlotte Corday, Ninon de l'Enclos and Queen Caroline of Brunswick.—New York Sun.

Deafness Cannot Be Cured
by local applications, as they cannot reach the diseased portion of the ear. There is only one way to cure deafness, and that is by constitutional remedies. Deafness is caused by an inflamed condition of the mucus lining of the Eustachian Tube. When this tube is inflamed you have a rumbling sound or imperfect hearing, and when it is entirely closed deafness is the result, and unless the inflammation can be taken out and this tube restored to its normal condition, hearing will be destroyed forever; nine cases out of ten are caused by catarrh, which is nothing but an inflamed condition of the mucus surfaces.
We will give One Hundred Dollars for any case of Deafness (caused by catarrh) that cannot be cured by Hall's Catarrh Cure. Send for circulars, free.
F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.
Sold by Druggists, 75c.
Hall's Family Pills are the best.

A Casus Belli.

Maud—I firmly believe that we should love our enemies.

Jack—In that case, I declare war upon you at once.—Brooklyn Life.

For More Than a Century
Baker's Chocolate has been the standard. Made only by Walter Baker & Co. Ltd., Dorchester, Mass.

Good Resolutions.

"Make yoh good resolutions," said Uncle Eben, "but don't put in so much time thinkin' 'em up dat you ain't got no chance to transack actual business."—Washington Star.

Has Got Some Money.

"That fellow Jawley is a broker, isn't he?"

"Yes."

"Has he got any money?"

"Yes; he's got mine."—Harlem Life.

Reliable Help Wanted
(Either sex.) The Humanitarian Home and Sanitarium for Invalids and Health Seekers, Incorporated. Send 12c in stamps for full information. Address J. H. Teitlebaum, Treasurer, East Las Vegas, N. M.

Deeds of Daring.

Inker—That was a bold robbery yesterday. Fellow took a piano right out of the house while the family was eating dinner.

Photographer—Humph! That's nothing. I took the new courthouse the other day right under the nose of a policeman.—Baltimore American.

A Busy Woman

is Mrs. Pinkham. Her great correspondence is under her own supervision.

Every woman on this continent should understand that she can write freely to Mrs. Pinkham about her physical condition because Mrs. Pinkham is and because Mrs. Pinkham never violates confidence and because she knows more about the ills of women than any other person in this country.

A woman

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured a million sick women. Every neighborhood, almost every family, contains women relieved of pain by this great medicine.

FOR 14 CENTS
We wish to gain this year 200,000 new customers, and hence offer
1 Pkg. City Garden Beet, 10c
1 Pkg. Earl'st Emerald Cucumber 15c
1 " La Crosse Market Lettuce, 15c
1 " Strawberry Melon, 15c
1 " 13 Day Radish, 10c
1 " Early Ripe Cabbage, 10c
1 " Early Dinner Onion, 10c
1 " Brilliant Flower Seeds, 15c
Worth $1.00, for 14 cents. $1.00
Above 10 Pkgs. worth $1.00, we will mail you free, together with our great Catalog, telling all about SALZER'S MILLION DOLLAR POTATO upon receipt of this notice & 14c. stamps. We invite your trade, and know when you once try Salzer's seeds [illegible]
JOHN A. SALZER SEED CO., LA CROSSE, WIS.

I Had a Bad Cough

"I had a bad cough for six weeks and could not find any relief whatever. I read what a wonderful remedy Ayer's Cherry Pectoral was for coughs and I bought a bottle. Before I had taken a quarter of it my cough had entirely left me."—L. Hawn, Newington, Ont., May 3, 1899.

Quickly Cures Colds

Neglected colds always lead to something serious. They run into chronic bronchitis which pulls down your general health and deprives you of sleep; or they end in genuine consumption with all its uncertain results.

Don't wait, but take Ayer's Cherry Pectoral just as soon as you begin to cough. A few doses will cure you then. But it cures old colds, too, only it takes a little more time. We refer to such diseases as bronchitis, asthma, whooping-cough, consumption, and hard winter coughs.

If you've just taken cold a 25 cent bottle is all you'll need. For harder cases a 50 cent bottle is better. For chronic troubles, and to keep on hand, the $1.00 bottle is most economical.

In the Wrong China.

A salesman in a local chinaware establishment is responsible for the following:

"A day or two ago," he said, "a lady came into the store and began to examine some fine cups and saucers. Nothing suited her. At last, however, she found some that pleased her, and, smiling innocently, said: 'Now, these are very nice, and I like the way they are made, with different names on them. If I could find some with the names I want I would take them, but all I see read "Tom and Jerry."'"—Memphis Scimitar.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY,
Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. 25c. E. W. Grove's signature on each box.

The Old Man's Query.

"So you want to marry my daughter?"

"Yes, sir."

"Do you smoke?"

"N-o, sir."

"Take her! I've married off six daughters, and all their husbands have a particular fondness for my brand of cigars. You're a novelty."—Syracuse Herald.

A Cinch.

Mrs. Kelly (1 a. m.)—How could yez get droonk widout a cint in your pocket?

Mr. Kelly—Whol, Rooney was talkin' war, Casey was talkin' politics and Hogan was talkin' baby! All I had to do was to kape me mouth shut!—Puck.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

The man who boasts of being self-made probably believes that an honest confession is good for the soul.

The mysterious origin of Cain's wife is the only excuse some men have for staying away from church.

It matters little if you are ignorant, for you will meet people daily who know it all.

For Lung and chest diseases, Piso's Cure is the best medicine we have used.—Mrs. J. L. Northcott, Windsor, Ont., Canada.

The woman who marries a man to reform him seldom lives long enough to finish the job.

A faultless complexion is a thing of beauty, but it will not remain a joy forever.

SAMPLE SLEIGH FREE
$40.00 PORTLAND CUTTER FOR $16.70.

No. FSTE.

SEND US 97c and mention this adv. and we will send you this new pattern, up-to-date PORTLAND CUTTER by freight C. O. D. subject to examination. You can examine it at your freight depot, and if found perfectly satisfactory and the GREATEST CUTTER BARGAIN you ever saw, pay the freight agent or your banker OUR GREAT BARGAIN SALE PRICE $16.70 less the 97c sent with the order or $15.73 and the freight charges and the cutter is yours.

THIS CUTTER is full size, and the very latest style. BODY is large and roomy, high sides, back and roomy seat. Bracket front and extension wing dash. WOOD WORK is selected. Cutter stock well screwed and plugged. IRON WORK all steel, braced and clipped knees. Trimmings are serviceable. Cutter cloth, well upholstered and removable when not in use. PAINTING. All nicely painted and finished. Sliding shifting bar for shafts. The sleigh is furnished with shafts, and floor carpet complete.

OUR SPECIAL OFFER: Our factory wants their sleighs in every locality and to interest a special exertion on their SLEIGHS we will send FREE one of the above CUTTERS to any person sending cash with the order for SIX cutters. You can make big money selling these sleighs this winter. ORDER ONE FOR SAMPLE.

WE GUARANTEE these Cutters to be the latest model and design. All orders will be shipped direct from Minneapolis. Where CASH accompanies order we will refund money if cutter is not found as represented. Order at once before they are all gone. Remember price $16.70. THIS CONCERN IS THOROUGHLY RELIABLE—Editor.

F. M. Roberts' Supply House, Minneapolis Minn.

160 ACRES FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

MILLIONS of acres of choice agricultural LANDS now opened for settlement in Western Canada. Here is grown the celebrated NO. 1 HARD WHEAT, which brings the highest price in the markets of the world; thousands of cattle are fattened for market without being fed grain and without a day's shelter. Send for information and secure a free home in Western Canada. Write the Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, or address the undersigned, who will mail you atlases, pamphlets, etc., free of cost. Ben Davies, 154 East Third St., St. Paul, or T. O. Currie, Stevens Point, Wis.

CAMPFIRE SKETCHES.

GOOD SHORT STORIES FOR THE VETERANS.

Lawton's Bravery Was Great—Recklessness of the Dead Officer Under Fire of the Filipinos—Twelve Men Charge Six Hundred—Three Cornered War.

Home.

There is a land, of every land the pride,
Beloved by heaven o'er the world beside;
Where brighter suns dispense serener light,
And milder moons emparadise the night;
A land of beauty, virtue, valor, truth,
Time-tutored age, and love-exalted youth;
The wandering mariner, whose eye explores
The wealthiest isles, the most enchanting shores,
Views not a realm so bountiful and fair,
Nor breathes the spirit of a purer air;
In every clime the magnet of his soul,
Touch'd by remembrance, trembles to that pole;
For in this land of heaven's peculiar grace,
The heritage of nature's noblest race,
There is a spot of earth supremely blest,
A dearer, sweeter spot than all the rest,
Where man, creation's tyrant, casts aside
His sword and sceptre, pageantry and pride,
While in his softened looks benignly blend
The sire, the son, the husband, brother, friend;
Here woman reigns; the mother, daughter, wife,
Strew with fresh flowers the narrow way of life!
In the clear heaven of her delightful eye,
An angel-guard of loves and graces lie;
Around her knees domestic duties meet,
And fireside pleasures gambol at her feet.
Where shall that land, that spot of earth be found?
Art thou a man?—a patriot—look round;
O, thou shalt find, howe'er thy footsteps roam,
That land thy country, and that spot thy home!

—James Montgomery.

Lawton's Bravery Was Great.

I could not help but be amused when I examined the church at Paranaque, says a Pasay, P. I., correspondent of Indianapolis News. The reports sent out had spoken of the total demolition of it by the bombardment of the fleet. But, nevertheless, it is standing there peacefully, used as barracks by the soldiers. It is true a few stones here and there are misplaced, a stairway to the choir damaged and a sacrilegious shell has utterly destroyed the "heaven" above the altar. The insurgents used a small cannon from the belfry, and it can serve the same purpose for us yet if needed. Gen. Lawton's orders are very explicit. He insists that there be no firing of any kind until we have been fired upon. Amigos are all around us, and they are in great danger from careless firing. The general is now riding a beautiful white horse, and in this connection a good story is told by him, how recently, when a detachment of marines were ashore to assist in an assault they themselves were assaulted by the insurgents, and while the marines were hugging the ground and wishing every blade of grass were a stump, up rides Gen. Lawton. The men say that it seemed he was on the largest white horse that ever was, and with a large white hat, too, and making a tremendous amount of noise. He was laughing as gayly as the Mausers that were singing about him, and nodded and chatted with his staff. It was revelation, so the marines say, of what all absence of fear was, even when under the most dangerous conditions. Shortly afterward one of his staff was shot through both knees, but Lawton did not ride away until he completed his work. He has the headquarters of his division here in town in a modest house on a quiet side street. I found it so crowded that the clerks were compelled to do their work on the porches. He often takes his son out with him on his rides along the front, and it is an all-wise Providence that has spared them, for his bravery is splendid in its daring. Gen. Wheeler expects to get fat now, as he is getting his fill of fighting. The fore part of this week he was sitting on top of one of the intrenchments enjoying the cool of the evening. While sitting there dangling his feet like a schoolboy and with his back to the front, the insurgent rifles began their evening tune. The men around him were horrified to have him thus expose himself, but unwilling to stoop down themselves as long as he was sitting on top. On one side of him a bullet took out a seam from a man's trousers, on the other side a canteen strap was cut in two. The old general got excited, and yelled to the men to lie down at once, never thinking of his own safety until one of the officers pulled him down.

Twelve Men Charge Six Hundred.

A medal of honor—the highest compliment which can be given to an American soldier—has been recommended for presentation to each of the ten surviving members of a band of twelve scouts who performed a brave feat near San Miguel de Mayume Ori, in the Philippines, on May 13, 1899. These scouts were under the lead of William H. Young, a civilian who had been a famous scout on the western plains of America, and whom Gen. Lawton made his chief of scouts in the San Ysidro campaign this year. On the day mentioned, Gen. Lawton was advancing on San Miguel. A small body of Oregon volunteers came suddenly upon the enemy, drawn up in an advantageous position in front of San Miguel, the right flank resting on a stream, the left on an elevation made secure by a dense thicket. It was afterward ascertained that the Filipino force in this position numbered about six hundred men. Without waiting for the re-enforcing battalion to support them, or to be in a position to do so, this squad of ten scouts, led by Mr. Young and by Private James Harrington of the Oregons, an old frontiersman—twelve men in all—charged the enemy's line, about one hundred and fifty yards distant. The line fired, then wavered, and then completely gave way, to be followed up by the re-enforcing battalion, and driven from the city and environs of San Miguel, a place of great importance. Young and Harrington, while shouting and cheering and leading the men up, were shot and killed.

Waning of the Grand Army.

From the New York World: One of the bravest "standing armies" in the world is dying out. The Grand Army of the Republic, that band of gray-haired warriors whose pride and dearest recollection it is that they once served their country, is shrinking with appalling swiftness to the point where it will be only a memory of good deeds and brave men who have done them. Statistics as to the membership and death rate of the organization tell a story as touching as the tenderest funeral sermon. They show that in a few years more the roll call will be an empty ceremony—the summons to the national encampment a vain appeal to the heroe of 1861. Within twelve months—the year of 1898—according to a report just issued, more than 17,000 members of the Grand Army died. This death rate was more than double that of the previous year. If the past year (1899) has shown a corresponding decline in membership the friends of the organization have ample ground for the concern they express as to its future. The high water mark of the Grand Army's prosperity was not reached until some time after the death of its founder, Dr. Benjamin F. Stephenson. The army's excellent organization, however, is due to Dr. Stephenson's genius as a founder. It is set down to the eternal credit of the army that it originated one of our most inspiring national holidays—Memorial day. This is the most interesting act in the history of the army and by all means the most popular act of General Logan's administration. This holiday, which has been celebrated with such fervor for thirty years, was originally the suggestion of a citizen of German birth, whose very name has been forgotten. It was established by General Logan and the leaders of the army and a few years later made by congress a legal holiday.

Too Much of a Salute.

From the New York Tribune: "When we were at Camp Merritt, in San Francisco, last summer," said I. R. Welles, last of the Fifty-first Iowa, at the Hoffman House recently, "there were a number of amusing occurrences. You know, among the first things taught the recruits is to salute all officers. If the soldier is unarmed at the time of meeting the officer, he brings his hand to his hat at six paces. If armed, and doing sentry duty, say, he brings his rifle to a 'present' until the officer has passed. To understand thoroughly my story, you must also bear in mind that when the grade of general is reached the form of the field uniform differs from that of the officers of inferior rank. The cut of coat and collar is different, and there are more buttons. In this particular case an exceptionally raw recruit was doing sentry duty, when a brigadier general came along. From his uniform the newly enlisted one felt he must be of high rank, and for that reason something exceptional in the way of a salute was his due. So, first, he stood stiffly, with his rifle at 'present,' but as the general drew nearer he evidently felt that it was no ordinary occasion, and that he must make a more ceremonious salute. Rapidly shifting his rifle to his right shoulder, as the general came opposite him, with his left hand he almost swept the earth itself with his cap, so low was his bow. The general, who was a thoroughly good fellow, said nothing to him personally, but next day I noticed that a general order was issued in that brigade that none but experienced and trained soldiers should hereafter be placed on sentry duty."

And the Captain Still Wonders.

During the retreat of the first battalion of the Fourth Infantry from Perez Dasmarinas on June 19 last one of the newly enlisted men came back to the road from the jungle, where his company had been skirmishing. He reported to his company commander that he had taken two prisoners. He was driving the prisoners before him at the point of his rifle. The prisoners were both old men, neatly dressed, and did not look as though they had been recently fighting. The captain was annoyed. There was no safe place in which to put the prisoners. He could not spare the necessary men to guard them. He did not like to set them at liberty when to walk in any direction from the main column meant almost certain death, as the insurgents were pouring in a heavy fire. "What did you bring these men in for?" he asked, turning on the soldier sharply. "You ought to have more sense." "Well," answered the soldier slowly, "I wasn't intendin' of a-bringin' uv 'em in, but they jess fell on their knees and begged so hard that I didn't have the heart, Capting, to knock 'em on the head." The captain is wondering yet whether the soldier was in earnest or was only laughing at him.—Chicago Tribune.

Three-Cornered War.

When Col. Cartwell was military governor of Norfolk under the confederacy, in 1862, he ordered the British consul to report for duty on the home guard. To this the Englishman objected on the ground of being consul at Norfolk. "To what government?" asked Col. Cartwell. "To the United States government," was the reply. "But you are in the Confederate states, and you must show papers accrediting you to the Confederate states of America," said the colonel. "But my government doesn't recognize you as a government," said the consul. "Very well, then, my government doesn't recognize you as consul," briskly retorted Col. Cartwell. "Shoulder your musket and join your company." At this the peacefully disposed consul threatened to have a gunboat come and bombard the place before he would serve. "That's just what I'd like to see," returned the colonel, cheerily; "for then the United States will fight you, as she claims that Norfolk is still part of the union, and between England and the United States fighting, we shall go free." At last the consul appealed to Mr. Benjamin, the Confederate secretary of war, who ordered his exemption from military duty, and the "three-cornered war" so desired by Col. Cartwell never came to pass.

An Early Attraction.

Adam—Where's your mother? I'm getting tired of waiting for my supper. Little Cain—She went out about four hours ago, and said there was a bargain sale at the fig leaf counter.—Chicago Times-Herald.

IN THE ODD CORNER.

QUEER AND CURIOUS THINGS AND EVENTS.

Snake on the Mainmast—Remarkable Explanation of Resultado's Skipper for a Long Voyage—A Dentist for Dogs—A Burning Coal Mine.

Wind and Sea.

The sea is a jovial comrade;
He laughs wherever he goes;
His merriment shines in the dimpling lines
That wrinkle his hale repose;
He lays himself down at the feet of the sun,
And shakes all over with glee;
And the broad-backed billows fall faint on the shore
In the mirth of the mighty sea!
But the wind is sad and restless,
And cursed with an inward pain;
You may hark at will, by valley or hill,
But you hear him still complain.
He wails on the barren mountains
And shrieks on the wintry sea;
He sobs in the cedar and moans in the pine,
And shudders all over the aspen tree.
Welcome are both their voices,
And I know not which is best—
The laughter that slips from the ocean's lips
Or the comfortless wind's unrest.
There's a pang in all rejoicing,
A joy in the heart of pain,
And the wind that saddens the sea that gladdens,
Are singing the self-same strain.

—Bayard Taylor.

Snake on the Mainmast.

Occasionally a sailing vessel makes a slow voyage because something gets wrong with her sails or spars. Then again she may have adverse winds, or be for a long time becalmed. In the strange experience of the brig Resultado, which arrived a few days ago at Philadelphia from Port Spain, neither of these conditions was to blame. From the time she weighed anchor on her voyage to Philadelphia the weather was good, and steady trade winds prevailed from a favorable quarter. It is a very lonely part of Trinidad where the Resultado received her cargo. Natives stored the cocoanuts in the hold and the crew had little to do. The day before the Resultado weighed anchor the first man on deck in the morning made a singular discovery. He hurried back in the captain's cabin and informed him that there was a snake on the mast. Capt. Smith accused the sailor of being drunk and ordered him out of the cabin. But the sailor stuck to his story and the skipper went on deck to investigate. He found twined around the mainmast an immense serpent. Capt. Smith thinks that the reptile must have been about a foot in diameter. It was suggested that the reptile be shot, but an inventory of the firearms on board showed them to be limited to a 32-caliber revolver in the captain's pocket. He discharged the weapon a great many times at the snake. These manifestations of hostility were greeted by hisses, and the snake clutched tighter to the spar. Capt. Smith was in a quandary. Sailing time had come and he had to go. The crew weighed anchor and started to get up sail. Then a new difficulty presented itself. Sail could be made all right on the other masts, but not on the one where the snake reposed. So tightly had he wound his coils about it that the rigging refused to run through the blocks. The men were afraid to pull too hard for fear of bringing the reptile down on their heads, so the novel spectacle was afforded of the Resultado sailing away on her homeward voyage without a rag of canvas set on her mainmast. The Resultado, unable to get up all her mainsail, made a slow run. The captain said that the presence of the reptile cost him at least ten days' delay. For two weeks the crew despaired of ridding themselves of the reptile. Occasionally they would pull the rope on which his body rested and he would respond in a manner that showed that he was very much alive. His muscular contractions almost cracked the spar. Deliverance was at hand, however, and from an unexpected quarter. Oct. 19 a tremendous snowstorm arose. For some days the weather had been growing colder, and the snake seemed to be in a torpid condition. When the cold weather began he weakened, and when the first flakes fell on him he suddenly unloosed himself and fell with a mighty splash into the ocean.—Philadelphia Times.

A Dentist for Dogs.

A dentist for dogs! Yes, there is one in London, who makes between $8,000 and $10,000 a year by this profession. He treats cats also, and his prices are not always exorbitant. He charges from $3 to $6 to extract a terrier's tooth. When the animal is delicate, fragile or valuable, the price increases. For large dogs he does not charge less than $5 or $18 a tooth. To go into the country, with all his paraphernalia—say, fifty miles from London—it is from $150 to $200. He puts in false teeth also, and these are very expensive. A whole set costing $200. He fills and builds up teeth with gold. But his prices are variable; the difficulties to overcome, the risks to be run, the size of the animals, their value, increase them often. For very large dogs, especial instruments are necessary, often several at a time, and they are of all shapes and of all force. The Danes and Newfoundlands must be chloroformed. There are especial chairs for that, provided with cushions and strong straps, also a sort of rubber muzzle. These are not easy things. The patient is not docile; often he awakens, and it is in this latter case that the operator runs the greatest risk of being bitten. That happens, too, and it is the bad side of the profession. And very large dogs are not always easy to seat in the operating chair. They often refuse to get into it—and then there is a battle. One day an immense animal jumped at the dentist's throat and almost strangled him. It is not very rare for a mad dog to be taken to him. One evening a servant entered with a large sack carefully tied. A gentleman followed. It was a mad dog, and its owner wished all its teeth taken out. At first the dentist refused, but the price offered, $500, decided him, and he accepted. The animal was chloroformed, and the operation was successfully performed, and the beast cured. Often owners of dogs, in fear of their becoming mad, have the animal's entire set of teeth taken out. Cats are more difficult to treat. They bite and scratch fearfully. And it is said to be impossible to put false teeth in their mouth. He charges from $3 to $12 for a cat's tooth. For a valuable Angora his price is $25 a tooth.

Character Shown in Hats.

Hatters' Gazette: Show me how a man wears his hat, and I will tell you what manner of man he is. Notice yourself how he wears his headgear, and you can make a fair estimate of his character. Select the man whose hat seems to have been made for him, and which he has set squarely upon his head as if it were designed so to do, with never a tilt to the left or right, fore or aft. He is a methodical and a comfortable man with a rare endowment of common sense. He is not given to flights of fancy. He obeys the injunction of the homely philosopher, who advised all mankind to keep its feet on the ground. Men whose hats are always too large for them are of reflective habits. They are careless of externals, and given to introspection. They are philosophical and likely to fall into fits of preoccupation. They are apt to ignore mere details. Conspicuously of this class was Mr. Gladstone, whose hat brims always showed a disposition to reach his ears. Men whose hats are always too small are vain and finical. The man who wears his hat drawn over his eyes may not be a "crook," but he is undoubtedly a "schemer." He excels in strategy, whether he uses his gifts in an army campaign or in a coup on Wall street. He is not cheerful, in fact, is given to gloomy meditation. Much more does the man who habitually wears his hat pushed off his forehead enjoy the confidence of his fellowmen. The man who wears his hat off his forehead is essentially frank. He is admired by those who do not agree with any of his views for his straightforwardness; if nature has not gifted him with a singing voice, he whistles. The man who places his hat on one side is independent, self-assertive; he is in danger of becoming vicious. He is a "sport" by nature if not by practice.

The Cannon-Ball Tree.

Tropical forests abound with extraordinary trees, which invariably excite wonder when first seen. One such tree, whose habitat is South America, bears the suggestive name of the cannonball tree, and a very curious growth it is. It belongs to the myrtle family and is closely related to the Brazil nut tree. Its large globular fruit, plentifully produced, has given the plant its very approximate name. The natural height of the tree reaches eighty to a hundred feet, or even higher, with straight, unbranched stem having thickness of eighteen inches, or even thicker. It bears a dense hive-shaped head of dark green leaves, which suddenly fall away some time in the month of March, and are rapidly replaced by a fully-matured foliage of the brightest and freshest green.

The flowers are of a pinkish color, and highly scented, and are freely produced along the elongated flowering branch. The fruit is a hard, globular capsule, six inches or more in diameter, containing a number of flat, pulp-embedded seeds, rather bigger than a ten cent piece. "The fruit," says one writer, "is a rough brown globe as big as a thirty-pound shot, which you must get down with a certain caution, lest that befall you which befell a certain gallant officer on the mainland of America.

Fired with a very natural ambition to obtain a cannon-ball, he took himself a long bamboo, and picked at the tree. He succeeded, it is stated, but not altogether as he had anticipated. For the cannon-ball in coming down avenged itself by dropping exactly on the bridge of the officer's nose, felling him to the ground and giving him such a pair of black eyes that he was not seen on parade for a fortnight."

Some Singular Little Churches.

There are many churches that attract attention by their size and grandeur. There are a few that are remarkable by reason of their smallness and simplicity. It is believed that the smallest church in England, says a writer in the Quiver, is the midget church at Lullington, in Sussex. It is a primitive and quaint building of flint, with stone quoins; it has a roof of red tiles, and a tiny weather-boarded turret at its west end. This miniature church is only sixteen feet square. Its pulpit is a pew, with paneled sides and door, and the furniture is of the plainest. Five narrow, diamond-paned windows give light to the interior. When this tiny church is full, thirty people are gathered together, quite as many as the little village can supply. Only a little larger is the quaint meeting-house at Crawshawbooth, a village near Burnley. It is known as the Friends' Meeting-House, and is covered with ivy and surrounded by a well-cared-for burial ground. Inside may be seen half a dozen oak benches that could, if necessary, accommodate sixty people. The attendance is rarely more than six. John Bright once walked twelve miles from Rochdale to be present at a service in this meeting-house. Somewhat smaller than this chapel, however, is one that has been called the shrine of Quakerism. It is in the hamlet of Jordans, in Buckinghamshire. Hitherto in June of every year come Quakers from all parts, for here lie the remains of the great Quaker, William Penn. If this were not enough to make the place interesting, it has the further attraction of being the neighborhood in which Milton lived after writing "Paradise Lost," a cottage in the vicinity affording him a resting-place.

A Burning Coal Mine.

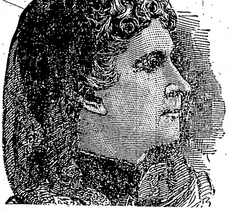
The "burning mountain" of Montet, in Aveyron, France, which is often mistaken for an active volcano, because a pillar of cloud rises from it by day and a pillar of fire by night, is in reality a coal mine which has been burning for several years.

The tendency of policemen to become fat is proverbial. Put the thinnest man in a blue uniform with brass buttons and let him march to and fro on patrol duty and he will speedily develop into a ponderous person.—Exchange.

A man admires his father's deeds—if they convey the property to him.

WOMEN OF THE UNITED STATES

Regard Peruna as Their Shield Against Catarrh, Coughs, Colds, Grip and Catarrhal Diseases.



MRS. BELVA A. LOCKWOOD, LATE CANDIDATE FOR THE PRESIDENCY.

Mrs. Belva Lockwood, the eminent barrister of Washington, D. C., is the only woman who has ever been a candidate for the Presidency of the United States. She is the best known woman in America. As the pioneer of her sex in the legal profession she has gathered fame and fortune. In a letter to The Peruna Medicine Company, she says:

"I have used your Peruna both for myself and my mother, Mrs. Hannah J. Bennett, now in her 88th year, and I find it an invaluable remedy for cold, catarrh, hay fever and kindred diseases; also a good tonic for feeble and old people, or those run down and with nerves unstrung." Yours truly, Belva A. Lockwood.

Catarrh may attack any organ of the body. Women are especially liable to catarrh of the pelvic organs. There are one hundred cases of catarrh of the pelvic organs to one of catarrh of the head. Most people think, because they have no catarrh of the head, they have no catarrh at all. This is a great mistake, and is the cause of many cases of sickness and death. "Health and Beauty" sent free to women only, by The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

A Physician's Suit.

"About a year ago," says the Medical Record, "a wealthy resident of Cortland, N. Y., attempted suicide in the village of McLean, but failed to accomplish his object, and repented, calling in a physician. The latter rendered all necessary services, both medical and surgical, and saved the man's life. Later, the physician sued his patient for $10,000, claiming that the man's life, which he had saved, was worth that amount. The claim of $10,000 was not allowed, but the plaintiff was awarded $900."

Drying Linen in Balloons.

A Paris laundry has started a novelty in the drying and purifying of linen, and has succeeded in convincing most of its customers that the notion is a good one. The air about 100 feet from the housetops is particularly good for linen, say the proprietors, and they accordingly send the shirts and collars for a balloon trip. Bamboo frames are attached to a captive balloon, and the linen, "rough dry," is fixed to the frames and sails away in the air. The balloon makes six ascents daily, and an extra charge is made for each article that undergoes the treatment.

A MINNESOTA FARMER

Does Well in Western Canada.

Virden, Man., Nov. 18, 1899.

Hon. Clifford Sifton, Minister of the Interior, Ottawa, Canada—Sir: Thinking that my experience in Manitoba might be both useful and interesting to my fellow-countrymen in the United States who may be looking to Manitoba and the northwest with the intention of settling there, I have much pleasure in stating that through information received from Mr. W. F. McCreary, immigration commissioner at Winnipeg, I was induced to visit Manitoba in February, 1898. When I called upon Mr. McCreary he spared no pains to give me all the information, etc., in his possession, the result of which was that I came here with a letter of introduction from him to the secretary of the Virden Board of Trade. That gentleman provided me with a competent land guide, and, although there was considerable snow on the ground, I had no difficulty in selecting three homesteads for myself and sons. Having made the necessary homestead entries at the land office in Brandon, I returned to my home in Lyon county, Minnesota, and came back here in May following, accompanied by one of my boys, bringing with us two teams of horses, implements, etc. Our first work was to erect a temporary shanty and stable, after which we broke and leveled seventy-five acres and put up thirty tons of hay. I went back to Minnesota about July 20, leaving my son here. I returned in October, bringing my family with me. I found that the land we had acquired was of good quality, being a strong clay loam with clay subsoil. Last spring I sowed 100 acres in wheat and fifty acres in oats and barley. (Seventy-five acres of this grain was sowed on "go-back" plowed last spring.) My crop was thrashed in October, the result being over 2,700 bushels of grain in all. Wheat averaged fifteen bushels per acre and graded No. 1 hard, but that which was sown on land other than sod ("go-back") went twenty four and one-half bushels per acre.

To say that I am well pleased with the result of my first year's farming operations in Manitoba does not adequately express my feelings, and I have no hesitation in advising those who are living in districts where land is high in price to come out here, if they are willing to do a fair amount of work. I am ten miles from Virden, which is a good market town, and nine miles from Hargrave, where there are two elevators. This summer I erected a dwelling house of native stone and bought a half-section of land adjoining our homesteads, for which I paid a very moderate price. There are still some homesteads in this district, and land of fine quality can be purchased from the Canadian Pacific Railway company at $3.50 per acre on liberal terms. Good water is generally found at a depth of from fifteen to twenty feet. I have 175 acres ready for crop next year.

The cost of living here is about the same as in southern Minnesota. Some commodities are higher and others lower in price, but the average is about the same. I remain, your obedient servant. (Signed.)

JACOB REICHERT.

How It Should Have Been Done.

A certain lawyer had his portrait painted in his favorite attitude, standing, with one hand in his pocket. His friends and clients all went to see it, and everybody said: "Oh, how like! It's the very picture of him!"

An old farmer dissented. "Tain't like, no, 'tain't," said he, drily, looking out of the corner of his eye.

"Tain't like?" responded everybody; just show us where 'tain't like."

"Tain't like, no, 'taint,' responded the old farmer; "don't you see, he's got his hand in his pocket? 'Twould be as like ag'in if he had it in somebody else's pocket."

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

Joseph W. Bates, Minneapolis, Minn., automatic coupling; John F. Hoalloran, Chatfield, Minn., hay rack; Ozello R. Hunt, Minneapolis, Minn., spring bed bottom; Jens Jensen, Page, N. D., bread or cake cutter; Benjamin F. Kelsey, Minneapolis, Minn., cylinder lubricator; John F. Kukacka, Montgomery, Minn., cutter bar; John F. Luce, Minneapolis, Minn., cable saw; Frank T. Stevens, Long Lake, penholder; William H. Welsh, Stillwater, Minn., laundry apparatus.

Merwin, Lothrop & Johnson, Patent Attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul.

Hebrews in the British Army.

It is interesting to note that among the troops mustered into the service by the British war office are several companies composed entirely of Hebrews. In Bombay there are two companies of Hebrew soldiers, and the army register shows that thousands of Hebrews have enlisted in the British army in recent years, most of them being now with the army in South Africa.—St. Louis Republic.

Salzer's Rape gives Rich, green food, at 25c. a ton.

Speltz—What is it? Catalog tells.

BUY NORTHERN GROWN SEEDS
FARM SEEDS
Salzer's Seeds are Warranted to Produce.
Mahlon Luther, E. Troy, Pa., astonished the world by growing 250 bushels big four Oats; J. Breider, Mishicott, Wis., 173 bus. barley; and H. Lovejoy, Red Wing, Minn., by growing 250 bush. Salzer's corn per acre. If you doubt, write them. We wish to gain 300,000 new customers, hence will send on trial
10 DOLLARS WORTH FOR 10c.
10 pkgs of rare farm seeds, Salt Bush, the 3-eared Corn—Speltz, producing 80 bush. [illegible] per acre—above oats and barley. Bromus Inermis—the greatest grass on earth; Salzer rape etc. Rape, Spring Wheat, &c., including our mammoth Plant, Fruit and Seed Catalog, telling all about Salzer's Great Million Dollar Potato, all mailed for 10c. postage; positively worth $10 to get a start. Seed Potatoes $1.20 a bbl. and up. 35 pkgs earliest vegetable seeds, $1.00.
JOHN A. SALZER SEED CO. LA CROSSE, WIS.

Please send this adv. with 10c. to Salzer.

Catalog alone, 5c. wnu

Meat smoked in a few hours with KRAUSERS' LIQUID EXTRACT OF SMOKE. Made from hickory wood. Cheaper, cleaner, sweeter, and surer than the old way. Send for circular. E. KRAUSER & BRO., Milton, Pa.

PARALYSIS Locomotor Ataxia conquered at last. Doctors puzzled. Specialists amazed at recovery of patients thought incurable, by DR. CHASE'S BLOOD AND NERVE FOOD. Write me about your case. Advice and proof of cures FREE. DR. CHASE, 224 N. 10th St., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

DR. ARNOLD'S COUGH KILLER
CURES COUGHS AND COLDS. PREVENTS CONSUMPTION.
All Druggists, 25c.

CARTER'S INK
Just as cheap as poor ink.

DROPSY NEW DISCOVERY; gives quick relief and cures worst cases. Book of testimonials and 10 DAYS' treatment FREE. DR. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box E, Atlanta, Ga.

Wt. 75 pounds. Write for prices. O. H. Hanson - - Litchfield, Minn.

When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.

25 CTS PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS

CONGRESS

RESUMÉ OF THE WEEK'S PROCEEDINGS.

Washington, Jan. 23—Yesterday was another day of oratory in the senate, little business beyond routine being transacted. Mr. Pritchard of North Carolina delivered a long and carefully prepared address upon the race question in the South, his remarks being addressed particularly against the proposed amendment to the constitution of North Carolina, which, if enacted, he said, would disfranchise a large class of voters, both white and black. He was followed by Mr. Turner of Washington in a speech on the Philippine question in which he arraigned the administration's policy as set out in the president's message and in the speech of Mr. Beveridge. Mr. Turner was given close attention by his colleagues.

The House.

The house was in session only forty minutes yesterday and nothing of public interest was done except to refer to the speaker for settlement a dispute between the appropriations and military affairs committees over the question of estimates for the manufacture of small arms at Rock Island and Springfield arsenals. A [illegible] District of Columbia bills of min[illegible] [illegible]portance were passed.

Washington, Jan. 24.—Yesterday was an oratorical field day in the house over the case of Brigham Roberts, the Mormon representative from Utah. The galleries were packed to suffocation, chiefly with women, and the spectators after listening attentatively to the arguments of Mr. Taylor of Ohio and Mr. Littlefield of Maine, for the adoption of the majority and minority reports respectively of the special committee that investigated the case, remained long after nightfall to hear the impassioned words of the accused as he faced the house, like an animal at bay, knowing that every hand was raised against him. Mr. Roberts was very adroit in the handling of his case, and at times exceedingly dramatic. Taking advantage of the issue raised by the division in the committee as to the method of ousting him, he appropriated to himself the argument of the minority that he was constitutionally entitled to be sworn in and the argument of the majority, that once sworn in he could not be expelled. He defended the action of the mormons in fighting the authority of the United States for years, because they believed that sentiment would change, and dramatically stated that in those days he would rather have his flesh hewn from his bones than to have renounced his religious tenets. He concluded with an elaborate peroration, in which he said he had never been conscious of a shameful act, and if he was sent forth he would go with head erect and undaunted brow. Strange to say most of the applause he won was from women. But while they appeared to be his only partisans, other women manifested their bitter hostility by hissing him at every opportunity. The speech made by Mr. Littlefield, who succeeds the late Mr. Dingley, in defense of the minority proposition to seat and then expel Mr. Roberts, was a masterful effort and stamped him as one of the coming men of the house. The manner in which he tore some of the arguments of the majority into shreds jumped him into the front rank of debaters in the house. The speech made a deep impression. In fact, it is predicted by many members that the majority resolutions for exclusion cannot carry.

Mr. Lacey of Iowa has a proposition which he will submit to expel Mr. Roberts by a two-thirds vote without seating him which will have supporters, and this may lead to a compromise proposition.

Miss Roberts, daughter of Mr. Roberts, was in the reserved gallery throughout the debate. The debate will close Thursday at 4:30.

The Senate.

Again yesterday the senate's session was devoted entirely to speechmaking. Mr. Turner of Washington concluded his address upon the Philippine question. He was followed by Mr. Ross of Vermont with a thoughtful and carefully prepared speech in which he also discussed the Philippine question in connection with the resolutions he had offered. His presentation of the question was given thoughtful attention by his colleagues. Mr. McEnery of Louisiana delivered the concluding speech of the session on the race question in the South. He took strong ground in support of the constitution of Louisiana and the proposed amendment to the constitution of North Carolina, which, it is alleged, will disfanchise a large class of voters.

Washington, Jan. 25. — The second day's debate in the house upon the Roberts case was less dramatic than that of Tuesday. The galleries were almost as crowded, but the ladies were less demonstrative. Mr. Roberts was not present during the day. Had he been he would have heard the most scathing exoriation of the Mormons ever delivered upon the floor of the house. Mr. Landis of Indiana, the young orator who distinguished himself during the last congress in an oratorical duel with Mr. Johnston of his state, won new laurels yesterday. He charged that Utah had been admitted to the Union as a result of a Mormon conspiracy, and reviewed the history of the apostles of the church, whom he charged with living in open and flagrant violation of the statute against polygamy to show that they had basely broken their solemn pledge to the government. The other speakers were Messrs. Power of Vermont and Miers of Indiana for the majority resolutions: Messrs. Snodgrass of Tennessee and Wilson of Idaho, for the minority resolutions; Mr. Lacey of Iowa for his proposition to expel without swearing in, and Mr. Grumpacker of Indiana for exclusion by a two-thirds majority. The speeches greatly strengthened the majority resolutions, which seemed in danger of failing after Mr. Littlefield's speech Tuesday, and Chairman Taylor was confident last night that they would be adopted when the house votes this afternoon.

The Senate.

Routine business occupied the attention of the senate yesterday in a brief session. The resolution offered Tuesday by Mr. Pettigrew calling upon the president for information regarding the treaty entered into with the sultan of Sulu was passed after Mr. Pettigrew had made an attack upon the administration for entering into an agreement which he said authorized slavery. An extended debate was precipitated by a conference report on the census administrative bill, but the census committee gained its point and the measure was sent back to conference.

Washington, Jan. 26. — The case of Brigham H. Roberts, the Mormon representative-elect from Utah, which has occupied so much of the time of the house since the assembling of congress was decided yesterday by the adoption of a resolution to exclude him by a vote of 268 to 50. The exact language of the resolution was as follows:

"That from the facts and conditions of the case, Brigham H. Roberts, representative-elect from the State of Utah, ought not to hold a seat in the house of representatives, and the seat to which he was elected is hereby declared vacant."

The amendment to expel Roberts after seating him was ruled out on a point of order and the house voted upon the resolutions of the minority and majority of the committee. The former, to seat and then expel Mr. Roberts, was defeated, 81 to 244. An analysis of this vote shows that 170 Republicans, 72 Democrats and 2 Populists voted against it, and 71 Democrats, 6 Republicans and 2 Populists and 2 Silver Republicans for it. The majority resolutions—to exclude Mr. Roberts and declare the seat vacant—were adopted, 268 to 50. The affirmative vote was divided as follows: Republicans, 168; Democrats, 96; Populists, 4, and the negative vote: Democrats 47; Silver Republicans, 2; Populists, 1.

There were over a score of speeches yesterday, and the closing speeches on each side were peaceable. Mr. Lanham of Texas closed for the majority and Mr. De Armond of Missouri for the minority. Mr. Roberts was present throughout the day and left the hall after the result of the last vote had been announced. As he did so he gave out a statement justifying his retention of his plural wives on the ground that his moral obligations was more binding upon his conscience than the obedience to statutory law, and saying there was little excuse for the extraordinary efforts to crush a system already abandoned and practically dead. He said he was a martyr to a "spasm of prejudice." He would not, he said, attempt to run for congress again, although he would go back home with a light heart, confident of the future.

The Senate.

Just at the close of yesterday's session of the senate a speech delivered by Mr. Money of Mississippi on the race question in the South precipitated a heated colloquy between him and Mr. Chandler of New Hampshire, in which the latter alleged that the statements were reopening the whole Southern question in the senate after it was supposed to be dead: The charge which Mr. Chandler particularly criticised was made by Mr. Morgan of Alabama, who is absent at present, but as it has been reiterated constantly, in Mr. Chandler's opinion, by other senators, he did not propose to let it go unrefuted. It had been stated that the war was precipitated by designing politicians of the North for the purpose of placing slaves on a social equality with the whites. Mr. Chandler's refutation of the statement was made with startling vehemence and aggressiveness, but as no reply was offered the question was ended there. The urgency deficiency bill carried about $9,000,000, and was passed without a division and practically without debate.

Washington, Jan. 27.—The greater portion of the session of the house yesterday was devoted to eulogies upon the life and public services of the late Vice President Hobart. The tributes paid to his memory were not the usual perfunctory eulogies, but breathed the love and admiration and respect in which he was universally held. Those who spoke were Messrs. Gardner, Stewart, Parker, Fowler and Daly of New Jersey; Mr. Payne of New York, Mr. Dalzell and Mr. Brosius of Pennsylvania, Mr. Richardson of Tennessee and Mr. Griggs of Georgia. Before the eulogies began the conference report on the census bill was adopted and an attempt was made to pass a bill to pay the cost of repairing the Manila cable which Dewey cut just prior to his great victory. Opposition developed, however, and it went over.

WILL HELP FINLANDERS.

Czar Says in Speech That Russia Is to Aid Unfortunate Provincials.

Helsingfors, Finland, Jan. 30.—The czar's speech which was read at the opening of the diet yesterday, explained that it was intended to take measures to meet the recent misfortunes in Finland, the principal of which was the failure of the crops, this causing large emigration. The proposed measures, it was announced, include the postponement of the maneuvers of the reserves so that the men will not be prevented from following their theory.

NO POLYGAMIST WANTED.

Election Called in Utah to Elect Another Congressman.

Salt Lake, Utah, Jan. 30.—In compliance with the revised statutes of the State of Utah Gov. Wells has issued a proclamation calling an election to be held on Monday, April 2, for the purpose of electing a representative in the Fifty-sixth congress to fill the vacancy now existing.

Severe Blizzard in Texas.

Austin, Tex., Jan. 30.—All South and Central Texas was yesterday visited by a very severe blizzard, which increased in severity as night approached. It promises to be the worst blizzard of the winter. The thermometer fell 30 degrees in five hours.

Embezzler Arrested.

Chicago, Jan. 30. — W. A. Reddick, charged with embezzlement from the firm of Clark & Stevens, 212 North Charles street, Baltimore, was arrested here last night.

Mansfield's Latest Freak.

New York—Richard Mansfield, tired of being misrepresented in type, has prepared a short, pithy account of himself, which is printed on the programmes of the theaters in which he appears. This information, which he calls "Encyclopedia of Mansfield," has caused some amusement among theatrical people.

Wine Exhibit at Paris.

Berlin—It is now decided that the German wine product dealers will exhibit at the Paris exposition. Seventy-three exhibitors will place on view 332 samples.

Sugar Trust in Germany.

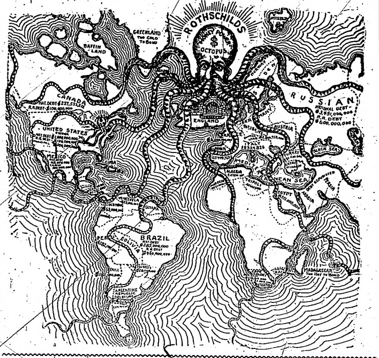
Berlin—The Vessiche Zeitung claims that the sugar trust is now fully established, and that 260 out of the 400 sugar refineries in Germany have joined the combination.

Cotton Mills in Russia.

London—A syndicate is to be formed in Lancashire to develop the weaving branch of the cotton trade in Russia, where two large mills are to be built of 600 looms each.

Unless a woman is deaf and dumb she has no need of a champion. She can always speak for herself.

The Reason All Nations Sympathise With Oom Paul.



WALL ST. GAMBLERS.

THE SAME AS ANY OTHER CARD PLAYERS.

Only They Wreak Ruin and Desolation a Million Times Greater Than the Ordinary Bettor Can—Devoid of Heart or Conscience and Perhaps of Souls.

All sensible men recognize the fact that speculation in the stock market is an injury to all except the very few who come out winners in those gambling transactions.

No wealth is created, no honest industry is served; the business is gambling pure and simple, and is no better than if conducted with cards or dice.

It is, in fact, worse than a game which is determined purely by chance, for the operators in these transactions, while taking chances, always aim to play with marked cards and loaded dice.

The man who sells wheat he does not own, expecting the price to fall before the time for delivery comes, takes his chances on the future price of wheat. But he also does all he can to break the price. He circulates false reports; he endeavors to corner the money market, and compel men to throw their wheat on the market so as to break the price. He endeavors to get up a scare or a panic so as to depress all prices. He seeks to produce conditions which will enable him to win his bet that wheat will fall, regardless of the injury he in the meantime inflicts on honest industry and legitimate business.

In order that a few men may realize a few thousands or hundreds of thousands on a bet, they derange the entire business of the country, cripple production, and throw thousands out of employment.

In these transactions the goods supposed to be bought and sold never change hands. In fact, they are never in hand.

A sells B a million bushels of wheat at 70 cents, to be delivered in ten days. When the time comes, if wheat is still 70 cents, the transaction is off. Neither has made or lost anything. A could get the wheat and fill his contract, but he would make nothing and B would make nothing, so the deal is a draw.

But if at the time for delivery wheat can be bought for 68 cents, then A, by buying and delivering the wheat to B, who would have to pay 70 cents for wheat worth only 68 cents, would make 2 cents a bushel. So B pays A 2 cents on each bushel that was to be delivered, and A makes 2,000,000 cents, twenty thousand dollars, because he won his bet that wheat would fall.

If at the time for delivery wheat should be 72 cents a bushel, B would make 2 cents a bushel by getting a million bushels of wheat at 70 cents, which he could sell for 72; so A pays B the difference, twenty thousand dollars. B has won his bet that wheat would advance.

If the men who engage in these gambling schemes simply sat down and waited to see what the market would be, no one outside of those engaged in the game would be particularly concerned; no one but those who lost in the game would be particularly harmed.

But, as before stated, they do not sit down to wait to see what prices will be; they set to work to make them what they desire. Those who will gain by the rise endeavor to boom prices, or, as it is called, "bull the market"; those who will gain by a decline set to work to depress the market, or, as it is called, 'bear the market."

In this work of manipulating the markets, all legitimate industry is injured, and in the struggle between the "bulls" and "bears" the entire public suffers.

One of the favorite methods for beating down prices is to create a stringency in the money market, and thus force men to sell in order to raise money at a time when money is scarce, and, therefore, buyers few.

It is a natural law that if men are compelled to sell to raise cash at a time when cash is scarce, they will have to sell at a low price because buyers will be few. If so great a financial stringency can be created that a large number will be forced to sell, under such circumstances prices will go way down.

Of course a financial stringency affects all classes of goods and all the people.

The "bears" who wish to force down the price of wheat will create a financial stringency, or, if possible, a financial panic, and so force down the price of all articles, causing ruin and distress to thousands and the loss of millions of dollars in order that out of the ruin they may reap a few dollars.

Their plan is like that of the men who will cause the wreck of a great ship in order that they may gather some of the trifles that are washed ashore.

The recent panic in Wall street, which caused losses amounting to hundreds of millions and checked the industries of the entire country, was brought about by some men who wanted to buy some valuable stock at less than it was worth. They accomplished their end by seizing the opportunity to create a money stringency so severe that it precipitated a panic.

They reaped a rich harvest for themselves, and of course the holders of the stock were defrauded of an equal amount. But in accomplishing this, ruin was brought on many who were in no way interested in the stocks in question, and every industry in the country was more or less injured.

The key to the whole nefarious business is in the ability of speculators to create a money stringency—to make it difficult for men to secure money when it is needed.

How intense was the demand for money in New York during the panic is shown by the fact that rates of interest ran up as high as one half per cent a day, or over 180 per cent a year. And this rate was paid by men who had the best security to offer.

As the key to this business is the ability to create a money stringency, so the remedy and only remedy is the adoption of a system under which it will be impossible for any man or any combination of men to prevent other men from getting money when they need it and have the proper security to offer.

AN ALLEGORY.

Dr. Molino, a rich and able navigator, cruising in the waters of the South Pacific, came upon a large island, containing something over 52,000 square miles of area, about the size of the state of Alabama, and nearly as regular in outline and with climatic conditions, soil, mineral and timber very similar to this state of the union, for on the part lying toward the equator are grown an abundance of semi-tropical products, of cotton, sugar cane, rice, oranges, etc.; in the central region there abounds an inexhaustible supply of the most necessary minerals, some gold and silver. The southern part is especially adapted to grain, grass and stock raising, most of the island is arable and responsive to the intelligent and kindly treatment given, and abounds in fine water courses, the streams in fish and the valleys in game, both of which are so far protected that they are never disturbed in breeding time, nor at any time are they wantonly killed.

All this the doctor learned while spending several months on the island, making a general study of it—its flora, fauna and people. The latter, of all there, interested him most; but not much of their characteristics nor the details of life can be given in this sketch.

Here he soon realized that he had found the highest degree of civilization known, and as a consequence men and women and children of the most perfect type; farming, manufacturing and mining all done on scientific lines.

The only particulars to which we can now refer are: (1) The government, which is a pure democracy, the time and attention of what may be called the congress and the executive are given largely to harmonizing the great and varied industries, the progress and further development as science, experience and invention shall suggest.

There are no political parties there, no politicians, and no bankers or non-producers of any kind, for the simple reason that there is no place for them. The old histories of the country show that all these formerly held important places in the affairs of the state, but the systems requiring them were so imperfect that the uniform result has been continuous failure, loss and social disturbance. It was, therefore, decided to rub out the old slate and make a new one based on the principles of a real republic.

No man or company is now allowed to monopolize any natural opportunity. These are a common inheritance of all the people. Every one is allowed the free use of as much land as he needs, whether in town or in the country. Occupancy and use are the only titles, and priority of occupancy having precedence prevents conflicting claims. Money that is spent in the states in the purchase of lands is there used in its improvements. There is no speculation in land or anything else in this ideal state.

The government builds, owns and controls all railroads, canals, telegraphs and the like. The government operates the postal service very much as Uncle Sam, only it is free from political interference, and distributes and exchanges the labor products of itself and the people on a similar basis.

Congress is made up of representatives of all classes and species of necessary industry, and a part of its duty is determining the parity of values of all labor products—the relative labor cost of each, and since government there conducts the principal part of the exchange business the money question is one of easy solution. The average labor cost is the price of everything, and as individuals labor for the public or turn their products over to it for exchange, the government issues labor or receipt checks (or dollars), on paper, in ones, twos and fives, and so on, and for small change multiples of the money unit. And thus what is a vexed question here is scientifically and equitably fixed there. These checks are accepted everywhere in the realm at their face value in exchange for any commodity or service.

An average day's labor or product of the same is there considered to be the unit of value in the estimation and comparison of value. Government does all the banking business.

There are no lobbies to defeat the ends of justice, and no trusts and combines to rob the people. The salaries of all officers are equitable and just, and on a par with the earnings of the people. There are none extremely and dangerously rich or poor. Moderate effort brings an ample living. No anxiety, for every one has a chance to labor and to live. There is as much to do as there are those to do it. Opportunity is not monopolized, and a few hours' labor each day produces plenty, and there is no need of piling up one day against another.

People live to a good old age and are happy. The young live, woo and marry. Education is a great concern, and in charge of the state, and receives special attention. The best developed and most highly accomplished are engaged as teachers. The entertainments are many and varied and on a scientific basis. The ambition and chief entertainment of the people lies in the study of and search for truth, and the development and happiness of the race.

Tea-drinking and "5-o'clock tea" are becoming more and more popular in Berlin. The advocates of tea claim that it is a remedy for anaemia and improves the complexion.

A Tax Dodger.

The Hon. Chauncey M. Depew has succeeded in evading the state inheritance tax on a bequest of $200,000, on the ground that the money was left to him "in recognition of his services" as friend and legal adviser to the testator. We congratulate Mr. Depew on saving $10,000 that morally belongs to the state treasury, but we venture to suggest that a United States senator, charged with the duty of making laws for the nation, might set a better example than that of dodging the laws of the state.—New York World.

Manchester, England, is about to change its horse car system to electric traction at a cost of $4,000,000.

Most things come to those who hustle while they wait.

News of the Northwest

GREAT NORTHERN HIRING POLICE.

Preparing for Trouble in the Event of a Strike.

Minneapolis, Jan. 27. — The Journal says: The Great Northern railway authorities are preparing for trouble. This has become evident by the discovery that Chief of the Secret Service Herrick has an emissary here employed in hiring special police officers. Herrick visited Minneapolis yesterday and arranged with a former guard of the state prison at Stillwater named O'Meara, to hire all the ex-policemen and watchmen he could get in the city at $4 a day. The instructions of the men are to be ready to report for duty to-day or Saturday morning. They are told that they are to be stationed at various points along the line and are to be lodged in sleeping cars. The trainmen's grievance committee is waiting for word from the officials as to when the promised conference is to be held. It develops that the company has been sounding the individual trainmen on its own account by sending officials to divisional headquarter points to interview them, and the men take this as a sign that the company is disposed to make concessions if it finds the trainmen of one mind.

CREMATED IN A LOCK-UP.

Fire Destroys the Jail at Lake City —One Man Burned to Death.

Lake City, Minn., Jan. 27.—A man named McTaggert, a well-known country character, was incinerated in a fire which destroyed the town lock-up. McTaggert was a hard drinker and was placed in custody more to give him shelter than with any idea of punishment. His arms and legs were burned nearly to the trunk. He had no relatives in this region, but was widely known around here and at Wabasha. The origin of the fire was a mystery. The doors of the jail were left unlocked, so that McTaggert might depart as soon as he sobered up. His blackened and charred body was found in the bunk where he was placed, and for that reason it is believed he did not start the conflagration.

To Name the Day and Date.

Washington, Jan. 27.—Senator Butler, chairman of the national executive committee of the People's party, has issued a call for a meeting of that party to be held in Lincoln, Neb., Monday, Feb. 19, for the purpose of naming the time and place for holding the national convention of that party. The executive committee consists of three members from each state.

Want Principal Removed.

Sioux City, Iowa, Jan. 27.—Morningside college students here have commenced circulating a petition for the removal of Prof. Perkins Slocum, vice president of the institution. The immediate cause was his suspension of a popular student for a trifling offense, but trouble has long been brewing because the students claim he has systemmatically interfered with their athletic sports.

Blizzard Raging in Michigan.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 27. — A blizzard raged here all day yesterday and increased in violence last night. Nearly a foot of snow has fallen. The storm is reported to be general all over upper Michigan. The snow is a blessing to the lumbermen, who were on the point of breaking up camps on account of the extended thaw.

Short in His Cash.

Marshall, Mich., Jan. 27. — Aug. O. Hyde, ex-superintendent of the poor of Calhoun county, in whose accounts a special commission which has been investigating accounts of county officers, discovered alleged shortages in the neighborhood of $5,000, was arrested, charged with embezzlement.

Coal Company Robbed.

Marquette, Mich., Jan. 27.—Pickard's Coal company is said to be out nearly $1,000 by the departure of James A. Russell, a young clerk in its employ. Russell disappeared Sunday night. An examination of the books showed the shortage. Russell is a young man just about of age.

Died From Injuries.

Viroqua, Wis., Jan. 27. — William Marker, who was stabbed by William McDonald six times in a fight last September, died yesterday. A warrant is out for McDonald's arrest on the charge of murder, but he cannot be found.

Sudden Death of a Young Wife.

Madelia, Minn., Jan. 27. — Mrs. Amanda Vanesse, aged twenty-four, died suddenly at her home. An inquest decided that death was caused by heart failure. She leaves a husband and two children.

Two Convicts Captured.

Canon City, Colo., Jan. 27.—Two of the four convicts who escaped from the penitentiary Monday night after killing Capt. W. C. Rooney, were captured near Victor and have been returned.

Brakeman Killed.

Yankton, S. D., Jan. 27.—H. G. Berry, a brakeman on the Milwaukee, fell from a freight train and was killed about midnight in the neighborhood of Meckling, twenty miles east of here.

Stillwater Man Hurt.

Grantsburg, Wis., Jan. 27—Jim Nichols of Stillwater was brought down from John McRae's camp yesterday in a precarious condition, a tree having fallen on him.

Prominent Steamboat Captain Dead.

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 27.—Capt. Nathaniel Lane of Portland died suddenly at his room in the Powell block here. He had an excellent record as a steamboat pilot and was well known on the upper and lower Columbia.

Epidemic of Varioloid.

Spokane, Wash., Jan. 27. — An epidemic of varioloid is raging here. There are already upward of seventy cases of a mild type of smallpox in the isolation hospital here. So far no deaths have resulted.

Caused $20,000 Loss.

Portland, Or., Jan. 25.—The one-story brick warehouse of the Standard Oil company was destroyed yesterday by fire, entailing a loss estimated at $20,000. The fire started in the basement where a large amount of oil was kept.

Ate "Rough-on-Rats."

Pipestone, Minn., Jan. 25. — George Krapf, living fifteen miles south of this place, committed suicide by taking poison. He took rough on rats. No reason for the act is known.

BIG BLAZE IN MINNEAPOLIS.

Candy Manufacturing Concern Goes Up in Smoke.

Minneapolis, Jan. 30. — The confectionery manufactory of McKusick, Copelin, Riddell & Co., corner First street and Second avenue south, was wholly destroyed by fire Saturday evening. The loss sustained by all the parties concerned will be fully $110,000—possibly $10,000 to $15,000 above that figure. The fire caught in some unaccountable way in the basement and quickly worked its way to the roof. When the firemen arrived at the scene the conditions were very serious. A strong wind prevailed at the time and it looked as if there might be great destruction of adjoining property. The heat was intense, and a number of buildings immediately opposite on Second avenue were slightly damaged, but not materially.

BLACK TOMAHAWK MISSING.

Fort Pierre Indian Supposed to Be Under the Ice.

Pierre, S. D., Jan. 30.—Reports from Fort Pierre would indicate that Black Tomahawk, an old Indian, has gone through the ice on the river. His team was noticed tied to a tree on the bank, and after the second day it was looked after. The owner has not been seen for several days and is supposed to be dead. Tomahawk is the Indian who, after a long fight before the land department, secured as an allotment 320 acres of valuable land lying within the town of Fort Pierre, and only last fall secured final title from the government. A case has just been commenced in the United States courts to set aside the allotment made to him by the land department.

MILLS WILL OPEN AGAIN.

Thomas McIntyre to Come to Milwaukee to Lease Trust Property.

Milwaukee, Wis., Jan. 30.—William Faist and Robert Nunnemacher, local representatives of the United States Milling company, deny the statement from the East that the Duluth and the Daisy roller mills of this city will be permanently closed down. Both are positive in their statements that the Milwaukee mills will continue to grind. Thomas A. McIntyre, the secretary and vice president of the United States Milling company, is expected to come to Milwaukee shortly to complete the arrangements for the lease of the local properties of the trust.

MEDICAL ETHICS

Violated by Physicians Who Know the Value of Advertising.

Sioux City, Iowa, Jan. 30.—Because they advertise their business Doctors T. Y. and R. R. Stephenson of Sioux Falls were expelled from the Sioux Valley Medical association. Their skill was not questioned. The association chose Sioux Falls as its next meeting place.

Suicide of a Robber.

Sioux Rapids, Iowa, Jan. 30. — At Peterson a footpad attempted to hold up a farmer who was leaving town in his wagon. The farmer whipped up his horses and the highwayman fired several times at him. The shots brought a crowd of men to the scene, who surrounded the fellow. Before he could be prevented he placed the revolver to his head and blew out his brains. He was a stranger.

Sue for Suicide's Money.

La Crosse, Wis., Jan. 30. — James Llewellan of Waterloo went to Wilton last October with several hundred dollars, with which he intended to purchase a farm and make a home for his young bride. He got into a game of poker and lost every cent. He went to his room and killed himself. Relatives now bring suit against Daniel Trump, alleged to be the man who won the money.

Bank Robbed of a Large Sum.

Madison, Wis., Jan. 30.—The Bank of Deerfield, sixteen miles east of this city, was entered Friday night and about $8,000 taken from its vault, which was blown open with dynamite. It was evidently the work of experts. Sheriff Kause is after two well-dressed strangers who spent the afternoon in London, four miles east, and started after dusk toward Deerfield.

Students Are Happy.

Montevideo, Minn., Jan. 30. — The students of Windom institute held a jollification parade and made a lively demonstration over the news of the endowment gift of $25,000 provided by the will of the late W. S. Benton. A large number of the alumni were present.

New Burlington Project.

Des Moines, Iowa, Jan. 30.—Articles of incorporation were filed for the Murray & Creston, capitalization $2,000,000. The Burlington system is back of the project, which provides for the construction of a double track road between the two points named.

Will Ride a Machine.

Aberdeen, S. D., Jan. 30. — Brown Brothers have purchased an automobile for use in looking after their extensive land interests in this part of the state. Mr. R. L. Brown has started with the machine from Chicago and intends riding it to Aberdeen.

Decision Affirmed.

Sioux City, Iowa, Jan. 30.—The Iowa supreme court has affirmed the lower court's ruling in the case of the Sioux City Stock Yards company against the Sioux City Packing company, a litigation involving over a quarter of a million dollars.

Struck by a Snow Plow.

Red Wing, Minn., Jan. 30.—William Smith, eighty-four years of age, who has been employed as flagman for the Milwaukee road, was struck by the snow plow of a Duluth, Red Wing & Southern train and perhaps fatally injured.

Destroyed by Fire.

Berham, Minn., Jan. 30.—In the fire which destroyed Lloyd & Son's store the Braham News was also destroyed. Editor Folsom lost all his personal effects and printing plant.

Resulted in Murder.

Sioux City, Iowa, Jan. 30.—Andy L. Kean, who was stabbed with a hot poker by Mike Haines in a fight in a blacksmith shop, is dead. Haines is in jail on a charge of murder in the first degree.

Hotel Destroyed by Fire.

Baraboo, Wis., Jan. 30. — Fire destroyed the Bates house at Reedsburg; loss, $5,000, fully insured. It was one of the oldest hotels in this section.

Minnesota Historical Society

MINNESOTA
HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

VOLUME XIX. ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 7, 1900. NUMBER 29.

VINDICATED

IS GOVERNOR LIND'S VETO OF THE MILLER BILL BY COURT DECISION.

A Practical Application of the Miller Bill Shown in a Test Case—Governor Lind's Efforts, Through the Railway and Warehouse Commission to Secure Just Coal Rates to the Southwest Crowned With Success—How They Would Have Fared Under the Proposed Miller Law—Other State and National Political Points of the Week—Deeper and Deeper Depths For the McKinley Administration. Aguinaldo's Appeal and Admiral Dewey's Admissions—Murder in Kentucky Fit Companion Piece to "Criminal Aggression" in the Philippines—The Week's Summary.

Reform Press Bureau,
St. Paul, Feb. 5, 1900.

The most important state political event of the week—and a most important one—has been the decision in the Ramsey county district court, at the hands of Judge Bunn, recognized as one of the ablest jurists in the state, of the celebrated coal rate case, in which, through the railway and warehouse commission of the state, Governor Lind has been for a year endeavoring to secure a just and equitable rate on coal for the people of the southwestern part of the state, from Duluth. The fact that the commission ordered a reduction of the rate from $2.55 to $1.95 per ton, from Duluth to New Ulm, is widely known, as well as that the railway companies resisted, taking the case to the district court.

The court finds for the state in two points:

First, that the railway commission under the law has the power to compel railroads to establish joint tariffs when roads are so related as the St. Paul and Duluth and Minneapolis and St. Louis, in the case in point.

Second, that it had the power to establish reasonable rates for such service, and that the joint rate in question was unreasonable and exorbitant, being higher than the wheat rate.

The point of interest, aside from the removal of the injustice under which the people of this section have long suffered, is the application of the Miller bill, which Governor Lind vetoed during the last session. The manner in which Governor Lind's judgment in the veto preventing that bill to become a law is vindicated, is thus stated by Governor Lind:

"As the law now stands the decision of the commission, after a hearing, is prima facie correct, and the rate established by it just and reasonable. The burden of proof, as the court well puts it, is on the railroad company to establish the unreasonable and confiscatory character of the rate established.

"If the Miller bill had become a law, the rate established in the first instance would have stood as prima facie fair and reasonable rate—for the law authorizes the railroad companies to fix rates in the first place and that which the law authorizes to be done is presumed to be rightly done until the contrary is shown, and the burden of proof would then have rested on the state at all stages to show that the railroad company's rate was unreasonable and that the proposed rate was fair and reasonable. This the commission could not do, as all the evidence bearing on the question is in the hands of the railroad company.

"Another very important point established by the decision is that the St. Paul and Duluth railroad, or any other company, whose business originates in the state, cannot be boycotted by the other railroads. When the commission made its decision in respect to the joint rates from Duluth, the Minneapolis and St. Louis company terminated a traffic agreement with the Duluth road, which has been in force for years, and brought coal from West Superior, in Wisconsin, to supply the points affected by the decision, claiming that by making it interstate traffic it was not subject to the rates established by the state authorities. They absolutely refused to carry coal delivered to them by the St. Paul and Duluth. Under this decision they cannot persist in this course."

Commenting further, Governor Lind says:

"If I had signed the Miller bill, this decision could not have been rendered. I hope that poor Miller can now see the matter in its true light. I have never believed for a moment that he would have fathered the bill accredited to him had he known its inherent viciousness."

The brave fight Senator Pettigrew is making in the senate, to bring to the light of day such of the iniquities in the Philippine islands as the McKinley administration has thus far been able to hide, wins the approval of every true lover of liberty. His effort to have the contents of the Aguinaldo appeal to the civilized world known, and the Filipino chief's statement of his relations with American officers of the consular, navy and army service is specially commendable. We have received a copy of the appeal, as translated from the original Spanish, and every honest man who reads it will unhesitatingly confess that if one-half that is recited there is true, its publication should be prevented at all hazards, for the salvation of the administration.

The appeal is under the seal of the Philippine republic, dating from June, 1898, which succeeded the dictatorial government of which Aguinaldo was the head, which in turn came from the revolutionary government of August, 1896. Thus the Philippine government which we have overthrown, was in existence two years before the Cuban war broke out, and when Dewey arrived at Manila independence was nearly won over the Spanish. Aguinaldo gives with particularity his relations with American officers and authorities, and how at their request he came to Manila and turned the Filipino forces into active allies on both land and sea. The celebration of their Independence Day, (our Fourth), on June 12, 1898, was attended by our officers and soldiers, Dewey himself only excusing himself on account of being busy with "mail day." This was true of the adoption of the Philippine flag, which our ships saluted, and numerous other convincing incidents. Aguinaldo asserts that independence for his people was distinctly understood, known as well to Admiral Dewey, and assented to by him, as by all the rest. It is the clear deduction from all the facts, that Americans and natives alike had no other idea until McKinley's proclamation of sovereignty dashed the Filipino hopes to earth, and precipitated the contest.

What a chapter this will be when placed before all the people, conclusive of the wickedness of the McKinley "criminal aggression." And noticeable is it also, that the "denial" which Dewey has made confirms in his own words that we are guilty of war on our "allies," for the admiral says in the Lodge letter:

"I never treated him (Aguinaldo) as an ally except to make use of him and his soldiers to assist me in my operations against the Spaniards."

What does the world say of a nation that, unprovoked, makes war on its allies!

What is there to be said of the awful tragedy in Kentucky, where as a natural sequel to overawing of the polls by troops and United States marshals, as well as by wholesale corruption in the ballot boxes, the man honestly chosen by the people, also through a test of manhood and personal courage rarely if ever equalled and never excelled, is stricken down by the assassin's rifle ball! Brave Goebel, rising on your supposed deathbed to take the oath of office, while the life-blood oozed freshly from your wounds, you have earned life and the victory you have won. Well may the Republican Pioneer Press in a burst of candor remark that this shooting of Goebel "is a severe blow to the Republican cause in Kentucky." How appropriate that the Republican rump government, bag and baggage, betook itself to the "feud county," and the mountain abode of the thugs and murderers who have been used by the party of Lincoln to again disgrace the "dark and bloody ground" of Kentucky.

Should death claim this brave spirit, well may it be said of him:

"Whether on the scaffold high
Or in the battle's van
The fittest place for man to die
Is where he dies for man."

W. J. Bryan on "Destiny": Speaking of destiny, it was the destiny of Cain to slay Abel, but it was also his destiny to wear the brand of a murderer forever afterwards.

While farmers are revelling in 50-cent wheat, and business men carefully scan their books to discover on which side of the ledger the balance stood for 1899, the Republican trusts measure their grain to the following tune of 1899 profits:

	Per cent.
Central Trust	263
Farmers' Loan and Trust	88
N. Y. Life Insurance and Trust	80
Union Trust	78
U. S. Mortgage and Trust	53
State Trust	50
U. S. Trust	47
Mercantile Trust	44
Manhattan	42½
N. Y. Security Trust	41
Continental Trust	41
Guaranty Trust	40

It is for "business" of this class that Hanna spoke, on McKinley inauguration day, 1897, when he declared "this will be a business administration." Also the same that he had in mind when, after the 1896 scare that Bryan gave him was over, he wired McKinley: "God reigns, and the Republican party still lives."

One thing is certain, regarding the use of the flag this campaign, that the G. O. P. will not wrap "Old Glory" around them as of yore. The flag will be the emblem of the Liberty party, those who would have the flag still stand, as under Lincoln, "for liberty for all men, everywhere." Let all of our friends hang out the flag. Up with the glorious old banner of the free, especially our papers!

And speaking of the "flags" in South Africa, that is a good one, on the part of old Boer is represented as saying: "I know the British flag, I've seen it lots of times. It's white."

The gold reserve is now jogging along downwards at quite the Cleveland pace, standing at but little over $215,000,000, as against $252,000,000 in November. The present rate of loss approaches $1,000,000 a day, and while gold leaves, silver slowly rises, standing above the 60 point. While silver rises, so does wheat.

And to keep up the record, another big Wall street house has gone to the wall—gone to take the gold cure.

And while people go on taking the gold cure for financial ills the army of Indiana coal miners, 70,000 strong, is about to march out on strike against gold wages!

To the war in Africa, which advances the rate of interest, financiers ascribe one of the causes for the low price of wheat. Another is the McKinley war tax. The one could be removed were the United States on a financial policy of independence of Great Britain, the other, by stopping this unholy war of conquest in the Philippines.

And here is Mayor Gray of Minneapolis speaking of McKinley's secretary of state as "Little Breeches!"

And speaking of Mayor Gray, two years from now, he may cast an eye to the governor's chair. Just now he and the Minneapolis boys are attending to that second term which all hands concede the mayor will receive in reward for his excellent administration.

G. S. O.

CLOSE TO CIVIL WAR

ARMED CONFLICT IS THREATENED IN KENTUCKY.

First Clash Between the Executive and Judiciary Powers Occurs and a Still Greater Clash Is Imminent—Beginning of the Crisis Is at Hand—Officers of the Court Arrested by the Military While Attempting to Serve a Notice of Legal Proceeding Upon Gov. Taylor.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 4. — The first clash between the executive and judiciary powers of the state occurred yesterday. A still greater clash is imminent to-day, and beyond the possibilities of to-day lies a sea with skies so lowering and of so stormy an aspect that no politician of either party can predict where it will carry the Kentucky ship of state. There is the chance that things will, as Congressman June Gayle expresses it, "drift around all right," but there are other chances also, and if things are to "drift around all right," they must strike a counter current, and strike it soon. There can be no longer any concealment of the fact that affairs in this state are bordering upon a conflict with arms, and the beginning of the crisis is at hand. It may be the political difficulties may be settled by courts of law, but heads are hot in Kentucky now, and legal processes that may prove a remedy for a dilatory peace may be irritating and start the trouble. The clash came yesterday when an officer of the court of Franklin county was arrested by the military while attempting to serve a notice of legal proceeding upon Gov. Taylor. The next

Clash May Come

when the officers of the court attempt to enforce the rulings of its presiding judge. Behind this judge the Democrats will have for the first time an active head in the person of Acting Gov. Peckham, and, from the Democratic standpoint, a regularly appointed adjutant general, whose orders the troops now encamped around the capitol building are now bound to obey. If they decline to obey the new adjutant general will, the Democrats claim, have the power to organize military forces of his own and proceed against all people who defy the authority of his office and that of the governor of the state whom he represents. On the other hand, the Republicans are fixed in their attitude that there is an insurrection in the state, that Beckham and his actions, his adjutant general and his orders are those of people acting in opposition to law. They believe that they alone are in the right, and as there can be but one right and all else wrong, those who show resistance to the proclamations of Gov. Taylor are in rebellion against the commonwealth. They will resist any attempt of any kind to remove them from their position around the capitol, meeting force with force and cause civil war.

Legislature Holds Secret Session.

The Democratic members of the legislature yesterday effected a regular organization for the first time since the swearing in of Gov. Goebel. A secret session of the members of both houses was held in the parlors of the Capitol hotel, at which the election of William Goebel as governor and J. W. Beckham as lieutenant governor, was reaffirmed, first in separate sessions of the house and senate, and afterward in a joint session. Preceding this action the members elected as president pro tem. Senator Carter. No further session will be held until Monday. It seems to be well understood among the Democratic members that the session at London will be ignored altogether by them, and that no Democrat will attend "until compelled to do so." It was practically decided [illegible] some convenient place until the political atmosphere has cleared. This plan of action was decided on to forestall any attempt on the part of the Republicans to arrest them or compel their attendance at London, which action, according to the Democratic members, has been determined on by Gov. Taylor. If arrests are attempted no resistance will be made by the Democrats, either to arrest or attending the session at London should they be arrested. It was determined that all acts of violence should be avoided and that the battle for supremacy hereafter should be fought out in the courts.

Some Hope for Goebel.

The condition of Mr. Goebel was last night considered better than at any time since he was shot. The improvement [illegible] will and determination of the wounded man that he will not die by the assassin's bullet is, however, still considered the main factor in sustaining him, and last night the attending physicians for the first time held out some hope for his ultimate recovery.

Beckham Acting Governor.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 4.—Lieut. Gov. Beckham will to-day be acting governor, in place of Gov. Goebel, who is now incapacitated from performing the duties of the office. A physician's certificate was made out last night declaring that Gov. Goebel was unable, and will be for some time unable to act, and by virtue of this, the reins of power will be placed in the hands of Lieut. Gov. Beckham, who will immediately exercise all the functions of the governor.

President Will Not Interfere.

Washington, Feb. 4.—Nearly the entire time of the cabinet meeting yesterday was taken up in a discussion of the situation in Kentucky and the rights and duties of the president in connection therewith. A decision was reached at once, and when Senator-elect Blackburn, with Representatives Rhea, Allen, Gilbert, Smith and Wheeler called to protest against federal interference in Kentucky the president promptly gave them to understand that he had already reached a conclusion on the subject, and that he found that the situation did not warrant the federal authorities interfering.

EARLIER ACCOUNTS.

Summary of Recent Sensational Happenings at Frankfort.

While walking through the capitol grounds at Frankfort, Ky., on his way to the capitol building, at 11:10 o'clock Tuesday morning, William Goebel, the Democratic contestant for governor of Kentucky, was shot down and very dangerously wounded. Harland Whittaker, a farmer from Butler county, the home county of Gov. Taylor, is now in jail at Louisville, charged with the crime. There is no direct evidence against Whittaker, and he was placed under arrest more because he was caught around the capitol building, whence the shots were fired, than for any other apparent reason. Senator Goebel was wounded by a rifle ball of small caliber, not over 38, which struck him in the right side just below the armpit. The ball passed through the back part of the right lung, across the body on a diagonal line, passing out below the left shoulder blade.

Senator Goebel was immediately removed to his hotel and medical attendance summoned. Later, a consultation of prominent surgeons was held, and the wound was pronounced necessarily fatal. It was thought that Mr. Goebel could not survive the night.

Republican officials and members of the legislature denounced the shooting in unmeasured terms.

Gov. Taylor issued orders to Adjt. Gen. Collier to take steps to preserve order. The entire state guard was called into service, and soldiers were placed on guard at the capitol and other places where expected disorder might break out.

While Mr. Goebel lay at the point of death in his room, as the result of an assassin's bullet, the contesting boards, which for two weeks had been listening to the evidence in the contest for the governor's chair, declared him entitled to the seat.

Goebel Sworn In.

Shortly after 9 o'clock Wednesday night, William Goebel was sworn in as governor, and J. C. W. Beckham as lieutenant governor. The members of the legislature were prevented from holding a session by the militia, under orders of Gov. Taylor. The Democratic members signed a statement setting forth the fact that it was their belief that Goebel had been legally elected governor, and that they had been prevented from taking action on the report of the contest board by Gov. Taylor's action in refusing to allow the legislature to convene. On the strength of this statement, Chief Justice Hazelrigg administered the oath of office to Goebel and Beckham.

Gov. Goebel's first action was to issue an order dispersing the militia, but his order was ignored.

Gov. Taylor issued a proclamation declaring that a state of insurrection existed, and adjourned the legislature to meet at London, Ky., Feb. 6.

No unfavorable symptoms appeared in Goebel's condition during the day, and he rested comfortably.

During the day the Democratic members of the legislature made several attempts to hold a session, but were prevented by the militia.

Try to Patch It Up.

On Thursday a proposition was made to the Democratic managers by the Republicans looking to an amicable adjustment of the controversy. The proposition was to submit the case to the state courts, which would undoubtedly decide against Taylor. Then the case was to be taken to the United States supreme court for final settlement. The Democrats declared that they desired to have the matter adjudicated in the state courts, and thus the attempt for a peaceful settlement was dropped.

The Democrats continued their efforts to hold a session of the legislature, but without avail.

Mr. Goebel's physicians said there was a possibility of uraemic poisoning, and it was possible that the governor might die in a convulsion almost any time.

Gov. Taylor issued an appeal to President McKinley, reciting the situation in Kentucky. He said he was doubtful of his power to control the situation, and appealed to the president to end the matter and secure peace in the state by recognizing him as governor of Kentucky.

TERRIBLE GAS EXPLOSION.

Four Persons Seriously Injured and One Fatally Hurt.

Bradford, Pa., Feb. 6.—Four persons seriously injured and one fatally hurt and a hotel wrecked were the results of a natural gas explosion at New City, an oil hamlet in this vicinity last night. Gas from a broken connection had collected under the floor. A youth lighting a cigarette ignited the gas which had worked through a crack. The front portion of the hotel was blown out and the interior was wrecked.

Death in a Fencing Match.

Paris, Feb. 6.—In a fencing match between Leon de Chandin and Raoul de Boulangues the latter's foil snapped, pierced the mask, and entered Chandin's brain through the right eye, causing instantaneous death.

Roberts Arrested.

Salt Lake, Utah, Feb. 6.—Brigham H. Roberts arrived here and was arrested charged with unlawful cohabitation with Dr. Maggie Shipp. He was released on his own recognizance to appear for a hearing to-day.

Battleship Texas at San Juan.

San Juan, Porto Rico, Feb. 6.—The United States battleship Texas arrived here. Capt. W. C. Gibson was received at the palace by Gov. Gen. Davis.

Storm Destroys a Harbor.

St. John's, N. F., Feb. 6.—Another tornado swept the coast Monday night. Lark harbor was devastated and twenty houses were blown down, including the customs station and the residence of the customs officer.

Accidentally Killed.

Sparta, Wis., Feb. 6.—William Myro, one of the most prominent farmers of this county, was killed by the bursting of a fly-wheel on a sawing machine. Fragments of the wheel tore off a leg and an arm.

CONFLICT AVERTED

POLITICAL SITUATION IN KENTUCKY LESS THREATENING.

Gov. Taylor Orders the Release of the Man for the Possession of Whom Armed Conflict Between the Civil Authorities and the Military Was Threatened.—Mr. Goebel Succumbed Saturday After a Hard Battle for Life—Lieut. Gov. Beckham Sworn in as Governor.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 5.—Armed conflict between the civil authorities of Franklin county and the national guard of the State of Kentucky has been averted, and unless new causes should come to the front there is small likelihood that the political situation will again become threatening as it has been during the last thirty-six hours.

Gov. Taylor yesterday morning ordered the release of Alonzo Walker, for the possession of whom Judge Moore declared that Sheriff Sutter would swear in a force of deputies to take possession of the capitol grounds, if such an extreme became necessary. While not recognizing in his action the writ of habeas corpus which had been sworn out in behalf of Walker, Gov. Taylor, by releasing the man, removed the most threatening sign of trouble. The commanding officers of the troops which guard the capitol grounds are careful to say that the situation is entirely a military affair and that they extend the writ of habeas corpus very little consideration, but whether they regard it or not, Walker is free and Sheriff Sutter will not be called upon to summon force in the attempt to secure his release. The appalling consequences which would follow such an effort on the part of the sheriff for the more conservative members of the Democratic party, and it was decided that no matter what Judge Moore should say as an individual, there would be no attempt to take possession of the capitol grounds by force of arms. Even if Walker had been held a much longer time than he actually was held, no effort, the Democratic leaders had decided, should be made for his rescue after the writ of habeas corpus had failed. Both sides will take a rest pending the session of the Republicans called by Gov. Taylor at London. No Democrats will attend this until they are taken there by the military forces of the state, and no attempt will be made in this direction by Gov. Taylor until he has afforded them every opportunity to go to London of their own accord. What will be done when it has been made certain that the Democrats will not visit London has not been definitely determined by Gov. Taylor. It is likely that matters on both sides will be allowed to drift until after the funeral of Gov. Goebel.

Was Too Much

GOEBEL IS DEAD.

Beckham Sworn in as Governor of Kentucky.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 5. — William Goebel, head of the Kentucky government organized by legislative majority in the face of bayonets, died at 6:45 o'clock Saturday evening. Public announcement of his death was not made until almost an hour later. During the interval before notice of his death was given out Lieut. Gov. Beckham was sworn in as governor of the State of Kentucky, and executed his first official acts as executive head of the claimant government by making a number of staff appointments.

Gov. Goebel was unconscious when death came. His brother Arthur and his sister, Mrs. Braunaker, were the only persons at his bedside, where they had sat for hours, the doctors having told them early in the afternoon that death was but a matter of moments. Another brother, Justus, arrived here just an hour after his brother's death.

Among bitter partisans of both parties deep grief is manifested, and already a movement has been started to erect a fitting monument for Mr. Goebel's memory on the spot in the state house grounds where he was shot.

The news has gone through the state like lightning, and already offers of volunteers to avenge Goebel's death by marching to Frankfort and resorting to arms are reaching the men who now stand as leaders of the claimant government. The telegraph and long-distance telephone are bringing this word from Covington, Louisville and other cities.

Martial law has been clamped down on the city with all severity. Saloons are closed and a heavy provost guard is holding the streets. Bugles have clattered out their calls and troops have been moved to all points where the greatest chance of control of outbreaks should they come. There are score of men in the streets who are seeking a chance to kill Gov. Taylor. They make no denial of this. "We will get him," they say. "If not now, why, in a few days, a few weeks, or a few months, may be, but we will get him."

Anticipating the effect which the visit of death has caused the Democratic leaders had circulars printed asking that the law be respected. These dodgers were distributed by messengers throughout Frankfort and surrounding country.

The Funeral Arrangements.

It practically has been decided that the remains of Gov. William Goebel will be buried in Frankfort in the cemetery overlooking the Kentucky river where lie the remains of Daniel Boone, Vice President Richard Johnson and several Kentucky governors, eminent jurists and soldiers. Although the burial will take place in Frankfort in accordance with the wishes of the friends of the dead man, the funeral services will be held in Covington, his home. The remains will be taken to Covington to-day on a special train. Tuesday morning the remains will be conveyed to Odd Fellows' hall in Covington, and from 8:30 in the morning until 10 o'clock in the evening will lie in state, the hall being kept open in the evening to allow the working people an opportunity to view the remains. The funeral services will be extremely simple, in deference not only to the wishes of Gov. Goebel, but also of the members of his family. Wednesday morning the remains will be brought back to Frankfort and placed in the big ball room of the Capitol hotel, where they will lie in state all that day. Some apprehension is felt of trouble on that day, as it is believed that from 30,000 to 50,000 strangers will be in the city to view the remains of the Democratic leader, and bitter feeling engendered by his death may result in a clash. Precautions are being taken, irrespective of party, to prevent trouble, and no serious outbreak is looked for. The interment will take place Thursday from the Capitol hotel, but the actual arrangements for the burial have as yet not been decided on. Plans for the raising of funds by popular subscription for the erection of a monument to Gov. Goebel's memory is rapidly taking shape.

Quiet at London.

London, Ky., Feb. 5. — The rumors that have become current that armed mountaineers have gathered in London to intimidate Democratic legislators are absolutely without foundation. The town is as peaceful and tranquil as a country village in any other part of the country, and there are no armed men within its limits or lurking in the adjacent country so far as is known by the leading citizens.

Headquarters at Louisville.

Louisville, Feb. 5.—This city is to be the seat, temporarily at least, of the Democratic state government. Gov. Beckham and the rest of his chief advisers reached here yesterday morning. To-day the Democratic members of the legislature will meet here, and it is proposed to make Louisville the headquarters of the legislative and executive branches of the state government as long as the presence of troops keeps them from Frankfort, or until the present conflict of authority in the state is settled.

MACRUM IS MUM.

Former Consul at Pretoria Arrives in New York.

New York, Feb. 5.—Charles E. Macrum, the former United States consul at Pretoria, who asked to be recalled at a time when affairs in the South African republic were in a crisis and when his presence in the Transvaal republic were urgently required by the state department, arrived on the St. Paul. With him are his wife and little daughter. Mr. Macrum maintains silence as to the reasons for wishing to leave his station, and when asked to make public his reasons for so doing has refused. His silence is still unbroken, though Mr. Macrum says after his arrival in Washington and visit to the state department he will issue a statement over his signature telling why he left his post at such a critical time. He would not even talk about the situation in Africa when he left

VALUE OF DEWEY'S PRIZE.

Board of Appraisal Says Manila Bay Capture Was Worth $326,141.

Washington, Feb. 5.—The secretary of the navy has transmitted to the supreme court of the District of Columbia a copy of the report of the board of appraisal and survey which was convened at Cavite June 6, 1898, to place a value on the property captured by Admiral Dewey's fleet in Manila bay. The estimated value of these captures is $326,141. The largest items in the statement are ship and boat equipment, $241,566; ordnance materials, $42,204; fuel, $20,568. This appraisal was called for as evidence in the suit brought by Admiral Dewey for the award of prize money.

SALE OF A BODY ALLEGED.

Attendants of a Baltimore Medical College Placed Under Arrest.

Baltimore, Feb. 5.—Two attendants at the College of Physicians and Surgeons, this city, were arrested, charged with having shipped the body of the unknown man whose corpse was received at Sioux City, Iowa, a few days ago in a packing box. The police claim to have positive proof that the dead man was a tramp who was killed by a trolley car in December last, and that the men under arrest sold it and shipped it instead of delivering it to the College of Physicians and Surgeons, as they were directed to do by the health department.

FIGHT HAS BEGUN.

Philadelphia May Yet Lose Republican Convention.

Philadelphia, Feb. 5.—Between the rival committees making local arrangements for the national Republican convention there is a feeling of intense bitterness, which is likely to have a disastrous effect on efforts to raise the $100,000 guaranty fund. It would not surprise many citizens if the national committee took the convention away from Philadelphia. Strong efforts are being made to get it to Chicago or some other city.

Canal All Our Own.

Washington, Feb. 5.—The United States and Great Britain, it was definitely learned last night, have reached an amicable agreement as regards the operations of the Clayton-Bulwer treaty as respects the right of control and operation by the United States of the proposed Nicaraguan canal. The result marks the termination of negotiations between the officers of the state department and Lord Pauncefote, of fully a year's standing.

Verdict Against Sarah Bernhardt.

Paris, Feb. 5.—Sarah Bernhardt was condemned to pay an indemnity of 6,000 francs to the dramatist Kiesmackers, whose play, "Marthe," she accepted, it is alleged, and began to rehearse in November, 1898, but failed to produce.

Woman Shoots Her Husband.

St. John, Mich., Feb. 5.—Essie E. Fehr, wife of Fred Fehr, and daughter of Alexander Williams, who lives north of here, shot her husband through the head. It is thought he cannot recover.

Injured at a Fire.

Chicago, Feb. 5.—Four firemen and two spectators were injured during the progress of a fire in the basket factory of John S. Benedict yesterday. One of the injured firemen may die.

MINNESOTA ITEMS

Fire in Minneapolis caused a loss of over $100,000.

Contractors of Bemidji complain of a scarcity of brick.

Gross earnings taxes this year will approximate $1,500,000.

Princeton boasts of one of the best of any small town in the state.

Minnesota members in congress work against the shipping subsidy bill.

The farmers around Mabel will build a co-operative creamery in the spring.

The Illinois Central has inaugurated its through passenger service to St. Paul and Minneapolis.

It is shown that last year over a million pounds of oleomargarine was shipped into Minnesota.

At a special school election at Mabel, $12,000 in bonds were voted for the purpose of building a new school house.

An action has been begun at Mankato to test the validity of contracts between boards of county commissioners and taxpayers.

Omaha train No. 3 struck a team at Mankato. The horses were killed, and the driver, George Foss of Mankato, seriously injured.

Richard Wenright, a brakeman on the Mankato & Wells branch of the Milwaukee road, was run over by cars while switching at Wells.

Mrs. P. Montgomery, almost 100 years old, died at Winona recently. She could remember the closing of the War of 1812, and had been a widow for fifty-five years.

John Storien, twenty years old, living in the town of Gordon, while handling a shot gun, accidentally discharged it, the entire charge entering his neck and head. He lived twenty-four hours.

The commissioners of Itasca county have been cited to appear in St. Paul, some time in February, and show cause why they should not be ousted for malfeasance in office.

John Ryan and Frank Rock of Brainerd, were arraigned in the municipal court charged with robbery in the first degree, committed upon the person of Ernest Babcock, aged sixteen. They were held to the grand jury.

Joseph Schmidt had his right leg, several ribs and a shoulder fractured from the kick of a horse at New Ulm. His son, in trying to rescue him from the vicious brute, had his head cut open. Their deaths are expected.

Benjamin Waterhouse was accidentally killed at Verndale by the bursting of a big fly wheel. A fragment struck the unfortunate man between the eyes, tearing off the entire upper half of the skull.

Supt. Manuel, of the Wells high school, has notified the board of education that he will not be a candidate for re-election the coming year. This makes vacancies for superintendents in each of the three high schools of the county.

The judge at Duluth has sentenced Joseph Smith, convicted of grand larceny in the second degree, to two years in Stillwater prison. Smith prejudiced his case by pretending to be crazy. Arnold Manthy, convicted of grand larceny in the second degree, was sentenced to one year and three months.

A railroad survey is being made from Wells south of the Iowa line, crossing the new Northwestern line from Mason City to Blue Earth, at or near Briceland. The objective points north and south are not made public, nor the railroad company that is back of the survey, which is paid for by Wells parties.

Orlando T. Chapman, forty years of age and single, committed suicide at Mankato by cutting his throat from ear to ear. He lived with his widowed and aged mother and has been in ill-health for two years past. No inquest was held, as it was a clear case of self-destruction. Four brothers and a sister survive him.

The beds of two former beautiful sheets of water, Minnesota lakes and Rush lake, are about to be divided up by the owners of land adjoining. Both lakes were in the vicinity of Mankato, but were shallow prairie lakes, and they either naturally dried up or were drained away by the cultivation of the soil around them.

The question whether trees can be cut on a public highway without the consent of abutting property owners, is to be determined in the courts at Winona. W. E. Hamilton has secured the arrest of Fred Fick and Charles Tait, on a warrant charging them with cutting down fifty trees along the public highway in Pleasant Valley. The men claim to have secured permission from the roadmaster.

Eva M. Salzbrun has been granted a divorce from her husband, Henry Salzbrun, a cigarmaker at Sleepy Eye, and was given $300 alimony and $100 attorney's fees, the defendant also being assessed the costs. The parties were brought together by an advertisement in a marriage paper, and Salzbrun made a trip to West Virginia to marry the fair plaintiff. Two weeks after he decided bliss was all they could stand, and divorce proceedings were instituted.

William Webber, a son of Mr. and Mrs. Bernard Webber, living about eight miles east of St. Peter, was found shot through the heart in a meadow on his father's farm. He went to the meadow to fix up a haystack which the wind had blown down. He took a gun with him for the purpose of shooting rabbits. Not coming home in the evening the family became alarmed, instituted search, when he was found as above. Death is supposed to have been accidental. He was about thirty years old.

The annual meeting of the Fort Ridgely National Park and Monument association will be held at New Ulm Feb. 10. Among those who will be in attendance are Judge C. E. Flandrau, and Senator Timothy Sheehan, and the meeting will no doubt be one of the largest in the history of the association. An effort will be made to induce the government to purchase 900 acres of land contiguous to the state cemetery already located at the fort, and establish a national park.

Samuel Wightman was severely burned by the explosion of a gasoline engine at New Richland.

St. Hilaire Spectator.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

Never let a confidence be forced upon you.

When a hen roosts on a roost she must be a rooster.

The charity that begins at home very often ends there.

The sun sets only in the west, but an old hen isn't so particular.

One plum pudding on the table is worth two in the stomach.

Men delight in everything peculiar, whether an advantage or not.

It's the spirit rather than the price tag that makes the gift valuable.

The man who bets on the top dog and the bottom facts seldom gets left.

An exchange says the typhoid germ is particularly active. And not particular where.

A man's gallantry crops out when he is entertaining a woman who is not related to him.

Some people you like until they find you out, and some you don't like until you find them out.

Mr. Goebel of Kentucky says he is too busy to marry. Has the star-eyed goddess of reform jilted him?

The Cleveland Plain Dealer is giving lessons in penmanship. Hitherto it has endeavored to right wrong.

A crude theory, in the language of some men, means one, which (being new) has not first occurred to themselves.

If you have a wealthy maiden aunt, don't fail to send her a hand-painted card decorated with a bunch of forget-me-nots.

There are no two things more often confounded, yet more perfectly distinct, than liberal tolerance and latitudinarian indifference.

The power of duly appreciating little things belongs to a great mind; a narrow-minded man has it not, for to him they are great things.

Mr. Bryan will save himself annoyance by issuing a bulletin each morning before breakfast telling just how he stands on the silver question.

Don't overwork yourself. Just imagine how miserable you would be if you finished all your work today and had nothing to do the rest of your life.

If somebody would dig a canal and let 300,000 cubic feet a minute of good lake water into the Rio Grande, you wouldn't find any kick coming from Las Cruces.

It has been found that the membrane forming the lining of a hen's egg will serve admirably for skin grafting, but the increased demand this will cause for eggs will only partially relieve the oversupply in the cold storage warehouses.

Prof. Shephardson of the University of Chicago thinks there is an inherent sociological reason for the prevalence of fights in Kentucky. The professor may be correct, but in conducting his researches upon this difficult subject it would be wise for him to do so at a distance. Kentuckians do not like to have outsiders mix up in their "affairs of honor."

Gen. Otis' latest report of casualties in the Philippine campaign shows that twice as many American soldiers have recently been drowned in the Luzon rivers as fell before the bullets of the enemy. A course of swimming instructions, such as are given to all recruits in the army of Germany, would cost the war department practically nothing and would by this time have saved many valuable lives.

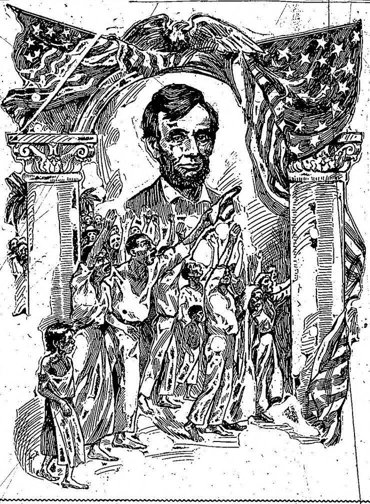
Although two full years have been devoted to growing of beets in different parts of the country, with a view to determining the locations in which beet sugar production could be profitably undertaken, the demands upon the department of agriculture for sample beet seed for the ensuing year, continue undiminished. It is evident that, with the new and improving order of things in the islands which have recently come into close relationship with the United States, there is going to be a race between cane and beet, in which cane sugar is going to closely compete for the position now held by the lowly beet. According to some tables prepared by the treasury department beets now produce two-thirds of the world's sugar.

No opinion is to be received simply because it is old or simply because it is new, but only because it is true. We must equally beware of venturing rashly on untrodden paths, without a careful survey of the country, and of following in too confident security the track of our own footsteps.

There is perhaps no one cause that contributes to harden men in error, and in misconduct of any kind, than the dread that a confession of having been wrong will be met by humiliating exultation.

Kaiser Wilhelm, it is said, has decided to pardon nearly all the luckless editors now undergoing imprisonment for the crime of leze majesty. This kindly act upon the kaiser's part will do more to give his subjects a proper respect for his kingly dignity than all the prison sentences the courts of Germany could ever register.

Chicago safeblowers recently distinguished themselves by holding up a policeman and taking his revolver. This savors of too fiery an ambition. They will yet get into serious trouble.



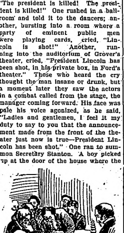
Death of Lincoln

"Now he belongs to the ages."

The curtain had just been rung down over the life of the martyred president in that humble little room opposite the theater where the president had, a few hours, before received the bullet of the assassin Booth. E. M. Stanton, secretary of war, gave utterance to the words quoted. How prophetic; how true. Centuries hence the name of Abraham Lincoln will still retain its rightful place in history.

The president had been carried up the high steps, through a narrow hall, and laid, still unconscious, still motionless, on the bed of a poor, little, commonplace room of a commonplace lodging-house, where surgeons and physicians gathered about in a desperate attempt to rescue him from death.

While the surgeons worked the news was spreading to the town. Every man and woman in the theater rushed forth to tell it. Some ran wildly down the streets, exclaiming to those they met, "The president is killed! The president is killed!" One rushed in a ballroom and told it to the dancers; another, bursting into a room where a party of eminent public men were playing cards, cried, "Lincoln is shot!" Another, running into the auditorium of Grover's theater, cried, "President Lincoln has been shot, in his private box, in Ford's theater." Those who heard the cry thought the man insane or drunk, but a moment later they saw the actors in a combat called from the stage, the manager coming forward. His face was pale his voice agonized, as he said, "Ladies and gentlemen, I feel it my duty to say to you that the announcement made from the front of the theater just now is true—President Lincoln has been shot." One ran to summon Secretary Stanton. A boy picked up at the door of the house where the president lay was sent to the White house for Robert Lincoln. The news spread by the very force of its own horror, and as it spread it met other news no less terrible. At the same hour that Booth had sent the ball into the president's brain a man had forced his way into the house of Secretary Seward, then lying in bed with a broken arm, and had stabbed both the secretary and his son Frederick so seriously that it was feared they would die. In his entrance and exit he had wounded three other members of the household. Like Booth, he had escaped. Horror bred rumor, and Secretary Stanton, too, was reported wounded, while later it was said that Grant had been killed on his way north. Dread seized the town. "Rumors are so thick," wrote the editor of the National Intelligencer, at 2 o'clock in the morning, "the excitement of this hour is so intense that we rely entirely upon our reporters to advise the public of the details and result of this night of horrors. Evidently conspirators are among us. To what extent does the conspiracy exist? This is a terrible question. When a spirit so horrible as this is abroad, what man is safe? We can only advise the utmost vigilance and the most prompt measures by the authorities. We can only pray God to shield us, his worthy people, from further calamities like these."



DEATH OF LINCOLN—"HE NOW BELONGS TO THE AGES."
(From the Painting.)

The civil and military authorities prepared for attack from within and without. Martial law was at once established. The long roll was beaten; every exit from the city was guarded; out-going trains were stopped; mounted police and cavalry clattered up and down the street; the forts were ordered on the alert; guns were manned.

In the meantime there had gathered in the house on Tenth street, where the president lay, his family physician and intimate friends, as well as many prominent officials. Before they reached him it was known there was no hope, that the wound was fatal. They grouped themselves about the bedside or in the adjoining rooms, trying to comfort the weeping wife, or listening awe-stricken to the steady moaning and labored breathing of the unconscious man, which at times could be heard all over the house. Stanton alone seemed able to act methodically. No man felt the tragedy more than the great war secretary, for no one in the cabinet was by greatness of heart and intellect so well able to comprehend the worth of the dying president, but no man in that distracted night acted with greater energy or calm. Summoning the assistant secretary, C. A. Dana, and a stenographer, he began dictating orders to the authorities on all sides, notifying them of the tragedy, directing them what precautions to take, what persons to arrest. Grant, now returning to Washington, he directed, should be warned to keep close watch on all persons who came close to him in the cars and to see that an engine be sent in front of his train. He sent out, too, an official account of the assassination. Today the best brief account of the night's awful work remains the one which Secretary Stanton dictated within sound of the moaning of the dying president.

And so the hours changed without perceptible change in the president's condition, and with only slight shifting of the scene around him. The testimony of those who had witnessed the murder began to be taken in an adjoining room. Occasionally the figures at the bedside changed. Mrs. Lincoln came in at intervals, sobbing out her grief, and then was led away. This man went, another took his place. It was not until daylight that there came a perceptible change. Then the breathing grew quieter, the face became more calm. The doctors at Lincoln's side knew that dissolution was near. Their bulletin of 6 o'clock read: "Pulse failing;" that of 6:30, "Still failing;" that of 7, "Symptoms of immediate dissolution," and then at 7:20, in the presence of his son Robert, Secretaries Stanton, Welles and Usher, Atty.-Gen. Speed, Senator Sumner, Private Secretary Hay, Dr. Gurley, his pastor and several physicians and friends, Abraham Lincoln died. There was a prayer, and then the solemn voice of Stanton broke the stillness, "Now he belongs to the ages."

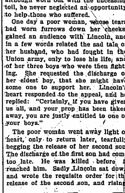
Two hours later the body of the president, wrapped in an American flag, was borne from the house in Tenth street, and carried through the hushed streets, where already thousands of flags were at half-mast and the gay buntings and garlands had been replaced by black draperies, and where the men who for days had been cheering in excess of joy and relief now stood with uncovered heads and wet eyes. They carried him to an upper room in the private apartments of the white house, and there he lay until three days later a heart-broken people claimed their right to look for a last time on his face.

LINCOLN AND THE WIDOW.

The 12th of February, Abraham Lincoln's birthday, brings to our thoughts stronger than ever reminiscences of this noble man's life, says a writer in Harper's Round Table. Hundreds of books have recorded and will perpetuate his good deeds for centuries to come, but it is a pleasure to read now and then of some little act of kindness that will stand alone illustrating the breadth of this man's sympathies and the nobility of his character. During all that dreadful period when the civil war was ravaging the country Lincoln held the reins of the government, and although worn out with the unceasing toil, he never neglected an opportunity to help those who suffered.

One day a poor woman, whose tears had worn furrows down her cheeks, gained an audience with Lincoln, and in a few words related the sad tale of her husband, who had fought in the Union army, only to lose his life, and of her three boys who were then fighting. She requested the discharge of her eldest boy, that she might have some one to support her. Lincoln's heart responded to the appeal, and he replied: "Certainly, if you have given us all, and your prop has been taken away, you are justly entitled to one of your boys."

The poor woman went away light of heart, only to return later, tearfully begging the release of her second son. The discharge of the first son had come too late. He was killed before it reached him. Sadly Lincoln sat down and wrote the requisite order for the release of the second son, and rising, handed the paper to the afflicted woman, saying: "Now you have one and I have one of the two boys left; that is no more than right." Weeping with joy, the poor mother blessed Lincoln and hurried out to send her precious order.



LINCOLN WROTE THE ORDER.

New Fodder for Cavalry Nags.

Molasses for cavalry horses will in future be one of the items of expense for the maintenance of the army in the Philippines.

We easily tolerate an authority that we hope one day to exercise ourselves.

STORIES OF LINCOLN

One of Mr. Lincoln's characteristics was his ineffable tenderness toward others, says the Springfield Republican. He wrote injuries in the sand, benefits on marble. The broad mantle of his enduring charity covered a multitude of sins in a soldier. He loved justice with undying and solicitous affection, but he hated every deserter from the great army of humanity. He was dowered with the love of love.

He was always equal to the occasion, whether saving a sleeping sentinel by one stroke of the pen from a dishonored grave or writing that bold and steady signature to the proclamation of emancipation which made the black race give him a crown of immortelles. As the negro preacher in Vicksburg said of him: "Massa Linkum, he eberywhere; he know eberyt'ing; he walk de earf like de Lord."

His Keen Irony.

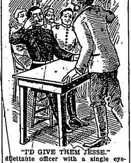
Abraham Lincoln could say true things when just resentment required censure. He released some prisoners on the other side of the "divide" in 1863. The wife of one of these insisted "that her husband was a religious man, even if he was a rebel." Mr. Lincoln wrote the release slowly, as if in doubt, and, without smiling, handed it to the now happy wife, but said, with keen irony:

"You say your husband is a religious man. Tell him when you meet him that I say I am not much of a judge of religion, but in my opinion the religion that sets men to rebel and fight against their government because, as they think, that government does not sufficiently help some men to eat their bread in the sweat of other men's faces is not the sort of religion upon which people can get to heaven."

Dick Gower's Appointment.

Mr. Lincoln once told Horace Deming, a Connecticut congressman, when he had been importuned to join a church, that "when any church will inscribe over its altar as its sole qualification the Savior's condensed statement of the substance of law and gospel, 'Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy soul, and thy neighbor as thyself'—that church will I join with all my heart."

His great good sense was shown in his making Dick Gower a lieutenant in the regular army. Dick had shown his bravery and his capacity among the western Indians, but was rejected by the board of military martinets at Washington because he "did not know what an abatis, or echelon, or hollow square was." "Well," sharply said the dilettante officer with a single eyeglass, "what would you do with your command if the cavalry should charge on you?"



"I'D GIVE THEM JESSE."

"I'd give them Jesse, that's what I would do; and I'd make a hollow square in every mother's son of them."

Lincoln signed his commission and Dick made a famous soldier.

Read the Letter.

McClellan then requested his chief of staff to find a copy of the letter. It was speedily produced, and Gen. McClellan proceeded to crush Mr. Lincoln by reading his vituperative attack on Stanton, with reflections on Lincoln's conduct of the war. Lincoln's peaceful smile vanished. When the letter ended he rose quickly, looking neither to the right nor left—not waiting for any farewell to Gen. McClellan.

He seemed oppressed with the consciousness of the dangers of the military as well as the political situation of things. He drove slowly with Gen. Blair over to the boat, which was to convey them from Harrison's landing back to Washington. When the vessel had started, Mr. Lincoln, for the first time, since leaving McClellan's tent, broke the silence and said to Gen. Blair:

"Frank, I now understand this man. That letter is Gen. McClellan's bid for the presidency. I will stop that game. Now is the time to issue the proclamation emancipating the slaves."

He forthwith issued the proclamation of emancipation. Within a week after the world was startled by a new charter of freedom for the slave.

Gen. McClellan's Mistake.

Congressman Vaux of Philadelphia, in his late years changed his views about President Lincoln. He told an interesting story about the proclamation of emancipation. The classic and scholarly Vaux had been making speeches in Connecticut, and came home with Frank P. Blair of Missouri, who was very close to the many-sided patriot president while the war lasted. Gen. Blair told Richard Vaux this story:

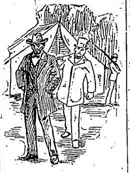
"Mr. Lincoln had become impatient at Gen. McClellan's delay on the peninsula, and asked Frank Blair to go with him to see the commanding general. The distinguished visitors arrived on a hot day, and went straight to McClellan's headquarters. They were received with scant courtesy, and the commanding general did not ask the president to eat or drink. Lincoln sat in his white linen duster, uncomfortably silent, with his long and sinewy limbs doubled up like a jackknife, till finally Gen. McClellan broke the dense silence by saying:

"Mr. President, have you received the letter I mailed you yesterday?"

"No," courteously replied Lincoln; "I must have passed it on the way."

WASHINGTON AND LINCOLN.

The greatest names in American history are Washington and Lincoln. One is forever associated with the independence of the states and the formation of the federal union, the other with the universal and the preservation of that union. Washington enforced the declaration of independence as against England, Lincoln proclaimed its fulfillment, not only to a downtrodden race in America, but to all people, for all those who may seek the protection of our flag. These illustrious men achieved grander results for mankind within a single century—from 1775 to 1865—than any men ever accomplished in all the years since first the flight of time began. Washington engaged in no ordinary revolution. With him it was not who should rule, but what should rule. He drew his sword, not for a change of rulers upon an established throne, but to establish a new government which should acknowledge no throne but the tribune of the people. Lincoln accepted war to save the union, the safeguard of our liberties, and re-established it upon "indestructible foundations" as forever "one and indivisible." To quote his own grand words:



LINCOLN ROSE QUICKLY.

"Now we are all contending that this nation under God shall have a new birth of freedom, and that the government of the people, by the people, for the people, shall not perish from the earth." * * *

LINCOLN OFFERED TO RESIGN.

The president's treatment of Hunter's order dissatisfied many who had been temporarily quieted by the message of March 6. They were made still more critical by the slow advancement of McClellan and his army toward Richmond. Again they besought the president to emancipate and arm the slaves. The authority and magnitude of the demand became such that Mr. Lincoln fairly staggered under it. Still he would not yield. He could not give up yet his hope of a more peaceful and just system of emancipation. But while he could not do what was asked of him, he seems to have felt that it was possible that he was wrong, and that another man in his place would be able to see the way. In a remarkable interview held early in the summer with several republican senators, among whom was the Hon. James Harlan of Mount Pleasant, Iowa, the president actually offered to resign and let Mr. Hamlin, the vice-president, initiate the policy.

The senators went to Mr. Lincoln to urge upon him the paramount importance of mustering slaves into the Union army. They argued that as the war was really to free the negro, it was only fair that he should take his part in working out his own salvation. Mr. Lincoln listened thoughtfully to every argument, and then replied:

"Gentlemen, I have put two hundred thousand muskets into the hands of loyal citizens of Tennessee, Kentucky and Western North Carolina. They have said they could defend themselves if they had guns. I have given them the guns. Now, these men do not believe in mustering in the negro. If I do it, these two hundred thousand muskets will be turned against us. We shall lose more than we should gain."

The gentlemen urged other considerations, among them that it was not improbable that Europe, which was anti-slavery in sentiment, but yet sympathized with the notion of a Southern Confederacy, preferring two nations to one in this country, would be persuading the south to free her slaves in consideration of recognition. After they had exhausted every argument, Mr. Lincoln answered them:

"Gentlemen," he said, "I can't do it. I can't see it as you do. You may be right, and I may be wrong, but I'll tell you what I can do; I can resign in favor of Mr. Hamlin. Perhaps Mr. Hamlin could do it."

The senators, amazed at this proposition, "which," says Senator Harlan, "was made with the greatest seriousness, and of which not one of us doubted the sincerity," hastened to assure the president that they could not consider such a step on his part; that he stood where he could see all around the horizon; that he must do what he thought right; that, in any event, he must not resign.

LINCOLN AND THE SENTINEL.

In an article in the Century entitled "Our Fellow Citizen of the White House," Mr. C. C. Buel told the following story of President Lincoln: "There have been no soldiers as guardians under the shadow of the great Ionic columns since war; and even then, on one fierce winter night, the boy in blue who was on guard was not allowed to maintain professional decorum. Mr. Lincoln emerged from the front door, his lank figure bent over as he drew tightly about his shoulders the shawl which he employed for such protection, for he was on his way to the war department, at the west corner of the grounds, where in times of battle he was wont to get the midnight dispatches from the field. As the blast struck him he thought of the numbness of the pacing sentry, and, turning to him, said: 'Young man, you've got a cold job to-night; step inside and stand guard there.'

"'My orders keep me out here,' the soldier replied.

"'Yes,' said the president, in his argumentive tone, 'but the duty can be performed just as well inside as out here, and you'll oblige me by going in.'

"'I have been stationed outside,' the soldier answered, and resumed his beat.

"'Hold on there!' said Mr. Lincoln, as he turned back again; 'it occurs to me that I am commander-in-chief of the army, and I order you to go inside.'"

Hobart and Newspaper Men.

The late Vice-President Garret A. Hobart delighted in informal chats about people and things bordering on Bohemia. The ways of newspaper men strangely interested him. He said once that he envied them because of their roving freedom and the ease with which they seemed to write. He considered writing a greater art than speaking. "I find no trouble in talking to an audience," he said, "but when it comes to putting my thoughts on paper I find it a great task. Readers are more critical than hearers. The art of writing is the greater."

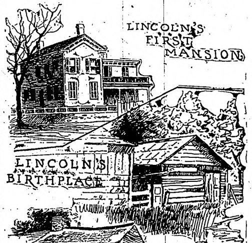
A Troublesome Word.

"While it is true," replied the Pale Face, "that I made a compact with you, it was with a mental reservation."

Here the untutored Red Man manifested bewilderment.

"Is that the next reservation I shall be compelled to live on?" he asked, anxiously, his quavering voice betokening the depth of his emotion.

LINCOLN'S HUMBLE HOMES.



Here are three homes of our great martyred president, as unpretentious as he was himself. His birthplace was a cabin in Hardin county, Kentucky. "'Tain't much of a place to be born in," said young Abe, revisiting the scene in his youth. The years from 7 to 10 the lad spent in the Indiana home, near Farmington, Coles county. The picture also shows the modest house in Springfield, where Lincoln lived when events began to push him toward the top of the ladder.

76'S VALENTINE.

[From Chicago Inter-Ocean.]

Seventy-six was "savin' up." All her little set knew it because she quit "stickin' in" for coffee at noon, she walked to and from work—that is, in theory she walked, for she often ran for blocks at a time to ward being late either at the store or at home, for no one was supposed to know she did not ride. She took the 10 cents her mother offered her every morning, either to ride "both ways," or ride one way and get coffee, whichever seemed best. Seventy-six was a queer combination of child and little old woman, like most of the cash girls in department stores. She saw and heard a great deal every day of her busy life.

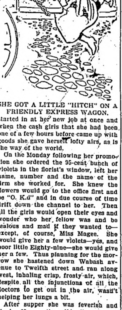
And Seventy-six had an ideal, in the person of little Miss Magee, the cashier to whom she took her checks. Miss Magee was a slight, short, sweet, little body, with a great quantity of pale reddish hair that was the delight of all the cash girls' hearts. It "stayed in" so good all day. But Seventy-six in particular longed for red hair and little hands and every charm possessed by Miss Magee. So when St. Valentine's day came and Miss Magee got a nice bunch of violets delivered by a messenger boy, Seventy-six made a mental resolution that she would have a bunch of violets come to herself like that one if she lived to the next St. Valentine's day, and everyone would think she had "a fellow" and that "he sent 'em like Miss Magee's fellow did." And after the severe strain of the holidays was lifted a little in regard to her earnings, she secretly commenced to save up.

Poor little Seventy-six! To save up meant to her to walk miles twice a day, though sometimes she got a little "hitch" on a friendly express wagon, but she'd be nearly home when she'd "hitch." No one would see her away out on West Twelfth street. When she couldn't run or get a little ride and came home late she glibly invented excuses all very plausible. "Changing stock around" was one; "getting in new goods" that had to be opened and fixed at once, was another, and her mother and little sisters noted her great importance at the store.

One Sunday afternoon she canvassed the florists' stores and the combination florist and undertaking establishments, where prickly looking pillows made of hard, dry flowers, with "Rest" done in purple in the center, and white satin slippers were displayed in the windows. Up on one side of the street and down the other she sought violets, to inquire as to prices, but she never found even one. Next day at noon she got permission to go out and she had not far to seek a florist, and the wise young man there told her violets were "from 75 cents up," and that they were scarce and would be scarcer, and she would have to order them a few days ahead if she wanted any. Then she hurried back to the store, and when she was reporting to the timekeeper, Mr. Goldstein, head of a department, laid his hand on her shoulder and asked her number.

"I think, Seventy-six you are getting tall for a cash," he said, and still holding her by the shoulder he half pushed, half led her to the rear of the store, and word went round that "Seventy-six was fired."

When they reached the wrappers' and inspectors' desk he found her a place there and told her if she was as good a wrapper and inspector as she had been a "cash" she'd be all right. She started in at her new job at once and when the cash girls that she had been one of a few hours before came up with goods she gave herself lofty airs, as is the way of the world.



SHE GOT A LITTLE "HITCH" ON A FRIENDLY EXPRESS WAGON.

On the Monday following her promotion she ordered the 95-cent bunch of violets in the florist's window, left her name, number and the name of the firm she worked for. She knew the flowers would go to the office first and be "O. K.d" and in due course of time drift down the channel to her. Then all the girls would open their eyes and wonder who her fellow was and be jealous and mad if they wanted to—except, of course, Miss Magee. She would give her a few violets—yes, and poor little Eighty-nine—she would give her a few. Thus planning for the morrow she hastened down Wabash avenue to Twelfth street and ran along west, inhaling crisp, frosty air, which, despite all the injunctions of all the doctors to get out in the air, wasn't helping her lungs a bit.

After supper she was feverish and tired. Her mother did all the little things a woman thinks she must do before she sends for a doctor, but the little daughter grew steadily worse. About 2 o'clock in the morning a doctor was called. He ordered the necessary remedies and left instructions and still Seventy-six was very sick for four days. The doctor said the frost burned her throat and lungs and she should be more careful.

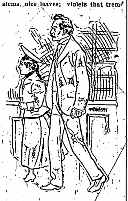
Tuesday, the 14th, when all the world got its valentine, the young man at the florist's store was very busy, but very gay. He whistled bits from "The Serenade" and "rags" by way of encore and he worked hard all the time.

Just before noon a tall, narrow youth in the very boxiest of topcoats came into the florist's and ordered a big box of violets sent to a beauty out on the south side, extra long stems and some nice leaves, he said he would like. The musical youth took the order to the air of "Take Your Clothes and Go" and the customer went on his way.

It was half-past 2 Tuesday afternoon and every bit of stock in the florist's was sold. Everyone was busy and the young man who whistled was so rushed he had to just whistle ragtime tunes all the afternoon, they being the quickest. So it came about that when he had a long row of boxes set out filled with the divinest gift God sends to man—flowers—he had beside him a pile of gummed labels with addresses on them. He dampened one that had on it a little sick girl's name, her number and the name of the firm she worked for, and with "Mr. Johnson, Don't Get Gay," filling the air about him he fastened it on a big box of violets with extra long stems and nice leaves—and so he sailed through his day's work.

The big box of violets for Seventy-six got to the office of the big store just before closing time. The man in the office, not knowing the little girl was absent from the store, "O. K.'d" the box and sent it downstairs to her, but it came back in a few moments for more "O. K.s." This time it was opened and the office stood still.

Violets, hundreds of them, long stems, nice leaves; violets that trembled at their own loveliness; violets that filled all the air with springtime. "Seventy-six is coming up," said the head bookkeeper as he handed a few of the flowers to the pretty typewriter.



HE HALF PUSHED, HALF LED HER TO THE REAR OF THE STORE.

"I think it looks very bad for Seventy-six," said the typewriter as she fastened the violets in her waist.

That speech set all the office thinking. The girls in the office thought of Seventy-six going down the broad, bright, flower-strewn path almost any young girl can go at the price of her soul. The men in the office thought of all the things she must have stolen from the firm to buy that box of flowers, for when they asked the delivery boy who ordered them he said, "A girl, No. Seventy-six." So on that evidence and on the lack of faith in human nature in general the little sick girl out on West Twelfth street lost her reputation and her occupation. Everyone in the office had a few violets when they went home that night, not that anyone wanted to cheat the rightful owner of them, but it was too late to attend to the matter of sending her word about them that night, and they would be spoiled next day, and it would be better to use them. So everyone took a few, not all of them of course, but the violets never found Seventy-six—not one of them.

Saturday morning she came down to work, pale and thin, and Mr. Goldstein sent her upstairs to a private office to report to Mr. Ware, who had her case all laid out before him, and had no doubt but she was the coming Mme. Mandebaum, for she surely must be a clever thief, this thinly clad, frightened little child-woman. After Mr. Ware opened his mail and looked over it he turned to her and asked what she wanted and when she told her number he said, "Oh, yes. Sit down. Now, Seventy-six, a large box of flowers came here for you on the 14th, and as they were altogether too expensive for a girl like you I determined to look into the matter. Now, Seventy-six, do you know who sent them here?"

"Yes, sir. I bought them," said the girl. Mr. Ware started. "Um, um," he said. "Who gave you the money?" "I saved it." "Um—yes—well—Seventy-six, I'm sorry, but you take this note down to Mr. Gale and give in your passbook and your badge and—I hope you'll be a better girl next place you work. That's all, Seventy-six."

She slowly crept down the stairs, struggling with tears and pride, got the quarter for her badge which she had deposited for it, and once more word went around that "Seventy-six was fired."

The south side beauty took her dear, little 95-cent bunch of violets to her own room and kissed it, for she "knew whom they were from." She arranged some of them in her pretty yellow hair and though she got oceans of flowers she pressed one bunch of violets to remember that Valentine's day.

TOO BAD

O poor Mr. Postman, you never will know
What fine things you're carrying
there!
What dear little doves, just as white
as the snow,
What roses so blushing and fair,
What nice little Cupid's, so smiling
and fat,
What sweet little verses, all rhyming
so pat.

O poor Mr. Postman, I'm sorry for
you!
'Tis a very hard lot, I must say,
To carrry such lovely things hidden
from view,
Nor get one peep inside them all day;
And when merry St. Valentine's ended
and done,
To have given them all away, every one!

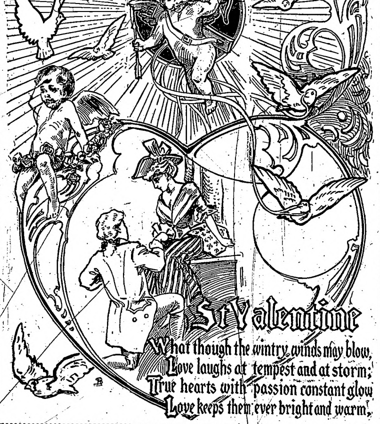
E. H. THOMAS.



St. Valentine
What though the wintry winds may blow,
Love laughs at tempest and at storm;
True hearts with passion constant glow
Love keeps them ever bright and warm.
B

A HAPPY VALENTINE.

If I could be a valentine,
I know what I would do.
I'd get into an envelope
And travel straight to you.

And if the postman didn't know
Your name is Baby Dear
And where you live, I'd shake his bag
As soon as he was near.

And then with all my might I'd jump
And run across the street.
(I'm sure that he'd jump, too, to find
A valentine had feet.)

I'd ring the bell and ring the bell
A minute and a half,
And when you came and saw 'twas I,
Oh, my, how we would laugh!

—Anna M. Pratt.

Valentine Sprite

They say she is out of date in this end of the nineteenth century, but that is wrong. She may be more coy, more reticent, more elusive, but she is still with us. On each St. Valentine's day she peeps from her casement window, either literally or figuratively, with just as enticing a glance; her smiles are no less alluring; her sighs create fully as much havoc.

Perhaps she no longer pins bay leaves to her pillow to tempt fate, or makes a pretense of drawing her lot from a bundle of names written upon slips of material paper—all that was but form at best. The Sprite of the Valentine knew well who was her fate without such expedients. And she knows it now.

The eyes of common mortals might be blinded, but her bright eyes looked clearly into the future and saw there the chained captive who reveled in his chains. She read some tender verse and smiled at its innocence—she who was all innocence herself, yet gifted with that prescient sense of prophecy, or foreknowledge, against which the clumsy reason of mortal swain was as helpless as the wiles of an infant. She smiled and no mystic rite could be more potent. She gave one glance from beneath the witching fringe of her long lashes, and no other sorcery was needed. The same is true today.

Good St. Valentine was a martyr, they tell us, and some can see no propriety in naming this lovers' day for him; but to my mind the fitness is most striking. How many a tortured heart has gone to its martyrdom at the eventide of this day! Even escaping that, how many a soul has been placed upon the rack by the coquetry of some maiden sweet at this same crucial time! For the Valentine Sprite is true to her sex, in spite of the traditions that hem her in and fix her place as some meek captive awaiting the decree that shall send her rejoicing into whatever arms are stretched out to receive her.

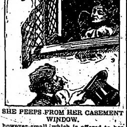
Be not deceived. She has decided upon the arms long before, and they are held forth at her will. She may have spoken no word save of the coyest, but she has willed. Ah, how deluded are they who cast a pitying eye upon woman for her lack of the power to choose and to plead! Know ye not, my lords of creation, that by far the most frequently ye are the chosen and not the choosers? If she wills you to come you come. If she wills you to speak you speak, and, more than that, she has the added power to send you away empty if so her caprice decides.

This in the common life of every day. What, then, might be expected in the mystic time when love rules all? At least, Valentine Sprite holds royal sway. If she wills your missive flies to her. If she wills she even binds a snowy message to the wings of Mercury and bids him speed with it to her chosen valentine, for who shall say her nay? The Valentine Sprite mistakes not—whom she chooses him she holds.

Heretofore, my brothers, I have warned you, though the warnings were vain, but against this enchantress I cannot bid you steel yourself, for the soft witchery of her innocent smile has sealed my lips, and I know not whether this maiden with the childish grace and the woman's wiles be most a blessing or a snare to you. I can only tell you this—your struggles against her will amount to naught but your own complete captivity, for with each plunge you sink deeper the arrow that has pierced you.

This much of the mystery, however, I can reveal to you: Mortal maid is the Valentine Sprite until that fateful morning when the little winged god flies from chamber to chamber and touches sleeping eyes with the feather end of his arrow, then speeds him on his way before the white lids unclose in wonder and the sweet glances go forth with the wisdom that Cupid alone can give and each one is touched with the power of his arrow point. Mortal maid she is not from that hour until the going down of the sun, and man is utterly helpless against the subtle witchery of this mystic, love-created being who beckons him into Elysium.

And you, O youth, who scoff at the time-honored privilege of sending to some lady fair upon this day of days a plea from your heart, hidden and shrined within some dainty, perfumed nest of beauty, or who turn with a laugh from the memory picture of your great-great-grandfather buried deep in the lover's ecstasy and the poet's rapture, as he pens the words which shall be his heart message to his heart's desire, do not too lightly set aside the good old custom; at least, put it away with tender reverence, for the spirits of those olden rites are not to be flippantly consigned to oblivion. On every hand the Valentine Sprite uprises, an avenger for any slight, however small, which is offered to her patron saint.



SHE PEEPS FROM HER CASEMENT WINDOW.

In the midst of your scoffing you hear a whisper at your heart. You blush and sigh and frown, but you listen, and you feel the pressing of the arrow point.

"Love, love, be wholly mine;
Come and be my valentine!"

How did the music of it get into your brain? From that time forth you sigh and serve. But this is vengeance that the Valentine Sprite exacts. In the end you are left wailing in the solitude of your twentieth-century superiority:

"Love, love, be wholly mine;
Come and be my valentine!"

But it may not be.

While for you, spirit of manly love, with the reverence of tradition in your heart and the loyal longing in your soul, there is a kinder fate. The Valentine Sprite, with her dower of mystic wisdom, shall not beckon you but to taunt. In the far distance of the future years that bind you to her I hear the echo of a tender strain:

"Love, love, so wholly mine,
I am still thy valentine!"

ST. VALENTINE WAS CRUEL TO HIS BIRDS.

Annie Trumbull Slosson writes in Bird-Lore:

The cold wave reached us at Miami, on Biscayne bay, Florida, in the night of Feb. 12. On the 13th, Monday, it was very cold all over the state, with snow and sleet as far south as Ormond and Titusville. Our thermometers at Miami ranged from 36 degrees to 40 degrees during the day. As I sat in my room in the hotel, about 4 in the afternoon, I saw a bird outside my window, then another, and another, and soon the air seemed full of wings.

Opening the window to see what the visitors could be, I found they were tree swallows. Several flew into my room, others clustered on the window ledge, huddling closely together for warmth. There were hundreds of them about the house seeking shelter and warmth. They crept in behind the window blinds, came into open windows, huddled together by dozens on cornices and sills. They were quite fearless; once I held my hand outside and two of them lighted on its palm and sat there quietly. As it grew dark and colder their numbers increased. They flew about the halls and perched in corners, and the whole house was alive with them. Few of the guests in the hotel knew what they were; some even called them "bats," and were afraid they might fly into their faces or become entangled in their hair. One man informed those about him that they were humming birds, "the large kind, you know," but all were full of sympathy for the beautiful little creatures out in the cold and darkness. A few were taken indoors and sheltered through the night, but "what were these among so many?"

The next morning the sun shone brightly, though the weather was still very cold—the mercury had fallen below 30 degrees during the night. But as I raised the shade of one of my eastern windows I saw a half-dozen of the swallows sitting upon the ledge in the sunshine, while the air seemed again filled with flashing wings. I was so relieved and glad. Surely the tiny creatures, with their tints of steely blue or shining green contrasting with the pure white of the under parts, were more hardly than I had feared. But alas! it was but a remnant that escaped. Hundreds were found dead. Men were sent out with baskets to gather the limp little bodies from piazzas, window ledges and copings. It was a pitiful sight for St. Valentine day, when, as the old song has it:

"The birds are all choosing their mates."

Goodness and Manhood.

The older I grow the more I revere goodness—just plain every-day goodness—having nothing heroic nor spectacular in it, for I think this is the gift of which God has been the least prodigal, says the Woman's Home Companion. Intelligence without goodness may mean nothing higher than a prize fighter, but goodness with strength and intelligence makes a man as he was created to be, an image of the Godhead. The most symmetrical man of this century was Mr. Gladstone and his moral nature was as sweet and wholesome as his intellect and body were strong. In mind, in heart, in soul, in everything but physique and inches he was a giant. But the salient feature in Gladstone's character and what lifts him above every contemporary was his moral earnestness. He was a good man and his religious convictions formed the warp and woof of his nature.

St. Valentine's Day 1900

Old-time valentines, with their lace paper and sentimental rhymes, have very nearly fallen into disuse. What little of their splendor remains has been relegated to the children. But if the tawdry types have been cast aside better things are offered in their place. If the poet is less heavy, entertainments of various sort flourish. Dinners, luncheons, teas and dances are all chronicled for the fateful fourteenth, and suitable and significant favors and souvenirs are being sought and purchased by the score. Cupids, hearts, bows and arrows and lovers' knots make the favorite designs. One or more, if not all, are included in every list; but as jewels, precious metals, flowers, painting, fine needlework and ribbons all go to make up, there is considerable variety and a fine opportunity for the display of personal skill.

One dinner which is to precede a dance is to be pink in its decorations, and, as far as practicable, pink in its food, while its souvenirs and those of the cotillion, which will make the finale of the evening, have all been designed with the purpose of the day in view. In the center of the table is to be a huge heart of la France roses, while over it will be suspended a bisque Cupid, with bow stretched and arrow aimed.

Encircling the entire table will be smilax in a succession of hearts, each designed to mark off the space for a cover, and before each guest will be placed a menu card in heart-shape and a silken bow of the same design, within which will be candied rose leaves, and which later can be made receptacles for jeweled pins. The ices will be pink, and in heart shape, and both candles and lamps will be provided with pink shades.

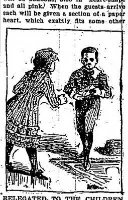
During the dance arrow pins will be presented to the men, and pins in a design of lovers' knots to the girls. Bunches of roses and boutonnieres will be made the features of another figure; sachets, in heart shape, of a third, and calendars, painted upon water color paper, showing Cupid hovering over a mail box, for a fourth.

At a second dance, the invitations for which name an early hour, the dancing up to the supper hour will be general, but as each guest leaves the supper-room he or she will be required to draw from a bag containing sections of hearts. Upon each section will be written a part of some familiar and suitable quotation, one portion having been among those distributed to the women, the other among those given to the men. The two which shall match, making a perfect heart and a complete couplet, will designate partners, and when all have been matched the cotillion will begin.

Among the favors are to be bonbon boxes in heart shape, tiny Cupids, silver arrow pins, pink ribbon tied with true lovers' knots and engagement calendars made from a succession of hearts, each cut from water color paper and painted with suitable design.

After dinners and dances, card parties afford the greatest opportunity, and are in greatest demand. Among the younger set progressive hearts is much liked, and affords an excellent opportunity for the decorations and favors suited to the day.

One clever hostess has had her plans laid for some time. The large room in which the tables will be arranged is to be decorated with pink flowers and with smilax arranged in hearts and bowknots. On each table is to be placed a heart-shaped dish; in which will be bonbons, also in heart-shape and all pink. When the guests arrive each will be given a section of a paper heart, which exactly fits some other section, and will be required to find its mate before partners can be arranged.



RELEGATED TO THE CHILDREN.

The prizes are to be a china bonbon box, painted with a Cupid design, and a volume of sentimental poems, with an extra cover painted in a similar manner, with borders of leather cut in heart-shape, and showing etched Cupids weeping over broken hearts for the boobies. After the game supper will be served, and among the dishes will be salads upon heart-shaped plates, with crisp little lovers' knots taking the place of the usual finger rolls, and ices molded into miniature gods of love.—Republic.

A NEW KIND.

'Twas just the nicest valentine
That came to me today;
A pretty box, and on the top
A little letter lay,
Which said:
"I know a little maid,
She isn't far to seek;
No dainty wild rose petal
Is pinker than her cheek;
There is no shining hazelnut
That's browner than her eye.
Just look within the box, my dear,
This little maid you'll spy."
Of course I was in haste to see
So fair and sweet a lass.
I raised the lid; within I found—
A tiny looking-glass!

—Helen S. Perkins.

When a man makes the mistake of marrying too young it is one of the mistakes he never repeats.

A HORSE'S JUMP.

He Leaped Through a Three-Foot Aperture Over a Door Six Feet High.

Badminton Magazine: Without very good evidence, I confess I should have been unable to credit an incident which happened the other day at Norwich; but this evidence has been overwhelmingly furnished, and the thing unquestionably happened. The Norwich riding school is entered by a door certainly not less than six feet three inches in height, and above this there is an aperture of barely three feet. The charger of an officer in the Seventh Hussars was going around the school the other day, with no one on his back, when suddenly, instead of turning the corner, he went straight for the door, tucked his head between his legs in what is described to me, and must certainly have been an extraordinary manner, and jumped out into the yard. The landing is on some flat stones; he slipped and came down on his side, slightly bruising himself, but doing no harm, and is now as well again as ever. When one comes to think what six feet three inches means, and the manner in which the horse had to screw himself up in order to get through that aperture, the performance is certainly nothing short of marvelous. Captain Dibble, the riding master, who was in the school at the time, made a trooper, who was five feet nine inches in height, stand with his back to the door, and the woodwork was certainly a good six inches above his head. If this horse jumps as well with a man on his back as without, it ought to take something out of common to stop him.

DRINK SAVED

An Engineer from Sudden Death, and It Was Water, Too.

New York Tribune: "The life of a locomotive engineer is a most dangerous one," said Allen Runkle, of Philadelphia, at the Fifth Avenue hotel, "and some of their escapes are little short of miraculous. A friend of mine, who is now a prosperous business man, but who started life as a fireman and later became an engineer, owes his life to a cup of water, or rather the desire for one. He was at the time an engineer, and, wanting a drink of water, stepped from his seat to the water can on the tender to get it. He was just raising the can to his lips when there was a terrific crash, the entire side of the cab was torn off, and the air filled with flying pieces of wood and iron. Luckily neither he nor the fireman was seriously injured, and they, with the aid of the train's crew, managed to bring the train to a stop without further harm. They then found that the connecting rod on the right hand side had broken in two, and the two loose ends flying around with terrific force had wrecked everything with which they came in contact. The right hand side of the cab was torn to smithereens, and as the engineer's seat was directly above the loose end of the connecting rod attached to the rear driving wheel, had my friend not had that lucky inspiration to take a drink he would beyond question have either been killed outright or else possibly so badly mangled as to make death by comparison seem preferable."

GEN. LAWTON'S RUBBER TUB.

The Apaches Knew How Highly He Valued It.

The general made it a habit of his life to take a cold-water bath every morning before breakfast, and during the campaign he carried with him a rubber tub. It made no difference where he was, he ordered the tubful of cold water to his quarters every morning, says the Louisville Courier-Journal. In following the Apaches he reached a mountain. He knew that the Indians had fled there, and before pursuing them further he left his rubber tub and other tent equipments at the base of the mountain in charge of an old and faithful servant to guard the tub carefully until he returned. It was an old trick with that tribe of Indians when being pursued to circle around and return to the exact point whence they had started. The general left his tub and started out after the Indians. They circled around, covering a wide territory, and beat Gen. Lawton back to the base of the mountain. When he got there he found that the old sergeant and his six men had been killed, and that his tub had been carried off by the Indians. The Apaches evidently learned how highly the general prized his rubber tub, for they placed great store by it after they had captured it, and guarded it as closely as they did their own lives.

Mourning Envelopes Excluded.

From the London News: A strange order has just been issued by the French postoffice, and a strange justification given for it. Henceforth mourning envelopes are not to pass through the post. The note paper may have as deep an edge as the sender desires, but the covers must be white, or may be tinted, but at least is not to have a black edge. It is not that the department is out of sympathy with the expression of mourning by means of stationery. On the contrary, the sending of mourning cards is a decided source of revenue. It is that experience has shown the postoffice authorities that mourning envelopes are easily tampered with. They can be opened, and if the gummed edge is torn or frayed in the process, a little ink rubbed over the black surface makes everything look right, while a white envelope so interfered with would tell its own tale.

As London Learns Things.

From the London Weekly Telegraph: New York policemen have been served with a new kind of club. It has a swivel handle, which prevents it from being twisted from the grasp of its holder. The novel feature of the club is the arrangement by which sixteen saw teeth, each half an inch in length, pop out of sixteen holes, dig into the hand which grasps it and give one strong pull. The teeth remain concealed until an attempt is made to wrench the club from the policeman. The united pulls in opposite directions lacerate the evil-doer's hand in a jiffy.

A loafer never allows himself to get out of practice.

Bank of St. Hilaire.

HANNAY & CO., Bankers.

Real Estate Loans.

Chattel Loans.

Foreign & Domestic Xchange

INSURANCE.

Collections a Specialty.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

St. Hilaire, Minn.

Livery and Feed Stable!

DAN PATERSON, Prop.

Dray in Connection.

The finest equipped turnouts in the northwest. Safe drivers and furnished at a moments notice at reasonable rates. Don't forget the place

BIG - RED - BARN

Located on the east side of Broadway nearly opposite Rapp & Post's Store

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

PATENTS DESIGNS TRADE-MARKS AND COPYRIGHTS OBTAINED

ADVICE AS TO PATENTABILITY FREE

Notice in "Inventive Age"
Book "How to obtain Patents"

Charges moderate. No fee till patent is secured. Letters strictly confidential. Address, E. G. SIGGERS, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

GET YOUR PICTURE TAKEN BY

D. COLLINS

THE

Photograper.

ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

IMPROVED

FARMS!

K. O. GIGSTAD has a large list of Improved Farms for sale. Also agent for the best fire and cyclone insurance company. Sick and accident insurance Co., and hail insurance.

Money to loan on improved farms at low interest. All collections are promptly attended to.

NOTARY PUBLIC.

Office east of the city well.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

2nd ☛ STORE

(SECOND HAND STORE.)

Everything in this line now on hand. Special bargains given. If you have anything to dispose of give me a call.

C. A. SKEIE.

ST. HILAIRE, - - MINNESOTA

FIRE INSURANCE

DO YOU NEED SOME?

The Best is the Cheapest.

I have nine of the best companies doing business in the State

Call for rates.

H. E. IVES.

CUSTOM WORK.

JUST LOOK AT THESE PRICES:

Roll Carding—per pound.........5 cts
Spinning Single Yarn—per pound.........15 c
Stocking Yarn—2 or 3 ply, per pound.........20 c

LITCHFIELD WOOLEN MILLS.

LITCHFIELD, MINN.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.

Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York

Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Spectator.

IVES & SOLL, Publishers.
JOHN J. SOLL, Editor.

Entered at the postoffice at St. Hilaire, Minn, as second-class mail matter.

Published every Wednesday at St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minn.

TERMS:—$1.50 Per Year in Advance.

SUBSCRIBERS should notify the publisher on or before expiration of subscription if discontinuance is desired. Otherwise paper will be continued.

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 7, 1900.

Hard Drinkers In Chile.

Iquique, Chile, has the reputation of consuming more liquor per capita than any other place in the world.

I have never seen liquor of all kinds consumed in such quantities as here, but apparently there is very little drunkenness. The dry atmosphere and the atoms of sand that one is constantly inhaling excite an abnormal thirst, no doubt, and they say that the human system requires an unusual amount of stimulant to sustain the heat and fatigue of this climate. I am quite sure that this duty is not neglected, judging by the extraordinary excesses which are witnessed without comment daily and hourly at every club and hotel.

Half a dozen cocktails before breakfast—one man at Iquique is said to require 17 to start his machinery in motion—a bottle of Scotch or Irish whisky at breakfast, another at lunch, wines and cordials at dinner, brandy and soda every now and then during the day, alternating with copious and frequent drafts of beer and the same repeated all the evening, with a nightcap of whisky and a bottle beside the bed in case of a restless night—this is considered a moderate indulgence, and the way they mix things is amazing. I have seen a party of business men around a table at a club drinking cocktails, brandy and soda, beer, champagne, sherry and vermuth at the same sitting during business hours and return to repeat the performance several times during the day.—Chile Letter in Chicago Record.

The Engineer's Story.

"To run over a man—perhaps that's the only thing of all that shakes me. To see him on the track within 10 or 20 feet of you, to know that you can't stop to save him, to feel the wheels of the engine go over his body, crunching out his life—a man doesn't want to experience that more than once in a lifetime.

"It's worse with a child. There was an old mate of mine in the west when I was riding in the Union Pacific—never mind his name; he's dead now—as good an engineer as ever stood in a box, cool, nerve like steel, had been through three wrecks, a holdup and a fire. Well, one day Jim was a little behind his schedule and made like anything for the next stop. There was a crossing right in front of him. He saw that everything was clear, as he thought, and went right ahead, when all at once out of a clump of trees there ran a little golden haired fairy, right in front of the engine. It was all over in one instant, and when the train stopped Jim dropped like a log. It was two months before he crept back again to work. But he could never come to that crossing but he saw the little girl with her hair fluttering in the wind running out from the trees. And one day he just got off his engine, turned it over to the second man and walked away, never to be seen again until his body was found in the river."—Leslie's Weekly.

English Restaurants.

Different countries produce different foods. Perhaps that is the reason why a description of a railway restaurant in England sounds so curious to American ears. This terminus restaurant corresponds to the American lunch counter, where pie and coffee are the staple refreshments of the hurried hungry man.

Patrons crowd the English place three deep and wait for the front row to finish eating and depart. One elderly woman drinks hot spirit and water and eats sandwiches. Beside her a country couple devour buns and milk—how British "buns" sounds!—and a busy man eats sponge cake and drinks port wine. Can one imagine a Chicago broker rushing into a quick lunch counter with a demand for sponge cake? He might as well ask for a coach and four.

In this London restaurant a mother of a family regales herself and her meek husband with ginger beer and cakes, and a nervous young clergyman asks for a glass of milk. Buns, sponge cake, milk and beer—the menu is a little different from those on this side of the water.—Chicago News.

The Boston Boy's Diversions.

"Emerson," said Mrs. Beaconstreet, "how did you comport yourself in the thoroughfare this morning with your new neighbors?"

"I fear, ma mere," replied Emerson, "that our actions were scarcely such as would much intensify our intellects. You see, he knows nothing of Auguste Comte, his parents have forbidden him Voltaire, he dislikes Mr. Shakespeare, and his familiarity with chemistry and astronomy is superficial to a wearying degree. So we made mud pies."—Boston Courier.

Wonders of New Hampshire.

The average reader will be amazed to learn that little New Hampshire, with less than 10,000 square miles, has no less than 400 lakes and ponds, 154 brooks, 58 rivers and 294 mountains. This makes Iowa look small. Colorado, a big state, has 558 creeks. Texas has comparatively few rivers, lakes and creeks. Alabama has 663 creeks and 87 rivers. Iowa cannot approach that record. Minnesota has 222 lakes and 140 rivers.—New York Press.

His Vocation.

Hicks—It is a shame the way Buster is bringing up that boy of his. The lad doesn't know how to read or write, and there is no indication of his ever being sent to school.

Wicks—Buster knows what he is doing, you can depend upon it. Probably he intends when that boy reaches manhood he will have all the business he can attend to as criminal court juror.—Boston Transcript.

Sharp.

Doctor—Stick out your tongue, Tommy.

Tommy—Not on your life! I did that yesterday to my teacher, and I still ache all over for it.—Wiener Tagblatt.

SAMPLE BALLOT.

SPECIAL ELECTION BALLOT.

If in favor of said proposition put an (X) mark opposite the word YES in the square indicated by the arrow.

If against said proposition put an (X) mark opposite the word NO in the square indicated by the arrow.

For the proposition to issue and negotiate bonds of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, in the aggregate sum of Ten Thousand Dollars, the proceeds of the sale of said bonds to be used in defraying the expense of erecting and constructing a Court House at the County Seat of said County of Red Lake; said bonds to be in denominations of One Thousand Dollars each and to mature in 20 years from date of issue and to bear interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, both principal and interest to be payable at the office of the County Treasurer in and for said County of Red Lake.

—YES. ☐

—NO. ☐

SEASICK ON SEA LEGS.

Officers and Sailors of the Navy Frequently Distressed.

"The officers and sailors of the navy are frequent sufferers from seasickness, even after they have got their sea legs on," observed a naval surgeon to a reporter. "Indeed I think I can safely say that, young and old, one-third of the entire navy officers as well as men are seasick during storms as well as at other times. In theory naval officers and sailors are entirely free from such so called weakness, but, in fact, they have stomachs and are sufferers at times the same as the rest of humanity.

"The sailor in this respect has many advantages over the naval officers and is less sensitive to seasickness for the reason that he seldom has what is called shore duty to perform, and he is on the ship all the time, barring the days off now and then of liberty. When an officer, it is entirely different, for he seldom has to spend as much time on the ship as he does on shore. The three years' sea duty are generally followed by three years' shore duty, during which time his sea legs and stomach entirely disappear and have to be built up again.

"It is rare that an officer on return to sea duty does not have to go through all the painful and distressing experiences of his first seasickness, and I am not sure but each recurrence of this experience is worse than the original. I have known a dozen officers of from 15 to 25 years' experience in the navy, and I know of at least 50 others who admit that they are as liable to seasickness now as they were when they were middies fresh from the Naval academy."—Washington Star.

Fourteen Mistakes.

An English paper gives a list of what it terms "the 14 mistakes of life." While there are undoubtedly other mistakes than those mentioned, the list is a fairly comprehensive one.

It is a great mistake to set up our own standard of right and wrong and judge people accordingly; to measure the enjoyment of others by our own; to expect uniformity of opinion in this world; to look for judgment and experience in youth; to endeavor to mold all dispositions alike; to look for perfection in our own actions; to worry ourselves and others with what cannot be remedied; not to yield in immaterial matters; not to alleviate all that needs alleviation as far as lies in our power; not to make allowances for the infirmities of others; to consider everything impossible that we cannot perform; to believe only what our finite minds can grasp; to expect to be able to understand everything.

And the last and greatest mistake of all is to live for time alone, when any moment may launch us into eternity.

Glad He Lost His Job.

There is a certain editor in New York with whom the power of the daily press is such a hobby that he raised the salary of a subeditor who suggested a "Sunday special" on "Famous Graduates of the Reporters' Room," and at once assigned his best dressed reporter to interview leading authors along this line. It happened that Mark Twain was in New York, and the editor counted on him as a striking example of the literary value of newspaper training. The reporter was ordered not to spare space for the interview. Yet when the article appeared Mr. Clemens' name was conspicuously absent. It was this way:

Mr. Clemens received the reporter with his customary urbanity, though he shrugged his shoulders when he learned what paper the young man represented. As usual, Mr. Clemens was a most elusive man to pin down to an interview, but at last the reporter gathered his wits and asked the question which he meant should point his article.

"Mr. Twain," he asked, "to what one thing most of all do you owe your marvelous success in literature?" He had counted on "my newspaper training" was the answer.

The famous humorist half shut his eyes, thought a few moments in silence and then said decisively, "To the fact that when I was young and very ambitious I lost my job."

"May I ask what was your job, Mr. Twain?" exclaimed the puzzled reporter.

"Certainly, sir, certainly," replied Mr. Clemens, with great suavity, "I was a reporter."—Saturday Evening Post.

To Subscribers.

All who know themselves to be indebted to The SPECTATOR will confer a great favor by settling early. These accounts are small, but we have a lot of them on our books. Please do not put the matter off or forget it altogether, because it don't amount to very much.

School District Notice.

Whereas, A petition duly signed and the signatures thereto duly acknowledged, has been duly presented to the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county, Minnesota, at a session of said board held on the 5th day of January A. D., 1900, asking for the formation of a new School District to be composed of the following described territory, to-wit:

All of sections 19, 20, 21, 28, 29, 30, 31, 32 and all of section 33 except the e½ of the se¼ all in twp. 152, range 45, also the n½ of sec. 4, twp. 151, range 45, representing:

1st.—That there are 48 persons now residing within the boundaries of said proposed new district and no other or greater number.

2nd.—That the number of children of school age residing in the above described territory is 33.

3rd.—That the school district affected by the organization of the said proposed new district, is school district No. 48 and that the number of children of school age residing therein is 65; and 4th.—That the said proposed new district does not include the school building of any existing school district.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that a hearing of parties interested in the matter of said petition will be granted at the next session of said board, commencing on the 19th day of February A. D. 1900, at the office of the county auditor, in Red Lake Falls in said county.

By order of the Board of County Commissioners.

ADAM ZEH,
Clerk of Board.

Regulate Your Watch.

As Johnson's barber shop and if it don't keep time, leave it, and we will repair it and warrant it to keep time for one year. New watches, clocks chains and jewelry for sale at the lowest prices. I will be at Johnson's barber shop the 12th 13th and 14th of every month. All work left at the shop has my personal attention. When you come to Red Lake Falls make the Palace Jewely Store your headquarters.

I am yours truly
PROF. J. Q. ADAMS,
Watchmaker and Optician.

School District Notice.

Whereas, a petition signed by Sophia Gomoll, a freeholder, who is a legal voter, residing in school district No. 112 Red Lake county, Minnesota, representing that she is the owner of the following described lands, situate in said district, to-wit:

The north-east quarter of section 18, twp. 151, range 43, which said lands adjoin school district No. 88, asking that the said lands be set off from said school district No. 112 to School District No. 88 which lies adjoining, for the following reasons:—

That in sending children to school in said District No. 112, the Red Lake river must be crossed, and as there is no bridge nearer than Red Lake Falls, it is impossible to send children to school only a short time in winter, was presented to the board of county commissioners of Red Lake county, Minnesota, at a session of said board held on the 5th day of January A. D. 1900, for the action of said board thereon.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that a hearing of parties interested in the matter of said petition will be granted at the next session of the said board, commencing on the 19th day of February A. D. 1900, at the office of the County Auditor, in Red Lake Falls, in said county.

By order of the Board of County Commissioners.

ADAM ZEH,
Clerk of the Board.

—Go to the New Drug Store for your Stationery and School supplies.

We Want Correspondents.

We desire a correspondent in every school district in the county, one who will give the local news of his or her locality in a fair and impartial manner. To any one who will undertake the matter the SPECTATOR will furnish the necessary stationery and postage and will send the paper free during the time the person acts in that capacity. Only one correspondent desired in each district. It is an advantage to any community to be represented in the columns of the local paper.

Order to Examine Accounts, &c.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Red Lake. } ss. In Probate Court. Special Term. January 27th A. D. 1900.

In the matter of the estate of Hosea Tway, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Hannah Tway, administratrix of the estate of Hosea Tway, deceased; representing among other things, that she has fully administrated said estate, and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining, settling and allowing the final account of her administration, and for the assignment of the residue of said estate to the parties entitled thereto by law.

It is ordered, that said account be examined and petition heard by this court on Monday the 5th day of March A. D. 1900, at two o'clock P. M., at the court house in said county of Red Lake.

And it is further ordered, that notice thereof be given to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order once each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Spectator, a weekly newspaper printed and published at St. Hilaire in said county.

Dated at Red Lake Falls the 27th day of January A. D., 1900.

By the Court,
[SEAL.] JOHN T. KNIGHT,
27-29. Judge of Probate.

Don't forget your "little subscription account" when selling your wheat.

DON'T BE ASHAMED—

To tell us if you have company.
If a child is born.
If you are going to get married.
If any relative or friend has died.
If your wife has gone away on a visit.
If anything happens worth printing.

The Ideal Lunch Room.

In the Paradis Building is noted for its Convenience.

FIRST-CLASS MEALS.

PROMPT SERVICE.

☛ OPEN UNTIL ONE O'CLOCK A. M.

A. F. LANG, Prop.

NEW YORK WORLD.

THRICE-A-WEEK EDITION.

Practically a Daily at the Price of a Weekly.

The striking and important events of the last year have established the overwhelming value of The Thrice-a-Week World to every reader. For an almost nominal sum it has kept its subscribers informed of the progress of all our wars and, moreover, has reported them as promptly and fully as if it were a daily. With our interests still extending throughout the world, with our troops operating in the Philippines and the great Presidential campaign, too, at hand, its value is further increased.

The motto of The Thrice-a-Week World is improved. It strives each year to be better than it was the year before, and public confidence in it is shown by the fact that it now circulates more than twice as many papers every week as any other newspaper, not a daily, published in America.

We offer this unequalled newspaper and The St. Hilaire Spectator together one year for $1.65.

The regular subscription price of the two papers is $2.50.

Barber Shop

—AND—

BATH ROOMS.

—o—

Haircutting, Shaving, Shampooing.

Rasors honed and put in first-class order.

J. H. PENNO, Prop.

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

First Mortgage Loans.

I am prepared, for the next 60 days, to make loans at the

LOWEST

possible rates ever made in Red Lake county. If you want to make a loan or renew an old one call on

H. E. IVES.

NORTHERN PACIFIC YELLOWSTONE PARK LINE

RUNS

THROUGH CARS

TO ☛ ST. PAUL
MINNEAPOLIS
DULUTH
FARGO
GRAND FORKS
AND WINNIPEG

To HELENA
BUTTE
SPOKAND
TACOMA
SEATTLE
PORTLAND

PULLMAN SLEEPING CARS
ELEGANT DINING CARS
TOURIST SLEEPING CARS

PATENTS GUARANTEED

Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.

Patents taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in THE PATENT RECORD, an illustrated and widely circulated journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.

Send for sample copy FREE. Address,

VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.
(Patent Attorneys,)
Evans Building, WASHINGTON, D. C.

By special arrangement with the publishers we are enable to give FARM, STOCK AND HOME one year and the ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR for $1.35.

BANK OF RED LAKE FALLS,

RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA

GENERAL BANKING. FOREIGN XCHANGE

Real Estate, Farm Loans and Insurance.
Abstracts of Title.
Steamship Tickets.
Interest Paid on Time Deposits.
Collections of all Kinds Given Prompt Attention.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli the only set of Abstract Books in Red Lake County.

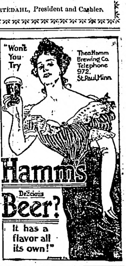
M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.

Uncle Sam's Monogram Whiskey.

Insist upon having it. If your druggist or dealer does not carry it he can get it for you from Geo. Benz & Sons, St. Paul & Minneapolis

Excellent Quality Moderate Price

GEO. BENZ & SONS
UNCLE SAM'S
MONOGRAM
WHISKEY



"Won't You Try Hamm's Delicious Beer? It has a flavor all its own!"

Theo. Hamm Brewing Co. Telephone 972. St. Paul, Minn.

FARMS { 250 farms in Red Lake county for sale, also a large list of Railroad lands. Prices going up.

LOANS { First Mortgage Farm Loans ☛ A Specialty. ☚

ABSTRACTS { furnished on short notice. Neat and accurate work guaranteed.

S. A. SWANSON,
Official Abstracter.

RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.

OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U. S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.

Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.

A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U. S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

—The SPECTATOR is for sale—at $1.50 a year—strictly in advance.

Cigars.

BRINK BROTHERS

DEALERS IN

Wines & Liquors

Minneapolis Beer.

Corner Broadway and 3rd St. St. Hilaire, Minnesota

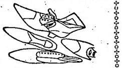
L. K. KOLSTAD.

DEALER IN

BOOTS AND SHOES!

Repairing a Specialty.

ST. HILAIRE, - - - - - - - MINNESOTA.



SOME OF OUR CLUB RATES WITH THE

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR

OUR TERMS ARE STRICTLY CASH IN ADVANCE

Cosmopolitan and Spectator.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we will leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal, both together one year for only $1.80.

Farm, Stock & Home.

50 cents per year. Read by a greater number of Northwestern farmers than any other agricultural paper published. Are you among the number? If not, Why not? Every department in the hands of a specialist. Short talks department. A department where all kinds of questions are answered for the benefit of subscribers, is a leading feature of the paper. No northwestern farmers list of papers is complete without it. This paper and Spectator one year for $1.35.

Cosmopolitan, New York World and The Spectator.

You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine, Three together one year for only $2.50.

OFFICIAL PAPER OF ST. HILAIRE AND RED LAKE COUNTY.

NEW MEAT MARKET.

L. M. ROLAND, Proprietor.

Fresh and Salted Meats.

Highest Market Price Paid for Hides.

It's Time Now then If you are Looking for Bargins in Dry Goods Groceries Hats, Caps, Boots, Shoes Clothing Notions

Or in fact anything carried in a first-class general merchandise store, why you are cordially invited and we will accommodate you. Call and look over our large stock.

E. M. HOFF.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

I. O. O. F. ST. HILAIRE LODGE No. 147.—Meets at their hall every Thursday evening, eight o'clock. Visiting members are cordially invited to attend.
J. B. O'BRIEN, N. G.
A. F. LANG, Secretary.

M. W. A. CAMP 3650.—Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every second and fourth Tuesday of every month. Visiting neighbors are cordially invited to attend.
H. O. JACKSON, V. C.
JAS. M. HALL, Clerk.

R. N. A.—WILD ROSE CAMP.—No. 834 Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every Friday evening. Visiting members of the order are cordially invited to attend.
MRS. W. A. ARTHUR, Oracle.
MISS T. HUGHES, Recorder.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.

E. J. Holmes .... President
J. L. Johnson .... Recorder
D. Patterson, J. C. Dahl, W. A. Sorsoleil } Councilmen
L. Holmes .... Treasurer

DR. BLOMBURGH.
SCANDINAVIAN
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Calls attended day or night.
Teeth Extracted.
Office and residence opposity M. E. church. ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Auditor	Adam Zeh
Treasurer	O. T. Tandberg
Register of Deeds	Samuel Gilbeau
Sheriff	Chas. Sampson
Attorney	Van R. Brown
Judge of Probate	J. T. Knight
Clerk of Court	Joe Perrault
Supt. of Schools	Frank Jeffers
Coroner	Joe Belaire
Court Commissioner	J. C. Mathews
Surveyor	P. O. Hagglund
Commissioner 1st Dist.	J. Suter
Commissioner 2nd Dist.	W. L. C. Demann
Commissioner 3rd Dist.	O. J. Johnsen
Commissioner 4th Dist.	Karl M. Hanson
Commissioner 5th Dist.	J. B. Herbert

HENRY FRANCIS, M. D., C. M.
Member College Physicians and Surgeons, Ontario, . . .
Office and residence first door south of Oen's hardware store.
THIEF RIVER FALLS, MINN.

List of Town Clerks.

Names	Township	Postoffice
Olof Larson	Numedal	Viking
C. E. Purdy	North	Thief River Falls
John E. Peterson	Bray	Bray
N. K. Anderson	Sanders	St. Hilaire
F. T. Satre	Rocksbury	T. R. Falls
O. T. Romsos	Polk Centre	Wylie
P. A. Eckstrom	Black River	Wylie
A. S. Anderson	River Falls	St. Hilaire
Ole J. Johnson	Wyandotte
A. D. Berry	Louisville	Huot
Hdaige Baril	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
Chas. E. Alp	Emardville	Lost
Edward Havik	Equality	Grit
Moses Ducharme	Lake Pleasant	R. L. F.
Edmor Perusse	Terrebonne	Terrebonne
L. B. Herbert	Poplar River	Brooks
Louis Doucet	Lambert	Lambert
J. L. Johnson	St. Hilaire	St. Hilaire
Lars Backe	Thief River F.	T. R. F.
A. P. Toupin	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
H. D. Baaryson	Norden	T. R. Falls
Olof Tande	Garnes	Garnes

A. O. LETVIG,
TUBULAR WELL CONTRACTOR.
A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed. Repairing a Specialty.
WYLIE. MINNESOTA.

UNCLE SAM Is not In the Shoe Business, And Neither Am I, But I can Interest You in CIGARS.
ALL THE BEST SMOKERS BUY THEM
J. B. Cigars.
ALL THE BEST DEALERS SELL THEM.
J. B. ARMSTRONG, Manufacturer.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA.

DAY F. STACY, C. E.
DEPUTY
County Surveyor.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.
Drainage and Farm Surveys a Specialty.

Market Report.—To-Day.

Wheat No. 1	.52½	Oats	.16
Wheat No. 2	.49½	Barley	.27
Wheat No. 3	.47½	Flax	1.40
Eggs (per doz)	.12½	Butter (per lb)	15

LOCAL NEWS.

Vote no on bonds.

Masquerade ball Feb. 14th.

Fresh oysters at A. F. Lang's.

District court convenes next week.

Sample ballot will be found on fourth page.

Masquerade ball one week from to-night.

Flour and feed at Leonard Holmes elevator.

Oysters prepared in any style at A. F. Lang's.

Wall paper and calcimine at the New Drug store.

A new stock of boys clothing just received at E. M. Hoff's.

BORN: To Mr. and Mrs. W. Olson Feb. 2, 1900, a daughter.

Try a lunch, a meal or a weeks board at the Ideal Lunch Room.

Surveyor Ralph of Crookston was here on business yesterday.

J. K. Hannay and H. E. Ives made a trip to the upper Falls Saturday.

Patronize home industry by buying your wall paper at the New Drug store.

J. Q. Adams the optican and jeweler will be here Feb. 12th, 13th and 14th. Please remember the dates.

Ada had the misfortune of having a $50,000 fire last Wednesday.

Two young men, relatives of C. A. Skeie, arrived last Friday from Norway.

Mrs. J. B. O'Brien has resigned her position as teacher of the grammar department.

Bankers Wheeler and Ellington of Crookston were here between trains last Saturday.

Miss Annie Schusser of Red Lake Falls was visiting with Mr. and Mrs. D. Collins this week.

By voting for bonds your signify your willingness to work for the bond holders instead of yourself.

Mrs. Wm. Lonsdale departed for Minneapolis Monday where she will make an extended visit.

Judge of Probate Knight of Red Lake Falls came up yesterday on matters pertaining to his office.

President Shevlin of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company was here yesterday looking over his large holdings.

An elegant line of Rockers just received at Holmes Furniture Co. Come early while the selection is good.

Tickets for the masquerate ball, which will be held on February 14th, are now on sale at the drug store.

Henry Norland will leave tomorrow for Crookston to superintend the driving of piles for the Lumber Company.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

W. E. Rowe and Mark Liverman of Crookston were here last Friday attending to some matters of legal nature.

If you think your taxes are not high enough—why vote for bonds. If you think they are high enough—vote against.

Banker Dobner of Thief River Falls was here a few hours Monday while enroute to Grand Forks on business matters.

The new smoke stack over the planing mill will be one hundred feet high and they expect to have it completed by Friday.

C. R. Beecher, book-keeper for the St. Hilaire Lumber Company left last Friday for Merrill, Wis., on a two weeks vacation.

John Barton returned Sunday from the Black Duck country where he has been since early fall working in the lumbering wooks.

Tuesday, February 20th is the last day on which you have a chance to regester if you want to vote on the bond question the 24th.

A North Dakota farmer living in Cass county thought it would pay to re-thresh his flax straw. He did so and the first day make $26.

If your name is not on the posted list see to it on the 20th inst. as that is the last day to register. The list remains open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

Col. Rassmussen, general agent for the Hamm's Brewing Company was interviewing the trade yesterday.

—Dr. Thomas is an up-to-date in all the different branches in his profession. Remember the dates, Feb. 26th and 27th.

I. Dahleen has been busy the past week putting in new shelving in the general merchandise store of E. M. Hoff's.

Mrs. M. Nelson, mother of J. Nelson, our genial druggist, and Mrs. T. J. Thorkelson, terminated a two months pleasant visit here and left Saturday for her home at Evansville.

W. T. Mullarky of Thief River Falls was an over-night visitor last Thursday enroute home after installing officers of the K. O. T. M. at Red Lake Falls the night before.

Misses Hannay, Quandy and Danielson got up a surprise party Thursday evening on Mr. Rud. The guests assembled at the Holmes building and a very pleasant evening was spent in dancing.

Miss Frances Davis of Kimball, a graduate of St. Cloud Norman school, entered upon her duties Monday morning as teacher of the grammar department. Miss Davis comes highly recommended as a competent teacher.

R. J. Farley, the immigration agent of Oakland, Nebraska, after spending a week looking over the country with a view of locating a colony in this county left for Minneapolis Monday. He promises another visit to these parts next June.

The McKinley Club of Crookston, Minn., will hold their Third annual Lincoln Day banquet at the Hotel Crookston on February 12th at 9 o'clock p. m. Tickets $1.50 each. Hon. Moses E. Clapp of St. Paul will be the speaker of the evening.

Fred Miller arrived yesterday and was duly installed superintendent of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company. Acting Supt. Murch will remain here a few days and then leave for Crookston where he goes to take full charge of the Lumber Co's affairs at that place.

If the reader of this should chance to know of any one who is subject to attacks of bilious colic he can do him no greater favor than to tell him of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It always gives prompt relief. For sale by The Imperial Drug Store.

In order to catch the vote of the farmers living in the towns of Garnes and Equality the schemers of Red Lake Falls promise to "make or assist in making a good highway leading from the east side of the county directly into Red Lake Falls." If they were so anxious to get this trade, why didn't they build this road a year or two ago?

"I think I would go crazy with pain were it not for Chamberlain's Pain Balm," writes Mr. W. H. Stapleton, Herminie, Pa. "I have been afflicted with rheumatism for several years and have tried remedies without number, but Pain Balm is the best medicine I have got hold of." One application relieves the pain. For sale at The Imperial Drug Store.

We acknowledge the receipt of the Minneapolis Journal Almanac and Year Book of general information for 1900, also Vol. II, No. 1, of Bart's Cartoons. Both are compliments of Lucian Swift, manager of the best daily paper printed in the west—the Minneapolis Journal, for which we extend thanks. They are sold for the small sum of 25 cents each. Send for both.

The Swedish Mission Friends sewing society met at Mrs. Dr. Blomburgh last Thursday and a most enjoyable afternoon was spent. The following were present: Mesdames Pastor Olson, T. Torkelson, D. Patterson, A. Hall, O. F. Post, O. Kolstad, O. H. Olson, O. Carlson, C. G. Akerberg, Kruse, Jackson, Lindahl, Soderberg, Guttormson, Cliffgard, H. Hanson, E. Hanson, Wassen, Johnson, Sattre, Gustafson, Kortgaard, A. Blomburgh, Miss Gustafson and Miss Hakanson.

A well-to-do farmer living in the township of Black River—taking four different papers—did not learn until last Saturday that there was to be an election held in this county on February 24th. He thought it strange he did not see any mention of it in either of the papers—but then one was published in Minneapolis, one in Iowa, one in New York and the other in Dakota. We would suggest that every farmer living in Red Lake county take at least one of the five county papers to find out what is going on at home.

Has Forged to the Front.

The Minneapolis Times has won distinction among the most enterprising of twin city papers. Its telegraphic columns are always well supplied with the latest news, and a feature of increased interest has just been added in securing the exclusive use in the northwest of the New York Herald's special and unrivalled cable news service. Its state news service is first class, and altogether The Times has forged to the front as an all-round popular newspaper.

—To cure a cough or cold in one day take the Imperial Cough Syrup.

Notice for Bids.

Notice is hereby given that the county auditor will receive bids for 40 cords second growth poplar wood to be delivered at the court house in the city of Red Lake Falls. Bids will be received and considered by the board of county commissioners on ten cord lots or more. Bids to be presented to the county auditor on or before Feb. 19th 1900. The board reserved the right to reject any or all bids.

Attest. By order of the Board,
ADAM ZEH, County Auditor.

VOTE NO ON BONDS.

Below You Will Find a Few Reasons Why You Should Vote Against The Bonds. St. Hilaire, or Thief River Falls, Will Build a Court House Free to the County.

To The Voters of Red Lake County.

The schemers and county ring at Red Lake Falls want you to vote $10,000.00 more bonds. They are trying to fool you with a misleading array of figures into voting more bonds, by pretending that it will save you money. If you follow their advice, you will land the county in debt as badly as Red Lake Falls already is.

WHAT THEY HAVE DONE WITH RED LAKE FALLS:

The tax rate is almost seven per cent per annum: they are above the legal limit of debt, and Red Lake Falls is to-day the most bankrupt town in the state. Over four thousand three hundred lots in that town will be sold in a few weeks to pay accumulated back taxes.

RED LAKE COUNTY IS ALREADY BONDED FOR $30,000.00:

And the money is all spent, without very much to show for it: Polk county is claiming $15,000.00 more, which, if allowed, will make the total debt $50,000.00. The ten thousand more which they ask you to vote is merely a bait to draw you on. When that is spent more money will be needed, and the probable result will be that you will be drawn into an expenditure of thirty or forty thousand dollars before you get through with the court house scheme.

If this scheme was an honest one, why was it kept concealed till the last minute, and passed over the protest of two of the county commissioners, and the election called at a time when it was known that many of the voters were away from home at work in the woods?

YOU CAN HAVE A COURT HOUSE FREE!

If you think that a new court house is absolutely necessary, you can have one free by locating the County Seat either at St. Hilaire or Thief River Falls.

We published a copy of the guarantee of these towns, and the original documents are now in the vaults of the First State Bank of Thief River Falls, and can be seen by any voters of the county.

If Red Lake Falls has the interest of the county at heart, and wishes to economize, let it donate a suitable site for a court house and give the $10,000.00 to boot.

RED LAKE COUNTY NEEDS MONEY TO SPEND ON DRAINS AND DITCHES, AND IMPROVED ROADS.

Farmers, help yourselves first, and don't load yourselves down with taxes, to accomodate the citizens of Red Lake Falls!

To the County Commissioners and Tax Payers of Red Lake County, Minn.

THE UNDERSIGNED, citizens and residents of St. Hilaire hereby guarantee to you that if the County Seat of Red Lake county shall during the next three years be located within the Village of St. Hilaire, we will furnish a suitable site for a Court House and Jail, and build thereon a suitable Court House and Jail, to cost not less than ten thousand dollars, which ground and building shall be the property of the county FREE.

H B Ives.	J L Johnson.
J K Hannay.	E J Brink.
C G Rapp.	Emil J Holmes.
M McAndress.	J J Soll.
Daniel Patterson.	D Collins.
Peter Hall.	O P Post.
M E Bjerk.	Leonard Holmes.
A H Weagant.	H O Jackson.
P G Paradis.	Wm Olson.
W A Sorsoleil.	Ed Whaley.
Wm Eikhoff.	A C Adams.
J W Peterson.	R H Aimer.
E M Hoff.	Alfred Dainard.
J Nelson.	M Lacousiers.
T J Thorkelson.	J H Penno.
K O Gigstad.	O W Brink.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Red Lake. } ss.

On this 30th day of January A. D., nineteen hundred, personally appeared the persons whose names are above subscribed, and acknowledged that they severally executed the same as their free act and deed.

[SEAL.] K. O. GIGSTAD.
Notary Public, Red Lake Co., Minn.

To the County Commissioners and Tax Payers of Red Lake County, Minn.

WE, the undersigned, citizens and residents of Thief River Falls, do hereby pledge ourselves to the County of Red Lake, that in case the county seat of Red Lake county shall at any time during the next three years be located at Thief River Falls, that we will furnish to Red Lake county free of charge a suitable site for a Court House and other county buildings, and will build thereon and donate to the county a Court House and Jail, to cost not less that $10,000.00.

James Meehan Jr.	John Connery.
C G Dobner.	H Fant.
Jackson & Bailey.	Morgan & Brink.
Carl Kretzschmar.	A Piche.
Hans Langseth.	N W Tarrant.
P. O. Bergh.	W T Mullarky.
Chas A Robbecke.	K. M. Hansen.
F J Stebbins.	Peter Wilmes.
John O Aas.	Hansen & Barzen.
M Bothum.	M V Evenson.
S Kenison.	H Lewin.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Red Lake. } ss.

On this 3rd day of February, Nineteen Hundred, before me, a notary public, within and for said county, personally appeared the persons whose names are above subscribed, and they severally acknowledged that they executed the same as their free act and deed.

[SEAL] KARL M. HANSEN.
Notary Public, Red Lake Co., Minn.

For Court House Bonds.
YES.	☐
NO.	☒

Will They Enlighten Us.

The Red Lake Falls papers who have so industriously been showing us how the county could save money by bonding the county and building a court house might enlighten us about how the county could prevent the very heavy drain on the county treasury by exobitant doctors charges for services tendered the county poor by Red Lake Falls doctors.

A TAXPAYER.

Dentist.

—Dr. J. H. Thomas, the Crookston dentist will be at Hotel Markham, St. Hilaire, Feb. 26th and 27th prepared to do all kinds of up to date dental work in all branches. All work warranted. Remember the dates 26th and 27th.

A fashion note says that belts, gloves and neckties of rattlesnake skin will be worn a great deal by women this winter. We knew the poor rattlesnake would have to come to it sooner or later. It was about the only varment left that women didn't wear. Think of a woman being arrayed in the silkworm dress, sealskin sacque, ostrich feather hat, goatskin shoes, whalebone stays, kidskin gloves, horsehide belt, tortoiseshell comb, fish-scale trimmings, stuffed canary birds, clam-shell buttons, Spitz dog muff, camel's-hair underwear minktail collarette, alligator-hide purse and now a rattlesnake necktie. Solomon in all his glory wasn't such a menagerie as one of these—and yet we love them, no matter what they wear.

The band boys will give a Masquerade ball Feb. 14th. They have secured the best orchestra of Red Lake Falls and that is a sufficient guarantee that the best kind of a time is in store for all who attend. All are invited.

—For cuts and sores there is nothing better than the Imperial Carbolic salve.

Council Proceedings.

Regular meeting of the village council Monday Jan 5th 1900.

All members present except Sorsoleil

Meeting called to order by President Holmes.

Minutes of last regular meeting read and approved.

On motion the following bills were allowed.

Ed Whaley work on well	75
A C Adams hauling lumber	50
A H Wegant mdse as per bill	13 25
C Hall 1 month marshal salary	40 00
S Harris work as per bill	14 37
W S Booth & Son blanks	9 67
D Patterson 2 cords of wood	5 00
" team work	3 00
P O Hagglund surveying ditch	25 00

On motion D. Patterson, J. C. Dahl and E. J. Holmes were appointed judges of the special election to be held at St. Hilaire Minn., on the 24th day of February 1900.

On motion meeting adjourned.

Attest:— E. J. HOLMES
J. L. JOHNSON, President.
Recorder.

—It is better than ready money because it cures rheumatism, constipation sick headache, indigestion. Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure.

From Farm, Stock and Home.

Remember this is the season to test the germinating quality of seeds. It costs nothing, and may make a deal of difference in the years profits.

As between a man who would "talk himself into the presidency" and one who would get himself bought into the presidency the first is preferable.

Trusts, watered stocks and the control of the money of the nation by private individuals are "white men's burdens" that Philipinos don't want to carry; and there are millions of Americans in the same fix!

There is a difference between money and capital. To counterfeit the first is a crime; but to make bogus capital is a virture; its maker is admired, honored, glorified, if he makes enough of it to become very rich!

There are Americans who declare that the wiping out of the Transvaal republic by the British empire would be a "triumph of civilization." Is the empire a higher or trüer exponent of civilization than the republic?

The average yield of wheat in Great Britain in 1899 was 32¼ bushels an acre in 1898 34¾ bushels; in the United States in 1899, 12½ bushels. And God didn't make Great Britain a better country for wheat than the United States!

Enumerator Districts.

Fifteen enumerators will be required to take the census of Red Lake county next summer. The pay will be from $30 to $100 according to the time it takes and the character of the district. The county is divided as follows:

317. Black River township and Polk Centre township.
318. Bray township and Sanders township.
319. Emardville township and Gervais township.
320. Equality township, Garnes township and part of township 152, R. 41.
321. Lake Pleasant township.
322. Terrebonne township.
323. Lambert township.
324. Poplar River township.
325. Louisville township.
326. Red Lake Falls township, exclusive of Red Lake Falls city.
327. Norden township and North township, exclusive of Thief River Falls city and Numedal township.
328. Red Lake Falls city.
329. River Falls township, St. Hilaire village and Wyandotte township.
330. Rocksbury township and part of township 153, range 42.
331. Thief River Falls city.

Methodist Church.

Services will be held in the Methodist church on Sunday morning at 11 a. m. and in the evening at 7:30.

N. J. VERNON, Pastor.

—If you are troubled with rheumatism take the Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure. It will positively cure all diseases arising from impure blood, and is sold under an absolute guarantee to benefit or money refunded. Call for free sample at the New Drug Store.

We Handle Everything.

Start the Day Right

And everything will go smoothly. The proper way to start the day is by coming around to our store and ordering a supply of groceries for the day, such things as you may need. It will take you but a few minutes, and we feel sure you will not regret it.

Our Groceries

Are always fresh, and then the prices are as near right as we know how to make them. If you have not been in the habit of trading with us, drop in and see us anyway; you might get into the habit.

Hardware

We carry everything in the hardware line from cooking stoves down to tacks—all you have to do is to ask for what you want. If you want anything in the tin or copper line done drop into our tin shop and your wants will be attended to.

Yours very truly,
RAPP & POST
St. Hilaire, Minnesota.

M. A. HALL
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS,
GROCERIES,
NOTIONS,
GENTS FURNISHING GOODS,
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
CONFECTIONERY

GO TO THE New Hardware Store for anything you need in the line of Hardware, Paints, Oils, Stoves, Harness AND PLOWS.
Also agent for Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines. Call and get prices.
A. H. WEAGANT.

LEONARD HOLMES,
—DEALER IN—
Agricultural Implements..
WHEAT, FLAX OATS AND BARLEY.
Flour and Feed always on Hand.

Lumber! Lumber!
OF ALL KINDS.
We have a large and well assorted stock of Dry Lumber and are prepared to fill all orders on short notice. We also carry a complete assortment
—OF—
Sash, Doors, Paper
AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL
Which we buy in large quantities and are thereby enabled to sell at lowest market prices.
ST. HILAIRE LUMBER CO.

IF YOU INTEND TO Buy Furniture
Come and look our assortment over. We carry everything in the Furniture line including picture frames and musical instruments. Prices reasonable.
Holmes Furniture Co.

The Arnewood Mystery

BY MAURICE H. HERVEY.

Author of "Dead Man's Court," "Somerville's Crime," "Dartmoor," "Maravin's Money," etc., etc.

CHAPTER XV. (Continued.)

"Such is my own opinion, also," I rejoined, "and I am very glad to have it so authoritatively indorsed. I trust to have two of the culprits under lock and key within less than a week, providing I am not detained through the inquest."

"That will mainly depend upon the evidence you may give," he remarked, with a volume of dry meaning in his tone. "Perhaps, less said the better in this particular case. You may be sure that neither coroner nor jury will be anxious to prolong the inquiry during Christmas week."

"I understand," I said, "and shall say as little as possible. Many thanks, Mr. O'Brien, for your timely advice."

Subsequent events fully confirmed the old lawyer's forecast, so far, at least, as I was concerned. My evidence was as terse and brief as I could make it. I was an inquiry agent, employed by deceased to probe the mystery of his cousin's violent death. I was explaining to him the results of my inquiries so far, when he suddenly fell back in his chair and expired. Was the nature of my statements such as to cause unusual excitement? Yes; the more so as deceased took a very strong personal interest in the matter. Had I formed any opinion as to the cause of death? Knowing deceased to have a weak heart, and judging from the suddenness of his demise, I at once attributed it to heart disease. I was heckled a little as to the imprudence of unduly exciting a person so afflicted; but there my share in the matter ended, and I was absolved from further attendance, subject to recall at a day's notice.

The medical evidence was, however, by no means so easily disposed of. Two doctors who had previously attended deceased, expressed no surprise at the suddenness of the death. Dr. Redwood, on the other hand, insisted that death had been accelerated by means of some drug having a specific action upon the heart. The coroner sided with him; and the inquiry was adjourned for ten days to admit of an exact analysis of the remains.

This was how the matter stood two days after my departure for London and upon the eve of the meeting arranged between James Blogg and the stranger at the old house in Rodney Avenue. Of the stranger I had neither heard nor seen anything more. He had not again called at the Shellborne Hotel, finding his mission probably frustrated by Captain Arnewood's death.

Mr. Philip Blake had taken the demise of his relative with characteristic coolness. Greatly to my surprise, he had entirely changed his hostile attitude towards me, and had even gone the length of tendering a sort of half-apology for his previous incivility. He had done his utmost to avoid attending the inquest, which he described as "a bit of a bore;" but, nevertheless, called upon to appear, he had stated quite frankly his motive for seeking a private interview with deceased as his pressing need of a check, which the latter had given him. This was, of course, a wise admission, because the counterfoil bore his name and had passed into the hands of the law officers. Incidentally, it had also supplied the only diverting incident in the dreary inquiry. He had, he informed the coroner, cashed the check in question almost immediately, or, at all events, before news of Captain Arnewood's demise had reached the National Bank; and this instance of smartness had half-amused the jury. To me, of course, the incident had conveyed a deeper meaning. In conjunction with the disappearance of the stranger, it seemed to intimate some connection between the latter, Mr. Philip Blake, James Blogg and the two dead Arnewoods.

Such, then, was the position upon Dec. 26th, the evening of the fateful meeting which, if I played my cards aright and with ordinary luck, seemed destined to solve the mystery of Luke Arnewood's death. But I had yet to decide upon a plan of action. With Billy as guide, it would, doubtless, be easy enough to effect an entrance into the house, either before or after the arrival of the confederates. I had to take into account, however, that I should have two men to deal with, both probably armed and sure to offer a desperate resistance to capture. That I had no legal right to seize them, no matter how compromising their interview, was a detail I intended to ignore; but I could not ignore the fact that I would be helpless single-handed. To whom could I apply for help?

Once more the name of Inspector Traill suggested itself. I had but to see him and the difficulty would be at an end. But again I revolted at the idea of seeing the fruits of my labors carried off by Scotland Yard. As a very last resource, I might have to fall back upon Traill; but I vowed it should only be when all other means should fail me.

I might hire the services of a couple of prize-fighters or bullies; but even they would perhaps draw back when they realized that burglarious entry of a house formed part of the job, and any hesitation on the part of my assistants might ruin all my plans.

While I was puzzling over this awkward detail, I stumbled across a dirty-looking letter addressed to me, which I had somehow overlooked. It was from the little newsvendor, and ran as follows:

"Honord Sir:—Hoping this will reech you in time as I have important news to tell you. Its abowt Tom and I can find him eny time but not after tomorrow. Honord Sir, hoping to see you at the Crown and Sceptre, Barrow Street, Clerkenwell, any time between 6 and 8 tonight thursday. If I dont see you I will pay my respex tomorrow. Your servant to command,

—"Sam Nobbs."

I at once decided upon visiting the Crown and Sceptre, though I did not wholly believe the newsman's statement that he could find Tom "eny time." Still, he probably had a clue to his whereabouts, and would follow it up all the better for a little active co-operation on my part.

So I went, and lucky for me it was that I did so.

CHAPTER XVI.

Sam Nobbs Visits a Show.

The Crown and Scepter, despite its pretentious sign, proved to be a very small affair, indeed, in the way of public houses—a mere beer-shop, in fact. But, as I was not visiting it for purposes of refreshment, that mattered nothing; indeed, it augured well as indicating a healthy preference, on the part of my emissary, for beer over rum. He had established himself, perhaps, in honor of my expected advent, in a little den labelled "Private Bar," and there I found him in full enjoyment of a pipe and a pint of mild-and-bitter. Four-ale, be it understood, is infra dig., even in beer-house private bars.

"Thank 'eaven, you've come, sir!" was his greeting. "They're off to-morrow. We'll just be in nice time for a look-in, if we starts now."

This was not a very clear introduction, but the Crown and Sceptre was scarcely a suitable spot for explanations, and so I bade him finish his beer and accompany me outside.

"Have we far to go?" I inquired.

"Nigh upon two miles, sir," was the reply. "Away up the Hampstead Road, beyond the Canal. But we've time enough to walk it—without you'd rather drive?" he added, suggestively.

"No, I'd rather walk," I rejoined, "a part of the way, at all events. I can hear what you have to say better. Now, tell your story in your own fashion, but cut it as short as you can."

"Right 'are, sir," he assented, "more 'specially as there ain't a great deal to tell arter all. Well, y' se, I kept on the prowl around Clerkenwell, with a bit of King's Cross and the Euson Road thrown in, but nary sight could I get of my man until I spotted him on Christmas eve, near Gower Street Station. It was nearly dark, with a bit of fog besides, and I couldn't feel quite sure of him until I overtook him in the Hampstead Road. Even then, though I knowed I wasn't mistaken in the lob-sided figure and shuffling walk of the man, I was well-nigh choked when I seed his face. You know, sir, as well as I do, that wotever might be said about Tom Webb's boozin', no one could ever mistake him for an idiot. Well, the face of the man I'd been follerin' was just that of a mad 'un. Not a glimmer of sense nor understandin' in the fishy eyes, and a set grin, that had no larf in it, on the half-open, dribbling mouth. It was Tom Webb, right enough, but more like a bloomin' caricatoor, such as I sells in the 'alfpenny comics, than the genuine article.

"'Hello, mate!' says I, slappin' him on the shoulder, friendly-like, 'what cheer?'

"Tom looked at me, and, for half a minute I thought he knew me. But he didn't. He only grinned and mumbled somethin' about the fog gettin' worse. Then, seeing as how he disappeared the night of the great fog last month, this seemed a good line to foller.

"'Yes, it's coming on a bit thicker, mate,' I tells him, 'but 'twon't be anything like wot we had five weeks ago. A reg'lar bad 'un that war.'

"The grin died away, and with a queer, jibberin moan, he slunk off as fast as he could. Of course, I follered him.

"Just as we got past the canal bridge, he stopped short and rounded on me. 'Who are you?' he asked, jerkin' out the words like. 'Why are you a-dogging my steps?'

"'Well, I'm your old pal, Sam Nobbs,' says I, quietly. 'And I'm a-dogging your footsteps, as you calls it, to find out where you're goin' to, Tom Webb.'

"The names 'ad just the same effect on him as when I fust spoke to 'im. He seemed to know 'em for an instant, and then to forget 'em again.

"'You can if you like, of course,' says he, 'and your friends, too. There's no half-price, though, except nine on Saturday nights.'

"'All right, mate,' says I, 'no bloomin' 'alf-price for me. Front seat and no favor's my motto.' Of course, I hadn't the least idea what he was drivin' at, 'cept that it seemed to be about a show of some sort he was goin' to. But when you've one of the cranky sort to deal with, 'tain't no manner of use tryin' to make 'im speak out plain. You've just got to 'umour 'im and wait.

"Well, sir, Tom seemed satisfied with my reply, and we walked on together to a piece of buildin'-ground that wasn't yet sold, and was let now and then to caravans and small circus-folk. There was a tent rigged up, and I soon guessed this was the show Tom and me was to patronize; but I was a bit took back when I heard that Tom belonged to the show himself. It took some time to get at the bottom of all that he told me; but in the end, I made out that he was employed as money-taker, and to look after the 'oof and books generally. It seemed a bit staggerin', just at first, to find a poor, barmy cove like Tom with a job like this; but when you come to think of it, it figures out all right. Tom is a first-rate scholar, and a dab at figures, fit, mebbe, to keep the books of a bank. He's as honest as a sheep-dog, as anyone can tell. Also a bit barmy. Well, ain't a barmy scholar better nor a wide-awake whong 'un? Anyhow, that's how the boss of the show 'pears to have worked it out, and I don't see as he was very far wrong.

"I had to wait more than an hour before the show opened, and Tom left me, when the lights began to be lit, to look after his tickets and passes. I asked him to have a drink at a pub across the road, but he rounded on me like an angry dawg. He said pubs was all cellar-flaps to perdition. It struck me as funny to hear Tom Webb say a thing like that, until I remembered he was barmy and didn't know no better. However, we had some coffee at a stall, and he swallowed it as though he was used to it. Ain't it awful, sir, wot a change madness can bring about in a man?"

I could scarcely restrain a laugh at the little newsvendor's quaint appeal. He was himself a sober fellow enough, who looked forward to his glass, at proper intervals, with relish. But, like thousands of his fellows, he had a profound contempt for the rigid teetotaler, and I deemed it no business of mine to discuss the point.

"I have heard of worse than a change from rum to coffee," I replied. "But go on with your yarn."

"Well, sir, not caring much about coffee, myself, at a time when I usually has a 'alf-pint, I went across to the pub, and there, as I expected, I came across some of the show-people. Thinks I to myself, 'Sam Nobbs, you're a bloomin' 'tec, for the present, that's wot you are, an' you've got to go one or two better nor Sherlock Holmes, on this 'ere occasion. And I went 'em, too, sir, for all I was worth.

"I precious soon spotted the boss of the show, a fat, good-natured looking chap, as was standing drinks to a reg'lar crowd of 'em. All his own people, though; and I found out as 'ow he always did it, afore openin', if business was anyways brisk. A rum-looking lot they was, too, mostly wrapped up in rugs or great-coats for to hide the fleshlings they showed in. And that jolly, sir, it did one good to listen to 'em. Of course, as it was my game to get in with 'em, I watched my chance, and asked the clown to have a drink.

"'Right you are!' says he. 'Make it a pint, and my pal here will go halves, eh, Dicky? Dicky's our Strong Man, you know.'

"At first I thought he was joking, because the blanket-covered cove beside him was barely five feet high, and I laughed. So did the little 'un.

"'Wot' this hold?' he asked, holding up a quart-pewter.

"'A quart,' says I.

"'Bet you a bob it won't,' says he.

"'Done,' says I, wondering where the bob came in.

"He linked his two hands around the pewter, and, a moment later, handed a flattened-out piece of metal to the barman.

"'You've got to get a quart into that, Jimmy!' he cried, shaking with laughter.

"'Wot are yer givin' us?' said the barman, pretendin' to be out of the 'know.' 'How did this happen?'

"'Can't say for sartin', answers the little Strong Man, 'but I rather think the—Stout Lady sat on it by mistake!'

"'Put-up job, sir? Well, I suppose it was, and had been worked on lots of other besides me. But I didn't see it in that way at the time, and I larfed fit to kill myself. After all, it only cost me the price of the beer, for either the Strong Man or the publican stood the racket of the pewter. The Stout Lady chipped in for a three of gin cold, though, before the boss took 'em all across the road to give the show. I went with them, and might easily have seen the performance free, if I'd wanted to. The boss invited me, and the Strong Man threatened to take me under his arm. But thar warn't no Sherlock Holmes about that, and so I pays my bob to Tom Webb and sails into my front seat, 'long with all the 'Amsted Road toffs. I wished I had on my spotted red tie and fancy veskit, but, still, I reckon I held my own pretty middlin'. They ain't no class down that way.

"I kept on tellin' myself I warn't there to see the show, only, but for all that, I couldn't help enjoying some of the turns. However, as you'll see 'em for yourself presently, there ain't no occasion for me to tell you about 'em—except just one thing. That little Strong Man fairly Fetched me, perhaps, 'cos I ain't built that way myself. He's only a little 'un, as I've told you, sir, but he's as strong as a cart-horse. And, wot's more, he's a great pal of Tom Webb's."

"Indeed? That redoubles my interest in him, Sam."

"Well, it's so, Mr. Weston. After the show was over, he waited ever so long for Tom (who was delayed somehow by his accounts), and they went off home together. From what I heard from some of the others, I think the Strong Man has a crippled brother, who is also a bit dotty, and that's why he and Tom are such pals."

"Did you have any further conversation with Tom himself?"

"Very little, sir. I couldn't get sight of him until just before he went off with the Strong Man, who gave me a pretty broad hint not to foller 'em home. I wanted to, but somehow I didn't care about risking a row with a chap who juggles with hundred-weights and breaks horse shoes in his fingers. So, with just a few words to Tom, that I thought might jog his dead-and-gone memory to life again if he thought them over, I wished 'em good-night, and promised to bring a pal or two to see the show some other night.

"'You'll have to hurry up, then,' says the Strong Man. 'We're off in three day's' time.' From which I reckon to-night's about the last time they'll show in Hampstead Road. I don't know as I've anything more to tell you, sir."

"Very good, Sam," I remarked. "I think you've done your work smartly and well. All you've got to do now is to contrive some sort of introduction for me to your Strong Man, and leave me to manage the rest. Remain with me until I give you a hint to go, but, as soon as I do, clear out at once. Do you understand?"

"I'm fly, sir," was the reply. "I'm glad to make the running, and drop out when we gets into the straight, leavin' you to finish alone—Right you are sir!"

CHAPTER XVII.

The Strong Man at Home.

Following his previous plan, the little newsvendor took me first of all into the public house, where, however, on this occasion, only four or five of the show people were assembled. One I at once identified as the Strong Man, from his quaint build, while another proved to be the "boss" himself. They both greeted Sam cheerfully, and received me affably as a prospective patron of the entertainment. Nor had they any hesitation in accepting an invitation to join us in liquid refreshment, and we soon became quite friendly. I kept the conversation chiefly upon the topics most likely to interest them until I, so to speak, forced the card I wished upon the owner of the show. "Excuse me, sir," he said, "but are you in the 'pro' yourself?"

"No, not in the 'pro,' but I am a professional man for all that," I made answer. "I am very fond of not overpretentious entertainments, such as I understand yours to be, as a relaxation from my serious work. But I am making a specialty of cases of mental derangement, or madness, as it is commonly termed. That is, perhaps, why I do so greatly enjoy a little amusement in my leisure time."

Sam looked at me approvingly, in order, doubtless, to let me see he thoroughly appreciated the motive of this mis-statement. The other two exchanged glances which seemed to indicate that the bait had taken.

"Strange thing is madness, sir," re marked the Strong Man, reflectively.

"Very strange," I assented, assuming an impressive, persuasive manner, "A fall, a blow, or even a nervous shock, and the strongest brain may become a wreck. Fortunately, the subject is much better understood now than it used to be, and we are learning to distinguish between downright insanity and merely temporary mental aberration."

I was aiming all this heavy talk at the Strong Man, of course, and the result surpassed my expectations. He seized me by the hand, vowed it was alike an honor and a pleasure to meet a professor of my distinction, and begged me almost plaintively to see him after the conclusion of the performance. To this request, after some affected consideration, I assented, and we all adjourned to the tents.

I would not hear of any free list, but, as I did not wish to run any risk of premature recognition by Tom Webb, I made Sam take the tickets.

"You may clear as soon as you like when the show is over," I told him, slipping a sovereign into his ready hand. "See me in the morning."

"Right y' are, sir!" he replied, with a broad grin. "You've got the inner running, sir, and no mistake!"

A broad, clumsy compliment enough to my strategy, but it pleased me. It seemed to me that yet another veil was about to be removed from the great mystery.

The "turns" of the little show were, naturally not of a very interesting description, and I am afraid that even the Strong Man's feats, which so interested Sam, were not beyond suspicion as to exact avoirdupois. The entertainment had, at least, the merit of brevity. Within an hour it was over.

Sam forthwith disappeared, and I awaited the Strong Man. He did not keep me waiting long, but explained that a dear friend of his, whom he particularly wished me to see, would be delayed perhaps a quarter of an hour. Would I do him the very great favor of accepting a glass of wine pending his friend's arrival? Of course, I assented, and he led me back to the inevitable pub, but, this time into a more select "saloon-bar." Despite my protests, he insisted upon ordering champagne and sixpenny cigars; and when a man of this class does this, it either means that he is going to ask some favor or that he wishes to show off. I lit the proffered cigar, took a sip of the wine, and waited for him to break the ice.

"See here, professor," he began, "I want you to understand from the start that I can't pay any very heavy fee for your advice, but so far as five pounds go, you're welcome to them if you'll only make it plain to me what I ought to do."

"Go on," I said, quietly.

"Well, sir, I've a friend living with me that I've got to be very fond of. Some months ago he met with a bad accident. It nearly cost him his life, but I nursed him through, somehow. I'm afraid he'll be a bit soft to the end of his life, but that ain't the worst of it. Although he's fairly sensible in most things—not exactly 'all there,' but still understanding most of what's going on—he remembers nothing of his past life before the accident came about him, not even his own name."

"That is a by no means uncommon result of severe injury to the brain," I remarked; "and, more often than not, the injured person imagines himself to be somebody else. But, pardon me, are you referring to the friend for whom we are waiting?"

"No," he replied, a little awkwardly, "though, oddly enough, he's a bit crazy, too. A poor, harmless creature, whom I found, more than a month ago, half dead from cold and hunger, on Mitcham Common. I took him home with me, my friend took a fancy to him, and he stayed on with us. He is a first-rate scholar, and the boss finds him A1 at figures and looking after the takings, though he laughed at me at first for giving the poor chap food and shelter. I'd like to know, sir, what the Almighty gave me the strength of two ordinary men for, except to help those who can't help themselves?"

There was not the faintest trace of cant about the little giant. Every word he spoke rang clear and true, and I began to conceive a great respect for him.

"Quite right!" I assented, warmly. "And is the mental state of the second protege as clouded as that of the other?"

(To Be Continued.)

INVENTION OF THE SLED.

In Maderia There Is No Snow, But Natives Use the Sleds.

Dr. Karutz, an original scholar of Lubeck, has just completed some valuable investigations relative to the invention of a sled. After long study, he comes to the conclusion that primitive man probably arrived at the idea of the sled from seeing trees slip and slide down the mountains. In Maderia, for instance, where there is never any snow, sleds drawn by oxen are used just as they are in the Philippines. It is a development from the idea of a man dragging a burden along the ground, when it was too heavy for him to lift it up or carry it. He at first hitched his dog to the deer that he had just killed, and both dragged it to the cave or hut in which they lived. When he saw logs slide down the mountain side, the idea of using smooth logs that would slide over the ground easily when drawn by himself or one of his animals, was the next step in the development of the sled. Primitive peoples, like the Malay of the Philippines and the unprogressive peasants of Maderia still use the sleds invented by their ancestors thousands of years ago.

In countries where ice and snow are found it is probable that the very fact of a man slipping on the ice showed some inventive person that there was an easy way to carry what he wanted to transfer from one place to another, and so, first pulling a branch along over the frozen snow instead of carrying it, he thought of putting other articles on the branch, he trimmed off the twigs and leaves that caught in the stumps and other trees, and the beginning of the sled had come. The joining together of two logs, and shaping them, were only steps in the direction of the earliest method of transportation, which antedated the invention of wheeled vehicles by many centuries.

Were Married in a Tree.

There recently took place in this vicinity a wedding which was as startling as one could wish. It seems that the bride had peculiar notions about weddings, and she had made up her mind to have her marriage different from the ordinary ceremonial.

There were to be no attendants except the maid of honor, the bride's sister, and at the appointed time the family congregated about a large gnarled tree, the oldest growing on the country place where the al fresco service was to take place. At the same time the bride and groom, maid of honor and clergyman came from the house, and when they reached the tree they climbed it, and the ceremony was performed amidst the foliage of the lower branches.—Louisville Courier Journal.

Artful Circumlocution.

"Mister," said Meandering Mike, "if I was ter come up to you and tell you that I needed 15 cents for a drink, what would you say?"

"I'd say you were an impudent hobo."

"Mister, I wouldn't lose your good opinion. I'll keep my secret locked in my breast. I'll shut de skeleton in me closet an' turn de key. An' all I have ter say is dat if you kin see me walkin' alongside of you, proudly suffering in silence, you orter take a day off, an' put it all in in bein' ashamed o' yourself."—Washington Star.

"Yes, Briggs is the best all-round card player in the club."

"Reached the pinochle of fame, has he?"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

FARM AND GARDEN.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof—Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

Insectivorous Plants.

Carnivorous plants are those plants which, not satisfied with the nourishment which the humidity of the soil and the atmosphere afford, seek to obtain a kind of food which nature has, strictly speaking, denied them, says Farmer and Stockbreeder. They are the insect-eating plants. There are now known over 300 plants that feed on insects. They belong to various families, and are found in all parts of the globe. The best known of the insect-eating plants found here, as well as in Lapland and Scandinavia, is the sundew (Drosera); another plant, the so-called fly-trap of Venus (Dionaea), of America, has received the name of Venus for the reason that, like the Goddess of Beauty, it attracts and captivates everything that heedlessly approaches it. At the bottom of the plant the leaves cluster like a rosette; from the center of this arises the flower stalk. The edge of the leaf, which is nearly circular, is overgrown with strong bristles, while its surface is covered with small glands, at either side of which are three long hairs. A fly approaches; carelessly it settles on the leaf, and perchance touches one of the six long hairs; suddenly the leaf folds, the bristles interlace and the insect is caught. Oftentimes the whole tragedy takes only ten seconds. The sensitive hairs have performed their duty; now begins the work of the glands. These discharge a large quantity of a colorless acid slime—the digestive fluid, pepsin. After a lapse of eight or nine days the leaf reopens, the insect has disappeared. If the object caught by the leaf is perhaps a piece of wood, the mistake is soon discovered. It then does not discharge the digestive juice, and after twenty-four hours it again unfolds, ready for another capture. This goes to prove that the Dionaea distinguishes, even better than man, by taste and feeling that which is digestible from that which is not.

Timothy with Winter Wheat.

We have never strongly urged sowing timothy seed with fall wheat, says Wallace's Farmer. For many reasons we would prefer not doing it. While there are locations where it does remarkably well even if sown as late as the last week in September, speaking generally, we believe the better way is to sow the wheat without timothy as near as possible at the right time and on well-prepared soil. Wheat is the main object. Let everything bend to that. Then next spring, if the ground has frozen up wet in the fall, or if there have been abundant snows, sow about the time the snow goes off the ground on the frozen soil. The thawing and freezing will imbed it before there is a high enough temperature to sprout it. Others prefer waiting until toward the last of March after the ground has been thawed out and then frozen, and having the seed ready to sow early in the morning before the wind rises, allowing the seed to fall into the cracks with which the sod will be filled at that prticular time.

If the ground is frozen dry and has been bare of snow during the winter, and therefore dry in the spring, we would wait until it is in good working order, say, in the latitude of central Iowa, from the 5th to the 10th of April; then sow both clover and timothy and harrow with a light, slanting-tooth harrow. This will cover it deep enough and will benefit the wheat by giving it this surface cultivation. It will also conserve the moisture in the soil, and we believe, under most conditions, is after all the best way of securing a stand of timothy and clover with winter wheat. Of course conditions and circumstances differ. We are simply aiming now to give our readers an idea of the end to be accomplished, which is to get the grass seeds deep enough to secure sufficient moisture and heat for germination in the early spring. They will know best how to apply the principles we have stated.

Strawberry Culture.

The main points involved in the successful culture of strawberries given by William Saunders, superintendent of the horticultural grounds at the department at Washington, are the following:

1. Prepare the ground by deep plowing and subsoiling; apply a dressing of rotted manure equal to twenty cords per acre, spread it over the surface, and mix it with the soil by repeated disintegration with a harrow. The best crops are produced on strong, loamy soils. If somewhat clayey, it will be all the better, provided it is drained.
2. Allow the plants plenty of space, the rows thirty inches apart and the plants about half that distance between each other in the rows.
3. Remove all runners as they appear and keep the surface pulverized and clean. If young plants are wanted, keep a portion of the plantation for that purpose.
4. Cover the plants in winter in all localities where the thermometer may run down to 10 degrees Fahrenheit, this to be done after the first frost, using straw, leaves or other similar material as a partial protection.
5. Do not disturb the roots, by any process of cultivation, from the month of September until after the crop has been gathered the following summer.
6. Destroy the plantation after it has produced its second crop, new ones being planted to succeed those that are abandoned.

Wasted Fertilizers.

When fertilizers are used heavily on potatoes, you will usually find, at digging time, a thin gray streak in the drill where the fertilizer was dropped. Farmers look at this, and conclude that the crop was not able to utilize the fertilizer, says H. W. C. in Rural New Yorker. Some of them argue from this that fertilizers are not available, and do not pay. You will notice that, on light soils, most of the stable manure gets out of sight in one season. I do not think this gray streak shows that the fertilizer was wasted. A ton of good fertilizer may contain 20 per cent by weight of available plant food. The remaining 80 per cent is mere bulk for holding the plant food together. Its about like a lemon. You squeeze out the juice, and leave a big, useless bulk of peel. The gray streak in the potato drill is about like the lemon peel, for the crop has sucked out most of the plant food. What there is left of it is safe, for it will feed following crops. But where does the "bulk" of the manure go to? What is it? Water and vegetable matter. During the hot season, the water evaporates, and the vegetable matter slowly burns up. The "bulk" in the fertilizer is mostly indestructible, and it stays in the soil. Dig into the soil where we plowed under a thick mat of Crimson clover, and you can hardly find a trace of it by August.

Ankee Millet.

This variety comes under what is called "barnyard" millet. In the southwestern part of the United States there is a large, thrifty form of barnyard millet, which makes a very fine growth in lowlands and swampy places during the wet season. It is known to the Mohave Indians as "Ankee," and its seed is said to be extensively used by them as food. On the experiment grounds of the department of agriculture at Washington, D. C., Ankee makes a magnificent growth, reaching a height of seven feet or more and maintaining a very characteristic upright habit of growth. It has also made luxuriant growth on the grounds of the station at Knoxville, Tenn., and at the Cornell, New York, Massachusetts (Hatch) and Michigan stations. It is one of the most promising of the inland forms of the species, and should be given an extended trial, particularly in sections where high temperatures prevail. Prof. Brooks of the Massachusetts station considers "Ankee" inferior to Japanese barnyard millet for a fodder crop for that locality on account of its lateness and the coarseness of the forage. Ankee grass is considerably later than the common forms of the species. Prof. Brooks reported that plants from seed sown on May 4 failed to reach maturity, and at the Michigan station the same was found to be true of plants sown on May 20. This variety requires four months or more to mature seed.

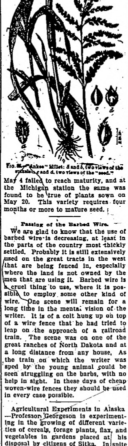

FIG. 88.—"Ankee" Millet: a and b, two views of the spikelet; c and d, two views of the "seed."

Passing of the Barbed Wire.

We are glad to know that the use of barbed wire is decreasing, at least in the parts of the country most thickly settled. Probably it is still extensively used on the great tracts in the west that are being fenced in, especially where the land is not owned by the men that are using it. Barbed wire is a cruel thing to use, where it is possible to employ some other kind of wire. One scene will remain for a long time in the mental vision of the writer. It is of a colt hung up on top of a wire fence that he had tried to leap on the approach of a railroad train. The scene was on one of the great ranches of North Dakota and at a long distance from any house. As the train on which the writer was sped by the young animal could be seen struggling on the barbs, with no help in sight. In these days of cheap woven-wire fences they should be used in every case possible.

Agricultural Experiments in Alaska—Professor Georgeson is experimenting in the growing of different varieties of cereals, forage plants, flax, and vegetables in gardens placed at his disposal by citizens of Sitka. In spite of late planting, oats, barley, potatoes, flax, and a number of different kinds of vegetables of good quality were matured this year. Clover and grasses made an excellent growth. Useful data were also obtained from these experiments regarding the effect of different soil conditions on the germination of seeds and the growth of plants. Experiments similar to those being conducted at Sitka were made at Skagway.

The Best Dust Bath.—During the summer season the best mode of providing a dust bath is to dig out a space in the poultry-yard, three feet square and about six or eight inches deep. When the dirt is dry, sift it back in to the place from which it was taken, and when so doing, sprinkle a little carbolic acid over it, to give it the characteristic odor. After each rain, stir the dirt and make it fine, but it need not again be sifted. The hens will resort to it, and rid themselves of lice. If the poultry house is kept clean, and a dust bath is provided, the hens can keep their bodies free from lice with its use.—Poultry Keeper.

New Plants and Seeds.—Under Secretary Wilson's foreign seed introduction, the Department of Agriculture has received during the year over 2,000 different species and varieties of economic plants and seeds. In many cases, however, the quantities secured were sufficient only for tests to be made by the various state experiment stations and by a few private specialists. If the secretary could be authorized to utilize his entire seed appropriation for this class of seed introduction, the present free seed farce would be transformed into one of the most splendid duties of the government.

A Considerable Difference.

Waglip—What is the difference between a modern manufacturing establishment and a clock?

Tulip—I can't see it.

Waglip—In a clock, when the hands are busy the works strike; but in a factory where the works are busy the hands strike.—Jewelers' Weekly.

Artificial Sight.

An inventor has perfected an electrical appliance, which he claims will enable the blind to see. This will bring much happiness to those who have defective eyesight. Another great discovery which will bring happiness to those whose stomachs have become deranged, is Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It is a certain cure for indigestion, dyspepsia, malaria, fever and ague.

Optimism and Pessimism.

Little Willie—Say, pa, what's the difference between an optimist and a pessimist?

Pa—An optimist enjoys a thing he can't like, and a pessimist likes a thing he can't enjoy.—Chicago Daily News.

"Do Not Burn the Candle At Both Ends."

Don't think you can go on drawing vitality from the blood for nerves, stomach, brain and muscles, without doing something to replace it. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives nerve, mental and digestive strength by enriching and vitalizing the blood. Thus it helps overworked and tired people.

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Never Disappoints

LIQUID HYDROGEN.

Feathers and Corks Sink to the Bottom of This Liquid.

It seems odd enough to speak of a cork sinking, let alone actually seeing it sink. "Light as cork," "it bobbed up like a cork," are familiar expressions to denote lightness.

Of course, a cork will not sink in water, but a celebrated English scientist, Prof. Dewar, of the Royal Institution of Great Britain, has recently made a wonderful liquid, in which a cork goes to the bottom like a stone.

Hydrogen is one of the lightest of gases; it is used for filling balloons, so that they will go upward through the heavier air. Well, Prof. Dewar, by the use of enormous pressure and great cold, forced hydrogen into liquid form, just as steam, when cooled, becomes water.

The same scientist has already astonished the world by making a liquid of air.

Now, you cannot see the gas, hydrogen, any more than you can see the air—it is perfectly colorless. Similarly, the liquid made from hydrogen is colorless. It looks like clear, sparkling, spring water, and it is, by all odds, the lightest liquid known.

A cork dropped into it will instantly sink to the bottom—even a feather will sink through it at once.

Although a liquid, it is not wet, and it is so cold, being over 400 degrees below zero, that it actually causes the air above it to become liquid, and then it freezes this liquid into ice, and the air-ice, being heavier than the liquid hydrogen, it sinks at once to the bottom of a liquid instead of remaining on top. Of course, liquid hydrogen is very costly, because it requires such great pressure and such great cold to produce it, and it cannot be kept long, for it boils away rapidly, although it is kept in a vacuum tube covered with liquid air. And although so cold, and a liquid as well, it will burn fiercely, exactly like hydrogen gas.

Piso's Cure for Consumption has been a God-send to me.—Wm. B. McClellan, Chester, Florida, Sept. 17, 1895.

Far Beyond His Years.

A couple of diminutive newsboys, both white, got into a scrap at the corner of Tenth street and Pennsylvania avenue the other night. They were about of a size, but they weren't evenly matched by a large number of points. The kid that had the science pummelled the other to a standstill, then picked up his papers from where he had thrown them and walked off. The licked boy dug his hands into his pockets and surveyed his papers, lying on the pavement, thoughtfully. A man who had witnessed the scrap walked up and said:

"Well, you got it right that time, my son."

The kid looked up, spat, pulled his hands out of his pockets, picked up his papers and said, philosophically:

"Aw, wot t'ell. It'll be all one in a hundred years."

Then he plodded on like a little man, ready to take up the white man's burden all over again.—Washington Post.

Behind Their Backs.

"You have moved three times this winter?"

"Yes," answered young Mrs. Torkins, with a sigh. "It was a dreadful lot of work, but we had to do it. We have had so much trouble with servants. When I discharged them they got angry, and when Charley discharged them they just laughed. So the only thing to do was to wait until their afternoons out and move to another neighborhood."—Washington Star.

Britain's Coast Guard.

Once every twenty-four hours, the year round, coast guardsmen complete a circuit of the British coast, and, being ever wary and ready, the landing of contraband is practically impossible. In the event of Jack seeing smugglers, he would "tap" his bottle of blue lights, and the result of such a signal would be the rallying of all the seamen from the coast guard stations for miles.—Pearson's Magazine.

An Adage Punctured.

"John, when you are very angry, count 100 before you speak."

"Fiddlesticks! When I'm mad I can't count, and I can't speak."—Indianapolis Journal.

A Resemblance.

"Spanish prisoners in the Philippine islands remind me of some base ball players," said Mr. Penn to Mr. Pitt.

"In what way?"

"They are getting their release."—Pittsburg Chronicle-Telegraph.

A Juvenile Diagnosis.

Grandma—And weren't you homesick, Ethel, when you were sailing away on the wide ocean?

Ethel—No, ma'am; I didn't get homesick, but my stomach did.

Quite a Sufficiency.

Waiter—Have a spoon, sir?

Guest—No; I've eaten all I care for, thank you.—Judge.

My Hair Was Coming Out

"About a year ago my hair was coming out very fast. I bought a bottle of Ayer's Hair Vigor to stop this. It not only stopped the falling, but also made my hair grow very rapidly, until now it is 45 inches in length and very thick."—Mrs. A. Boydston, Atchison, Kans., July 25, 1899.

It Feeds the Hair

Have you ever thought why your hair is falling out? It is because you are starving your hair. If this starvation continues your hair will continue to fall.

There is one good hair food. It is Ayer's Hair Vigor. It goes right to the roots of the hair and gives them just the food that they need. The hair stops falling, becomes healthy, and grows thick and long.

Ayer's Hair Vigor will do another thing, also: it always restores color to faded or gray hair.

$1.00 a bottle. All druggists.

Write the Doctor

If you do not obtain all the benefits you desire from the use of the Vigor, write the Doctor about it. He will tell you just the right thing to do, and will send you his book on the Hair and Scalp if you request it. Address,

Dr. J. C. AYER, Lowell, Mass.

Hostile to a War Critic.

A stormy scene occurred recently at High Wycombe, at a meeting held in support of the local war relief fund. Earl Carrington, having moved a resolution expressing appreciation of the devotion of our troops and sympathy with their families at home, Mr. Lazenby Liberty, high sheriff, rose to second it. Mr. Liberty, however, toward the close of his remarks, commenced criticising the authorities, at what he called the ostentatious behavior of the besieged in Kimberley. There was a stormy interruption, and one gentleman was so incensed that he said he would not mind meeting the speaker with a rifle. The proceedings became suddenly calmer when the high sheriff moderated his remarks, and the resolution was carried with enthusiasm.—Pall Mall Gazette.

Eminently Satisfactory.

Mrs. Caller—You have had the same physician for a long time, haven't you?

Mrs. Grocerese—Ten years.

Mrs. Caller—He must be very satisfactory?

Mrs. Grocerese—He is; he always takes his pay in groceries from our store.—Detroit Free Press.

YOUR GROCERIES FREE!

Send us 4 cents in stamps for full particulars how to secure, free of expense, one of our $5.00 Combination Boxes of Choice Groceries, consisting of Coffees, Teas, Canned Goods, Soaps, Spices, etc. We guarantee our Groceries to be first-class and high-grade.

Queen City Grocery Co., Austin Minn.

POTATOES $1.20 a Bbl.

Largest Seed POTATO Growers in America. Prices $1.20 & up. Enormous stocks of Grass, Clover and Farm Seeds. Send this notice and 10c for catalog and 11 RARE FARM SEED SAMPLES. CLOVER

JOHN A. SALZER SEED CO., LA CROSSE, WIS.

DR. SETH ARNOLD'S COUGH KILLER

has stood the test of 50 years and is still the Best Cough Remedy Sold. Cures when other remedies fail. Tastes good; children like it. Sold by all druggists—25 cents.

PARALYSIS Locomotor Ataxia conquered at last. Doctors puzzled. Specialists amazed at recovery of patients thought incurable, by DR. CHASE'S BLOOD AND NERVE FOOD. Write me about your case. Advice and proof of cures FREE. DR. CHASE, 224 N. 10th St., PHILADELPHIA, PA

CARTER'S INK

No other ink "just as good." Have you tested it—

DROPSY NEW DISCOVERY; gives quick relief and cures worst cases. Book of testimonials and 10 DAYS' treatment FREE. DR. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box E, Atlanta, Ga.

Wt. 75 pounds. Write for prices. O. H. Hanson - - Litchfield, Minn.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water.

When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.

Great Salt Lake Shrinking.

The reason why the Great Salt Lake in Utah is growing smaller, according to Prof. J. E. Talmage, is that the volume of water from its four tributary rivers is being more or less diverted by irrigation. Prof. Talmage says the water of the lake is growing each year more acrid as it shrinks in size, and he thinks that in another 100 years it will be replaced by a glittering bed of dry salt.—San Francisco Chronicle.

STATE OF OHIO, CITY OF TOLEDO, } ss.
LUCAS COUNTY,

Frank J. Cheney makes oath that he is the senior partner of the firm of F. J. Cheney & Co., doing business in the City of Toledo, County and State aforesaid, and that said firm will pay the sum of ONE HUNDRED DOLLARS for each and every case of Catarrh that cannot be cured by the use of Hall's Catarrh Cure.

FRANK J. CHENEY.

Sworn to before me and subscribed in my presence, this 6th day of December, A. D. 1886.

[SEAL.] A. W. GLEASON, Notary Public.

Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Toledo, O.

Sold by Druggists, 75c.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

A SOAPLESS COUNTRY.

People of India Use Only an Ounce Each Year.

In spite of British rule, India is virtually a soapless country. Throughout the villages of Hindustan soap is, indeed, regarded as a natural curiosity, and it is rarely, if ever, kept in stock by the native shopkeeper. In the towns it is now sold, to a certain extent, but how small this is may be gathered from the fact that the yearly consumption of soap in India is about 100,000 hundred weight; that is to say, every 2,500 persons uses on an average only 112 pounds of soap among them; or, in other words, considerably less than an ounce is the average consumption of a person.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

Adam W. Ager, Mapleton, N. D., mouse trap; George S. Bowers, Spring Grove, Minn., acetylene generator; Salmon A. Buell, Minneapolis, Minn., adjustable perpetual calendar; Johnston Mealy, Howard Lake, Minn., thill coupling; Peter Nicolay, Minneapolis, Minn., shovel; Herman A. Steeck, Winona, Minn., safety end-board lock; Henry A. Thexton, St. Thomas, N. D., self-inking stamp; William E. White, Cambridge, Minn., straw carrier.

Merwin, Lothrop & Johnson, Patent Attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul.

Read the Advertisements.

You will enjoy this publication much better if you will get into the habit of reading the advertisements; they will afford a most amusing study, and will put you in the way of getting some excellent bargains. Our advertisers are reliable; they send what they advertise.

Dropsy treated free by Dr. H. H. Green's Sons, of Atlanta, Ga. The greatest dropsy specialists in the world. Read their advertisement in another column of this paper.

Effect of Prosperity.

Tourist—I understand prosperity has made Kansas farmers forget free silver.

Kansas Farmer—O, land! Yes! What us farmers is mostly disruptin' 'bout now is whuther a cyclone suller d'oughter be built in the Queen Anne or th' c'lonial style.—Detroit Journal.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.
For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

Passing It On.

"The Buddhists have a fine idea concerning gifts."

"What is it?"

"Why, if I give Jones an umbrella I have paid Brown for the box of cigars he gave me."—Indianapolis Journal.

Rosenbaum—Mein gracious, yust dink of der vedding expenses dot I saved py id!

Baker's Chocolate and Cocoa.
Look for the picture of "La Belle Chocolatiere." It is on every genuine package.

An Easy One.

"What is a lake?" asked the teacher.

A bright little boy raised his hand.

"Well, Mikey, what is it?"

"Sure, it's a hole in th' tay kittle, mum."—Ohio State Journal.

THE GRIP CURE THAT DOES CURE.
Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets removes the cause that produces La Grippe. E. W. Grove's signature is on each box. 25c.

In Luck.

"It's fun being married. My wife is coming to me all the time and asking for money."

"You're lucky. I have to ask my wife always for money when I want any."—Heltere Welt.

WANTED to purchase at a bargain a piece of Minnesota or North Dakota wild land in neighborhood where 1899 crops were good. Emile Constant, Globe, Hotel St. Paul, Minn.

The Reason.

Cohen—You say dat you vanted Goldstein to marry your daughter? Den vy did you opject undt force dem to elope?

An Exception.

Cholly—I haven't shot a thing this season. Have you?

Algy—Nothing—er—that is, excepting my dawg, doncherknow?

FITS Permanently Cured. No fits or nervousness after first day's use of Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer. Send for FREE $2.00 trial bottle and treatise. Dr. R. H. Kline, Ltd., 931 Arch St., Philadelphia, Pa.

In nine cases out of a possible ten a wife has perfect confidence in her husband after marriage—for about twenty-four hours.

Seven days make one week—but it often takes more to make one strong.

Many a stage-struck person blames it all on the omnibus driver.

40 YEARS OF SUFFERING!

NEURALGIA Gentlemen: I have been sending to you for your "5 DROPS" for several parties who have used it and who say it is the best they ever used. One old lady has had NEURALGIA FOR 40 YEARS, has tried nearly everything she could hear of without relief until she commenced using "5 DROPS" and now she is not troubled with the disease. Each one that has used it says it is the best remedy, and all join in praise of "5 DROPS." For the enclosed money please send me three large bottles of "5 DROPS," one package of Pills and one Plaster, and hurry them forward without delay.

Jan. 11, 1900. SAMUEL SPEEGLE, Falkville, Ala

RHEUMATISM Gentlemen: My mother, Mrs. Eliza Austin, of Fremont, Wis., has been almost an invalid for years with RHEUMATISM and for the past five years has not been able to walk 40 rods until she began to use "5 DROPS," about two months ago. She now walks a mile at a time and is doing all her own work in the house, a thing she has not done for years. You are at liberty to publish this testimonial, with my name and also my mother's. Dec. 27, 1899. MRS. C. H. PURDY, Waupaca, Wis.

5 DROPS [TRADE MARK.] Is the most powerful specific known. Free from opiates and perfectly harmless. It gives almost instantaneous relief, and is a positive cure for Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, Backache, Asthma, Hay Fever, Catarrh, La Grippe, Croup, Sleeplessness, Nervousness, Nervous and Neuralgic Headaches, Earache, Toothache, Heart Weakness, Dropsy, Malaria, Creeping Numbness, etc., etc.

30 DAYS to enable sufferers to give "5 DROPS" at least a trial, we will send a 25c sample bottle, prepaid by mail for 10c. A sample bottle will convince you. Also, large bottles (300 doses) $1.00, 6 bottles for $5. Sold by us and agents. AGENTS WANTED in New Territory. Write us to-day.

SWANSON RHEUMATIC CURE CO., 160 to 164 Lake St., CHICAGO, ILL.

BRITON AND THE BOER

MOUNTAIN WALLS PROTECT THE BURGHERS.

The Natural Defenses of the Transvaal Would Test the Genius of the Greatest Commander That Ever Drew a Sword.

No correct understanding of the task or position of the English army in South Africa can be had without a knowledge of the geography and topography of the Transvaal and Orange Free State—especially of the border lines of these two republics. The fighting and tactics of the last two months have been about Ladysmith, Mafeking, Kimberley, Modder river, Tugela river, Colesburg, Belmont and Stormberg.

The boundaries of the Transvaal and the Orange Free State, which the English must cross before they can conquer, are formed by the Mkusi, Umwotosi and Tugela rivers, the Kathlamba or Drakenberg mountains, and the Modder and Orange rivers. At every point on the southern, southeastern and southwestern approaches to the republic there is either a river to be crossed, an open plateau to be marched over or a plateau and mountain wall to be scaled. The Mkusi, Umwotosi and Tugela rivers sweep across the southeastern border of the Transvaal, the Tugela forming a barrier to the approach to Ladysmith, Dundee and Majuba hill. The mountain elevations here range from 1,200 feet above the level of the sea to more than 11,000 feet. This is in Natal land, where British occupy the plain approaches and the Boers the mountain heights. The Tugela is deep, swift, has slippery banks and is exposed to gun fire from the hill and mountain crests. In this neighborhood and also at Colenso, on the Tugela, there are peaks like Mount Aux Gources, 11,158 feet in height; Mount Melanie, 7,900 feet in height; Majuba, 7,600 feet; Champagne Castle, 10,357 feet, and Giant's Castle, 9,657 feet. The Boers are familiar with every trail of the ranges, have excellent artillery at the passes, and guns that command fordable places in the streams. Topographically the English are in the position of a man who must fight uphill over 150 miles before he passes Majuba and enters the Transvaal valleys. His opponent may always fire down upon him. The Drakenberg range forms part of the southern boundary of the Transvaal, and nearly all of the eastern boundary of the Orange Free State. At Buttha Buthe, Ladybrand, Thlotsi, Ongeluks Nek and Zastron the elevations run from 1,000 to 8,000 feet, while the passes are few, the streams usually swollen with floods, and the trails obscure and misleading. It is evident that the English are without mountain guides and cannot rely on the loyalty of the Natal Dutch to give them accurate information. In the Colesberg district, due south of the Orange Free State, the Orange river forms a barrier of no small size. The stream is one of the noble South African waterways, often impassable, and well guarded on the Boer side by plateaus and small ranges a second obstacle to the approach to der river breaks away from the Orange south of Kimberley and forms a second obstacle to the approach to the diamond fields. About the Modder river and Kimberley the elevations reach a height of 1,000 feet and are controlled by the Boers. The English column of Gen. Buller is at Tugela river; Methuen is at Modder river, White is cooped up in Ladysmith, Gatacre is at Sterkstroom, and Kimberley is besieged. Topographically Buller has a climb before him averaging 5,000 feet; Methuen's climb will average 2,500 feet; White has Boer guns looking down on him from an elevation of 500 feet, and Kimberley is commanded by guns from 600 to 700 feet above its plane.

If this outer prospect is not inviting the inner topographical formation of the Transvaal is less so. The inner rim is known as the Roggeveld, Nieuweveld and Quathalamba ranges. The highest point is the Mauchberg, 8,725 feet. There are several ridges known as Verzamelburg, Randberg, Slaugapiesberg and Komatiberg. These fall precipitously eastward toward the Licomba range, which maintains a mean elevation of 2,000 feet.

NO SHOW FOR WRITERS.

The Outsiders Have Invaded Every Field Except Fiction.

The professional writing man should devote his efforts exclusively to fiction. In that field, if he can write at all, he need fear no rivalry. Why should he try to write of finance, when such masters as Henry Clews and Lyman J. Gage are offering their services at so much a column? Why write of lawmaking, when Tom Reed, ex-speaker, can be had for moderate space rates? Why fool with an article on iron and steel when Andrew Carnegie can be persuaded at any time to dictate a page on giant industries? Why write of shipping when there is a retired Mahan with rolls of manuscript? Why write of electricity when there is a Tesla to exploit himself and Edison? Why write of medicine and surgery when there are Shradys in the field. There is no field of effort or invention that is not covered in magazine journalism today by authorities born to it. The whole world wants to write. It seems to be the national and international craze of the century. If I wanted an article on railroad reorganization I would give J. Pierpont Morgan $50,000 to write it. It would carry more weight than all the combined efforts of all the ablest professional writers, cost less in the end, and return a handsome profit. If I could persuade James R. Keene to write his views on stock speculation and how to make a bear raid successful I could make $100,000 in a year by the sale of such opinion. If Russell Sage were to open his heart and tell us by the column how to lend money in Wall street at 40 per cent a day, more or less, what would it be worth to a newspaper?—New York Press.

Playing the Game Correctly.

Mamma—Ethel, what do you mean by shouting in that disgraceful fashion? See how quiet Willie is. Ethel—Of course he's quiet; that's our game. He's papa coming home late, and I'm you.—Stray Stories.

TO KNOW DEADLY SNAKES.

Signs by Which Their Character May Be Recognized.

To distinguish between venomous and harmless snakes is easy in practice, but it is difficult to explain in words alone, as there is no one external characteristic which distinguishes them. It is rather a peculiar varying union of many separate marks that brands the dangerous reptile. Generally speaking, all snakes may be divided into two great classes—those which have the head covered with numerous small scales and those which have it covered with large, regularly fitted plates. Leaving out the elipidae and the poisonous sea of snakes, with which the hunter will have nothing to do, all snakes with small head scales move about by night, and those with large plates on the head by day. This may be known by their eyes, for the first have vertical pupils like the cat's, while those of the latter are generally circular in form. The long, active day snakes, gliding about from bush to bush, or hurriedly taking refuge beneath some protruding rock or tree stump, is harmless. Even should he lie coiled in the sunshine, he will flee from approaching danger. But a serpent nicely coiled in some secluded nook, which instead of fleeing gathers himself closer together, is most probably dangerous, particularly if he be more or less marked with a suggestion of irregular cross bars or whitish or dirty yellow and darker brown or blackish. This is the characteristic coloring of our dangerous snakes, the rattler, the copperhead and the moccasin. The following points embrace all the peculiarities of our American vipers, and the last two are especially noteworthy as the crowning proofs of venom: 1. Moving about at dusk or by night, generally on the ground, and very rarely ascending trees or bushes. 2. Seldom flying in alarm, but rather coiling for defense. 3. Colors generally subdued in tint, with a semblance of irregular crossbars of lighter and darker shades. 4. Tail short, body stout, neck thin, head flat and very broad, especially behind. 5. Scales keeled—i. e., each scale has a ridge down the middle, which gives the skin a rough appearance like a rasp. 6. Head covered with small scales, sometimes larger over the eyes or nose. 7. Eyes with vertical pupils like a cat's. 8. Two pits or holes between the eyes and nose, suggesting four nostrils. 9. Two long, curved, perforated fangs in the upper jaw just in front of the eye, one on either side, and so hinged that they lie backward, hidden from view in a membranous sheath, but erectile at will. Some of the first seven peculiarities may be found in harmless snakes, but it is only in the viper that they are united.—Outing.

CORK LEG KEPT HIM AFLOAT.

Reason Why a Would-Be Suicide Failed to Drown Himself.

Rather than live in Rochester, N. Y., Patrick Walsh decided to die in New York. He arrived in this city with the sole idea of taking his life. His mistake in the method he chose for his taking off lies in his failure to take stock in the unsinkable qualities of cork. Mr. Walsh was equipped with a cork leg and that buoyant adjunct prevented him from drowning himself. He boarded the Musconetcons at Christopher street. In the middle of the river Walsh threw himself overboard. But he had forgotten the buoyancy that lies in a cork leg. The deck hands, satiated with recent suicides, angrily lowered the ladder used in such cases. When the boat reached Walsh he capsized, but the cork leg protruded high above the waves. Mr. Walsh's countenance had disappeared, of course, but showed up again long enough to shout: "I don't want to d——" Before he could finish, the cork leg again assumed supremacy and shut off his further remarks. When the boat reached Walsh it was in time for the oarsmen to see his face once more and to hear him splutter: "Ach! Ach! I want to die——," but the rest was lost, owing to the floating power of the not-to-be-drowned cork leg. "Pull him in," said the disgusted officer in charge of the boat; and two boat hooks, placed where they would do the most good, restored Walsh's equilibrium physically, if not mentally. Walsh swore that he was in earnest all the way to the Jersey shore, and even on his journey to St. Hary's hospital, in Hoboken, where he was taken. Pneumonia has developed, and the physicians say that, while Walsh is unable to talk, he often asks for a pencil and pad, on which he feebly traces, "D—n that leg."—New York Press.

New Method of Growing Oranges.

What, in the opinion of leading orange-growers, is destined to revolutionize the methods of growing that fruit has been introduced and has successfully passed the stage of experimentation in Riverside county, California. This is the roofing over of entire orchards, placing a latticed ceiling above the trees, converting acres and acres of ground into a continuous enclosure, making of the area a perfectly equable hothouse. This method was introduced and is employed upon the largest scale by the Everest ranch, near Arlington place, in Riverside county, and the success of the venture has caused several other ranchers to cover portions of their orchards, with intention presently to extend the same. On the Everest place there are seventeen acres under cover, and the present winter is the second which the trees have experienced thus protected. The results of the undertaking were carefully watched, and quite definite appreciation of the service of a cover is now in hand.

Dreams.

Mr. Tucker—"I think I shall give up my business, my dear. I might as well have some good out of my money."

Mrs. Tucker—"Oh, not yet, Samuel! But when one of us dies I shall give up housekeeping and see a little of the world."—Brooklyn Life.

Considerate of Others' Feelings.

Ada—It is very beautiful, but I don't think you should accept so many presents from him. Edith—Well, until he offers himself, I prefer not to hurt his feelings.—Brooklyn Life.

Opinions Differ.

A gigantic soldier of the Guards was brought before his commanding officer one morning, charged with being disorderly in the public streets.

"Who makes the charge?" asked the colonel.

"I do, sir," replied a sergeant. "I was in charge of the town patrol last night, when I heard some one bellowing and roaring songs about three hundred yards away. I went to the spot and saw the prisoner, Private Jones, singing at the top of his voice."

"And you could hear him three hundred yards away?"

"Yes, sir."

"What have you to say, Private Jones?"

"Please, sir," replied Private Jones, "I was only 'umming."—Answers.

A Practical Question.

G. R. Glenn, superintendent of public instruction of the State of Georgia, tells this story:

One day he had explained the powers of the X-ray machine to a gathering of darkies who had assembled at a school commencement. After the exercises were over a negro called him aside, and wanted to know if he was in earnest about the machine. Mr. Glenn assured him that he was.

"Boss, I wants ter ax you ef er nigger et chicken kin you look in him an' see chicken?"

"Why, yes, Ephraim," said Mr. Glenn.

"Well, boss, I wants ter ax you one mo' question. Kin you look in dat nigger an' tell whar dat chicken cum from?"—Memphis Scimitar.

Philadelphia Proverbs.

Proverbs of a prominent Philadelphian:

"A crying evil you only aggravate by putting down—a native of all countries who speaks the language of none.

"A pleasure to two, a nuisance to everybody else, and a necessity to all the world—The morning caller, noonday crawler and midnight bawler.

"A troublesome compendium of great possibilities—a bold asserter of the rights of free speech.

"The sapling of the tree from which will be built the bulwarks of our nation's greatness—a baby."—Philadelphia Call.

Suburban Life.

Mr. Suburb—Good-morning, Mr. De Villa. I wish to ask a favor of you.

Mr. De Villa (wealthy resident)—Certainly, Mr. Suburb. What is it?

Mr. Suburb—I have called to ask you to send your carriage and coachman to meet me at the 6 o'clock train this afternoon, and I would like the coachman to be in his finest livery, and I hope he'll use the silver-plated harness.

Mr. De Villa—Eh?

Mr. Suburb—Yes; I will arrive on that train with a new servant girl! and I would like to make a good impression.—New York Weekly.

Youthful Patriotism.

There is a small boy at Islington whose father is a Frenchman, but who himself was born in England and has lived there all his life. Consequently, he considers himself to be an Englishman. He has recently gone to school, and has been taking his first lessons in English history. The other night he looked up from his book, musingly, and said to his father:

"Papa, we licked you awfully at the battle of Waterloo, didn't we?"

The Characteristics.

Stranger—Are you a resident of this town?

Bill Summers—Well, I've lived here long enough to rip the town board up the back an' kick ag'in the taxes—Indianapolis Sun.

Be just and fear not; let all the ends thou aimest at be thy country's, thy God and truths.—Shakespeare.

Don't gouge other people while carving out your fortune.

Facts For Sick Women

First—the medicine that holds the record for the largest number of absolute Cures of female Ills is Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Second—Mrs. Pinkham can show by her letter files in Lynn that a million women have been restored to health by her medicine and advice.

Third—All letters to Mrs. Pinkham are received, opened, read and answered by women only. This fact is certified to by the mayor and postmaster of Lynn and others of Mrs. Pinkham's own city. Write for free book containing these certificates.

Every ailing woman is invited to write to Mrs. Pinkham and get her advice free of charge.

Lydia E. Pinkham Med. Co., Lynn, Mass.

FOR 14 CENTS
We wish to gain this year 200,000 new customers, and hence offer
1 Pkg. City Garden Beet, 10c
1 Pkg. Earl'st Emerald Cucumber 15c
1 " La Crosse Market Lettuce, 15c
1 " Strawberry Melon, 15c
1 " 13 Day Radish, 10c
1 " Early Ripe Cabbage, 10c
1 " Early Dinner Onion, 10c
3 " Brilliant Flower Seeds, 15c
Worth $1.00, for 14 cents. $1.00
Above 10 Pkgs. worth $1.00, we will mail you free, together with our great Catalog, telling all about SALZER'S MILLION DOLLAR POTATO upon receipt of this notice & 14c. stamps. We invite your trade, and know when you once try Salzer's seeds you will never do without. $400 Prizes on Salzer's 1900 earliest Tomato Giant on earth.
JOHN A. SALZER SEED CO., LA CROSSE, WIS.

When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.

PISO'S CURE FOR
CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS.
Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists.
CONSUMPTION
25 CTS

The Whistler and His Load.

A young business man says he was taking a stroll on a recent Sunday, when he heard somebody gaily whistling. It was on a quiet East End street, and he was astonished at the careless levity of the act.

Then he recognized the tune.

It was "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town To-night."

He turned around and looked for the whistler.

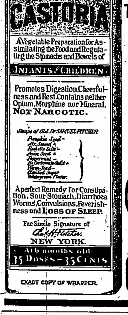
It was a young fellow driving an undertaker's wagon, and he had a load.

And the observer couldn't help but think it was decidedly suggestive.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

MILLIONS of acres of choice agricultural LANDS now opened for settlement in Western Canada. Here is grown the celebrated No. 1 HARD WHEAT, which brings the highest price in the markets of the world; thousands of cattle are fattened for market without being fed grain and without a day's shelter. Send for information and secure a free home in Western Canada. Write the Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, or address the undersigned, who will mail you atlases, pamphlets, etc., free of cost. Ben Davies, 154 East Third St., St. Paul, or T. O. Currie, Stevens Point, Wis.

N. W. N. U. —No. 5.— 1900.



900 DROPS
CASTORIA
A Vegetable Preparation for Assimilating the Food and Regulating the Stomachs and Bowels of INFANTS & CHILDREN
Promotes Digestion, Cheerfulness and Rest. Contains neither Opium, Morphine nor Mineral. NOT NARCOTIC.
Recipe of Old Dr SAMUEL PITCHER
Pumpkin Seed—
Alx. Senna—
Rochelle Salts—
Anise Seed—
Peppermint—
Bi Carbonate Soda—
Worm Seed—
Clarified Sugar—
Wintergreen Flavor.
A perfect Remedy for Constipation, Sour Stomach, Diarrhoea, Worms, Convulsions, Feverishness and LOSS OF SLEEP.
Fac Simile Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
NEW YORK.
At 6 months old
35 DOSES—35 CENTS
EXACT COPY OF WRAPPER.

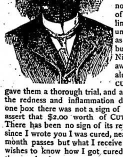
CASTORIA
For Infants and Children.
The Kind You Have Always Bought
Bears the Signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.
In Use For Over Thirty Years
CASTORIA
THE CENTAUR COMPANY, NEW YORK CITY.

Wild With ECZEMA

Hands and Limbs Covered with Blisters and Great Red Blotches. Scratched Until Almost Wild. Burned Like Fire. Sleep Impossible. CUTICURA Remedies Bring Speedy Relief and a Permanent Cure at a Cost of Only $2.

I was a sufferer for eight years from that most distressing of all diseases, Eczema. I tried some of the best physicians in the country, but they did me little good. The palms of my hands were covered and would become inflamed; little white blisters at first would appear, then they would peel off, leaving a red, smooth surface which would burn like fire and itch; well, there is no name for it. On the inside of the upper part of both my limbs great red blotches, not unlike hives, would appear, and as soon as I became warm the burning and itching would begin. Night after night I would lie awake all night and scratch and almost go wild. I heard of CUTICURA REMEDIES, got them and gave them a thorough trial, and after a few applications I noticed the redness and inflammation disappear. Before I had used one box there was not a sign of Eczema left. I can truthfully assert that $2.00 worth of CUTICURA REMEDIES cured me. There has been no sign of its return anywhere upon my body since I wrote you I was cured, nearly four years ago. Hardly a month passes but what I receive a letter or some one calls and wishes to know how I got cured, if I had Eczema bad, and if the cure has been permanent, etc., etc. I always take pleasure in enlightening them the best I can.

JOHN D. PORTE, Pittsburg, March 1, 1899.
Of JOHN D. PORTE & Co., Real Estate and Insurance,
428 Fourth Avenue, Pittsburg, Pa.



The agonizing itching and burning of the skin, as in eczema, the frightful scaling, as in psoriasis; the loss of hair and crusting of the scalp, as in scalled head; the facial disfigurement, as in pimples and ringworm, the awful suffering of infants and the anxiety of worn-out parents, as in milk crust, tetter, and salt rheum—all demand a remedy of almost superhuman virtues to successfully cope with them. That

Cuticura

Remedies are such stands proven beyond all doubt. No statement is made regarding them that is not justified by the strongest evidence. The purity and sweetness, the power to afford immediate relief, the certainty of speedy and permanent cure, the absolute safety and great economy, have made them the standard skin cures and humor remedies of the civilized world. The treatment is simple, direct, agreeable, and economical, and is adapted to the youngest infant as well as adults of every age. Bathe the affected parts with hot water and CUTICURA SOAP to cleanse the surface of crusts and scales, and soften the thickened cuticle. Dry, without hard rubbing, and apply CUTICURA Ointment freely, to allay itching, irritation, and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and lastly take CUTICURA RESOLVENT to cool and cleanse the blood. This sweet and wholesome treatment affords instant relief, permits rest and sleep in the severest forms of eczema and other itching, burning, and scaly humors of the skin, scalp, and blood, and points to a speedy, permanent, and economical cure when all other remedies and even the best physicians fail. CUTICURA THE SET, price $1.25; or, CUTICURA SOAP, 25c., CUTICURA OINTMENT, 50c., CUTICURA RESOLVENT, 50c., sold throughout the world. "How to Cure Eczema," free of the Sole Props., POTTER DRUG AND CHEM. CORP., Boston, Mass.

MILLIONS OF MOTHERS

Use CUTICURA SOAP exclusively for baby's skin, scalp, and hair. It is not only the purest, sweetest, and most refreshing of nursery soaps, but it contains delicate emollient properties, obtained from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, which preserve, purify, and beautify the skin, scalp, and hair, and prevent simple skin blemishes from becoming serious. For distressing heat rashes, chafings, inflammations, and eruptions, for crusted, itching irritations of the scalp, with dry, thin, and falling hair, for red, rough hands, and shapeless nails, and simple infantile humors, it is absolutely indispensable.

BULLER'S ADVANCE

THIRD DESPERATE ATTEMPT TO RELIEVE LADYSMITH.

No Definite News of Buller's Movements Will Be Allowed to Get Through Until Ladysmith Is Relieved — Messages Freely Exchanged Between Buller and White—War Office Refuses to Confirm the Reports Regarding the British Advance—Buller's Guns Are Heard in Ladysmith.

Durban, Feb. 6.—Gen. Buller crossed the Tugela river Friday night and is marching on Ladysmith. No definite news will be permitted to go out until Ladysmith is reached.

-o-

London, Feb. 6.—A special dispatch from Durban, dated Sunday, and referring to Gen. Buller crossing the Tugela and advance upon Ladysmith, says: "It is probable Gen. Buller crossed at a spot above Trichard's drift, and that, leaving the enemy to the right, he is marching to Acton Homes, whence the road to Ladysmith runs almost due east through a fairly open country. It is expected here that he will reach Ladysmith to-night."

Communicating With Ladysmith.

London, Feb. 6. — The Daily Telegraph has the following dispatch from Spearman's Camp, dated Sunday evening: "Messages are now freely exchanged between the camps of Gen. Buller and Gen. White—by night with calcium lamp, by day with heliograph. The men here are enthusiastic at the prospect of a speedy advance under Gen. Buller's instructions. A very large supply of provisions for the besieged garrison will accompany the relieving force. The British have repaired the bridge over the Tugela at Colenso sufficient for the passage of cavalry."

War Office Holds Back.

London, Feb. 6.—Although there is no actual confirmation of the report that Gen. Buller has recrossed the Tugela in a third desperate attempt to relieve Ladysmith, it is known that the war office has received several South African dispatches which have not yet been published, but if the advance is an actual fact, the secret is being well kept. There are newspaper dispatches in plenty from Spearman Camp up to Sunday, but there is no hint that an advance has begun, and it is assumed in some quarters here that Lord Dundonald's reconnoisance in the direction of Hongorspoort has been the only foundation for the statement that Gen. Buller has started. On the other hand dispatches from Ladysmith rather indicate that the advance is in operation by reporting heavy firing on Friday and Saturday from the direction of Potgieter's drift and Colenso. A dispatch to the Daily Chronicle from Ladysmith, dated yesterday, says: "A report has reached us that one brigade has crossed the Tugela." The reports that the Boers are reconnoitering around Ladysmith are also an indication that preparations are being made or for an attempt to reattack the garrison in anticipation of his advance. The fact, however, that no firing has been reported under yesterday's date, either from Ladysmith or Spearman's Camp, might be interpreted to mean either that the attempt had failed or that Gen. Buller had merely made a demonstration on Friday or Saturday. Various rumors are current. One says that Gen. Buller is again attacking Spion pop from the side of Gen. Lyttleton's camp. Another is that he received information from the owner of Spion Kop farm and crossed by fords farther west than Trichard's drift. The military authorities in London think it more likely that the crossing would be made eastward of Zwart Kop. Speculation, however, is useless. The public can only wait in patience, and it may also be said in trepidation. Nor is the feeling of anxiety much relieved by the possibility that Gen. Buller has been considerably reinforced since the disaster at Spion Kop.

To Resist Gen. Buller

Reach Ladysmith This Week.

London, Feb. 6. — The Pietermaritzburg correspondent of the Daily Mail, telegraphing yesterday, says: "Gen. Buller has undoubtedly secured the road to Ladysmith and should reach his objective this week. It is believed here that the object of the Boers in occupying Ngutu, Zululand, is to secure the road from Dundee to Vryheid in case of retreat.

"I learn from a reliable source that Gen. Joubert was seriously injured by a shell in the fight at Willow Grange and that he never will be able to command again on horseback. My informant says that he has, in fact, retired from the field. The Boers admit that attack on Ladysmith was a serious blunder and would not have occurred if Gen. Joubert had been in command. Gen. Lucas Meyer played the coward at Talana and sheltered himself in a Red Cross wagon, shamming sickness. He has been unable to face the Boers since and they threaten to shoot him. The Boers say Great Britain made a mistake in not sending Gen. Sir Evelyn Wood. I understand they have still thousands of bags of flour stored in reserve at Delagoa Bay."

Boers Cleared Out.

Rensberg, Feb. 6.—The New Zealanders, Remington's guides and a squadron of Life guards made a sweep of several miles along the hills adjacent to the British right flank. One kopje, occupied by Boers was rushed, the Boers clearing out after a slack resistance. One New Zealander was wounded. Small parties in the distance retreated whenever the British force appears.

Ladysmith Hears Buller's Guns.

Ladysmith, Feb. 6.—By heliograph, via Signal Hill. — Gen. Buller's guns have been heard again. Otherwise it is very quiet. We are awaiting further news of his progress. There have been no further developments here. Very few Boers remain northeast of the camp. The main body is concentrated southeast. The health of the garrison is improved.

Boers' Wild Tale.

Modder River, Feb. 6.—The landrost at New Beuch read publicly on Jan. 24 the following proclamation which he said he had just received: "Lord Roberts is a prisoner. Gen. Buller is killed; 9,000 British have been killed and 7,000 taken prisoners. The British also lost eight guns last Saturday.

Kaiser Is Disappointed.

Berlin—It is gossiped in court circles that the emperor is greatly disappointed by the incapacity of the British commanders in South Africa, expressing amazement over their ignorance of Natal geography.

Kaiser's Tutor In Disgrace.

Berlin—Ex-Capt. Sidney Odenna, the emperor's tutor, who escaped a prison sentence for various frauds by shamming insanity, is again sought by the police.

KOBBE TAKES MORE TOWNS.

Success in Opening the Hemp Ports of Philippines Reported by Gen. Otis.

Manila, Feb. 6. — Brig. Gen. Kobbe has occupied the isuands of Samar and Leyte. In the fight at Tacloban ten insurgents were killed and the Americans captured five cannon with their artillerymen.

-o-

Washington, Feb. 6.—Gen. Otis' latest report of military operations in the Philippines shows that rapid progress is being made in opening the hemp ports in the islands south of Luzon. Gen. Kobbe, in command of an expedition into the islands of Samar and Leyte, adjoining Luzon on the southeast, reports the capture of three of the most important towns in the islands, and of large quantities of hemp at these points.

BAD NEWS TAKES HER MEMORY.

Girl Learns of Brother's Death in the Philippines, Faints and Her Mind Becomes a Blank.

Columbia, Ind., Feb. 6.—News that her brother, Frank Carr, was killed in the Philippines has made blank the mind of the daughter of John Carr. A newspaper list of casualties of the battle of Jan. 18 came to the notice of the father, who rushed into the house and blurted the news to the daughter, who is eighteen years old and of a nervous temperament. The girl fainted and for five days remained unconscious. When finally she regained consciousness she could recall nothing. Relatives and friends were strangers to her. She knows nothing of the death of her brother and seems hopelessly dazed.

HAVANA DEATH STATISTICS.

Report Compiled by Sanitary Officers Shows Few Deaths From Yellow Fever.

Washington, Feb. 6.—A report on the vital statistics of Havana for the year 1899, compiled by Maj. Davis, chief sanitary officer, shows that in an estimated population of 220,000 there were 3,153 deaths from all causes. Of these 1,163 were from enteritis and 1,307 from tuberculosis. Yellow fever occupies a relatively small position on the list, 103 deaths having resulted from this cause. Eleven deaths were due to leprosy. The number of contagious and infectious diseases reported numbered 6,334. Births numbered 4,667, of which 166 were illegitimate.

SALOON PATRONS IN DISMAY.

Prominent Cincinnati Men to Be Shown Up by Stereopticon as Horrible Examples.

Cincinnati, Ohio, Feb. 6.—For some time work of taking interior photographs of prominent saloons in this city has been secretly progressing, and now the anti-Saloon league announces that it will soon begin exhibiting these views by stereopticon to show the evils of drink. In many of the views the faces of well known citizens are conspicuously shown, and consequently there is considerable dismay.

CHICAGO MEN GET BIG GRANT.

Concessions in Mexico of One Million Acres of Land Fronting on the Gulf.

City of Mexico, Feb. 6.—The government has granted a concession to Chicago capitalists of 1,000,000 acres of land fronting on the Gulf of Mexico and lying in the State of Tamaulipas. The land is said to be rich in minerals and timber, besides encompassing plenty of grazing and agricultural territory. A line of schooners probably will be established with the principal gulf ports.

MAY GIVE UP A THRONE.

Archduke Franz Ferdinand of Austria to Be Succeeded by Archduke Otto.

Berlin, Feb. 6. — The Post prints a telegram from Vienna which asserts that the Archduke Franz Ferdinand married the Comtesse Chotek in January, and will soon renounce his rights of succession to the throne in favor of the Archduke Otto or the latter's twelve-year-old son, Earl Franz Josef.

Saved His Friend's Life.

Rapid City, S. D., Feb. 6. — Frank Pinkerton, the twenty-year-old son of a prominent sawmill owner, died at his father's home fourteen miles west of here as a result of being struck in the abdomen with a piece of lumber whish was thrown from one of the saws. The young man saw the piece of wood coming and he pushed a friend out of the way of the flying missile. He was struck with the wood himself and died in a short time.

Seven Men Badly Burned.

Pittsburg, Feb. 6.—Seven men were badly burned in an explosion at the furnace No. 3 of the Duquesna works of the Carnegie company. The explosion was caused by the fall of a "hang" which compressed the gas, until it burst the furnace, throwing limestone in every direction. No one was fatally injured.

A $400,000 Fire.

Norwich, Conn., Feb. 6. — The factory of the Hopkins & Allen Arms company, a three and a half-story brick structure, was destroyed by fire yesterday, also some adjoining buildings, causing a total loss of $400,000.

Charged With Robbing the Mails.

Chicago, Feb. 6. — Henry Walsh, an old and trusted clerk in charge of the mailing department of the Chicago postoffice, was arrested last night by inspectors, charged with robbing the mails.

Death in a Mine.

Lincoln, Ill., Feb. 6. Saturday evening at the Lincoln coal mine the premature explosion of a blast wrecked two pits and buried several diggers. One man was found dead and another probably fatally injured.

Form an Appendicitis Club.

Cleveland, O.—An Appendicitis club is being organized in Cleveland. Only those who have suffered from appendicitis and have a surgeon's certificate to show they have undergone an operation are eligible to membership.

Death Invades British Peerage.

London—Last year was a bad one for the British peerage. The death list included three dukes, one marquis, five earls, three viscounts and ten barons. Several peerages became extinct.

CONGRESS

RESUME OF THE WEEK'S PROCEEDINGS.

Washington, Jan. 30—Senator Mason of Illinois arose yesterday soon after the senate convened to a question of privilege and sharply attacked the British vice consul at New Orleans because of an interview in which the vice consul had assailed Mr. Mason for the position he had taken in behalf of the Transvaal republic in its war with Great Britain. Mr. Mason attacked not only the consul but the policy of Great Britain in levying war upon an inferior nation. Mr. Hoar of Massachusetts thought the consul's purported remarks co serious that it ought to be investigated by the government, but at the same time he deprecated any attack upon Great Britain — with the people with which the American people ought not only to live in peace, but as loving and devoted friends. Mr. Lodge of Massachusetts sharply arraigned the British consul for his utterances against a United States senator, and believed it ought not lightly to be passed.

Mr. Tillman of South Carolina delivered a forceful and quite characteristic speech on the Philippine question in which he maintained that this government ought to extend to the Philippines the right to govern themselves, the United States guarding them against the aggression of other nations.

The senate, in executive session yesterday, directed, by a vote of 21 to 38, not to reconsider the vote by which the Samoan treaty was ratified, and then removed the injunction of secrecy from the vote.

The House.

The bill for the reorganization and improvement of the weather bureau, which includes provisions for pensioning disabled and aged employes, received attention in the house. The bill was bitterly fought by the opponents of civil service rules on account of the life tenure provisions it contained, and it was sidetracked on a test vote of 57 to 73. Although the speaker ruled that it remained unfinished business when the house was again in committee of the whole, the opponents of the measure believe the action yesterday kills it. The earlier part of the day was devoted to a lively scrimmage over the Sulzer resolution to investigate Secretary Gage, which the committee on rules said should be sent to the ways and means committee, as that latter committee has the response of the secretary in its possession. There was no opposition to the proposed action, but Mr. Richardson of Tennessee and Mr. Sulzer of New York used it as a text for renewing their attacks upon the secretary. Mr. Gage was defended by Mr. Hopkins of Illinois, Mr. Hill of Connecticut and Mr. Dalzell of Pennsylvania.

A bill to require pilots and officials of steam vessels to make oath of their applications for license was passed.

Washington, Jan. 31.—For more than three hours yesterday Mr. Bacon of Georgia occupied the attention of the senate with a discussion of the Philippine question. His argument, which had for its basis his own resolution declaratory of the government's policy toward the Philippines, was listened to carefully by his fellow senators and by a large gallery. He maintained that the United States owed as much to the Filipinos as it does to the Cubans, to whom, by resolution of congress, self-government had been promised, and he strongly urged that his resolutions declaring it to be the intention of this government to grant the right of self-government upon the Filipinos, be adopted, not only as a means of terminating the war, but for extending to a struggling people justice and freedom.

The House.

The house was in session a little over one hour yesterday and only business of minor importance was transacted.

Washington, Feb. 1.—Debate in the senate, ordinarily calm and dignified, burst yesterday into passionate and bitter recriminations. Senators hurled denunciation at one another until the auditors quivered with excitement. The debate grew out of a phase of the Philippine question, and no scene has been witnessed since the bringing in of the war resolutions in the last congress which, in sensational features, compared with that of yesterday. Mr. Pettigrew, who has precipitated nearly all of the debate upon the Philippine question during the present session, sought to have read a resolution embodying a document written by Emilio Aguinaldo upon the Filipino insurrection and containing his version of the alleged recognition of the Filipino republic by Admiral Dewey. Senator Lodge of Massachusetts protested against publishing the document in any form, and read a letter from Admiral Dewey in which the portion of Aguinaldo's statement relating to Admiral Dewey was stamped as false. Mr. Lodge said he preferred Admiral Dewey's word to that of Aguinaldo, and was satisfied the American people would also. In a passionate reply Mr. Pettigrew declared that Admiral Dewey had recognized the Filipino republic, and although afforded an opportunity heretofore to deny Aguinaldo's statements, had not done so. In an instant half a dozen senators were on their feet. Mr. Hawley, the venerable senator from Connecticut, denounced Mr. Pettigrew's action as treason. In rapid succession Senator Pettigrew was made the target of stinging arraignments by Senators Spooner, Hawley, Sewall and Gallinger. That the feeling was at a pitch seldom reached in the senate was evidenced from the pale faces of the men who spoke. Mr. Jones of Arkansas and Mr. Teller of Colorado endeavored to stem the tide of deep feeling and protests by conciliatory talks. At the close of the morning hour, which will remain memorable in senate annals, the financial bill was taken up and discussed by Mr. Berry of Arkansas and Mr. Teller of Colorado.

The House.

Under the latitude allowed in general debate upon present bills, the Indian appropriation bill in the house yesterday was made the occasion for the discussion of a wide range of public questions. Our policy in the Philippine islands, the government of Porto Rico, the leasing of our arid lands and election methods in the South were in turn brought into the arena. The most interesting debate occurred over the latter subject. A bill was passed to correct an error in the last river and harbor bill relating to the appropriation for the improvement of Buffalo bayou and the Galveston ship canal channel. A bill was passed for the payment of the salaries of certain retired officers of the Marine corps. The house then went into committee of the whole for the consideration of Indian appropriation bills.

The Senate.

Washington, Feb. 2. — Representative Joseph Sibley of Pennsylvania who attained great prominence in the Fifty-fourth congress by his earnest championship of free silver, assailed his Democratic colleagues yesterday for their opposition to expansion in a speech that made the floors and galleries roar. Mr. Sibley has recanted his views on free silver and is now generally out of line with his colleagues on the Democratic side. He insisted yesterday that expansion was an original Democratic doctrine, promulgated by Jefferson and adhered to by Madison, Jackson, Tyler, Polk and Buchanan. In eloquent language he pictured the destiny of the United States carrying the arts of peace and the story of the Cross to the remotest corners of the globe. Mr. Sibley received an impressive demonstration when he closed. The remainder of the debate was uninteresting. It touched the question of mediation in the Transvaal war, lynchings in the South and the jury law in Hawaii. Not much progress was made with the Indian appropriation bill, which was under consideration.

The Senate.

Nearly the entire morning hour in the senate yesterday was occupied by Mr. Allen of Nebraska in the discussion of the report of Secretary Gage concerning his transactions with the National City Bank of New York. Mr. Daniel of Virginia made an extended speech on the pending financial measure. He vigorously opposed the proposition that the country should go to the gold standard. Daniel M. Ramsdell of Indiana and Charles G. Bennett of New York were sworn in as sergeant-at-arms and secretary of the senate respectively.

Washington, Feb. 3. — An effort by Senator Pettigrew to discuss the Philippine question in the senate yesterday was of no avail, as he was met by a point of order which took him from the floor. He had gotten only so far as to charge that the great journals of the country would not publish the facts concerning the Philippine war. Subsequently he offered another resolution on which he will speak next week. Senator Allen of Nebraska concluded his speech in arraignment of Secretary Gage because of his transactions with the National City Bank of New York. He had previously introduced a resolution providing for an investigation by the senate of the treasury department, but objection to its consideration sent it over until next week.

The House.

The house yesterday devoted its attention to the Indian appropriation bill. It got no further, however, than the appropriations for Indian schools, where an effort was inaugurated by Mr. Fitzgerald of New York to authorize the secretary of the interior to contract with schools for the education of Indian children where the government lacked facilities. No provision is made for contract schools in this bill. It is claimed the present school system is inadequate.

Washington, Feb. 5.—The house Saturday passed the Indian appropriation bill. It was slightly amended in unimportant particulars. An attempt to revive the policy of making contracts with religious schools for the education of Indian children, which has been gradually abandoned by the government during the last five years, failed, on the ruling of the chair that the amendment offered was out of order. The latter part of the session was devoted to eulogies upon the life and public service of the late Representative Ermentrout of Pennsylvania.

THE MARKETS.

Latest Quotations From Grain and Live Stock Centers.

St. Paul, Feb. 6. — Wheat — No. 1 Northern, 65 1-4@66 1-4c; No. 2 Northern, 63 @ 65c. Corn — No. 3 yellow, 29 1-2@29 3-4c; No. 3, 29 1-4@29 1-2c. Oats—No. 3 white, 23 1-2@23 3-4c; No. 3, 22 3-4@23 1-4c. Barley and Rye — Feed barley, 31@32 1-2c; malting grade, 33@35c; No. 2 rye, 47 1-2@47 3-4c; No. 3 rye, 46@46 1-2c.

Duluth, Feb. 6.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, 67 1-2c; No. 1 Northern, 66c; No. 2 Northern, 63 1-2c; No. 3 spring, 60c; to arrive, No. 1 hard, 67 1-2c; No. 1 Northern, 66c; May, No. 1 Northern, 68c; July, No. 1 Northern, 69c; oats, 23 1-2 @24c; rye, 50c; barley, 34@37c; flax, to arrive, $1.54 1-2; May, $1.58; September, $1.10.

Minneapolis, Feb. 6.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, 67 3-8c; No. 1 Northern 65 @ 66 1-4c; No. 2 Northern, 63 3-4@64 3-4c. Corn—No. 3 yellow, 28 3-4@29c; No. 3, 28@28 1-2c. Oats—No. 3 white, 23@23 1-4c; No. 3, 28@28 1-2c. Oats—No. 3 white, 23@23 1-4c; No. 3, 22 3-4@23c. Barley, 33@38c. Rye, 48 1-2@49 1-2c. Flax, $1.53.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—Wheat—No. 2 red, 69 1-2@70c; No. 3 do, 66@68 1-2c; No. 2 hard, winter, 65 1-2c; No. 3 do, 60@65c; No. 1 Northern spring, 67@68 1-2c; No. 2 do, 66 1-2@67 1-2c; No. 3 spring, 63@66 1-2c. Corn—No. 2, 31 1-2c; No. 3, 31 1-8c. Oats—No. 2, 23c; No. 3, 22 1-2 @22 3-4c.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 6—Flour is quiet. Wheat steady; No. 1 Northern, 67 1-2@67 3-4c; No. 2 Northern, 65 1-2@66c. Rye steady; No. 1, 55 1-2c. Barley quiet; No. 2, 46c; sample, 34 1-2@43c. Oats steady; No. 2 white, 25 1-4@25 3-4c.

Chicago, Feb. 6. — Cattle — Beeves, $4 @ 6.80; cows and heifers, $3 @ 5; stockers and feeders, $3.25@4.85; Texas-fed beeves, $4@5.20. Hogs—Mixed and butchers, $4.60@4.72 1-2; good to choice heavy, $4.75@4.95; rough heavy, $4.60@4.70; light, $4.55@4.80; bulk of sales, $4.75@4.85. Sheep, $4.65@5.40; lambs, $5@5.75.

As Cramp Sees It.

Philadelphia—Charles H. Cramp, the shipbuilder, expresses the opinion that England has reached its climax as a world power, that Germany has captured the north Atlantic, and that the United States will be the supreme factor in industrial pre-eminence.

Tough on Omnibus Employes.

London—Owing to the large number of omnibus horses taken out of London for the war hundreds of employes in the omnibus yards are out of employment.

To Relieve Firemen on Warships.

Washington—It is proposed by the medical officers of the navy to afford relief to the firemen of ships of war. Medical Inspector A. F. Price, who recently returned from the Pacific station, has made a proposition for self-acting ventilation of firerooms by a system of draft pipes

Loubet Tired of Policies.

Paris—President Loubet of France declares that when his term of office ends he will not seek the office again, but will retire to his old home farm, as he is tired of politics.

News of the Northwest

TWO LIVES LOST.

Ex-Mayor and the Proprietor of a Saloon Burned to Death.

Grand Forks, N. D., Feb. 3.—Fire in East Grand Forks destroyed the Kelly & Gillam saloon and burned to death W. D. Kelly, one of the proprietors, and T. J. McAdam, one of the oldest residents and former mayor of the city. The men were not missed until Wednesday night and the bodies were not found until yesterday morning. It is supposed that in passing Kelley's place they had smelled escaping gas, and had gone into the basement by an outer stairway to investigate. The theory is that on entering they had lit a match, which caused the explosion that occurred about 5 o'clock, badly shaking the building and setting it on fire.

MORE CHINAMEN MUST RETURN.

They Can No Longer Linger in the Land of Liberty.

Fargo, N. D., Feb. 3.—Three more Chinamen were ordered deported by Judge Amidon on the hearing of the eighty held for alleged violation of the exclusion act. Four who claimed to be members of the Wah Hing company of Chicago were given a hearing. N. Toak spoke English so fluently, and his chief witness, R. M. Barnes, bookkeeper for Marshall, Field & Co., testified so positive to his identity that the court admitted him to the United States. N. Luen, N. N. Chuck and N. Quien all convinced the court of having once lived in Chicago, but they were unable to establish a satisfactory proof of their connection with the company.

ATTEMPTED TRAIN WRECKING.

Huge Timbers Were Piled Upon the Track—Wreck Narrowly Averted.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 3.—It has just become known here that a futile attempt was made to wreck passenger train No. 72 on the Milwaukee-Prairie du Chien line of the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul road at a point near Avoca late Monday night. The train was running east at a high rate of speed when the engine struck a large pile of timbers, each eight inches square and sixteen feet long, that had been placed across the tracks. Only the high speed of the train saved it from being wrecked. The engine pilot was badly damaged in hurling the obstruction from the tracks.

UNUSUAL SPECTACLE.

Mother and Daughter Admitted to Practice in the Supreme Court.

Washington, Feb. 3. — The United States supreme court yesterday witnessed the unusual spectacle of the admission of a lady and her daughter to the bar upon motion of another daughter. The ladies admitted were Mrs. Kate P. Pier and Miss H. H. Pier of Milwaukee, and the lady moving their admission was Miss Kate H. Pier of the same city. Another lady member of this family was admitted a few years ago, making four of the twenty female members of the supreme court bar members of one family.

IOWA ELECTION LAW.

Materially Changed by the Passage of the Titus Bill.

Des Moines, Iowa, Feb. 3—The Titus biennial election bill passed the lower house by a vote of 85 to 7, and is now ready for the signature of the governor. The bill revolutionizes the holding of elections in Iowa, its chief provision doing away with the holding of annual elections. The measure for constitutional amendment will be submitted to the people at the next general election, and if approved, will go into operation. The amendment has now passed through two sessions of the legislature.

IN THE HOUGHTON YARDS.

St. Paul and South Shore Trains in Collision.

Houghton, Mich., Feb. 3.—The Chicago inbound train of the St. Paul line ran into the rear end of the South Shore train, carrying a Northwestern sleeper, in the Houghton yards last evening. The rear engine and coaches of both trains were badly battered, but no lives were lost and none of the passengers received serious injuries.

ENGINEER MAY DIE.

Three Trainmen Hurt in an Accident Near Ablemans, Wis.

Baraboo, Wis., Feb. 3. — A freight train running at full speed on the Northwestern struck a large bowlder in the narrows at Ablemans last night and was badly wrecked. Engineer Jacquish, Fireman Fred True and Brakeman Frank McGarr were seriously hurt. Jacquish is not expected to recover.

ARREST FOR MURDER.

Oscar Goodrich Charged With Having Killed His Partner.

Sioux City, Iowa, Feb. 3. — Oscar Goodrich was arrested here on the charge of having murdered John Robson, his partner in the construction business. Robson was murdered in his office one evening about a month ago. He was an old and prominent citizen.

The Aroma Coffee and Spice Company of St. Louis was burned out. Loss, $100,000.

Brothers Wound Each Other.

Fergus Falls, Minn., Feb. 3. — The report comes from Wadena that two brothers named Kautz, residing near that place, engaged in a quarrel a day or two ago and that one drew a gun and shot the other in the stomach. The injured man had an ax in his hands and brought it down upon his brother, cutting a frightful gash, and both men are in a precarious condition. The injured men are Polanders.

Northfield Feed Mill Burned.

Northfield, Minn., Feb. 3.—A fire destroyed a feed mill and grain storage building occupied by M. Carmichael and owned by the S. P. Stewart estate. Origin is unknown. The loss is $3,000; partially insured.

Has Not Been Identified.

Sioux City, Iowa, Feb. 3.—The body of a man shipped here from Baltimore in a box two weeks ago, and which bore evidence of murder, has not been identified. The coroner will hold an inquest.

LABOR TROUBLE SUDDENLY ENDS.

Trainmen Accept Great Northern Wage Schedule.

St. Paul, Feb. 4.—There will be no strike on the Great Northern. The trainmen, it became known late yesterday afternoon, accepted the wage schedule offered by the company. The culmination of the disagreement is said to be unparalleled in the history of grievance adjustments. Both General Superintendent Ward and members of the grievance committee were surprised at the result. During the past two weeks the brakemen and freight conductors (the only ones involved) have been balloting on the proposition to accept or reject the wage schedule offered by the road. These ballots have been received by the committee, sealed, but accompanied by letters purporting to give the total of the vote cast. On the strength of the letters the committee claimed the decision was almost unanimous for rejection and a probable strike. The sealed ballots were held until the arrival of W. G. Lee, vice grand master of the National Order of Railroad trainmen, and E. E. Clark, grand master of the Order of Railway Conductors. These officials arrived yesterday morning and immediately proceeded to canvass the ballots. There were less than a dozen more than a majority against the acceptance of the schedule, whereas the constitution of the order declares a majority of two-thirds is necessary. Then the letters accompanying the ballot packages were produced and compared. In some instances they tallied, but there were many that differed. There was no going behind the returns. There was the vote of the trainmen and the conductors and it showed plainly that they did not insist upon an increase in pay.

TERMINALS AT EVERETT.

Northern Pacific Turns Seattle Down Very Hard.

New York, Feb. 4. — The Northern Pacific has purchased from the Standard Oil company its interests in the western section of the Everett & Monte Cristo railroad and its terminals in Everett, Wash. The deal was completed here. It is more important than appears on the surface, because the Northern Pacific will build up Everett as its Puget sound headquarters. It will come into direct competition at that point with the Great Northern. The Everett & Monte Cristo (western section) runs from Snohomish to Everett, between eleven and twelve miles. The terminals are extensive and adequate. The particular reason why the Northern Pacific has purchased the road is to secure more terminals for its growing Pacific coast business. Tacoma proved too small and Seattle was too exacting. The latter city recently turned down the Northern Pacific's proposition to build a large depot. The Northern Pacific will handle the Standard Oil's business over the line just purchased.

LIFE WAS BATTERED OUT.

Tragic Death in a Factory—Man Hurled to Death.

Minneapolis, Feb. 4. — Edward Edmunds' life was battered out at the foundry of the Peteler Car works, Thirtieth avenue southeast. No one knows exactly how the accident happened. The first intimation received by other workmen was an agonized yell from the upper floor of the building, followed by a horrid thumping. The men hastened to the place and found Edmunds' body twirling about a rapidly moving shaft. The engine was stopped, but the man was already dead. An oil can lying near by seemed to indicate that he had been oiling the bearings of the shaft, when his clothing caught. Coroner Nelson, who examined the remains, found that the body was frightfully bruised. The clothing was nearly all torn off and the lower extremities had been whipped into jelly by contact with the near-by timbers.

WARDS OF THE STATE.

Annual Increase of Population in the Institutions.

St. Paul, Feb. 4.—Monthly statistics of the state institutions reported to the board of corrections and charities—never before compiled so promptly—show an increase in the insane hospitals of 105 above last year, and in the penal and other institutions of 115. For a long time the parole system resulted in a reduction of the inmates in the correctional institutions, which has now been overcome by the fact that the system has got into thorough operation. Taking into account the number of United States prisoners at Stillwater, the real increase of the state's wards for this year is 228, where last year it was 237. The net increase is between 3 and 4 per cent, which is still less than the presumed increase in population.

Charges Against an Attorney.

Pierre, S. D., Feb. 4. — The case of application of S. M. Howard of Gettysburg for admission to the bar was before the supreme court. May charges were filed by those opposing admission, and after the hearing the court decided to withhold admission for the present.

Suicide at Dassel.

Dassel, Minn., Feb. 4.—Peter Mattson, a farmer living about two miles from here, committed suicide by taking poison, presumably strychnine. No cause is given for his deed except an unsound mind.

Hudson Depot Burned.

Hudson, Wis., Feb. 4. — The lower Omaha railway depot, together with the freight building, was destroyed by fire. Loss approximately $3,000; insured. The fire was first discovered in the office by the night police.

Explosion at Aberdeen.

Aberdeen, S. D., Feb. 4.—The purifying room at the gas works blew up and the explosion was felt for blocks around. The plant was badly wrecked, involving heavy loss. Two employes were seriously injured.

Great Northern Cars Derailed.

Grand Rapids, Minn., Feb. 4.—A defective switch was the cause of the derailment of half a dozen freight cars and a locomotive on the Great Northern track at this place. Passenger trains were delayed several hours. No one was injured.

The secretary of the interior has rendered a decision to the effect that national banks in the Indian Territory are not subject to the license or privilege tax imposed by the laws of the territory upon non-residents doing business within the territory.

In Far Northland

Tid-Bits of News for Scandinavians.

VIKINGS IN OPERA.

"Fridthjof and Ingeborg" to Be Given in Chicago.

"Fridthjof and Ingeborg," an opera founded on the life of the old Viking heroes, will be presented in Chicago at the big Auditorium, on Feb. 12, 13 and 14, and it can unhesitatingly be said that never in America has there been such an ambitious Swedish undertaking. The opera is the work of a Swedish-American, the libretto translated into English by a Swede, and most of the principals and chorus will be sons and daughters of old Svea. The performance will mark an epoch among the Swedes, and this fact is so generally recognized that many will attend from Boston and New York in the East, the Twin Cities and Omaha in the West.

The story of the opera is taken from Teguer's immortal "Fridthjof's Saga," and is translated into English by Anna Cronjel Wellberg. The musical score is by Charles F. Hanson of Worcester, Mass., and by special permission the opera was dedicated to King Oscar of Sweden and Norway. Mr. Hanson is well known in the East as a musical composer, and in Worcester, where he has lived since 1865, several of his compositions have been produced, as well as in New York and Boston. One of his works, "Princess Phosa," on its production, was highly praised by Eastern musical critics.

A brief summary of the story is as follows:

Act I.—Fridthjof asks Helge, publicly, at the Ting, or Royal Assembly, for his sister's hand, but he is scornfully refused, not being of royal descent. Soon after, King Ring, a powerful neighbor, sends his embassy to ask for Ingeborg's hand. He is also refused, and ridiculed on account of his advanced years. Ring then sends a fleet to take his bride by force. The brothers, in their distress, send Hilding to Fridthjof to plead for them, begging him to join his arms with theirs, for the defense of the country and Ingeborg, but he refuses them his aid.

Act II.—Ingeborg has been placed in the sacred retreat of Baler's temple, where no man was supposed to dare intrude. One moonlight night Fridthjof meets Ingeborg in the sacred grove. Fridthjof overcomes his pride and goes once more to the Royal Assembly, offering his assistance against Ring, if he is granted Ingeborg's hand. Fridthjof, refusing to buy his happiness with a lie, frankly confesses that he has been there to speak to Ingeborg. All turn from him in horror. Helge, taking advantage of the superstition of the people, sentences Fridthjof to go to Angantyr at some distant island, and extort from him a certain tribute—an expedition so full of peril that Helge never expected to see Fridthjof return from it alive. The latter, however, returns with the money, but, finding his house burned to the ground and Ingeborg married to Ring, he seeks Helge in the temple where he is worshiping. Seeing a gold ring he once gave Ingeborg on an image, Fridthjof accidentally upsets the god, wich falls in the fire, and causes the whole temple to burn. Then Fridthjof is exiled.

Act III.—After years of travel in foreign lands, Fridthjof longs for home, and decides to go to King Ring's court to have just one look of Ingeborg. Disguised as an old man, he enters Ring's house at Yuletide, is well received, and invited to spend the winter at Ring's court. In the spring, at a hunt, Ring, pretending to be tired, lies down in Fridthjof's lap. The latter is sorely tempted to kill the old man, but his better nature conquers, and he throws his sword aside. The king awakens, and tells Fridthjof that he knew from the first who he was, and that now he has proved him to be a stanch friend. As a reward, he offers Fridthjof his queen and the guardianship of his son. Ring then stabs himself and dies. His young son is elected king and Fridthjof is made his guardian. Helge has been killed in his warfares, and Halfdan, reconciled with Fridthjof, gives him his sister, Ingeborg.

The cast of the performance at the Auditorium is unusually strong, as will be seen from the following:

Ingeborg	Lillian Hanson-Gray
Fridthjof	John Lloyd
King Ring	Charles W. Clark
Helge	William Waterous
Halfdan	William Dahlen
Bjorn	Ernest Lindblom
Hilding	Fred Fransen
Bard	Joel Massberg
Ola	Olof Valley
Gerda	Miss Margaret Dahlstrom
The Singer	Miss Ida Linn

The Metropolitan orchestra, probably better known as Carl Bunge's, has been engaged for the opera, but Mr. Hanson, the composer, will himself have personal supervision over the production. A chorus of 300 voices is promised by the Swedish National association, which is arranging the production, and John R. Ontengren, the magnetic leader, will be responsible for the good work of the chorus. He has been rehearsing it for several months, and is said to have attained splendid success. In view of the completeness of the arrangements, the opera should be a musical treat.

The new Swedish foreign minister, Lagerhelm, in an interview, says that he is not in sympathy with the Norwegian demand for a separate diplomatic corps and consular service, as to grant them would be tantamount to a dissolution of the union. The interests and honor of Sweden and Norway, he says, are mutual.

A total of 88,997.20 kroner has been collected by Skandinaven for the widows and orphans of the fishermen who lost their lives on the coast of Norway. The subscription has practically come to an end, but $25,000 from one source alone is a very neat gift, and Skandinaven is to be congratulated on its success and its readers on their ready response to the appeal.

The archbishop of Sweden, the Most Rev. Anton Swensen, who was believed to have recovered from appendicitis, is dead at Stockholm. He was born in 1818.

Chance for Americans.

Washington—Consul Swaim of Montevideo declares that as soon as American exporters place their goods in Uruguay as quickly and in as good condition as those of European competitors America can monopolize the trade.

Dublin's Death Rate.

Dublin—The death rate of Dublin continues abnormally high, the present figure being 37 per 1,000. In Belfast the rate is 20.7, and the average for the twenty-three principal urban districts in Ireland 27.6.

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR.

VOLUME XIX. ST. HILAIRE, MINNESOTA, WEDNESDAY, FEBRUARY 14, 1900. NUMBER 30.

Minnesota Historical Society

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

News of the Week

Washington Talk.

Some objections to the Nicaraguan canal treaty in its present form is expected in the senate.

The senate insular committee has prepared a bill providing for a temporary form of civil government for Porto Rico.

The Philippine commission has unanimously reported in favor of a territorial form of government with a large measure of home rule in local affairs.

The commissioner of internal revenue has decided that manufacturers of creme de menthe, a compound of distilled spirits, are liable to the special tax as rectifiers.

The board of appraisal have estimated the value of Dewey's captures in Manila bay at $826,141. The largest items are: Ship and boat equipment, $231,566; ordnance materials, $42,294; fuel, $20,568.

Senator McMillan reported from the committee on commerce a bill to prevent raft towing on the Pacific coast. Puget sound and other bays and rivers are excepted from the provisions of the bill.

The government is informed that the Argentine tariff for 1900 has been adopted. Changes are unimportant, except that the duty on typewriters has been reduced from 25 to 5 per cent ad valorem each.

Senator Penrose of Pennsylvania introduced a bill providing for the publication of the proceedings of the G. A. R. encampments as a government document, and providing for their distribution among various G. A. R. posts.

Mr. Darnell, United States consul at Nogales, Mexico, has telegraphed the state department in Washington that there is not a word of truth in the story that six Americans were shot by order of Gen. Torres, near Guaymas, tile Yaqui Indians.

The war department has made public the report of Gen. Lloyd Wheaton upon his operations from San Fabian southward last November. The report is made up of an account of a succession of combats with the insurgents, ranging from a small skirmish to a battle wherein the insurgents had 2,000 men engaged.

Crimes and Criminals.

As a result of the building trades strike in Chicago one man was shot and several were beaten by strikers.

James B. Neal, who was at one time a wealthy and prominent florist in New York, committed suicide by swallowing carbolic acid

"Bill" Cook. who was sentenced in 1895 to 45 years' imprisonment in the Albany, N. Y., penitentiary, died there from consumption.

Lin Atkins, wanted for various crimes, and five other prisoners escaped from the federal jail at Paul's Valley, I. T. A posse is in pursuit.

William H. Smiles, 70 years old, was arrested at South Bend, charged with embezzling $40,000 from the estate of the late Samuel Halstead of New York.

Mrs. W. E. Sistrunk, a member of one of the most distinguished families in Florida, committed suicide at Tallahasse by shooting herself through the heart.

By the arrest of Anthony Decker government officials believe they have thwarted a scheme to float $250,000 of counterfeit Canadian money. He will return to Canada without extradition papers.

"Bill" Cook, who was sentenced in 1895 to forty-five years' imprisonment in the Albany, N. Y., penitentiary, died there from consumption. He was once one of the most noted desperadoes of the Indian Territory.

Levi Steward was hanged in the Essex county jail at Sandwich, Ont. Steward killed "Old Jim" Ross on the night of July 18 last by a blow on the head with a fence picket, delivered as Steward afterwards confessed, merely for the purpose of robbery.

Casualties

T. A. Frazer, a Santa Fe engineer, was run over and killed at Lorenzo, Ill., last night.

Fourteen-year-old son of John Hall was accidentally killed while hunting near Carmi, Ill.

John Jacobson and George Mechey were blown to atoms by the explosion of dynamite at Iron Mountain, Mich.

The water tower of the plant of the American Strawboard company at Piqua, O., collapsed, wrecking the building and killing Benjamin Keihl.

Boulonville, Westchester county, N. Y., was destroyed by fire in the absence of the parents, and four of Winans' children, whose ages ranged from 2 to 8 years, were burned to death.

Patrick Crow, suspected of being implicated in the daring Northwestern train robbery between Maple Park and Dekalb on the night of Oct. 13, has been arrested at Chicago, but the police will not divulge the place of his confinement.

News has been received at Nassau that the British bark Thomas Faulkner, Capt. A. D. Faulkner, which sailed from Pensacola, Jan. 24, for Montevideo, was wrecked at Riding Rock, Jan. 29. The book and materials of the vessel were saved.

Personal.

George W. Baker, South Bend plow manufacturer, is dead, aged 68.

The Rev. Booker Fox, well known negro evangelist, died at Ottumwa, Ia., aged 104.

Charles Schutte, a wealthy lumberman of Evansville, Ind., died of dropsy, aged sixty-two.

A. W. Smart, chancellor of the court of honor and a leading Mason, is dead at Moweaqua, Ill.

Jefferson Griffin, a farmer living near Clinton, Ill., died from smallpox of the malignant type.

Ex-President Cleveland will deliver two lectures on public topics at the Princeton university in March.

Philip Link, vice president of the Star Union Brewing company of Peru, Ill., died at his home in La Salle, Ill.

Thomas R. Bard, Republican, has been elected senator by the California legislature, to succeed Stephen M. White, Democrat.

William J. Morgan, Jr., vice president of the Morgan Lithographing company and widely known in theatrical circles, died at his home in Cleveland.

Rev. John P. Kennedy, formerly chairman of the Congregational Union of England and Wales, and professor of apologetics at New college, London, is dead in his eighty-seventh year.

Foreign Notes.

The long-standing boundary dispute in the Malayan peninsula between Siam and Great Britain has been settled.

Emperor William has prohibited the performance of a drama by Herr Bonn which shows Frederick the Great in character.

The statement of the London board of trade for January shows increases of £3,344,200 in imports and £3,236,400 in exports.

A partial strike of coal miners has broken out in the Wurm district, and it is thought this may become general in that locality.

Another revolution against the government of Venezuela is imminent. It is said that there are serious dissensions in the cabinet.

The Italian bark Quirinale, from Carthagena, has been wrecked near Ville Roi. Capt. Calde and six men of the crew were drowned.

Gustave Dahle, a former captain of German cavalry, has been arrested at Charlottenburg for les majeste, swindling and other offences.

A decree has been issued announcing that the bubonic plague has disappeared from Oporto and that the quarantine has been raised.

Herren Gebrueder and Dietz, train and oil commission merchants at Manheim, Germany, have failed for 400,000 marks. Several Manheim banks and English speculative houses are affected.

The Paris Matin says the powers are asking themselves if the time has not come to enforce the treaty guaranteeing the neutrality of the Suez canal. If England is incapable of keeping order they will be obliged to intervene.

Ambassador White at Berlin does not expect to go to The Hague to sign the ratified declarations of the peace conference, but thinks Stanford Newel, United States minister to the Netherlands, would sign for the United States.

Emperor William has sent a note to the imperial chancellor, Prince Hohenlohe, expressing his majesty's thanks for his birthday congratulations, referring especially to those received from German colonists and other subjects abroad.

So great is the demand in the Australian colonies for American and Canadian paper for newspaper print that every steamer from Vancouver, B. C., for the past six months has carried large consignments of paper to Sydney. The next steamer to sail will carry double the usual amount, 100,000 pounds being the usual cargo.

Otherwise.

A combination of all manufacturers of whips in the country it is said will be accomplished during the next sixty days.

The county supervisors awarded the contract for building a new courthouse at Fort Dodge, Iowa to H. C. Koch & Co. of Milwaukee.

The secretary of state of Illinois licensed the American Bicycle Company of Jersey City, N. J., capital, $80,000,000; capital in Illinois, $10,000,000.

Plans for a costly piece of construction work that practically will bring about another trans-continental line are being made by the Southern Pacific company.

A freight and passenger train on the Hocking Valley railroad collided at Carey, O., resulting in the death of a fireman, engineer, express messenger and two others.

Four firemen and two spectators were injured during the progress of a fire in the basket factory of John S. Benedict, at Chicago. The loss was $16,000, with no insurance.

Judge Morris, in the United States district court at Baltimore, declared the Charles A. Vogeler company, dealers in druggists' supplies, bankrupts and appointed three receivers.

Admiral Kautz, at San Diego, Cal., has transferred his flag from the Philadelphia to the Iowa, the transfer being attended with the usual salutes and ceremonies. The Philadelphia has sailed for San Francisco.

The United States transports Pathan, Sherman and Indiana arrived in San Francisco from the Philippines. On board the Sherman are 75 invalided soldiers, and on the Indiana are the bodies of 200 dead soldiers.

The Nebraska Republican central state committee decided on Wednesday, May 2, at Lincoln, as the time and place for holding the state convention for the selection of national delegates and for the nomination of a state ticket.

Ex-Secretary of War Alger, in an interview, says this country owes England a debt of gratitude for her attitude during the war with Spain, and the least we can do to repay her is to abstain from interference in her present struggle.

Flagmakers in New York have been astonished during the past month by a sudden increase in the demand for the ensign of the Transvaal republic. Manufacturers attribute this fact to the added enthusiasm and confidence inspired in Boer sympathizers by recent victories.

Justice Andrews of the supreme court has appointed Mortimer Stiefel, New York, receiver for the Robert Biel syndicate, theatrical agents, in a suit brought by Milton J. Fechheimer, a creditor, for $635. The company was incorporated in 1899 with a capital stock of $50,000.

IT MEANS TROUBLE

SERGEANT-AT-ARMS OUT FOR ABSENT DEMOCRATS.

Warrants Issued for the Arrest of Absent Members of the Kentucky Legislature — Suggestion Comes From Gov. Taylor—Peace Agreement Not Yet Signed and Mr. Taylor Says He Won't Sign—Learned on Good Authority, However, That an Agreement Has Been Reached and That the Governor Will Sign.

London, Ky., Feb. 11.—Sergeant-at-Arms Cecil, of the house, and Howard, of the senate, left after 1 o'clock this morning on the north-bound train, armed with warrants for the arrest of absent Democratic members of both houses. Late last evening it was generally decided by the senate officers to make out the warrants for the arrest of absent Democratic senators without waiting for the arrival of Lieut. Gov. Marshall and Howard and Cecil were given the warrants. Where the two will go is not known here as no tickets were purchased and they would not tell. The significant remark was made that something would be heard to-morrow.

The following message from Gov. Taylor was received early in the day by a member of the legislature:

"Have warrants issued for members of the house and put in the hands of sergeant-at-arms to serve."

The warrants were made out late yesterday and given to Sergeant-at-Arms Cecil of the house. The morning sessions were quiet, but it was apparent the legislators were laboring under some excitement.

The message from Gov. Taylor regarding the issuing of the warrants was received just before the house met. The information was passed quietly to members and an air of suppressed excitement became apparent. The intention of Gov. Taylor was evident. "We mean business. We have a quorum in the house and a quorum in the senate. We will be ready for business on Monday. Further than that I have nothing to say," said a member.

DECISION FINALLY REACHED.

Good Authority Says Gov. Taylor Will Sign.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 11.—Gov. Taylor did not sign the Louisville peace agreement yesterday. He announced moreover that he had no intention of doing so for some time and did not know whether he would sign it at all. On the other hand the Democrats were confident that he would affix his signature to the document. On the morning train from Louisville came the Republican attorney, David W. Fairleigh, and Judge John W. Barr, both of whom were members of the Louisville conference on the Republican side. Immediately on arrival Mr. Fairleigh called upon Senator Blackburn at the Capitol hotel, and after a few words with him went, in company with Judge Barr and Gen. Daniel Lindsay to the office of Gov. Taylor. A conference was held there from 11 o'clock until 1, when an adjournment was taken. Later in the afternoon the conference was resumed and lasted until after 5 o'clock. It was impossible to learn the result of the protracted debate.

Late last night the situation was somewhat changed. Adjt. Gen. Collier was again called into Gov. Taylor's office about 8 o'clock and was in consultation with him until a late hour but would say nothing as to what transpired. From other and authoritative sources, however, it was learned that a decision had finally been arrived at, and that the peace agreement probably would receive the signature of Gov. Taylor inside of twenty-four hours.

When the statement made by Gov. Taylor to the Associated Press was taken to the council of Democrats who were in the capital waiting for word from him, the following statement was made by one of the most prominent Democrats in the state, who said that he did not wish his name used as it might embarrass those who were trying to induce Gov. Taylor to sign: "I say he will sign, and he will sign within two hours. This is positive."

Democrats Will Be Protected From Arrest.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 11.—The Democratic legislature met here yesterday, having present in each house a quorum of the total membership. Gov. Beckham announced that he is prepared to protect the legislature from arrest and that he will do so. The developments of the day mark the first steps toward carrying out the plans announced Sunday last by the Democrats to set up a state government that have been taken since those plans were interrupted since the peace negotiations. Some commotion was caused among the legislators by reports from London and Frankfort that warrants were about to be sworn out for enough Democrats to make a quorum of the Republican legislature now meeting at London. When told of it Gov. Peckham said: "No member of the legislature who comes to Louisville need fear arrest. I shall not allow any member to be arrested."

On the Assassin's Track.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 11. — The authorities expect to obtain important evidence regarding the assassin of Gov. Goebel from Silas Jones, who was arrested yesterday morning. Jones has already made a partial confession. He declares that he personally knows nothing of the crime, but says that Harlan Whittaker, who was arrested immediately after the shooting while running from the executive building, from which the shots were fired, knows a great deal about the crime. It is believed that Jones gave more information than that regarding Whittaker, and that what he told the police may lead to further arrests in the neighborhood of Richmond, Madison county.

M'KINLEY ON HORSEBACK.

He Will Lead the Last Grand Parade of Veterans.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—It is expected that President McKinley, mounted on horseback, will lead the last great parade of veterans of the Civil war that will ever be given. Commander-in-Chief Albert J. Shaw, of the G. A. R., has appointed him as an aid-de-camp on his staff, and among others he will receive the regular official order to appear in the big parade of the Grand Army to be held during the national encampment in Chicago next summer. Of course the organization will have its regular annual encampments after this one, but there is a feeling that next summer's event will be the last really great and notable one. The president is a member of the organization, and will be the guest of Chicago during the entire week, and the governors of several states will be here.

MAN IS BLOWN TO ATOMS.

Instantly Killed by Nitroglycerine Explosion.

Canal Dover, Ohio, Feb. 12.—An explosion of nitroglycerine at Scio, several miles east of here, blew an unidentified man to atoms. Hermann Bros., extensive oil operators, had recently been missing quantities of nitroglycerine from their store near the town, and efforts to catch the thief were unsuccessful. The explosion occurred in an unoccupied building where the explosive had been hidden. This was proved by remnants of the cases in which it was packed, which were identified by the owners. The remains of a man were also found about the place. The lid of his watch was found. It contained the initials "C. W. F."

CAMPAIGN AGAINST MAYAS.

Mexicans Are Making Good Progress in Yucatan.

Austin, Tex., Feb. 12.—A dispatch from Oajaca, Mex., says that Gen. Bravo is making good progress in his campaign against the Maya Indians in Yucatan. Several engagements between the government troops and the Indians have taken place during the last two weeks and the Maya losses are reported to have been heavy. The Mosquito fleet of gunboats which was sent up the Balize and Hondo rivers has been of little use owing to the fact that the Indians have kept some distance from shore. Several small villages along these rivers have been destroyed by the gunboat crews and marines. It is charged by Mexican army officers engaged in this campaign that the Mayas are constantly receiving valuable aid from the residents of British Honduras.

DEATH FROM GAS.

Man and Wife and Small Child Asphyxiated.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—Martin Jordan, an engineer, his wife Mary, and their five-months-old boy were asphyxiated by gas in their home at Forty-third street and Stewart avenue. The bodies of the three were found yesterday. A leak in the gas pipe in the basement deluged the house with gas, and when found they had been dead for several hours. The leak was so large that when workmen from the gas company attempted to close it one of them was overcome by the strong fumes and was revived with difficulty.

NATIVES MURDER SETTLERS,

German Gunboat Goes to Punish Solomon Islanders.

San Francisco, Feb. 12. — News has been received in this city that the natives of the Solomon Islands group are murdering the white settlers on several of the islands and that a gunboat from the German Solomons has gone to punish the culprits. Many murders have taken place, and in one instance the captain and mate and four of the crew of a trading schooner were killed while trying to protect a settler. In most cases robbery seems to be the incentive for the murders.

MOLINEUX IS GUILTY.

Verdict of Murder in the First Degree Is Found Against Poisoner.

New York, Feb. 12.—After deliberating seven and a half hours the jury returned a verdict of guilty of murder in the first degree against Roland B. Molineux, charged with the murder of Mrs. Katherine J. Adams by poison, Dec. 28, 1898. Bartow S. Weeks, counsel for the defense, made the usual motion, and Recorder Goff adjourned court until Feb. 16, when he said he would hear the motion and sentence the defendant.

JOKER FIRES THE SHOTS.

Fusillade Commenced on Soldiers While Guarding Mansion House.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 12.—Gov. Taylor, for the first time for some time, spent the night at the Mansion house. There were several shots in that direction, but the soldiers claimed they were fired at them. They returned the shots. The affair created some excitement and a force of soldiers from the state house was added to the guard at the Mansion. It is generally believed the shots were fired by an alleged joker.

Blizzard in Colorado.

Denver, Colo., Feb. 12.—A blizzard is sweeping over Colorado. The central and northwestern portions are in the throes of the storm, which is gradually moving southward. Snow has been falling in the mountains nearly all day, with no prospect of immediate abatement. As yet railroad traffic has not been affected to any extent, but a continuance of the storm will seriously interfere with it. Reports from Southern Wyoming and Western Nebraska are to the effect that a blizzard has been raging in that vicinity and is continuing.

Publisher Commits Suicide.

Springfield, Mass., Feb. 12.—William Metcalf, aged fifty-one, a well known printer and publisher, committed suicide by shooting. For years he was the partner of Clark W. Bryan, the newspaper trade journalist who shot himself two years ago.

Eugenie Is Out of Danger.

Paris, Feb. 12—Ex-Empress Eugenie, who has been ill at the Hotel Continental, is much improved and any fears as to her recovery are now removed.

BOERS AGGRESSIVE

JOUBERT WILL TRY TO OUTFLANK BULLER.

Dispatches Indicate That Gen. Buller Has Withdrawn All His Forces to Frere Camp—Most Sanguine Beginning to See That It Is Quite Hopeless to Expect the Relief of Ladysmith—Lord Roberts Is at Modder River— Terrible State of Affairs at Kimberley.

Durban, Feb. 12.—It is rumored here that Gen. Joubert is marching with a column of 6,000 men to outflank Gen. Buller.

-o-

London, Feb. 12. — The latest dispatches from the front, showing the reasons for Gen. Buller's retirement and his intention to try again, quite destroy the comforting and ingenious theory that the movement was an elaborate feint to facilitate the main advance of Lord Roberts, a theory which found acceptance largely because of Mr. Balfour's misleading statement to parliament. These seemingly useless reticences and prevarications on the part of the government and the war office are being criticised severely. No word has yet issued from the war office regarding Gen. Buller's latest attempt, although the correspondents are allowed to telegraph with a fair amount of freedom, and thus only a partial list of the casualties has been published. The dating of messages from Frere Camp may indicate that Gen. Buller has withdrawn all his forces there. The London newspapers having become accustomed to checks, maintain a hopeful tone, but the situation is much than it seemed to be a week ago. Evidences of the terrible strength and mobility of the Boer army, together with the rumor that Gen. Joubert is taking the initiative with the object of cutting Gen. Buller's communications are in way reassuring. Even the most sanguine persons begin to see that it is quite hopeless to expect the relief of Ladysmith, as it is claimed if it is impossible for Buller to reach Ladysmith, it is impossible for a garrison exhausted with sickness and hard fighting to cut its way out. Reports from Zululand are disquieting. If the Boers should succeed in reaching Greytown Gen. Buller would be compelled to look to the defense of the eastern side of Greytown. The fact that Lord Roberts was at Modder River on Friday seems to show that he has been on a round of inspection of the chief commands, and that the main advance is not so near as has been suspected.

More Threatening

Startling News

comes from Kimberley in the Cape newspapers just received by mail in London. It appears that since Jan. 8 the rations in Kimberley have been for the most part horseflesh, so repugnant to women and children that many refuse to eat. It also appears that the death rate has been heavy and that the privations of the garrison have been increasing steadily. This news is startling because the censor has not allowed it to be cabled. Possiby such conditions explain the presence of Lord Roberts at Modder River and the apparent preparations for an advance from that point. The mention in the dispatch of Lord Roberts to the war office yesterday of Gen. Clements as commanding at Rensberg is interpreted to show that Gen. French, with his army, has gone to join Lord Roberts and that considerable changes in the distribution of troops in that district has occurred. The unexplained strength and activity of the Boers at Rensberg, where they are reported rather pressing the British than being pressed by them, is looked upon with apprehension. There is no confirmation of the reported sortie from Ladysmith. The latest dispatch from there on Wednesday reported all was quiet and that instructions had been issued to look out for the Boers in a guise of a British relief force.

Boers Were Beaten Off.

London, Feb. 12.—The war office has just issued the following dispatch from the general commanding at Cape Town:

"Clements reports from Rensberg that on Friday, Feb. 9, the Boers tried to turn his right flank, but were beaten off. Position maintained. Casualties small. Kimberley reports that the Boer fighting force was apparently increased on Wednesday, Feb. 7. Next day the Boers commenced the construction of trenches to the east, nearly parallel to the [illegible] and 4,000 yards from the Premier mine. A native reported that he accompanied some Boers who left Mafeking for Kimberley, carrying with them a six-inch gun and a quick-firing field gun. The former opened fire on Kimberley. Otherwise the British situation is unchanged.

Moving Guns Against Kimberley.

Modder River, Feb. 12.—Apparently the Boers have brought all their big guns from Mafeking to shell Kimberley. Our naval guns shelled Magersfontein Saturday, but the Boer guns were silent. It is supposed that the enemy have withdrawn their artillery. They are blowing up the permanent way beyond Morgan Siding. The Boer still man their trenches, but their numbers are apparently reduced. The bulk of their force has gone to Kimberley or toward the flank.

Australians Are Anxious.

London, Feb. 12. — The Daily Mail publishes the following dispatch from Sydney, N. S. W.: "The news of Gen. Buller's reverse has caused a great sensation here. Cardinal Moran, in a remarkable speech, has advocated conscription in Australia in view of possible complications. He thinks it may become necessary to defend Australia and regrets the departure of the local troops."

NEAR CRISIS IN EGYPT.

Italy Is Advised That the Situation Is Serious.

Rome, Feb. 12.—The Italian diplomatic agent at Cairo yesterday forwarded to the government a report fully describing the situation in Egypt. While the report is not yet made public, it is understood that it presents the situation as being most serious, the revolt of the native troops being sufficient to cause anxiety. He warns the government to get ready for possible complications. Shortly after receiving the report the minister for foreign affairs held a long conference with the British ambassador.

THE MARKETS.

Latest Quotations From Grain and Live Stock Centers.

St. Paul, Feb. 12. — Wheat — No. 1 Northern, 65 1-2@66 3-4c; No. 2 Northern, 64@65 1-2c. Corn—No. 3 yellow, 29 1-2@29 3-4c; No. 3, 29 1-4@29 1-2c. Oats—No. 3 white, 23 1-2@23 3-4c; No. 3, 22 3/4@23 1-4c. Barley and Rye — Feed barley, 31@32 1-2c; malting grade, 33@35c; No. 2 rye, 47 1-2@47 3-4c; No. 3 rye, 46@46 1-2c.

Duluth, Feb. 12—Wheat—No. 1 hard, 67 3-8c; No. 1 Northern, 65 7-8c; No. 2 Northern, 63 3-8c; No. 3, 59 7-8c; to arrive, No. 1 hard, 67 3-8c; No. 1 Northern, 65 7-8c; May, No. 1 Northern, 67 7-8c; July, No. 1 Northern, 68 7-8c; oats, 23 1-2@24c; rye, 51c; barley, 34@37c; corn, 30 1-8c; flax, to arrive, $1.55; May, $1.58; September, $1.14.

Minneapolis, Feb. 12.—Wheat—No. 1 hard, 67 1-8c; No. 1 Northern, 65 1-2@66 3-4c; No. 2 Northern, 64 @ 64 1-2c. Corn—No. 3 yellow, 30 1-4@30 1-2c; No. 3, 30c. Oats — No. 3 white, 23 1-2@23 3-4c; No. 3, 23 1-2c. Barley—Malting, 35@40c; feed, 33@34c. Rye—No. 2, 51@52c.

Milwaukee, Wis., Feb. 12.—Flour is steady. Wheat lower; No. 1 Northern, 67 3-4@68c; No. 2 Northern, 65@66 1-2c. Rye higher; No. 1, 57@58c. Barley is firm; No. 2, 46c; sample, 38@46c. Oats quiet; No. 2 white, 25 3-4c.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—Wheat—No. 2 red, 70 1-4c; No. 3 do, 66@69c; No. 2 hard winter, 66 1-4c; No. 3 do, 62@66 1-4c; No. 1 Northern spring, 67 3-4@69 1-4c; No. 2 do, 67@68 1-2c; No. 3 spring, 63 1-2@67 1-2c. Corn—No. 2, 32 1-4@32 3-8c; No. 3, 32c. Oats—No. 2, 22 3-4c; No. 3, 22 1-2c.

Chicago, Feb. 12. — Cattle — Beeves, $4@6.10; cows and heifers, $3 @ 4.75; stockers and feeders $3.25@4.85; Texas-fed beeves, $4@5.20. Hogs—Mixed and butchers, $4.75@5.10; good to choice heavy, $4.90@5.10; rough heavy, $4.75@4.85; light, $4.70 @ 5; bulk of sales, $4.90@5. Sheep, $4.50 @ 5.60; lambs, $5.10@7.10.

Sioux City, Iowa, Feb. 12. — Cattle—Beeves, $4.25 @ 5.25; cows and bulls, mixed, $2 @ 4; stockers and feeders, $3.50@4.40; calves and yearlings, $3.50@4.70. Hogs, $4.80@4.85; bulk, $4.80.

South St. Paul, Feb. 12. — Hogs — $4.80@4.90. Cattle—Stockers, $3@4.25; heifers, $2@3.40; canners, $2.40 @ 3; bulls, $2.70@3. Sheep, $4.25 @ 4.35; lambs, $6@6.25.

HANGED BY A MOB

After Having Been Found Not Guilty of Murder by a Jury.

Port Arthur, Tex., Feb. 12.—James Sweeney, white, was lynched at 1 o'clock this morning. Sweeney was a cotton screwman foreman, and had killed Charles Crumbach, a fellow laborer, by jamming a bayonet through his neck. The crime was committed on the afternoon of Feb. 1 in a room with no witness present, and is said to have resulted from a saloon fight that took place a few hours previously. Last Monday Sweeney was indicted for murder in the first degree. He was placed on trial at Beaumont, Tex., Friday and last night the jury returned a verdict of not guilty. As soon as he was released Sweeney returned to port Arthur, arriving here at 12:30 this morning. Word had been telegraphed ahead that he was coming and a mob met him at the depot, marched him up town and strung him up to a telephone pole without ceremony.

PUPIL OF THE EYE TATTOOED.

Peculiar Operation at Miami College Restores Optic's Lost Color.

Cincinnati, Feb. 12. — Miss Ada Dubrus, of the Highlands, back of Newport, has had the color of the pupil of her eye restored by tattooing with India ink at the Miami medical college, after suffering a three day's ordeal. Years ago an ulcer, involving the cornea, had encroached upon the pupil, leaving an unsightly white scar.

MERCHANTS ALLEGE FRAUD.

Chicago Man Is Arrested on a Charge of Swindling.

Chicago, Feb. 12.—A. Love was arrested on the charge of defrauding mercantile houses in various cities of goods by representing himself as a commission man. Firms in New York, Kansas City and Pittsburg made the complaints that caused Love's arrest. He refuses to discuss the charges against him.

Shot From Ambush.

St. Louis, Feb. 12. — J. Scheutz, a wealthy St. Louis county wine grower, was shot from ambush and mortally wounded last night while seated near a window reading a newspaper at his home, a few miles northwest of Clayton. Who the would-be murderer could be or why the attempt on Mr. Scheutz's life was made are regarded as mysterious. The bullet struck Mr. Scheutz in the head.

Postoffice Burglarized.

Athens, Ga., Feb. 12.—The postoffice was burglarized yesterday morning. Every letter in the office was opened. It is not known how much money was secured. Several bank checks were found on the floor. The registered letters were in a safe and were not molested.

Sentenced for Election Frauds.

Philadelphia, Feb. 12. — Samuel R. Markeley, Joseph S. Hogan and Frank Taylor, alias Price, were sentenced to imprisonment for two years in the Eastern penitentiary, and to pay a fine of $500 each for frauds perpetrated at the November election.

Largest Creamery in the World.

Sioux City, Feb. 12. — The largest creamery in the world commenced business in Sioux City this week. The plant is the property of the Hanford-Hazelton company. Within the next fortnight the entire plant will be finished and 21,000 pounds of butter turned out daily.

Croker Again Able to Walk.

London, Feb. 12.— Richard Croker has almost recovered from his accident. He has discarded his crutches and now walks with a stick. For the first time since his leg was broken he was driven into Wantage.

TAYLOR WON'T SIGN

REPUBLICAN LEADER PLACES FAITH IN COURTS.

He Recalls the Legislature, Withdraws the Troops, but Declines to Sign the Peace Agreement—Fight Practically Falls Back to the Same Conditions Controlling When Goebel Was Shot—Republicans Will Try to Have the Contest Taken Up in the Federal Court.

Frankfort, Ky., Feb. 12.—William S. Taylor has decided to allow his deposal from office, if his enemies have the power, at the hands of partisan election tribunals and civil courts. He has ordered the troops withdrawn from the capitol, and every opportunity will be given the Democratic majority of the general assembly to run the issue to a close as it sees fit.

Every step taken, however, he will vigorously contest, and on the biased legislative bodies will be laid the blame, if removal from office results, of the unseating of the executive who was declared elected by the official count of the votes cast. This course of action was announced after a spirited two hours' conference with almost 100 of his friends from every section of the state. By this decision the fight for the governor's chair practically falls back to the same conditions controlling when Goebel, the Democratic claimant, was shot, when the general assembly was adjourned and military occupation of the capitol ordered. Gov. Taylor has made no compromise and has not signed the peace agreement drafted at Louisville by representatives of both parties. Though he is not sanguine of federal court interferance, his followers will not leave any channel untried by which final decision in the contest may come from this judiciary. Every act of the Democratic majority of the legislature will be chalenged before the civil courts of the state, and Gov. Taylor will sit as Kentuck's executive until the last resource may fail to hold him in office.

Statement by Gov. Taylor.

Gov. Taylor explained his position in a formal statement issued from the executive mansion, he having retired to his home:

"I have only this to say: After mature deliberations and conference with my friends from every section of the state, I have concluded to allow this controversy to take its due course, vigorously contesting every inch of ground and upholding the rights of the people to the uttermost. If those rights be destroyed the responsibility for that destruction must rest with those who sit in judgment. It is due to say that the eminent gentlemen, my friends, who secured the propositions resulting from the Louisville conference, acted in perfect good faith, from the highest motives of patriotism, and did the best they could."

Democratic managers quietly announce that they have been outgeneraled. They are angry because the peace protocol, insuring full victory for them, has been thrown aside. The refusal of their legislature, established at Louisville, to meet here to-day, when the soldiers will have left Frankfort, is regarded as evidence of a further bitter fight.

At the close of the conference an order was issued recalling the members of the legislature from London.

All day Sunday troops poured out of Frankfkort on special trains and at night only the soldiers from Covington, Newport, Lexington and Morgantown were camped in the capitol square. The leaving of the troops was the only feature in the political situation in Frankfort yesterday. Gov. Taylor remained quietly in the executive mansion and did not visit his office, giving himself a day of rest, of which he stood greatly in need.

TRY THE FEDERAL COURT.

Republicans Will Seek to Have the Contest Settled There.

Louisville, Ky., Feb. 12. — It is reported here that the Republicans will this week seek to bring the contest for the offices of governor and lieutenant governor before the federal court. Former Gov. Bradley, chief counsel for the Republicans in their application before Judge Taft to restrain the state election commissioners from proceeding with the contests for the minor offices, was in town yesterday afternoon in consultation with leading Republican lawyers. The case involving the minor offices comes up to-day at Cincinnati, and it is believed the other case will also be taken before Judge Taft, though it is not likely anything will be done before Tuesday. On that day the application of the Democrats for an injunction to restrain Gov. Taylor from interfering with the legislature will come up in the circuit court at Frankfort. The case has been continued from time to time by the Democrats pending peace negotiations. It is expected a temporary injunction will be granted. The case will then be taken to the court of appeals, the state court of last resort. Upon whether or not an appeal to the federal court will lie depends the Republican hope of relief from that quarter. Gov. Beckham, Senator Blackburn and their associates in the Democratic state government passed a quiet day. The legislature will remain here at least until it has received a report from its committee which it is believed will be appointed to-day to investigate conditions in Frankfort. From talk among the members it is not believed they will return to the capital while soldiers are about the state buildings.

Found Guilty.

Faribault, Minn., Feb. 12. — E. B. Ford, editor of the Referendum, was tried before Justice Donahoe for libel, preferred by Miss Belle Van Eman, a teacher. He was found guilty and was fined $100 or ninety days in jail. He gave notice of an appeal.

Caught in a Wheel.

Ashland, Wis., Feb. 12.—Philip Boleaux, an employe of Shaw's tannery at Mellen, was instantly killed while at work, his clothing being caught in a moving wheel.

St. Hilaire Spectator.

ST. HILAIRE, - MINNESOTA.

When a man has advice to give he is seldom stingy with it.

To do what is right at the right time is the heritage of every human being.

The laborer is all right in his place, but the loafer is too lazy to look for a place.

When you have occasion to question a man's veracity, it is usually advisable to use a telephone.

If some people would tell what they know instead of what they believe they wouldn't have so much to say.

The new governor of Mississippi is opposed to lynching. Monotony is finally having its logical effect in that state.

The enterprising newspaper sensationalists who caught Aguinaldo the other afternoon have evidently turned him loose again.

It is said that an eel can live without water for eighteen days. Some people may doubt this, but the true Kentuckian fails to see anything remarkable in the statement.

The germ of honorable fame is a part of every boy. Cultivate it and it will surprise folks how quick it will grow. It is the only part of us that can neither be stunted by old age nor dimmed by our death.

The duke of Marlborough has gone to the front with four war horses, four extra steeds to carry luggage, two valets, two footmen and two coachmen, a dog cart and a carriage, plenty of wines and cigars and unlimited choice provisions. That outfit would look truly awe-inspiring pounding along a South African road in the early dawn with a crowd of whiskered burghers in full cry close behind.

A French writer who grossly insulted Queen Victoria in a scurrilous pamphlet has been sent to jail by a French judge. Small sympathy will be wasted upon the imprisoned scribe, and England as well as other countries will give France due credit for prompt and proper action in the matter. England has not many sympathizers in her present effort at robbery in the Transvaal, but the queen is above any kind of reproach. She has nothing to do with the crime.

Miss Sewell, the English lady who wrote that charming autobiography of a horse entitled "Black Beauty," sold the manuscript to a publisher for twenty pounds. Chiefly through the efforts of the American Humane Society, more than two millions of copies have been put in circulation. Mr. Angell, editor of Our Dumb Animals, who has procured the printing of two hundred and twenty thousand copies, is now directing its translation into various languages. If the horses could but know their benefactor!

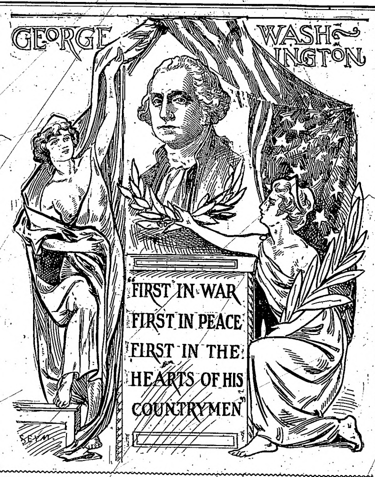
Within the last few years a great change has come over the shipping of the great lakes. New steamers of large tonnage and vast carrying capacity have been gradually substituted for the fleet of small vessels that have engaged in lake commerce since 1818, when the first steamboat sailed from Buffalo to Detroit. But the coming years are to witness even greater changes. Saturday a new steamer, the John W. Gates, the largest ever constructed on the lakes, was launched at Lorain, Ohio. This vessel has been built for the American Steamship company, which already owns some of the largest vessels that ply between Buffalo, Chicago and Duluth. It is 500 feet long and is the first that has been completed of four of equal length and tonnage. These large vessels are expected greatly to economize time and expense in transporting the heavy lines of freight.

Mrs. Leland Stanford states that she has now disposed of every vestige of the enormous fortune bequeathed to her by the late Senator Stanford, and has recently signed deeds transfering all his real estate to the trustees of Leland Stanford university. This includes the largest cattle ranches, horse-breeding establishments and vineyards in the world, with various farms, country houses and large tracts of wild land. The deed covered sixty-six pages of typewritten manuscript, and required $7,000 in internal revenue stamps. Mrs. Stanford had previously transferred to the trustees of the university all her personal estate, embracing stocks and bonds valued at $15,000,000, and, so far as actual ownership of property is concerned, she is now as destitute as on the day on which she was born. She has a contract, however, with the trustees, under which she is to receive for life an annuity of $25,000, to be used as she pleases, and all her relatives were liberally provided for in Mr. Stanford's will.

A Chicago messenger boy caught three footpads while engaged in the work of holding up a victim, followed them, pointed them out to the police and saw them safely in prison before he went on his way with his message. That boy will have no future use for the nickel novel or the marvelous adventures of the novel's youthful hero. He knows in his own heart that he has all the boy sleuths of fiction discounted and that the reality of such an act as his cannot be duplicated by any of the "thrilling" and "positively great" writers.

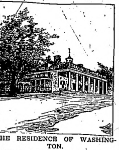
One of the Cape Nome pioneers—a truthful person from Kokomo, Ind.—says he scratched $3,000,000 out of the seashore, armed with nothing but his fingers and a penknife. This miner was fairly lucky, but the fortunes of the Vanderbilts would have been small indeed to his wealth had he but taken fifty enterprising American hens along to do the scratching.

One of Michigan's delinquent officials has dropped hiding out and has resorted to tears. His female friends will doubtless send him a few flowers.



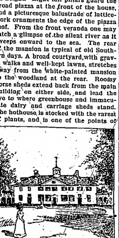
WHERE WASHINGTON LIVED.

A wealth of historic recollection hovers about the world-famous Mount Vernon, where Washington, the first president of the American republic, lived and died. The magnificent old estate on the banks of the Potomac river, but a short distance from the capital city, annually attracts thousands of visitors from all over the earth—visitors whose chief aim when coming to Washington for the first time is to look upon the spot where the "Father of His Country" spent his life. No one could conceive a more charming spot for the location of a mansion at once so grand and so historic. High above the southern bank of the river Potomac the estate is located. It rests on the highest part of the hilly territory which characterizes the vicinity, and the mansion with its barns and surrounding buildings is half hidden from the gaze of river pilgrims by stately trees which have stood there scores upon scores of years. Closely trimmed lawns and carefully pruned shrubbery give an added touch of beauty to the environments of the old-time mansion and the snug-clipped hedges which surround the court at the rear of the house remind one strongly of the days gone by.



THE RESIDENCE OF WASHINGTON.

Mount Vernon is an imposing relic of the century past; a reminder of the days when colonial architecture was at its height. Eight tall pillars guard the broad piazza at the front of the house, and a picturesque balustrade of latticework ornaments the edge of the piazza roof. From the front veranda one may catch a glimpse of the silent river as it sweeps onward to the sea. The rear of the mansion is typical of old Southern days. A broad courtyard, with gravel walks and well-kept lawns, stretches away from the white-painted mansion to the woodland at the rear. Roomy horse sheds extend back from the main building on either side, and lead the eye to where greenhouse and immaculate dairy and carriage sheds stand. The hothouse is stocked with the rarest of plants, and is one of the points of interest which always attracts visitors. The stable wherein is kept the famous chariot in which Washington rode is another attraction for the excursionists, and although the coach is fast dropping into a state of dilapidation, and is so shaky that no one is allowed to touch it, it remains a point of great interest nevertheless. Down near the steamboat landing, where the crowds of sightseers are landed from the river steamers, is the tomb wherein are interred the remains of Washington and his wife, the caskets encased in marble sarcophagi, and kept from the public by means of iron bars over the doorway of the otherwise open tomb.



THE COURTYARD.

The interior of the mansion is filled with relics of the great man who lived there, and from papers in his own handwriting to the bed on which he died, mementoes of Washington are everywhere.

The Washington Monument.

Oh, pure, white shaft upspringing to the light
With one grand leap of heavenward-reaching might,
Calmly against the blue forevermore
Lift thou the changeless type of souls that soar
Above the common dust of sordid strife
Into the radiant ether of a life
Shepherded by the vastness of eternity!
A hero's quickening spirit lifteth thee
Unto the skies that claim thee for their own:
In those vast fields of light, sublime, alone,
High commune holdest thou with the young day,
With sunset's glowing heart ere twilight gray
Hath stilled its throbbing fires, and with dim night
That folds thee softly in the silver light
Of many a dreaming moon. In majesty,
Serene, like the great name enshrined in thee,
Thou dost defy the all-destroying years.
Smite with thy still rebuke our craven fears!
Point us forever to the highest height,
And in our nation's peril-hours shine white
With thy mute witness to the undying power
Of the high soul that lives above the hour!

—Julia Larned, in the February Scribner's.

Followed No Creed.

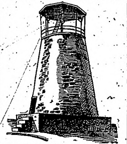
One of the most characteristic of Washington's traits one that a student of his character expects to find, is the indifference with which he treated religious controversy. He was the most tolerant of men. Tom Paine, hounded to death by priests and people, never received anything but real kindness from him, and although in a fit of "righteous anger" he spurned the dedication of the deist's famous or infamous attack on Christianity, going even so far as to order the public hangman to burn the book, it is doubtful if in his heart he cherished any real disdain. He had been born and bred in the Established Church; it never occurred to him to inquire into the why and wherefore of any religious dogma. This easy-going tolerance perhaps contributed as much as anything to his success; for even as he was not sufficiently orthodox an Episcopalian to antagonize the sects, so his broad, all-embracing Christianity could forgive even the unbeliever. And it is not indubitable that he had not thought. Some men have there been whose greatness has lain in that they held their tongue.

Washington As a Youth.

The early age at which Washington developed the tender passion has been noticed. In fact, it was despair at the uncompromising attitude of a certain "Lowland Beauty" that he fled to the domain of Lord Fairfax, afterward his patron. The noble gentleman had left England and buried himself in the wilderness on account of a disappointed passion; perhaps George, who was then coming fifteen, felt there might be a bond between two such "wounded hearts," at any rate, before he had been many months under Fairfax's eye, just as he was completing his sixteenth year, he set out on a surveying expedition. The Englishman's ground included thousands of acres of the most fertile country in the world, extending in a wide strip from the sea to the Alleghanies. It was no small sign of confidence to allow a youth to lay out such a country. This position is merely a sample of the many important places he held. At 19 he was major of the Virginia militia; at 21 he commanded an important expedition to Du Quesne. Small wonder is it that his first love came so young.

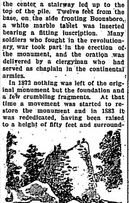
FIRST MONUMENT TO WASHINGTON.

For the second time since its erection in 1827 the first monument ever raised to the memory of George Washington is in ruins. It was originally built by the united efforts of the people of Boonsboro, Md., on the top of South Mountain, a lofty cliff commanding a wide view of the surrounding country. On July 4, 1827, almost all the adult population of the village, headed by a band, marched up the steep path to the top of the mountain and there went to work. There were stonemasons and builders among them, and every man did his best to help. The foundation had been laid previously, but on that one day the entire superstructure of the monument was built. It is fifty-four feet in circumference at the base and fifteen feet high, composed of a wall made up of large stones, the interior being filled with the same material. In the center a stairway led up to the top of the pile. Twelve feet from the base, on the side fronting Boonsboro, a white marble tablet was inserted bearing a fitting inscription. Many soldiers who fought in the revolutionary war took part in the erection of the monument, and the oration was delivered by a clergyman who had served as chaplain in the continental armies.



FIRST MONUMENT TO WASHINGTON AS BUILT.

In 1872 nothing was left of the original monument but the foundation and a few crumbling fragments. At that time a movement was started to restore the monument and in 1883 it was rededicated, having been raised to a height of fifty feet and surrounded by an iron framework and balcony. The site of the monument is so exposed, however, that even the restored structure has fallen a prey to the elements, so that now it is again in a condition of ruin. Historical investigation has shown that this was the first monument ever raised in honor of the Father of His Country, and a movement is again on foot to restore it to its original condition



FIRST MONUMENT TO WASHINGTON IN ITS PRESENT CONDITION.

BETSEY BLESSING.

The summer of the year 1776, when the American army was stationed in New York, the commander-in-chief, Gen. Washington, was indulging in a brief resting spell after dinner when he was approached by an orderly, who saluted and said:

"A young woman who calls herself Betsey Ann Blessing would have speech with your excellency."

"Betsey Ann Blessing?" repeated Washington, with a momentary show of irritation; "who is she, and why may she not defer her business till the morrow? I warrant me that her lover is a prisoner of war, and she is ready to swear that he is a loyal whig! What think you, Holdfast?"

"If it please your excellency, she is well favored, as far as I could know from her crying, for she is in sore trouble."

"Aye! I am a true soothsayer! Crying, is she? Show her in, Holdfast, and see that the guard trouble her not. I misdoubt my own judgment in giving audience to strangers in these troublous times. It mayhap that Mistress Blessing prove a traitor in disguise."

The orderley soon returned, ushering in a girl so young she appeared like a child, and indeed acted like one, for no sooner did she stand in the presence of the great man than she seized his hand—that hand of stalwart proportions—and dropping on her knees kissed it with the ardor of a devotee. Meanwhile the tears streamed down her face in piteous torrents, and her form shook with suppressed emotions.

Washington had a tender heart, and he was greatly distressed by this unusual scene.

"Now, Mistress Blessing," said Washington, in his kindest manner, "tell me what brings you hither, and what your errand may be?"

"I came hither to save your excellency's life!" was the startling response.

It is a matter of history that Gen. Washington never disdained the simplest detail of army news, also that dispatches of the greatest importance were brought to him in the most trivial way. Instead, then, of laughing at the apparent presumption of this weeping girl, he bade her tell him everything, promising her immunity from punishment in case her news was not as weighty as she anticipated.

Thus encouraged, she began her story.

"On the morow your excellency is to dine with several officers of your command, under guard?"

"How do you know that, girl?" asked Washington, much surprised.

"Your excellency will lay certain plans against the enemy before the company?"

"Proceed!" commanded Washington, sternly.

"Among the dishes set before your excellency will be a new vegetable, of which you are very fond."

"Ah," laughed the general, "you have lost or forgotten an order from the kitchen. Here indeed is a new version of the mountain and the mouse!"

"I know not, gracious sir, what meaning that hath of the mountain and the mouse," cried Betsey, "but if a mess of green peas be served at table on the morrow, I beg and beseech you, sir, not to taste of them!"

"Wherefore, Mistress Blessing?" asked Washington, in his sternest manner.

"The peas will be poisoned!"

"How do you know this?" demanded the general, in the tone which made his soldiers quail when they heard it. "Speak, and see that you trifle not with me. Nay, child, do not fear! If what you say be true, not you, but the traitor who planned the dastardly deed, shall suffer!"

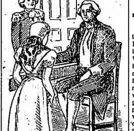
"No, no!" retorted the trembling girl, "no one must suffer! Is it not enough that I have dared to come into a lion's jaws to tell of the deed to insure safety for the designer thereof? Now that I have warned your excellency, permit me to retire from your distinguished presence."

Gen. Washington gave a signal, and instantly an armed guard of soldiers responded.

"Arrest this girl!" he said, sternly, "and keep her under guard until such time as she sends for me to confess her fault!"

"That will I never, though I die in prison!" was the defiant reply, as the girl, who had entered bowed and weeping, raised her head proudly and walked out with the soldiers like a young queen.

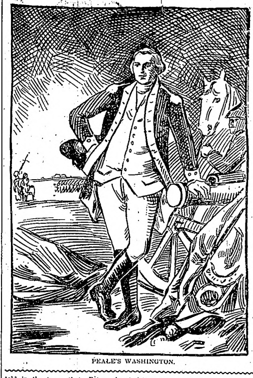
All was tumult in the kitchens at Richmond Hill, and cooks were running about getting into one another's way, when a fair-haired youth in the garb of a serving-man loitered in and made his way unobserved to the great fireplace, where he uncovered the skillets in which the vegetables were simmering on the hearth. When he came to that one containing the peas he dropped in a handful of some condiment and instantly took his departure.



"NOW, MISTRESS BLESSING, WHAT BRINGS YOU HITHER?"

His next appearance was under the window of that room in which Mistress Blessing was incarcerated.

"H-i-s-t! Sweetheart! The dose is ready. Keep heart until the morrow, when I will myself release thee to ride pick-a-back on my roan horse. It is told in the town that Betsey Ann Blessing is arrested for a spy! Keep up your courage, sweetheart!"

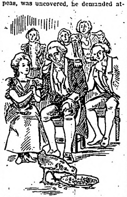


PEALE'S WASHINGTON.

"If you would befriend me, betake yourself to some safer place," whispered Betsey's voice through the barred window far above him. "A halter will be ready for your neck if you are seen or suspected, and, listen, if your dose takes effect, you are no longer lover of mine!"

The youth went away, grumbling about all being fair in love and war.

If Washington was different from his usual self at that historic dinner, the fact was not even recorded. There was much secret discussion of weighty affairs with his guests, and he gave close attention to the viands set before him. It was not, however, until the vegetables were served that he made any allusions to the food. When his favorite vegetable, a dish of green peas, was uncovered, he demanded attention, and when all was silent, remarked in a loud voice:



PARTOOK EAGERLY OF THE PEAS.

"There is death in the pot!"

A great excitement ensued; the guests, who were in full uniform, drew their swords, and murmurs of "Death to the traitor!" were heard on every side.

Then Washington sent for Mistress Blessing, who came with a defiant light in her eye, and was given the seat of honor at her host's right hand. She took it with a dignity that called forth approving and admiring comments. Soldiers are proverbially gallant, and those of "'76" were no exception to the rule.

A servant was next sent out by the commander-in-chief on a peculiar errand. He returned, bringing with him a live and particularly active chicken, which partook eagerly of the dish of peas.

And in five minutes by the watch it lay dead in their midst.

Betsey Ann Blessing married her lover, after turning him into a patriot, and Washington himself gave away the bride. How much he knew remained his own secret, but green peas never afterward graced his table or were alluded to in his conversation.

PEALE'S PORTRAIT.

Interesting Facts Concerning the Picture and Its History.

The recent placing on exhibition in the main hallway of Independence hall, Philadelphia, opposite the old liberty bell, of the large full-length portrait of Washington, which is said to have been painted by the noted Philadelphia artist, Charles Wilson Peale, in 1781, has naturally attracted considerable attention from art connoisseurs and visitors to the hall, particularly as the painting has been hung in its present position with the announced object in view of its purchase for $9,000 by the city from the American Art association of New York, its present owner.

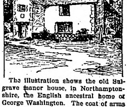
Since the picture has been placed in the old state house Charles Henry Hart of that city, the noted expert on historical painting, has discovered some very curious and interesting material regarding it. Among other things Mr. Hart has pointed out the fact that the painting is not an original from life, but a replica, one of several copies made by the artist and sold for thirty guineas each, or about $150. Mr. Hart has further stated that the original painting is still extant, and, moreover, in Philadelphia, hanging in the hallway of the country place of the late Thomas McKean, Germantown, and is in excellent condition. This picture was purchased at auction by Henry Pratt McKean in 1854 for $360.

Concerning the history of the copy of this picture now offered for sale to Philadelphia, the following is an extract from a communication received by Director Riter from Thomas E. Kirby of the American Art association:

"Replying to your inquiries in reference to the portrait of Gen. Washington by Charles Wilson Peale, now in our possession, we will state that the painting was purchased in Cadiz, Spain, in February, 1896, by our Paris agent, M. Montaignac. This painting for many years was in the hands of bankers in Cadiz, held as collateral, and although they knew the work to be the portrait of an American general, did not know it to be a portrait of our immortal Washington. M. Montaignac, in sending the work to us, states that the picture was ordered to be painted by Don Juan Marailles, Spanish minister to the United States in 1779, in connection with Gen. Washington's presence in Philadelphia. While Peale painted seven or eight similar portraits, we consider the one in our possession the finest sample he produced, and failing to find the slightest hint of retouching or restoration. We also believe that our portrait is the only one having the signature of artist and date (1781). Before sending the portrait to us our agent showed the picture in Paris, and we quote from a letter written by a well-known connoisseur, G. A. Lucas, an intimate friend of the late William H. Stewart of Philadelphia, the famous connoisseur:

"'Dear M. Montaignac: So much interested was I in the Peale portrait of Washington now in your possession that, after seeing it, I visited Versailles in order to examine one by the same artist which has been in the gallery for a great many years, and was glad to find that your portrait, according to my judgment, is superior to it both in execution of the figure and the accessories, the latter in the Versailles one having all the appearance of having been painted by another than that of Peale. The Versailles portrait is unsigned; yours bears the artist's signature. I hope, as you tell me its destination is America, that it will a permanent resting place in a public gallery, and it now occurs to me that a most fitting one would be Mount Vernon. I am always happy when I see "epaves" of our early history rescued from loss and destruction and finding a home in our country, where they may be always seen and fully appreciated and admired.'"

HOUSE OF ANCESTORS.



The illustration shows the old Sulgrave manor house, in Northamptonshire, the English ancestral home of George Washington. The coat of arms used by Washington may be descried over the doorway. No attempt has been made to restore the house, though it is cared for and kept from wilful destruction.

Surely Must Be Pleased.

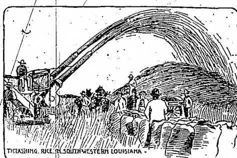
"What's the matter now?" asked the haruup landlord. "Don't you see, the plaster's all fallen off the ceiling?" said the tenant. "Well, now, I hope you're satisfied. The first thing you did after moving in was to complain about the ceilings being so low."—Stray Stories.

The Vegetarian's Heart.

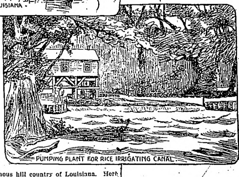
The heart of a vegetarian beats on an average 58 to the minute; that of the meat eater, 75. This represents a difference of 20,000 beats in twenty-four hours.

Genius only commands recognition when it has created the taste which is to appreciate it.—Froude.

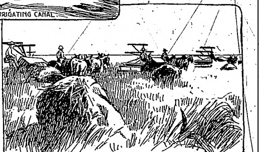
ARCADIA, THE BEAUTIFUL LAND.



THRASHING RICE IN SOUTH-WESTERN LOUISIANA



PUMPING PLANT FOR RICE IRRIGATING CANAL



HARVESTING RICE IN SOUTH-WESTERN LOUISIANA

Bayou Nez Pique, Acadia, La., correspondence: In Southern Louisiana you may sit under an "umbrella tree," look at green roses and eat white blackberries. You may watch the chameleon turn scarlet, blue, green, brown or gray, or hear the mocking bird pour forth its wild melody from the roof of a veranda, or see a flight of white cranes descend, like great snowflakes, on a distant ricefield.

This subtropical land, with its trees ghostly with Spanish moss, its bayous ablaze with scarlet leafage, out of whose fire of color leaps the Louisiana red bird; its pale green prairies, its intense sunlight, orange sunsets, swift twilight and brilliant moonlight, is weird and enchanting.

It looks as if it had been borrowed from a fairy book and did not belong to geography at all.

It is midwinter, yet the door yards of Acadia, St. Landry and Calcasieu parishes, are abloom with roses. Christmas trees of live oak or holly or mistletone, still bright in the little farm houses, were dressed on Christmas day with the fresh flowers gathered out of doors.

The umbrella tree is common. Every farmer has half a dozen to lend. It is easy to borrow the use of one on a rainy day, and as it is chained to the ground by its roots no one ever forgets to return it. Its branches radiate from the trunk like umbrella stays. Its foliage forms a waterproof covering like an umbrella top. Its trunk is the handle. It will keep on entirely dry in a subtropical storm. In summer it affords a perfect shade from the sun. A tramp once explained his wanderings through Louisiana by saying that he was a traveling tinker, mending umbrella trees.

The green rose, the only one I have ever seen, is not as large as the red rose, nor does it display its petals as fully, but it is distinctly a rose. If some northern floriculturist would develop this green rose further it might become a prized and unique bloom in the beautiful sisterhood of flowers. Boutonniers and bouquets of green roses might become a feature of St. Patrick's day in New York.

White blackberries are much esteemed in Acadia and Calcasieu, because they are superior in flavor to the black kind. Some regard them as a concession of nature to the color prejudice. They differ from the black blackberries mainly in complexion.

In Louisiana is what popularly is known as the "dishcloth plant." It produces a green pod, which yields, when opened, a large piece of cellular vegetable tissue, often used in kitchens as a "dishcloth."

The native horses and cattle in this part of the state formerly lived on sweet potatoes, grass and hay. When northern farmers came here to settle they found that the Creole ponies would not eat corn or oats. Both remained untouched in their feed boxes. In some cases the native horses had to be starved for days before they would touch either.

A northern farmer threw an ear of corn among a herd of wild cattle. They came up to it, looked at it, sniffed it, and walked away again. Not a steer would eat it. The colonists from the north inferred that to the horses and cattle of these parishes corn and oats were an acquired taste.

The bread fruit of Louisiana is the sweet potato. It will grow anywhere in any kind of soil. The varieties of sweet potatoes are almost innumerable. They yield from 200 to 500 bushels to the acre, and usually sell for fifty cents a barrel or twenty cents a bushel, though in seasons of scarcity they are thirty and even forty cents a bushel. They are the daily food of the farmers, and are fed to horses, cattle, swine and poultry. The Louisiana sweet potatoes are wholesome, but lack the fine flavor of those raised in Virginia. Irish potatoes are regarded here as a luxury, and the people have them on Sundays and holidays.

It is supposed generally in the north that Louisiana is a swamp country, a network of morass and bayou, and that there is little ground in its limits that is firm beneath one's feet. This is a mistake.

North of the Red river, in the northwestern part of the state, lies the famous hill country of Louisiana. Here the land is upheaved in innumerable little mountains, which rise sixty or seventy feet above the surrounding landscape. The highest peak in the state is in this wild district, and it towers 150 feet above the gulf of Mexico.

The hill country might make the mountaineers of the Alps or the Andes smile, but it is as serious a fact in this state as are the Highlands in Scotland or the Catskill mountains in New York. This mountainous country is the lumber belt. It is full of sawmills, and turns out vast quantities of handsome yellow pine lumber for the nothern market.

In the southwestern part of the state lies the Acadian country. It is a land of beautiful prairies and of magnificent yellow pine forests, that in the distance look blue. This is the upland of Louisiana, the foothills of the little Switzerland to the north. It is the rice belt and cattle country of the state.

In Acadia the prairies are small, being ten or twelve miles long and five or six miles wide. They are girded round by yellow pine forests, through which run bayous. It is a fertile parish, but not as pretty to the eye as Calcasieu. The Calcasieu prairie is the largest in the state—about fifty miles long and from five to forty miles wide. The parish itself, which is also the largest in the commonwealth, comprises 4,000 square miles, and is about two-thirds the size of Connecticut.

Here the land is firm and solid. In digging wells the farmers have to go deeper to find water than they do in Wisconsin. The land, which is now fifty or sixty feet above the gulf of Mexico, was once its bed, and contains a great deal of sand. The roads are sometimes dry within twelve hours after a semi-tropical rain. There is so little mud, except in proximity to rice marshes, that one may ride a bicycle along a highway covered with water.

This is the upland, and yet it is the rice country. The explanation is simple. From a foot to two feet under the soil lies a bed of clay which is impervious to water. Wherever land lies in a shallow saucer shape, so that its edges are slightly higher than its interior, the falling rain will fill it to the rim and form a marsh, because the water cannot percolate through the underlying bed of clay and escape. In Louisiana you often will find the low grounds hard and dry and marches on the ridges. This paradox puzzled the northern soldiers who were on Banks' Red river expedition. They were in a country in which they were likely to get lost.

The alluvial land which lies in the Mississippi bottom seems to be plantations part of the time and part of the time Mississippi river. Swamps are not unknown there.

"We are having a Louisiana blizzard," said a northern settler in Calcasieu parish. "The thermometer has fallen to 70 degrees above zero."

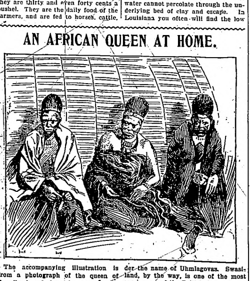
The children in the country go to school barefoot all winter. In a country school house, on a sharp midwinter day, there was only one child who wore shoes. All the children had shoes at home, but they did not care to wear them.

The well-to-do French farmer, with land by the league and cattle by the hundreds, with money buried in the ground or hidden in hollow trees or deposited in the bank, goes barefoot the year round, except when he visits the parish town. His winter dress is a straw hat, a calico shirt and a pair of blue cotton trousers. He goes without collar, cravat and shoes. His feet are as insensible to cold as are the hands of a northern man who never wears gloves. It is a common sight in Acadia, on a winter's day, to see a man from the north, in a heavy ulster, talking to a barefooted French farmer in his shirtsleeves.

Probably the school children here never saw a sled or a pair of skates, but it does get colder than 70 degrees above zero, for sometimes there is snow on the ground and ice strong enough to hold up the small children who slide on it.

Though the January sun is sometimes so uncomfortably warm as to make one move out of its rays, yet the air, owing to its high humidity, is often chill, and men accustomed to the sharp winters of the north find it uncomfortable to wear heavy overcoats in Louisiana all winter. To leave your winter clothes behind when you come south is a mistake. You will need them.

AN AFRICAN QUEEN AT HOME.



The accompanying illustration is from a photograph of the queen of Swaziland, and shows her majesty sitting in front of the samboti, or royal kraal, with a royal princess of the Swazis on either hand. This royal kraal is near Bremersdorp, and it is interesting to know that this is the first photograph ever taken of the queen, who is known to her people under the name of Uhmlagovas. Swasiland, by the way, is one of the most prosperous of the British dependencies in Africa, for, unlike their cousins, the Zulus, the Swasis prefer following agricultural and pastoral pursuits. They are a hospitable and democratic people, the women working in the fields along with the men, and both living on the fruits of their industry when they have passed middle life.

CHILDREN WHO WORK.

Increase in the Number in This Country.

Between 1870 and 1880 the amount of child labor in this country decidedly increased. In 1870, out of 5,604,000 children, between 10 and 15 years old, 739,000 were wage-earners; in 1880, out of 6,649,000 children of these ages, 1,118,000 were wage-earners. The last census changed the classification of children, so that exact comparisons are impossible. It reported that 7,033,000 children between 10 and 14 years old but 603,000 were at work, and on the basis of this report Commissioner Wright claims that a great gain has been made, says the Chautauquan. This, however, is doubtful, as 14 is precisely the age at which children are likely to leave the grammar schools and go to work. The employment of over 500,000 children under 14 in factories, shops and mines demands serious national attention. In the mining regions of Pennsylvania boys of 12 are taken out of school and put to work for ten hours a day at the breakers, picking slate from coal; and in the south boys and girls are taken from school before they are 10 and set to work for twelve hours a day in the cotton mills that are being scattered over the country. The argument often made that child labor deprives parents of employment is not usually a valid one. It is true that in cotton-factory towns hardly any man over 40 is at work, and his little children are in factories, while he "totes" the meals. But this is largely due to the fact that the fingers of the father are no longer nimble, and that there is rarely employment in the neighborhood of a cotton factory to which he can turn his hand. While industry is diversified the labor of a factory worker's children no more keeps him from working than the labor of children on the farm keeps the farmers from working. Wages the children earn cannot be spent without paying for the labor of some one else. This labor, therefore, is not the embarrassment to the employment of parents it is often asserted to be. As a rule, its worst effect upon the labor of adults is by increasing the number of those seeking jobs, without increasing the number of those giving them, and thus slightly reducing the level of wages. These material conditions, however, are of minor importance. The ground upon which child labor is to be prohibited is not the right of adults to be protected against competition, but the right of the child to be fitted for competition which he must meet in after life.

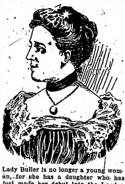
THE CHINESE NEW YEAR.

No Disgrace So Great as an Unpaid Debt on New Year's Day.

The New Year's festival of the Chinese, said to be the most complete holiday season kept by any nation on earth, is celebrated wherever a single Chinaman is found, whether in Pekin or New York. It is a movable festival, falling upon any date between Jan' 31 and Feb. 19. Preparations for the great holiday season begin weeks beforehand. The accumulated dirt of many months disappears as if by magic. Even the Chinaman himself passes through the cleaning process, washing his clothes and bathing his person—the latter being a great event in the lives of a few, since it occurs but once a year. Buildings of every description are elaborately decorated. Flowers are in great demand, the favorite being the Chinese narcissus. The prospect of happiness for the year is believed to be in proportion to the number of flower-stalks produced from a single bulb. During the closing days of the old year Chinese streets present a busy and animated scene. Shops are thronged with customers eagerly laying in large quantities of food, clothing and New Year's gifts. Debtors and creditors are seen hurrying to and fro, endeavoring to settle their accounts, for according to a most commendable custom all debts must be paid or settled in some satisfactory manner before the New Year dawns. To meet these liabilities shopkeepers offer their goods at unheard-of prices, and families frequently part with odd bits of bric-a-brac, curious relics and valuable ornaments for a sum pitifully small. No disgrace is equal to being found on New Year's morning with an unpaid debt. On the other hand, the creditor who fails to collect his debts at this time may not press them again for many months. He therefore pursues his creditor far into the night, continuing his search into the New Year's day, if necessary. This he may do if he carries a lighted lantern to indicate that he is still engaged in last night's business and has not discovered that the day has dawned!—Women's Home Companion.

WIFE OF GEN. BULLER.

The accompanying picture is from the latest photograph of Lady Audrey Buller, the talented and gracious wife of the English general who has been fighting the Boers in South Africa.



Lady Buller is no longer a young woman, for she has a daughter who has just made her debut into the London social world. She has, nevertheless, shown herself one of the most energetic of the many English noblewomen who have been interesting themselves in alleviating the sufferings of the English sick and wounded at the Cape. Owing to the recent severity of the fighting there seems plenty of opportunity ahead for all such relief work.

Fortunes Awaiting Missing Americans.

While many people have been swindled by the dazzling prospect of a great fortune awaiting them in England, it appears to be true that there are large sums of money in the English courts which might be secured by the presentation of proper proof on the part of heirs now supposed to be living in the United States. The heirs of David Ryan, for instance, who left for America in 1861, and served in the civil war, have a considerable fortune waiting them; John H. Cock, who came to this country in 1873, is also invited to claim funds; Julia Mayfield, who left Liverpool in 1861, is another missing legatee. The heirs of George Urquart, once a blacksmith of Glasgow, and who afterwards emigrated to California, are wanted, as are Richard Mellon, alias Smith, last herd of as traveling as a professional prize fighter in the United States; Frank Gould, last located in Iowa, and F. W. Cockram.

Use for Both.

Stubb—Which do you think is of the most importance—brain or bone and sinew? Penn—Well, it depends on who you are; if you are an inventor, brain, if you are a butcher, bone and sinew.

FOR BOYS AND GIRLS.

SOME GOOD STORIES FOR OUR JUNIOR READERS.

Rover and the Churn — They Ate the Buttons — Only a Spider, but It Helped the French to Win a Great Battle—Dust Baths.

Winter in the City.

We sit within the gaslit room
As evening wears along,
By the steam heater's iron side—
We hear its clanking song.
And underneath our gravest word
Or lightest laugh that rang,
We hear the heater sizzle,
Oh we hear the steam go bang!

Our fathers love to tell us
Of long past nights of mirth,
When chestnuts in the shovel popped
And apples on the hearth.
We buy our roasted chestnuts now,
And when our apples bake
'Tis in a gas-stove oven
Of the very latest make.

They tell how when, as now, it snows,
Orchard and field were white,
And fences huddled 'neath the drift,
That deepened through the night.
We have our drifts as well, for see
Out in the whirling snow
How high upon the fire-escape
The fluffy masses grow!

They tell how, bed-time being come,
They raked the ashes low,
Put on a green log then, and left
The quiet cheery glow.
Each took his candle to depart
And climbed the ancient stair,
(Turn off the heat, put out the gas),
What queer old times they were!
—Florence E. Pratt.

Rover and the Churn.

At our home, said a North Alabama street woman, we have the best-mannered, best-natured dog I ever knew. We have not allowed the boys to teach him any tricks, and thus, while we have made life pleasant to him, he, in return, has suffered life to be pleasant to us. When I was a child on the farm we had a Scotch collie, a handsome, knowing dog. One day a Yankee peddler came along and sold father a treadmill. He showed how to put the dog in the mill to do the churning. The boys of the family, who had previously had to churn, thought this new arrangement was admirable, as it gave them more time to play, but to do them justice they did feel some sympathy for the dog, who was compelled to do this part of their work. Rover, that was the dog, soon came to know when churning day came and would sneak off to hide under the barn, whence he would be dragged to his task. His cheerful, playful disposition was gone and he became surly and snappish. One day he disappeared, and we heard of him miles away down the road following a couple of tramps. His absence had its effect on all the family, and whenever his name was mentioned we young ones could scarcely keep from crying. Rover was gone about two weeks. One morning we saw him crawling through the fence, not jumping over it, as had been his custom, heading for the back porch. The treadmill stood on the porch in its accustomed place, and, to our astonishment, the poor fellow, who looked as if he had seen all manner of bad treatment, including starvation, got into the machine, as much as to say, "Well, here I am; I have come back to you ready to take up my task again for the sake of being with you." Mother brushed a tear from her eye as she patted the dear fellow on the back, and we children cried outright. There wasn't much sentiment then and there to the woodpile, and, with all the family looking on, including Rover, he chopped the thing to pieces.

Some Smart Crows.

In the inn garden I saw a dog eating a piece of meat in the presence of several covetous crows. They evidently said a great deal to each other on the subject, and now and then one or two of them tried to pull the meat away from him, which he resented. At last a big strong crow succeeded in tearing off a piece, with which he returned to the pine, where the others were congregated, and after which earnest speech they all surrounded the dog, and the leading bird dextrously dropped the small piece of meat within reach of his mouth, when he immediately snapped at it, letting go the big piece unwisely for a second, on which two of the crows flew away with it to the pine, and with much fluttering and hilarity the all ate, or rather gorged it, the deceived dog looking vacant and bewildered for a moment, after which he sat under the tree and barked at them inanely. A gentleman told me that he saw a dog holding a piece of meat in like manner in the presence of three crows, which also vainly tried to tear it from him, and after a consultation they separated, two going as near as they dared to the meat, while the third gave the tail a bite sharp enough to make the dog turn around with a squeak, on which the other villains seized the meat, and the three fed triumphantly upon it on the top of the wall.—Our Animal Friends.

Dust Baths.

Some birds use water only, some water and dust, while others prefer dust and no water in their toilet. Birds are not only nice in the choice of bath water, but also very particular about the quality of their toilet dust. Wild ducks, though feeding by salt water, prefer to bathe in fresh-water pools, and will fly long distances inland to running brooks and ponds, where they preen and dress their feathers in the early hours of the morning. Sparrows bathe often, both in water and in dust. They are not so particular about the quality of water as about the quality of the dust. The city sparrow must take a water bath where he can get it. Road dust, the driest and finest possible, suits him best. Patridges prefer dry loam. They like to scratch out the soil from under the grass, and fill their feathers with cool earth. Most birds are fond of ashes. Take a walk some early morning across a field where bonfires have burned, and see the numbers of winged creatures that rise suddenly from the ash heaps. A darting form, a small cloud of ashes, and the bathers disappear.

The Shark's Mouth.

No doubt the shark's mouth is placed so much beneath the projecting muzzle, under which also the nostrils lie, that it may serve its proper purpose in the best way. In all records of the habits of this fish we are told that it can, and does, bite out large chunks of flesh from the dead bodies of whales, and even from living victims of its attack; and it is easily seen that if its mouth was like those of other fishes the necessary leverage would be lacking. A further reason seems to be that the shark by this peculiar position of its mouth is compelled to turn upon its back to strike, and is thus able to deliver its onset from below with more deadly effect. This formidable strength of jaw is backed up by a most terrible array of teeth, of which in some species there are as many as six rooms all round. Each tooth is sawedged and pointed, and some of the largest are as much as two inches in breadth at their base. These lie flat against the jaws, and can be raised by separate muscles at will, so that, as the shark darts upon its prey, they spring on end, as a cat's claws are stuck out from its paws. This arrangement will not allow anything once bolted to return, so that a shark's mouth is a veritable death-trap.

To Be Gentlemen.

The students of the Waterloo high school of Auburn, Ind., have subscribed to the following rules of propriety, which makes quite a departure from the usual rowdyism of college boys: 1. We will not communicate nor ask to communicate while in the school building. 2. We will keep refined positions in our school seats. 3. We will cultivate a light step. 4. We will not ask for individual favors. 5. We will prepare all writing material in the morning. 6. We will make the schoolroom a place of quietude. These rules on general manners have also been signed: 1. We will not allow others to be more polite to us than we are to them. 2. We will not make ourselves odious in the use of tobacco. And here are some street manners: 1. We will, on passing people on the street, give them half of the walk. 2. We will not jeer at any one on the street or off the street. 3. We, the gentlemen, will tip our hats to the ladies. 4. We will avoid being boisterous wherever we may be. This novel plan for getting the observance of rules of good behavior has taken a strong hold on the children of all ages.

They Ate the Buttons.

Grandma could not believe her eyes! She had herself sewed buttons on Margaret's and Dorothy's new clothes. And now here they were, come to have their little waists and petticoats buttoned, and not a button to be seen! Grandma was sure they were good buttons, for she had taken them out of the package mamma brought home with a lot of shopping. The little girls, with laughing faces, stood in front of her, holding up their little clothes from dropping down, watching her astonishment. Then Dorothy said, "I'm going to 'fess, grandma." "And I, too," said Margaret. "We ate the buttons, grandma!" "Ate buttons! Oh, Margaret, you'll die! When did you do it? Answer quickly." "Oh, grandma, they were candy, and so good!" and Margaret smacked her rosy lips. "Dorothy wetted her finger to rub a speck of black off of one, and it tasted sweet, and then we bit one, and it was just like yellow taffy, and we ate them all up before the thought, and our clothes fell down, and please won't you forgive us?" Dear, white-haired grandma laughed till the tears ran down her cheeks. For mamma said she had bought the candy buttons for a joke, never dreaming grandma would be caught.

Only a Spider.

A spider was the direct cause of most serious loss and injury to the Dutch nation, at the time of the attack upon Holland by France in the year 1794. A French prisoner at Utrecht, who had spent some of his long, lonely hours in studying the habits of spiders on the walls of his cell, was able by watching them to forecast the coming of rain or of frost. At a time when a sudden thaw raised the prospects of the Dutch, and seemed to destroy the prisoner's hope of rescue by his countrymen, his humble friends upon the wall gave him sure signs of a renewal of the frost. Upon this he managed to send a message to assure the French generals within a few days their troops would be able to pass over the frozen waters, a prediction that was soon fulfilled, and so it came to pass that a spider was responsible for the release of Quartermaster Disjonval, and for the conquest of the Dutch.

The Wrong Bird.

One of the well-known magicians not long ago had a queer thing to happen, but the people in the theater had more fun out of it than he did. One of his tricks was to shake a sack to show that it was empty, and then to draw out of it an egg, after which he would always reach in again and bring out the hen that laid the egg. Of course he had to have help in this, and one night he had a new man who did everything just as he had been told, until it came to this act. Reaching into the bag he drew forth the fowl at the usual time, but instead of the hen an old rooster hopped down onto the stage ruffled its feathers and strutted around, crowing all his might, while the audience laughed, and the magician went out to hunt his new helper.

Java's Valley of Death.

In the island of Java is an oval-shaped hollow, near the summit of a mountain, about thirty-five feet in depth, and half a mile wide, which, from the deadly nature of its atmosphere, is known as the "Valley of Death," or the "Poison valley." This atmosphere is loaded with carbonic acid gas, and although not at once fatal to human beings, proves so to either dogs or fowls. The valley has seldom been explored much beyond its borders, as from there it is seen that the surface of the ground is strewn with the bones of tigers, pigs, deer and all kinds of birds, and also of human beings.

With the prospective retirement of Mr. Vest from political life at the end of his term, the last of the confederate senators will have gone.

There Was Sorrow There.

The colonel halted his horse in front of a Dakota dug out and uttered a vigorous "Hello!" and after a minute a tow-headed girl of about sixteen years of age showed up and looked him over and said:

"Now, then, what ye whoopin' fur and who be ye?"

"Can I get anything to eat here?"

"Not a thing."

"Any water for my horse?"

Our Increased Trade With China.

England can no longer compete with us in the shipment of many products to China. This is merely natural. The best wins in everything. For a like reason, Hostetter's Stomach Bitters has for fifty years acknowledged no superior, because there is nothing better to cure constipation, indigestion, dyspepsia and biliousness.

Her Reason.

"I often wonder why you don't get married."

"Because I'm too fond of men's society."—Life.

"Nature Abhors a Vacuum."

Nothing in the world stands still. If you are well and strong day by day the blood supplies its tide of vigor. If you are ill, the blood is wrong and carries increasing quantities of diseased germs. You cannot change Nature, but you can aid her by keeping the blood pure. Hood's Sarsaparilla does this as nothing else can. Be sure to get Hood's, because

Hood's Sarsaparilla
Never Disappoints

A Cinch.

Mrs. Kelly (1 a. m.)—How could yez get droonk widout a cint in your pocket?

Mr. Kelly—Whol, Rooney was talkin' war, Casey was talkin' politics and Hogan was talkin' baby! All I had to do was to kape me mouth shut!—Puck.

PRESIDENT KRUEGER AHEAD.

Pretoria, Transvaal, South Africa,
Dec. 7, 1899.

Messrs. Swanson Rheumatic Cure Company, Chicago, Ill., U. S. A.—Gentlemen: Your last shipment and communication received. I am very much pleased with the information which you have so kindly given me.

Please find enclosed bank draft to the amount of £412 10s. for which send me twenty-five (25) gross of Swanson's "5-DROPS." Ship same as before in order that there may be no delay, as this medicine will be greatly needed before it reaches us. The last shipment is almost disposed of, as the medical department of our army uses large quantities. This order is entirely for use in the army.

I have been told that our success on the battlefield is due to a certain extent to the use of "5-DROPS" Rheumatic Cure, which has relieved and prevented a great deal of suffering among our men from Rheumatism, Neuralgia and other acute pains caused by exposure. Your "5-DROPS" is as good as a Transvaal soldier!

In one of the battles, a small quantity of "5-DROPS," together with other medicines, was captured by the English, which was a great loss to our men. The Ruinecks won't do it again. I am, respectfully yours,

PETER HAAS.

"5-DROPS" is the most powerful specific known. Free from opiates and perfectly harmless. It is a perfect cure for Rheumatism, Sciatica, Neuralgia, Dyspepsia, Backache, Asthma, Catarrh, La Grippe, Neuralgic Headache, etc. Large sized bottles (300 doses), $1.00, or three (3) bottles for $2.50. Sample bottles 25 cents.

SWANSON RHEUMATIC CURE CO.,
160 to 164 E. Lake St., Chicago, Ill.

A Bad Break.

Nell—Mad at him? Why, he wrote a lovely poem to her.

Belle—Yes. But she never read it. When she saw the title of it she tore the whole thing up in a fit of anger. You see, he called it "Lines on Mabel's Face."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Read the Advertisements.

You will enjoy this publication much better if you will get into the habit of reading the advertisements; they will afford a most amusing study, and will put you in the way of getting some excellent bargains. Our advertisers are reliable; they send what they advertise.

A Congenial Style.

"I just heard of a good property for Senator Billy Mason to buy."

"What is it?"

"It's a country newspaper office, where they recently ran out of the capital U, and have to print United States like this—'united States.'"—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Thirty Days' Trial Absolutely Free.

We offer to each new student, enrolling at the beginning of the Spring Term, March 26th, 1900, thirty days' trial FREE in either our Preparatory, Normal, College, Commercial, Shorthand and Typewriting Departments. This offers a magnificent opportunity to test one of the most thoroughly practical colleges of Iowa. All expenses low.

Address at once for particulars: President J. F. Hirsch, Charles City, Ia.

A Brief Elevation.

"I was at the head of my class today, pa."

"That's good."

"Yes; teacher was illustratin' what it says in the Bible about th' last bein' first."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

$25 A WEEK TO AGENTS

Selling our new GAS LAMP. A Gas Plant. Brighter than electricity or Welsbach city gas. Cheaper than kerosene. 100 candle light, cent a day. Polished brass. Fully guaranteed. Retails $1.50. Big money maker. Live agents wanted everywhere. Standard Gas Lamp Co. 110 Michigan St., Chicago.

The student who takes up medicine finds it far more pleasing than taking it down.

His satanical majesty is probably the Nick of time we hear so much about.

TO CURE A COLD IN ONE DAY.

Take Laxative Bromo Quinine Tablets. All druggists refund the money if it fails to cure. 25c. E. W. Grove's signature on each box.

Habit is a sort of chattel mortgage on a man's individuality.

I believe my prompt use of Piso's Cure prevented quick consumption.—Mrs. Lucy Wallace, Marquette, Kan., Dec. 12, '95.

Some men ride a hobby merely for exercise.

THE MILLION DOLLAR POTATO

Most talked of potato on earth! Our Catalog tells—so also about Salzer's Earliest Six Weeks' Potato. Largest farm and vegetable seed growers in U.S. Potatoes, $1.20 and up a bbl. Send this notice and 5c. stamp for Big Catalog.

JOHN A. SALZER SEED CO. LA CROSSE, WIS.

WANTED Agents for a washday article of great merit. Free sample for the asking. SHAVER, BLAKE & COMPANY, Cedar Rapids, Ia.

Bank of St. Hilaire.

HANNAY & CO., Bankers.

Real-Estate Loans.

Chattel Loans.

Foreign & Domestic Xchange

INSURANCE.

Collections a Specialty.

A General Banking Business Transacted.

St. Hilaire, Minn.

Livery and Feed Stable!

DAN PATERSON, Prop.

Dray in Connection.

The finest equipped turnouts in the northwest. Safe drivers and furnished at a moments notice at reasonable rates. Don't forget the place

BIG - RED - BARN

Located on the east side of Broadway nearly opposite Rapp & Post's Store

ST. HILAIRE - - MINNESOTA

PATENTS DESIGNS TRADE-MARKS AND COPYRIGHTS OBTAINED

ADVICE AS TO PATENTABILITY FREE

Notice in "Inventive Age"
Book "How to obtain Patents"

Charges moderate. No fee till patent is secured.
Letters strictly confidential. Address,
E. G. SIGGERS, Patent Lawyer, Washington, D. C.

GET YOUR PICTURE TAKEN BY

D. COLLINS

THE

Photograper.

ST. HILAIRE, MINN.

IMPROVED

FARMS!

K. O. GIGSTAD has a large list of Improved Farms for sale. Also agent for the best fire and cyclone insurance company. Sick and accident insurance Co., and hail insurance.

Money to loan on improved farms at low interest. All collections are promptly attended to.

NOTARY PUBLIC.

Office east of the city well.

ST. HILAIRE, - - MINNESOTA.

2nd STORE

(SECOND HAND STORE.)

Everything in this line now on hand. Special bargains given. If you have anything to dispose of give me a call.

C. A. SKEIE.

ST. HILAIRE, - - MINNESOTA

FIRE INSURANCE

DO YOU NEED SOME?

The Best is the Cheapest.

I have nine of the best companies doing business in the State

Call for rates.

H. E. IVES.

CUSTOM WORK.

JUST LOOK AT THESE PRICES:

Roll Carding—per pound......5 cts
Spinning Single Yarn—per pound......15 c
Stocking Yarn—2 or 3 ply, per pound......20 c

LITCHFIELD WOOLEN MILLS.

LITCHFIELD, MINN.

50 YEARS' EXPERIENCE

PATENTS

TRADE MARKS
DESIGNS
COPYRIGHTS &C.

Anyone sending a sketch and description may quickly ascertain our opinion free whether an invention is probably patentable. Communications strictly confidential. Handbook on Patents sent free. Oldest agency for securing patents.
Patents taken through Munn & Co. receive special notice, without charge, in the Scientific American.

A handsomely illustrated weekly. Largest circulation of any scientific journal. Terms, $3 a year; four months, $1. Sold by all newsdealers.

MUNN & Co. 361 Broadway, New York
Branch Office, 625 F St., Washington, D. C.

The Spectator.

IVES & SOLL, Publishers.
JOHN J. SOLL, Editor.

Entered at the postoffice at St. Hilaire, Minn., as second-class mail matter.

Published every Wednesday at St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minn.

TERMS:—$1.50 Per Year in Advance.

SUBSCRIBERS should notify the publisher on or before expiration of subscription if discontinuance is desired. Otherwise paper will be continued.

WEDNESDAY, FEB. 14, 1900.

"JOHN P. ROBINSON, HE."

Something About a Character Whom Lowell Satirized.

John P. Robinson, the subject of one of James Russell Lowell's "Hosea Biglow's" satires, was a brilliant lawyer of the town of Lowell, a scholarly gentleman and a wit. It is said of him that he had read Homer's "Iliad" so much that he could recite nearly the whole of it from memory. Mr. Robinson was a favorite stump speaker about the period of 1840. He was a Whig and had the ambition to represent his district in congress.

In 1842 he received the Whig nomination for this position. It was a bad year for Whig candidates, as the Liberty party had then begun to present nominees against it. A majority was at that time required to elect, and there was no choice at the regular election. The Whig party, always timid, feared Mr. Robinson could not be elected on further trial and induced him to withdraw from the contest that it might present a candidate more acceptable to the antislavery men. This was a severe disappointment to Mr. Robinson. He became disgusted with the Whigs and bitter toward the antislavery advocates.

A few years later, after General Caleb Cushing had been in the Mexican war, he was nominated by the Democrats as their candidate for governor of Massachusetts, upon which Mr. Robinson wrote a letter declaring he should leave the Whig party and support General Cushing. This induced Lowell's poem. Governor Briggs was then the Whig candidate for governor, and Lowell had two refrains to his verses. The first read:

> So John P.
> Robinson, he
> Says he shan't vote for Governor B.

And the second:

> So John P.
> Robinson, he
> Says he shall vote for General C.

—Boston Herald.

STAGE KISSES ARE GENUINE.

The Public Demands Realism Even In Stage Lovemaking.

"Embraces and kisses are rehearsed with the extremest care," writes Franklin Fyles of "The Rehearsal of a Play" in The Ladies' Home Journal. "They must have an impulsive manner. They must look sufficiently fervid. It is a curious sight—that of two players who are to express the ardent love which Shakespeare has written for his 'Romeo and Juliet,' but who at rehearsal, in modern clothes and no accessories of glamour, practice a kiss as mechanically and unfeelingly as though it were, as it is then, utterly devoid of sentiment. There must be no hesitation or clumsiness. Romeo is not permitted to decide whether to throw both arms around his sweetheart or only one or which, nor may Juliet be shy or forward, yielding or resisting, as she chooses. The director will place their arms for them if they do not themselves make a picturesque exhibit of tenderness.

"And the kiss? Shall it be delivered by the wooer on the lips of the won or on the brow or cheek? That question is considered and settled. Are kisses on the stage genuine? Well, not at rehearsals, except, maybe, once or twice, in order to show the effect fully. An actress would resent a real kiss at a rehearsal except when necessary. For the satisfaction of natural curiosity on that point it may be told right here that most of the kisses in the public performances of plays are actual kisses."

Where Tigers Fear Men.

A cheerful place is Soraponjee, in India. The rainfall there often is as great in one afternoon in the rainy season as it is in New York state in a whole year, and tigers and leopards are as plentiful as dogs are on New York's east side. On account of the tremendous dampness the cattle have to be driven to the top of the hills, so that they shall not get their feet too wet, and the tigers and leopards climb to these high altitudes also, because they are imbued with the kindly desire to save those cattle from pneumonia and other ills by eating them carefully and with due enjoyment.

As there are no forests on the hills the tigers prowl about all night in the open, lying concealed during the day in the limestone caves, the coal pits and between the crevices of the rocks. The residents come upon them in all manner of odd nooks and corners so unexpectedly that the beasts are as much alarmed as themselves and usually scamper off in one direction, their disturbers flying in the opposite one. No one stirs out at nighttime without a powerful lantern or torch, for, as a rule, wild beasts will not come near a light, though this rule does not hold good in all cases.—New York Herald.

Health the Mainspring of Success.

The chief essential of success for a young man is what the vast majority of young men think about the least—that is, good health and a sound constitution. That is the first thing; nothing precedes it. In the battle for success that should be a young man's first thought—not his abilities nor his work, but his health. That is the basis, the cornerstone, of all. Abilities cannot bring health, but health may and generally does develop ability.—Ladies' Home Journal.

Illogical.

Friend—I suppose there are a great many people who owe you their lives.

Doctor—They say they do, but the relatives always kick like thunder when I accidentally collect a bill of that kind.—San Francisco Examiner.

When It Doesn't Turn.

A woman's silk frock is spun by a worm, but if the worm tries to crawl on it the woman shrieks.—Chicago Record.

SAMPLE BALLOT.

SPECIAL ELECTION BALLOT.

If in favor of said proposition put an (X) mark opposite the word YES in the square indicated by the arrow.

If against said proposition put an (X) mark opposite the word NO in the square indicated by the arrow.

For the proposition to issue and negotiate bonds of the County of Red Lake, State of Minnesota, in the aggregate sum of Ten Thousand Dollars, the proceeds of the sale of said bonds to be used in defraying the expense of erecting and constructing a Court House at the County Seat of said County of Red Lake; said bonds to be in denominations of One Thousand Dollars each and to mature in 20 years from date of issue and to bear interest at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum, payable semi-annually, both principal and interest to be payable at the office of the County Treasurer in and for said County of Red Lake.	—YES.	☐
	—NO.	☐

"The Worstest Crime Ever."

A young negress in mourning asked the magistrate for a warrant in the Jefferson Market court.

"There is a negro who has committed the worstest crime ever," she said. "It's so awful I can't hardly tell about it. My mother died a week ago, and he done took a pawn ticket from the corpse. Now he's done took out a diamond ring on that ticket that was my mother's, and now the ring should be mine, but he won't give it to me."

"Well, that's rather bad," admitted the magistrate, signing a warrant for the offender.

The young woman returned in the afternoon in company with a well dressed negro with whom she seemed to be on very friendly terms. He was the defendant.

"What have you got to say to the charge?" the magistrate demanded of him.

"Why," the man replied smilingly, "the dead woman was my wife."

"Is he your stepfather?" asked the magistrate, turning to the girl.

"Course he is," she answered.

"And why didn't you tell me that before?"

"'Cause I wanted that ring, your honor."

"Step out," said the magistrate.

"Step out," echoed a half dozen policemen, while the man and the girl walked out together without a sign of animosity.—New York Exchange.

A Very Foxy Fox.

A gentleman whose word cannot be doubted and who is not easily deceived tells the following:

Very early one morning he saw a fox eying most wistfully a number of wild ducks feeding in the rushy end of a highland lake. After awhile the fox, going to windward of the ducks, put afloat in the lake several bunches of dead rushes or grass, which floated down among the ducks without causing the least alarm.

After watching the effect of his preliminary fleet for a short time the fox, taking a good sized mouthful of grass in his jaws, launched himself into the water as quietly as possible, having nothing but the tips of his ears and nose above water.

In this way he drifted down among the ducks and caught a fine mallard.

Though this story seems extraordinary, it must be remembered that the fox manages to capture wild ducks, wood pigeons, hares and numberless other animals, sufficient to keep himself and family, and it is plain to be seen that in doing so he must practice many a trick that would seem improbable if related and quite beyond the instinct of animals.—Omaha World-Herald.

Killed Classical Quotations.

In tracing the decline of the use of classical quotations in legislative bodies the Boston Herald cites the case of Edward Everett, who once concluded a stately speech in congress with a long, sonorous and superbly modulated citation of a passage from Tacitus and then took his seat. No sooner was he through than up sprang a burly member from what was then a frontier state of the west. He had once been an Indian agent, and no sooner was he on his legs than he began to pour out a vehement harangue in Choctaw. After awhile the speaker called him to order.

"I don't see why my freedom of speech should be abridged!" he cried. "You let the gentleman from Massachusetts run on, and I didn't understand the first word of his lingo any better than he does mine."

The scene was described as very comical, but it struck the deathknell of further classical quotations in a congress that had not the ray of an idea what the unintelligible lingo of Cicero and Tacitus was driving at.

His Story "Goes" Until He Does.

There is in Cowley county a big two fisted farmer who has the reputation of being the biggest liar in the township. But he will fight at the drop of the hat, and men are very chary of accusing him. The other day he went into Dexter and told that he had a 9-month-old calf that gave three quarts at a milking, and, after recounting this story, the local paper said, "Mr. Horrell is still in town, and we are convinced that that calf is a wonder."—Kansas City Journal.

To Subscribers.

All who know themselves to be indebted to THE SPECTATOR will confer a great favor by settling early. These accounts are small, but we have a lot of them on our books. Please do not put the matter off or forget it altogether, because it don't amount to very much.

Binder Twine.

Stillwater, Minn., Feb. 7th, 1900.

At a meeting of the Board of Managers held this day, the prices of twine f. o. b. Stillwater, to farmers or actual consumers only, were fixed as follows: Manila & Sisal Mixed, 12½ cents per pound: (only 300,000 pounds made); Pure Sisal, 10 cents per pound. No Pure Manila has been made, and none will be made this season.

During the season from August 1st, 1897, to August 1st 1898, the price of Manila hemp ranged from 4 to 5 cents per pound. For the year '89 '99 about 1,700,000 pounds of Manila were carried over, which cost an average of 4.35 cents per pound. The price of Manila the same year, ranged from 6⅝ to 7⅝, and the price of Sisal, from 6 and 1.16 to 7¾ cents per pound.

For the current year, Aug. 1st, 1899 to Aug. 1st 1900, the average cost of Sisal purchased by us has been 9.4 cents per pound delivered at Stillwater which is little more than double the average price of '97-'98; and the advance in twine oil has been about two hundred per cent. In view of these facts the price established by the Board of Managers barely covers the cost of material, cost of manufacutre and a reasonable allowance for repairs and depreciation of the plant.

C. McC. REEVE,
Warden.

"I think I would go crazy with pain were it not for Chamberlain's Pain Balm," writes Mr. W. H. Stapleton, Herminie, Pa. "I have been afflicted with rheumatism for several years and have tried remedies without number, but Pain Balm is the best medicine I have got hold of." One application relieves the pain. For sale at The Imperial Drug Store.

—Go to the New Drug Store for your Stationery and School supplies.

An anti gossip society has been established by the society women of Springfield, Mo. The plan of the society is to invite women of all conditions to take the anti-gossip pledge, with no other qualification for membership. There are to be no officers, dues or regular meeting. A large number signed the following pledge: "I do hereby solemnly pledge my word to speak no evil of any women, whether such report be true or not. Any violation of this pledge, however, does not release me from its subsequent obligations, which are to continue for all time to come."

Regulate Your Watch.

As Johnson's barber shop and if it don't keep time, leave it, and we will repair it and warrant it to keep time for one year. New watches, clocks chains and jewelry for sale at the lowest prices. I will be at Johnson's barber shop the 12th 13th and 14th of every month. All work left at the shop has my personal attention. When you come to Red Lake Falls make the Palace Jewely Store your headquarters.

I am yours truly
PROF. J. Q. ADAMS,
Watchmaker and Optician.

We Want Correspondents.

We desire a correspondent in every school district in the county, one who will give the local news of his or her locality in a fair and impartial manner To any one who will undertake the matter the SPECTATOR will furnish the necessary stationery and postage and will send the paper free during the time the person acts in that capacity. Only one correspondent desired in each district It is an advantage to any community to be represented in the columns of the local paper.

U. S. LAND OFFICE.
Crookston, Minn., Feb. 13, 1900.

Notice is hereby given that the following named settler has filed notice of his intention to make final proof in support of his claim, and that said proof will be made before the Register and Receiver of the U. S. Land Office at Crookston, Minn., on March 29th 1900, viz:

Peter Hogquist, H. E. 15363, for the ne¼ se¼ sec. 26, twp. 152 N. of range 43 W.

He names the following witnesses to prove his continuous residence upon and cultivation of said land, viz:—John Fungstrom, Eric Fungstrom, Charles Erickson and Solomon Swenson, all of St. Hilaire, Minn.

29-34 SYLVESTER PETERSON, Register.

—Every farmer who writes a letter occasionally should get envelopes with his name and address printed in the corner. We will furnish 100 of the best quality printed in any style for the small sum of 75 cts. Send in your order

Subscribe for the Spectator.

Order to Examine Accounts, &c.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Red Lake. } ss. In Probate Court. Special Term, January 27th A. D. 1900.

In the matter of the estate of Hosea Tway, deceased.

On reading and filing the petition of Hannah Tway, administratrix of the estate of Hosea Tway, deceased; representing among other things, that she has fully administrated said estate, and praying that a time and place be fixed for examining, settling and allowing the final account of her administration, and for the assignment of the residue of said estate to the parties entitled thereto by law.

It is ordered, that said account be examined and petition heard by this court, on Monday the 5th day of March A. D. 1900, at two o'clock P. M., at the court house in said county of Red Lake.

And it is further ordered, that notice thereof be given to all persons interested, by publishing a copy of this order once each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Spectator, a weekly newspaper printed and published at St. Hilaire in said county.

Dated at Red Lake Falls the 27th day of January A. D., 1900.

By the Court,
JOHN T. KNIGHT,
Judge of Probate.

[SEAL.]
27-29

Order for Hearing and Notice of Application for Appointment and Administrator.

STATE OF MINNESOTA, County of Red Lake. } ss. In Probate Court. Special Term, February 10th A. D. 1900.

In the matter of the estate of Fredrick Eikhoff, deceased.

On receiving and filing the petition of Elizabeth Eikhoff of St. Hilaire representing among other things, that Fredrich Eikhoff late of St. Hilaire, Red Lake county on the 22nd day of November A. D. 1898, at St. Hilaire died intestate, and being a resident of this County at the time of his death, leaving goods, chattels, and estate within this county, and that the said Petitioner is the widow of said deceased, and praying that administration of said estate be to her granted:

It is ordered, that said petition be heard before this Court, on Monday the 19th day of March A. D. 1900, at two o'clock p. m. at Red Lake Falls in said county.

Ordered further, that notice thereof be given to the heirs of said deceased, and to all persons interested, by publishing this order once each week, for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the St. Hilaire Spectator a weekly newspaper printed and published at St. Hilaire in said County.

Dated at Red Lake Falls the 10th day of February A. D. 1900.

By the Court,
JOHN T. KNIGHT,
Judge of Probate.

[SEAL]
29-32

Don't forget your "little subscription account" when selling your wheat.

DON'T BE ASHAMED—
To tell us if you have company.
If a child is born.
If you are going to get married.
If any relative or friend has died.
If your wife has gone away on a visit.
If anything happens worth printing.

The Ideal Lunch Room.

In the Paradis Building is noted for its Convenience.

FIRST-CLASS MEALS.

PROMPT SERVICE.

OPEN UNTIL ONE O'CLOCK A. M.

A. F. LANG, Prop.

Barber Shop

—AND—

BATH ROOMS.

—o—

Haircutting, Shaving, Shampooing.

Razors honed and put in first-class order.

J. H. PENNO, Prop.

ST. HILAIRE - - - MINNESOTA

First Mortgage Loans.

I am prepared, for the next 60 days, to make loans at the

LOWEST

possible rates ever made in Red Lake county. If you want to make a loan or renew an old one call on

H. E. IVES.

NORTHERN PACIFIC
YELLOWSTONE PARK LINE

RUNS

THROUGH CARS

TO ST. PAUL
MINNEAPOLIS
DULUTH
FARGO
GRAND FORKS
AND WINNIPEG

To—
HELENA	PULLMAN
BUTTE	SLEEPING CARS
SPOKANE	ELEGANT
TACOMA	DINING CARS
SEATTLE	TOURIST
PORTLAND	SLEEPING CARS

PATENTS GUARANTEED

Our fee returned if we fail. Any one sending sketch and description of any invention will promptly receive our opinion free concerning the patentability of same. "How to Obtain a Patent" sent upon request. Patents secured through us advertised for sale at our expense.
Patents taken out through us receive special notice, without charge, in THE PATENT RECORD, an illustrated and widely circulated journal, consulted by Manufacturers and Investors.
Send for sample copy FREE. Address,

VICTOR J. EVANS & CO.
(Patent Attorneys,)
Evans Building, WASHINGTON, D. C.

By special arrangement with the publishers we are enable to give FARM, STOCK AND HOME one year and the ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR for $1.35.

BANK OF RED LAKE FALLS,

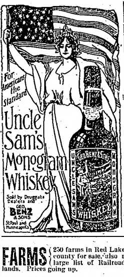
RED LAKE FALLS, MINNESOTA

GENERAL BANKING. FOREIGN XCHANGE

Real Estate, Farm Loans and Insurance.
Abstracts of Title.
Steamship Tickets.
Interest Paid on Time Deposits.
Collections of all Kinds Given Prompt Attention.

Owner of the Abstract Books formerly owned by Sortedahl & Storaasli the only set of Abstract Books in Red Lake County.

M. O. SORTEDAHL, President and Cashier.



For Americans the Standard
Uncle Sam's Monogram Whiskey
UNCLE SAM'S MONOGRAM WHISKEY
GEO. BENZ & SONS
Sold by Druggists Dealers and GEO. BENZ & SONS St. Paul and Minneapolis

Hamm's
ST. PAUL
BEER
THEO. HAMM BREWING CO.
ST. PAUL, MINN.
Buy a case of nearest agent or write to the brewery.

FARMS { 250 farms in Red Lake county for sale, also a large list of Railroad lands. Prices going up.

LOANS { First Mortgage Farm Loans A Specialty.

ABSTRACTS { furnished on short notice. Neat and accurate work guaranteed.

S. A. SWANSON,
Official Abstracter.

RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.

PATENTS

Caveats, and Trade-Marks obtained and all Patent business conducted for MODERATE FEES.
OUR OFFICE IS OPPOSITE U.S. PATENT OFFICE and we can secure patent in less time than those remote from Washington.
Send model, drawing or photo., with description. We advise, if patentable or not, free of charge. Our fee not due till patent is secured.
A PAMPHLET, "How to Obtain Patents," with cost of same in the U.S. and foreign countries sent free. Address,

C. A. SNOW & CO.
OPP. PATENT OFFICE, WASHINGTON, D. C.

—The SPECTATOR is for sale—at $1.50 a year—strictly in advance.

Cigars.

BRINK BROTHERS

DEALERS IN

Wines & Liquors

Minneapolis Beer.

Corner Broadway and 3rd St. St. Hilaire, Minnesota

L. K. KOLSTAD

DEALER IN

BOOTS AND SHOES!

Repairing a Specialty.

ST. HILAIRE, - - MINNESOTA.

Cosmopolitan and Spectator.

To secure for you the best and most interesting of the great illustrated magazines at the lowest possible price has been the aim of the editor of this journal. That we have succeeded we will leave our readers to judge. A special contract recently entered into with The Cosmopolitan, which seeks to become better known in this neighborhood, has enabled us to offer you a year's subscription to the greatest of the illustrated magazines together with a year's subscription to this journal, both together one year for only $1.50.

SOME OF OUR CLUB RATES WITH THE

ST. HILAIRE SPECTATOR

OUR TERMS ARE STRICTLY CASH IN ADVANCE

Farm, Stock & Home.

50 cents per year. Read by a greater number of Northwestern farmers than any other agricultural paper published. Are you among the number? If not, Why not? Every department in the hands of a specialist. Short talks department. A department where all kinds of questions are answered for the benefit of subscribers, is a leading feature of the paper. No northwestern farmers list of papers is complete without it. This paper and Spectator one year for $1.35.

Cosmopolitan, New York World and The Spectator.

You wish to keep in touch with metropolitan life, through the medium of a great daily. The Thrice-a-Week World of New York is the equivalent of a daily and is a marvellous fund of knowledge concerning the happenings of the day. Each issue contains six to eight pages of eight columns each or over eight thousand columns of reading matter a year. In former days this would have cost you probably as much as $6.00 a year, by itself. Now you can have it, if you wish, in connection with your home paper and The Cosmopolitan Magazine. Three together one year for only $2.50.

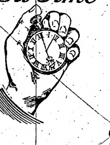
OFFICIAL PAPER OF ST. HILAIRE AND RED LAKE COUNTY.

NEW MEAT MARKET.

L. M. ROLAND, Proprietor.

Fresh and Salted Meats.

Highest Market Price Paid for Hides.



It's Time
Now then
If you are
Looking for
Bargins in
Dry Goods
Groceries
Hats, Caps,
Boots, Shoes
Clothing
Notions

Or in fact anything carried in a first-class general merchandise store, why you are cordially invited and we will accommodate you. Call and look over our large stock.

E. M. HOFF.

SECRET SOCIETIES.

I. O. O. F. St. Hilaire Lodge No. 147.—Meets at their hall every Thursday evening, eight o'clock. Visiting members are cordially invited to attend.
J. B. O'Brien, N. G.
A. F. Lang, Secretary.

M. W. A. CAMP 3550.—Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every second and fourth Tuesday of every month. Visiting neighbors are cordially invited to attend.
H. O. Jackson, V. C.
Jas. M. Hall, Clerk.

R. N. G.—WILD ROSE CAMP.—No. 531 Meets at Odd Fellows Hall every Friday evening. Visiting members of the order are cordially invited to attend.
Mrs. W. A. Arthur, Oracle.
Mrs. L. Lacoursiere, Recorder.

VILLAGE COUNCIL.

E. J. Holmes	President
J. L. Johnson	Recorder
D. Patterson	Councilmen
J. C. Dahl
W. A. Sorsoleil
L. Holmes	Treasurer

DR. BLOMBURGH.
SCANDINAVIAN
PHYSICIAN AND SURGEON.
Calls attended day or night.
Teeth Extracted.
Office and residence opposity M. E. church. St. Hilaire, Minn.

COUNTY OFFICERS.

Auditor	Adam Zeh
Treasurer	O. T. Tandberg
Register of Deeds	Samuel Gibeau
Sheriff	Chas. Sampson
Attorney	Van R. Brown
Judge of Probate	J. T. Knight
Clerk of Court	Joe Perrault
Supt. of Schools	Frank Jeffers
Coroner	Joe Belaire
Court Commissioner	J. C. Mathews
Surveyor	P. O. Hagglund
Commissioner 1st Dist	J. Suter
Commissioner 2nd Dist	W. L. C. Demann
Commissioner 3rd Dist	O. J. Johnson
Commissioner 4th Dist	Karl M. Hanson
Commissioner 5th Dist	J. B. Herbert

HENRY FRANCIS, M. D., C. M.
Member College Physicians and Surgeons, Ontario, ...
Office and residence first door south of Oen's hardware store.
Thief River Falls, Minn.

List of Town Clerks.

Names	Township	Postoffice
Olof Larson	Numedal	Viking
C. E. Purdy	North	Thief River Falls
John E. Peterson	Bray	Bray
N. K. Anderson	Sanders	St. Hilaire
F. T. Satre	Rocksbury	T. R. Falls
O. T. Romsos	Polk Centre	Wylie
P. A. Eckstrom	Black River	Wylie
A. S. Anderson	River Falls	St. Hilaire
Ole J. Johnson	Wyandotte
A. D. Berry	Louisville	Huot
Ildalge Baril	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
Chas. F. Asp	Emardville	Lost
Edward Havik	Equality	Grit
Moses Ducharme	Lake Pleasant	R. L. F.
Eldonor Perusse	Terrebonne	Terrebonne
J. B. Herbert	Poplar River	Brooks
Louis Doucet	Lambert	Lambert
J. L. Johnson	St. Hilaire	St. Hilaire
Lars Backe	Thief River F.	T. R. F.
A. P. Toupin	Red Lake Falls	R. L. F.
H. D. Baaryson	Norden	T. R. Falls
Olof Tande	Garnes	Garnes

A. O. LETVIG,
TUBULAR WELL CONTRACTOR.
A Good Supply of Water Guaranteed. Repairing a Specialty.
WYLIE. MINNESOTA.

UNCLE SAM Is not In the Shoe Business, And Neither Am I, But I can Interest You in CIGARS.
ALL THE BEST SMOKERS BUY THEM
U. B. Cigars.
ALL THE BEST DEALERS SELL THEM.
J. B. ARMSTRONG,
Manufacturer.
Red Lake Falls, Minnesota.

DAY F. STACY, C. E.
DEPUTY
County Surveyor.
RED LAKE FALLS, MINN.
Drainage and Farm Surveys a Specialty.

Market Report.—To-Day.

Wheat No. 1	54½	Oats	16
Wheat No. 2	51½	Barley	27
Wheat No. 3	48½	Flax	142
Eggs (per doz)	12½	Butter (per lb)	15

LOCAL NEWS.

Vote no on bonds.

District court is in session.

To-day is St. Valentines Day.

Fresh oysters at A. F. Lang's.

Take in the masquerade ball to-night.

The county commissioners meet next Monday.

Flour and feed at Leonard Holmes elevator.

Oysters prepared in any style at A. F. Lang's.

Wall paper and calcimine at the New Drug store.

J. K. Hannay our banker is under the weather this week.

A new stock of boys clothing just received at E. M. Hoff's.

Try a lunch, a meal or a weeks board at the Ideal Lunch Room.

H. E. Ives returned to-day from a business trip at Grand Forks.

Dr. Blomburgh was summoned to Thief River Falls last Saturday.

E. J. Brink and P. G. Paradis made a trip to the county seat yesterday.

H. M. McAndress of St. Thomas is here visiting with his three brothers.

Mrs. G. F. Murch of Crookston spent Sunday with her husband at this place.

Patronize home industry by buying your wall paper at the New Drug store.

Born: To Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Lemay, Thursday Feb. 8th 1900, a son.

Miss Laura J. Betts and Mrs. J. B. O'Brien visited the county seat Saturday.

St. Hilaire was well represented at the dance out at Valhall Saturday night.

A. J. Gunnes of Barnesville is here visiting with his sister, Mrs. R. H. Aimer.

R. J. Farley invested in a quarter section of rail road land in River Falls township.

B. E. Burkee left Monday for Red Lake Falls to act in the capacity of a petit juror.

Miss Selina Hoff returned home Monday after several days visit with friends at Crookston.

Dr. Francis of Thief River Falls was called to this village last Saturday on professional business.

H. Sarasin, one of Red Lake Falls prominent business men was here between trains yesterday.

Wanted: A girl for general house work. No wood or water to carry. Apply at the drug store.

$25.00 per week paid to introduce our goods. Address with stamp. R. C. Andrus, Chatfield, Minn.

A trifle over 42 columns of this issue is edited by County Auditor Zeh and Clerk of Court Perrault.

Mrs. W. Mageau of Crookston arrived Monday being summoned by the serious illness of her mother.

The Swedish congregation surprised their pastor at his home in an agreeable way last Saturday evening.

The planing mill started up Monday after a few days shut down caused by the adjusting of a new smoke stack.

Miss Grace H. Morgan, a former teacher of this place, but now of Crookston, spent Sunday with friends here.

Charley Hitchcock came up from Crookston the first of the week to look after his farming interests east of town.

The republican state central committee met yesterday at St. Paul to discuss matters pertaining to the campaign.

W. A. Case returned home Saturday after several weeks absence organizing Woodmen lodges in Polk and Norman counties.

Personal property taxes will soon be due, and to avoid the penalty they must be paid on or before the last day of February.

J. J. Hill, the great railroad magnate has weakened—he has presented Editor Nelson of the Hallock News, a Berkshire boar.

Herman Nelson, the log contractor, came down from the Black Duck country the latter part of last week after a load of supplies.

A Bad Break—

$250.00 for setting a pauper's broken leg is the price charged by the Mayor of Red Lake Falls, and Red Lake county had to pay for it. Its a good sample of their regard for the county's financial welfare—but it failed to show up in their array of economical figures. This is the way the $30,000 has already gone so quickly and if this record is kept up, Red Lake county will be largely composed of paupers with no money to mend their broken legs. Paupers! be extremely careful of your legs—$10,000 would only fix up twenty of you. The Red Lake Falls Gazette says "the more the tax payer studies the question the stronger he is for bonds." It should read: the more the tax payer studies the question the madder he gets.

Erick Olson of Sanders township returned home yesterday from a weeks visit with friends in Marshall county.

Al. Lehman arrived from Minneapolis the first of the week to accept his old position as machinest for the St. Hilaire Lumber Company.

Andrew Hoved of southern Minnesota was here last Friday looking up a location for a farm. He decided to come back in the spring.

John Halvorson is having more than his share of sickness in his family. His wife and also his oldest son are both confined to bed with fever.

If your name is not on the posted list see to it on the 20th inst. as that is the last day to register. The list remains open from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m.

The Daily building west of town was moved to the rear end of the bank block last Saturday where it will be remodeled and used as a dwelling house.

At the rate fire insurance companies are pulling out of Red Lake Falls it is not safe to build a court house at that place. You tax payers please bear this in mind.

Our contemporary denies what we never asserted, but it maintains a judicious silence upon our statement as to the financial condition of the corporation.

C. R. Beecher, book-keeper for the St. Hilaire Lumber Company returned Saturday from his vacation visiting relatives and friends at his old home at Merrill, Wis.

Judge Watts passed through here Monday enroute to Red Lake Falls where he holds a term of district court. From the cases on the calendar this term will be a short one.

Attorney Holston and Sheriff Lawrence of Polk county are here to-day enroute to Red Lake Falls to commence suit against Red Lake county in behalf of Polk county.

Peter Nelson, manager of the Scandia American Land Company of Fargo, N. D., was here a few days last week looking over the country and decided to put in a branch office here.

Red Lake Falls record is one bankrupt in twenty-four years history, that being a saloon keeper.—Red Lake Falls Gazette.

Well, well—one poor fellow too green to burn.

Ludvig Rud, who has held down the position of clerk in the dry goods department of Rapp & Post's store the past six months left Saturday for Warren where he has accepted a similar position.

William Martin returned from the lumbering woods in Beltrami county last Friday. Scarcely a day passes but what some of the old time mill boys return to hold down their old positions when the mill starts up.

The New York World says the estimate of the cost of the Spanish war at $355,000,000 only covers the expenses up to date. There are still 65,000 troops in the Philippine Islands, and the pension bills are yet to come.

A large party gathered at the residence of A. C. Adams last Thursday to assist him in celebrating his 41st birthday. Dancing and visiting was the order of the evening. An enjoyable time was what they all had.

Ex-Supt. Meeren of the St. Hilaire Lumber Company came up from Minneapolis the first of the week being summoned as a witness in the Hagglund damage suit which will be brought before this term of district court.

The rumor about the Hotel Markham of St. Hilaire being moved to Thief River Falls is all a pipe dream. About a year ago it was to be moved to Red Lake Falls and less than three months ago it was to be moved to Bemidji. There is no house in the northwest making more money the year around than this hotel at its present site.

The Josephine Bonaparte Rice Co., a trio consisting of the Misses Rice, Ida May Paulson and Alice Ross will give an entertainment here Friday evening under the auspices of the M. E. church. They come highly recommenned by the press.

There was not a dull number on the program; nothing can be said in too high praise of their entertainment.—New Orleans Daily Delta.

A voice like Miss Paulson's is not heard very often and the richness of her lower notes are most astonishing. She created a sensation here and we doubt if her like was ever heard in this city.—Detroit Free-Press.

The Management invites the patronage of all who love literature, drama and music and will guarantee a highly enjoyable and high-class entertainment.

—To cure a cough or cold in one day take the Imperial Cough Syrup.

To cure a cough in one day take the Imperial cough syrup. Guaranteed to cure. For sale at the new Drug Store.

VOTE NO ON BONDS.

Below You Will Find a Few Reasons Why You Should Vote Against The Bonds. St. Hilaire, or Thief River Falls, Will Build a Court House Free to the County.

To The Voters of Red Lake County.

The schemers and county ring at Red Lake Falls want you to vote $10,000.00 more bonds. They are trying to fool you with a misleading array of figures into voting more bonds, by pretending that it will save you money. If you follow their advice, you will land the county in debt as badly as Red Lake Falls already is.

WHAT THEY HAVE DONE WITH RED LAKE FALLS:

The tax rate is almost seven per cent per annum: they are above the legal limit of debt, and Red Lake Falls is to-day the most bankrupt town in the state. Over four thousand three hundred lots in that town will be sold in a few weeks to pay accumulated back taxes.

RED LAKE COUNTY IS ALREADY BONDED FOR $30,000.00:

And the money is all spent, without very much to show for it: Polk county is claiming $15,000.00 more, which, if allowed, will make the total debt $50,000.00. The ten thousand more which they ask you to vote is merely a bait to draw you on. When that is spent more money will be needed, and the probable result will be that you will be drawn into an expenditure of thirty or forty thousand dollars before you get through with the court house scheme.

If this scheme was an honest one, why was it kept concealed till the last minute, and passed over the protest of two of the county commissioners, and the election called at a time when it was known that many of the voters were away from home at work in the woods?

YOU CAN HAVE A COURT HOUSE FREE!

If you think that a new court house is absolutely necessary, you can have one free by locating the County Seat either at St. Hilaire or Thief River Falls.

We published a copy of the guarantee of these towns, and the original documents are now in the vaults of the First State Bank of Thief River Falls, and can be seen by any voters of the county.

If Red Lake Falls has the interest of the county at heart, and wishes to economize, let it donate a suitable site for a court house and give the $10,000.00 to boot.

RED LAKE COUNTY NEEDS MONEY TO SPEND ON DRAINS AND DITCHES, AND IMPROVED ROADS.

Farmers, help yourselves first, and don't load yourselves down with taxes, to accomodate the citizens of Red Lake Falls!

To the County Commissioners and Tax Payers of Red Lake County, Minn.

The undersigned, citizens and residents of St. Hilaire hereby guarantee to you that if the County Seat of Red Lake county shall during the next three years be located within the Village of St. Hilaire, we will furnish a suitable site for a Court House and Jail, and build thereon a suitable Court House and Jail, to cost not less than ten thousand dollars, which ground and building shall be the property of the county FREE.

H E Ives.
J K Hannay.
G G Rapp.
M McAndress.
Daniel Patterson.
Peter Hall.
M E Bjork.
A H Weagant.
P G Paradis.
W A Sorsoleil.
Wm Eikhoff.
J W Peterson.
E M Hoff.
J Nelson.
T J Thorkelson.
K O Gigstad.
J L Johnson.
E J Brink.
Emil J Holmes.
J J Soll.
D Collins.
O P Post.
Leonard Holmes.
H O Jackson.
Wm Olson.
Ed Whaley.
A C Adams.
R H Aimer.
Alfred Dalpard.
M Lacoursiers.
J H Penno.
O W Brink.

State of Minnesota,
County of Red Lake. } ss.

On this 30th day of January A. D., nineteen hundred, personally appeared the persons whose names are above subscribed, and acknowledged that they severally executed the same as their free act and deed.

[SEAL.] K. O. GIGSTAD.
Notary Public, Red Lake Co., Minn.

To the County Commissioners and Tax Payers of Red Lake County, Minn.

We, the undersigned, citizens and residents of Thief River Falls, do hereby pledge ourselves to the County of Red Lake, that in case the county seat of Red Lake county shall at any time during the next three years be located at Thief River Falls, that we will furnish to Red Lake county free of charge a suitable site for a Court House and other county buildings, and will build thereon and donate to the county a Court House and Jail, to cost not less that $10,000.00.

James Meehan Jr.
C G Dobner.
Jackson & Bailey.
Carl Kretzschmar.
Hans Langseth.
P. O. Bergh.
Chas A Robbecke.
F J Stebbins.
John O Aas.
M Bothum.
S Kenison.
John Connery.
H Fant.
Morgan & Brink.
A Piche.
N W Tarrant.
W T Mullarky.
K. M. Hansen.
Peter Wilmes.
Hansen & Barzen.
M V Evenson.
H Lewin.

State of Minnesota,
County of Red Lake. } ss.

On this 3rd day of February Nineteen Hundred, before me, a notary public, within and for said county, personally appeared the persons whose names are above subscribed, and they severally acknowledged that they executed the same as their free act and deed.

[SEAL] KARL M. HANSEN.
Notary Public, Red Lake Co., Minn.

For Court House Bonds.	YES.	☐
	NO.	☒

If the business men of Red Lake Falls are so opulent as claimed, it seems to be a small piece of business for them to be begging a donation of ten thousand dollars from farmers who are certainly not bragging of their wealth on 50 cent wheat. Let them take $10,000 of their pile and build a court house. Remember Voters, Thief River Falls or St. Hilaire would be glad of the chance to build a court house free. Neither town has ever asked you for a cent. While the biggest part of $30,000 has already been swallowed up by Red Lake Falls and they want more. Let the Red Lake Falls Schemers see for once that they don't run the county another cent in debt. Let them howl and threaten. They cannot bulldoze you now into giving them $10,000 so they can come back at you for $15,000 or $20,000 more.

—Dr. Thomas is an up-to-date in all the different branches in his profession. Remember the dates, Feb. 26th and 27th.

If the reader of this should chance to know of any one who is subject to attacks of billous colic he can do him no greater favor than to tell him of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy. It always gives prompt relief. For sale by The Imperial Drug Store.

W. E. Rowe and several other prominent attorneys from Crookston were here a few hours yesterday while enroute to Red Lake Falls. Each have cases to be tried before the district court which is now in session.

John Nelson, who has been holding down the responsible position of millwright for the St. Hilaire Lumber Company for the past three years, returned last week and is now busy making necessary repairs about the mill.

Newspaper patrons discriminate outrageously between the city paper, paid for in advance, says an exchange, and the local paper which is not paid for until a year's subscription is due and not then nine times out of ten. Country subscribers to city papers will please throw a stone through our window when they find an obituary notice of a departed loved one in their cash-in-advance city paper, or see heralded in the great metropolitan chaff-catcher the arrival of a ten-pound rural shoot of humanity at their domicile. If your city paper puffs your town or your business you may drop around and stick your finger in our eye.

Dentist.

—Dr. J. H. Thomas, the Crookston dentist will be at Hotel Markham, St. Hilaire, Feb. 26th and 27th prepared to do all kinds of up to date dental work in all branches. All work warranted. Remember the dates 26th and 27th.

—For cuts and sores there is nothing better than the Imperial Carbolic salve.

—It is better than ready money because it cures rheumatism, constipation sick headache, indigestion. Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure.

The Red Lake Falls Gazette gets mad and calls names, but don't furnish any answer to our statements. It intimates that St. Hilaire business men are bankrupt, that the guarantees of the upriver towns are worthless and that the only wealthy, sound, reliable people are the Red Lake Falls gentlemen. See Dun and Bradstreet for conformation. It might also with propriety refer to sundry insurance companies which are quitting business in that inflamable village.

The statement was that Red Lake Falls corporation was bankrupt—that 4,300 village lots were about to be sold for taxes and that the town was beyond the legal limit of indebtedness. We made a misstatement as to the number of lots, it should have been FOUR THOUSAND SEVEN HUNDRED (4,700) that were about to be sold. Nothing was said about the solvency or insolvency of the business men.

That English diplomacy is away ahead of English military generalship has once more been proven by the Nicaragua Canal treaty, sent to the Senate this week, which instead of being received with shouts of approval, as Mr. McKinley seemed to think it ought to be, has been met with stern protest. England graciously agrees that we shall build the Nicaragua Canal with American money, provided that she and all other nations shall have equal use of the canal both in peace and in war and that the U. S. agrees never to fortify either end of the canal. Unless many Senators change their present attitude, this treaty will not be ratified, unless its present jug-handled features are cut out. The sentiment in both the branches of Congress, regardless of party, favors the construction of the Nicaragua Canal by this government, provided that we have absolute control of it, which means, of course, the right to close it to our enemies in time of war.

Growing in Popularity.

The great paper, The Minneapolis Times, has, we learn, secured for itself the enormous special cable news service of the New York Herald. The Times seems to follow the idea that no expense must be spared in the matter of giving reliable news, and the papers treatment of political questions has made it popular throughout the whole northwest, a popularity which is steadily growing and is deserved.

An elegant line of Rockers just received at Holmes Furniture Co. Come early while the selection is good.

Methodist Church.

Services will be held in the Methodist church on Sunday morning at 11 a. m. and in the evening at 7:30.
N. J. Vernon, Pastor.

—If you are troubled with rheumatism take the Imperial Blood and Rheumatism cure. It will positively cure all diseases arising from impure blood, and is sold under an absolute guarantee to benefit or money refunded. Call for free sample at the New Drug Store.

We Handle Everything.

Start the Day Right
And everything will go smoothly. The proper way to start the day is by coming around to our store and ordering a supply of groceries for the day, such things as you may need. It will take you but a few minutes, and we feel sure you will not regret it.

Our Groceries
Are always fresh, and then the prices are as near right as we know how to make them. If you have not been in the habit of trading with us, drop in and see us anyway; you might get into the habit.

Hardware
We carry everything in the hardware line from cooking stoves down to tacks—all you have to do is to ask for what you want. If you want anything in the tin or copper line done drop into our tin shop and your wants will be attended to.

Yours very truly,
RAPP & POST
St. Hilaire, Minnesota.

M. A. HALL
DEALER IN
DRY GOODS,
GROCERIES,
NOTIONS,
GENTS FURNISHING GOODS,
TOBACCO,
CIGARS,
CONFECTIONERY

GO TO THE New Hardware Store for anything you need in the line of Hardware, Paints, Oils, Stoves, Harness AND PLOWS.
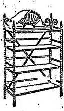
Also agent for Wheeler & Wilson Sewing Machines. Call and get prices.
A. H. WEAGANT.

LEONARD HOLMES,
—DEALER IN—
Agricultural Implements..
WHEAT, FLAX OATS AND BARLEY.
Flour and Feed always on Hand.

Lumber! Lumber!
OF ALL KINDS.
We have a large and well assorted stock of Dry Lumber and are prepared to fill all orders on short notice. We also carry a complete assortment
—OF—
Sash, Doors, Paper
AND ALL KINDS OF BUILDING MATERIAL
Which we buy in large quantities and are thereby enabled to sell at lowest market prices.
ST. HILAIRE LUMBER CO.



IF YOU INTEND TO
Buy Furniture
Come and look our assortment over. We carry everything in the Furniture line including picture frames and musical instruments. Prices reasonable.
Holmes Furniture Co.

The Arnewood Mystery

BY MAURICE H. HERVEY.

Author of "Dead Man's Court," "Somerville's Crime," "Dartmoor," "Maravin's Money," etc., etc.

CHAPTER XVII. (Continued.)

"Much about the same, I fancy," was the reply, "so far as memory goes. The chief difference is that my first pal is always trying his hardest to recollect the past, whereas the bookkeeper seems to shirk all reference to it. I'm pretty sure it was an awful fright of some kind turned his brain; he sometimes fancies he sees eyes following him about everywhere, until it's quite a job to quiet him. But he's a lot better than he was when I first came across him. Heaven save us! He was more like a galvanized corpse in the horrors than a human being! Now, sir, what I'd like to have is your opinion of 'em both, after seeing and talking to 'em—more especially my own particular pal. Our crib ain't five minutes' walk from here, if you don't mind going that far."

"Very well. I'll do my best," I rejoined, upon one condition."

"What's that, sir?"

"That you'll regard my visit as merely a friendly one, and make no further allusion to fees."

To this, after some demur, he gratefully assented, and we proceeded to pick up the money-taker, who was awaiting his friend and protector in the tent. Poor old Tom Webb! My heart went out to him when I set eyes upon his distorted, imbecile face, but I did not in any way court his attention. He glanced at me furtively, in a puzzled sort of way, but gave no sign of recognizing me.

"This gentleman's coming home with us to see Ned," explained the Strong Man. "He's a doctor, you know."

"A doctor, is he?" cried Tom, suspiciously. "Can he minister to a mind diseased? I don't see what he can do for Ned, otherwise." However, as he had no definite objection to urge against my company, we all three set off together.

One large room sufficed as bed room for the good-natured pocket-Hercules and his two proteges, while a smaller apartment did duty as sitting room and kitchen. I saw no signs around of anything approaching real poverty; indeed, to judge from the ample and varied contents of the cupboards presently ransacked to provide supper, the housekeeping was characterized by a rough abundance indicative of brisk business and good salaries.

Stay-at-Home Ned welcomed the Strong man and Tom with unaffected delight. He was a tall, well-built man, rather under than over thirty, but appeared weak, as though convalescent from some serious illness, and there was something in his voice and manner that plainly indicated an enfeebled intellect. He seemed to me, however, to be a far saner man than Tom Webb.

"Dick's brought a doctor to see you," remarked the latter, a little maliciously, as I thought.

"A friend of mine, Ned," put in the Strong Man, hastily, "who has just dropped in for a friendly chat. If he's a bit of a doctor, too, that ain't no harm, is it, old chap?"

"Certainly not," answered Ned. "I am very pleased to see you, sir. By the way," he added, sinking his voice, and indicating Tom Webb, "you must not mind what that poor fellow says. He's a little bit—you know." And he touched his own forehead significantly."

I nodded sympathetically, though I could scarcely repress a laugh. Each knew the other to be mentally weak, but neither seemed to realize his own deficiencies. A very common thing, especially among persons not hopelessly insane; but grimly humorous, for all that.

As it was my especial business, both for my host's sake and my own, to arrive at some reliable opinion as to the actual mental condition of the pair, I laid myself out to sound them upon every likely topic I could think of, while Dick (as they called him) prepared a very ample supper. With Tom Webb the task was an easy one enough, familiar as I was with well-nigh every incident in his previous career. Yet, although I tried him, with the most thinly-veiled allusions to his boyhood, his family, myself and his journalistic life, I failed utterly to elicit a single responsive echo on any of these points. Only when, in desperation, I alluded to the Great Fog, did I succeed in arousing him.

"Ah, yes!" he exclaimed, placing his outstretched hands at some distance from his face, as though to ward off some dreaded sight. "I know!—A thick, brown fog, nearly black. And then—something lying in the room—a something with wild, staring eyes! Ugh! They follow me still, sometimes, especially when I'm alone! Ugh—those eyes!"

"Never mind the eyes," put in Ned, soothingly, and with a warning look at me, "they can't hurt you, and it only worries you to think about them."

But if my progress with Tom Webb was unsatisfactory, my efforts to draw out his companion were scarcely more successful, although I chatted with him freely throughout the supper. Upon ordinary, everyday subjects he spoke quite sensibly, but any reference to even the best-known events, six months old, merely seemed to distress him.

"Perhaps I'd better tell you what little I know of the smash that knocked him silly," whispered Dicky to me, seeing that I made no headway. "They usually go to bed just after supper, and leave me to my pipe and a glass of grog."

I nodded assent, for although the story of Ned's mishap could have but little interest, as I thought, for me, I might, later on, pick up some further scraps of information about Tom Webb. As he had foreseen, the afflicted pair very soon retired to rest, and Dicky needed no pressing invitation to redeem his promise.

CHAPTER XVIII.

The Strong Man's Adventure.

"Well, doctor," he began, "although I've been in the show business, off and on, for a good many years and in most parts of the world, I've often had a try at other things by way of a change, sometimes from choice, sometimes because I couldn't help it. Just about this time last year, for instance, the boss of a circus I was traveling with went stone-broke, and left the lot of us stranded at Queensland, Australia. There wasn't a cent to pay salaries, and the boss himself sloped, and every one did the best he could for himself. As for me, I collared one of the horses and started off gold-hunting. At first I had some luck, but that didn't last, and I was going to give the game up for good, when I chanced across an old German named Schneider, in Cooktown. I'm a Dutchman by birth myself (though I reckon myself English now), and, as I know German pretty well, I became rather chummy with the old fellow. Well, sir, he fell ill, and, feeling his end near, he told me of a rich claim he had discovered in the back country, and described its position, so that I felt sure I could find it. But, although I tried, time after time, I never could hit it off, and was half-inclined to believe old Schneider had lied to me. I soon had reason, though, to alter this opinion, and to satisfy myself that the old German's claim had been tracked out by some smarter chap than me. I waited and watched for a chance to follow this fellow when he should come to town for tucker, and one evening I spotted him in an inn. I was not quite sure about him at first; but the savage, sulky way he rounded on me when I spoke about the old German's claim satisfied me I was on the right track. So that night I removed one of his horse's shoes, cut a bit off with a chisel, and replaced it. Of course, if he should not happen to notice the dodge, his horse's tracks could be easily followed on anything like soft ground, and there had recently been heavy rains.

"I saw him next morning just as he was mounting his horse. I again chaffed him about Schneider, and he made a brute lash at me so that my brains escaped but a few inches. A right-down vicious brute, and no mistake, was Nat Rainsforth.

"I traced him to a store, where he had ordered a lot of supplies to be sent to a place called the Forty-Mile. I then saddled up the old circus horse and started after him. I did not expect to overtake him, but I hoped to be able to track his horse from the Forty-Mile onward. And so I was, with occasional checks on patches of hard ground, for about five miles. Then the country became too broken and stony for any one but a black tracker; and although I had a full moon to help me, I lost all traces of hoof-marks. I was within half a mile, too, of Black Horse Gully, somewhere in the vicinity of which I knew that the claim sought was located, and I felt real wild at being brought to a stand-still.

"Finally, I resolved to hobble my horse and examine a mile or two of that part of the gully on foot. It was, of course, mere guess-work, done rather for the sake of doing something than with any real hope of success; and, indeed, my chief care was to take careful note of the place where I had left my horse.

"I presently struck what bore some faint resemblance to a path leading down the side of the ravine, and after following it some distance, I perceived the familiar mound and windlass which surmounts a mine-shaft. This meant little or nothing, because the district had been prospected for years past, and abandoned shafts were common enough. But, upon closer inspection, this particular mine gave evidence of being in actual work, or, at all events, of very recent work, indeed. The footprints in the soft mullock were quite fresh, and I thought I could detect an outline at the top showing where someone had sat or lain down. The windlass and rope also showed signs of having been lately in use. Clearly, I had struck an active claim, and the owners were probably not very far off.

"Now, prospectors, in out-of-the-way places, bitterly resent anything like spying upon their work, and it's seldom wise to make oneself known too abruptly. Let them, rather, find out that someone is prowling around in the neighborhood, and the chances are (if the ground is really good) they'll try to come to terms to keep it dark. For aught I knew, the claim I had stumbled across might be the very one old Schneider had found so rich, and which Rainsforth had, as I believed, re-discovered. It was clearly no new claim, at all events, (judging from the size of the mullock heap. And if so, it was certainly not safe for me to be caught inspecting it in broad moonlight. I could easily return next day and observe the owners at work, before allowing my presence to be suspected.

I was just about to descend from my exposed position at the windlass, when I heard what struck me as the most awful, blood-curdling, moaning cry ever uttered outside the walls of a hospital. I can tell you, sir, it made me fairly jump, and if I hadn't made a grab at one of the uprights, I'd have come near tumbling down the shaft, whence the sound proceeded. But I'm not a nervous man, when I take a moment to steady myself, and I very soon had the rope, bucket and all, down the hole. The rope was a new one, and the timber strong enough for anything; and so, having taken a few extra turns around the roller with part of the slack, I felt safe enough in slipping down.

At about thirty five feet below the surface my feet struck water, but it was not very deep—three feet at the most. Being, hoewver, so very short in stature, I had to lower myself very cautiously, and to empty all my lower pockets into my topmost coat pocket, before I touched the bottom. It was lucky I thought of this, because otherwise all my matches would have been spoiled, to say nothing of my 'baccy and some bank-notes I had on me. I had plenty of matches, but the air was so damp and foul they weren't much use. However, I was able to make out that at the bottom of the shaft a tunnel had been driven in one direction, while opposite to this it sloped somewhat, owing, perhaps, to the fall of dirt from the surface. And, lying huddled up upon this slope was the head and trunk of a man, his legs being almost hidden in the deeper water!

"Well, of course, the conclusion I came to straighway was that the poor chap had fallen down the shaft, and that he must be no better than a mass of bruised flesh and broken bones. But when I plucked up nerve to handle him, I found he wasn't nearly so badly damaged as I expected. You see, I hadn't taken into account the three feet or so of water to break his fall."

"I can understand that," I remarked, "but the real marvel is that he should have escaped suffocation, stunned, as he probably was."

"Well, yes, there was water enough to have drowned him had his head sunk into it," assented Dicky. "But, fortunately for him, it didn't. I take it he fell in feet first, and that his shoulder blades dropped backwards upon the slope where the water was the shallowest.*

*Probably the correct explanation. All trick-diving into nets, etc., from a great height is done upon the principle of striking the net with the shoulder blades. As for the fall down a forty-foot shaft not proving fatal, such escapes are common enough. I remember at Mount Arthur, in Tasmania, a drunken miner falling down a seventy-foot hole, one dark night, into less than two feet of water. He was rescued next morning, sober, and none the worse for either fall or immersion.—Author.

"Anyhow, all I could discover as wrong with him was a broken arm and a general shock to the system which rendered him perfectly helpless. He let out another moaning yell while I was examining him, which satisfied me that, though he might be in great pain, he had still plenty of life left in him. I tried talking to him, but could get nothing more intelligible than a sort of grunt in reply. It did not occur to me that he might have been drunk when he fell in, and that even the shock had failed as yet to sober him. I found that out afterwards.

"The question I had to answer just then was: How could I get him to the surface? And a pretty hard question it was, too. I at once gave up the idea of leaving him there while I beat up the neighborhood for help. He couldn't survive much longer in that foul well, and there might not be another man within miles of me. Succeed or fail, I must trust entirely to myself.

"If you will believe me, doctor, I don't think I ever felt more grateful to God for the strength of my arm and grip than I did at that trying moment. I thought I saw how, with His help, I might save that poor, crushed creature.

"Without further delay, I seized the rope and climbed up, handover-hand, to the surface. Then I hauled up the bucket and detached it, as being useless for my purpose. What I needed was a good length of fairly-strong cord, and this I procured by the simple expedient of untwisting the strands of about ten feet of rope, which I cut off. There was still plenty of slack; that is, the rope was still considerably longer than the depth of the shaft. Then I descended.

"Now, had the injured man been sufficiently conscious to hold on to the rope, even enough to keep his body perpendicular, I could have fixed him up by simply rigging a loop for him to sit in. But he wasn't; he was just as limp and helpless as a baby. So I had to pass a couple of slip-knots around his chest as well, and then lash him to the rope by means of the strands. It was an awkward job in the dark, amid the water and mud, but I managed it somehow. I then climbed again to the surface, and prepared for a long, steady haul upon the windlass."

"It must have been a severe strain, even upon your muscles!" I interjected.

"Well, it was, sir," he assented, "because it lasted some time, and the hardest part was at the finish, when I had to steady the handle with one hand while I pulled the swaying body upon the mullock-heap with the other. Anyhow, I got through right enough; and, having freed him from the rope, and wrapped him up in my jacket, I started along the pathway at a run, shouting occasionally as I went. Presently I struck a log-and-canvas shanty, showing clear signs of recent occupation, though deserted then. I particularly noticed a couple of empty brandy bottles alongside a bunk, and then I guessed that the man I had pulled out of the shaft must have been on the booze. I hurried back to the mine and carried him to the hut. I could find no more brandy, but there was plenty of tea and enough food to last for some days, and I had to bring him round upon what I could find. I fixed his broken arm in bark splints, and, as soon as he felt himself comfortable in his bunk, he fell asleep, and never woke until mid-day.

"Then we had a feed, and I tried to find out who he was and how he came to fall into the hole; but he only shook his head and stared at me stupidly. I tried him upon every tack I could think of but to no purpose. He knew nothing about the claim. He had no mate. He could not remember his own name. What he did know was that his arm was very painful, and he felt sore and stiff all over, and that he had strange buzzings in his head.

"Finding it impossible to get anything out of him, I had to do the best I could on my own judgment. The man was clearly an imbecile, and his arm demanded prompt surgical treatment. It was, therefore, my plain duty to get him to Cooktown without delay; and, once I make up my mind, I like carrying it out straightway. I was real glad to find he could walk, with a bit of help now and then, and I started packing up his swag, cheered with the thought that I would not have to carry him as well to where I had left my old horse.

"I turned the contents of the hut pretty well upside down, keeping a sharp look-out for letters or other papers that might be of importance to him; and I found £70 in notes, in an empty tobacco tin, but not a scrap of writing. So I rolled up a flannel shirt and a pair of socks in his blankets, humped the swag and led him off, leaving the hut to take care of itself. I found the old horse almost where I had hobbled him, got my new companion on his back, and made tracks for Cooktown.

"There my comrade (whom I called Ned for want of a better name) remained in hospital until his arm was fairly on the mend; but I could get precious little hope from the doctors as to his intellect. One of them advised a voyage to London to consult some specialist; and this idea, somehow, took such a hold of Ned that he left me no peace until I consented to the trip. He had a hazy notion that he had lots of friends in the old country, who would welcome him eagerly, although he could not remember a single one of their names. Besides, I had a bit of money put by, and he could well afford the journey out of his £70.

"So, the end of it was that we bought two steerage passages, and reached London safe and sound. I hate doing nothing, and I returned to the show business, as you see, doctor. I've consulted two doctors about Ned. They both agreed he ought to be treated in an asylum, and recommended their own particular institutions. But that ain't good enough. Ned and I are too good pals now to be parted by the walls of a madhouse. And he's just as likely to recover his memory living with me as cooped up with a lot of lunatics, isn't he, sir?"

"Most certainly he is!" I replied, emphatically.

"God bless you for that, sir!" cried Dicky, joyously. "He's a sight better than he was, and I believe that one of these days, everything will come back to him as clearly as before he fell down the shaft."

"I see no reason why it should not," I assented, encouragingly. "Meanwhile, you are, I suppose, still without any clue to his identity?"

"That's so, sir, unless one can call the initials of a forgotten sweetheart a clue. I saw them on his arm."

"Sweetheart, Ned?" I asked.

"Yes," he replied, coloring up, "but I can't remember her name. Well, I didn't see much use in advertising for an unknown girl, with such common initials as L. A., and so let her slide."

"L. A.," I repeated, musingly. "That's an odd coincidence. Done in red and black and surrounded by a wreath?"

"Quite right," he assented, looking at me, inquiringly. "It's a common design enough."

"I daresay," I rejoined. "I last saw it upon the arm of a man who was murdered, not long ago, and who also came from Cooktown. That's what made the thing somewhat remarkable. Could you show me your friend's right arm without awakening him?"

"Rather!" confirmed Dicky. "He sleeps like a top."

He took me to the adjoining bedroom, and bared his sleeping companion's arm.

"Uncover his chest!" I whispered, eagerly.

With a look of mingled surprise and expectation, he obeyed. The coincidence was complete. Upon the right breast was a rudely-drawn log bearing the letters R. N.

I could have cried out in the greatness of my amazement; but I kept my head, and merely beckoned Dicky to follow me into the other room.

"Can you safely leave these two for about half an hour and accompany me to the Strand?" I asked.

"To be sure I can," he replied, promptly. "They're right enough here. Does it concern him?" he added, eagerly.

"Yes," I replied, "though it may turn out a false scent, after all. We shall soon know."

As fast as a well-bribed driver could take us, we sped to the Adelphi and hastened up to my rooms. Do what I could to keep my head cool, my hand trembled as I unlocked my desk, and sought out a copy of the portrait sent from Cooktown.

"There!" I exclaimed, handing it to Dicky. "That man bore precisely the same tattoo-marks as your friend Ned, and he, too, came from Queensland. Do you recognize him?"

"Recognize him?" echoed Dicky. "I should say so! Why, that's Nat Rainsforth!"

CHAPTER XIX.

I Find an Ally.

For some moments Dicky stood staring at the photograph, as though to make quite sure he was making no mistake. Then he handed it back to me, and I gave him the ghastlier picture of the murdered man. There were two, full-face and profile.

"Its the same man, and Nat Rainsforth, right enough," was his comment, after a careful scrutiny. "Looks as though he'd been strangled."

"So he was, most probably, I assented, "and the principal object of my life is to find who strangled him. You know him, you say, as Nat Rainsforth, but his real name was Luke Arnewood, and he was heir to a large property."

"There's some blooming error about all this," remarked Dicky. "His name was no more Luke Arnewood than mine is. I knew him and all his people down in Brisbane, from his grandfather, old Bill Rainsforth, down to his younger brother, Tom, who was lagged for cattle-duffing. If the man whose photos you've just shown me passed himself off over here as anyone else than Nat Rainsforth, he just lied, that is all."

(To Be Continued.)

BIRDS OF SENTIMENT.

A Story of Two Sparrows, Proving That Birds Are Reasoning Beings.

Have animals instinct merely? Have they sentiment, and can they guide it with reason? M. Milne-Edwards, director the Jardin de Plantes, answers these questions in the affirmative. He has long studied birds as reasoning beings. He knows a redbreast that adopted a youthful linnet, deserted by its parents, and a gray parrot that brought up two nestsfull of young birds that were brought to it. The story of the two Java sparrows deserves to be repeated just as M. Milne-Edwards gives it:

They were both hens and in the same aviary with a parrot, which took a dislike to one of them. One day the parrot picked a quarrel with one of the sparrows, tore out its feathers, and finally broke its leg with a blow of its beak. The poor littlething could no longer stay on a perch. It lay shivering on the ground, to the evident grief of its companion bird. She went about the aviary, picking up straws, feathers and leaves, to make a bed for the invalid. She accomplished wonders of dextrous management in lifting up the featherless sufferer and placing it on the couch. But the weather was cold at night. The charitable bird placed itself beside the one with the broken leg, and extended a wing over it to keep it warm. The position must have been very uncomfortable, not to say painful, but M. Edwards never came at night to see how "this feathered sister of charity" was behaving, without finding it with its wing lovingly extended. The invalid died. The other bird began to mope, lost appetite, withdrew into a corner, drooped and died, also. Was it instinct that prompted it to make a bed and keep the other bird warm? No, it was sentiment, and charitable sentiment, guided by reason.

Tamed Tarantula That Does Stunts.

Mr. Goodin of Texas owns a pet tarantula which he calls Joe. The tarantula responds to his name and gives many tokens of intelligence and affection. He lies perfectly quiet on his back, lets his fangs be exhibited, and makes no attempt to use them to any one's harm. At his master's command he shakes hands with one of his long legs, and he loves to be fondled and petted. He has been in captivity more than two years, and apparently has no longing for freedom. He is large, cleanly in his habits, and will not allow any refuse in his cage. He eats only once in three or four weeks, and throws away his old clothes and puts on new ones once a year. His food consists mainly of large crickets and grasshoppers. Goodin is fond of animals of all sorts and has great control over them. Wild birds often follow him for long distances, and other untamed creatures show a similar inclination.—San Francisco Call.

Tit for Tat.

It is characteristic of those who are severe on others that they cannot bear severity. Dean Swift, the severest satirist of his day, was one day dining with a company of gentlemen, one of whom he made the butt of his ridicule, with repeated sallies. At last the dean poured upon a piece of duck some gravy intended to be eaten with a roasted goose. The unfortunate gentleman, seeing this, immediately said: "My good dean, you surprise me—you eat a duck like a goose." The company roared, and the poor dean was so confused and mortified that he flew into a rage and left the table.

THE OLDEST MAN IN AMERICA

Tells How He Escaped the Terrors of Many Winters by Using Peruna.

Mr. Isaac Brock, born in Buncombe Co., North Carolina, March 1, 1788.
Says: "I attribute my extreme old age to the use of Peruna."

Born before United States was formed.
Saw 22 Presidents elected.
Pe-ru-na has protected him from all sudden changes.
Veteran of four wars.
Shod a horse when 99 years old.

Always conquered the grippe with Pe-ru-na.
Witness in a land suit at age of 110 years.
Believes Pe-ru-na the greatest remedy of the age for catarrhal diseases.

Isaac Brock, a citizen of McLennan county, Texas, has lived 111 years. He now lives with his son-in-law at Valley Mills, Texas.

In speaking of his good health and extreme old age, Mr. Brock says:

"After a man has lived in the world as long as I have, he ought to have found out a great many things by experience.

"One of the things I have found out to my entire satisfaction is the proper remedy for ailments that are due directly to the effects of the climate.

"During my long life I have known a great many remedies for coughs, colds, catarrh and diarrhœa. I had always supposed these affections to be different diseases, but in reading Dr. Hartman's books I have found out that these affections are the same and that they are properly called catarrh.

"I had several long sieges with the grip. At first I did not know that Peruna was a remedy for this disease. When I heard that la grippe was epidemic catarrh, I tried Peruna for la grippe and found it to be just the thing.

"As for Dr. Hartman's remedy, Pe-ru-na, I have found it to be the best, if not the only, reliable remedy for these affections. It has been my standby for many years, and I attribute my good health and extreme old age to this remedy.

Very truly yours.

Isaac Brock.

For a free book on catarrh, address The Peruna Medicine Co., Columbus, Ohio.

LAWRENCE, INFANT PRODIGY.

Attracted the Attention of Garrick, Foote, Burke and Sheridan.

Raphael, with genius at his back, did not come to maturity so quickly, nor did Rubens, triumphant at Antwerp, hold popular applause so long; for Lawrence kept his admiring public to the last, and was something of a wonder both as man and boy, says the Century. His whole career was brilliant, yet not through intrinsic force; his art was successful without being great; he was honored and praised down to his grave, and yet he possessed not genius. There are men who achieve popular success without genius. Lawrence was one of them. The father was a man of some birth and education, but what is called "the poetic temperament," and never got on very well in the world. He was at different times a barrister without a brief, an actor without a part, a keeper of the White Lion inn at Devizes without guests enough to make it pay. When young Lawrence was 3 years old his father made a change of base and moved into the Black Bear inn. It was here that the boy was placed upon a table to recite Shakespeare for the guests. Here, also, he developed a wonderful gift of making portraits in pastel of the passing public. A guest could have a portrait painted while he waited, and the speed of the artist was not less wonderful than his age. The duchess of Devonshire and Lord and Lady Kenyon were among his early sitters, and the record is preserved that Lady Kenyon's likeness was drawn in profile, because, as the child artist declared, "her face was not straight." In a short time he had attracted the attention of Garrick, Foote, Wilkes, Burke, Sheridan and Johnson, and his father began traveling with him about the neighboring country and exhibiting him as one of the wonders of the age.

HOW COLOR AFFECTS INDUSTRY

One Reason Why American Machinery Is Not More Popular.

A gentleman who has traveled much and has a very large interest in American export trade said, in conversation the other day, that the principal drawback to a wider extension of American commerce in certain parts of the world is that manufacturers in the United States do not sufficiently study the wants, the customs and the tastes of their prospective customers. "For example," he said, "a certain American firm sent some electrical goods, which were decorated in green, to Japan. They did not sell any. No Japanese would bring such things into his house; it would mean an invitation to the evil deities. Green is an evil color in Japan. What a Japanese wants is red things. Upon this simple matter of color rests the failure of that manufacturer to succeed in export trade." A German employer of labor said: "I like American machines so far as their performance of their work is concerned, but they demoralize my men. They come here in sober colors of paint and with no bright parts. The men who attend the machines do not have any brass to keep clean of any surfaces to rub, and they get lazy. The German workman needs to be kept busy with things of this sort." Here, now, are some practical instances of what the American manufacturer must learn before he can attain the widest success in the new field of foreign trade. Do not send to Germanay catalogues in the English language or to Japan things decorated in green, or to the isthmus of Panama anything with blue spots in it. It looks as if we need in this country a commercial kindergarten in which such information as the above may be taught to those of a curious and inquiring mind for their everlasting benefit and profit.

MANY PLAGUES IN AFRICA.

Both Man and Beast Are Made Miserable by Nature's Pests.

From Ainslee's Magazine: South Africa exports hides, wool and mohair, and the ranchman would revel in riches were it not for the various pests that decimate his flocks and herds. The most deadly one is the rinderpest, a cattle plague which in the last ten years has been slowly creeping from Central Africa southward, leaving a wake of whitened bones. In traveling through Natal I saw fifty oxen lying dead about a spring, so suddenly had the disease attacked them. It was almost impossible to get an untinged piece of steak at a restaurant, though the proprietor resented any such charge, and a plethoric German traveler who called out in a loud tone for "roast rinderpest" in the railroad cafe at De Aar Junction, Cape Colony, had to be picked up in fragments. Dr. Koch and other eminent specialists tried to stop this plague. The country is now recovering from it slowly. Another pest is the tsetse fly, an insect resembling our common house fly, but three times as large. Its bite will kill a horse, cow or any other domestic animal in about ten days, but, strange to say, does not affect a wild animal or a human being. A less dangerous, but more troublesome, pest is the white ant, which is about one-quarter-of an inch long and ubiquitous in many parts of the country. They live under the ground, and can only be routed by killing the queen, which sometimes reaches the size of one inch in length. This insect is particularly harassing in Rhodesia. At Buluwayo my traveling companion inadvertently left his boots on the floor after turning in at night, and he arose next morning to find the uppers carefully separated from the soles. "Lucky you didn't leave your clothes on the floor," was the hotel-keeper's only consolation. These ants will eat through anything but metal, and for that reason much of the building is done with corrugated iron. The anthill is one of the conspicuous landmarks in traveling over South Africa.

MYSTERIOUS AFRICAN MINES.

Long Abandoned Shafts That Have Interested Many Antiquarians.

Besides the reefs which have been discovered on the coast there exists in Rhodesia an enormous quantity of "old workings," mines which were worked in ancient times, but have long since been abandoned. By whom these mines were worked will probably remain forever a mystery. From old pottery and tools which have been found it, is evident that these old workings were excavated by or under the direction of men of knowledge and intelligence superior to those possessed by the present inhabitants of the country. Gold was extracted from these mines by smelting, many furnaces having been found, and alongside of them ancient molds in which ingots were cast. Several ruins have also been discovered in Rhodesia the magnitude and workmanship of which prove that men of superior civilization either inhabitated or else occupied this part of the world a few thousand years before us. To them are probably due the ancient workings which have been found. With the primitive instruments at their command these miners of a past age were only able to scrape the surface of the gold-bearing reefs, so that the quantity of gold which has been taken from the mines hardly affects their value, while they are a precious indication to the prospector and enable him to test the reef below the surface, and, as a rule, the site of most of these old workings seems to have been selected by competent men, who chose the richest reefs.

The man who is bent on joining the army has to stand straight.

A Remarkable Tribute of Respect.

Mrs. Julia Ward Howe received a remarkable tribute of respect a few days ago at a gathering of Unitarian women in All Souls' church, New York. Mrs. Howe, 80 years old, but still in her prime in wit and charm, grew tired before her speech was finished, and was unable to pitch her voice so that the women in the rear could hear. "Can Mrs. Howe raise her voice?" came a call from the back. "No," replied Mrs. Howe, frankly, "I said yesterday I should not kill myself, even for this august body. You can't expect an old lady of 80 to explode in one gigantic effort." There was a ripple of laughter at this, and then the women in the back seats rose, making their way toward the front, where seats and platform were already crowded. They deliberately sat down on the floor, where they stayed throughout Mrs. Howe's address. Gray-haired women mingled with young girls in this humble position. Mrs. Howe's address was on "The Progress of the Century in Manners." There was a general call for Mrs. Howe to recite "The Battle Hymn of the Republic," which she did amid great applause.

A Thief's Cleverness.

We do not remember to have seen for a long time a more curious case of a thief's cleverness than that which was recorded at Clerkenwell. Solomon Buffler, who, with a companion, was convicted of burglary in a jeweler's shop, managed to conceal two diamond rings in spite of the most thorough search by the police, and contrived to pass one of them away to his wife when he was in the cells, "putting it into her mouth by means of his tongue when kissing her." The other he kept under his tongue all the time he was under arrest, and it would probably never have been found at all if his companion had not exposed him in court, and so induced the judge to order a careful inspection of his mouth.

Strauss Played the Chant.

The teacher who influenced Strauss most was one Joseph Dreshler, the choirmaster of St. Steven's church in Vienna, who tried to get the waltzes out of the boy's head and put in their place anthems and chorals. In this undertaking he met with indifferent success, for the worshippers in one of the Vienna churches were startled on a Sunday morning when there poured forth from the organ, filling the gloomy building by its enchanting notes, a waltz instead of the solemn Gregorian chant to which they were accustomed. It was Johann Strauss, Jr., who had taken the organist's place and substituted his own favorite selection for the usual sacred music, much to the dismay of the pious folk and the amusement of the younger people of the congregation.—Edward A. Steiner in the January Woman's Home Companion.

Latest Addition to the Scottish Zoo.

The latest addition to the Scottish Zoo is a vlacke vark or emgalla, direct from the Transvaal. It is an ungainly-looking animal, with long tusks and a portentously ugly head. One of the chief peculiarities of this animal is the enormous projection which flanks the face on either side just below the eyes. So large are these excrescences, and so deeply sunk are the eyes, that the creature cannot look behind it in the usual manner of animals, and is therefore obliged to hold its head perpendicularly to cast a glance over its own back. As it always holds its tail perpendicularly when it runs, the general effect is exceedingly ludicrous.

A girl should never throw away her old slippers; they will come handy at her wedding—and much handier in after years.

Worthless Stuff!

What a lot of trash is sold as cough cures. The hollow drum makes the loudest noise—the biggest advertisement often covers worthlessness.

Sixty years of cures and such testimony as the following have taught us what Ayer's Cherry Pectoral will do.

"I had a most stubborn cough for many years. It deprived me of sleep and made me lose flesh rapidly. I was treated by many eminent physicians, but could get no permanent relief. I then tried Ayer's Cherry Pectoral, and I began to get better at once. I now sleep well, my old flesh is back, and I enjoy myself in every way at the age of seventy-four."—R. N. MANN, Fall Mills, Tenn., Feb. 7, 1899.

It's the do-as-you-would-be-done-by cough medicine. Try a 25-cent bottle.

SALZER'S 3 EARED CORN This new, earliest, corn will revolutionize corn growing, yielding in 1899, in Minnesota, 200 bu. per acre. BIG FOUR OATS yields 250 bu. per acre, and you can test that! SPELTZ 80 bus. per acre. Greatest grain and hay food this side of the stars! BARLEY, BEARDLESS, yields 121 bus. in N.Y. Wonderful! RAPE 25c. A TON Gives rich, green food for cattle, sheep, swine, poultry, etc., at 25c. a ton. We sell nine-tenths of the Rape seed used in the U. S. BROMUS INERMUS Greatest grass on earth. Grows to perfection in America everywhere. Salzer warrants it! THE MILLION DOLLAR potato is the most talked of potato on earth, and Salzer's Six Weeks; both will make you rich. Largest grower of Potatoes and Farm Seeds in the world. VEGETABLE SEEDS Largest, choicest list in U. S. Onion Seed, 60c. lb. Everything warranted to grow. 35 pkgs earliest vegetables, postpaid, $1.00. FOR 10c. STAMPS and this notice, we mail great Seed Catalog and 10 pkgs Farm Seed Novelties. Catalog alone, 5c postage. wnu

JOHN A. SALZER SEED CO.
LA CROSSE WIS.

TOWER'S FISH BRAND TRADE MARK

POMMEL SLICKER The Best Saddle Coat.

Keeps both rider and saddle perfectly dry in the hardest storms. Substitutes will disappoint. Ask for 1897 Fish Brand Pommel Slicker—it is entirely new. If not for sale in your town, write for catalogue to A. J. TOWER, Boston, Mass.

160 ACRE FARMS IN WESTERN CANADA FREE

MILLIONS of acres of choice agricultural LANDS now opened for settlement in Western Canada. Here is grown the celebrated NO. 1 HARD WHEAT, which brings the highest price in the markets of the world; thousands of cattle are fattened for market without being fed grain, and without a day's shelter. Send for information and secure a free home in Western Canada. Write the Superintendent of Immigration, Ottawa, or address the undersigned, who will mail you atlases, pamphlets, etc., free of cost. Ben Davies, 154½ East Third St., St. Paul, Minn.

Meat smoked in a few hours with KRAUSERS' LIQUID EXTRACT OF SMOKE. Made from hickory wood. Cheaper, cleaner, sweeter, and surer than the old way. Send for circular. E. KRAUSER & BRO., Milton, Pa.

PARALYSIS Locomotor Ataxia conquered at last. Doctors puzzled. Specialists amazed at recovery of patients thought incurable, by DR. CHASE'S BLOOD AND NERVE FOOD. Write me about your case. Advice and proof of cures FREE. DR. CHASE, 224 N. 10th St., PHILADELPHIA, PA.

CARTER'S INK is made to give satisfaction—and it does. Have you used it?

DR. ARNOLD'S COUGH KILLER CURES COUGHS AND COLDS. PREVENTS CONSUMPTION. All Druggists, 25c.

DROPSY NEW DISCOVERY; gives quick relief and cures worst cases. Book of testimonials and 10 DAYS' treatment FREE. DR. H. H. GREEN'S SONS, Box E, Atlanta, Ga.

If afflicted with sore eyes, use Thompson's Eye Water.

When Answering Advertisements Kindly Mention This Paper.

25 CTS. PISO'S CURE FOR CURES WHERE ALL ELSE FAILS. Best Cough Syrup. Tastes Good. Use in time. Sold by druggists. CONSUMPTION 25 CTS.

FARM AND GARDEN.

MATTERS OF INTEREST TO AGRICULTURISTS.

Some Up-to-Date Hints About Cultivation of the Soil and Yields Thereof—Horticulture, Viticulture and Floriculture.

In-Breeding.

(Condensed from Farmers' Review Stenographic Report.)

At the last annual meeting of the American Galloway Breeders' association, Mr. O. H. Swigart of Illinois read a paper on in-breeding in which he showed the evil effects of close in-breeding as demonstrated by experiments made by Darwin and others in the animal and vegetable kingdoms, and enforced his argument by a long list of great winners in the great cattle show rings in whose pedigrees no ancestor appeared twice; such as Bassanio, Clark's old bull, Pauline, winner at Omaha, Presidio King, Duke Walter, etc. He said in closing his paper:

"While under certain circumstances it may be a good thing to in-breed, and I would always in-breed in preference to using an inferior animal, still I take it as a good omen of the future of the Galloways that our winners are not all descended from one sire like the favorites in the Shorthorns. While some of our breeders have resorted to in-breeding, they have not been sufficiently successful to encourage them to enter the lists against those diversely bred. While I would not advise departing from the Galloway type, still, let us be sure our ideal of the type is correct and keep nothing our judgment tells us is bad even though told it is a race characteristic. Never hesitate to make a change when improvement is called for. The best is none too good. Only the most careful selection will secure the best."

Some discussion followed the paper. Mr. J. M. Lowe said: "I do not believe a little bit in practicing in-breeding. In the hands of such a genius as Bates was thought to be it might be practiced to a limited extent, but the majority of us ought never to seek it in my judgment. I think it has resulted in deterioration in other breeds of cattle and the same result must be produced in all breeds."

Mr. E. W. Thrall said: "As the Galloways have been for untold generations in their native land, in-breeding would necessarily occur to a great extent there, and I have no doubt that the Galloway in his native country has been greatly hurt by that process; but, as Mr. Swigart intimates in one portion of his paper, a change from one land to another, the different environment by which those herds were surrounded would give different characteristics to those cattle. Now when we have the cattle on this side of the ocean and have breeders who are breeding these cattle in the north and south, the east and the west, we can take advantage of all those different environments, and surely from this time on there will be no excuse for what Mr. Swigart regards as one of the most dangerous experiments for Galloway breeders to make."

Value of Leguminous Plants.

The Tennessee Experiment Station has been studying the leguminous plants, clover, beans, peas, alfalfa, soja beans, locust, vetches, wild pea vines, etc., and the best methods of using them for improving the soil and feeding stock.

The microbes occur in most fertile soils and multiply when their own plant is present. The special microbe may be introduced by distributing soil in which this plant has grown successfully. For example, if clover does not grow well on a suitable soil, take the fine earth, one to three inches from the surface of a field where it has grown well, distribute and work into the soil. Freezing, drouth, and kainite kill these microbes. Cultivating one leguminous plant upon the soil seems to run out the microbes of the others. For example, when cow-peas have been long cultivated in a field it may be necessary to introduce the clover microbe. "Clover-sick" probably results from the increase of humic acids which kill the clover microbes. Lime corrects this.

In nature the balance of nitrogen in the soil is kept up by wild leguminous plants, like locusts, wild pease, vetches, beggar-lice, etc. In farm practice, when we grow non-leguminous plants, we must keep up the balance of nitrogen by using legumes in our rotation. The best legumes for us to use are cow-peas, clover, alfalfa, soja beans, beans, and pease.

Cow-pease are best sown in the spring, though if the season is favorable they may be sown as late as July 1. Two bushels per acre may be plowed or harrowed in; if the land is thin, use 200 pounds acid phosphate, and 25 to 50 pounds per acre of muriate of potash. The vines in October contain one and one-half to two and one-half per cent nitrogen; if left on the ground till January only seventy-five hundredths per cent. If we leave them to rot on the soil we lose, thus, one-half to two-thirds of the nitrogen; if we plow under we still lose a great deal. Better make them into hay for silage. If not fed, the best plan is to plow under in early fall and plant a grain crop, wheat or oats, which will absorb that part which would be lost.

Preparations for a Strawberry Bed.

Every small fruit grower should plan his work in advance two or three years, and be his own nurseryman and propagate his plants so as to get the very best results. Strawberry plants should be grown in a special plat from carefully selected plants, which show a tendency to form strong fruit buds. The propagating bed should be sprayed with Bordeaux mixture immediately after the plants are set, using the atomizer sprayer so it will go to the plants in the finest mist. It will destroy every spore of rust and leave the foliage as clear and waxy as the newest growth.

For several years I tried to eliminate this disease by selecting plants that would resist it. We all know it is a fungus growth and under favorable climatic conditions will spread very rapidly. Some varieties are more susceptible to it than others and these are our most productive sorts when kept free from it. This year we have sprayed every ten days, using a cart with an Eclipse barrel pump sprayer, with three nozzles, taking three rows at a time.

The other day I offered a visitor a dollar each for every leaf he could find on the farm containing a live spot of rust. Although diligent search was made he did not replenish his bank account by finding a single leaf. It is well known that strong fruit buds or roots cannot be secured without healthy foliage and plenty of it. Rust is propagated by spores and if all these are killed in the propagating bed we shall have little fear of our crop being lessened or destroyed by it in the fruiting field.

Another advantage of propagating plants in a special bed is that they can be kept dormant by mulching lightly as soon as the ground is frozen slightly and then in mid-winter when the ground is frozen deepest, cover several inches thick with fine chaff. You can thus keep the frost in the ground and prevent them from starting until your beds are plowed and fitted. No matter how hot the sun may be, a dormant plant set in the ground will grow vigorously, where one loaded with a mass of green foliage would surely perish. Another feature of the propagating bed is the blossom buds should be removed before they are open so as to prevent the great strain of pollen secretions at a time when they have no roots to sustain them. Potency of pollen is of the utmost importance in the development of fruit and a plant once exhausted does not soon recover. The cost of removing the buds is no more than when done at a later time and you will find results very satisfactory.—R. M. Kellogg.

The Toilet of a Chrysanthemum.

Probably few of the people who attend the Chicago Flower Show, realize that it takes three hours sometimes to make the toilet of a single rare specimen of the chrysanthemum. One would hardly believe it, but here is the process of dressing a single flower, and imagine the care, patience and gentleness of touch required. One look at an ordinary chrysanthemum, or a fine one in deshabille will show that there is a hole at the center of the blossom and that the petals straggle in all directions, up and down, right and left. It looks like a lazy boy who has "forgotten" to comb his hair. The flower-hairdresser has his combs and brushes, but the combs are pincers of various sizes and the brushes of the softest camel's hair.

Suppose that the florist has succeeded in growing some fine specimens of that huge variety, "My Lady," some blossoms of which have measured fourteen inches in diameter. He cuts the blossom with a long stem, so that he can handle it well. Then he places it in a high glass vase with a broad base, but over the top of the vase is what looks like the socket of a candlestick with a hole in it. The stem passes through this hole and down into the vase until the lower petals of the blossom rest on the zinc support, but not too firmly. Before putting the flower into the vase to keep it from wilting under the long operation, he has performed the roughest part of the work. This consists in pulling out with the pincers enough petals around the center of the blossom to permit the others to close over that part. He is careful to remove any worms, or defective, discolored petals and then he begins the "combing process," the most tedious part of all. With the less rare varieties, which do not take so long, this is all done rapidly, but gently, while the stem is held in the hand, but with "My Lady," who is too aristocratic to have her temper so tried for three long hours, this part of the work is done while she drinks refreshing moisture in the vase.

One by one each petal is put in place so that the contour of the blossom will be either a perfect circle or a star of many rays. If any petal prove too obdurate to stay in place it is pulled out by a gentle jerk with the pincers.

Cob Charcoal.

Now that we are in earnest beginning to transform our fine corn crop into pork for the market, it is well to bear in mind the value of charcoal as a relish and medicine for hogs. Every farmer who has noticed his hogs eating charred wood from the brush pile, even before they were cool, must have come to the conclusion that charcoal is good for hogs. It is not necessary for us to state just why it is good. The admitted fact is enough to know at present; the more important question is how to get the charcoal the easiest, and the answer is "Through burnt cobs," says Wallace's Farmer. It will pay every farmer to make a pit in his barnyard a couple of feet square and as many deep, start in it a good fire, and fill it gradually with dry corn cobs, and when it has reached the proper point smother it out by covering it over with a piece of sheet iron, putting some dirt around the edges. Practice will furnish any man with the "know how" to do it. After it has been entirely smothered out, add salt, and a little lime and wood ashes if convenient, and keep more or less of this mixture within reach of the hogs at all times in the winter season. They will eat large quantities of it, and its benefit will be evident in the thrift of the growing pigs. It will not only aid digestion, but add materially to the development of bone, one of the things greatly to be desired, especially in hogs. The beauty of this kind of charcoal is that it costs nothing but a little application of brains, a little work, and a little salt and lime, and there is no article of feed grown on the farm that costs so little and pays as large dividends on its cost. If this is too much bother, rake up a pile of cobs, char them, and see how greedy hogs are to get at them, then go and dig your pit and have a supply for the winter, when cobs that are lying around on the farm will be too wet to burn.

Dietetic Value of Fruits.—The dietetic value of fruits is not so much in the amount of actual nutriment which they contain, for being largely made up of water their food value is not great in proportion to the bulk. But they contain acids which have a beneficial effect on the system, and often stimulate an appetite for other foods.—Ex.

Basic slag meal is an excellent source of phosphoric acid, ranking close behind superphosphates, while upon certain sandy and acid soils it may even prove superior to them.

OUR BUDGET OF FUN.

SOME GOOD JOKES, ORIGINAL AND SELECTED.

A Variety of Quips, Gibes and Ironies, to Cause a Smile — Flotsam and Jetsam from the Tide of Humor—Witty Sayings.

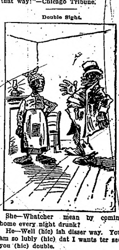
Too Bad.

"I think I was never worse disappointed in my life," said Mr. Gaswell, "than when I paid $25 for that Mexican hairless dog."

"What's the matter with him?" asked the other man. "Wasn't he genuine?"

"Yes, I suppose so, but I always had the idea that there was some process in Mexico for taking the hair off dogs. It seems there isn't. I thought I was buying a work of art, and I find out now that the blamed animal was born that way!"—Chicago Tribune.

Double Sight.



She—Whatcher mean by comin home every night drunk?

He—Well (hic) ish disser way. You am so lubly (hic) dat I wants ter see you (hic) double.

The Reward of Labor.

"Bill have you cut the firewood?"

"Yes, sir."

"An' fed the mules?"

"Yes, sir."

"An' milked the cows?"

"All milked, sir."

"An' ground the corn?"

"Jest through, sir."

"An' banked the taters?"

"Last one, sir."

"Well, you're a good un. Now call the dogs and you can go and tree a 'possum fer yer supper!"

Good Cheer.

"Now tell me, doctor, candidly, is there anything really the matter with my wife?"

"Yes. Her vocal chords are sadly affected. I'm afraid she may lose her voice."

"Say, drop in on your way back from the office and chat awhile, will you? Things have been going badly with me lately, and it's so comforting to hear you talk."—Chicago Times-Herald.

End of the Rope.

"Not going to marry her for another year? Why, I thought that everything was arranged for next month and that you had saved up a lot of money with which to begin housekeeping?"

"So I did, but I'm broke and must start all over again. You know, I went to New York. I couldn't resist talking to her over the long-distance telephone. Fortunately, I had a return ticket."—Detroit Free Press.

Good Investment.

"And so you are going to buy your uncle a pipe with your nickel instead of spending it on candy?"

"Yes," said the dear child, "then uncle will give us a quarter and we can buy enough to get sick on."—Philadelphia Enquirer.

Completely Subjugated.

"Poor old Henpeck leads a dog's life with his wife."

"Well, why on earth doesn't he apply for a divorce?"

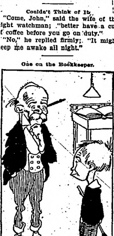
"He says he wanted to, but she wouldn't let him."—Philadelphia Press.

Couldn't Think of It.

"Come, John," said the wife of the night watchman; "better have a cup of coffee before you go on duty."

"No," he replied firmly; "It might keep me awake all night."

One on the Bookkeeper.



Head Clerk—"Look here; if you try to make fun of me again, I'll shut you up in the daybook."

Office Boy—"If you do, boss, for heaven's sake don't forget the page."

Queer Actions.

First Horse—"Just look at that automobile!"

Second Horse—"I should say so! The clumsy beast is getting ready to roll."—Indianapolis Journal.

None laugh better and oftener than women with fine teeth.

NO MORE GRIPS

New Line Now Open to the Public.

Take the C. C. C. Line to Certain Relief Without a Grip or Gripe—Fare 10c—Get Passage at Any Drug Store

No more grips—Russian or any other kind.

That is the verdict of the traveling public who have grown tired after years of experience with the grips and gripes of pill form and liquid purgatives.

To open the bowels naturally, easily, without disagreeable feelings or results, has been the problem before modern science, which has been solved in Cascarets Candy Cathartic.

Cascarets are the ideal laxative, harmless, purely vegetable, mild yet positive. They make the liver lively, prevent sour stomach, purify the blood, regulate the bowels perfectly.

They cure constipation. We want you to believe this, as it is the truth, backed by an absolute guarantee. If Cascarets do not cure any case of constipation, purchase money will be refunded.

Go buy and try Cascarets to-day. It's what they do, not what we say they do, that proves their merit. All druggists, 10c, 25c, or 50c, or mailed for price. Send for booklet and free sample. Address Sterling Remedy Co., Chicago; Montreal, Can.; or New York.

CCC This is the CASCARET tablet. Every tablet of the only genuine Cascarets bears the magic letters "C C C." Look at the tablet before you buy, and beware of frauds, imitations and substitutes.

The Old Trouble.

"Alexander gave his wife a piano."

"Ah, so she would stay at home more?"

"Either that, or he would have an excuse to get away oftener."—Indianapolis Journal.

Catarrh Cannot Be Cured

with LOCAL APPLICATIONS, as they cannot reach the seat of the disease. Catarrh is a blood or constitutional disease, and in order to cure it you must take internal remedies. Hall's Catarrh Cure is taken internally, and acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces. Hall's Catarrh Cure is not a quack medicine. It was prescribed by one of the best physicians in this country for years, and is a regular prescription. It is composed of the best tonics known, combined with the best blood purifiers, acting directly on the mucous surfaces. The perfect combination of the two ingredients is what produces such wonderful results in curing Catarrh. Send for testimonials, free.

F. J. CHENEY & CO., Props., Toledo, O.

Sold by druggists, price 75c.

Hall's Family Pills are the best.

"Yes, sir!" said the man who warms chairs, as he raised his feet to the top of the desk. "I certainly do believe in elevating the mind."

And he wondered why the new clerk laughed.—Indianapolis Sun.

WESTERN CANADA.

Crop Prospects and Climate About Edmonton, N. W. T.—Interesting Letter from Mrs. S. A. Brigham, Late of Mason City.

The following extracts from an interesting letter to the Mason City (Ia.) Republican, written by Mrs. S. A. Brigham, late of that place, but now of Ross Creek, Alberta, Canada, so nearly describe most of the districts of Western Canada that we take pleasure in presenting same to the attention of our readers:

Ross Creek, Albert, N. W. T., Canada,
Aug. 7, 1899.

Editor Mason City Republican—Dear Sir: We are located in the Beaver Hills, 30 miles from Ft. Saskatchewan and 50 miles from Edmonton. To the east of these is an immense area of bottom lands, which furnishes abundance of hay for the settlers. It is dotted with small lakes, the largest of which is called Beaver Lake, 16 miles in length.

The Beaver Hills are covered with small green willows which are easily gotten rid of before breaking up the land. Here and there poplar, birch and tamarack trees abound. Small meadows are numerous. The soil in these hills is much richer than the bottom lands, being a kind of black leaf mould. There is no tough sod to break, and it is very productive. Wheat, oats and barley do finely and vegetables are the finest that can be grown. Potatoes especially are large and solid, easily producing from 200 to 300 bushels per acre, and best of all never a "taty bug" to wrestle with. Wild fruit, strawberries, gooseberries, saskatoons (or pine berries), raspberries and cranberries, are found in the hills. Small tame fruit does finely, the red and white currants in my garden are as large again as common sized ones.

We have long days during the months of June and July; one can see to read many evenings until 10 o'clock in the twilight. Some nights less than 3 hours of darkness, and the birds are singing at 2 o'clock. Then again, it rains so easily. You look toward the west and see a little cloud coming up, a gentle shower follows, the sun shines forth again, and in a little while you forget it has rained.

Cyclones are unknown here and the thunder and lightning is very light. We had two storms this summer accompanied with wind and hail, but nothing to lodge the grain. The average heat is about 78 degrees. We had three or four days in July at 90. The nights are always cool.

The winter season is one of great activity. All the fencing is gotten out then and logs for the farm buildings. By paying 25 cents you are granted a permit at the land office to cut logs upon vacant lands. The roads are good and smooth, for the snow never drifts, not even around the buildings, and this is a great saving of time to the farmer. Hay is hauled from the bottom lands all winter long, and a man can work outside every day as far as the weather is concerned. There are cold snaps when it reaches 40 and 48 below zero, but the lack of wind prevents one realizing it and the mountains 150 miles west of us are a great protection. Our neighbors are mostly Canadian, Scotch, Swede, and we have a nice sprinkling of people from the states. The creeks abound in small fish.

We are now in the midst of haymaking (Aug. 7). Wheat will not be cut until early September, this being a little later season than common, but the crop will be immense. I send you a sample of wheat and barley—its height is almost even with my shoulders, average 50 inches. New comers lacking binders can hire their grain cut for 75 cents per acre. Prairie chickens are here by the thousands.

The water is good. We have a fine well 15 feet deep. In the creeks the water is soft and of a yellowish color.

Now, for the drawbacks (we have them), but nothing very serious. The mosquitoes are simply abominable, especially after a shower. Then again we are surrounded with bachelors; we have no less than 18 single men in this neighborhood, on matrimony bent. When a feminine gender of any age between 14 and 40 visits these hills we pity her, so great is the demand for her company.

In conclusion, if the remainder of our loved ones were here with us, we should better enjoy life on Ross Creek, and unless the unexpected develops, consider this will be a pretty fair place to end our days.

MRS. S. A. BRIGHAM.

She Shingled the Barn.

Farmer John Schaar's barn, in North Union township had long gone unshingled because the owner was too infirm to climb to the roof, while one of his sons was fighting in the Philippines and the other had gone to the Klondike.

The other day, however, the farmer's only daughter, Kate, who has been employed in Philadelphia, came home on a visit. She was worried by the condition of the barn, and the next day went to work and shingled the roof, doing the work as well as a man.—Philadelphia Record.

PATENTS.

List of Patents Issued Last Week to Northwestern Inventors.

Emil I. Drayer, Stillwater, Minn., dust collector; Henry Hammer, Mountain Lake, Minn.; Knudt N. Knudtson, Beaver Creek, Minn., music leaf turner; Jacob Lampert, Hill City, S. D., ore concentrator; William McIntosh, Winona, Minn., blow-off cock; Mathias A. Patton, Livingston, Mont., locomotive for elevated railways; William H. Walton, Neche, N. D., harvesting machine.

Merwin, Lothrop & Johnson, Patent Attorneys, 911 & 912 Pioneer Press Bldg., St. Paul.

Uncle Has It.

Miss Roxy—Where's the umbrella I gave you?

Gayboy (her fiance)—That is it.

Miss Roxy—Nonsense! The one I gave you had a heavy silver handle. That has no handle at all.

Gayboy—Well—er—you—see, you do not put the handle up for the rain; I—er—put that up for the dust.—Philadelphia Press.

Mrs. Winslow's Soothing Syrup.

For children teething, softens the gums, reduces inflammation, allays pain, cures wind colic. 25c a bottle.

A girl should never throw away her old slippers; they will come handy at her wedding—and much handier in after years.

THE NERVES OF WOMEN

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Relieves the Suffering from Overwrought Nerves.

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I am so grateful for the benefit derived from the use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I wish you to publish this testimonial that others may know the value of your medicine. I was suffering such tortures from nervous prostration that life was a burden. I could not sleep at all and was too weak to walk across the floor without aid. The disease had reached a condition where my heart was affected by it, so that often I could not lie down at all without almost suffocating. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it worked like magic. I feel that your medicine has been of inestimable benefit to me."—MISS ADELE WILLIAMSON, 196 N. Boulevard, Atlanta, Ga.

Thin, Sallow and Nervous

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was thin, sallow and nervous. I had not had my menses for over a year and a half. Doctored with several physicians in town and one specialist, but did not get any better. I finally decided to try your medicine, and wrote to you. After I had taken three bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and three of Blood Purifier, my menses returned, and I feel as well and strong as I ever did, and am gaining flesh."—MISS LENA GAINES, Visalia, Tulare Co., Cal.

N W N U —No. 6— 1900.

MILLIONS OF WOMEN USE CUTICURA SOAP exclusively for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, for cleansing the scalp of crusts, scales, and dandruff, and the stopping of falling hair, for softening, whitening, and healing red, rough, and sore hands, in the form of baths for annoying irritations, inflammations, and chafings, or too free or offensive perspiration, in the form of washes, for ulcerative weaknesses, and for many sanative antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves to women, and especially mothers, and for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. No amount of persuasion can induce those who have once used it to use any other, especially for preserving and purifying the skin, scalp, and hair of infants and children. CUTICURA SOAP combines delicate emollient properties derived from CUTICURA, the great skin cure, with the purest of cleansing ingredients and the most refreshing of flower odors. No other medicated or toilet soap ever compounded is to be compared with it for preserving, purifying, and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair, and hands. No other foreign or domestic toilet soap, however expensive, is to be compared with it for all the purposes of the toilet, bath, and nursery. Thus it combines in ONE SOAP at ONE PRICE, viz., TWENTY-FIVE CENTS, the BEST skin and complexion soap, the BEST toilet and BEST baby soap in the world.

COMPLETE EXTERNAL AND INTERNAL TREATMENT FOR EVERY HUMOR, $1.25, consisting of CUTICURA SOAP (25c.), to cleanse the skin of crusts and scales and soften the thickened cuticle, CUTICURA OINTMENT (50c.), to instantly allay itching, inflammation, and irritation, and soothe and heal, and CUTICURA RESOLVENT (50c.), to cool and cleanse the blood. A SINGLE SET is often sufficient to cure the most torturing, disfiguring skin, scalp, and blood humors, with loss of hair, when all else fails. Sold throughout the world. POTTER DRUG AND CHEM. CORP., Sole Props., Boston. "All about Skin, Scalp, and Hair," free.

DO YOU SPECULATE? If so, speculate successfully. We can make you in one month more interest on your money than any bank will pay you in a year. $20 will buy 1,000 bushels of wheat or corn and margin the same 2 cents. Send for our book on speculation. IT IS FREE. All profits payable on demand.

J. K. COMSTOCK & CO.,
Room 23, Traders' Bldg., Chicago.

OLDTIME ANARCHISTS

WHOSE NAMES ARE GREATLY HONORED

Were Trying to Arouse the People to Their Danger — But With What Success? — Let the Past and Present Speak.

"Yes, we may all congratulate ourselves that this cruel war is nearing a crisis. It has cost a vast amount of blood and treasure. The best flower of American youth has been freely offered upon our country's altar that the nation might live. It has been, indeed, a trying hour for the republic. But I see in the near future a crisis approaching that unnerves me and causes me to tremble for the safety of my country. As a result of the war corporations have been enthroned, and an era of corruption in high places will follow; and the money power of the country will endeavor to prolong its reign by working upon the prejudices of the people, until all wealth is aggregated in a few hands and the republic is destroyed. I feel at this moment more anxiety for the safety of my country than ever before, even in the midst of war. God grant that my suspicions may prove groundless."—Abraham Lincoln.

"My agency in procuring the passage of the national bank act was the greatest financial mistake of my life. It has built a monopoly that effects every interest in the country. It should be repealed. But before this can be accomplished the people will be arrayed on one side and the banks on the other, in a contest such as we have never seen in this country."—Salmon P. Chase.

"Put down the banks, and if this country could not be carried through the longest war against her most powerful enemy without ever knowing the want of a dollar; without dependence on the traitorous class of her citizens; without bearing hard on the resources of the people or loading the public with debt, I know nothing of my countrymen. And I sincerely believe with you that 'bank establishments are more dangerous than standing armies,' and that the principle of spending money to be paid in futurity, under the name of funding, is but swindling futurity on a large scale."—Thomas Jefferson.

"Resolved, That congress has no power to charter a United States bank, that we believe such an institution one of deadly hostility to the best interests of the country, dangerous to our republican institutions and the liberties of the people, and calculated to place the business of the country within the control of a concentrated money power and above the laws and the will of the people."—Democratic platform, 1840.

"Monarchy itself is sometimes hinted at as a possible refuge from the power of the people. In my present position I could scarcely be justified were I to omit raising a warning voice against the approach of returning despotism. There is one point to which I ask a brief attention. It is the effort to place capital above labor in the structure of the government. Let them beware of surrendering a political power which they already have, and which, if surrendered, will surely be used to close the door of advancement against such as they, and fix new disabilities and burdens upon them, till all of liberty will be lost."—Abraham Lincoln.

What will the lawyers and bankers and their dupes say in reply to Lincoln? Why, they will accuse every one who dares to expose them of being an alarmist, and "rustle," like the devil after souls, for votes necessary to bring about the very condition of affairs Lincoln warned us against.

Read what "Honest Abe" said over again and think.

Can you not see the effort being made before your very eyes "to place capital not only on an equal with, but above labor in the structure of government?"

Was Lincoln a fool? Did he not know what he was talking about? Did not the danger he spoke of exist? Was not this a "conspiracy?" Lincoln said this in '61, before a single slave had been liberated. He spoke to white men. The Republican party was formed to accomplish a great work, which it did. Now it is in the hands of wreckers and is used by them to drive the whole industry of the country into the insatiable maw of monopolies and trusts. The once lively body is nothing but a corpse animated and possessed by a devil. Instead of Lincoln and Palmer, its leaders are a set of blood-suckers, leeches and thieves.

Trusts and monopolies have full possession of the party now, and every man that has the love of country and the welfare of the industrial classes at heart will step out and not be led into the pit.

The final end and result of legislation in the interest of the monied class can be nothing but the complete degradation of humanity; and yet we find men who are willing to vote to tax themselves that other men may have greater and greater power to reduce humanity to a worse condition than that of chattel slavery.

The money fight is the great fight of the age.

There is no use trying to dodge the question; it has got to come sooner or later, and it is bound to come sooner than most people think. The middle man has been the direct cause of the climax not being settled ere this, but the middle man is fast being crushed out.

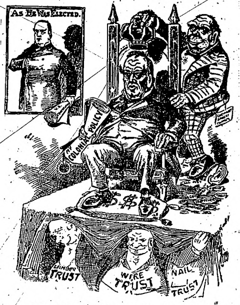
The world owes no man a living who does not work for it. The colossal fortunes that have been stolen by the few from the many must go back to their rightful owners. That sentiment is in the air, and every son and daughter in America is breathing it day after day and the effect is being felt more and more.

The people are becoming aroused, and they are just as sure to overthrow the tables of the money-changers as the sun is to set. The capitalists own a majority of the press and pulpit of the country, but the people will no longer consent to be led by false gods.

The man who continues to vote for mortgages and bonds is voting for the worst form of despotism. No matter what you call it, no matter how much you kiss the hand that smites, the man who does not vote against and denounce the monstrous crime, is a traitor to his country and his family.

We have been approaching nearer and nearer the financial crisis, until at present the crash seems inevitable. Abraham Lincoln, Palmer, Chase, Jefferson, with others, have warned us out of the past. Of those who are warning us in the present it is not necessary to speak; they are many. The industrial classes are awakening out of their lethargy, and victory is as sure to perch upon their banner as the sun is to continue in its course to the end of time, though it may be through a long and bloody struggle.—J. W. Kunkleman.

WILLIAM M'KINLEY.



AS HE IS ENTHRONED.

EDITORIAL.

While the Republicans are busy calling all who do not approve of the conquest of the Philippine islands "copperheads" and "traitors," they should remember that some of the most brilliant leaders who have ever graced the Republican party are included in the list.

The opponents of public ownership raise the objection that public ownership would furnish large opportunity for political corruption. There is a measure of truth in this claim—under our present system of government by party. The objection would disappear with political parties, and political parties would disappear with the adoption of direct legislation.

Government by injunction has reached the point where a man has secured an injunction to prevent his daughter from getting married and a street railway company has secured an injunction to prevent any person from bringing a suit against it. Let the system run its length. The more ridiculous the extremes reached the sooner will it be done away with entirely.

There is going to be the usual effort in the present congress to increase the rates of postage on periodicals. The people should keep in mind the fact that present rates would pay all expenses and yield a large revenue if it were not for the fraudulent contracts with the railroad companies. The proposition is simply another plan to tax the people for the benefit of the railroads.

The settlement of any social or economic problem requires a thorough knowledge of all the conditions of that problem and of the principles on which the solution of it must be based. It is not best, therefore, for any man to conclude that he has reached the solution unless he has given careful and patient attention to the whole matter and a thorough consideration of the opinions presented by others.—New Era.

THE DAMNING LETTER.

Among the black splotches in the Gage matter, the Hepburn letter stands out as the worst. Its perusal relieves Mr. Gage from the charges on ignorance of everything but the banking business with which the Chicago Tribune and other McKinley organs endeavor to smirch his private character.

"June 5, 1897.

"The National City bank, of which I recently became vice president, through the consolidation of the business of the Third National bank with it, is one of the banks designated as a United States depository, and I write to request that in any changes which may be made under the administration we may not be disturbed in this respect. We should like to remain a United States depository at present.

Of course the bank is very strong, and if you will take the pains to look at our list of directors you will see that we also have very great political claims in view of what was done during the canvass last year. Yours very truly, A. B. HEPBURN.

Havemeyer, Rockefeller, Sloan, Webb and other bankers, trusts and syndicates are and were in the list of directors. After the receipt of this letter the government deposits in the Standard Oil National city bank were increased from $200,000 to tens of millions of dollars.

REPUBLICAN VIEW OF M'KINLEY

A Mortgaged Candidate.—McKinley, while governor of Ohio, was the silent partner of one Robert L. Walker of Ohio, and when Walker went to smash on Feb. 17, 1893, McKinley, it was found, had indorsed $118,000 of Walker's promissory notes. McKinley did this, although he was worth only $10,000 in all this wide world. The eastern Republicans could not understand such business methods. They know how McKinley's debts were paid, and by whom. Here it is in brief: Chief contributors to pay McKinley's debts—Marcus A. Hanna, H. H. Kohlsaat, Myron T. Herrick. Chief bosses of McKinley's campaign—Marcus A. Hanna, H. H. Kohlsaat, Myron T. Herrick. McKinley is spoken of as "the mortgaged candidate"—mortgaged not only in untold promises of federal patronage, but mortgaged in other ways, and by every tie of business and friendship to his three managers and syndicators, Hanna, Kohlsaat and Herrick and others. McKinley is the first aspirant for a presidential nomination to stand before the country loaded down with obligations, which, after some fashion even he is bound to meet. The coterie of manufacturers and others who chipped in to pay his debts; the trio, Hanna, Kohlsaat and Herrick; their satellites, all do not live by bread alone. They must have their pound of flesh in return for past favors. McKinley remains silent and docile in their hands. He is their creature.—New York Sun, May 15, 1896.

Wage Slavery.

Recently the Verdict has been prying a bit into the subject of wages paid to labor. There are hundreds of thousands of workers in New York—and for that matter their like exists in every corner of the land—whose average yearly income won't reach $200. On this they must support a family. The World lately told at length of a woman and her child whose income—and the woman sewed night and day—was $1.20 a week. Such conditions are worse than slavery. They are better than slavery for the employer, for slave labor and slave ownership would cost the employer more. And for all that the administration choir so constantly and with upturned thankful eyes, chants of a persistent, sweet prosperity. Labor conditions grow worse and the poor go lean and poorer.

The Crime of 1873.

Some Republicans are beginning to consider the demonetization of silver as a "crime" as well as the so-called "silver cranks." Senator Chandler of New Hampshire did not hesitate to call it by its right name, in discussing the present financial measure before the United States senate.

The senator regards the adoption or the rejection of the currency bill as involving a moral question. He said: "I have never said much about the "crime of 1873," because I have been inclined to think the demonetization of silver then was accidental and not intentional; but the reduction by England and the United States of the values of the silver hoards of India and the Oriental silver countries was a crime and an offense against morality."

Gage and the Banks.

After all that has been said in criticism of Secretary Gage in connection with those administration deals with the National City bank of New York, are they not the logical outcome of the whole situation? Why should not that astute managing clerk of the money department of the new imperialistic firm of McKinley, Hanna, Hay & Co., operating in two hemispheres, not clearly see that to the rapidly increasing stock in trade of the concern—satrapies, governor-generalships, Sulu protectorates, Chinese "open doors" and the like—an imperial bank, under the auspices and control of "the house," is a fitting if not an indispensable addition?—Public.

The Heathen.

"As I understand it," said the heathen, "you propose to civilize me?" "Exactly." "You mean to get me out of habits of idleness and teach me to work?" "That is the idea." "And then lead me to simplify my methods and invent things to make my work lighter?" "Yes." "And next I shall become ambitious to get rich, so that I won't have to work at all?" "Naturally." "Well, what's the use of taking such a roundabout way of getting just where I started? I don't have to work now."

Congressman Richardson of Tennessee, inquired of the House the other day, whether the $10,000,000 of government money deposited for the use and benefit of the National City bank of New York, by Secretary Gage, was "due to the contributions made by the directors to the Republican campaign fund of 1896?" Certainly not. The object was to secure contributions for the Republican campaign of 1900.

BULLER FAILS AGAIN

ACCORDING TO STATEMENTS FROM BOER HEADQUARTERS.

London Accepts the Statements as True—Winston Churchill Says the Retention of Vaal Krantz Was Not Practicable—Believed That the Public Is Being Prepared for More Bad News—Endeavor Will Be Made to Force the Line at Orange River by Wednesday, Possibly Sooner.

London, Feb. 10.—London accepts as true the Boer statement that Gen. Buller has failed again. These statements pass the British censor at Aden and are read in connection with Mr. Balfour's statement that Gen. Buller is not pressing forward. Mr. Winston Churchill says that retention of Vaal Krantz was not practicable and that further guns were needed to support the advance. His cablegram leaves Gen. Buller pressing forward a brigade to relieve the tired holders of Vaal Krantz.

The descriptive writers with Gen. Buller were allowed a rather free hand again in explaining the ugly position which the British held and the natural obstacles which had to be overcome. So it is easy to infer that with Boer riflemen and artillery defending these hills, ravines and jungles, have not been overcome, and thus the public is prepared in advance for bad news.

Heliograms from Ladysmith, dated Monday, describe the effect Gen. Buller's cannonad had on the worn garrison. Hope ran high that the long period of inactivity and tedium was growing to a close. The crash of guns was almost continuous for fourteen hours, and at times it seemed as if as many as twenty shells burst in a minute. The Boers, preparing always for the were driving herds and sending long wagon trains toward the Drakensberg passes. Intense darkness and silence followed, broken only by frogs croaking and the occasional burst of stray shells fired at searchlights surrounding the town with a wall of light to prevent the unobserved approach of the enemy. A series of British mines, laid for the Boers, exploded accidentally, shaking and alarming the city and camp.

Possibility of Defeat

Gen. MacDonald's retirement puzzles military commenters. The theory of the reconnoissance is that it was ordered by Lord Roberts and that Gen. MacDonald's operations were by the direction of the commander-in-chief in order to occupy the Boers at widely separated points so they may be unable to send any portion of their force to oppose the proposed central advance.

Mr. Charles Williams, a military writer who is understood to be in confidential relations with Lord Wolseley, says that beyond doubt the best authority in London regards it as certain that an endeavor will be made to force the line at the Orange river by Wednesday night, possibly by Monday.

A dispatch from Spearman's Camp, dated Friday, says that owing to the Boer cross-fire and the impossibility of intrenching Vaal Krantz, Gen. Buller's force will withdraw. The Financial News, which publishes this dispatch, suggests that Gen. Buller has not yet actually crossed the Tugela.

Abandoned by British.

Boer Head Laager, Ladysmith, Feb. 10.—The British who were in possession of the kopje at Molen's drift, abandoned it after a bombardment by Boer cannon Thursday morning, and retired across the Tugela river to their former position. A desultory cannonade is proceeding at the Tugela this morning, but otherwise everything is quiet.

As Long as Ammunition Holds Out.

London, Feb. 10.—Dr. Leyds has issued in Brussels a statement for publication in England denying purported interviews in which he is represented as predicting the intervention of the powers in the event of the British invading the Free State. He says he is convinced the war will continue as long as the two republics have ammunition. When their present ammunition is exhausted, he said, they would fall back upon Martini-Henry rifles, for which they have a supply of ammunition to last some time.

Hay at Pretoria.

Washington, Feb. 10. — Secretary Hay received a cablegram from Adelbert Hay, United States consul at Pretoria, stating that he had received his exequatur Wednesday, and that matters were very satisfactory. This effectually disposes of the apprehension that existed in some quarters that the Boer government might decline to receive Mr. Hay because of the failure of Col. O'Bierne to receive recognition from our government as diplomatic representative from the Transvaal.

$80,000,000 INVOLVED.

Carnegie to Be Sued by His Former Protege.

Pittsburg, Feb. 10.—It is announced here that Henry C. Frick will sue Andrew Carnegie to recover $21,000,000, which he claims is his share of stock in the Carnegie Steel company. The suit will involve something like $80,000,000.

EXEMPTION IN RUSSIA.

Free Importation of Coal for Russian Railways.

St. Petersburg, Feb. 10.—On the proposal of M. De Witte, the minister of finance, the czar has consented to the importation of coal, exclusively for the use of the Russian railways, free of duty until Sept. 1 next.

SOUDANESE MUTINY.

The Rebellion at Khartum Is Causing Anxiety.

London, Feb. 10.—A special dispatch from Cairo says the mutiny of Soudanese troops at Khartum has assumed serious proportions and is causing great anxiety.

Driver Killed.

New Richmond, Wis., Feb. 10.—Eddie Walsh was killed at Cable, near here, while driving a team attached to a load of logs.

Death of Nihilist Lavroff.

Paris—Pierre Lvaroff, the celebrated Russian Nihilist, died in the Latin quarter of Paris. An imposing funeral is to be given him by the Socialists of France.

Manila's Saloon Industry Increases.

Manila—When the United States took possession Manila had two saloons, and at present there are 430 in the city.

Czarina Sets the Style.

St. Petersburg—The Czarina has set the style at the Russian court toward simplicity of dress, as she heartily dislikes gorgeous display.

BLIZZARD RAGING.

Colorado and Adjoining States Suffer Severely.

Denver, Colo., Feb. 9. — A blizzard was raging yesterday over Colorado and adjoining states. It was especially severe in New Mexico, where the mercury was near zero and about six inches of snow fell. Dispatches from New Mexico show the storm was the worst ever experienced at Springer, where there was a drop of twenty-five degrees in as many minutes in the afternoon. Lamar and Trinidad, Colo., report severe weather, and the sudden change from almost summer weather which has prevailed for the last two months causes considerable suffering to stock. It is not expected that results will be serious, however. Railways are being interfered with to some extent. Mercury registers 20 above in Denver.

-o-

Omaha, Feb. 9. — A blizzard swept down upon Nebraska yesterday afternoon. Last night the mercury was falling and bid fair to reach zero by morning. In the city there was a howling gale from the north and the air was full of snow. By nightfall street car travel was handicapped and delay was reported on nearly every line. Comparatively little snow has fallen, but the wind drives it upon the street car tracks so that locomotion is practically impossible. Telegraphic advices show the storm is general throughout the state. Considerable difficulty is experienced in working telephone and telegraph wires.

A RAGING HURRICANE

Causes Considerable Loss at Vancouver, B. C.

Vancouver, B. C., Feb. 9.—A hurricane raged here last night, causing property loss all over the city. The wind, which became almost a cyclone, attained a velocity of fifty-five miles an hour. Along the water front the waves broke over the wharves and bridges, sweeping away boat houses, wrecking boats and dashing two steam launches against a pier. Three stone-laden scows went adrift and wrecked. Two steamers broke their moorings and were brought to their docks with great difficulty. Telephone wires in the suburbs are down and the long distance system is completely paralyzed. Trees were torn up by the roots, flagstaffs and chimneys fell and a cottage on the Westminster road was crushed.

COL. THOMPSON'S CONDITION.

Aged Statesman May Die at Any Moment.

Terre Haute, Ind., Feb. 9.—Col. Richard W. Thompson is on his death bed at the age of ninety-one. When Dr. Roberts left Col. Thompson at 11 o'clock he said: "Col. Thompson is growing weaker all the time. He has no stored vitality, and he is acquiring none. He has had a lot of trouble in his throat, but it was temporary and soon relieved. It is only a question of how long the remarkable old man can hold out against the natural process of exhaustion. He may live a day or two, and he may die at any hour."

YUKON TRAIN SERVICE.

Blockade Raised and Regular Traffic in Operation.

Seattle, Wash., Feb. 9.—The White Pass & Yukon railway resumed through train service between Skagway and Lake Bennett Jan. 31, after a blockade of more than two weeks. It was 2 p. m. of that date when the Bennett train, with Klondikers aboard, rolled into Skagway. Five hours later the Rosalie, whose officers brought the news of the end of the snow blockade, sailed for Seattle. The officials of the railroad expressed the belief that the snow would cause them no more serious trouble.

GAYNOR'S CLAIMS.

Suits Filed by the Man Said to Have Been Carter's Accomplice.

Washington, Feb. 9. — The Atlantic Contracting company, J. F. Gaynor, president, has filed two suits in the United States court of claims against the United States, one for $109,797, and the other for $249,342. These suits have grown out of the contracts entered into by the company with ex-Capt. Oberlin M. Carter, corps of engineers, U. S. A., for work alleged to have been done by the company in connection with improvements in Savannah harbor and Cumberland sound, Georgia.

Increasing Its Facilities.

Clear Lake, Iowa, Feb. 9.—The electric light and power company have made contracts by which they will materially increase the size and capacity of their plant. The power house will be rebuilt, new dynamos and boilers will be put in place and a large number of new street lamps will be put out. The streets will be piped for hot water also. The capital stock is increased from $10,000 to $20,000.

After the Mulct Law.

Waterloo, Iowa, Feb. 9.—A meeting of local Democrats was held here at which it was agreed to begin a campaign to defeat the securing of the new petitions made necessary by a recent supreme court decision to legalize saloons in Iowa. The purpose is to kill the mulct law under which saloons are operated. It is urged that the defeat of the petitions would force the repeal of the law.

Esterhazy Courts Prosecution.

Paris, Feb. 9. — Maj. Comte Ferdinand Walsin Esterhazy, the reputed author of the bordereau, which brought about the conviction of Dreyfus on charges of treason, has recently shown signs of life by sending to the amnesty committee of the senate an energetic protest against any proposed amnesty. He even asks to be prosecuted and indicates the lines of the prosecution.

Perished in the Flames.

San Diego, Cal., Feb. 9.—The residences of A. G. Huey and R. T. Greenwood were burned. The infant son of Mrs. Greenwood perished and Mrs. Greenwood was fatally burned. An explosion of a coal oil stove caused it.

Every State Will Be Represented.

Chicago, Feb. 9. — When the anti-trust conference convenes in this city Monday it is expected every state in the Union will be represented as letters have been received from more than 1,000 delegates.

Worth Trying to Stop.

Boston—At a recent dinner Mayor Hart of Boston said: "In one of our large institutions, for which an outside firm bid $25,000, the city department which did the work has already paid out $75,000. That is the sort of thing I'm going to try to stop."

Rockefeller's Good Health.

New York—Dr. H. F. Bigger, John D. Rockefeller's physician, says that Mr. Rockefeller's perfect health at the age of 60 is due largely to his habit of sleeping a few hours every afternoon.

HARASSED BY REBS

AMERICAN GARRISONS ARE GIVEN NO REST.

Insurgents Camp in the Hills and Maintain a Constant Fire Upon American Outposts—They Shoot Burning Arrows and Have Burned a Large Part of the Town of Albay—Col. Bell Starts Out on Another Expedition — Guerrilla Warfare Continues South of Manila.

Manila, Feb. 12.—Of late the insurgents in Albay province, Luzon, have adopted harassing tactics against the towns which the Americans have garrisoned. They camp in the hills and maintain a constant fire upon the American outposts. When the troops sally out against them they scatter, returning when the Americans retire. They shoot burning arrows and have thus burned a large part of the town of Albay. Indeed, most of the larger towns in that province are practically deserted, except by the garrisons. Scarcely any of the inhabitants return to their homes. They are camping in the interior, and it is supposed armed insurgents prevent them going back. It is reported that there is much suffering among them owing to lack of food. As a result of these conditions the hemp business in that section is seriously hindered, and ships going for cargoes are compelled to take gangs of coolies to do their loading. Hemp held in the interior is quite inaccessible.

Col. Bell will take two regiments and a battery through the provinces of North Camarines and South Camarines, going there on foot. Many insurgents retreated there from Camagay and Batanga provinces. Another expedition will soon start to garrison towns along the north coast of the island of Mindanao. The guerrilla warfare continues south of Manila. Two attempts have been made to Ambush the Americans.

Col. Schwan, while returning to Manila with his staff and an escort of 100 cavalry from Batangas, was attacked by the insurgents. The latter were dispersed, but the Americans had five men wounded. Lieut. Col. Beacon, with six companies of the Forty-second infantry, had a two hours' fight with Gen. Pio del Pilar's command, which attempted to ambush the Americans along the trail through Morong province, near the lake. Here also the insurgents were dispersed, but the Americans had several wounded, among them a captain. Gen. Bell is operating southward through Cambeles province with a small force. Another expedition is proceeding northward from Subig.

It is reported that the insurgent general, Alejandro, has recovered from his wound and has assembled a large force in that district.

The plague continues. Eight cases were reported last week among the natives and Chinese. There is no excitement, however, and business and social life are undisturbed. Smallpox is prevalent among the natives along the railroad and the towns on the northern coast. Two officers of the Thirty-sixth infantry have died of the disease and another officer and several soldiers have been stricken.

HEIRS TO A LARGE FORTUNE.

Indiana Newspaper Man and Four Sisters Inherit $2,000,000 Estate of Aunt Dead in Scotland.

Indianapolis, Feb. 12.—W. G. Dunlingham, a newspaper man, and his four sisters, have received notice that they are heirs to a $2,000,000 estate in Scotland left by a great aunt, Mrs. Maria Cunningham, who died last week at Aberdeen, Scotland.

ROOSEVELT WON'T RUN.

New York Executive Says He Will Not Be a Candidate for Vice Presidency.

New York, Feb. 12.—Gov. Roosevelt is not a candidate for the Republican nomination for vice president, but Mr. Woodruff is. Mr. Roosevelt told Senator Platt and Chairman Odell, of the state committee, that he would not take the nomination.

KILLS A SUPPOSED ROBBER.

Sheriff Compelled to Shoot a Man While Attempting to Arrest Him.

Clay Center, Neb., Feb. 12.—Sheriff Secord of Clay county went to Davenport to arrest "Red" Hawkins, charged with highway robbery. Hawkins started to draw his revolver, but the sheriff fired first, killing Hawkins instantly.

Attempted Train Robbery.

Perry, Okla., Feb. 12. — An attempt was made to hold up a south-bound passenger train on the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe railway Saturday night near North Prairie. Some one pulled the bell and the train was slowing down when the engineer noticed several masked men standing near the track. He opened the throttle and the train dashed by the would-be robbers, who made a futile attempt to board it. Officers are in pursuit of the men.

Loss to the Government.

New York, Feb. 12. — Building No. 7, in the Brooklyn navy yard, occupied by the construction department, was destroyed by fire last night. The loss is $100,000, equally divided between building and machinery. A large quantity of valuable records were saved, which Admiral Philip says would have involved a task of about ten years to replace.

Gutted the Building.

Worcester, Mass., Feb. 12.—Fire yesterday in the Gilam block, occupied by the National Biscuit company, completely gutted the building, doing $60,000 damage, of which the biscuit company sustains $50,000.

Robbed Mrs. McKinley's Aunt.

Canton, Ohio, Feb. 12.—Four masked men entered the home of Mrs. Maria S. S. Sexton, an aunt of Mrs. President McKinley, early yesterday morning. The robbers escaped with a small amount of booty.

Wants Italian Used.

Rome—The Italian minister of education has directed delegates to international congresses to demand that papers shall be read in Italian, and that delegates shall use their own language in discussion.

Looking Up Automobile Coupling.

London—An English commission is investigating automatic coupling of railway cars, as the number of deaths by the system now in use has been so great that a reform is demanded by the public.

MINNESOTA ITEMS.

The Marinette Elks are going to give a vaudeville show.

Company I, Second Regiment W. N. G., of Marinette is to have an armory.

The city officials of Appleton have moved into the new library and city hall building.

The Wisconsin Retail Hardware association met in Milwaukee with 150 members present.

The Wisconsin Telephone company will rebuild its Marinette exchange at a cost of $22,000.

Frank Johnson, a stranger, is under arrest at Richland Center, charged with robbing a house.

Christian Durst of Plymouth was thrown from a wagon, sustaining injuries to his spinal column.

Owing to ill-health, Miss Katherine Graham has resigned as instructor of elocution at Lawrence university.

There is a slight improvement in the condition of Alonzo Barnes, formerly of Milwaukee, now ill at Brodhead.

The X-ray aided a Madison surgeon to locate a needle which Mrs. O. Hanson accidentally ran into her wrist.

George Wylie was elected president of the Wisconsin Shorthorn Breeders' association, in session at Madison.

President Adams of the state university is ill and unable to address the editorial convention at Green Bay.

Eeury Tarrant, ex-member of the legislature from Rock county, was severely injured in a runaway at Zanesville.

The Oshkosh postal clerks have organized as Oshkosh Branch No. 215 of the United National Postoffice Clerks' association.

Nestor Permentier of Green Bay, charged with attempting to pass a forged check, has been bound over to stand trial.

Dr. H. P. Clute, state veterinarian, has ordered killed two horses afflicted with glanders, belonging to S. C. Hawkins of Deforest.

A large number of German citizens of Racine have organized to raise funds for the Red Cross society taking care of the wounded Boers.

Judge O'Neill sentenced Edward Phillips of Eau Claire, aged nineteen, to one year in the Green Bay reformatory for assaulting his brother.

Mrs. Myra Grinnell of Beloit, well known in W. R. C. circles, has started for New York, where she will join a party of tourists for a trip to Egypt.

Miss Gertie Ingalls, aged fourteen, of Colomo, took laudanum with suicidal intent, but was saved by the efforts of physicians. The motive for the deed is not known.

W. F. Leatzow, a Madison printer, will leave for Washington next week to take a position in the government printing office. Leo Rullman was given a similar position a week ago.

Herman Botenhagen of the town of North Cape, while searching around on the bottom of Muskego lake, recently drained by a canal, found a large bone, and believes it to be that of a mastadon.

The house of Harding Crowe, in Pleasant Prairie was entered by burglars and a great deal of property carried away. Ten persons were sleeping in the house, and not one of them heard any noise.

Smallpox has broken out in the town of Lincoln, about eight miles from Algoma. A young man, home from Allison, Illinois, where he had been attending college, is very ill, and is believed to have the disease.

The sentence of Charles Nolan, found guilty of the murder of Thomas Good, was postponed in the circuit court at Madison for a few days, the attorneys for the defense being given time to prepare arguments for a new trial.

Several railroad work had a hard fight with a wolf of immense size near Neillsville. They succeeded in killing the animal, which attacked them. Thomas Robinson, who killed the wolf, applied for and secured the bounty.

Miss Jessie Thompson, daughter of Landlord Thompson, of Hotel Thompson, has lost her voice. Five months ago she was only able to speak in a whisper, and three weeks ago she became suddenly dumb. She can hear, but is entirely unable to use her voice.

David P. Amidon of Ono, a village south of Spring Valley, was killed by a hog. He tried to drive the animal away from his house, when it turned on him and injured him so severely that he died in a few minutes in terrible agony.

Suit has been commenced at Oshkosh by Mrs. William H. Behling, against the Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association of New York for $2,000, alleged to be due on the life of her husband, who died six months after taking out his policy.

The O. H. Campbell saw mill, near Iron River, was shattered by the explosion of a boiler, and the engineer, Charles Tuttle, was instantly killed. Two other workmen were also injured. The mill machinery was not badly damaged, but the mill will be forced to close down for some time.

C. Fuller, agent of the American Express company at Baraboo, was notified of the arrest of G. S. Simpson in Chicago on the charge of forgery. It is alleged that the operations of Simpson include not only Baraboo, but Beloit, Janesville, Madison, Evansville and other Wisconsin cities.

Charles Nolan, found guilty of the murder of Thomas Good at Madison, was sentenced to life imprisonment at Waupun. He was taken to prison immediately. The first day of his confinement there, and each succeeding anniversary of the murder, Aug. 27, will be spent in solitary confinement on bread and water.

Will, James and Carroll Joyce, their ages ranging from eleven to fourteen years, who ran away from St. Joseph's Orphan asylum at Green Bay, were found at Appleton and sent back. They walked the entire distance from Green Bay to Appleton. They said they were on their way to Berlin, to see their father, who lived there.

The government has commenced paying the Wisconsin troops for the time they spent at Camp Harvey before being mustered out. Payment is sent direct by the paymaster at Washington by draft to the man receiving it.

A Veteran Designer.

London—George L. Watson, the Scotch designer of yachts, who planned the Valkyrie and the Britannia, will celebrate the fiftieth anniversary of his entrance on designing work this coming spring.

Kansas Republican Convention.

Topeka, Kan.—The Republican state convention of Kansas will be held at Topeka May 16 and will consist of 850 delegates.

A life of pleasure makes even the strongest mind frivolous at last.—Bulwer.

MINNESOTA HISTORICAL SOCIETY

SUPPLEMENT.

The Spectator.

IVES & SOLL, Publishers.
JOHN J. SOLL, Editor.

Entered at the postoffice at St. Hilaire, Minn., as second-class mail matter.

Published every Wednesday at St. Hilaire, Red Lake County, Minn.

TERMS--$1.50 per Year in Advance.

Subscribers should notify the publisher on or before expiration of subscription if discontinuance is desired. Otherwise paper will be discontinued.

Delinquent Taxes.

State of Minnesota, County of Red Lake, ss. District Court, Fourteenth Judicial District. The State of Minnesota to all persons, companies, or corporations who have or claim any estate, right, title or interest in, claim to, or lien upon, any of the several pieces or parcels of land in the list hereto attached described:

The list of taxes and penalties on real property for the County of Red Lake, remaining delinquent on the first Monday in January, 1900, has been filed in the office of the clerk of the District Court of the County of Red Lake, of which that hereto attached is a copy. Therefore you, and each of you, are hereby required to file in the office of said clerk, on or before the twentieth day of March, 1900, your answer in writing, setting forth any objection or defense you may have to the taxes, or any part thereof, upon any piece or parcel of land described in said list, in, to or on which you have or claim any estate, right, title, interest, claim, or lien, and in default thereof judgment will be entered against such piece or parcel of land for the taxes on said list appearing against it, and for all penalties, interest and costs.

JOSEPH PERRAULT,
Clerk of the District Court of the County of Red Lake, Minnesota.
(Clerk of Court Seal.)

State of Minnesota, County of Red Lake, ss. I, Adam Zeh, auditor of said county, do hereby certify the foregoing copy of the list of real estate taxes, delinquent on the first Monday in January, A. D. 1900, hereto attached, was this day received from the clerk of the District Court in and for said county of Red Lake.

Witness my hand and official seal this 5th day of February, A. D. 1900.

ADAM ZEH,
Auditor of Red Lake County, Minnesota.
(Auditor's Seal.)

In the following list, "Ex Ry R of W" means except that part owned by a railroad company, and used as right of way; "a" represents acres; "e" east; "n" north; "w" west; and "s" south; "ne" northeast; "nw" northwest; "sw" southwest; "se" southeast; "blk" block; "sec" section; "twp" township; "R" range; "&" and; "ft" feet; "st" street; "cor" corner; "$" dollars.

DISTRICT NO. 2.
Township 152, Range 41.

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
Michael Madden, lots 1, 2, 3, and 4	31	148.76	$9.80
James Madden, e½ sw¼ and e½ nw¼	31	160	11.46

LAMBERT TOWNSHIP.
Township 150, Range 41.

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
E. H. Rollins & Son, e½ se¼	1	80	8.84
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, w½ sw¼, sw¼ nw¼ & lot 4	3	159.85	16.41
Jette Lajambe, w½ ne¼ and w½ se¼	5	160.52	17.58
Western Security Co., lot 4	5	40.58	4.44
Geo. W. Boyd, e½ ne¼ and e½ se¼	7	160	14.18
Colonial & U. S. Mtg. Co., Ltd., w½ se¼, ne¼ sw¼ and lot 3	7	159	16.10
Charles J. McGinty, se¼ sw¼ and lot 4 sec 7, and ne¼nw¼ and lot 1	18	159.61	16.29
E. H. Rollins & Son, e½ ne¼	12	80	7.00
Rosilda Hince, nw¼	12	160	15.24
George Charest, e½ sw¼	13	80	8.74
Louis F. Menage, nw¼	14	160	15.64
Am. Loan & Trust Co., Trustee, se¼	15	160	16.95
Joseph Bergeron, n½ and se¼	16	480	42.86
Joseph Juneau, sw¼	16	160	14.64
Simon Bernier, Jr., s½ nw¼ & s½ ne¼	17	160	15.22
Peter Burk, se¼ sw¼ & lot 4	18	79.64	8.22
Dakota Investment Co., e½ sw¼ and lots 3 and 4	19	159.45	18.76
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtgt. Co., ne¼	19	160	18.34
James O. Sargent, sw¼	21	160	18.33
Alphonse Boucher, se¼	21	160	20.29
J. K. O. Sherwood, ne¼	22	160	15.86
Simon Boucher, ne¼	23	160	16.61
Joseph Lambert, 156x627 ft out of sw¼	23	2.25	6.18
Western Security Co., w½ ne¼ and w½ se¼	24	160	16.01
Almabe Cloutier, e½ ne¼ and e½ se¼	24	160	11.04
Philippe Gibeau, nw¼	26	160	7.29
Orison & Underwood, se¼	26	160	15.33
The E. D. Childs Co., se¼	28	160	18.23
Ernest Trombly, sw¼	29	160	18.80
E. H. Rollins & Son, se¼	29	160	19.67
Joseph Keen, e½ nw¼, and lots 1 and 2	30	159.31	18.13
Western Security Co., se¼	30	160	18.39
Middlesex Banking Co., ne¼	30	160	20.70
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtge Co., ne¼	31	160	18.23
S. S. Jenness, nw¼	33	160	17.75
Western Security Co., sw¼	33	160	18.32
J. K. O. Sherwood, se¼	35	160	14.91
Hugues Derby, sw¼	35	160	14.69
George Wilson, e½ sw¼	36	80	7.46

GARNES TOWNSHIP.
Township 151, Range 41.

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
Martin P. Boraas, e½ ne¼ and e½ se¼	26	160	$12.51
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtge Co., w½ se¼ and e½ sw¼	27	160	14.36
Frank Lerous, w½ nw¼ and w½ sw¼	27	160	12.68
Security Trust Co., nw¼ sw¼ sec 29, e½ se¼ sec 30, ne¼ ne¼	31	160	23.13
Western Security Co., w½ sw¼ and se¼ sw¼	32	120	17.99

POPLAR RIVER TOWNSHIP.
Township 150, Range 42.

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
Walter S. Weldon, sw¼ nw¼, w½ sw¼ and lot 4	2	160.78	$19.61
Frank D. Putnam, n½ sw¼, se¼ nw¼ and lot 3	3	160.67	21.60
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., se¼	3	160	18.12
Woodsville Guar. Savings Bk., sw¼ ne¼, se¼ nw¼ and nw¼ sw¼	4	120	9.84
Alberic Chabot, w½ se¼	5	80	7.46
Addord Laurent, und. ⅓ of n½ se¼ se¼ nw¼ and e½ ne¼ nw¼ and ne¼ se¼ nw¼	6	17.50	1.60
Henry Coter, e½ nw¼ and lots 1 and 2	7	146.73	19.12
Alberic Chabot, w½ ne¼	8	80	7.70
Arthur Toupin, e½ sw¼	8	80	10.23
Vital Perras, sw¼ sw¼ sec 4, w½ nw¼ and nw¼ sw¼	9	160	19.58
Romial Perras, s½ sw¼	9	80	9.32
Farm Investment Co., w½ nw¼ and w½ sw¼	11	160	15.55
Rose Obin, w½ se¼ e½ e½ sw¼	11	120	12.18
J. K. O. Sherwood, w½ ne¼ and w½ se¼	12	160	19.26
New England Mtg. Security Co nw¼	12	160	15.62
Am. Loan & Trust Co., Trustee, sw¼	13	160	17.66
Am. Loan & Trust Co., Trustee, e½ nw¼ and w½ sw¼	15	160	20.11
John B. Rauche, nw¼ nw¼ & sw¼ nw¼	16	80	10.94
Arthur Toupin, e½ nw¼	17	80	8.86
Oliver Parride, n½ se¼, ne¼ sw¼ and lot 3	18	158.51	17.70
Warren J. Hobbs, ne¼	18	160	19.36
Godfrey Granger, e½ nw¼ and lots 1 and 2	18	160	15.62
Security Investment Co., e½ sw¼ and lots 3 and 4	19	157.33	13.46
Nestar Comire, se¼	19	160	13.46
Arthur O. Knaak, w½ nw¼ & se¼ nw¼	20	120	9.95
Louis Boire, se¼ ne¼ and ne¼ se¼ sec 20, sw¼ nw¼ and nw¼ sw¼	21	160	10.38
Louis Boire, s½ sw¼ sec 21, n½ nw¼	28	160	11.09
Security Trust Co., nw¼	24	160	19.81
F. T. Day, se¼	25	160	19.51
Henry Senecal, sw¼	26	160	17.01
James W. McGinty, se¼	26	160	19.27
Louis Boire, sw¼	27	160	18.27
John Campbell, e½ ne¼ and e½ se¼	28	160	18.24
J. K. O. Sherwood, sw¼	28	160	15.16
Am. Loan & Trust Co., Trustee, e½ se¼ and e½ ne¼	30	160	14.34
Security Trust Co., e½ nw¼ & lots 1 and 2	31	156	14.15
Joseph Normandin, Jr., se¼	31	160	13.62
F. T. Day, nw¼	32	160	14.65
Security Company, ne¼	34	160	19.77
Rock Fortier, nw¼	34	160	18.38
J. W. McGinty, ne¼	35	160	16.52

EMARDVILLE TOWNSHIP.
Township 151, Range 42.

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
Amedee Wolfe, n½ nw¼ or lots 3 and 4	1	80.09	$7.91
L. Lelaive, lots 1 and 2	2	80	9.18
Harvey Wolfe, sw¼ ne¼, nw¼ se¼ and e½ sw¼	2	160	14.65
J. K. O. Sherwood, w½ sw¼ 2, e½ se¼	3	160	13.83
N. H. Galusha, sw¼ sw¼	3	40	4.05
Robert W. Knaak, s½ nw¼ & lots 3 and 4	3	159	8.02
F. T. Day, s½ se¼ and se¼ sw¼	4	120	12.79
J. K. O. Sherwood, sw¼ nw¼ and lot 4	4	78	8.43
Lina M. Morgan, ne¼ nw¼ and lot 1 sec 7, se¼ sw¼ & lot 7	6	154.44	17.02
Cyprien Gossum, s½ sw¼ and s½ se¼ (ex. 6 acres)	8	154	22.76
Am. Loan & Trust Co., Trustee, sw¼	7	160	16.27
A. L. Plummer, 6 1-20 acres of s½ se¼	8	6.05	6.07
Lina P. Stearns, s½ ne¼ and s½ nw¼	9	160	18.36
Western Security Co., n½ sw¼ and n½ se¼	14	160	22.25
Mpls & St. Cloud Ry Co., ne¼ (1897 tax)	14	160	17.25
Cecile M. Plummer, ne¼	17	160	19.72
Henry W. Davis, ne¼	18	160	18.36
Peter Porter, se¼	19	160	16.16
James T. McFee, Jr., ne¼	19	160	18.36
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., e½ nw¼, ne¼ sw¼ & lot 1	19	157.69	15.94
Western Security Co., se¼	23	160	20.06
Odelon Gauthier, n½ nw¼ and n½ ne¼	23	160	18.26
Hiram C. Wheeler, se¼	26	160	25.13
David N. Jenkins, e½ nw¼ & lots 1 and 2	30	156.89	18.81
John A. and Mary Ann Stahl, n½ se¼ and e½ sw¼	30	160	17.32
Joseph Porter, ne¼	30	160	19.19
F. J. Detling, lot 4 sec 36, lot 1	31	77	8.62
Paul Snoenauer and Luxenburger Bros, ne¼ nw¼ & lot 2	31	78	10.68
J. K. O. Sherwood, s½ sw¼ & se¼ nw¼	31	117	15.85
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., se¼	31	160	22.14
Patrick Lemay, sw¼ sw¼	36	40	7.68
Herbert Loplante, n½ ne¼	36	80	10.98
Joseph Barit, e½ se¼	36	80	12.57

WYANDOTTE TOWNSHIP.
Township 152, Range 42.

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
Daniel Johnson, lot 5	6
lot 1	7	89.39	$6.96
Mrs. R. B. Wight, ne¼	7	160	12.99
Emma E. Mitchell, nw¼	8	160	11.94
W. G. Wheeler, ne¼	8	160	11.43
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., se¼	10	160	12.07
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., sw¼ ne¼ and lots 1 and 2 sec 10, lot 1	11	161.50	12.69
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., sw¼	14	160	12.30
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., w½ se¼, se¼se¼ & lot 3	14	153.60	11.94
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., nw¼	15	160	12.82
R. K. Brown, ne¼	15	160	12.59
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., sw¼	15	160	12.35
Alfred Asp, e½ ne¼	16	80	5.82
George W. Murphy, n½ se¼	21	80	6.50
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., ne¼	22	160	11.71
Alexander Wolfe, sw¼	22	160	12.99
Joseph P. Moss, nw¼	23	160	14.06
Gurnie A. Haugen, sw¼	23	160	12.99
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., sw¼	24	160	12.48
Eli Emard, nw¼	25	160	12.49
Frank Vailancour, nw¼ ne¼	26	40	3.20
Montague & Wight, nw¼	27	160	12.37
Security Trust Co., e½ nw¼ and e½ sw¼	28	160	14.29
Peter Anderson, w½ nw¼ and w½ sw¼	28	160	13.55
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., ne¼	29	160	13.29
Hanna Erickson, ne¼ sw¼, se¼ nw¼ and lot 2	30	141.69	11.71
Jonas P. Stroberg, e½ nw¼ & lots 1 and 2	31	146	11.08
Charles E. Sawyer, s½ sw¼	33	80	5.97
Louis Lefaivre, n½ nw¼ sec 33, n½ nw¼	34	160	13.20
James Madden, s½ ne¼ sec 33, s½ nw¼	34	160	11.92
Thade Meilleur, nw¼	35	160	14.06

ASSESSMENT DISTRICT No. 1.
Township 153, Range 42.

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't
Ole A. Hestekind, ne¼ sw¼ and lot 3	30	82.07	$4.97
Gilbert Aununson, se¼	31	160	11.27
John E. Olson, lots 1 and 2 sec 33, lots 1 and 2 and sw¼ sw¼	34	141	9.48

TERREBONNE TOWNSHIP.
Township 150, Range 43.

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
Philomene L. Tissier, e½ sw¼, se¼ nw¼ and lot 3	1	159.87	$30.78
Julius J. Gerard, w½ se¼, sw¼ ne¼ and lot 2	1	159.92	30.65
Jacob Nelson, 70x132 ft west of mill reserve	2	.25	.43
Hans Nelson, 218x132 ft west of mill reserve	2	.75	1.13
John A. Duffy, se¼	4	160	25.40
Am. Loan & Trust Co., Trustee, ne¼	7	160	25.99
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., sw¼	10	160	30.42
F. T. Day, nw¼	12	160	34.59
Rebecca Bush, w½ nw¼ & w½ sw¼	14	160	32.17
Am. Loan & Trust Co., Trustee, nw¼	15	160	32.07
Joseph Lambert, ne¼ ne¼	16	40	4.77
Geo. LaBissoniere, nw¼ sw¼ and sw¼ nw¼	16	80	9.53
Francis LaBissoniere, nw¼ se¼ and s½ ne¼	16	120	14.30
Theodore Perrusse, e½ nw¼ & nw¼ ne¼	16	120	14.30
Amelia Hall, nw¼	17	160	17.05
Celina Robillard, s½ ne¼, se¼ nw¼ and lot 2	18	[illegible]	21.43
Clarence B. Buckman, w½ se¼	19	80	10.17
W. G. Wheeler, e½ sw¼ and nw¼ sw¼	20	120	16.65
F. T. Day, ne¼	23	160	26.18
Sullivan Sav'gs Institute, nw¼	24	160	27.60
Joseph Bates, ne¼	30	160	18.96
Clarence B. Buckman, e½ sw¼	31	80	9.40
Col. & U. S. Mtg. Co., sw¼	32	160	7.75
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., nw¼	33	160	20.36

TOWNSITE OF TERREBONNE.

Name of Owner.	Lot.	Blk.	Am't.
Louis Cadieux, lots 3 and	4	1	$ 19
Louis Cadieux, lots 17 and	18	1	19
Napoleon Rapin, lots 19 and	20	1	19
Noe Cullerier, lots 1, 2, 3 and	4	2	2.01
Edwin Plumb	13	2	10
Sweet & Wyer, lots 14, 15 &	16	2	1.49
Napoleon Rapin, lots 17 and	18	2	20
Milanda Rapin	23	2	10
Oliver Turgeon, lots 31 and	32	2	20
Samuel Godlevo, lots 3, 4, 5 and	6	3	5.51
Mary C. Bratton, lots 7, 8, 9 &	10	3	68
Melina Lambert, lots 11 and	12	3	44
H. Payment, lots 13, 14 and	15	3	30
Louis Cadieux	16	3	1.41
Alfred C. Robinson	17	3	10
Louis Cadieux	18	3	10
Louis Cadieux, lots 19 and	20	3	20
Isadore Fortier	14	5	10
Louis Cadieux	15	5	10
Louis Cadieux	5	6	10

GERVOIS TOWNSHIP.
Township 151, Range 43.

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., nw¼ sw¼	2	40	$ 3.83
Barbara Hoskins, e½ nw¼ and lots 1 and 2	7	150	20.70
Ole J. Ellingson, e½ sw¼ and lots 3 and 4	7	150.80	19.87
F. H. Collier, se¼ se¼ and lots 5, 7, 8, 9 and 10	8	147.50	18.47
W. J. Holmes, se¼	9	160	23.04
Delphine Rose, w½ sw¼ and lots 1, 2 and 3	9	155	8.34
Sjur M. Harbalen, se¼ sw¼ sec 12, e½ nw¼ & sw¼ nw¼	13	160	13.15
Arsley Olson, se¼	14	160	18.01
I. E. Fagan, e½ sw¼	15	80	9.02
Moses Allard, w½ sw¼	16	80	9.87
Estella E. Huffer, ne¼	17	160	16.48
Ed. E. Schweitzer, e½ sw¼, sw¼ sw¼ and lot 4	17	160	17.74
Samuel Allard, ne¼ se¼	17	40	3.60
Alex Barresdale, lots 5, 6, 7, 8 9 and 10	18	152	18.02
Hugh Thompson, se¼ nw¼, ne¼ sw¼, nw¼ se¼ and sw¼ ne¼	21	160	18.04
Ovila Gervois, s½ se¼ & se¼ sw¼ sec 21, sw¼ sw¼	22	160	15.29
F. T. Day, e½ sw¼, se¼ nw¼ and nw¼ sw¼	22	160	18.61
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., w½ se¼, ne¼ se¼ and sw¼ ne¼	23	160	18.26
Mathilda Patnaude, e½sw¼ & e½ nw¼ (ex. 1½ a to school district)	23	159.50	17.92
Chas. Sampson, nw¼ sw¼ and s½ sw¼ sec 25, ne¼ se¼	26	160	13.69
J. K. O. Sherwood, e½ nw¼ and e½ sw¼	30	160	15.04
J. K. O. Sherwood, s½ se¼ and nw¼ se¼	30	120	14.66
Aug. Brunelle, e½ ne¼	31	80	7.55
Henry J. Kaufer, n½ ne¼ and n½ nw¼	34	160	15.74
Andrew C. Braaton, n½ sw¼	35	80	7.19

RIVER FALLS TOWNSHIP.
Township 152, Range 43.

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
Security Trust Co., se¼ ne¼, ne¼ se¼ and w½ se¼	4	160	$21.33
Julia Berg, lot 6 sec 7, e½ nw¼ and lot 1	8	155.70	22.51
Stina Johnson, w½ se¼, ne¼ sw¼ and lots 3 and 6	8	180	28.26
Maria B. Steinerson, s½ nw¼	16	80	9.02
A. P. Anderson, s¼ se¼	16	40	5.15
Gust Erickson, sw¼ ne¼ and nw¼ se¼	16	80	10.32
Ole Cliffgard, sw¼ sw¼	16	40	5.24
John Johnson, sw¼ se¼	16	40	5.63
Andrew Bjornquist, ne¼ se¼	16	40	4.64
S. L. Crocker, ne¼ se¼	19	40	5.57
Mrs R. Haga, ne¼	19	160	22.77
Carrie M. Crocker, sw¼ nw¼ and w½ sw¼	20	120	18.47
G. A. Hammel, sw¼ sw¼	23	40	3.14
J. K. O. Sherwood, s½ sw¼ and nw¼ sw¼	24	120	9.37
Haaken Johnson, s½ ne¼ and n½ se¼	24	160	11.02
John Sjoberg, se¼ nw¼ and ne¼ sw¼	24	80	5.44
G. A. Hammel, nw¼ nw¼	20	40	3.14
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., e½ nw¼ and sw¼ nw¼ sec 26, se¼ ne¼	27	160	12.48
G. A. Hammel, n½ ne¼	27	80	7.92
Johanna M. Nelson, sw¼ ne¼	27	40	2.68
Oberlin College, e½ ne¼ and lots 1 and 4	29	153	24.20
R. K. Brown, e½ se¼ & lots 5 and 8	29	170.30	28.29
Frederick S. Stine, ne¼	30	160	22.99
Jane E. Thomas, e½ sw¼ and lots 3 and 4	30	150	21.70
B. A. Kibbe, se¼ ne¼	31	40	5.78
Carl Wik, se¼	35	160	10.27

ROCKSBURY TOWNSHIP.
Township 153, Range 43.

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
Magnus Johnson Rindal, se¼ se¼	3	40	$ 3.45
Alia B. Kratke, nw¼ sw¼, sw¼ nw¼ and lot 4 sec 3, lot 1	4	123	12.84
F. H. Kratka Land W. P. & Imp. Co., se¼ s¼ and lots 8, 9, 10 and 11	4	141	15.59
F. H. Kratka Land W. P. & Imp. Co., lots 5 and 7 and S 2-3 of lot 6	4	141	14.50
Frederick Weyerhäuser, se¼ nw¼ and N 1-3 of lot 6 and sw¼ nw¼ and lots 2 & 3 & 4, Ex R of W	4	206.56	27.27
Martin C. Rockstad, e½se¼ sec 5, w½ sw¼ (ex. 3 a and Ex. Ry R of W)	4	150.83	13.72
F. H. Kratka Land W. P. & Imp. Co., 3 a out of w½ sw¼	4	3	33
O. E. Nash, se¼ nw¼ and lots 3, 4 and 5, e½ sw¼ and lots 6 and 7	6	315	28.45
Mary R. Walker, ne¼	7	160	13.11
Martha G. Rogers, e½ nw¼	7	80	8.63
Christ Thompson, sw¼	13	160	14.09
Christ Thompson, ne¼ se¼ (ex 1 a), 1 a of nw¼ se¼ se¼	14	40	2.91
Bernt H. Wold, s½ ne¼, nw¼ se¼ and ne¼ sw¼	15	160	11.54
A. Blom, lot 7	16	46	6.18
John E. Cliffgaard, lot 5	16	39.50	4.14
Mary D. Callaway, n½ ne¼ sw¼ ne¼ & lot 2 (ex Ry R of W)	17	147.89	15.03
Christian Kittleson, se¼	18	160	13.11
Kori O. Bergland, nw¼ sw¼	22	40	3.41
Carl A. Christianson, ne¼ ne¼ (ex 10 acres)	22	30	2.34
Henry Norland, nw¼	24	160	12.05
Frederick Soderberg, nw¼ and nw¼ sw¼	27	200	16.03
Carrie O. Birkland, sw¼ se¼	28	40	3.78
Arnt E. Solberg, sw¼ nw¼ (ex Ry R of W) sec 29, ne¼ ne¼	30	79.18	8.43
Frank D. Ponsonby, ne¼ sw¼ and lot 3	31	80	7.55
Frank D. Ponsonby, se¼ sw¼	31	40	3.78
J. K. O. Sherwood, ne¼	31	160	15.05
Marit A. Odegaard, sw¼ ne¼	34	40	2.59
Hans Frederickson, ne¼ nw¼	36	[illegible]	2.79

Crocker, Cundy & Nelson's First Addition to St. Hilaire.

Name of Owner.	Lot.	Blk.	Am't.
George Turvine	14	1	$ 22
Odeie M. Ashall	16	1	22
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 1 to 3 incl		2	39
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 5 to 17 incl		2	1.65
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 18 to 33 incl		2	2.13
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 1 to 3 incl		4	1.25
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 1 to 3 incl		5	1.25
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 1 and	2	6	1.25
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 4 to 7 incl		6	2.11
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 1 to 12 incl		7	4.98
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 1 to 5 incl		8	3.77
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 1 to 4 incl		9	2.07
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 5 to 12 incl		9	1.67
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, all of		10	3.05
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 1 to 8 incl		11	.68
D. S. Sperry	9	11	.10
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 10 to 24 incl		11	1.25
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, all		12	1.22
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, all		14	[illegible]
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, all		15	1.02
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, all		16	2.63
J. G. Morrison	1	17	.10
First Nat. Bank of Crooston, lots 2 to 11 incl		17	.84
J. E. Perrault	12	17	.10
George Uran	13	17	.10
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 14 to 24 incl		17	.92
lots 1 and	2	18	.42
John Hoverland	4	18	.21
Hans O. Rygd	5	18	.21
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	6	18	.21
Adele M. Ashall	7	18	.42
Adele M. Ashall	8	18	.22
First Nat Bank of Crookston	9	18	.17
W. W. Rich	10	18	.17
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 11 and	12	18	.32
Falk & Langseth	1	19	.22
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 2 to 10 incl		19	2.60
Adele M. Ashall, lots 11 and	12	19	.44
Wiley Tindolph	1	20	.22
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 2 to 10 incl		20	2.18
W. R. Baldwin	13	20	.22
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	14	20	.22
W. E. McKenzie & Co	15	20	.22
W. W. Rich	16	20	.22
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	17	20	.22
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 19 to 24 incl		20	1.32
Joseph C. Davis	1	21	.22
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 2 to 14 incl		21	2.86
Sophia E. Utzinger, lots 15 &	16	21	.44
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 17 to 21 incl		21	1.10
Hans Nelson, lots 22 to 24 incl		21	.66
M. H. Keeley	1	22	.22
F. Z. Sherwood	2	22	.22
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	3	22	.22
John Olson, lots 4 and	5	22	.44
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 6 to 12 incl		22	1.54
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 1 to 6 incl		23	1.32
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	7	23	.22
C. A. Robbecke	8	23	.22
A. H. Boyd	9	23	.22
Wm. Noyer	10	23	.22
C. A. Robbecke lots 11 and	12	23	.44
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 1 to 6 incl		24	1.14
W. A. Ware	7	24	.15
Thos. Edwards	8	24	.15
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 9 to 11 incl		24	.40
W. W. Rich	12	24	.15
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 13 to 24 incl		24	1.52
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 1 to 5 incl		25	.64
Ida G. Ness	6	25	.22
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 7 to 20 incl		25	3.14
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 21 to 24 incl blk 25, lots 1 to 6 incl		26	1.25
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 17 to 22 incl		26	1.88
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 23 to 24 incl blk 26, lots 1 to 12 incl		27	1.76
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 13 to 15 incl		27	.40
D. S. Sperry	16	27	.14
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 17 to 24 incl blk 27, lots 1 to 6 incl		28	1.76
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 7 to 15 incl		28	1.14
A. C. Miller	16	28	.14
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 17 to 20 incl		28	.51
Brown & Morse	21	28	.14
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	22	28	.14
Hoffman Foster, lots 1 and	2	29	.27
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	3	29	.14
C. G. Borgen	4	29	.14
Wiley Tindolph, lots 6 and	7	29	.30
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 8, 9 and	10	29	.45
David Buchsmiller, lots 11 &	12	29	.30
Anna L. Patterson, lots 1 and	2	30	.30
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	3	30	.15
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	5	30	.15
Fritz Eikhoff, lots 6 and	7	30	.30
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	8	30	.15
Nels H. Nelson	9	30	.15
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	10	30	.15
Erick E. Swelnde, lots 11 and	12	30	.30
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, all		31	3.06

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 1 to 16 incl		32	2.04
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 17 to 24 incl blk 32, lots 1 to 6 incl		33	1.76
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 7 to 12 incl		33	1.16
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 13 to 18 incl		33	1.16
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 20 to 24 incl		33	.71
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, all blk 34 and lots 1 to 4 incl		35	3.56
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 5 to 24 incl		35	.87
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	1	36	.00
W. W. Rich	2	36	.06
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 3 to 14 incl		36	.52
David Buchsmiller, lots 15 &	16	36	.52
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	17	36	.00
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 19 and	20	36	.10
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	3	37	.06
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 5 to 11 incl		37	.32
D. S. Sperry	12	37	.06
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 13 to 21 incl		37	.38
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 23 and	24	37	.10
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 1 to 10 incl		38	.44
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 12 to 15 incl		38	.18
Chas. A. Seabury	16	38	.06
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	17	38	.06
David Buchsmiller	18	38	.06
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 19 and	20	38	.10
Clarence H. George, lots 21 &	22	38	.10
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 23 and	24	38	.10
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 2 to 12 incl		39	.46
D. Fichthorn	1	40	.06
A. O. Nutting	2	40	.06
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 3 to 12 incl blk 40 and lots 1 and 2		41	.51
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 3 to 18 incl		41	.68
John Olson	19	41	.06
Bernt Bernsteen	20	41	.06
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	21	41	.06
D. S. Sperry	22	41	.06
Chas. Jackson, lots 23 and	24	41	.10
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 1 to [illegible] incl		42	.55
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 16 to 24 incl		42	.40
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 1 to 12 incl blk 43, and lots 1 to 6 incl		44	.78
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 7 to 12 incl blk 44, all blk 45 and lots 1 and 2		46	1.36
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 3 to 24 incl		46	.96
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, all blk 47 and lots 1 and	2	48	.63
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 3 to 24 incl		48	.55
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 1 to 5 incl		49	.15
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 7 to 20 incl		49	.50
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 21 and 22 blk 49 and lots 1 to 16 incl		50	.84
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	18	50	.06
First Nat Bank of Crookston, lots 19 and 20 blk 50 and 21 and 22 blk 50 and 1 to 7 incl		51	.41
John Olson, lots 8 and	9	51	.10
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 10 to 22 incl blk 51 &	1	52	.53
Robt. E. Nester	3	52	.06
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 4 to 19 incl		52	.62
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	20	52	.22
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 21 and 22 blk 52, all blk 53 and lots 1 to 8 incl		54	.66
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 9 to 11 incl blk 54 and all		55	.52

Crocker, Cundy & Nelson's Second Addition to St. Hilaire.

Name of Owner.	Lot.	Blk.	Am't.
St. Hil. Lumber Co., all		57	$ [illegible]
St. Hil. Lumber Co., all		58	.33
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, all		59	.28
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, all blk 60 and lots 1 to 4 incl		61	.37
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	5	61	.00
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 6 to 24 incl		61	.44
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, all blk 62, all blk 63 and lots 1 to 4 incl		64	.37
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 5 to 24 incl blk 64 and all		65	1.00
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, all blk 66 and lots 1 to 4 incl		67	.35
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 5 to 24 incl blk 67 and lots 1 to 12 incl		68	.72
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 13 and 14 blk 68 and lots 1 to 14 incl		69	.35
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 15 to 24 incl blk 69 and lots 1 to 6 incl		70	.37
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 7 to 24 incl blk 70, all blk 71 and lots 1 and	2	72	.69
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 3 to 12 incl blk 72 and lots 1 to 6 incl		73	.37
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 7 to 24 incl blk 73, all blk 74, all blk 75 and lots 1 &	2	76	.72
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 3 to 24 incl blk 76 and lots 1 to 10 incl		77	.69
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 11 and 12 blk 77, all blk 78 and lots 1 and	2	79	.37
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 3 to 24 incl blk 79 and lots 1 to 10 incl		80	.67
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 11 to 24 incl blk 80 and lots 1 and	2	81	.35
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 3 to 24 incl blk 81 and lots 1 to 10 incl		82	.72
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 11 to 24 incl blk 82 and lots 1 and	2	83	.35
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 3 to 12 incl blk 83 and lots 1 to 6 incl		84	.36
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 7 to 12 incl blk 84 and lots 1 to 10 incl		85	.35
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 11 to 24 incl blk 85 and lots 1 and	2	86	.35
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 3 to 6 incl blk 86, all blk 87 and lots 1 to 6 incl		88	.36
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 7 to 24 incl blk 88 and lots 1 to 5 incl		89	.69
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	6	89	.06
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 7 to 12 incl blk 89 and lots 1 and	2	90	19
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 3 to 12 incl blk 90 and lots 1 to 6 incl		91	.35
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 7 to 24 incl blk 91 and lots 1 to 14 incl		92	.71
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 15 to 24 incl blk 92 and lots 1 to 6 incl		93	.35
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 7 to 24 incl blk 93, all blk 94 and lots 1 to 5 incl		95	.97
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 6 to 24 incl blk 95 and all		96	.72
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	3	97	.06
First Nat. Bank of Crookston	4	97	.06
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 5 and	6	97	.10
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 7 and	8	97	.06
Armstrong & Bushee	9	97	.06
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 10, 11 and	12	97	.10
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 1 to 5 incl and 6 to 9 incl		98	.25
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 10, 11, 12, 13, 14, 15 & 16		98	.30
Kari N. Peppin	17	98	.06
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 18 to 23 incl		98	.23
Kari N. Peppin	24	98	.06
First Nat. Bank of Crookston, lots 1 to 6 incl		99	.12

NORTH TOWNSHIP.
Township 154, Range 43.

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
Peter Kepper, w½ sw¼	7	80	$26.28
Deforest Bucklen, e½ sw¼ and s½ se¼	7	160	34.49
Farm Land Co., se¼	8	160	31.89
Johnson & Bones, sw¼ sw¼ & e½ nw¼	16	120	28.75
Martha Thomas, w½ nw¼	16	80	15.96
C. L. Dobner, nw¼	17	160	30.92
Christen Jensen, n½ se¼	19	80	17.99
Flora A. Daniels, e½ sw¼ and lots 3 and 4	19	151.49	28.96
Knud Knudson, lots 1 & 2	19	64.44	13.06
Gust L. Fevig, s½ sw¼	21	80	17.18
Christian Meier, s½ nw¼	21	80	15.58
Luella O. Devaraqux, n½ sw¼, nw¼ se¼ and sw¼ ne¼	21	160	38.66
Gust L. Fevig, w½ nw¼	28	80	14.64
John Hemmingson, w½ sw¼	28	80	14.15
John E. Johnson, s½ sw¼	29	80	16.52
Theodore E. Devereaux, s½ se¼, nw¼ se¼ and sw¼ ne¼ ex 11 a of se¼ se¼	29	149	52.00
Anna Kretzsahmar, part of se¼ se¼	29	11	1.90
H. D. Baardson, lot 1	30	35.22	7.55
G. Killiavi, se¼	30	160	36.32
John E. Johnson, n½ nw¼	32	80	15.10

LAKE PLEASANT TOWNSHIP.
Township 150, Range 44.

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
Security Trust Co., ne¼	7	160	$12.85
Am. Loan & Trust Co., trustee, se¼	7	160	9.63
Alsime Brimelle, w½ ne¼	8	80	8.31
John Perrault, e½ sw¼	9	80	7.35
Evangelist Quisnell, s½ ne¼ & s½ nw¼	12	160	21.41
Caleb K. Colby, nw¼	13	160	11.85
Sophia Busch, sw¼	13	160	11.85
Jane B. Eddy, nw¼ ex Ry R of W	15	151.96	14.41
Joseph Ladrin, se¼	15	160	10.58
A. D. Dupont, w½ ne¼	16	80	4.47
Louis V. Marchildon, e½ nw¼	16	80	3.67
H. Columbus, w½ nw¼ and ne¼ sw¼ and se¼ sw¼	16	160	11.56
Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
Eucharist Dupont, nw¼ se¼	16	40	1.22
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., nw¼	23	160	14.22
The Western Security Co., se¼ ex Ry R of W	28	156.54	16.09
Louis Genereaux, ne¼	29	160	14.89
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., ne¼	30	160	11.03
Oscar Chappentier, n½ se¼, ne¼ sw¼ and lot 3	30	153.15	10.08
Emily Struett, nw¼	33	160	14.43
George Parsons, ne¼ ex Ry R of W	33	157.60	14.43

RED LAKE FALLS TOWNSHIP.
Township 151, Range 44.

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., sw¼	5	160	$30.41
Daniel J. Gerlach, e½ sw¼ & lots 6 and 7	6	151	28.41
John Schwalenberg, se¼	6	160	26.87
F. T. Day, e½ nw¼ & lots 1 and 2	7	153	24.46
Carl and Gotlieb Gerlach, ne¼	8	160	23.83
Thomas R. Dargan, sw¼	9	160	26.07
Thomas R. Dargan, 40 a out of sw cor of se¼	9	40	13.50
Joseph M. Holmes, nw¼	11	160	27.90
Dak. Investment Co., e½ ne¼	11	80	11.26
Cape Cod 5c Sav'gs Bank, lot 6	17	10	3.14
Ernest Buse, lot 5	17	16	4.46
Robert B. Mumford, lot 7	17	12.10	3.60
John M. Miller, lot 8	17	15	4.34
E. Buse 3 acres in sw¼	17	3	2.24
Joseph F. Gray, lot 9	17	22	3.26
Ernest Buse, 1 a of lot 11	17	1	1.22
Edward Garceau, lots 11, 12, 13 and 14	18	56	9.27
Paul Cyr, lots 6, 7, 8 & 10 ex 10 s 10 acres of lot 6	19	88.75	11.73
Joseph Gray, e½ ne¼, nw¼ ne¼ and lot 1	19	160	26.17
Robt. B. Mumford, lot 1	20	2	1.22
Joseph Gray, e½ nw¼, sw¼ nw¼ and lot 2	20	148	38.36
Nelson Emard, part of sw¼	24	3.50	.68
John Schmitz, part of lot 5	24	10	1.90
Eli Emard, e½ sw¼	24	80	10.92
Celina Emard, 4 acres in nw corner of sw¼	24	4	1.36
May Emard, se¼	24	160	23.32
James McGalrie, 2 acres in nw corner of sw¼	24	2	.55
Nareisse Emard, 5 acres in nw corner of sw¼	24	5	1.27
Labilla Gareau, 208x416 ft out of nw¼ sw¼	24	4.50	.43
John B. Demarois, east 12 rods of west 28½ rods of e½ sw¼	25	12	1.69
Theodore Carceau, com. 28½ rods e of nw cor. of e½ sw¼ sec 25-151-44, e 12 rods, s 160 rods, w 12 rods, n 160 rods	25		2.07
Lymon Goodrich, se¼ ex n½ ne¼ se¼	26	140
sw¼ ne¼ & n 17 a of se¼ne¼	26	57.50	33.65
Marcus Johnson, sw ½ acres of se¼ ne¼ and n½ ne¼ se¼	26	42.50	8.88
Celina Davis, se¼ nw¼ and lots 1, 2 and 5	30	154.92	31.43
Paul Cyr, e½ sw¼ and lots 3 & 4 ex 6 acres	30	142.36	27.14
Pierre Dufour, ne¼	31	160	14.18
Ambroise Delorme, sw¼	32	160	28.13
Pierre Dufault, ne¼	32	160	14.18
Otto Zaiser, se¼, ex. Ry R of W	33	158.52	26.89
Orient Ins. Co., s½ se¼	34	80	12.93
Mary Richel, ne¼ ne¼	36	40	7.80
Chas. Perrault, nw¼ ne¼	36	40	7.80
Joseph Marchildon, w½ se¼	36	80	18.45
J. T. Beaudry, sw¼ ne¼	36	40	7.57
Joseph Marchildon, e½ sw¼	36	80	15.16

BLACK RIVER TOWNSHIP.
Township 152, Range 44.

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
E. H. Steele, sw¼ nw¼ and n½ se¼	2	120	$11.09
Am. Loan & Trust Co., trustee, se¼	3	160	14.70
Erick Nelson, sw¼	4	160	16.38
John Jacobson, s½ ne¼ and lots 1 and 2	4	155.03	14.99
Paul Axelson, e½ nw¼ & lots 3 and 4	4	155.79	14.90
P. A. Skarp, e½ nw¼ and lots 1 and 2	7	148	9.96
Peter A. Eckstrom, ne¼	7	160	13.38
Johanna Adolphson, nw¼	8	160	13.73
Chas. M. Reynolds, ne¼	8	160	12.76
August E. Amundson, e½ nw¼, sw¼ nw¼ & ne¼ sw¼	11	[illegible]	16.48
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., se¼	11	160	15.51
Gervaine Orsoline, w½ nw¼ & w½ sw¼ ex Ry R of W	13	158.58	15.37
R. K. Brown, se¼ ex Ry R of W	15	154.88	14.94
Frank Ives, n½ se¼, n½ sw¼ and se¼ sw¼ ex Ry R of W	16	595.68	52.94
A. G. Gallasch, se¼	18	160	14.25
Gust Peterson, e½ nw¼ and e½ sw¼	18	160	13.02
Thomas Glynn, lot 4	18	35.53
nw¼	19	151.16	24.37
A. G. Gallasch, nw¼ and n½ sw¼ ex Ry R of W	20	[illegible]	23.07
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., ne¼	22	160	24.06
S. A. Swanson, w½ se¼ and se¼ se¼ sec 23, sw¼ sw¼	24	160	21.35
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., nw¼	23	160	21.30
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., se¼	27	160	22.50
Wm. Callahan, se¼	28	160	16.62
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., sw¼	28	160	18.51
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., se¼	29	160	18.71
Co., se¼	29	160	18.70
Mary P. Jefter, nw¼	29	160	19.53
John Power, ne¼	30	160	20.06
Nicholas Eckstad, e½ nw¼ and lots 1 and 2 ex Ry R of W	30	150.87	29.97
Fred Eckhoff, e½ sw¼ and lots 3 and 4	31	150.29	28.17
John Neiverth, sw¼	33	160	18.67
Agnes Dargan, ne¼	33	160	18.72
John Birkholz, nw¼	35	160	24.73
Frederick & Hack, s½ & ne¼ ex Ry R of W	36	467.88	65.48

SANDERS TOWNSHIP.
Township 153, Range 44.

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
John Gjerberg, sw¼ nw¼ and lot 4	3	78.65	$9.13
James John Fulton, e½ ne¼ & sw¼ ne¼ sec 10, se¼ se¼	3	160	15.10
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., s½ ne¼	5	80	5.70
Knut H. Sauve, lot 4	7	40	2.74
Col. & U. S. Mtg. Co., e½sw¼	8	80	4.11
Security Trust Co., ne¼ ne¼	9	40	3.27
Security Trust Co., s½ ne¼ & nw¼ ne¼	9	120	9.86
A. D. Steaphens, nw¼	11	160	12.67
Wm. A. Lorimer, se¼	15	160	11.93
Edward Gardiner, ne¼	17	160	10.79
Lydia S. Peck, se¼ sw¼	17	40	2.84
Wm. S. Rogers, ne¼ nw¼, nw¼ ne¼ and lot 1	18	120	7.33
Wm. S. Rogers, e½ sw¼ and lots 3 and 4	19	161.12	8.38
Lydia S. Peck, n½ ne¼ and ne¼ nw¼	20	120	5.14
Thos. S. Low, sw¼	22	160	15.97
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., ne¼ ex 10 acres	22	150	12.97
H. G. Stark, se¼	22	160	13.04
A. Anderson, se¼	23	160	13.94
W. J. Holmes, n½ nw¼, sw¼ nw¼ and nw¼ sw¼	24	160	19.84
Anna M. Pederson, n½ se¼, ne¼ sw¼ and se¼ nw¼	24	160	22.20
H. F. Woodmancy, se¼	25	160	19.84
Webber & Griffith, ne¼	25	160	19.47
Chas. H. Mix, sw¼	25	160	9.74
J. K. O. Sherwood, se¼	26	160	17.33
John Brenvold, s½ sw¼ sec 27, n½ nw¼	34	160	16.60
Frederick & Hack, ne¼ ne¼	36	40	4.36
John W. Shackleton, s½ ne¼	36	80	9.02
E. Dow, se¼ nw¼ & e½sw¼	36	120	14.97
H. Steenerson, se¼ se¼	36	40	5.64
George Crocker, n½ se¼ and sw¼ se¼	36	120	18.13
Erick Hard, ne¼	35	160	13.55

NORDEN TOWNSHIP.
Township 154, Range 44.

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
John Nordhagen, w½ sw¼	10
w½ nw¼	15	160	$21.97
Johanna C. Blomquist, sw¼	11	160	17.69
Ole O. Steen, se¼ se¼	16	40	5.41
Magnus Winberg, nw¼ sw¼ & s½ sw¼ sec 17, se¼ se¼	18	160	13.87
John Connery, sw¼	19	160	14.81
Anders C. Hanson, w½ se¼ & s½ ne¼	19	160	14.44
Christopher E. Aass, nw¼ ne¼, n½ nw¼ and sw¼ nw¼	21	160	10.12
C. L. Dobner, se¼ se¼	21	40	2.71
C. L. Dobner, s½ sw¼	22	80	13.21
C. L. Dobner, nw¼ nw¼	27	40	4.14
Henry Beragen, s½ se¼	24	80	9.74
John O. Feragen, s½ sw¼	24	80	10.90
Knud Knudson, e½ ne¼	24	80	6.83
H. D. Boardson, n½ ne¼ & sw¼ ne¼	25	120	16.71
H. D. Boardson, se¼ ne¼	25	40	4.83
A. L. Svendslie, e½ se¼ and sw¼ se¼ sec 26, ne¼ ne¼	35	160	18.78
Johan Johnson, e½ nw¼, sw¼ nw¼ and nw¼ sw¼	[illegible]	160	19.67
Nils Samuelson, ne¼	28	160	12.12
Severen L. Demman, nw¼ ne¼, ne¼ nw¼ and s½ ne¼	29	160	11.33
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., s½ nw¼ and n½ sw¼	31	160	17.94
John Mossbeck, nw¼ sw¼ and sw¼ nw¼	35	80	10.01
John Mossbeck, se¼ ne¼	34	40	4.70

LOUISVILLE TOWNSHIP.
Township 151, Range 45.

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
Ernest Hilse, sw¼	1	160	$14.23
Frank Goulet, sw¼	2	160	19.85
Ranil Neil, lot 4	3	39.94	3.67
Col. & U. S. Mtg. Co., sw¼ ex Ry R of W	4	153.55	11.27
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., se¼ ne¼ and lot 1	4	80	5.62
Jonathan S. Wyckhoff, ne¼ ex Ry R of W	6	155.43	15.21
Millie Doayea, e½ se¼	6	80	5.76
Philomene Boivin, w½ se¼ ex Ry R of W	6	[illegible]	8.43
Ferdinand Pepin, se¼ sw¼ & lot 7	6	82.79	6.16
Peter Raymond, se¼ ex Ry R of W	11	154	27.75
Celos Raymond, sw¼ ex Ry R of W	12	153.63	18.20
Henry M. Granger, w½ se¼ and lots 1 and 2	13	159.55	16.44
S. W. Bleau, se¼	14	160	15.79
Cyville Beauchene, n½ nw¼, sw¼ nw¼ and nw¼ sw¼	22	160	17.57
Charles St. Antoine, se¼	20	160	17.21
L. D. Marshall, nw¼	24	160	14.32
L. E. Chase, sw¼	24	160	16.05
Ernest Buse, lot 2 sec 24, lot 1 sec 25, lot 4	26	5	53
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., e½ se¼ and lots 2 & 11	25	166	[illegible]
F. T. Day, lots 7, 9 and 10	26	100.60	11.50
T. B. Walker, lots 1 and 8	27	1.15	.28
Emil J. Farley, ne¼	28	160	19.18
Louis Huot, nw¼ se¼ and lots 1, 2 and 3	28	140	20.30
Philias Ray, s½ sw¼	29	80	13.85
Isadore Therien, e½ nw¼ & e½ sw¼	31	160	20.17
Emily Lemieux, e½ sw¼ & sw¼ sw¼	35	120	24.18
A. Lachapelle, e½ se¼	36	80	7.36
Thos. Belair, ne¼ ne¼	36	40	4.60
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 2	3	39.57	3.36
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ ne¼	3	40	4.30
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ ne¼	3	40	4.30
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ nw¼	3	40	4.34
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ nw¼	3	40	4.58
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ sw¼	3	40	4.11
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ se¼	3	40	4.23
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ se¼	3	40	4.23
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ se¼	3	40	3.98
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ se¼	3	40	3.98
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., lots 1 and 2, sw¼ ne¼ and se¼ nw¼ ex. Ry R of W and gravel pit	5	151.45	7.02
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ sw¼	5	40	3.74
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., lots 3 and 4, sw¼ nw¼ and se¼ nw¼ ex Ry R of W and gravel pit	5	153.07	9.46
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ sw¼	5	40	3.51
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ sw¼	5	40	3.74
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ sw¼	5	40	3.74
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ se¼ and s½ se¼, ex Ry R of W and gravel pit	5	137.29	12.85
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼	7	160	15.44
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ sw¼	7	40	3.74
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 1	7	42.69	3.88
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 2	7	42.52	3.88
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ nw¼	7	40	3.51
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ sw¼	7	40	3.78
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 3	7	42.35	3.88
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 4	7	[illegible]	[illegible]
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ sw¼	7	40	3.74
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ se¼	7	40	3.74
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., w½ se¼	7	80	6.02
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ se¼	7	40	3.74
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ ne¼	9	80	7.46
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., s½ ne¼	9	80	7.00
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ nw¼	9	40	3.74
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ nw¼	9	40	3.74
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., s½ nw¼	9	80	7.00
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ sw¼	9	80	7.00
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ sw¼	9	40	3.51
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ sw¼	9	40	3.51
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ se¼	9	80	7.00
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ se¼	9	40	3.74
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ se¼	9	40	3.74
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ nw¼	11	80	9.60
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., s½ nw¼	11	80	7.80
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ sw¼	11	40	4.80
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ sw	11	40	4.50
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ sw¼	11	40	4.10
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ sw¼	11	40	4.31
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ ne¼	15	80	8.20
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ ne¼	15	40	4.10
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ ne¼	15	40	4.10
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ nw¼	15	40	4.10
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., w½ nw¼	15	80	7.74
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ nw¼	15	40	4.10
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ sw¼ and s½ sw¼	15	120	12.06
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ sw¼	15	40	3.87
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ se¼	15	80	7.07
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., s½ se¼	15	80	8.20
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼	17	160	14.22
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼	17	160	14.68
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ sw¼	17	40	3.74
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ sw¼ and s½ sw¼	17	120	10.19
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ se¼	17	80	5.60
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., s½ se¼	17	80	6.06
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼	19	160	16.02
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., e½ nw¼	19	80	6.63
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ sw¼	19	40	4.21
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 3	19	42.27	4.46
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 4	19	42.29	4.46
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼	19	160	18.59
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼	21	160	13.40
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ nw¼	21	40	4.24
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼	21	160	16.04
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼	21	160	13.26
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 2	27	25.75	4.33
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 3	27	43.20	6.06
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 7	27	50.70	6.41
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 9	27	17.40	2.44
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ nw¼	27	80	8.20
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 4	27	38.75	3.66
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 5	27	10	.01
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 6	27	16.50	1.64
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 14	27	40.50	3.18
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 15	27	33.40	3.82
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 16	27	39.60	4.51
St. P. M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 10	27	34.50	3.94

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 11	27	10.25	1.03
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 12	27	22.70	2.56
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., s½ se¼	27	80	8.28
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ ne¼	29	40	6.04
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ ne¼	29	40	4.89
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., s½ ne¼	29	80	8.47
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼	29	160	12.77
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ sw¼	29	80	8.47
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ se¼	29	80	8.47
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ se¼	29	40	4.01
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼	31	160	16.94
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ nw¼	31	40	4.46
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 1	31	43.10	4.78
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 2	31	43.18	4.98
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ nw¼	31	40	4.72
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ sw¼	31	40	4.24
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 3	31	43.27	4.56
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 4	31	43.35	4.56
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ sw¼	31	40	3.32
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼	31	160	16.94
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ sw¼	35	40	3.68

POLK CENTRE TOWNSHIP.

Township 152, Range 45.

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
Olaf Pearson, 5 a out of sw¼	2	5	$ .27
Sam Pearson, se¼ ne¼	5	40	2.42
Union Mtg.-Bkg & Trust Co., s½ se¼ and lots 1 and 2	6	158.92	9.09
C. P. Highberg, sw¼ se¼	9	40	2.81
C. P. Highberg, se¼ se¼	9	40	2.75
Thomas Glynn, se¼ se¼	13	40	3.44
Nicholas Eckstein, nw¼ se¼ & ne¼ sw¼	13	80	10.08
Charles Liefiel, s½ se¼	15	80	5.59
Chas. Togal, se¼ ne¼	16	40	2.90
Helena Halvorson, ne¼	18	160	10.41
Germain Pelletier, n½ nw¼, se¼ nw¼ and nw¼ ne¼	20	160	10.29
Gertrude Thill, sw¼	24	160	19.12
Abel Leppert, ne¼	24	160	27.03
Jacob Thill, 75x150 ft out of ne¼	25	.27	6.90
Nicholas Eckstein, 50 x 150 feet out of ne¼	25	.18	10.08
Jacob Thill, 50x150 ft out of ne¼	25	.18	4.03
George Stahl, se¼ sw¼	27	40	3.63
Chas. & Adolph Zutz, s½ ne¼	27	80	6.85
Mary Jane Wight, se¼	28	160	14.82
Joseph Laurent, s½ se¼	30	80	5.25
Chas. Pelletier, nw¼	32	160	12.31
J. W. Crompton, assg., sw¼	32	160	12.48
George Stahl, s½ nw¼, s½ ne¼ and ne¼ se¼	35	160	18.12
Gotlib Gerlach, e½	36	320	46.00
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 1	3	37.61	2.59
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 2	3	37.28	2.59
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 3	3	36.95	2.55
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 4	3	36.62	2.55
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., s½ ne¼	3	80	5.03
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., s½ nw¼	3	80	5.62
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ sw¼	3	80	5.62
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., s½ sw¼	3	80	5.62
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ se¼	3	80	5.62
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., s½ se¼	3	80	5.62
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 1	5	37.76	2.61
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 2	5	38.20	2.65
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 3	5	38.64	2.65
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 4	5	39.08	2.70
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., s½ nw¼	5	80	5.62
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ sw¼	5	80	5.62
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ sw¼	5	40	2.82
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ se¼	5	40	2.82
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ ne¼	7	80	5.62
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., s½ ne¼	7	80	5.62
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ nw¼	7	40	2.52
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 1	7	42.92	2.70
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ nw¼	7	40	2.41
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ sw¼	7	40	2.41
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 3	7	42.70	2.58
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 4	7	42.58	2.37
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ sw¼	7	40	2.36
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ se¼	7	40	2.82
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., w½ se¼	7	80	5.39
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ se¼	7	40	2.82
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ ne¼	9	40	2.82
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ ne¼	9	40	2.82
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ ne¼	9	40	2.82
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ nw¼	9	40	2.82
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ se¼	9	40	3.10
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ nw¼	11	40	2.41
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ nw¼	11	40	2.41
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ sw¼	11	40	2.41
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ sw¼	11	40	2.41
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ ne¼	15	40	2.82
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., w½ ne¼	15	80	5.62
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ ne¼	15	40	2.82
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ nw¼	15	40	2.41
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ nw¼	15	40	2.41
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ sw¼	15	40	2.41
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., s½ sw¼	15	80	4.80
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ se¼	15	80	5.39
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ ne¼	17	80	4.80
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., s½ ne¼	17	80	4.80
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ nw¼	17	80	4.80
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., s½ nw¼	17	80	4.80
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ sw¼	17	80	4.80
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., s½ sw¼	17	80	4.80
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼	17	160	9.60
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 1	19	42.87	2.70
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 2	19	43.02	2.71
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ nw¼	19	40	2.52
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ sw¼	19	40	2.52
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 3	19	43.17	2.71
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 4	19	43.32	2.71
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ sw¼	19	40	2.82
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ se¼	19	40	2.84
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., w½ se¼	19	80	5.03
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ se¼	19	40	2.52
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼	21	160	9.95
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ nw¼	21	40	2.70
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ nw¼	21	40	2.82
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., s½ nw¼	21	80	5.39
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ sw¼	21	80	5.62
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ se¼	21	80	5.39
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ se¼	21	40	2.70
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ nw¼	23	40	5.06
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ nw¼	23	40	4.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ sw¼	23	40	4.37
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ ne¼	27	80	6.13
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼	27	160	12.65
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ sw¼	27	40	3.17
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., w½ sw¼	27	80	6.56
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ se¼ ex Ry R of W	27	40	3.29
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ se¼	27	40	3.29
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., w½ se¼	27	80	6.56
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ ne¼	29	80	6.35
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ ne¼	29	40	3.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ nw¼	29	40	2.97
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., s½ nw¼	29	80	5.94
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼	29	160	11.88
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ se¼	29	80	7.00
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ se¼	29	40	2.97
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ se¼	29	40	3.09
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼	31	160	12.34
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ nw¼	31	40	3.09
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 1	31	43.50	3.30
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 2	31	43.31	3.30
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., e½ sw¼	31	80	5.71
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 3	31	43.12	3.32
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 4	31	42.93	3.29
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., e½ nw¼	31	40	3.09
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼	31	160	12.34
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., w½ ne¼	33	80	6.83
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., n½ nw¼	33	80	6.17
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., s½ nw¼	33	80	6.17
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ sw¼ ex Ry R of W	33	40	3.09
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ sw¼	33	40	3.09

BRAY TOWNSHIP.

Township 153, Range 45.

Name of Owner.	Sec.	Ac's.	Am't.
Minneapolis Realty Co., sw¼	1	160	$13.43
Wis. Female College, e½ se¼, se¼ ne¼ and lot 1	2	160.02	11.82
F. T. Day, se¼ nw¼ & lots 3, 4 and 5	6	158	10.19
D. S. B. Johnston Land Mtg. Co., ne¼	10	160	11.72
Chas. G. Edwards, se¼	12	160	12.62
Caroline May Elliott, w½ ne¼ and w½ se¼	14	160	7.28
Andrew Halvorson, sw¼ se¼	16	40	1.80
Emma Benton, ne¼ nw¼ and lot 1	18	81	5.18
Mary A. Husten, se¼	18	160	10.20
S. E. Erickson, w½ nw¼ and w½ sw¼	25	160	7.11
Swan Scholin, se¼	32	160	6.75
Axel F. Kron, e½ nw¼ and e½ sw¼	32	160	6.41
Swan Scholin, ne¼	32	160	6.41
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 1	3	41.72	3.15
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 2	3	41.73	3.15
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ ne¼	3	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ ne¼	3	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 3	3	41.73	3.15
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 4	3	41.44	3.09
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ nw¼	3	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ nw¼	3	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ sw¼	3	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ sw¼	3	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ sw¼	3	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ sw¼	3	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ se¼	3	40	2.69
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ se¼	3	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ se¼	3	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ se¼	3	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 1	5	39.82	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 2	5	39.83	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ ne¼	5	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ ne¼	5	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 3	5	39.82	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 4	5	39.83	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ nw¼	5	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ nw¼	5	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ sw¼	5	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ sw¼	5	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ sw¼	5	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ sw¼	5	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼	5	160	10.49
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼	7	160	10.49
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ nw¼	7	40	2.05
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 1	7	40.16	2.67
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 2	7	40.48	2.67
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ nw¼	7	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ sw¼	7	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 3	7	40.80	2.69
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 4	7	41.12	2.69
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ sw¼	7	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ se¼	7	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ se¼	7	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ se¼	7	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ se¼	7	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ ne¼	9	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ ne¼	9	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ ne¼	9	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ ne¼	9	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ nw¼	9	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ nw¼	9	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ nw¼	9	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ nw¼	9	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ sw¼	9	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ sw¼	9	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ sw¼	9	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ sw¼	9	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ se¼	9	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ se¼	9	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ se¼	9	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ se¼	9	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ ne¼	11	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ ne¼	11	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ ne¼	11	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ ne¼	11	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ nw¼	11	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ nw¼	11	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ nw¼	11	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ nw¼	11	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ sw¼	11	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ sw¼	11	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ sw¼	11	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ sw¼	11	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ se¼	11	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ se¼	11	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ se¼	11	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ se¼	11	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ nw¼	13	40	3.30
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ nw¼	13	40	3.30
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ sw¼	13	40	2.97
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ sw¼	13	40	2.97
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ ne¼	15	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ ne¼	15	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ nw¼	15	40	2.49
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ sw¼	15	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ sw¼	15	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ se¼	15	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ se¼	15	40	2.88
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ ne¼	17	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ ne¼	17	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ nw¼	17	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ nw¼	17	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ nw¼	17	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ nw¼	17	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ sw¼	17	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ sw¼	17	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ se¼	17	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ se¼	17	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ se¼	17	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ se¼	17	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ ne¼	19	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ ne¼	19	40	2.49
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ ne¼	19	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ ne¼	19	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ nw¼	19	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 1	19	39.68	2.87
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 2	19	39.45	2.87
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ nw¼	19	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ sw¼	19	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 3	19	39.22	2.85
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 4	19	38.99	2.85
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ sw¼	19	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ se¼	19	40	2.49
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ se¼	19	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ se¼	19	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ se¼	19	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ ne¼	21	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ ne¼	21	40	2.49
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ ne¼	21	40	2.49
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ ne¼	21	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ nw¼	21	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ nw¼	21	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ nw¼	21	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ nw¼	21	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ sw¼	21	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ sw¼	21	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ sw¼	21	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ sw¼	21	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ se¼	21	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ se¼	21	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ se¼	21	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ se¼	21	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ ne¼	23	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ ne¼	23	40	2.49
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ ne¼	23	40	2.49
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ ne¼	23	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ nw¼	23	40	2.49
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ nw¼	23	40	2.49
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ se¼	23	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ se¼	23	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ se¼	23	40	2.18
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ se¼	23	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ ne¼	27	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ ne¼	27	40	2.99
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ nw¼	27	40	2.74
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ nw¼	27	40	2.49
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ nw¼	27	40	2.49
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ sw¼	27	40	2.49
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ sw¼	27	40	2.49
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ ne¼	29	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ ne¼	29	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ ne¼	29	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ ne¼	29	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ nw¼	29	40	2.88
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ nw¼	29	40	2.88
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ sw¼	29	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ sw¼	29	40	2.88
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ se¼	29	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ se¼	29	40	2.88
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ se¼	29	40	2.63
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ se¼	29	40	2.38
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ ne¼	31	40	2.59
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ ne¼	31	40	2.86
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ ne¼	31	40	2.86
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ ne¼	31	40	2.59
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ nw¼	31	40	2.86
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 1	31	40.02	3.15
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 2	31	40.01	3.15
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ nw¼	31	40	2.86
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ sw¼	31	40	2.86
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 3	31	40.01	3.15
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., lot 4	31	40	3.15
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ sw¼	31	40	2.86
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ se¼	31	40	2.59
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ se¼	31	40	2.86
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ se¼	31	40	2.86
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ se¼	31	40	2.59
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ ne¼	33	40	2.59
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., nw¼ ne¼	33	40	2.86
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., sw¼ ne¼	33	40	2.59
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., se¼ ne¼	33	40	2.59
St. P., M. & M. R. R. Co., ne¼ nw¼	33	40	2.86
